Fatal fire started in bed, state investigator says

A fire that killed four Midland children, ages 8 months to 3 years old, Dec. 29 started on a double bed, only a few feet from where the children's bodies were discovered, State Arson Investigator Gregory Whitlock determined Tuesday.

All five children were found huddled next to a door that would have led them to safety. The bed was located four to five feet from that door. Killed were 3-year-old twins Noel and Joel Bennett, 2-year-old Rudy Bennett Jr. and 8-month-old Jennifer Ann Bennett, the children of Rudy and Yolanda Bennett.

The origin of the fire was pinpointed Tuesday by Whitlock with the state fire marshal's office. He said the cause of the fire would probably not be known until Thursday. Whitlock is scheduled to leave Midland Thursday evening.

He spent early Tuesday afternoon at Tall City Apartments, examining the burned rooms. The remainder of Tuesday, today and possibly part of Thursday will be spent talking with the family and witnesses.

"It's going to take me a while to get everybody's stories together," Whitlock said Tuesday. "Now comes the legwork."

The state fire marshal's office was called in because of the unusual burn pattern from the fire. The room where the fire started and where the children were found was charred from the baseboards to the roof on every wall. Usually, said Midland Fire Marshal Herb Bloomer, a fire causes a "V" pattern — small where the fire begins and then expanding as it climbs the wall to the ceiling.

"The reason it burned out like this," said Whitlock, "is because of the paneling. It's cedar with a lot of varnish and varnish is highly flammable. When that (paneling with varnish) gets to a certain temperature, it just flashes."

After examining the three charred rooms that were rented to the Bennett family, Whitlock and Bloomer also agreed that the fire had been burning at least 30 minutes before it was spotted by residents.

That contradicts earlier reports which had indicated the fire had been burning for only about five minutes before it was spotted.

Besides the Bennett's three rooms, a storage room and one room of an adjoining apartment were damaged in the fire. The resident of the damaged apartment was watching television, said Whitlock, when the fire blew a hole in the wall.

Since the fire, the apartment management has posted a notice to all the residents that the complex will be closed as of Jan. 15. Unofficial sources say the building will be leveled and the land used for commercial development.

Algeria's proposal on hostages called 'generally acceptable'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iran's chief hostage negotiator said today the Tehran government generally accepts a secret Algerian proposal for ending the U.S.-Iranian crisis.

The negotiator, Behzad Nabavi, told a news conference in the Iranian capital the Algerian mediators had offered a guarantee that their proposal would work. But he gave no details of the proposal and guarantees, saying only, "This subject has been studied and has been agreed upon generally."

Nabavi, who is minister of state for executive affairs, refused to say explicitly whether he meant that a breakthrough had been made or was imminent in the stalemate over the 52 captive Americans, who have been held for 431 days.

The Algerian plan presumably replaces an Iranian one rejected by the Carter administration whereby the United States would have been required to deposit $24 billion in the Algerian central bank as a guarantee that Iran's financial demands would eventually be met.

Nabavi's remarks came a day after a confusing statement by Iranian Prime Minister Mohammed Ali Rajai aroused new speculation that progress was being made toward resolving the crisis.

Rajai said in a television interview in Tehran that Iranian revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini had authorized acceptance of a proposal from Algeria "to solve our problem with the United States."

But the Farsi-language words used by Rajai could have been translated as either that Algeria "guaranteed" to solve the problem or "undertook" to solve it, and there was no official English translation of what he meant.

Today Nabavi told reporters, "The Algerian government has said in its proposal that it is ready to accept the undertakings of both sides, in other words Iran and the United States can empower the Algerian government with their undertakings."

Asked when the hostages might be released, Nabavi said, "When the conditions of the Majlis (Iranian Parliament) are met by the U.S. government and when the Iranian government obtains enough assurance that the U.S. government's undertakings will be carried out." He also repeated Iran's threat to put the Americans on trial as spies.

There was no immediate public reaction by the Carter administration to Nabavi's statements, but on Tuesday night White House press secretary Jody Powell reported that Algeria delivered "additional questions" from Iran Tuesday on the last American proposals. He said a reply was being sent to the Algerians early today.

U.S. officials who asked not to be identified said the signals from Iran suggested the U.S. and Iranian governments had reached "agreement on some basic principles" to settle the hostage dispute. But Powell said Tuesday's communication from Iran provided no basis for "any sort of conclusion about when or even if we will have an agreement."

U.S. officials caution that a quickened pace of negotiations between the two countries does not ensure a breakthrough in the 14-month stalemate.

However, one official, who asked not to be identified, said agreement has been reached on some "basic principles" and that Iran is prepared to revise its demand that the United States provide $24 billion in financial guarantees as its price for releasing the 52 captives.

White House Press Secretary Jody Powell, who attended a hastily convened meeting at the State Department Tuesday night, urged caution.

Meanwhile, in a news conference today in Tehran, Iran's chief negotiator in the hostage crisis, Behzad Nabavi, said Algeria has sent Iran its own proposal to try to break the stalemate.

Monahans Draw chemical levels 'not alarming'

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Water from Monahans Draw flowing eastwardly from Odessa and past Midland does contain levels of a toxic chemical but apparently not at an alarming level, according to Midland County Attorney Robert Rendall.

Traces of the chemical phenol, also known as carbolic acid, were detected in three samples of flowing water and analyzed by Martin Water Labs of Midland and Monahans.

Rendall said he has not actually seen the reports to determine the level of the chemical.

"No, I wouldn't drink from it (the draw)," said Rendall. "But I wouldn't tell people to evacuate or not evacuate" from along the draw until he has studied this and subsequent reports to discern the full impact of the chemical.

"This is not a dangerous type situation," he said.

Phenol is, however, on the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's hazardous waste list, said Jewel Smith, chief sanitarian of the Midland City-County Health Department.

"I know that it is toxic," Smith said. The water soluble carbolic acid is derived from benzene, a petroleum product, and toluene, which is obtained from coal tar or petroleum.

He said he does not know if there is any relation between the toxic chemical in the draw and Odessa's dumping of effluent waters from its sewage treatment plant into the draw. El Paso Natural Gas Co.'s plant and other petroleum plants are near Odessa's sewage treatment plant.

And there are oil field pump jacks and oil field tanks along the draw's route. The draw joins Midland Draw and eventually ends up at the Colorado River.

"It's difficult to determine why the phenol is there," Smith said.

"If I lived along the draw, I would get a chemical analysis of it and test it," Smith said.

In late December and early this month, Smith did take samples of water from nine wells along the draw from near the headwaters toward the Midland-Ector County line to Midkiff in southeast Midland County. Midkiff is south of the draw.

"The wells are all all right," said Smith. "There's nothing significant."

However, two wells at Midkiff were "contaminated" with "coliform organisms," which are present in fecal matter of mammals. "But we don't blame that on the draw," Smith said.

"Fecal coliform is not harmful to anybody," he said but noted that certain alimentary canal diseases, such as typhoid and cholera are associated with the coliform organism.

The wells easily can be cleared up and made potable by treatment with chlorine, Smith said.

"It (contamination by fecal matter) happens all the time, but it's nothing to get excited about."

He said the wells may have gotten the coliform organism from cattle or dog dung and not necessarily human excrement.

"That (chlorination) will clean the wells up," he said. The two contaminated wells were treated and will be tested again.

The testing of the draw's water and of water wells along its route were prompted after Midland County citizens living near or along the route had complained of the draw's flooding and of possible contamination of their water wells.

The Midland County Commissioners subsequently voted to use Odessa for dumping its treated sewage water in the draw. But the Texas Water Quality Board has OK'd the dumping of effluent waters in the draw.

Bell entitled to only 5-cent rate hike

PUC hearing examiner says lower figure 'reasonable'

AUSTIN (AP) — Ma Bell is entitled to only a nickel a month more from most residential customers in Texas, not the $1.25 monthly hike the company wants, according to a Public Utility Commission hearing examiner.

Phil Ricketts' 55-page report, issued Tuesday, chopped Southwestern Bell down to a $114.3 million increase, compared to the $326.3 million the company said it needs to meet inflation. The report undercut the $152 million the PUC staff said Bell should get.

The three-member commission will consider the report on Jan. 28.

Ricketts recommended the five-cent monthly increase for residential customers in cities such as Alvin, Big Spring, and Denison, as well as in the state's largest cities, including Houston, Dallas, San Antonio, Fort Worth, Waco and Corpus Christi.

Larger increases, however, were proposed for residential customers in smaller cities. Ricketts said customers in Albany, Alpine, Cameron, San Diego and other small cities should pay 55 cents more per month. Household customers in cities the size of Beeville, Center, El Campo, Vernon, Alice, Huntsville, Kingsville and others should pay 30 cents more per month, according to Ricketts.

"The $114 million is a reasonable amount," Ricketts said. "Obviously, Bell felt they deserved a good deal more."

The Texas Municipal League said Bell needed only a $68.2 million increase.

But Paul Roth, Southwestern Bell vice president, called the examiner's report "inadequate" and promised to seek significant adjustments and increases in the final order.

"We are deeply disturbed that the recommendation fails to recognize the extent of our revenue needs to continue meeting the growth of Texas and to maintain the high quality of service required."

Bell posted the required bond and raised rates in November after the hearing began. The interim rates were based on the PUC staff recommendation.

Ricketts said the difference between the interim rates and the rates he recommended should be refunded, with interest, to customers during a three-month period. That proposal also is subject to commission approval.

The long-awaited report, prepared after a six-week hearing, recommended a 14.1 percent return on equity for Bell. The company sought 16.8 percent. Ricketts also cut $11.5 million from the amount Southwestern Bell pays to AT&T under a license contract.

Ricketts also wants Bell to do away with the current 50 cent per month charge for an extension, which covered the wiring cost.

He recommended a 25-cent increase in monthly "instrument charges" for phones owned by Bell. The company wanted a 50-cent increase, up to $1.50 per phone.

The end of the extension charge would offset the 25-cent hike in the instrument charge, Ricketts said.

The report offers a compromise on Bell's request for an increase in the cost of directory assistance calls. The company wanted to cut the number of free information calls to five per month, with a 25 cent charge for each additional call.

El Paso water suit now in New Mexico courts

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — Attorneys representing New Mexico have asked a federal judge to dismiss a suit filed by El Paso, Texas, seeking rights to tap a vast underground water table that begins just west of Texas' westernmost border.

U.S. District Judge Howard Bratton listened to arguments from both sides Tuesday and said he would take New Mexico's motion for dismissal under advisement and rule on it "as soon as possible."

Attorneys for New Mexico said the Texans don't own any rights to its water and probably never will and the suit should be promptly thrown out.

El Paso filed suit last September hoping to gain rights to the mostly untapped Mesilla Boison reserve of southern New Mexico. The West Texas desert city said it needed New Mexico's water to avert an anticipated shortage by the end of the century.

El Paso's lawsuit challenges the constitutionality of a New Mexico law prohibiting the export of its fresh water. Attorneys for the Texas border city have said the boison is mostly under federally owned land and, except for Las Cruces, a city one-tenth the size of El Paso, no other community is using it.

But Richard Simms, representing New Mexico, said El Paso has put the cart before the horse in asking the court to waive New Mexico's law. He said the enforcement of the statute that forbids the export of water can only be enacted in court. He said El Paso does not have any water rights in New Mexico and is not likely to obtain any, and so it cannot ask the court to remove an embargo that exists only on paper.

After El Paso filed the suit Sept. 5, New Mexico State Engineer Steve Reynolds designated the area closed basins — forcing El Paso to file applications for water drilling permits. The city filed 226 applications.

Monthly rates here would go up only to $7.20 — not $8.40

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Basic monthly telephone rates for Midland residents would increase from $7.15 to $7.20 under a rate hike recommended Tuesday for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. by a Public Utility Commission hearing examiner.

Southwestern Bell had sought an increase in rates to $8.40 for Midland residents.

The recommended rates are approximate and they vary depending on the number and types of telephones a customer has, use and other factors.

The rates still must be approved by the PUC, which is scheduled to consider the hearing examiner's recommendation on Jan. 28.

Desi Arnaz Carl Albert

An unbelievable plot

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entertainer Desi Arnaz doesn't believe he was once the target of an underworld murder plot, as an acknowledged mob assassin has claimed.

Alameda "Jimmy the Weasel" Fratianno, now in the federal witness protection program after testifying against several organized crime figures, describes the alleged contract on Arnaz in his upcoming book, "The Last Mafioso."

Fratianno said the late Chicago mobster Sam Giancana ordered Arnaz killed because of bad publicity given to gangsters Al Capone and Frank Nitti in the television series "The Untouchables." The series about Prohibition-era FBI agents was produced by Desilu Productions, which was owned by the Cuban-born entertainer.

Fratianno's book says the "hit" was called off when the hired killers said they couldn't get close enough to the former husband of Lucille Ball to shoot him.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Former U.S. House Speaker Carl Albert continues to have chest pain after suffering a mild heart attack last week, according to Oklahoma Memorial Hospital officials.

Don Brown, hospital administrator, said Albert remained in stable condition and is undergoing additional tests as physicians continue to monitor him closely.

DENVER (AP) — After facing Senate confirmation hearings, Malcolm "Mac" Baldrige, Ronald Reagan's choice for secretary of commerce, will be tested in a different arena this month.

Baldrige is to compete in the team roping event of Denver's National Western Rodeo on Jan. 15-18, the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association said Tuesday.

The Waterbury, Conn., businessman began his amateur roping career at age 30. Friends here say he probably will continue it.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A collection of jewels designed by Salvador Dali, on loan to the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts since 1977, has been sold for $3.9 million to a former manager of the famed surrealist artist.

The Lichtenstein Corp., headed by Capt. J. Peter Moore, curator of the Terrot Moore Museum in Cadaques, Spain, has exercised an option to purchase the jewels from the Owen R. Cheatham Foundation in New York, the Richmond News Leader reported Tuesday.

The News Leader quoted a New York lawyer for Moore as saying Moore plans to take possession of the collection in March and exhibit it around the world.

The 37-piece collection, designed in watercolor sketches by Dali between 1953 and 1969, includes small pieces that could be worn and large, sculptural pieces with moving parts operated by tiny electric motors. One of the more curious pieces is a heart fashioned of gold with a center of rubies that pulsates by means of a motor.

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Unconfirmed reports in Dutch newspapers say the first steps have been taken to dissolve the 16-year marriage of Princess Irene, younger sister of Queen Beatrix, and Spanish prince Carlos Hugo of Bourbon-Parma.

The reports say the Utrecht diocese of the Dutch Roman Catholic Church has approved an annulment and it is now open to the adjoining diocese of Haarlem to confirm or reject the decision.

Nominees outline Cabinet hopes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan's Cabinet nominees are outlining for Congress the incoming administration's hopes to cut taxes, deregulate business, shore up Social Security, export more food and go slow on negotiating an arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union.

The issues discussed during confirmation hearings Tuesday before five Senate committees were a general reflection of the themes played by the incoming president during his campaign. There were no surprises and there was no hint that any of those nominated would run into trouble being confirmed.

The process of translating broad campaign rhetoric into more specific proposals was continuing today with two more Cabinet nominees scheduled for confirmation hearings.

However, there was the prospect of some fireworks at the hearing for James G. Watt, Reagan's choice to be interior secretary. He is strongly opposed by environmental groups and among the witnesses scheduled to appear at his hearing was just-defeated Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., now chairman of the Wilderness Society.

A confirmation hearing also was scheduled today for Andrew L. Lewis Jr., Reagan's choice as secretary of transportation.

At Tuesday's hearings, Defense Secretary-designate Caspar W. Weinberger told the Senate Armed Services Committee he expected Reagan to wait at least six months before trying to renegotiate the SALT II treaty with the Soviet Union.

Reagan has long opposed the arms limitation treaty concluded during the Carter administration, saying he believes it is too favorable to the Soviet Union.

Weinberger said the new administration would not want to begin the SALT II talks until it had formulated its policy on such matters as production of the controversial MX missile.

He also said there would be "at the very least, severe administrative problems" in rolling back the peacetime draft registration initiated by President Carter.

Commerce Secretary-designate Malcolm Baldrige told the Senate Commerce Committee that "overregulation is hurting the growth of medium-sized and small companies" and called for deregulation "from top to bottom."

Baldrige also said government should do more to help companies increase their exports.

Agriculture Secretary-designate John R. Block told the Senate Agriculture Committee he would be "very reluctant" to use a food embargo against foreign countries as a tool of diplomacy.

Block had told a news conference Dec. 23 that food is the greatest weapon the United States has and should be used to "tie countries to us." He added shortly after that news conference that he did not feel food should be used alone, saying "If we're going to boycott and cut off exports, we should cut off everything." And Tuesday he said a food embargo should be used "only as a last resort under extreme circumstances."

In response to a question, Block said, "Yes, you can count on a very aggressive export program."

Block also said Tuesday he has no preconceived notions of demolishing the government's food stamp program, which will cost an estimated $11 billion this year.

Former Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., meanwhile, told the Senate Finance Committee that he, as secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services, would try to put the Social Security system on a sound financial footing. But he added it was going to be tough.

Schweiker said any solution to the system's financial ills would be unpopular because the only options are raising taxes, reducing benefits or raising the eligibility age.

Schweiker also said he wasn't certain that Reagan would propose returning welfare — and its financing — to the states. The Republican platform calls for that shift.

Related stories, Page 10A

Donald T. Regan, a Wall Street financier selected to head the Treasury Department, told the Senate Finance Committee, the "Kemp-Roth" plan for cutting personal income taxes 10 percent a year for each of the next three years will be the cornerstone of the new president's economic program.

But he warned that economic recovery will be slow and said it may take the new administration three years to balance the federal budget.

The House and Senate met jointly Tuesday to formally certify the electoral college votes electing Reagan and Vice President-elect George Bush.

Meanwhile, House leaders began filling posts on four key committees and, true to the promises made by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., earlier, five conservative Democrats were among those nominated to fill vacancies. O'Neill had promised to nominate conservative Democrats to committees handling the federal purse strings after they complained they had little input on those decisions.

Education secretary chosen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan has picked Utah education commissioner Terrel H. Bell to head the Education Department, an agency the president-elect wants to dismantle, a well-placed Republican source says.

The appointment of Bell, 59, a U.S. education commissioner in the Nixon administration, is expected to be announced later this week.

Bell's reported selection would end a longer-than-anticipated search for an education secretary that foiled Reagan's goal of finishing work on his Cabinet by Christmas. Reagan has publicly admitted that some candidates for the job turned him down.

Bell would be the last of the 13 Cabinet secretaries to be named.

Bell reportedly flew to Washington this week to talk with Reagan transition advisers.

In another transition development, sources said

Dr. Daniel Ruge, a Veterans Administration neurosurgeon, will be named Reagan's White House physician.

Ruge would replace Dr. William Lukash, the Navy doctor who has held the position for 14 years under four presidents. Lukash will retire from the Navy on Jan. 20.

Ruge, 63, an expert on spinal cord and brain injuries, will take a leave from VA service to become Reagan's personal physician at that time.

Bell, an Idaho native and a longtime educator, became Utah superintendent of public instruction in 1963. He was appointed associate U.S. commissioner of education in 1970 and was named commissioner in June 1974 by then-President Richard M. Nixon.

Bell held that post in the old Department of Health, Education and Welfare until August 1976.

Transportation groups are already lobbying

WASHINGTON (AP) — Drew Lewis Jr. hasn't taken office as transportation secretary yet but he's already feeling pressure from special interest groups who want to save their favorite government-subsidized programs.

Lewis, a Pennsylvanian with broad experience in business and politics, was expected to receive little opposition today during his confirmation hearing before the Senate Commerce Committee.

He might, however, be questioned about recommendations of a task force which studied the Transportation Department for President-elect Ronald Reagan's transition team. He was a member of that task force.

The panel recommended that the administration slash federal transportation subsidies, including cuts in mass transit money, new highway construction funds and subsidies to railroads, especially Amtrak and Conrail.

Amtrak is the federally-funded passenger service and Conrail a for-profit corporation set up by Congress to operate several bankrupt railroads in the Northeast.

A group of mayors met with Lewis recently to express concern over any proposed cuts in mass transit funds, among other things.

The 49-year-old Lewis drew modified support from an industry spokesman because of his experience during the past 10 years as a trustee in bankruptcy of the Reading Railroad, a concern whose railroad operations were absorbed into Conrail in 1976 but lives on with interests in real estate, coal and interstate trucking.

Appointment expected despite GOP opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conservative Republicans apparently have failed to block Defense Secretary-designate Caspar W. Weinberger's choice of deputy CIA director Frank C. Carlucci to be the No. 2 man at the Pentagon.

Republican sources said Tuesday that Carlucci was "about 90 percent" certain to get the influential post of deputy defense secretary. One source said a final decision was likely today or Thursday.

A behind-the-scenes campaign by conservatives to undermine support for Carlucci last month led to a direct clash with Weinberger, one of Ronald Reagan's closest and most trusted advisers, the sources said.

The sources said Weinberger came out on top in the power play with William Van Cleave, the conservative head of the Defense Department transition team.

Chapman's lawyers plan insanity defense

Police with drawn weapons clear a Manhattan Supreme Court driveway as a Dept. of Corrections maximum security van prepares to transport Mark David Chapman back to Riker's Island Prison Tuesday following his appearance before Justice Herbert Altman to enter a plea of innocent by reason of insanity to the gunshot murder of former Beatle John Lennon. (AP Laserphoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — Insanity is "clearly the issue" in the case of Mark David Chapman, who has pleaded innocent to murder charges in the shooting death of former Beatle John Lennon, a defense lawyer says.

Chapman, 25, was surrounded by armed court officers when he appeared Tuesday in Supreme Court to enter his plea before Justice Herbert Altman.

Outside the court, attorney Jonathan Marks, contending insanity was "clearly the issue," said his client would plead "not guilty by reason of insanity."

Police said today that Marks is under 24-hour guard following his report of a threat which police refused to detail. They said the lawyer would be protected by two detectives until the seriousness of the threat could be evaluated.

The lawyer withdrew his request to the court that Chapman undergo examination to determine his mental competence to stand trial. The judge, however, appointed two psychiatrists and a psychologist to examine the defendant. One of the psychiatrists is a veteran of the "Son of Sam" multiple murder case.

Pretrial hearings are scheduled for Feb. 11 and Feb. 25, with a trial date to be set at the latter appearance.

Authorities contend Chapman came from his home in Honolulu expressly to kill Lennon. Lennon, 40, and his wife, Yoko Ono, were entering their luxury apartment building Dec. 8 when he was shot several times.

Only hours before, Chapman obtained Lennon's autograph.

The slaying evoked a worldwide tide of anger and mourning. Tens of thousands around the world paused for 10 minutes of silence as a final tribute to Lennon the Sunday after the shooting. Chapman is under an around-the-clock suicide watch at Rikers Island prison.

Meanwhile, Julian Lennon, Lennon's 17-year-old son by an earlier marriage, said he would leave England to live with Miss Ono and become a rock drummer.

Lennon was quoted in the London Daily Mail today as saying: "That, at least for the immediate future, is where my music will take me."

The teen-ager, who left school last year, lives at the home of his mother, Cynthia, in the north Wales market town of Ruthin. He returned there last week after spending three weeks in New York following his father's death.

His parents were married in 1963 and divorced in 1968. Mrs. Lennon wed John Twist in 1976 and the couple runs a restaurant in Ruthin.

The newspaper said Lennon was torn between his quiet home life in Ruthin and the excitement of Manhattan. It said his loyalty was further stretched between his mother and Miss Ono, with whom he had formed an emotional bonding following his father's death.

Lennon, who previously had planned on leaving school to study at Chester Art College, said that while he was in New York after his father's death, Miss Ono helped him get drum lessons there from a top session drummer.

Libya annexing southern neighbor

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Libya apparently is annexing Chad, its southern neighbor, after intervening in the civil war in the former French colony.

With 4,000 Libyan troops camped 40 miles from his capital, Chad's President Goukouni Oueddei joined Col. Moammar Khadafy in announcing Tuesday that they had agreed to merge their countries into a single state. The announcement was made in a joint communique issued at the end of a five-day visit by Goukouni to Tripoli, the Libyan capital. The communique was distributed in Beirut by Libya's official news agency, Jana.

The merger would make the new nation Africa's largest, with an area of nearly 12 million square miles, and a desperate need for a lot of Libya's oil wealth in the southern half.

The merger would also complete a diplomatic and strategic defeat in Africa for France, the chief foreign influence in Chad until it backed the loser in the civil war in 1979-80 and Libya backed Goukouni.

There was no immediate comment from Paris on the merger announcement. Three weeks ago the French government hinted it might intervene in Chad if asked by other African states "to preserve the country's unity and maintain its independence."

Khadafy in the past has made unsuccessful attempts to merge Libya with Egypt, Tunisia and Iraq, and since September with Syria.

A Kuwait newspaper reported over the weekend that the merger plans with Syria had been postponed because of differences between Khadafy and Syrian President Hafez Assad. Official sources in Syria denied the report but acknowledged differences between Khadafy and Assad.

However, the merger with Chad appears more certain. Libya already has annexed a disputed border they share along a mineral-rich strip of the Sahara desert. It used to be called northern Chad, but now the Libyans call it "southern Libya."

The communique Tuesday, which came less than a month after Libyan backed forces triumphed in Chad's civil war, said each side vowed to help the other fight any attacker.

Libya also declared it would send an unspecified number of military experts to Chad "to help safeguard security and reinstate peace, which came as a result of the end of the civil war."

The communique said Goukouni's government asked Libya to help build a national army and security force in Chad under a mutual defense treaty signed in June.

Libyan forces helped Goukouni's troops rout the rival soldiers of former Defense Minister Hissene Habre, ending nine months of fighting in the Chad capital of N'Djamena.

Goukouni and Habre, both Moslems from the barren north, gained control of the country in 1978 from the Christians and tribal blacks from the arable south who dominated the government since independence from France in 1960.

Habre and his supporters tried to take over from Goukouni in a coup in 1979 and gave up last month when the Libyans intervened on Goukouni's side. Habre fled to Cameroon a signed a peace treaty with Goukouni a few days later.

The Libyan troops have remained stationed in Douguia, 40 miles north of N'Djamena.

Lederer on tape accepting payoff

NEW YORK (AP) — After assuring an undercover FBI agent that he was "not a Boy Scout" but someone who "can deliver," Rep. Raymond Lederer accepted a brown paper bag containing $50,000 in cash, according to a videotape played at his Abscam trial.

The Philadelphia Democrat, the only one of six House members indicted on Abscam charges to be re-elected, contends he was entrapped into accepting the money.

The 40-minute tape played Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Brooklyn included numerous mentions of money and showed undercover FBI agent Anthony Amoroso saying, "I hope you spend it well."

Lederer, accused of accepting the money in return for promising to introduce private immigration bills on behalf of two non-existent Arab sheiks, offered several times to sponsor such legislation during the videotaped meeting Sept. 11, 1979, at a Kennedy Airport hotel.

The videotape showed Lederer saying of one sheik, "If he can't go through the regular naturalization, right, when the times comes, then I'll introduce a private bill to keep him in the country."

Lederer suggested on the videotape that an investment by the sheiks in the Port of Philadelphia would not be a bad idea, nor would donations to charities or favorable mentions in the society pages of newspapers in Philadelphia.

"Those are the things you're going to have to do," he said.

The tape also showed Lederer saying he would like to meet the top sheik: "I want some flesh and blood. I might even like the guy. He might be a solid guy. I mean, I might just like him, he might like me."

The defense says Lederer will not contest that he accepted the bribe but will contend the government enticed and induced him into taking the cash.

In an entrapment defense, a defendant contends that without such inducement he would not have committed the alleged crime. To combat such a strategy, the government would have to prove that Lederer was predisposed to accept the bribe.

Former Rep. John Jenrette, D-S.C., used entrapment as a defense as did two former Philadelphia city council officials. All were convicted, but a judge in Philadelphia recently threw out the convictions there on grounds of entrapment and governmental misconduct. Jenrette is appealing his conviction.

Meanwhile, in Washington, former Rep. Richard Kelly was returning to the witness stand in his bribery and conspiracy trial today to face questions about why he pocketed $25,000 offered as a bribe in the FBI undercover investigation.

Slight chance for rain predicted

The first rain of the year could come tonight or Thursday, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport. With a slight 20 percent chance of showers tonight and Thursday, the 0-rain for the year-to-date's accumulation could change.

Whether it rains or not, however, skies will remain considerably cloudy tonight and Thursday, the Weather Service predicted.

The low tonight should drop to the mid-30s, warmer than this morning's low of 27 degrees. Even this morning's low was warmer than the record low of 11 degrees set in 1970.

Thursday's high is expected to warm to the upper 30s, as well. Tuesday's high was 54 degrees, well below the record 75 set for the date in 1935.

Winds will continue to be light and variable through Thursday.

Code guidelines come under fire

TORONTO (AP) — A proposal for voluntary restrictions on publication of scientific articles about secret codes could open a "Pandora's box" of problems and hinder research, some scientists contend.

The plan came under fire Tuesday at a meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and among those criticizing the proposal was a dissenting member of the committee that drew it up.

Dr. George I. Davida said that the proposed guidelines of the Public

Cryptography Study Group were "totally unnecessary" and would amount to "suppression of the mind."

The study group, set up at the request of the National Security Agency, which analyzes foreign codes, has drafted a plan under which a scientist who plans to publish an article on the mathematics of codes or code-breaking would be asked to submit it to an NSA advisory committee for voluntary prior review.

If the NSA felt the article might jeopardize U.S. security, it could suggest voluntary changes. If, after two years, the voluntary plan wasn't working, the NSA would seek laws requiring prior review.

The plan is still in the draft stage but could be approved as early as Feb. 6, when the group next meets in Washington.

Dr. David H. Brandin of Stanford Research Institute International, another member of the committee and a supporter of the guidelines, said that knowledge of foreign codes can give countries a crucial advantage in wartime.

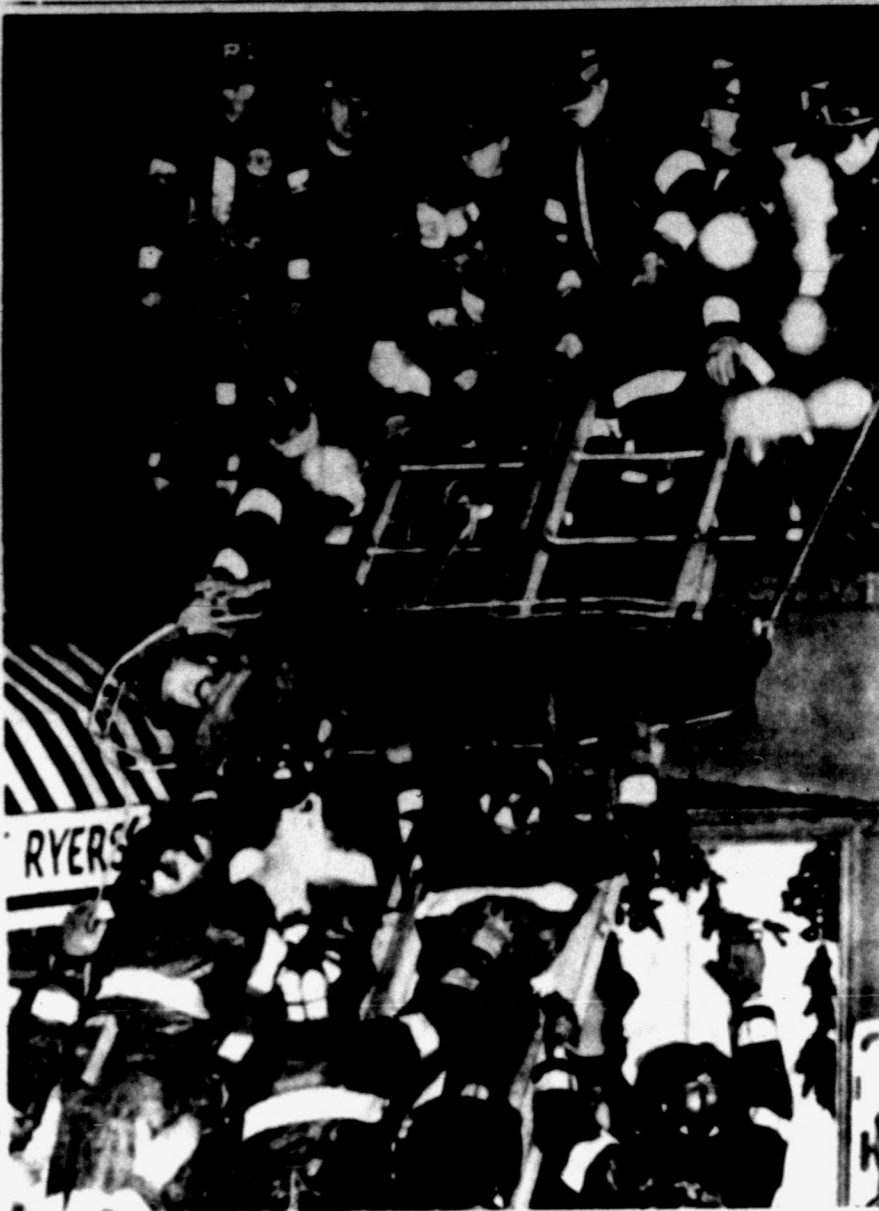

It was the well-kept secret that the United States had broken the Japanese Navy's code during World War II that enabled the United States to win the Battle of Midway, he said.

Brandin called the plan for voluntary review "an admirable compromise" and added, "If we don't do it, the NSA is going to do it on its own. It's kind of like the movie industry policing itself."

Firefighters rescued from rubble

BOSTON (AP) — Firefighters dug through the rubble of a fire-gutted Back Bay brownstone office building early today after two floors collapsed without warning, killing two firefighters and trapping four others for three hours, authorities said.

At least seven firefighters were injured Tuesday in the collapse of the five-story building overlooking the Public Garden and the Ritz Carlton Hotel, fire department officials said.

About 60 people clambered out windows and fled down fire escapes after the blaze began at 3 p.m. An hour later, when firefighters believed the flames were under control, the middle floors of the building collapsed.

One firefighter stumbled out onto a fire escape and began shouting, "It's all fallen in!"

Rescue workers, hampered by a rain of burning debris, first reached the survivors, two of whom were conscious but pinned by the wreckage and by the body of another man, at about 7 p.m.

It was not until three hours later that the body of the second victim was pulled from the still-burning wreckage.

The dead were identified as Paul Lentini, 32, and James Gibbons.

The brick building housed a shoe store, a real estate office, a headquarters for school volunteers and other offices.

The fire department's arson squad was investigating the cause of the blaze.

Former Gov. Francis Sargent was among those who fled the offices.

"I was on the telephone and heard some muffled shouts. I didn't pay much attention, but then I felt this sudden blast of heat," Sargent said. "I don't know where it started, but it came up the elevator."

There was no immediate estimate on damage to the building, which appeared to be a total loss.

Accused 'Ripper' will not appear

LONDON (AP) — Peter Sutcliffe, the 35-year-old truck driver charged with murdering Jacqueline Hill, who police say was one of 13 victims of the Yorkshire Ripper, will not appear in court when his case comes up again next week, his lawyer said today.

Attorney Kerry Macgill of Bradford, the northern mill town where Sutcliffe lives, said his client would not appear in an effort to avoid a recurrence of the frenzied scene outside the courtroom when he was indicted on Monday.

A crowd estimated by police at more than 1,000 howled curses and obscenities at the suspect as he was led into Dewsbury Magistrates' Court with a blanket over his head.

"The police have a duty to try and prevent the sort of scenes that were witnessed at Monday's hearing," said Macgill.

He said a current job action by jail guards demanding more pay had prompted the adoption of temporary procedures under which it was not necessary to produce a defendant in court. Sutcliffe's next court appearance is scheduled for next Wednesday.

Britain's press, meanwhile, engaged in heated debate over the reporting of Sutcliffe's indictment.

The Times of London ran a long editorial defending its cautious reporting of the case and accusing other papers of acting in contempt of court by reporting details that allegedly might prejudice Sutcliffe's trial.

The Times on Monday headlined "Lorry driver charged with murder of Leeds student," and did not mention the Yorkshire Ripper.

Many papers treated the story with kid gloves because of restrictions under Britain's Criminal Justice Act that can lead to prosecution for contempt if material is published that might jeopardize a fair trial.

The law does not apply to news reports published overseas.

But some newspapers ran interviews with Sutcliffe family members, neighbors, workmates and prostitutes police say were with him the night of his arrest.

The Times said today it was precisely in cases where heinous crimes had been committed that defendants needed the utmost protection of the law.

Snow closes many schools, clogs traffic in many cities

A storm spread snow from Michigan to Maine and as far south as northern Georgia today, with accumulations from an inch to almost a foot closing hundreds of schools and clogging rush-hour traffic in the big cities.

Two people killed on icy roads in Maryland brought to 19 the number of deaths blamed on the unusually severe winter weather in the Northeast this first week of January.

An inch of snow an hour fell on New York City where accumulations had reached 5 inches by morning. About 36 people spent the night in an army in Harlem. City officials said it would take at least another week to check out reports of no heat in about 4,000 apartment buildings.

Portland, Maine, got about 4 inches of new snow to bring the total so far this season to about 30 inches, surpassing the 27.7 inches that fell all last winter.

Some other areas reporting heavy accumulations this morning included Angola, Ind., 11 inches. Norwich, Conn., 11 inches. Wilmington, Vt., 8 inches. Newark, N.J., 5 inches.

Subzero temperatures were reported from Minnesota to upper Michigan this morning with lows in the teens to mid-20s from the Dakotas to Oklahoma and eastward through New England.

Earlier, a mixture of snow, rain, freezing rain and sleet fell over the Carolinas.

The Times suggested some editors had rejected restraint even though they knew their reporting was contemptuous.

"Newspapers have lawyers," it said, implying some media were not afraid of possible indictment on contempt charges.

The Guardian newspaper, which also showed caution, added in an editorial: "A man is clearly guilty until he is proven innocent. That, apparently, is the only conclusion to be drawn from the extraordinary hysteria surrounding the arrest in Yorkshire of Mr. Peter Sutcliffe."

Solicitor-General Sir Ian Percival reminded British editors in a letter Tuesday of "the vital principle embodied in English law that a man accused of a crime, however serious, is presumed to be innocent" and that the law places a responsibility on the press.

Sutcliffe was arrested last Friday night in Sheffield by two police officers making a routine license plate check. After questioning, he was arraigned Monday and charged with the Nov. 17 murder of Leeds University student Jacqueline Hill.

He was also charged with stealing license plates.

Police probing rape report; Man held on mischief charge

Police are investigating a rape reported Tuesday night.

According to reports, Midland Memorial Hospital personnel called police at 8:37 p.m. Tuesday to report that a rape victim was at the emergency room.

The woman, who lives on the north side of town, told police that about 4:30 p.m. she heard someone hollering outside her house and banging on her door. She said when she opened the door she saw a black male wearing a ski mask and holding a gun.

The man reportedly forced his way into the house, raped the woman and left 5 to 10 minutes later.

She didn't report the rape until later, she said, because she was scared and waited for her husband to come home.

In other police news, a 43-year-old man was in City Jail this morning on charges of felony criminal mischief.

He was arrested at 9:40 p.m. at 308 N. Colorado St. after he was discovered breaking out windows in an office building.

A pistol and two rifles, valued at $684, were reported stolen from 1700

Police, Fire Roundup

N. Terrell St. between 8 a.m. and 9 p.m. Tuesday.

Guadalupe G. Perez said when he and his wife returned home from work they discovered a .357-caliber pistol, .30-caliber carbine rifle and a 270-caliber rifle missing.

Entry apparently was gained through the back door.

Someone broke a $300 plate glass window at Melton's Fina Station, 2401 S. Midkiff Road, between 8 p.m. Tuesday and 1 a.m. today.

Police found no evidence or witnesses.

Firemen responded to a fire at Forrester Drilling Co., 5502 Industrial Ave. at 11:32 a.m. Insulation under a pump jack sled had been set on fire by sparks from a welding torch. Firemen were at the scene for 24 minutes.

They also responded to two grass fires, two trash fires and a cotton stripper on fire.

Officials hope missing pickup truck will provide clues to stabbing death

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Bexar County officers today hoped to find a pickup truck missing from the house where an elderly grandmother was stabbed to death.

The body of Norma W. Logan, 77, was found behind a bedroom door of her home early Monday, a large, bloody butcher knife lying nearby, sheriff's investigators said.

Although the woman's home had not been ransacked and her purse was found unopened on a nearby bed, investigators said they were not ruling out robbery as a motive for the slaying.

They broadcast a description of Mrs. Logan's 1967 red and white Chevrolet pickup truck that neighbors said usually was parked in the driveway.

Troy Magee, 28, the woman's grandson, told officers that he and a friend arrived at the house from Karnes City where both are employed at a photography shop. The grandson said he planned to pick up some clothes and return to Karnes City.

Magee said he found all the lights out and discovered the body when he turned on a light.

Odessa man, 18, arrested for rape

ODESSA — Officers with the Odessa Police Department arrested Jerry Don Thomas, 18, of 924 E. Monahans St. in Odessa, early this morning in connection with the Jan. 3 rape and assault of a 6-year-old girl.

Municipal Judge Otis Moore set bond at $12,500 on charges of aggravated sexual abuse of a child and $12,500 on charges of aggravated rape of a child. Thomas was still in city jail this morning.

According to police the incident occurred Jan. 3 in the southeast part of Odessa between 7 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Code guidelines come under fire

University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee, said he feared the plan would have a chilling effect on the exchange of scientific views. It also could threaten the privacy of ordinary citizens by retarding research on coding systems to protect sensitive personal and financial data stored and transmitted by computer, he said.

"Even though they're supposedly voluntary, I feel them to be involuntary in other respects because they require editors of journals to get involved in censorship and I think that's nasty," said Davida, who is on leave from the Georgia Institute of Technology.

In addition, the guidelines could open "a Pandora's box" of problems for professional societies that endorse them, Davida said. Many scientific societies have an international membership, and security agencies in other countries might demand the same sort of arrangement.

The study group was set up by the American Council on Education after the NSA, the intelligence arm of the Defense Department, expressed fears that some new cryptographic research might hinder its efforts to gather intelligence on foreign governments or allow them to break U.S. codes.

But Dr. Stephen H. Unger of Columbia University, organizer of the session, said the guidelines raised "the prospect of a secret tribunal of some sort reviewing material before it is published and I think we ought to think very carefully about that."

Integration order again defied

Judge, lawyer, three girls arrive at school

Followed by a swarm of television news crews and reporters, Louisiana District Court Judge Richard Lee arrives at Buckeye High School in Alexandria, La., Tuesday to ensure that three girls involved in a desegregation suit would be allowed to attend class. (AP Laserphoto)

BUCKEYE, La. (AP) — With a defiant state judge standing by, three white girls returned to all-white Buckeye High School again today in defiance of an order by a federal judge who wants them to attend a racially integrated school.

State District Judge Richard Lee and his lawyer, a constitutional expert, showed up before the opening of school. The girls arrived a few minutes later and went straight inside without comment. Unlike two previous days this week, no law enforcement officers were there to escort them.

Lee said the girls could attend classes despite U.S. District Judge Nauman Scott's order that it violated his desegregation pupil assignment plan for Rapides Parish.

Scott has threatened to fine anyone who interferes with his orders.

Lee told reporters: "I will obey any order served on me, whether it's from a federal court, a state court or a city court."

U.S. Attorney Ransdell Keene filed papers with Scott in Shreveport late Tuesday asking that Lee be held in contempt of court and fined $1,000 a day.

On Tuesday, Lee had said he was undecided whether he would go to school today to ensure that the girls are admitted.

"I'm getting old, and that's a long drive for me," Lee said. Lee, 44, lives in Alexandria, 15 miles away.

Scott ordered last summer that Rapides Parish public schools be more broadly desegregated and reassigned 108 of the 7th and 8th graders at Buckeye High to attend Jones Street Junior High, which is 54 percent black. The junior high school is in Alexandria.

To get around Scott's order, the parents of three of the reassigned students — Michelle Laborde, 13; Lynda McNeal, 13; and Ramona Carbo, 12 — gave custody of their daughters to friends living in the new Buckeye attendance zone.

Disclaiming racial motives, the parents maintained that they didn't want the girls bused to classes far from their homes.

The judges' tug-of-war began when Lee approved the custody move and Scott, calling it a "sham," took the case away from Lee's state court.

"For someone to come along and say a judgment of my court is a sham impugns the dignity not only of my court but of every state court in the nation," Lee said.

On Dec. 4, Lee sent Rapides Parish sheriff's deputies to Buckeye with an order threatening the arrest of Principal Charles Waites if he did not enroll the girls. Waites complied, but Scott ordered the deputies away.

Two days ago, Lee sent state police to Buckeye with an identical order, and with the same results. This time, Scott not only ordered state police away, he also ordered nearly every public official in Louisiana to stay out of his way in the desegregation case.

On Tuesday, Lee himself went to the school with one police officer Scott apparently forgot about naming in his order Monday — local Constable Newton Paul Jr.

But Scott sent a federal marshal to the school with a court order that chased the constable away.

Keene's motion also asked Scott to fine Waites, Paul, the girls' parents and guardians and school Superintendent E.A. Nicholls $500 a day "until such time as each purges himself or herself of contempt."

Chrysler aid 'not enough'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Additional government loan guarantees and union wage concessions will not be enough to keep the Chrysler Corp. afloat unless the nation's "absolutely devastating" economy improves, says the head of the United Auto Workers.

Nonetheless, UAW President Douglas Fraser and other negotiators were meeting with Chrysler officials today in Detroit to discuss the automaker's call for up to $600 million in wage concessions.

Another Atlanta youngster missing

ATLANTA (AP) — The missing persons unit of the Atlanta police department has not decided whether to turn the case of a missing 14-year-old black boy over to the task force investigating the deaths or disappearances of 15 black children, officials say.

Lubie "Chuck" Geter has not been seen by his family since Saturday, when his brother dropped him at a shopping center where he planned to sell car deodorizers. It was the first time he had tried selling his wares in that location.

"I don't think it would have been easy" to abduct the boy, Lubie Geter, the boy's father, said Tuesday in an interview.

Eleven children have been slain here in the past 18 months, while four others are missing. All were black and between the ages of 7 and 15.

Geter was described by his parents as an industrious and intelligent youngster who made friends easily.

"All the boys seemed to like him," said his mother, Assie Geter. "He had quite a few friends. All we can do is hope and pray."

The case is being investigated by the missing persons unit of the Atlanta police.

"I don't know at what point they would make the determination as to if it would be handed over to the special task force," said Marion Lee, a police spokeswoman.

Those negotiations are a linchpin in the automaker's latest plan to stave off bankruptcy by coupling $1.5 billion in cost-cutting measures with $400 million in additional federal loan guarantees.

The cost-cutting elements would include both a union willingness to accept lower wages and concessions by banks holding outstanding Chrysler loans.

During a 4½-hour session Tuesday, the federal Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board met with Fraser and other UAW leaders, as well as with Chrysler officials and some of the automaker's creditors.

Before going along with the firm's request for additional loan guarantees, the board is insisting that Chrysler win major concessions from the union and its suppliers and lenders.

Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, who heads the board, said after Tuesday's meeting "it's terribly important" that Chrysler's new financial plan involve "accommodations" by all parties.

Miller said Chrysler's cash situation will be "tight" during the next 30 to 45 days, but said the company will not run out of money during that time.

Miller said the loan board again urged Chrysler officials to pursue merger plans with another automaker as a step to expand its market and obtain crucial cash. Such a move, however, is long-range and would not be part of Chrysler's current quest for loan guarantees, he stressed.

Miller also said that Chrysler currently could not qualify for the $400 million in loan guarantees, quashing Fraser's suggestion that the company seek all of the $700 million still available.

"If outside economic conditions do not improve, Chrysler doesn't survive," Fraser told reporters after the meeting.

He said interest rates, now running at about 20 percent, not only keep customers from buying new cars, but make it impossible for dealers to finance inventories.

The prime rate has begun to decline from a record 21.5 percent and Miller said he does not expect current high interest levels to last indefinitely.

The defense of Japan

The "disappointment" expressed by the Carter administration over a less-than-expected increase in Japan's defense budget can hardly have come as a surprise in Tokyo. The last two Japanese governments have been under mounting pressure from Washington to contribute more to their own defense.

But the 7.6 percent hike now planned for Japan's 1981 defense budget will almost certainly keep that country's total military spending below 1 percent of gross national product, the smallest comparative effort of any industrialized country.

True, Japan seems fully committed to a gradual buildup of its very modest air, land and sea forces. And it is also true that any increase in spending for weaponry remains controversial in a country still traumatized by the devastation it suffered in World War II.

And yet, both the Japanese government and, increasingly, the people of Japan recognize that the Soviet Union's growing power in the Far East coupled with a sharp decline in American military strength in the Western Pacific is leaving Japan ever more vulnerable.

At present, Japanese forces could not begin to defend the sea lanes upon which Japan depends for daily imports of oil, foodstuffs and natural resources. Japan's air defenses are rudimentary at best. And the Japanese army fields an almost token force of 155,000 troops.

A defense budget that grows at less than 8 percent per year would not fund forces adequate for Japan's security needs until the 1990s, if then.

So, the pressure from Washington and from other allied capitals must continue. The Japanese must come to understand that the United States cannot rebuild its strategic nuclear forces, defend the Persian Gulf, counter Soviet might in Europe and maintain its other defense commitments from South Korea to the Caribbean while simultaneously shielding Japan from the harsh realities of the 1980s.

Even a Reagan administration cannot hope to meet such global commitments without help from friends, especially those possessing more than enough wealth to provide for their own protection.

A pope of peace

Pope John Paul II has earned the respect of the world as a man of peace and good will.

His leadership during the relatively short period of his papacy has been marked by frequent emphases on human rights, and understanding of the value of freedom as an essential ingredient of a lasting peace. It was not by accident that he planned a pilgrimage to his native Poland, where his mere presence reminded the conquering Communists that there is such a thing as an unconquerable spirit.

Recently, His Holiness spoke out again, on peace and freedom. In a declaration issued to celebrate Jan. 1 as Day of Peace, he said:

"Without a deep and universal respect for freedom, peace will elude man.

"The freedom of nations is wounded when small nations are forced to align themselves with large ones.

"There is no true freedom, which is the foundation of peace, when all powers are concentrated in the hands of a single social class, a single race or a single group, or when the common good is merged with the interests of a single party that is identified with the state."

John Paul did not mention Poland. Or the Soviet Union. He didn't have to.

The free world salutes this Pope of peace who is using his good offices to fight the good fight for freedom and justice. May peace be with him.

NICK THIMMESCH

New senators need to develop traits of the 'Happy Warrior'

WASHINGTON — Among the sorely missed human qualities in this town are the effervescence, optimism and spirit of Hubert Horatio Humphrey. It was nearly three years ago that H.H.H., the "Happy Warrior," died after struggling to shake an insistent cancer. We haven't seen anybody like Humphrey since, and probably won't for many years.

Nick Thimmesch

Humphrey loved the political game with passion. He was a strong Democrat, and almost always fought for what he regarded as principle. He panted for humanity, and too often implemented such impulses by whipping up another federal program. Humphrey displayed a sharp edge in debate, but he was also a conciliator. He often vehemently disagreed — as a veteran Republican will smugly testify — but Hubert was never disagreeable. There was no more popular man in the U.S. Senate.

Despite setting some sort of record — perhaps it belongs in the Guinness Book — for the volume of his rhetoric, Humphrey was respected as a senator of stature, a highly intelligent man always bristling with ideas.

Two of Hubert's best qualities were his inability to be angry at anyone for very long, and his empathy for fellow political warriors of either party. There's no question in my mind that if Hubert were alive, he would be on the phone every other day with President Jimmy Carter, trying to buck him up as he prepares for the sad trip home to Plains, reminding Carter of his accomplishments and the fact that there is much of life before him.

When he was ridden with cancer, pale and feeble, scarcely able to rise in his bed, and only four days from death, Humphrey phoned Richard M. Nixon, Jan. 9, 1978, to wish him Happy Birthday. According to Muriel Humphrey, Nixon was very touched, but not quite as much as on Christmas Day — two weeks before — when Humphrey phoned Nixon to wish him Merry Christmas. "Nixon cried on the phone," Muriel once recalled, "probably because he realized where Hubert was at. You have a lot in common, being in politics."

If any opponent had scathed Nixon in campaigns, it was Humphrey. In 1968, when the two fought a close battle for the presidency, Humphrey once introduced Emmett Kelly, the famous clown done up with outlandish pants, sad eyes and rubber-ball nose, as "Nixon's campaign manager and chief economic adviser."

Robert Kennedy's campaign tactics savaged Humphrey in the 1960 West Virginia primary, and later, when R.F.K. demanded that Humphrey release his Minnesota delegates, Hubert snapped: "Bobby, go to hell." But Humphrey reconciled with Bobby and all others by whom he was roughed up in politics.

He forgot and forgave the hurts

INSIDE REPORT

Reagan's 'headhunters' creating a problem

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — That J. Stanley Pottinger, an erstwhile John Anderson backer with a yen for Teddy Kennedy, has been given the top rating for a subcommittee appointment in the Reagan administration comes naturally for the president-elect's headhunters.

Pottinger is an accomplished Washington lawyer with an impressive record of government service. What he lacks is the slightest empathy for Ronald Reagan, with what Reagan stands for or with Reagan's goals for the nation.

Such subjective considerations were simply excluded by Reagan's headhunters in feeding thousands of names into the computer since Nov. 4. The operation run by E. Pendleton James, a Los Angeles-based professional headhunter who fits corporate managers into proper niches, is non-political and non-ideological.

Stan Pottinger is a classic case. As the Nixon administration's assistant attorney general for civil rights, he fought for steady federal intervention in favor of racial minorities. That clearly is not in harmony with Reagan's intentions.

More startling is Pottinger's political record. For the 1980 presidential campaign, he contributed $1,000 to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, gave $250 to George Bush and ran, unsuccessfully, for Maryland delegate to the Republican National Convention pledged to Rep. John Anderson. The one consistency in these eclectic presidential preferences: no support of any kind, any time for Reagan.

None of this is noted on Pottinger's computer punch card in the Reagan transition office, a card which incredibly gives him No. 1 (tops of three) ratings. Still, some Reaganite ideology might restore reality by eventually throwing away Pottinger's card. The same is not true of David Gergen.

Evans

Gergen, a Nixon-Ford administration speechwriter who now edits Public Opinion magazine for the American Enterprise Institute, is a conservative Republican but no Reaganite. As a sometime adviser to Bush's presidential campaign, he not only was stridently anti-tax cut but belittled Reagan personally. Even today, Gergen does not embrace Reagan's tax-cutting philosophy.

Yet, Gergen is set to join the White House staff as deputy to chief of staff James Baker — unless he gets something better. The something better is running the International Communications Agency (ICA, formerly the USIA). Gergen, his anti-Reagan past unnoted, is front-runner for this coveted position.

While anti-Reaganites get preference, there is back of the hand treatment for longtime Reaganites such as Ohio state Sen. Donald (Buz) Lukens. In an administration filling up with officials who did not support Reagan

ART BUCHWALD

It may not be too much, but it's all $50 will buy!

Gleam, the neighborhood soothsayer, was sitting in front of his crystal ball when I was ushered into his dark room.

"What do you see?" I asked him. "Fifty dollars," he said.

"You see $50 in the ball?"

"No, that is what it will cost you before I tell you what 1981 holds in store for us."

"But last year you only charged me $25."

"That was before I saw a double-digit inflation figure in my ball."

I handed him $50, and waited.

"I see Dunkirk," he said.

"Dunkirk? That was in World War III!"

"I see an economic Dunkirk. I see economists fighting to get into lifeboats and retreat from their forecasts of 1980."

"Do you see a tax cut?"

"I see a tax cut."

"That's good."

"I also see a rise in Social Security, real estate assessments and gasoline prices. Now I don't see the tax cut anymore."

"What do you see now?"

"I see Lee Iacocca."

"What is he doing?"

"A TV commercial for American Express cards."

"That's bad."

"I see Richard Nixon dancing at the White House."

"Who is he dancing with?"

"Mrs. Spiro Agnew."

"I was afraid of that. What else do you see?"

Art Buchwald

"I see 'President Reagan.'"

"Who is he dancing with?"

"He isn't dancing. He's on a horse, taking a ride through the Rose Garden."

"Where is the First Lady?"

"She's upstairs, sewing drapes for the bedroom."

"That isn't worth $50."

"Wait, there is a lot more. I see a network sit-com which takes place in a bordello, but it will be done with taste and good humor."

"You don't need a crystal ball for that one."

"Now I see the bordello show being canceled and replaced by a divorced father trying to raise a son in a nudist colony."

"It sounds like it's going to be a very dull year."

"I am now in a supermarket. A lady is trading in her diamond wedding ring for a piece of roast beef. A man is exchanging his new car for a pound of butter. The manager is refusing to take a woman's sofa for a box of Jello."

"Good heavens, Gleam, don't you see anything upbeat in the ball?"

"I see a banker announcing that he is reducing the prime rate to six percent."

"That's good. What else?"

"I see two men in white coats putting him into an ambulance and taking him away."

"Is that it?"

"That's it for $50. If you want to give me another $50, I'll tell you what your new nine digit postal ZIP code number will be."

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, Jan. 7, the seventh day of 1981. There are 358 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Jan. 7, 1953, President Harry Truman announced that the United States had developed a hydrogen bomb.

On this date:

In 1789, the first U.S. presidential election was held.

In 1800, the 13th American president, Millard Fillmore, was born in a log cabin in Cayuga County, N.Y.

In 1927, New York and London were linked by radio telephone service.

Ten years ago: The U.S. command in Saigon reported that 4,200 Americans had been killed in combat in the Vietnam War in 1970.

Five years ago: Italy's cabinet — led by Prime Minister Aldo Moro — resigned after the Socialist Party withdrew its support.

One year ago: The trading pits in Chicago were deserted while brokers worried about the effect on prices of the federal moves to halt grain sales to the Soviet Union.

Today's birthdays: Cartoonist Charles Addams is 69. Baseball manager Alvin Dark is 59.

Thought for today: People generally quarrel because they cannot argue — English writer Gilbert Chesterton (1874-1936).

MARK RUSSELL SAYS

Nancy Reagan was quoted as insisting that the new White House press secretary be "reasonably good looking." I agree. Nothing puts those snarling reporters in their place like an Aqua Velva man.

John F. Kennedy's press secretary was the roly-poly Pierre Salinger. Lyndon Johnson had the crumpled George Reedy, who looked like an unmade bed. And before plastic surgery, Jody Powell was a ringer for Nikita Khrushchev.

It won't be long before we turn on the evening news only to hear that "White House press secretary Donny Osmond met with reporters this morning. His coordinated cashmere jacket provided a smart accompaniment to the Princess Mara paisley tie and powder-blue Quinara shirt."

"While the chief correspondent for the Chicago Tribune wore a green tie with matching soup stains..."

There's nothing wrong with an administration having a nice appearance. As for those boring confirmation hearings for Cabinet members — why not a screen test?

Nader says air safety is 'under regulated'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader says seven significant safety rules have been "languishing" within the Federal Aviation Administration "an average of more than six years each."

Nader said Tuesday that the FAA has one of the worst records in government safety regulation and is "under-regulating" air safety.

Nader released a study by the Aviation Consumer Action Project, a Washington consumer group, that said the FAA since 1978 has adopted only one major safety regulation a year.

The study by Matthew Finucane, an attorney with the group, said seven other air carrier standards deemed "significant" by the FAA are under consideration at the agency, "where they have been languishing for an average of six years and two months."

The standards still being developed would cover such areas as prevention of fires or explosions after crashes, flammability specifications for crew member uniforms and revising flight and duty time limitations for crew members.

"The FAA cannot protect the flying public in the crowded skies of the 1980s if it is allowed to continue regulating at its present snail's pace," Nader said in a letter to Transportation Secretary-designate Drew Lewis.

FAA spokesman Jerry Lavey said he could not discuss Nader's charges until he sees the consumer group's report. But he noted that the airline safety record last year was the best since 1933, with only 13 deaths, all in the same accident. During 1979, 353 people were killed, Lavey said.

"Strict safety enforcement efforts by the FAA are clearly having an effect," Lavey said.

Nader said the 1980 safety record was a statistical fluke and insisted that "the seeds of future disasters are being planted by inaction."

The report urged President-elect Ronald Reagan to appoint an FAA administrator "with a strong commitment to upgrading air carrier safety." It said the new administrator should expedite final action on the major rulemakings now in progress. The report also recommended more thorough congressional oversight of FAA regulations.

Reagan eyes cuts in spending

Deep and politically difficult reductions expected

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan's economic advisers are looking at almost every area of federal spending except defense in their search for ways to deflate a ballooning budget deficit now approaching an estimated $60 billion for 1981.

Republican sources said the advisers planned to present the president-elect today with a partial list of possible program cuts and a warning that even deeper — and politically tougher — reductions than originally considered may be needed if Reagan is to fulfill his pledge to balance the budget by 1983.

One source said Rep. David A. Stockman, R-Mich., Reagan's budget director-designate, is compiling a list of "everything for which there is a feasible way to save money if they (Reagan and Congress) had the political will to do it."

The source said the "universal" list, which will be trimmed as political repercussions are taken into account, includes virtually every major government program, from Social Security to unemployment benefits, but not the defense budget, which Reagan wants increased.

"It will not be a painless process. We will have to cut deeply to get the operation (budget) in hand," said the source. He said the advisers hoped to have a final list of proposed budget cuts for the current fiscal year and for fiscal 1982, which begins Oct. 1, by the time Reagan is inaugurated Jan. 20.

Reagan has pledged to rein in federal spending and balance the budget by 1983. But his campaign promise is being jeopardized by a rising tide of anticipated government spending for 1981 and beyond.

Congressional and Carter administration economists are projecting $680 billion in spending for fiscal 1981, which began last Oct. 1, unless Reagan can find enough fraud, waste and abuse to cut the budget by 2 percent, something his advisers have said is possible.

The new estimate is nearly $30 billion higher than the budget approved by Congress less than two months ago. As a result, government economists expect a deficit of $55 billion to $60 billion for this fiscal year's budget, more than double the red-ink estimate of two months ago. This is same budget that President Carter vowed a year ago would be balanced.

High interest rates were cited as one factor responsible for the sharp rise in anticipated spending since the fall. The government has to pay more to borrow money just like everyone else when interest rates rise.

Carter's proposed budget for fiscal 1982, due out next week, will call for spending of about $740 billion and a deficit of about $40 billion, according to administration sources.

Reagan, who said in late October that he might be able to balance the budget by 1982, would have to chop deeply into Carter's spending package to eliminate the deficit.

Donald T. Regan, the president-elect's choice for treasury secretary, said at his Senate confirmation hearing Tuesday that under current economic conditions and assuming no unforeseen economic turmoil, "we could see a balanced budget in the fourth year" of the incoming administration — a year later than Reagan has pledged.

"We can balance the budget sooner than that," Regan said when pressed by freshmen Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, about why it would take so long. But Regan said Congress would have to make "more serious cuts" in the budget. "It's going to take a lot of courage," he said.

Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., the new chairman of the House Budget Committee, said he believes the Democratic-controlled House will cooperate with the Republican Senate and the Reagan administration in reducing spending.

Brady reportedly Reagan choice for press aide

WASHINGTON (AP) — James Brady will be Ronald Reagan's White House press secretary, The Washington Star reported today.

The Star quoted informed sources as saying that Brady, spokesman for the Reagan transition headquarters, was notified late Friday of his selection and that the appointment will be announced Tuesday in Washington.

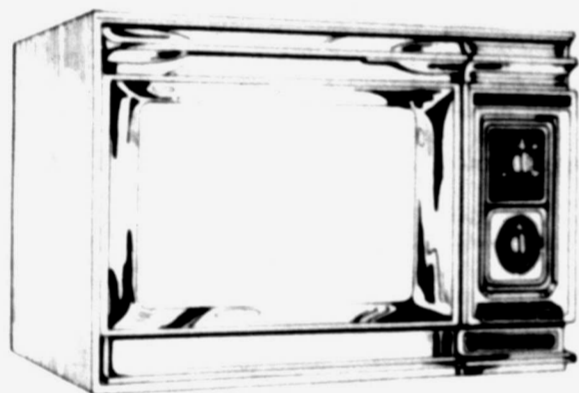

Brady, 40, said he had no comment on the report. Brady has said recently that whoever became Reagan's press secretary would begin without the access to the president that Jody Powell has to President Carter or that Lyn Nofziger had as press secretary to Reagan. Nofziger, who was Reagan's press secretary for 14 years, has been appointed by Reagan as assistant to the president for political counsel.

The Star said Brady will report to James Baker, who will be White House chief of staff, and to Reagan.

Brady, a native of Centralia, Ill., graduated from the University of Illinois in 1962.

Egypt bans Israeli reporters

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin denounced the banning of an Israeli newspaper's correspondents from Egypt, saying Israel "cannot tolerate this kind of discrimination."

Egypt banned the English-language Jerusalem Post's reporters Monday after the paper published the first of a series of stories on an imminent shakeup in the Egyptian leadership because of a power struggle between President Anwar Sadat and Vice-President Hosni Mubarak.

In a statement issued Tuesday night by Begin's spokesman Dan Pattir, the prime minister said Egypt was free to deny or disprove news stories it did not like, but there was no justification for banning its reporters.

tailed the differing views taken by Sadat and Mubarak on peace with Israel.

It said that where Sadat believed in bringing about normal ties with Israel to the Jewish state into making concessions toward the Palestinians, Mubarak believed normal ties should be instituted only after Israel had taken the first step toward the Palestinians.

But the main differences between the Sadat and Mubarak camps seem to be more domestic and personal than political, wrote Safadi.

Iraq claims Iran retreating

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iraq reported fierce fighting continuing in one area of the Iranian counter-offensive launched two days ago but claimed the Iraqis were retreating on their second front 200 miles to the north.

The Iranian government claimed "fresh victories" but gave no new details. Pars, the official news agency, invited foreign reporters in Tehran to the railway station later today for the arrival of 400 to 600 Iraqis it said were captured in the fighting near Ahvaz, the capital of oil-rich Khuzistan province, which Iraq invaded Sept. 22.

An Iraqi communique broadcast by Baghdad Radio Tuesday night said Iraqi forces were battling a three-prong Iranian attack in the area of Susangerd, 35 miles northwest of Ahvaz, where Iran said its first major counter-offensive of the war began Monday.

"Our forces engaged the enemy in strength and with all kinds of weapons, inflicting on him heavy losses in lives and equipment," the communique said. "Fierce fighting is still continuing in Susangerd."

The communique claimed that in the other area of Iranian attack, the Gilan e-Gharb highlands at the northern end of Iraq's 300-mile invasion line, the "enemy is retreating, leaving behind the dead and large quantities of tanks and arms, some destroyed and some usable."

For the first time in more than a month, the Iraqi air force went into action against the Iraqis in Susangerd and Ahvaz. Baghdad Radio said Iraqi MIGs flew 15 sorties over the two cities, "scoring direct hits and causing extensive damage."

It claimed 381 Iranian troops were killed and 43 tanks were destroyed, in addition to two Iranian Phantom jets and one helicopter gunship Tuesday. It admitted 29 Iraqi deaths in the same period.

The Iranian command claimed the Ahvaz Hamidieh Susangerd areas had been cleared of Iraqi troops, "who retreated several kilometers."

An Iranian communique said more than 1,000 Iraqis had been killed and between 1,700 and 2,000 captured in the offensive. It said 830 of the POWs were driven through Ahvaz to the cheers of thousands of residents.

No independent confirmation of the rival claims was available since Western reporters were not permitted to visit the war fronts.

Radio Tehran reported millions of Iraqis went to their rooftops Tuesday night for 15 minutes of prayers beseeching Allah for victory. The broadcast said the chant of "Allah Akbar" — God is great — roared across the Iranian capital in the winter cold.

Flowers say everything you can't.

DEATHS

Isabelle Walker

Isabelle Walker, 78, 2901 W. Ohio Ave., died Tuesday in a Midland nursing home following a lengthy illness.

She was born Sept. 3, 1902, in Washington, D.C., where she also grew up. She moved to Midland in May of 1977 from Hartford, Conn., where she had lived for many years. She was a member of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity.

Survivors include a son, James E. Walker of Midland and six grandchildren.

The family requests memorials be directed to the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity.

Mary Hall

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. — A memorial mass for Mary Margaret Hall, 61, and Dr. Frank Christopher Hall, 67, both of Oklahoma City, sister and brother of Patricia Ann Roberts of Midland, will be said at 8:15 tonight in St. Ann's Catholic Church in Midland with the Rev. Clifford Blackburn, OMI, officiating.

The Halls died after their home caught fire on Dec. 26. Miss Hall died Dec. 26, while Hall died Dec. 28 from injuries sustained in the blaze.

A wake for the two was held Dec. 28 in the Smith-Kernke Funeral Home with the Rev. William Bischoff, pastor of Our Lady of Perpetual Health in Oklahoma City, officiating. A funeral mass followed on Dec. 29 in the church. The two were buried in Oklahoma.

Other survivors include a sister and a brother.

Albert Blevins

CRANE — Services for Albert Lee Blevins, 75, of Crane are pending at the Hunter Funeral Home in Oklahoma City, Okla., with local arrangements handled by Easterling Wilson Funeral Home in Odessa.

Blevins died Monday at an Odessa hospital following an illness.

He was born Nov. 5, 1905, in Oklahoma and was a retired laborer. He moved to Crane eight years ago from Oklahoma and was a member of the Crane Christian Church.

Survivors include a daughter, Pauline Anderson of Oklahoma City, Okla.; two sons, J.C. Blevins of Moore, Okla., and William Brady Blevins of Oklahoma City, Okla.; four sisters, Etta Elmer Lanning and Jimmie Hazel Lannie, both of Crane, Mrs. Johnny Castleberry of Oklahoma City, and Mrs. Zelma Belesel of Tip-top, Okla.; and two grandchildren.

Louie Harrell

RIVERSIDE, Calif. — Services for Louie Charles Harrell of Salem, Ore., brother of Mrs. J. Webb Sellers of Midland, will be at 10 a.m. Friday at the national cemetery for servicemen near Riverside, Calif.

Harrell was born Aug. 7, 1904, in Mississippi. He served in World War II and the Korean War and retired as a chief warrant officer in the U.S. Navy.

Other survivors include his wife, a daughter, two sisters, a brother, six grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Willie Hughes

MASON — Services for Willie Francis Hughes, 58, of San Angelo, brother of Boots Seawright of Midland, were to be at 2 p.m. today in Mason Funeral Home with burial in Gooch Cemetery.

Hughes died Monday at his residence.

Born May 10, 1922, in Llano, he was married to Callie Gibbs in March of 1940 in Brady. He was a carpenter and had lived in San Angelo 20 years.

Survivors include a son, Frank Hughes of Austin; two daughters, Marvadeen Graine of Houston and Connie Bray of Austin; three brothers, Omer Hughes of Odessa, Jack Hughes of Junction and Willard Hughes of San Antonio; a sister, Verdie Mae Ray of New Mexico; and eight grandchildren.

California crews battle fruit flies

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Young workers more accustomed to fighting forest fires than bugs have begun a door-to-door campaign to wipe out the Mediterranean fruit fly, which threatens California's $12 billion farm industry.

backed by National Guard support teams, fanned out Tuesday to strip infested fruit from trees in a 500-square-mile area of Santa Clara and Alameda counties where the pest has been breeding since summer.

declared a state of emergency, met with San Jose officials, then reported the corps' effort was off to a good start.

"I think things are going well," Brown said. "I don't think anyone can predict the outcome yet. But we're doing everything humanly possible to get rid of this fruit fly without spraying."

Brown said he may call in another 400 CCC workers but is undecided about ordering an aerial spraying of the pesticide Malathion if the corps is unsuccessful.

The state already has released more than 1 billion sterile flies and spent $4.5 million in the battle to stop the pests, said George Farnham, spokesman for the state Department of Food and Agriculture. Sterile flies interrupt the breeding cycle.

The CCC's goal is "to knock down the population to the point where the sterile flies can take over and do the job," said Farnham. "If we have a (bigger) outbreak, we'll have nations throughout the world boycotting our goods."

Taiwan has embargoed California produce, and state officials hope to restrict the pest before more countries do the same. Additional boycotts could spell disaster to the state's economy, Farnham said.

The eradication project has taken on a military feel with corps members, who range in age from 16 to 23, sleeping on cots at the Santa Clara County Fairgrounds. The workers have come from as far away as Siskiyou and Camarillo for the planned two-week fight.

"We're running this just like a fire. This is an emergency operation," said conservation advisor Mel Krebs, comparing the effort with the fighting of major forest fires.

"I came in with a bunch of new people and the first thing I know, they told us we were coming here. They told us it would be for two weeks, but I'm beginning to wonder," said CCC worker Greg Goetzinger, 18, who joined the corps with hopes of working with "the big trees up north."

The house-to-house effort will include spraying the foliage of some trees with Malathion and spraying the ground underneath the trees with Fenthion.

Free-lance journalist missing in El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A free-lance journalist from Bogota, N.J., has been missing nine days in violence-torn El Salvador, and Salvadoran authorities have been asked to investigate, a spokesman for the U.S. Embassy reported.

The spokesman said the missing American was John J. Sullivan, 28, who disappeared Dec. 29, a day after checking in at the Sheraton Hotel in San Salvador.

A hotel source said the Sheraton notified the embassy, and an embassy official searched Sullivan's room and found his clothes, typewriter and photographic equipment still there.

The embassy spokesman said Sullivan's relatives have been notified of his disappearance in this tiny Central American country, where an estimated 9,500 people were killed in political warfare between the extreme leftists and rightists last year.

Seven other Americans have been among the victims since Dec. 1. Three American nuns and a woman social worker were murdered Dec. 2; an American mercenary was shot to death Dec. 17, and two American advisers from the AFL-CIO to the government's land reform program and peasant rights' movements were killed along with the head of the land program.

Rightists are believed to have killed all of the Americans except the mercenary. But no group has claimed responsibility, conservatives dominate the security forces, and the government said it has no leads.

Meanwhile, an army source reported that troops wiped out four leftist guerrilla camps near San Salvador that apparently were going to be used as bases for an offensive to overthrow the centrist civilian-military junta.

More than 1,000 soldiers supported by aircraft took part in the operation Monday and Tuesday on the slopes of the San Salvador volcano, 14 miles north of the capital, the source said. Reporters who visited the area said they could hear explosions and machine-gun fire all day Tuesday on the slopes of the volcano.

Soldiers returning from the action said they saw the guerrillas shoot down an old propeller-driven fighter plane. A Defense Ministry spokesman denied the report.

Nominees offer answers, clues to big questions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nominees for President-elect Ronald Reagan's Cabinet had ready answers and some clues for the future as they began confirmation hearings.

Secretaries-designate Caspar W. Weinberger of Defense, Malcolm Baldrige of Commerce, John R. Block of Agriculture, Donald T. Regan of Treasury and Richard Schweiker of Health and Human Services were grilled by Senate committees Tuesday.

In addition, Alexander Haig, nominee for secretary of state, met with Reagan in Washington to review foreign policy and spoke briefly with reporters.

Here are some of their key comments: —Weinberger predicted the Reagan administration would wait at least six months before trying to renegotiate the SALT II arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union.

"I don't think we should enter these negotiations lightly or ill-advisedly and I think we should have a very clear idea of the objectives we would want to pursue and the way we would like to see it come out," Weinberger told the Senate Armed Forces Committee.

Weinberger also said withdrawal of Soviet troops from Afghanistan would provide "a more firm basis" for implementing any new SALT treaty but said it would not necessarily be a prerequisite for signing a treaty.

—Haig said he discussed a broad range of foreign policy issues with Reagan, including problems with Iran, but he balked at the suggestion that the incoming administration had developed options for dealing with the hostage issue.

"No, I wouldn't conclude that," Haig said, but added, "There's some preliminary work done, of course, by transition groups."

—Baldrige told the Senate Commerce Committee that overregulation is hurting American business and needs curtailing "from top to bottom."

"Overregulation is hurting the growth of medium-size and small companies. The larger companies can better afford the cost of overregulation. It is just an additional cost where it is not necessary," Baldrige said. "We're overregulated everywhere."

Baldrige also said the liabilities which companies face in damage cases are bad for business. "For us to live in a no-risk society will hurt inflation and productivity to the point where it may not be worthwhile," he said.

—Block told the Senate Agriculture Committee he would use a food embargo as a diplomatic tool "only as a last resort under extreme circumstances. I really think the market should allocate our resources." Last month he had called food this country's greatest foreign policy weapon.

—Regan indicated the president-elect may not meet his campaign pledge to balance the federal budget by 1983. He also said the economic outlook for 1981 "is not bright," but disagreed with suggestions by some Republican economic advisers that Reagan declare an economic emergency upon taking office Jan. 20.

"I do not plan to recommend to the president that we declare a state of economic emergency nor that he ask for special emergency powers," Regan said. "We must have a sense of urgency — not emergency."

—Schweiker said getting the Social Security system on sound financial footing would be his top priority but cautioned that it would require some "tough medicine" to accomplish.

"I don't think there is a popular answer," Schweiker told the Senate Finance Committee. "But it is necessary for us to do it." He said the only options are raising taxes, cutting benefits or increasing the eligibility age.

Weinberger may keep draft plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although he would prefer to staff the armed services with volunteers than draftees, Caspar W. Weinberger is leaving the door open to retaining draft registration — possibly as "a continued permanent feature of American life."

President-elect Ronald Reagan's choice to be secretary of defense told the Senate Armed Services Committee Tuesday that he "would like to think" enough qualified volunteers can be attracted and kept by raising military pay and benefits.

"If the situation arises where more manpower is needed, other steps would have to be taken, but there are very serious problems connected with a peacetime draft," Weinberger testified at a one-day confirmation hearing.

He said he was sure Reagan "would like to avoid that (a draft) as long as possible."

During his election campaign, Reagan opposed peacetime conscription as a "meaningless gesture" that would limit personal freedom without substantially reducing the time needed to mobilize for an emergency.

Under a draft registration plan initiated by President Carter and approved by Congress, young men who will turn 19 during 1981 are registering this week.

Weinberger said there would be "at the very least, serious administrative problems" in rescinding draft registration, as proposed by Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., and others.

"Whether or not registration as a continued permanent feature of American life is required I am not really prepared to say at this time," Weinberger told the committee.

"I do know that we will have severe manpower needs. I hope we can secure what we need by a volunteer armed forces. If not, I would certainly want to acknowledge it and ask for a change in policy."

To attract and keep volunteers, Weinberger said he proposed to "re-examine the pay scales on some sort of comparability basis, and also the various advantages and benefits that have from time to time been offered to the military."

"There are a number of other things that I am having examined and one or two I would think would be very attractive," he added. He did not say what those things were.

Weinberger also told the committee the administration would be likely to wait at least six months before beginning negotiations for a SALT II treaty to replace the one negotiated by the Carter administration, which Reagan says favors the Russians.

He also said that even if a satisfactory treaty were agreed upon he "would want to see if it was not possible to secure" withdrawal of Russian troops from Afghanistan before recommending its ratification. But he said he would not necessarily insist on withdrawal of the troops as a condition for a treaty if the document were otherwise acceptable.

He said any SALT treaty should "make it clear that each side had sufficient strength so that they would be equally deterred from launching an attack."

The former Nixon administration welfare and budget official told the committee he will not commit himself to increasing the defense budget by any fixed percentage per year, but will determine annually how much is needed.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, chairman of the committee, said he foresaw "no difficulty" about Weinberger's confirmation.

Weinberger, 63, is a vice president of the Bechtel Group, a San Francisco-based construction and engineering firm. He served in the Nixon administration as director of the Office of Management and Budget, secretary of health, education and welfare and chairman of the Federal Trade Commission.

Use of Haig tapes, documents may be illegal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon's lawyer, threatening legal action, says he told President Carter it would be illegal to turn Nixon tapes and documents over to Senate Democrats for Alexander M. Haig's confirmation hearings.

The lawyer, Herbert J. Miller, said he told the president in a letter Tuesday that Carter already had violated the law by asking federal agencies to search for the information requested for the hearings on confirmation of Haig's nomination to be secretary of state. The hearings begin Friday.

"I told him it was highly improper and illegal — I don't know if I used those words," Miller said in a telephone interview. "It is a misuse of the power of the White House."

Senate Democrats asked for tapes and papers involving Haig's role in Nixon's Watergate defense, wiretapping of Nixon aides and reporters; the decision to bomb Cambodia during the Vietnam war, and other issues. Haig was White House chief of staff under Nixon.

The National Archives' counsel, Steven Garfinkel, said Miller threatened Tuesday morning to take court action to halt the archives search for the material. Miller had taken no court action by 3 p.m. so the search started then, Garfinkel said.

Miller said he later sent the letter to Carter, saying that turning the Nixon tapes and documents over to the senators would violate the Presidential Recordings and Materials Preservation Act. Congress enacted that legislation to prevent Nixon from destroying any of the material during the Watergate trials.

Nixon's lawyer said it would be a violation under that act to turn over the information "at the request of just one senator."

"If Congress wants something, the normal way to get it is with a subpoena," Miller said.

The material was requested by Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., acting as senior Democrat on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which will conduct the Haig hearings.

"My letter (to Carter) says that any attempt to conduct the search or turn over the information would be a violation of the statutes," Miller said. "All I'm asking is that the White House and everyone else follow the law."

Miller said Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, at first indicated he could not turn over the information at the request of only one senator but that Carter himself later asked federal agencies to try to comply with the Senate Democrats' request.

"I assume it's politics," Miller said. "I can't think of any other reason."

At the archives, Garfinkel said he does not believe the requested information can be turned over to the Democrats before Jan. 20 when the committee hopes to complete Haig's hearings.

Pell has joined Republicans in saying he hopes to complete hearings in time for the Senate to confirm Ronald Reagan's Cabinet right after Reagan's inauguration as president Jan. 20.

Garfinkel said that after a survey at the archives to find what information it has, the Senate Democrats must decide specifically which items to request and Nixon and Ford then have five days to object.

The regulatory schedule here is just not conducive to immediate production (of tapes and documents) unless everyone agrees to cooperate, which clearly will not be the case," Garfinkel said.

Interior selection draws fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Not since Richard Nixon nominated Walter Hickel in 1969 has the selection of an interior secretary drawn as much fire as the man picked by Ronald Reagan.

Indeed, with the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee opening two days of hearings on the appointment, conservative Denver attorney James G. Watt may prove to be the most controversial of all Reagan's Cabinet choices.

Since Watt's selection was announced a month ago, many of the country's largest conservation groups — including the Audubon Society, the Sierra Club, Friends of the Earth and the Wilderness Society — have been trying to rally enough support in the Senate to block the nomination.

Environmental groups are trying to paint Watt as a man whose entire career makes him unsuited to act as chief custodian for the 700 million acres of parks, wilderness areas and other public land the Interior Department manages.

Watt, however, says he is an environmentalist who, like Ronald Reagan, is also worried about the country's energy needs. He says his fight has been against environmental extremists who want to halt all development.

Conservation groups focus their criticism on Watt's role the past three years as head and chief legal officer of Mountain States Legal Foundation. The 10-attorney foundation has specialized in fighting a variety of environmental regulations proposed by the Interior Department and other government agencies.

Conservation groups charge that the foundation's board of directors and chief contributors read like a Who's Who of Western mining, oil, timber and real estate interests.

They contend that under Watt's leadership, the foundation became one of the foremost advocacy groups for private exploitation of public lands.

Style, candor seem to point to easy Baldrige confirmation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The easy style and candor of Malcolm Baldrige have all but cemented his Senate confirmation as Commerce secretary.

The 58-year-old Waterbury, Conn., businessman's appearance Tuesday before the Senate Commerce Committee drew nothing but praise from committee members.

"Baldrige is generally popular on the committee," said Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., the new panel chairman. "There is no problem (on confirmation)."

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee said Monday he would like the full Senate to vote on all of Reagan's Cabinet choices, if possible, on Jan. 20.

Repeating statements he has made in the month since his selection by Reagan, Baldrige told the committee Tuesday he would seek government deregulation "from top to bottom" to stimulate business growth, especially among middle-sized and small companies.

"We're overregulated everywhere," Baldrige said several times during the two-hour hearing.

Sen. Donald W. Riegle Jr., D-Mich., asked what recommendations Baldrige had for the auto industry, specifically limiting imports from Japan.

Baldrige, choosing his words carefully, said, "There is no question about the importance of the auto industry to the health of the economy. That is one reason I believe the economy is not going to move sideways in the first quarter, but is going to go down."

In addition to overall difficulties with inflation and over-regulation, Baldrige said Japanese auto production is peaking.

LIVING TODAY
Fight fear of future's changes with education, plan of action

Futurists tell us that the 1980's will bring dynamic changes to our way of life and that the family will be in the midst of those changes. How does that make you feel? Does the prospect of change excite you? Does it make you think you would like to continue life as it is? Or does the thought of change frighten you and make you wish for the "good ol' days?"

Most people probably have a few of each of these feelings — hoping to do some changing, wanting other things to stay as they are and, at times, wishing they could retreat to earlier days.

All of those feelings are perfectly normal. However, as change becomes more rapid in our society — and as those changes affect the family, many people are simply frightened. Fear is counter-productive — and just plain uncomfortable, so it's wise to understand fear and then fight it with a positive approach.

sound knowledge base about the issues being discussed. Their information base is a one or two minute explanation on the six o'clock news. Any other sources of information they have may be piece-meal and biased.

Also, by the time the public is fully aware of an issue, it is often being debated as part of a bill before Congress or a test case before the Supreme Court.

All of this adds to a feeling that individuals — 1.) have limited control over their own lives, 2.) have no reliable sources of data on a particular issue, or, 3.) do not have a voice in governmental decisions which directly affect them.

In response to these feelings — and to the overall problem of fear — individuals and the public as a whole have both a right and an option to call for consideration of four steps:

1. INCREASED FAMILY-LIFE education programs at all levels from kindergarten through adult education.
 2. INCREASED MEDIA coverage of issues which impact upon families. Coverage should be based on current research data and should show alternatives for solving problems related to the issue.
 3. CITIZEN PARTICIPATION at all levels of government, namely local, state and federal; participation, by the way, which is not dictated by a single issue but rather by a desire for a better way of life for all people.
 4. REPORTS OF STATE and federal legislation being considered on particular issues and legislators' stands and voting records. These could be published in local newspapers or provided through a variety of other methods.
- As this brand new year of 1981 begins and looking forward into the remaining years of the 80's, what will your choice of route be? Counter productivity with fear? Or change with education and action? The choice is each of ours.

WHAT CAUSES FEAR?

Roosevelt once said, "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself." That phrase holds true today as we look at families and the changes families will encounter in the coming decade. People are afraid of changes taking place in society — changes which impact upon families.

Tension and levels of fear increase as teenage pregnancy rises, as drug abuse continues to grow, as more women enter the labor force and seek passage of an Equal Rights Amendment, as arguments are held on abortion, prayer in school and sperm banks.

Fear causes people's attitudes and behaviors to alter, and often, fear results in poor logic, quick decisions and, later, in regrets.

Fear of the unknown, or of a common enemy, also causes people to band together — for preservation. Today in this country, we are seeing more of this type of behavior.

HOW TO FIGHT FEAR

Issues that cause fear are not going to fade away. Instead, the number of issues will grow, and the debates will be more heated. In order to fight fear, it is necessary to understand that more fear is a direct result of the unknown, that is, a lack of understanding of issues. Often the general public does not understand or have a

Dangers in the forest

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Forestry work is one of the world's most dangerous operations, according to the International Labor Organization.

One in four of the eight million permanently employed logging workers has an accident every year. When part-time workers are included there are an estimated 100 million people exposed to hazards.

To help reduce accidents in this industry, ILO has published a "Guide to Safety and Health in Forestry Work."

More fizz

WASHINGTON (AP) — Carbon dioxide, the same gas that puts "fizz" in soda and is the end product of breathing, is used as a propellant in some aerosol containers that deliver a close-range spray.

The propellant pushes the liquid out of the containers.

More coconuts

DJAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — The World Bank has loaned the government of Indonesia $46 million to increase coconut production.

Over 190,000 acres of coconut plantations are involved.

Some areas will be planted for the first time, others will be extensively rehabilitated.

Child-support program would be expanded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government wants to expand a program to find runaway parents and make them help support their children rather than add them to the welfare rolls.

New regulations proposed Monday by the Department of Health and Human Services would pay up to 75 percent of the cost of tracking down runaway parents of children who are not already on welfare. They also would permit state child-support agencies to use the Internal Revenue Service to collect child-support payments from those parents.

The more limited program already in effect has come to be known as the "nab-a-dad" program since about 95 percent of the absent parents are fathers.

Formally known as the Child Support Enforcement Program, it was responsible for collection of $736 million for families who were not receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children payments fiscal 1979 and an additional $596 million for families who were receiving AFDC payments.

Backers of the program say it helps families maintain their independence and avoid turning to federal assistance for basic support.

Program officials estimate that for every $1 spent on administrative costs in 1979, $3.65 in child support payments was collected.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Helping out the elderly

DEAR HELOISE:

My 80-year-old mother and I always read your column. She lives in an apartment in the back of our home, but she has free run of the house and we enjoy her very much. For years I've been thinking of sending in some helpful hints in caring for elderly people.

Before we built an extra bath and shower, we had only a bathtub, and it was difficult for Mother to get in and out of the tub without help.

I came up with the idea of having Mother squeeze out the washcloth and lay it on the side of the tub when she was ready to get out.

She would put both hands on the washcloth and I would place a dry towel under her arm and gently help her out of the tub.

The washcloth would not slip and would give her a good grip on the side of the tub.

If you think this hint is worthwhile to print, I have many other hints to help make life more pleasant for elderly parents who may want or need to live with their children.

I feel very fortunate that Mother chose to live in our home when we invited her.

Oh, yes. When I return home from work in the evenings, Mother usually has your column folded upright and ready for me to read. — Sissy

Your mother truly raised a kind and loving daughter. You're both much blessed and we look forward to hearing some more of your hints.

Thanks for sharing her with us. — Heloise

FABULOUS FIFTIES

Dear Heloise: I needed a bulletin board by the phone in the kitchen. I didn't have the wall space to hang one, so I covered the inside of the top cupboard door with self-adhesive cork and use push pins to tack up lists and notes, as well as a telephone list and calendar.

This way I have everything handy right by the phone in the kitchen. — Sherri White

ATTENTION, MOMS!

Dear Heloise: As the mother of four boys, I have long since lost count of the number of times I have threaded the drawing into hood or waist of one of my sons' sweatshirts or jackets.

I finally solved the problem. I measured the exposed ends of the drawing thread, I sewed across the drawing, through the string and casing, at the center top of the hood and center back of the waist.

No more lost drawings. A word of caution: children who intentionally pull out the drawing (imagine!), may try to do so after it's been stitched, resulting in a torn garment. So let the child know that the drawing has been stitched. — Vivian

MAKE-DO CURLERS

Dear Heloise: One night, in a motel after a humid day, I wanted to put a few curlers in my hair, but discovered I had forgotten to pack them. Here's how I improvised. I cut an empty toilet tissue tube lengthwise into two halves and then cut each of those in half crosswise, ending up with four pieces.

Being curved already, the tube was easy to tape together along the long edges, making four (two-inch long) rollers.

They were sturdy enough to reuse and did a perfect job on my dampened hair. — Curled in California

FOR FREE

Dear Heloise: I keep a one- or two-cup glass peanut butter jar filled with flour in my cabinet. It's handier to use for recipes that call for small amounts of flour. Easier than dragging out the big canister. — Bernice Smith

Study shows Americans want male dentists, female hairdressers

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two-thirds of Americans say they wouldn't mind if their boss were a woman, but by vast majorities they want police, doctors, lawyers, dentists and bankers to be men and salespeople, hairdressers and nurses to be women.

American attitudes are ambiguous on the homefront. Virtually all Americans now think it takes as much intelligence and drive to bring up children as to run a corporation, but only half say a working woman shouldn't have to bear full responsibility for running the house, too.

These trends emerge from a study, "Today's American Woman: How the Public Sees Her," which traces changes in public attitudes about women.

It was prepared by pollster Daniel Yankelovich and his assistant, Deborah Durfee Barron, and published by the President's Advisory Committee for Women. No new polls were conducted for the study, which only analyzed existing studies conducted by major public opinion research firms around the country.

What emerges is a general approval of women's progress — in the job market, in politics, in free choice to determine their own destinies.

But three out of 10 people see women as suffering as much discrimination as Puerto Ricans and Mexican Americans. Most people feel that women suffer less discrimination, though, than blacks or homosexuals.

A third of the women who were surveyed felt they would have gotten a lot further in life if they had been born as men. One in four said being born a woman prevented her from accomplishing all she had once hoped.

Because the study is based on the results of polls conducted at different times by different pollsters asking questions of differing groups of people, some of the findings appear to be in conflict with each other.

For example, one poll indicated that only a third of the public feels that women should run the home and let men run the country, a dramatic change from 1974, when a majority felt women should stay home.

But another poll deduced that about half of Americans subscribe to the old saying that a woman's place is in the home. Two-thirds disapprove of families in which the wife is the breadwinner while dad stays home with the kids.

Most people think a preschool child suffers if mom holds a job.

In working couples, his job comes first: two-thirds of those asked think a wife with an interesting job should turn down a transfer to another city so her husband can continue in his job. Only 17 percent think he should quit and they should relocate.

Most people — nearly six in 10 — don't think the United States will have a woman president by the year 2000, but seven in 10 think a woman will be sworn in as vice president.

Only one person in seven says he would vote against a woman presidential candidate if his party nominated her. In 1937, 65 percent said they would vote for the other party's male candidate.

Attitudes toward sex have changed, too.

Most people feel a couple having a child out of wedlock should not marry just for the sake of the child, but they don't feel it should be made legal to have children out of wedlock. And seven in 10 say deciding to have a child out of wedlock would be morally wrong.

The public is moving toward accepting the idea of single women having children, but a majority remains opposed. But adoption by single parents is all right with most people.

The public feels, in general, that a woman should have the right to have an abortion if she wants one, and majority opinion opposes an anti-abortion amendment to the Constitution. Support for abortion falls off beyond the first three months of pregnancy.

Bamboo occurs naturally on most continents

Bamboo occurs naturally on every continent except Europe and Antarctica. A thousand species produce stalks ranging from the size of field grass to 120-foot giants a foot thick. They vary in color, shape and size but all feature a woody stalk.

Bamboo is light, stiff, strong — and speedy. One species in Japan grew almost 4 feet in 24 hours.

Bamboo typically sends up shoots every year. The emerging sprouts reach their full size and height in 60 to 90 days.

China exports about 5,000 tons of tea-stick bamboo a year. Much of it goes to Europe where it is used for tomato supports, ski poles, fishing rods, furniture or edge markers for snow-covered roads, according to National Geographic.

DEAR ABBY

Gays make great friends, but lousy husbands

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: Last week my husband's half-brother, from whom he had not heard in 23 years, appeared at our door with his wife. They had driven from California, arriving at our place in Ohio just as we were finishing dinner. We were hurrying to get to a meeting so we didn't offer to feed them. It was very awkward.

My husband asked then where they were staying, and they said, "No where."

I'm sure they were planning to stay with us, but I was expecting my parents from out of town in a few days, and we only have one guest room, so I didn't offer. However, I did invite them to come back the following evening for dinner.

Now my husband says blood is thicker than water — that we should have asked them to stay with us until my parents arrived. I think we did enough asking them for dinner. Please settle this argument. — MRS. VERSUS MR.

DEAR MRS.: If these long-lost relatives knew where to find you, they could (and should) have written or called to let you know they were coming. Blood may be thicker than water, but after 23 years in California it might have thinned out a little. I vote with you.

DEAR ABBY: I must respond to your letter from IN LOVE IN JERSEY, the woman who was in love with a homosexual. Your advice to "do yourself (and him) a favor and give up" probably cost them both a valuable friendship. Gay men make marvelous friends. They are warm, sincere, understanding and will do anything for a friend. Maybe she wasn't so much in love with him as she valued his friendship.

My best friend is gay (I am a woman), and we think the world of each other. Friends are hard to come by, and it shouldn't matter whether they are male, female or gay. — LOVES A GAY IN PORTLAND

DEAR LOVES: IN LOVE IN JERSEY didn't just "love" a gay; she was "IN LOVE" with him, and wanted him to MARRY her. She asked if I thought he could change his sexual preference.

I told her his chances for changing were zilch and advised her to give up. Granted, gays make wonderful friends, but they are not for marrying.

DEAR ABBY: A very good friend of ours died after a long illness. While this friend (I'll call him Bill) was ill, my husband sent over at least a dozen books for him to read. One in particular is irreplaceable, having been personally inscribed by the author. It's been nearly two years since Bill died, and his widow has made no attempt to return our books.

Although we see her quite often socially as well as at church, we have never mentioned the books to her. We know she's aware that she has them because a year ago she said "I'm really ashamed of myself for not having returned those books you let Bill read."

How does one resolve such an awkward problem? — NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: Call Bill's widow and tell her you realize that she's had a lot on her mind these last two years, so she needn't be embarrassed for neglecting to return your books, and if it's convenient, you'd like to stop by and pick them up tomorrow. And when you do, bring her a little gift of flowers, cookies, fruit or whatever.

Marriage 'squeeze': Slim pickings ahead

By ZENIA CLEIGH
Copley News Service
"Dear Susan," the letter to a singles writer began. "I haven't had a boyfriend in the last two years."

"I have searched in the East, West and North for a man willing to love and accept the love I offer. I am 30 years young, fairly attractive, a self-employed businesswoman and quite active. Are there any men left who know how to show emotions?" Signed, Annie L.

Annie, this news is going to be hard to break.

The sad fact is not only are there few men left who know how to show emotions, but there are very few marriageable men left in your age bracket, period, according to a University of Southern California sociologist.

The best thing to do at this point is to hold on to your condominium as protection against old age, and start having affairs with married men. (At least you can make their lucky wives miserable.)

Either that, or set your sights on guys who are younger than you. Much younger.

In blunt terms, Annie, 1947 was the worst possible year in this century to be born if you are a woman hoping for marriage. And you, having first seen the light of day some time around 1950, are not in much better shape.

In fact, women born between 1947 and 1954 hold the dubious distinction of having the hardest time finding mates out of all the women born in the 20th century.

To be more precise, the whole curve of marital hardship for women ranges through births from 1937 to 1961, tapering off in severity toward the edges of the spectrum.

Hence, the years 1957 to 1960 were a difficult period for women who wanted to get married, with 1960-1971 being the real crunch years and 1965 the worst.

The only possible consolation is that men born between 1921 and 1933 had a problem finding mates when they began wanting to marry around 1945-1956, with 1951 being a particularly bad year for landing that dream girl.

Added solace can be found in the fact that men born between 1961-1973 are going to be feeling a very pronounced crunch between 1981-1992 with their desperation reaching a peak around 1985-1986.

Being born in 1964 is turning out to be the worst year for a man hoping to do well in the marriage market.

Although the coming problem period for marriageable men will be harsher than it was for other men earlier in the century, it will not be nearly as severe as the effects have been on women.

It's called a "marriage squeeze," Annie.

According to Dr. David Heer, a professor of sociology and associate director of the Population Research Laboratory at the University of Southern California, there have been three major marriage squeezes since the end of World War II — periods when there have been sharp variations in the ratio of marriageable men to marriageable women.

This is a cyclical phenomenon, alternately affecting men and then women, and it has to do with the number of men and women born in every given year.

Heer's statistical research, to be published in the February issue of the "Journal of Marriage and the Family," is based in part on three facts.

— Men tend to marry women 2.5 years younger than themselves.

— There are 105 men born to every 100 women, on the average.

— The average age of marriage for men ranges between 19.5 and 26 and for women 17-24.

In other words, women born in 1947 will tend to look to men born between 1944 and 1945 for mates. The problem arises because there were 3.8 million babies born in 1947, in the famous postwar "baby boom," but only 2.8 million babies born in 1945.

This means a million more babies were born in 1947 than 1945, leading to marriage time to about 500,000 "extra" females with no numerical equivalent of males for them in the 1945 age group.

The same problem did not befall the increased numbers of men born in the 1947 boom, however, since they looked to women born in 1949 and 1950 for mates, years of population increase when women were in abundant supply.

Similarly, the 1945-1956 marriage squeeze for men came about because of a declining birthrate in the 1930s. In other words, there were more men born in 1930 than women born in 1933.

And, since the birthrate has been declining in the last two decades, this means that there will be fewer younger women available for men to marry in the 1980s.

Keeping in mind the fact that men in marriages tend to be two and a half years older than the women, the formula becomes: If the birthrate increases, women feel the marriage squeeze since there will be more of them than older men in the age group they want to marry. If the birthrate decreases, men are squeezed since there are fewer women coming along who are younger than them.

According to Heer, a fourth marriage squeeze will occur at the turn of the century, in the form of a slight squeeze for women born in the late '70s and '80s. This will be due to the fact that the birthrate now has begun to rise again.

The conclusions Heer draws about the effect of the squeeze on marriage, the birthrate and the women's movement are also interesting.

For one thing, Heer said that the old-fashioned values of women expecting wealth as the primary quality in a man and a man expecting beauty as the primary quality in a woman still hold true.

It's called "compensation" in sociological terms.

"When there is a marriage squeeze for men, men have to give women more compensation," Heer said, "and when there's a marriage squeeze for women, they give women less."

In other words, poor men get married less frequently than wealthy men. Unattractive women get married less frequently than attractive women.

"One of the things we think happened in the '60s was that men did not have to give women as much monetary contribution as they did in the '50s." (This is presumably because women were so desperate they would take on any poverty-stricken suitor.)

"Because of this, more married women, and married women with children, entered the labor force."

All those unmarried women had to enter the labor force as well, leading to the tremendous upsurge of interest in women's rights in the marketplace.

Using the same line of reasoning, it may look like a victory for the Moral Majority in the 1980s since the coming marriage squeeze for men may have the effect of reducing the proportion of married women who work outside the home.

This is because, to get a wife, a man will have to promise more to her, that is, more money. Hence, she will not need to work, although she may choose to, anyway.

Heer also predicts that the divorce rate will fall in the '80s. "We believe the divorce rate tends to be a (statistical) function of the marriage squeeze," Heer said.

The divorce rate in 1980, Heer said, "appears to be the highest on record." But it will begin to fall, he said, because with the coming marriage squeeze for men, there will be fewer younger women around to pick their new mates from. Hence, it will make more sense to stay married.

So, Annie, look at it this way. Our sisters who had the brains to be born in the '60s have got it made. Power, power, everywhere.

And for you, there is some hope: the marriage squeeze for women of your age ends this year. From now on, it's the men's turn to hurt.

Starting right now, there are going to be scores of 20-year-old guys who will be eternally grateful for your company. Not to mention the older men who still want to divorce their aging wives and will be forced to look for someone a little older to fill the new position.

It's a whole new ballgame now, Annie. Think about it.

Things you should know about the care of aluminum:

- 1.—While hand soap and water may be used on aluminum finishes when required, stronger cleaners must be chosen with care.
2.—When using a cleaning agent that must be mixed with water, do not use more or less water than directed.
3.—Invest a few minutes in testing a cleaner on a hidden area. Make it a thorough test. Take enough time to be certain the cleaner works the way you want it to.
4.—To wash down aluminum siding, use water alone or water with a mild soap, applying it with a long, hollow-handle brush of the type used for car washing.
5.—Do not use a polish cleaner before painting aluminum. This kind of product often leaves a wax residue that prevents the paint from adhering properly.
6.—Newly cleaned bare aluminum can be kept from going gray by applying a coat of lacquer or wax to it, but be sure the wax does not contain an abrasive.
7.—When cleaning aluminum, as with most other vertical surfaces, you can get streak-free results by working from the bottom up and keeping all washed areas wet until finished.
8.—Cleaners work poorly when cold or hot. As a general rule, if you feel comfortable, the cleaner will be at the right temperature. Avoid cleaning when the aluminum is too hot to touch or when the temperature is below 50 degrees Fahrenheit.
9.—Be sure to remove any cleaning material quickly. Water-based cleaners are rinsed with clear water.

Miami riot deaths trial underway

MIAMI (AP) — Attorneys were going to court today to begin selecting a jury in the murder trial of four young blacks accused of beating to death three whites who drove into the predominantly black Liberty City neighborhood the day Miami's May race riots erupted.

Trial began Tuesday with defense arguments for suppression of statements the police took from the defendants after their arrests.

The case is the second involving a death in the May 17-19 racial violence, which claimed 18 lives and caused more than $100 million damage. The rioting erupted after an all-white jury acquitted four white former policemen on charges stemming from the fatal beating of black Miami insurance man Arthur McDuffie.

Facing first-degree murder charges were Lawrence Capers, 24; his 21-year-old brother, Leonard; and two juveniles, Patrick Moore and Samuel Lightsey, both 16.

The defendants were charged in the deaths of Benny Higdon, 21, Robert Owens, 15, and Charles Barreca, also 15. The victims had been fishing and were returning to Higdon's Miami home at about 9 p.m. May 17 when their car was pelted with rocks and bottles.

According to police reports, their car hit a wall and the three were dragged out and beaten to death with rocks and boards.

Assistant State Attorney Robert Kaye said he had dozens of witnesses to call and did not know how long the trial might last.

Higdon's wife, Tina, has been subpoenaed to testify, according to her sister-in-law, Mary Owens.

"It's going to be pretty rough for her to have it all brought up again," said Mrs. Owens. Mrs. Owens, of Hollywood, Fla., identified the badly beaten bodies for police — an experience she said has caused her nightmares.

Defeated solon back on Hill

BALTIMORE (AP) — Former Rep. Robert E. Bauman, defeated in his November re-election bid after disclosures about his personal life, is beginning a 60-day term as a strategy consultant to the House Republican leadership, the Baltimore Sun said today.

Bauman will be on the payroll of Rep. Trent Lott, R-Miss., the House minority whip, a Lott aide told the newspaper. "Mr. Lott felt that all (Bauman's) legislative experience and knowledge of the rules would be uniquely beneficial when shared with the new GOP congressmen," the aide said, adding that half Bauman's time would be devoted to schooling new congressmen informally and the rest to GOP strategy development.

He said the former congressman's salary had not yet been determined but indicated it would be less than the $60,662 Bauman earned as a member of the House.

The aide told the newspaper Bauman's income would be determined later by Lott, but an official of the House Administration Committee was quoted as saying the former congressman probably can't be paid at a rate exceeding $52,000 a year — the top scale for "daily rate" consultants.

Lott's aide added there were no plans currently to extend a 60-day period of employment for Bauman.

Bauman could not be reached immediately for comment. Bauman's election defeat came after his acknowledgement of alcoholism and "homosexual tendencies" and after a criminal solicitation charge involving a male in Washington.

His wife, Carol, reportedly has obtained a GOP job as a member of the Reagan transition team on the Office of Personnel Management.

Wanamaker sued for sexual discrimination

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — The federal government has charged John Wanamaker Inc. with discriminating against female workers at its department store here by paying them less than it pays men who perform the same jobs.

The suit filed by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission seeks a permanent injunction to prevent the company from continuing the alleged discrimination, which it said has been going on since 1964, when the store opened.

The suit also asks the court to require Wanamaker to pay the 66 women named in the suit back wages amounting to the difference between what the government says they should have earned and what they actually received.

Those figures were not available immediately. Spencer H. Lewis, the EEOC regional attorney in Philadelphia, said Tuesday the suit was filed after the company declined to "come into compliance" with the law by increasing the pay of women who allegedly were discriminated against.

Lewis said the company contended that the jobs the women held were not the same as those held by more highly paid men.

Officials of the department store chain could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

WASHINGTON TODAY

GOP plans to hold on in Congress

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lock, stock and bookbinder, the Senate is in Republican custody for two years and quite probably longer.

Last time that happened, Jimmy Carter was in the White House, Ronald Reagan was in the movies, and Harry S. Truman was moving out of the White House.

First, Truman sent a final State of the Union message to Congress, and in it confirmed that the United States had indeed developed the hydrogen bomb.

When that 83rd Congress convened, 28 years ago, Republicans had tenuous control of both Senate and House. They gained it in Dwight D. Eisenhower's presidential landslide, and lost it two years later.

"The momentum is ours," says Bill Brock, the outgoing Republican national chairman. "It is up to us to seize this opportunity. . . . America does not have a real majority party as it heads into 1981."

As the new Senate held its ceremonial opening session on Monday, Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd, the majority boss until then, joked that the Republican side of the aisle looked bloated to him.

It would, after years in which the Democratic side was the crowded one. At one point, the Democrats held 68 of the 100 seats and had to squeeze in extra desks, narrowing the aisles to do it.

They've got plenty of room now, with 47 desks left. There are 53 Republican senators; there haven't been that many in 50 years.

"We will have to put up with that for a short time," Byrd said, smiling.

The duration of the Republican lease certainly will depend on what happens in the Reagan administration and at the Capitol. Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. said Reagan will be sending Congress his economic program early next month. That is likely to be the key issue — if Republicans really can curb inflation and keep the economy perking at the same time, political rewards surely will follow.

The president's party usually has trouble in off-year elections, and that will make it difficult for the GOP to carve into the 51-seat margin by which Democrats control the House.

The Republican numbers are promising on the Senate side. The terms of 20 Democrats expire at the end of this Congress, along with that of independent Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., who has voted with them on Senate control since he left the party.

Only 12 Republican seats will be at stake. That means that to reclaim the Senate, the Democrats would have to win 25 of 33 contests in 1982. That would take a reverse landslide, in a time of conservative revival. It isn't likely.

Not until 1984 will the Democrats have more Senate seats to gain than to risk; there will be 19 GOP terms expiring then, 14 Democratic.

Republicans already are drawing up their hit lists of Senate Democrats for 1982. One of them bears the signature of Lyn Nofziger, who is going to the White House as political assistant to Reagan.

In a fund-raising letter for Citizens for the Republic, the political action committee set up in Reagan's name four years ago, Nofziger targets a half-dozen Democratic senators as people "we just have to beat" next time.

Among them is Democratic leader Byrd. "Already he's been promising to make trouble for President Reagan — even before he's inaugurated," Nofziger wrote.

Byrd said on opening day that the Democratic minority will be "cooperative when we can . . . and when we differ, differ constructively."

That's what Republicans have been saying for years. It sounds good, but nobody has found a referee to determine when the opposition party is differing constructively.

And about that bookbinder: it is one of the Senate staff jobs supervised by the majority party leadership, along with parliamentarians, clerks and other aides.

Americans consume lots of cholesterol

Dear Dr. Solomon: How much cholesterol does the average American consume each day, and what portion of this amount is contributed by eggs?—Tom

Dear Tom: The average daily intake of cholesterol by Americans is about 600 milligrams. Two eggs (each egg yolk contains from 250 to 300 milligrams of cholesterol) provide almost all of this amount.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I have a slightly elevated blood pressure. Instead of giving me pills, my doctor put me on a reducing diet and told me he wants to see whether this will have any effect on my pressure. I don't understand why losing weight will cause blood pressure to go down. Will you please explain the relationship?—Tom

Dear Tom: The association between obesity and high blood pressure rests on the fact that excess weight adds to the circulatory burden of the heart. As a person's weight increases, so does the blood volume. Moreover, the fat reserves in an obese individual also must be supplied with blood. The result is that the heart is forced to pump more blood through a larger network of blood vessels, thus causing an increase in the blood pressure.

Your doctor may also have told you to limit your intake of salt. Sodium causes the body to retain fluid, and this, too, may cause pressure to rise.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I purchased a can of a nationally advertised fruit drink the other day. When I opened the can and poured some of the juice into a glass, I found that it was practically colorless, and I immediately lost my appetite for it. When I returned it to the store, the manager explained that there must have been a slip-up on the production line which kept the color from being added. However, he tasted the juice and said it was fine. I would not have been able to drink that juice even if the manager paid me to do so. Was my reaction to the appearance of the product unusual?—Mrs. A.M.

Dear Mrs. M.: There is no question about the appearance of an item determining how it tastes. We are accustomed to having certain foods look a certain way; if they don't, chances are we won't find them appetizing.

An interesting study illustrating this point involved mismatching the color and flavor of sherbets. For example, a lime-flavored sherbet was colored purple, and a panel of judges was asked to rate the product on the basis of taste. The result was a great deal of confusion. In the case of the purple lime-flavored sherbet, only 47 percent of the panel identified it correctly; however, when the sherbet was colored green—the color we ordinarily associate with lime—75 percent of the judges identified the item correctly.

Game players solve terrorism problems

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Like the authors of the spy novels that line their shelves, engineers and scientists here dream up terrorist plots for breaking into the nation's nuclear weapons plants. Then they plan — and test — security measures to foil their own schemes.

As armchair terrorists, the security scientists here read intelligence reports by the FBI and the military, the "Soldier of Fortune" magazine for mercenaries, mysteries, thrillers and scholarly works. They also examine plans of nuclear plants.

Then they ask themselves, what if...? What if a drunk tries to crash a gate at a weapons plant? What if a spy is working inside a plant?

The plotting and counterplotting are known as "black hat exercises" since the fictitious terrorists and saboteurs are the bad guys.

The targets of the plots developed at Sandia National Laboratory here are nuclear weapons plants and research facilities, owned by the Department of Energy but operated by private contractors.

"What we at Sandia do is look at engineering solutions to the problem of terrorists," said Roy Crouch, director of safeguards and security for the U.S. Department of Energy.

"We read all of this literature and ask ourselves, 'If somebody tries to do that, are we prepared for it?'...We go to military people and ask them, 'If you and your buddies from Vietnam try to take over our plant, what would you do?'" said Bill Myre, director of nuclear security at Sandia.

Another technique for second-guessing and counteracting terrorist attacks is to feed information on nuclear plants — drawings, floor plans, personnel schedules, photos — into a computer.

Often, "the computers will tip us off to the easiest route into a plant," Myre said.

The scientists also occasionally put a scenario into action to test guards and the plant's security setup. Crouch said inspectors go out in the middle of the night and tell guards there will be a drill.

"We're not sneaking over a fence and leaping on a guard," he said. "That's the worst thing we can do."

Natural shark repellent being sought

TORONTO (AP) — A fish that can turn aside a hungry shark in mid-snap has become the focus of the search for naturally occurring shark repellents to protect swimmers and divers, scientists say.

The fish's repellent is so potent that sharks exposed to it in experiments can go into convulsions or even roll over belly-up on the bottom of a tank.

Marine biologists told a convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Science on Monday that natural biological substances may replace chemical shark repellents discontinued a decade ago when they were found to be ineffective.

The scientists, led by Dr. Bernard Zahuranec of the Office of Naval Research, said so far no replacement has been found.

But they said there was renewed hope for a repellent made from potent biological toxins discovered in simple sea creatures over the last few years — particularly a toxin secreted by a species of fish called the Moses sole.

The Moses sole, a foot-long flatfish, inhabits the Red Sea and western Indian Ocean.

Its name comes from a legend that the fish was flattened by being split down the middle when Moses divided the waters, said Dr. Eugenie Clark of the University of Maryland. Ms. Clark, a shark specialist, first reported in 1973 that the Moses sole could repulse sharks.

In a series of tests, individual Moses sole fishes survived up to 28 hours in a tank with two captive reef white-tipped sharks despite repeated attacks. In some cases, she said, the sharks would have the fish already in their mouths before being driven away.

"At the end of the experiment, you take the fish out and it doesn't have a scratch on it, even though it's been in the jaws," she said.

When exposed to repellent it will go into convulsions, jerking its head from side to side, banging around the tank, swimming with its mouth open and, in some cases, rolling over belly-up on the bottom.

Scientists say the fish has a series of poison glands near its back and rear fins, which secrete a milky substance that interferes with the shark's gills. The gill is the lung-like organ through which fish breathe.

Ms. Clark said if a shark is exposed to the repellent it will go into convulsions, jerking its head from side to side, banging around the tank, swimming with its mouth open and, in some cases, rolling over belly-up on the bottom.

"When this first came out, companies that make sun tan lotions were interested in supporting it because they thought there was a possibility a saive could be developed where you could in one tube sell a product that would prevent sunburn and shark

Interest in this quick-and-easy solution faded when it was learned that Pardaxin, the fish toxin, degrades rapidly when it is separated from the fish and stored or frozen.

Dr. Elihu Zlotkin, a biochemist at Hebrew University in Jerusalem, said it probably would be too expensive to make shark repellent from the Pardaxin itself, but he said a chemical substitute for Pardaxin probably could be found.

New giant Soviet sub called 'amazing'

Hearst News Service

Washington — The Soviet Union is entering 1981 with a huge, battleship-sized nuclear submarine that dwarfs the developing U.S. Trident vessel and which compounds the already-large Russian lead in undersea power.

The submarine, code-named Oscar, was described as "amazing" by an official U.S. Navy source. It is believed to have, basically, an anti-ship" role through the deployment of supersonic missiles that can be fired from underwater.

Believed to displace more than 30,000 tons — compared with the Trident's 18,700 tons — the Oscar is easily the biggest, and almost certainly the fastest, submarine ever built, reliable sources say. Its dimensions would make it about the size of a World War 2 battleship.

Only one Oscar is believed to exist at this time. But the vessel's design and armament adds to the U.S. Navy's problems in coping with the Soviet Union's undersea fleet of 257 submarines, of which 91 are nuclear-powered, in addition to a further 115 conventionally-powered submarines in reserve.

The U.S. Navy has 120 submarines, of which 114 are nuclear-powered.

In addition to the Soviet Union's overwhelming submarine numerical superiority, the Oscar also represents what many experts feel is a growing Russian qualitative advantage in undersea warfare capability. The Oscar can travel underwater at an "unprecedented" 55 knots, or 60 miles per hour, according to reliable sources, thus far-outdistancing the previous speed record of about 40 knots held by one of its predecessors, the Alpha.

The Alpha's hull, experts noted, was built of titanium, which is lighter and stronger than steel — thus enabling the vessel to operate faster and at lower depths than a steel-hulled submarine. American submarines are steel-hulled. The Alpha was succeeded first by the Typhoon class of Soviet submarines, it was noted, and now by the Oscar. Experts feel that it must be assumed that both the Typhoon and Oscar hulls are made of titanium.

The U.S. Trident submarine program is being delayed by numerous cost overrun factors and by labor and workmanship problems, according to published reports. One Trident is believed undergoing sea trials in the Pacific. But the speed of the Trident, while apparently classified, is believed to be significantly less than that of the Oscar. The Oscar can also outperform" American submarines in other ways, due to "advanced hydrodynamics and super-efficient powerplants," according to U.S. naval experts.

The Oscar, the experts believe, is basically a "cruise missile" carrier. A cruise missile is a pilotless projectile, designed to carry a nuclear warhead, and able to fly at low altitudes "hugging" the contours of the earth's surface in order to avoid enemy radar.

The Oscar, the experts believe, carries a large number of SS-NX-19 missiles able to fly at 2,000 miles per hour over a range of about 550 miles. Such missiles, it is believed, have the capability of inflicting serious damage on an American-class aircraft carrier, or perhaps sinking it.

Cleveland's Brian Sipe named NFL's best for 1980

Sipe named NFL's MVP

CLEVELAND (AP) — He was rarely caught off guard by a blitzing linebacker, but quarterback Brian Sipe says he was entirely surprised by the latest post-season award to hit him.

The heart of the Cleveland Browns' celebrated passing attack, Sipe was named the National Football League's Most Valuable Player by The Associated Press on Tuesday.

"This is one I had never anticipated," Sipe said. "It seems like just a little while ago I was fighting for credibility as an NFL quarterback, and I considered it a great honor just to be playing. Now, they're calling me the most valuable player in the league."

"I'm still a little bit caught off guard by it all."

The 31-year-old quarterback, statistically the NFL's No. 1 passer in 1980, earned 47 of the 84 votes cast by a nationwide panel of sports writers and sports broadcasters, three from each NFL club.

Houston running back Earl Campbell was a distant second in the voting with 22 votes. Philadelphia's Ron Jaworski and Atlanta's Steve Bartkowski tallied four each, and San Diego's Dan Fouts had three. No one else received more than two votes.

"I feel that when a quarterback is recognized for something like this, the whole team is being recognized," said Sipe. "I hope everybody around me realizes that this belongs to them, too."

The 13th-round draft choice out of San Diego State was on the Browns' taxi squad his first two pro seasons and became a starter only after Mike Phipps was injured early in the 1976 season.

He said it is no coincidence that his development as a quarterback has paralleled the rise of the AFC Central Division champion Browns.

"There were some unsettling years here," he said. "We went through a period of rebuilding. In my first six years with the Browns, there were five different people trying to teach me the passing game. I think the entire team suffered as a result."

Rutigliano, an assistant at New Orleans, was hired as Cleveland's head coach.

"Sam has gotten together a good staff, and they've been around for three years," said Sipe. "It's brought us some stability. Not to mention, Sam came here with some very good theories. His approach to offensive football fits very well with the people we have."

Sipe this season became the leading career passer in Browns' history with 15,207 yards, pushing him past Frank Ryan and Otto Graham.

During 1980, his 2.5 interception percentage was lowest in the league, his 30 touchdown tosses second only to Bartkowski's 31, and his 4,132 yards the second-highest total in league history behind Fouts' 4,715.

Though he is 31, Sipe said he is at his peak physically, in part because he didn't take the punishment a regular would have endured during his early years in the league.

"Hopefully, when my body slows down, I'll be a little wiser and I'll be able to keep playing anyway," he said.

Bennett predicts Dallas to down Eagles Sunday

SUWANEE, Ga. (AP) — Atlanta Falcons' Coach Leeman Bennett is predicting that the Dallas Cowboys will defeat the Philadelphia Eagles in the National Football League playoffs Sunday and advance to the Super Bowl Jan. 25.

"I just think Dallas is a better football team than Philadelphia," Bennett said Tuesday at his final news conference of the season. He also discussed the Falcons' 30-27 last-second playoff loss to the Cowboys last Sunday.

"I think Dallas has a stronger defense. Their front four is much stronger. Another factor is that Philadelphia is somewhat beat up and bruised," he said.

"Dallas will win the game. That would be my thinking," said Bennett, who also picked the San Diego Chargers to defeat the Oakland Raiders in the AFC title game.

He said he also would pick the Chargers in the Super Bowl, if his predictions on Sunday's games come true.

"I would think if that happens, San Diego would be the favorite. The Chargers had a very, very strong passing game and good overall talent, especially their defensive front. I would think San Diego would be the favorite," said Bennett.

He said the Falcons' game plan against the Cowboys worked, but it just came down to "Drew Pearson making two catches at the end."

The Falcons were leading 27-17 when Pearson caught a 14-yard touchdown pass from Danny White with 3:40 left to play. The veteran wide receiver then got the 23-yard, game-winning touchdown with only 42 seconds left.

"We went into the game to go after them with our passing," Bennett said. "We did that and were about to put quite a few points on the board. But we couldn't stop them when we had to."

Steve Bartkowski threw for 330 yards and two touchdowns while White finished with 322 yards and three scores, hitting 15 of 20 passes for 230 yards in the second half.

Bennett, although disappointed with the loss, tried to look at the bright side.

"What people tend to forget," Bennett said, "is where we started, and where we are today. Not only in personnel but in belief in our ability to play."

The Falcons, who made the playoffs for the first time in their 15-year history in 1978, fell to 6-10 a year ago and were only 3-3 this season until a nine-game winning streak gave them a 12-4 regular-season record and the NFC West title.

"The 12-4 record was better than we'd hoped for," said Bennett. "But we just didn't go as far as we'd hoped when we got to the 12-4 record."

Eight Chargers on All-Pro team

NEW YORK (AP) — Tight end Kellen Winslow and wide receivers John Jefferson and Charlie Joiner of the San Diego Chargers, who caught more than 1,000 yards in passes apiece to set a National Football League record, were named today to The Associated Press All-Pro Team for the 1980 season.

Cleveland's Brian Sipe, whose league-leading passing was instrumental in the Browns' resurgence, was selected The AP's All-Pro first-team quarterback. He beat out Dan Fouts, the Chargers' record-breaker.

IN ALL, San Diego had eight players on the first and second teams in the balloting by 84 sports writers and sports broadcasters, three from each NFL city. The other two Chargers starters are on defense — end Fred Dean and tackle Gary Johnson.

Winslow caught a league-high 89 passes for 1,290 yards, Jefferson had an NFL-high 1,340 yards on 82 receptions and Joiner added 1,132 yards on 71 catches. That made the Chargers the first team with three 1,000-yard receivers in a season.

Along with Fouts, whose 4,715 yards passing shattered the record of 4,082 he set a year ago, the other second-team All-Pro Chargers are defensive tackle Louie Kelcher and place-kicker Rolf Benirschke.

Midland hosts boxing meet

The Midland Boxing club will host a major two-day boxing tournament Friday and Saturday at the Midland Boys Club, located at South Main and New Jersey streets.

Nine full teams will be entered along with individual fighters from three other cities. The fights will begin at 7:30 p.m. each day. Boxing coach Rick Fleetwood announced that the club seats only 300 people and previous matches have produced standing room only. He urges those who wish to have a seat to arrive early.

Friday's action will feature 25 preliminary bouts and the finals on Saturday will have anywhere from 15 to 20 bouts. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for students.

The Midland team, which recently won the open division in the Hobbs tournament, will host teams from Pecos, Barstow, Monahans, Odessa,

CAMPBELL, WHO won his third rushing title in his third pro season, amassed 1,934 yards, second only to O.J. Simpson's record 2,003. The other first team running back is Walter Payton of the Chicago Bears, who finished atop the NFC rushing list for the fifth successive season.

THE AMERICAN Conference, which once again dominated interconference play, placed 16 players on the first team to 9 for the National Conference. The NFC had 14 second-team selections to 11 from the AFC.

The Pittsburgh Steelers, the NFL's defending Super Bowl champions who failed for the first time in nine years to reach the playoffs, came in second to the Chargers in first-team All-Pro players with three — center Mike Webster, middle linebacker Jack Lambert and strong safety Donnie Shell.

Four teams — Oakland, Los Angeles, Cleveland and Houston — put two players apiece on the All-Pro first team.

The Raiders are outside linebacker Ted Hendricks and cornerback Lester Hayes; the Rams are free safety Nolan Cromwell and cornerback Pat Thomas, the Browns are Sipe and defensive end Lyle Alzado and the Oilers are running back Earl Campbell and tackle Leon Gray.

Bulldogs down Estacado for 16th cage victory

LUBBOCK — Horace Brown and Herb Johnson combined for 44 points here Tuesday night to spark the Midland High Bulldogs to their 16th basketball victory over the season with an 83-71 victory over the Class AAAA Lubbock Estacado Matadors.

Brown, a 6-foot-5 senior, dumped in 23 points and Johnson, 6-9 senior, added 21 more as Coach Jack Stephenson's Pack was bringing their season record to 16-3 with the victory. Also in the double figures was Michael Feldt, 6-2 senior, with 13 more points.

Midland and Estacado meet again Friday in the Chaparral Center in a rematch on the Midland College campus.

Midland had to come from behind in the second half after trailing the Hub

City team, 39-33 at halftime.

Estacado got a good scoring punch from Cade, Barnett and Guyton. Cade led all scorers with 26 points while Barnett and Guyton added 18 and 10, respectively.

In the junior varsity contest, Estacado took a 71-61 decision over the Midland Bullpups.

After playing Estacado in Midland again Friday, the Bulldogs open District 5-5A play in Odessa Tuesday against the Permian Panthers in the Permian Fieldhouse. Permian upset Midland, 83-82 last year in the playoff game for the 5-5A title in Big Spring.

MIDLAND (82) — Velasco 2, Bolger 2, Feldt 13, Brown 23, Johnson 21, Mackey 2, Miller 2, Parker 8, Robertson 2, Sharnowski 4, Totals: 26-27-42.
ESTACADO (71) — Barnett 18, Guyton 10, Boyd 6, Gray 2, Cade 26, McCarty 2, McKinney 2, Johnson 2, Hicks 2, Harris 2, Totals: 26-11-71.
Halftime score: Estacado 38, Midland 33.

50th annual Reagan County basketball tourney to open

BIG LAKE — The 50th annual Reagan County Invitational Basketball Tournament, one of the biggest and oldest tournaments in West Texas, gets underway Thursday and runs through Saturday in a prestigious 18 team field.

Reagan County head basketball coach Barry Voss says, "This is always a good tournament and this year will be no exception. We have many quality teams coming this year."

Defending champion Greenwood will be back to try and make it two titles in a row. Last season the Rangers toppled Reagan County, 52-49, in the finals while Marfa outlasted Crane in another thriller, 58-53, for third place. Consolation honors went to San Elizario with a 49-36 win over Fabens.

TOURNAMENT ACTION GETS underway Thursday at 10 p.m. when Crane and Wall meet at the junior high while Christoval and Ozona butt heads in the high school gym. At 11:30 Marfa and Iraan tangle in the junior high while San Saba and Alpine do battle at the high school.

The afternoon session finds Bronte and Canutillo playing at 2 p.m. in the high school followed by Kermit and Stanton at 3:30 on the same floor.

AN EVENING SESSION of basketball tips off in the high school with Greenwood and Denver City going at each other. At 7 p.m. the Owls of Reagan County are matched against Ballinger. To round out the first day of play, Coleman and Shallowater collide at 8:30 p.m.

On Friday the losers of first round play will meet at 9 a.m. (two games-one to be played in the junior high), 10:30 (in the junior high gym) and 12 (in the junior high).

For the winners, tipoff times will be 11:30 a.m., 2 p.m. (junior high gym), 5:30 p.m. and 7 p.m.

On Saturday, the first game gets started at 11:30 a.m. followed by the semi-final game at 1:30 p.m. The consolation championship game will tip off at 5 p.m. followed by the third place game at 6:30 and the championship game at 8 p.m.

If last season is any indication, fans at the tournament should get to see many good teams.

Many of the squads entered in the 1981 tournament had a very successful season a year ago. Last year Coleman was ranked No. 1 in Class 2A most of the season while Greenwood stayed near the top in Class B. Other teams in the tournament this year that were ranked at times last season are: Ballinger, Reagan County and Shallowater.

SMU, Houston take SWC basketball victories

By The Associated Press Southern Methodist University completed breaking a long jinx and Baylor, Rice and Houston came out victorious Tuesday night in Southwest Conference basketball action.

The Mustangs beat the University of Texas Longhorns, 53-51, on a desperation shot by Gordon Welch at the end of overtime. The victory in Austin marked the first time that the Mustangs had beaten Longhorn football and basketball teams in Austin in the same school year since 1966.

In other SWC roundball action, Baylor kept the Texas Aggies sliding with a 53-44 victory. Rice beat Texas Christian, 57-51, and Houston slipped past Texas Tech, 73-70.

Four baskets by Dave Pichler near the end of regulation time allowed the Mustangs to tie Texas, 49-49, and send the game into overtime.

Virdell Howland gave Texas a 51-49 lead in the overtime period, but Johnnie James scored for the Mustangs to tie the game again at 51-all. After Longhorn Ray Harper threw the ball out of bounds, SMU decided to go for one shot although about two minutes remained in overtime.

LaSalle Thompson blocked SMU's last shot attempt, but Welch came out of a crowd with the ball and banked it from 12 feet away as the horn sounded. It was his only basket in the game.

"I guess you could say that was the biggest field goal of my career," Welch said.

SMU coach Dave Bliss described the last-second shot by Welch as "Christmas Day at Macy's." He added, "Gordon just threw up a prayer and hit it."

Texas coach Abe Lemons had a simple explanation for the loss. "We just don't have a good team, what can you say."

"Tonight's performance was inexcusable, but we're going to have a lot more of them," Lemons added.

Terry Teagle scored 20 points as Baylor handed Texas A&M its fourth straight loss and second straight in SWC action, 53-44.

By virtue of the four-game losing streak, the Aggies have moved from the Top Twenty into the SWC cellar.

"This is the best I've seen Baylor play. They were tough," said Aggie coach Shelby Metcalf.

Baylor coach Jim Haller said, "I (See SMU, Page 2C)

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar becomes 4th leading scorer

AP Sports Writer

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar took his latest milestone in stride. Abdul-Jabbar became the National Basketball Association's fourth leading all-time scorer by hitting 22 points in the Los Angeles Lakers' 107-96 victory over the Washington Bullets Tuesday night. He passed ex-Laker Jerry West and, with 25,207 points, now trails only Wilt Chamberlain (31,419), Oscar Robertson (26,710) and John Havlicek (26,395) on the all-time list.

The second spot clearly is well within his grasp, but at the age of 33, can the Lakers' 7-foot-2 center catch Wilt and become No. 1?

"I don't have a big concern about passing Wilt," he said. "I'd like to go out and win the championship one more time. That's more important."

Was he excited about reaching the fourth rung on the scoring ladder?

"Not really," he said. "I'm more worried about what is happening this season than about my career."

What has been happening for the defending champion Lakers has not been very encouraging. Since guard Magic Johnson suffered a knee injury in November, the Lakers have posted only a mediocre 12-11 record and have fallen seven games behind the Phoenix Suns in the Pacific Division race.

In other NBA games Tuesday night, the Chicago Bulls beat the San Diego Clippers 108-93, the San Antonio Spurs defeated the New York Knicks 113-108, the Milwaukee Bucks topped the New Jersey Nets 102-86, the Phoenix Suns beat the Atlanta Hawks 113-106 and the Portland Trail Blazers trounced the Detroit Pistons 110-90.

Abdul-Jabbar passed West with a skyhook with 3:42 remaining in the first quarter as the Lakers took the lead early and held off every comeback bid by the Bullets.

Norm Nixon led the Lakers over Washington with 30 points, tying his career high, and 12 assists. Jamaal Wilkes added 23 points for Los Angeles and Jim Chones had 15 points and 10 rebounds.

Michael Cooper made his first start for the Lakers since Dec. 6. He had originally been given Johnson's starting spot, but then was replaced by rookie Butch Carter as Los Angeles Coach Paul Westhead searched for the right combination.

"I'm not so concerned with who starts the game as who is in at the finish," said Westhead. "I'm still trying to balance and even things out. We haven't solved the riddle about how to spread out the playing time with Magic out. Whatever it takes to get an even effort over 48 minutes, I'll try."

Bulls 108, Clippers 93
Chicago fell behind by 13 points in the first half but dominated play the rest of the way as Larry Kenon scored 31 points and Reggie Theus added 27. The Bulls have won 12 of their last 16 outings, while San Diego is on a five-game losing streak.

Despite the victory, which evened his club's record at 21-21, Bulls Coach Jerry Sloan called the effort "mediocre at best. While we got back to .500, we certainly did not look good doing it."

Spurs 113, Knicks 106
James Silas scored a season-high 33 points and San Antonio shot 61 percent to extend its winning streak to five games. The Spurs broke the game open with a 16-4 burst in the fourth quarter in which they held the Knicks to just one field goal in more than six minutes.

Bucks 102, Nets 86
Junior Bridgeman scored 16 of his 31 points in the third quarter to help

Milwaukee turn a 45-42 halftime deficit into a 79-64 lead going into the final period. Milwaukee has won five in a row while New Jersey has lost its last nine starts.

Suns 113, Hawks 106
Phoenix posted its ninth victory in the last 10 games as forward Len "Truck" Robinson scored 33 points. The Suns opened a 15-point lead in the first period and were never caught. Blazers 110, Pistons 90

Portland, led by guards Billy Ray Bates and Jim Paxson, outscored Detroit 25-8 in the first seven minutes of the final period and breezed past the Pistons. Paxson led all scorers with 21 points and Bates finished with 15.

Top players enter tennis tourney

CHICAGO (AP) — Eight players, including John McEnroe and Jimmy Connors, will be competing for a top prize of $125,000 this week in the Michelob Light $350,000 Challenge of Champions tennis tournament at the suburban Rosemont Horizon.

McEnroe is currently ranked the No. 2 player in the world with Connors No. 3. Other ranked players who will compete in the round-robin tournament are Harold Solomon, No. 6; Vitas Gerulaitis, No. 7; and Johan Kriek, No. 10.

Rounding out the field will be Roscoe Tanner, Elliot Telcher and Peter Fleming.

The first three days of the tournament will feature two matches in the afternoon and two at night. The semi-finals will begin at noon Saturday with the finals scheduled Sunday night.

The winner of the event will take down $125,000, with second place worth $75,000, third place $50,000 and fourth place $40,000. The players finishing fifth and sixth will earn $20,000 each with $10,000 going to the seventh- and eighth-place finishers.

In addition, a bonus prize of $10,000 will be awarded the player scoring the greatest number of "aces" during the course of the tournament.

Washington — President-elect Reagan will shortly appoint a high-level national commission to recommend reforms in the federal system, including the realignment of powers between the state and federal governments.

Reagan's transition aides say the president-elect will urge that the study include re-examination of federal, state and local roles aimed at stopping the "flow of power" from state capitols to the federal government.

The president-elect will suggest the commission consider a series of "trade-offs" that would give the federal government full responsibility in some areas while giving the states responsibility for others. And he will recommend that the panel suggest specific ways to restore to state and local governments the tax sources to finance the programs for which they will assume responsibility.

The panel will also be asked to recommend changes in such areas as federal grant reforms, fiscal note legislation that would require Congress to set price tags on projects it imposes on the states, and federal mandates imposed on states and localities.

"It will be a study aimed at a general sorting out of roles and responsibilities among the three levels of government," an aide explained.

During the presidential campaign, Reagan recommended that the states take over the full cost and responsibility for public welfare, environmental regulations and education.

He repeatedly hit hard at "seemingly irresistible" centralization of power in the hands of the federal government.

He warned that contemporary federalism is in serious disarray and that unless changes are made soon the nation of "sovereign states" will become one great national government, instead of the true federal system called for in the constitution.

The aides said Reagan "committed himself" in the meetings he has had during the transition with governors and legislative leaders to work with them to "recreate a balanced, vigorous federal system."

He reportedly conceded that the process will encounter many problems and require the adjustment and compromise of many competing interests.

In recent years there has been a rising public discontent with government at all levels. In study after study, various public and semi-public organizations have gone on record sharply criticizing public institutions and urging reforms of the federal system.

Last month, the National Conference of State Legislatures (NCSL) joined with the National Governors' Association (NGA) in seeking a greater role for the states in taking care of their own problems.

In August, the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, in a report ordered by Congress, concluded that Congress itself is chiefly to blame for the centralization of power in Washington.

It suggested that the federal government take over the full costs and responsibility for public welfare, including Medicaid, social services and food stamps. It recommended that it also assume responsibility for social insurance, including unemployment insurance and housing programs.

It urged that the states then take over the responsibility for education, libraries, fire protection, police and corrections, natural resources, hospitals and health services.

The NGA complained about the increasingly fragmented nature of the federal aid system, the growth in federal rules and red tape, the bypassing of state governments in traditional policy areas and the rising of federal tax burden.

The governors also agreed to work with the NCSL in rebuilding the federal system.

The NCSL complained that the principle of federalism is being eroded because much of the great expansion of the national government's activity in domestic affairs has seriously restricted the powers of the states.

The conference said that this erosion has occurred largely in the last five decades but has accelerated in the last 15 years.

"For example, 20 years ago the federal grant-in-aid system transferred slightly more than $7 billion annually, and there were fewer than 100 programs," the legislators said.

Today, they pointed out, grants-in-aid transfer about $88 billion in nearly 500 programs.

Although 30 years ago there were few federal regulations imposed on state and local governments, today there are 1,259 different federal mandates in effect.

"Twenty years ago 97 percent of federal aid went to the 50 state governments," they said. "Today the states are bypassed as about four-fifths of the 80,000 cities, counties, townships, villages, schools, housing authorities, and other units of government receive federal aid directly."

"The federal government's influence," the NCSL complained, "has become more pervasive, more intrusive."

Overnight, Brady loses obscurity

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Overnight, James Brady is going from public obscurity to one of the most visible jobs in government. He'll be Ronald Reagan's presidential press secretary.

Ironically, confirmation of the appointment expected to be made officially today came not from the new press secretary, but from his mother in Centralia, Ill.

"Jimmy called us Friday night to tell us he was to be named press secretary on Tuesday," Dorothy Brady said. "We're awfully excited, naturally."

Brady is best known to date for his press conference introductions of the Cabinet officers and other members of Reagan's incoming high command. He's had to wait an embarrassingly long time to be named to the elite circle himself.

He has been Reagan's transition press secretary, a job he got because campaign press secretary Franklyn Nofziger didn't want it. The Washington Star reported overtures had been made to more than a half-dozen journalists and former Washington press officers before Reagan turned to Brady.

At 40, Brady brings to his new job a mixture of government and public relations experience, credentials lacking in such recent press secretaries as Jody Powell, Ron Nessen and Ron Ziegler.

Brady was press secretary in the presidential primary campaign of Republican John Connally and joined the Reagan entourage after Connally dropped out of the 1980 race. He became deputy to Nofziger, who will become political director in the White House.

It was no secret that the round, witty Brady wanted the job. His dedication to the Reagan campaign was so complete that when he won an airline's free trip to anywhere in the world, he allowed the ticket to lapse because he lacked the time.

Brady will bring a lively sense of humor to his West Wing job. Once, when asked why the Reagan team was turning to so many officials from the Nixon and Ford administrations, he said, "We have looked at the Eisenhower administration, but they're either busy or not with us any more."

Another time, when Reagan spoke highly of James Watt during a trip to a meat locker, a reporter asked Brady if that conformed with Watt would be interior secretary. Brady, who can't resist a pun, said: "The president-elect did not confirm any Cabinet people at the meat locker. There was a lot at stake."

He learned his Republicanism at the dinner table. His mother was an active Republican campaign worker and his grandfather was a member of the Marion County Board of Supervisors until his death.

"My father always said he wouldn't vote for a Democrat even if the Republican candidate was a horse thief," Mrs. Brady said. Brady's father is a retired railroad worker.

In his youth, Brady was an Eagle scout, an altar boy, president of his high school French club, a summer camp counselor, an amateur astronomer and an expert in American Indian lore and dancing. He also was on the high school track team and — like fellow Illinoisian Reagan — was a summer lifeguard.

He graduated in 1962 from the University of Illinois — where he received the Taft Award for Young Republicans — with majors in journalism and political science. He spent two more years at the university's law school.

Brady's wife, Sarah, is a former director of administration for the Republican National Committee.

Brady worked in Chicago for seven years for an advertising and marketing firm, eventually becoming a partner. He served for a year on the staff of Senate Republican leader Everett Dirksen and was an honor intern in the Department of Justice's antitrust division in 1962.

He also was director of legislative and public affairs for the Illinois State Medical Society and moved to Washington in 1968 to be a communications consultant to the House of Representatives.

CAPITOL IDEAS

They're counting on recess

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With control of the Senate and more clout in the House, Republicans in the new Congress are making it clear they don't plan to put in too many hours. At least not right away.

Even before Congress convened Monday, it had a crowded agenda for 1981 — of recesses.

After meeting for a few days this week, Congress will recess until after President-elect Ronald Reagan's inauguration on Jan. 20.

Then, after barely a week's work, comes the year's first big recess: the Feb. 7-15 Lincoln's Birthday break.

After that, there's the Easter recess from April 11-20, a Memorial Day recess from May 23 to June 1 and a Fourth of July break from June 26 to July 6.

That will get Congress ready for its five-week summer recess between July 31 and Sept. 9.

The new Senate majority leader, Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., also has said he plans to restore normal 9-to-5 working hours in the Senate instead of some of the marathon and late-night sessions his predecessor, Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, seemed to favor.

Baker also has decided to end the majority leader's Saturday news conference, a tradition begun a decade ago by Democrat Mike Mansfield of Montana and expanded by Byrd into a major weekend production.

After all, Baker explains, who wants to work on Saturday if he doesn't have to?

Byrd, for one. The West Virginian has indicated he still may hold the Saturday sessions, despite his reduced leadership status.

Rep. John W. Wyder, R-N.Y., who did not seek re-election in 1980 after 18 years in the House, figured out he had sent 900 different newsletters to his constituents during his tenure.

How did he report that? In a newsletter — his last.

While many Republicans were still blaming President Carter and the 96th Congress for the nation's economic woes, Rep. William E. Dannemeyer, R-Calif., told constituents in a year-end newsletter he saw "silver linings" in the dark clouds.

"In fact, he wrote, 'Americans own more cars and more TV sets per 1,000 people than in any other nation on earth.'"

No taste?

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — When Roger Volterin was nabbed as a cat burglar, police say they got a taste of his pique.

Miami Beach officers said they caught the 24-year-old Parisian crawling out of a penthouse window during a cat-burglar spree at a luxury high-rise complex. He had an antique pocket-watch worth $7,000 and a watercolor by artist Marc Chagall that were taken from the apartment of a retired stockbroker, officials said.

"I asked him why he chose only that one when there were about 15 original paintings on the wall," said officer Pete Matthews.

"Typical American" Matthews quoted the Frenchman as replying during the Saturday morning arrest. "You wouldn't recognize a Chagall if you saw one." "He got very indignant," Matthews said.

Family doubles size to keep kids together

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Inez and Steve Hammonds doubled the size of their family after Mrs. Hammond wept over the plight of five brothers and a sister forced to live apart.

The Hammonds formally welcomed six children to their family in December, five months after Mrs. Hammond read a story in The Columbus Dispatch about the six children — aged 2 to 11 — who lived in four foster homes because their mother could not care for them.

"I put down the paper and picked it up again," she said. "Then I started crying and my husband asked me what was wrong. I showed him the paper, and we started talking about what we could do to keep them together."

"My husband and son, Steve Jr., said 'Why not try and bring them here?'" Mrs. Hammonds said.

The children had been under the supervision of Franklin County Children's Services for years. In six months, they will be legally adopted by the Hammonds — who already have five children of their own — two still living at home.

"It's quite a change," Mrs. Hammonds said. "Instead of making 12 pancakes for breakfast, now I make 40."

The Hammonds' natural children are Steve Jr., 14, and Lili, 11, who live at home, and Beulah Towns, 25, James 24, and Virgil, 22, who have homes of their own.

The newcomers to the family are Anthony, 11, Randy Lee, 10, Robbie, 7, Jeffrey, 6, Bruce, 4, and Melanie, 2.

Hammonds is a construction worker and Mrs. Hammonds drives a school bus. The family lives in an eight-room house and the children get along well, Mrs. Hammonds said.

The family receives a monthly allowance from the county to help care for the children.

MENTAL HEALTH UPDATE

Short-term therapy proves useful

By KENNETH H. WOLF, MSSW, SP

QUESTION: Is counseling normally a long-term process of several months or years? A family member of mine was told that she should expect to be in therapy for a year or two in order to expect any significant help.

ANSWER: Different kinds of mental health problems require differing lengths of therapy.

It can be said that a counseling program of several years is now the exception rather than the rule. Good results are being obtained from counseling which lasts from six to 12 sessions. In fact, there is often no difference in therapy outcomes between groups of persons who are seen for brief therapy versus groups of persons seen over the course of several months or years.

Traditionally, it used to be assumed that long-term treatment was always the treatment of choice. Persons were only seen on a short-term basis because there was not enough time or personnel to see them for the two to five years thought necessary for good treatment outcomes. With the coming of behavioral and other brief techniques, this viewpoint no longer prevails.

QUESTION: How does counseling help a person? Is it that he learns what is causing his problems or just what?

ANSWER: In most cases counseling helps a person by helping him to discover alternate ways of dealing with himself, with others, and with his problems. Not as much emphasis is placed on "causes" as used to be placed.

In the realm of human behavior, all behavior has multiple causes or determinants. Some may be more influential than others. Where a "cause" is thought to be in early childhood experiences, this "cause" can never be removed because it exists in the past. Good therapy outcomes are quite difficult to obtain when the "causes" of a person's problems are assumed to be in the past. The past is of course beyond everyone's control.

Counseling is most helpful when a person is able to alter his present behavior. He does not necessarily need to know what the cause of that behavior is in order to focus on what he might do differently.

Comments or questions from our readers are invited. Although the Update cannot give personal replies or give specific advice, we will use as many comments and questions as possible in our future columns. Please address them to: Mental Health Update, 3701 N. Big Spring St., Midland, Texas, 79701.

Kenneth H. Wolf, MSSW, SP, is MHMR Program Director for Midland County. He is a licensed psychotherapist and a certified health care provider in clinical social work. He has worked in the field of MHMR for eight years.

Man offers reward to save his mares from meat packers

PERRY, Okla. (AP) — Edward Bennett isn't waiting for law enforcement officials to trace his four registered brood mares stolen last week from a wheat pasture land near Calumet, he's offering to pay for their recovery.

Bennett is afraid his quarterhorses, which he values at $25,000, "may be sold to the killers" — meat packers — for about 50 cents a pound.

"I will give a sizable reward for the location of the mares and I'll also give a sizable reward to see the men in jail," Bennett said.

Some stolen animals are resold to other owners, but many are sold at livestock sales to agents for packing plants — three of which operate in Texas, officials said.

"A man in the business of cutting up horses for shipment to France is looking for good meat. Now, what's better meat than a grain-fed mare?" asked Jack Jungroth, vice president of the Oklahoma horse council.

Joe Ramer, one of 32 livestock theft detectives for the Oklahoma Cattlemen's Association, said about one in 10 owners brands his horse, a move he termed a real deterrent against theft.

Bennett said he's contacted packing houses in Texas and Nebraska, hoping if his mares are brought in, someone will call him, but he'd like someone to respond to his ads first.

"I'll spend some money to prove these are mine," he said. "I've got colts I can blood test."

Since only pregnant horses were taken from his rented pasture, Bennett believes the thieves plan to let the mares live and sell the colts.

With the high demand for horseflesh, Jungroth said he doubts anything can be done to break the stampee of horse thefts unless some laws are amended.

"Sooner or later, something's got to happen. When I got here 13 years ago, I thought we needed stronger laws and was told, 'In Oklahoma, we don't need it.' But if you've got a horse on your trailer, legally it's yours."

States such as New Mexico require permits to haul animals, but there is no such requirement in Oklahoma, horsemen said.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TO-DAY! The late superstar Elvis Presley would have been forty-six today, and many of his fans are expected to gather at his Memphis home to honor his memory. The road to success is not always easy for those born on this date, but it will prove exciting, rewarding. 1981 may be the best year you have had in some time where romance, business are concerned! Extra effort will pay off big in your personal life. Frequent trips away from home could keep you on the run, causing loved one to complain of neglect. Be patient when explaining the need for a temporary sacrifice.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You should be feeling more optimistic about the future today. Mate, partner shows greater inclination to go along with your ideas. Be sure you have all the available information before making an important decision.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): The future is looking rosier where career, finances are concerned. Conditions are right for your branching out in new directions. Be prompt in replying to letters of a personal nature.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You ought to be able to earn some extra cash now. Bring bills, correspondence up to date. Co-workers share your desire to get back on schedule. Social gatherings should be pleasant, productive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): This can be a very happy day for romance! Resist the temptation to point out the shortcomings of others. Now is the time to concentrate on personal projects, domestic arrangements.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): "All talk and no action" may be the formula that saves a friendship. Adopt a wait-and-see attitude in business, financial discussions. Friend's intervention or interference could cause monetary loss.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Self-control is essential if you are to emerge unscathed from an emotional confrontation. Someone with a daring outlook can help you to resolve a troubling business or personal problem. Be open to suggestions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): New acquaintance may come up with solution to business problem. Long-range career plans look more promising than in recent past. You help your cause by making an appearance at a social function tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov

21): A fine day for advancing personal aims. Try to secure the loan you need to launch new project. Romance promises greater happiness if you are prepared to make some new concessions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Short trips can pay off in new business leads. Personal effort makes a big difference now. You could find a true meeting of the minds if you discuss mutual interests with higher-ups.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Special ties may determine what you do today. It will not be easy to arrive at joint financial decisions. Legal papers deserve your immediate attention. You seek a success-oriented romantic partner.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Display your special talents and important people will pay attention. They may even discover gifts you did not know you possessed. Social activities accelerate the pace of romance. Love, marriage dominate your thoughts.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Share your new ideas with someone you trust. Artistic individuals should receive special encouragement today. Speculative ventures are recommended so long as they involve only small sums of money.

Some losers, like death, are inevitable. However, controlling when you are going to lose a trick can make an important difference to your contract. Consider this hand from a Swiss Team match at the recent Fall North American Championships, held in Lancaster, Pa.

The bidding followed a similar course at the two tables. West's jump overall was of the weak variety that has become virtually standard, and North's hand was not good enough to act immediately. Since North had not yet bid, South's reopening double was for takeout, not penalties. North judged well when he valued his hand as worth a shot at game.

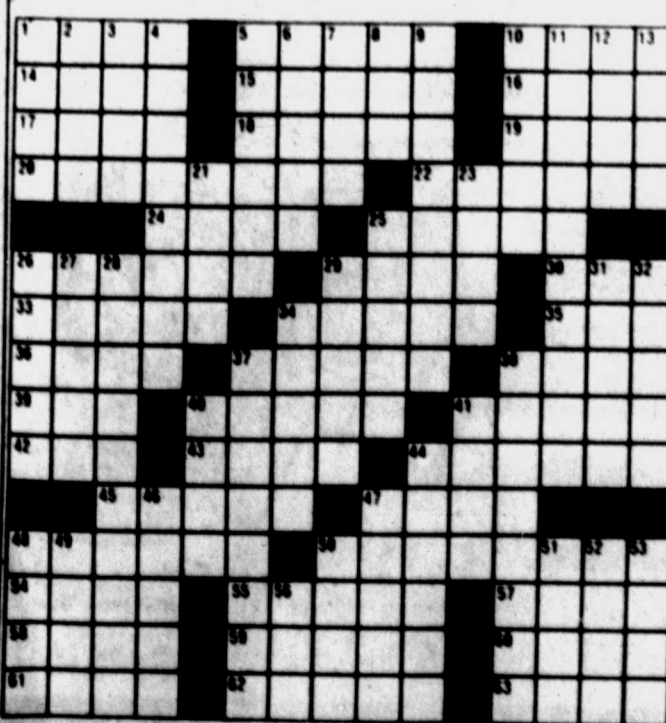

The ten of diamonds was led at both tables, and the early play was identical. Both declarers won the queen of diamonds in dummy and both made the percentage play of a low trump to the eight. Then they parted ways.

At one table declarer continued by crossing back to dummy with the ace of diamonds to lead a second

Murder suspect jailed

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — Police Detective Ray Tate dropped from sight when he went to investigate the disappearance of a 23-year-old machinist. A day later, a farmer stumbled on a patch of blood-soaked soil and found Tate's body and two others stuffed in a huge tractor tire, authorities say.

The man Tate was seeking still is missing, officials said after the bodies were found Tuesday.

Police have arrested a suspect in the case, 37-year-old Thomas W. Simmons of rural Van Buren, who had been jailed in the 1970s for kidnapping, theft and assault. Simmons, held on four complaints of kidnapping and one of capital murder — which applies in case of more than one death or the death of a policeman — was arrested Tuesday at his job as a laborer.

The arrest came a short time after Simmons went to a branch bank and deposited a check written on the account of the missing man, Larry Price, according to Wayne Hicks, assistant Van Buren police chief.

Simmons was traced after a bank bookkeeper, Hicks' wife, Wanda, noted his license number when he went to the main bank to try to get the check back, officials said.

Besides Tate, 34, the victims were identified as Price's wife, Jawana, 21, of Fort Smith, and Holly Gentry, 28, of Alma. All three had been shot in the head, police said. Tate was bound with his own handcuffs and Gentry with a small white cord, officials said.

Police initially believed that four bodies had been found, but they later said the search for Price, 22, a Fort Smith machinist, was continuing.

The bodies, found on an Arkansas River bottom farm near Van Buren, were sent to the medical examiner's office in Little Rock.

Farmer Clyde McClure found the bodies while working on some farm equipment. When he first noticed blood on the ground, he thought dogs had killed a small animal.

"I was coming back and I saw bare flesh and I had a pretty good idea what it was," he said.

The tire, one of two near irrigation pipes and a fuel drum stacked at the end of a small dirt road, was piled with several 5-gallon fuel tins that apparently were meant to conceal the bodies, authorities said.

Mrs. Price had reported her husband missing on Monday, said Mike Henson, Price's foreman at Baldor Electric. Price had missed a lunch date with her, she told Henson by telephone, and failed to show up for his 2:30 p.m. work shift.

Henson said Mrs. Price told him a man had gone to the couple's apartment Monday to see a car that Price was selling for Gentry, and was still there when she left for work. Gentry was an owner of the shopping center where Mrs. Price worked.

Police Chief Henry Oliver said Mrs. Price asked Gentry to help find Price, and when he was unable to do so they went to the police.

Tate headed in an unmarked police car to the Prices' apartment Monday afternoon, followed by Mrs. Price and Gentry in a pickup truck, after the missing persons report was filed. He last radioed in shortly after 6 p.m., police said.

The pickup truck and Tate's car were found in the apartment's parking lot and Tate's car was found at a Van Buren truck stop.

Tate, the father of two school-age children, joined the Fort Smith police force in July 1976 and had been a detective for two years. He and his wife were high school sweethearts.

"It's such a tragedy, a senseless killing," police Maj. Bill Young said.

Price and his wife, who was voted the friendliest person in her high school senior class and was studying to be a registered nurse, "were a perfect pair," said family friend Bryan Brown.

Simmons had been sentenced in 1971 to 45 years in jail after pleading guilty to kidnapping a 17-year-old youth, officials said.

He also served time in the Leavenworth, Kan., federal prison for his conviction on assaulting a federal officer and theft of government property when he took a .38-caliber pistol from an FBI agent three days after that abduction, officials said.

Blackwell releases worst-dressed list

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mr. Blackwell, the fashion designer, says he's outraged that actress Brooke Shields has become a sex symbol at 15 and has named her the worst-dressed woman of 1980 for trying to dress too much like an adult.

Miss Shields looks like "a Halloween trick without the treat," Mr. Blackwell said.

"She's awfully young to be putting herself up as a sex image and I think her mother should be totally condemned for this," Blackwell said of Miss Shields, who has starred in such sexually oriented movies as "Pretty Baby," and "Blue Lagoon." There also has been criticism of her ads for Calvin Klein jeans as being too sexual.

Her wardrobe is too adult, said Blackwell.

"It is outrageous that we don't allow youth to be young," he said. "They should be allowed to stay young as long as they can."

The acerbic designer presented his 21st annual list of the worst-dressed women Tuesday. He said all 10 of his selections seemed to "care less" about how they look.

Actress Elizabeth Taylor came in second.

"She should brush her hair and get rid of that baby-blue eyeshadow

China flying to U.S.

PEKING (AP) — A Chinese jumbo jet with 140 passengers took off Wednesday from Peking International Airport on the first commercial flight from mainland China to the United States since the communist takeover 31 years ago.

The Boeing 747 flew to Shanghai to pick up more passengers before heading across the Pacific on a 13-hour flight to San Francisco. It was to go on to New York, launching a weekly service which the Chinese government hopes to increase to twice a week after April 1.

Banker dies

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Giordano Dell'Amore, a banker and former foreign trade minister, died in a local clinic at the age of 79, his family said today.

Dell'Amore was the chairman of Cariplo, one of the largest Italian banks, for 25 years until 1977 when he resigned.

He served as foreign trade minister in the Cabinet of Christian Democrat Amintore Fanfani in the 50s.

UH appeals 'Death' ruling

HOUSTON (AP) — The University of Houston is appealing a federal court order that the controversial film "Death of a Princess" be shown on the university's public education television station, officials say.

Pat Bailey, the university's attorney, said Tuesday the notice of appeal was filed with the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Austin.

The film, about a Saudi Arabian princess executed in 1977 for adultery, was cancelled shortly before its scheduled May showing on KUHT-TV.

Gertrude Barnstone, a former Houston school board trustee, filed suit against the university, contending the public had the right to see the film. Her suit was upheld by U.S. District Judge Gabrielle K. McDonald on Dec. 18, 1979.

The judge's order was set aside by the appeals court a few days later, and although most of the nation watched the program on the Public Broadcasting stations, the Houston area was blacked-out.

The decision to cancel the show was made by Patrick J. Nicholson, then a university vice president. He said the program lacked balance and cited U.S. national interests and "strong and understandable objections" by the Saudis.

Nicholson since has resigned his university position.

The case was sent back to Ms. McDonald and she once again ordered that the film be televised.

In a prepared statement released late Tuesday, Leonard Rauch, chairman of the UH board of regents, called the judge's order "an unprecedented intrusion into the editorial discretion of public broad-

12-year-old victim of Miami rioting wants no pity

By MIKE McQUEEN
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — Nine months ago, Shanreka Perry was a hard-charging forward on the Holmes Elementary School basketball team and enjoyed an occasional neighborhood game of softball.

Today the rail-thin 12-year-old walks with crutches. She has no left leg or hip, scars left by the city's bloody racial explosion last May — on an evening that began with a neighborhood game of softball.

Shanreka's leg was amputated at Jackson Memorial Hospital after a car, careening out of control with a shattered windshield, crashed into her the night of May 17 in the first outbreak of violence of what became three days of rioting.

After six months in the hospital, the shy, soft-spoken youngster is back in her Liberty City home. The accident stole her mobility, but she says it hasn't broken her spirit.

"I feel the same," Shanreka said as she stood up from a couch and smiled broadly while her sister snapped a picture with an Instamatic camera, a Christmas gift. "I don't feel sorry about it at all. I don't like for people to feel sorry for me."

Shanreka has received a lot of attention and sympathy since she was injured. Her sixth-grade class started the Shanreka Perry Trust Fund to help pay her medical bills, and an Elks Lodge in Liberty City has set up a separate trust fund to be turned over to her when she is 18.

"It (the loss of her leg) is not going to stop me from doing what I want to do," Shanreka said. "I care about it and I wish I still had it, but you think I'm going to let that get me down?"

"Shanreka does everything for herself," said her mother, Patricia Small. "She puts on her clothes, makes her bed — everything."

Miss Small isn't as forgiving as Shanreka, one of four children who live in a small, four-bedroom apartment in African Square, a snappy-looking housing project only three blocks from an old restaurant leveled by fire during the riots.

"I appreciate all what has been done for her," the 29-year-old divorcee said. "But it'll never be enough. It's not going to get her leg back."

Shanreka was playing softball in front of her home that Saturday evening just as word reached the neighborhood of the acquittal in Tampa of four former Dade County police officers, all white, on charges stemming from the beating death of black businessman Arthur McDuffie.

As enraged blacks were taking to the streets in protest, a carload of whites — Michael Kulp, 18, his brother, Jeffrey, 22, and Debra Gettman, 23 — unknowingly drove into the developing riot on their way home from a day at the beach.

Their 1969 Dodge was surrounded and pelted by rocks and bottles. The windshield was smashed and the car spun out of control, hitting Shanreka and a pedestrian, 75-year-old Albert Nelson.

The mob dragged the occupants out of the car and beat the Kulp brothers severely. Jeffrey was also stabbed and shot and his right ear and part of his tongue were cut off. He died in Jackson Memorial 26 days later. Miss Gettman escaped with minor injuries after being rescued by a black taxi driver.

Last fall, James McCullough, 20, was convicted of manslaughter in Kulp's death. One man was acquitted, and charges against two other young blacks were dropped for lack of evidence.

The Kulp's car had pinned Shanreka against a wall. Her left leg dangled from her body, her eyes were dilated and she was almost unconscious. "I was in a shock," Shanreka recalled. "I don't remember what happened."

Already overburdened with riot victims, doctors and nurses at Jackson worked furiously. They pumped 10 units of blood into her body. At 10 that night, Shanreka lapsed into unconsciousness and didn't wake up until 12 hours later. She was to spend the next six months in the hospital.

It was a mild surprise, and an early Christmas present for Miss Small, when the girl was released from Jackson the day before Thanksgiving, a month before doctors had anticipated she would be healthy enough to return home.

Doctors say they plan to replace her lost limb with an artificial leg. "They haven't sent me a bill yet, but I'm not going to worry about it," Miss Small said. "I can't worry about that."

Shanreka, too, said she isn't worried about her misfortune. On Christmas Day, she told everyone she wanted a normal holiday free of depressing talk about her injuries. She clowning with her brothers and sisters and experimented with an electronic tic-tac-toe game.

She said she's glad her family moved from an upstairs apartment to a downstairs unit. "It's easier to get around," Shanreka said. "It's bigger and it doesn't have an upstairs. I like it."

In September, Shanreka will return to school, probably Miami Edison Middle School because it has an escalator, she said.

"Yeah. Things are back to normal," Miss Small said. "The only thing missing is her leg."

NEWSPAPER BIBLE

Jesus, plus nobody else

JESUS went on to say to His disciples, "Some of you who are standing here right now will live to see the Kingdom of God arrive in great power!"

Six days later Jesus took Peter, James and John to the top of a mountain. No one else was there. Suddenly His face began to shine with glory.

And His clothing became dazzling white, far more glorious than any earthly process could ever make it!

Then Elijah and Moses appeared and began talking with Jesus!

"Teacher, this is wonderful!" Peter exclaimed. "We will make three shelters here, one for each of you."

He said this just to be talking, for he didn't know what else to say and they were all terribly frightened.

But while he was still speaking these words, a cloud covered them, blotting out the sun, and a voice from the cloud said, "This is My beloved Son. Listen to Him!"

Then suddenly they looked around and Moses and Elijah were gone, and only Jesus was with them.

As they descended the mountainside He told them never to mention what they had seen until after He had risen from the dead.

So they kept it to themselves, but often talked about it, and wondered what He meant by "rising from the dead."

Now they began asking Him about something the Jewish religious leaders often spoke of, that Elijah must return [before the Messiah could come].

Jesus agreed that Elijah must come first and prepare the way—and that he had, in fact, already come! And that he had been terribly mistreated, just as the prophets had predicted. Then Jesus asked them what the prophets could have been talking about when they predicted that the Messiah would suffer and be treated with utter contempt.

Man injured in freak mishap

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man police told to walk home on the grounds that he was too intoxicated to drive was injured in a freak accident when he was hit by a riderless motorcycle, police said.

Michael Bryan, 24, of Northridge, was riding in a car with a friend in the Van Nuys area Friday when police stopped them and cited the driver for drunken driving, said police Sgt. Norman Ross.

The driver, who was not identified, was taken away in a squad car, but officers let Bryan go. However, they told him he was too drunk to drive and would have to walk home. Ross said Bryan was taking his belongings out of the car when he was struck by the motorcycle, whose driver had been thrown off moments before in an unrelated accident.

Ross said motorcyclist Rick Harris, 20, of Van Nuys, hit a barricade at the end of the street and was thrown from his motorcycle. The riderless motorcycle went on to hit Bryan.

A second motorcyclist, Douglas Baxter, 19, of Lancaster, also hit the barricade, Ross said.

Harris was hospitalized in serious condition. Baxter was treated at a hospital for injuries and booked for investigation of driving under the influence of alcohol. Bryan was treated for minor injuries at a hospital and released.
