At least 13 killed in rest home blaze

KEANSBURG, N.J. (AP) — Fire roared through a two-story brick boarding home in this central New Jersey community before dawn today, and Middletown Fire Chief Richard O'Shaughnessy said at least 13 people were killed.

More than 1½ hours after firefighters entered the smoking building there was no word on 18 other residents or an undetermined number of employees unaccounted for at the facility in this central New Jersey community.

At least 14 residents of the Beachview Rest Home, on Raritan Bay about 30 miles south of Newark, were injured in the blaze, authorities said.

Boarding home owner Frances Cappadona said the building didn't have sprinklers, which were not required under state law, but it did have smoke detectors.

Nick Naumetz, 67, who fled from the top floor, said the fire flashed through the home.

"It was unbelievable ... the smoke," Naumetz said. "The sirens went off. I looked at my watch and it was 4 a.m. Smoke built up rapidly, in no time at all ... all of a sudden."

The heat of the smoldering building was so intense that firefighters were unable to enter in a search for victims until nearly six hours after the fire broke out.

"When we got there, flames were coming out of the entire front of the building," said Lt. Albert Scott, who received hospital treatment for smoke inhalation and a broken ankle in the fire. "It's pretty well a mess."

Survivors, some naked, others in pajamas, were huddled in front of the building in sub-freezing temperatures when authorities first arrived. Most were evacuated from a one-story, wood-frame extension at the rear of the main brick structure, a former hotel, Scott said.

Six residents initially thought to be unaccounted for were found safe elsewhere.

The evacuation was orderly, with "no screaming or nothing," Naumetz said.

One man apparently leaped from a second-floor window and was found dead in front of the building clutching the window screen, said First Aid Squad Capt. Frank Folz.

Another man was found dead behind the building, he said. Both victims were badly burned.

Some evacuees, their faces blackened by soot, huddled under blankets in a Keansburg Fire House, and about a dozen others found shelter across the street from the boarding home in the home of Keansburg Police Sgt. Kevin Robinson. Still others were taken to the Newport Fire Company in Keansburg.

Reagan administration may not cut taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — As President-elect Ronald Reagan's inauguration draws closer, his Cabinet nominees are hinting that the new administration may have to back away from a quick tax cut and other campaign promises on the economy.

Rep. David A. Stockman, R-Mich., Reagan's choice for budget director, said Thursday that a tax cut the president-elect has said he wants retroactive to Jan. 1 may be postponed until later this year.

"Whether you make the first (tax cut) installment effective Jan. 1 or June 1 or any other date, I don't think is very important," Stockman told a Senate Governmental Affairs hearing on his nomination. "The real importance is that there be a permanent reduction" in tax rates over the next three or four years.

However, Stockman said he is committed to reducing taxes as soon as the administration and Congress can work it out. In his campaign, Reagan said he wants to reduce personal income taxes 30 percent over the next three years, with the first cuts made retroactive to Jan. 1.

"If we fail to cut taxes, then we have no hope, no real chance, over the next three or four years of bringing the budget into balance," Stockman said.

Stockman's comments marked the second time this week a Cabinet designee hinted that Reagan may be reconsidering a campaign promise.

Treasury Secretary-designate Donald T. Regan said Tuesday that under current economic forecasts, Reagan may find it impossible to balance the federal budget until 1984 at the earliest, at least one year later than Reagan had promised during the campaign.

Aides to Reagan's economic advisers said Thursday that some advisers now believe the effective date of a tax cut should be postponed until later this year because of a growing federal budget deficit now estimated at $60 billion — twice as large as projected just two months ago.

But, the aides emphasized, Reagan still has not made a decision.

During more than five hours of questioning before the panel, Stockman also was asked whether he would support supplemental money for the federal food stamp program, which may need an additional $1.1 billion to $1.3 billion this year, according to Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo.

Stockman did not endorse the supplemental money, but said savings could be achieved by restructuring the program to eliminate what he called the "marginally eligibles" now receiving benefits.

He noted that every so-called entitlement program such as food stamps "has taken on another set of clients (over the years) that do not fit the circumstances for which the entitlement was designed — college students, for instance, in the case of food stamps."

Meanwhile, Eagleton and Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, expressed concern that the economic remedies being considered by the incoming Reagan administration will not have an immediate effect.

"Even if they are the most Herculean remedies in the world," Eagleton said, they may not have an impact for years.

"During that time frame you're going to see some corporations, significant corporations, go down the tube," Eagleton added.

Stockman replied: "The solution isn't necessarily four or five years down the road." If inflation expectations are lowered and bond and stock markets are revived "the financing needed to reliquify these corporations you're talking about would be there within a matter of months or quarters."

The 34-year-old conservative congressman often was at odds over policy matters with Democratic senators, but no one questioned his qualifications for the job and he is expected to easily win confirmation as director of the White House Office of Management and Budget from the full Senate.

On other topics, Stockman: —Said he is against President Carter's proposed 22 percent pay raise for Congress, Cabinet members and other federal officials. Reagan reportedly has endorsed the pay hike, but Stockman said approving it before the incoming administration reduces federal spending and turns the economy around would be "a very bad signal to the American people."

—Opposed imposing a wage-price freeze to control inflation. He said such a move would be "a catastrophe."

State ruling may allow Permian to fly again

AUSTIN — Permian Airways may be coming back to life this year with the decision Thursday by the Texas Aeronautics Commission to give the Midland-based commuter airlines a six-month suspension.

The six months is a change from the indefinite suspension status the commission had given Permian Airways in late 1980 after the airline closed down its operation without giving proper notice.

If Permian gets going again after six months, however, it may have to contend with Eagle Commuter Airlines, which was approved by the TAC to fly two round trips daily between Midland Regional Airport and San Antonio.

That service won't begin until the airline can purchase another nine-passenger Piper Navajo Chieftain, according to a TAC spokesman. Eagle now flies between San Angelo and San Antonio.

Permian Airways informed the TAC it is planning to use 100-seat DC-9s, instead of the nine-passenger planes it was flying.

This, said Harry Rodgers, would be a "unique situation." Rodgers, who is with the commission's carrier regulation division, explained the indefinite suspension status was too inflexible and tended to discourage any revival plans. The airline's new owners are trying to revive the carrier sometime later this year, and the commission didn't want to interfere with those plans.

The six-month suspension applies to Permian's service at Midland, San Angelo, Amarillo and San Antonio. At one time, Permian had plans to serve Big Spring, El Paso, Wichita Falls and Abilene but those points were dropped.

If it is revived, Permian's owners told the TAC they hope for a bigger and better commuter airline service connecting the Dallas-Fort Worth regional airport with several West Texas cities.

Rodgers explained the idea would be to create a "spoke and hub" arrangement between the West Texas points and Dallas-Fort Worth. He added the commission will do all it can to revive the route because "those people out in West Texas have been without service too long."

Officials fight blowout at Iran gas well

IRAAN — Law enforcement officers expect a poisonous gas well blowout 1½ miles southwest of here to be brought under control later this morning.

"We expect to have it shut off by noon," a spokesman for the Department of Public Safety said this morning. "There have been no injuries or damage reported."

The well, operated by the Marathon Oil Co. in the Yates Field, started spewing poisonous hydrogen sulfide gas early Wednesday morning, and two families living three-quarters of a mile west of the well were moved to an Iran motel as a "precautionary measure."

"The area was not evacuated, however," said the DPS spokesman.

The gas was escaping from a broken pipe connection at a rate of 5 million cubic feet a day, with reported concentrations of 38,000 parts per million. Levels of 20 parts per million are considered lethal.

Marathon employees set up barricades around the area and were monitoring the site in gas masks. Officials said favorable winds kept the gas away from heavily populated areas. Personnel from the Texas Railroad Commission and the Texas Air Quality Control Board were also on the scene this morning.

The pole lost but ended up on top Thursday after a 62-year-old Midland man lost control of his car on Big Spring Street, just north of Kansas Avenue. Police said the man was northbound about 4:45 p.m. when he lost control and sheared the pole off just above the base. The driver was arrested for driving while intoxicated. Christopher extends Algiers stay ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — American hostage negotiator Warren Christopher held more meetings today with Algerian officials, trying to figure out how to convince the Algerians that President Carter cannot release billions in Iranian assets blocked by court action.

Obviously the Algerians are counseling us, providing us the benefits of their advice and insights because they have been in this business a month and a half now," he said in Washington.

Christopher arrived in Algiers early Thursday. It was his third visit since the Algerians agreed to act as intermediaries in the negotiations to free the hostages, who were seized in Tehran on Nov. 4, 1979 and today were spending their 433rd day in captivity.

Officials in Washington said Christopher would continue his talks in the Algerian capital at least until Saturday. U.S. officials in Washington said the Algerians, the go-betweens in the hostage negotiations, were urging the Americans to come up with a clearer explanation of the legal obstacles to the return of some $5.5 billion of the Iranian assets frozen by Carter.

They said the U.S. reply to the questions the Algerians raised Tuesday would be held up until Christopher and the Algerians complete their talks. The effect on the negotiations was not yet clear, but State Department spokesman John Trattner indicated the end result might be helpful.

Haig hearing centers on Watergate, military past

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State-designate Alexander M. Haig Jr. is on the firing line against Senate Democrats concerned about his Watergate and Nixon administration past as well as the career soldier's future in a diplomatic role.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee's interrogation of Haig today was the headliner among confirmation hearings for Ronald Reagan's Cabinet.

But the Democrats predicted that unless their questioning unearths clear misconduct by Haig himself, the Senate will easily confirm the 56-year-old retired four-star general.

Sen. Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island, the ranking minority member on the Republican-controlled committee, said Democrats don't want "a rehash of Watergate or a witch hunt."

To underscore that, the Democrats decided Thursday to ask Haig first about his views on military, as opposed to diplomatic, solutions to international crises.

Pell said the Democrats would question Haig later about his role in former President Richard M. Nixon's Watergate defense, Nixon's pardon, wiretapping of Nixon aides and reporters, and Cambodian bombing.

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee said he understood Haig would address the Democrats' major questions head-on in his opening statement.

Haig was Nixon's chief of staff for the 16 months before Nixon resigned.

President Gerald Ford then named Haig supreme commander of NATO, a job he held for five years until entering private business in 1979.

The Democrats planned to explore several specific areas from that part of Haig's past:

—Watergate. Particularly the much-publicized June 4, 1973, tape that has Haig advising either Nixon or former chief of staff Bob Haldeman that they could answer questions about John Dean's "cancer of the presidency" talk by saying "you just can't recall."

—Nixon's pardon. On Aug. 1, 1974,

Haig told then-Vice President Gerald R. Ford a pardon was one option to be considered if Nixon had to leave office. But both Ford and Haig have denied Haig ever proposed a deal in which a pardon would be guaranteed in exchange for Nixon's resignation.

Haig's supporters say he is the man who convinced Nixon to resign and that Haig's handling of Watergate showed his diplomatic skill.

—Wiretapping. Haig, as deputy to National Security Adviser Henry A. Kissinger, gave the FBI the first names for wiretapping 17 Nixon aides and reporters in an effort to find a news leaks on Cambodian bombing. Haig has said he was only carrying out instructions from Nixon and Kissinger.

—Cambodian bombing. Haig knew from the start about bombing campaigns in Cambodia in 1969 and the Democrats want to know whether he was involved in keeping them secret from Congress.

—Vietnam. Haig reportedly advocated the 1972 Hanoi bombing that Nixon said forced North Vietnam to resume peace negotiations in Paris.

—Chile. U.S. intelligence reported to Haig, as Kissinger's deputy, on covert operations to undermine Salvador Allende, Chile's late Marxist president.

Baker said he believes confirmation hearings can be completed next week so the Senate can confirm Haig and other Cabinet members as soon as Reagan is inaugurated Jan. 20.

But Alan Cranston of California, the assistant Senate Democratic leader, raised the possibility Thursday of delaying — even filibustering — Haig's confirmation if Democrats become convinced Republicans are not allowing a thorough examination.

Entire state of Utah hit by power failure

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Engineers worked today to find the cause of a vast power failure that hit 1 1/2 million residents of Utah, Idaho and Wyoming and left people dangling from ski lifts, awaiting rescue in elevators and maneuvering in traffic snarled by blacked-out signals.

It was one of the most widespread outages in U.S. history. The entire state of Utah lost electricity from lunchtime to supper time Thursday. Some 27,000 people in five Wyoming counties also lost power for up to 45 minutes, and a few communities in southeastern Idaho also were affected.

Lights flickered in eastern Nevada, but stayed on.

By early today, 99 percent of Utah Power & Light's customers had full power.

Officials at the utility said they didn't know what triggered the seven-hour outage, although they speculated a break in a 230,000-volt power line may have contributed to the problem.

At 11:38 a.m. MST, elevators throughout Utah halted between floors, traffic lights darkened, radio stations went silent and television signals were knocked off the air. "This is ridiculous," snapped a girl who had just lost a quarter in an electronic game machine.

Skiers dangled over mid-slope from Snowbird Mountain's Gad II lift for an hour before a backup power system got them moving.

An open heart operation — in progress at the University of Utah Medical Center when the electricity failed — continuing with light from spare generators. But all other operations were canceled for the day.

A graduate student at Brigham Young University in Provo fractured both knees when he fell four floors as he tried to escape from a stuck elevator. Simon Tang, 22, was hospitalized in critical but stable condition.

When their dormitory elevator stopped between the third and fourth floors, Tang and two other students pried the door open. His companions backed out and lowered themselves to the third-floor landing, but Tang jumped forward and missed the landing.

The power failure, which occurred just as lunchtime crowds began filling Salt Lake City streets, triggered numerous minor traffic accidents. But Mayor Ted Wilson said motorists adjusted quickly.

The downtown ZCMI Mall shut down when the electricity did, but mall officials wouldn't let ousted shoppers into the parking areas because they said it was too dark for them to find their cars.

Although banks were blacked out and electronic cash registers in stores were frozen, no increase in crime was reported, according to Salt Lake City Police Chief Bud Willoughby.

Texan among victims of fog-related mishap

FREMONT, Ohio (AP) — Heavy fog from the Sandusky River cut visibility to near zero and caused the death of three motorists, including a Texan, on an Ohio Turnpike bridge near this northern Ohio city late Thursday night, according to the Castalia post of the Ohio Highway Patrol.

The series of fatalities began with a rear-end truck accident when the driver of the front truck was thrown through his window and over a guardrail 60 feet to a frozen river below, the patrol said.

A second driver was killed when he stopped his car to investigate, jumped what he thought was a median strip and fell to the frozen river, the patrol said.

Another rear-end truck mishap five minutes later in the westbound lane of the turnpike seriously injured a truck driver and caused the death of another man from the front truck.

front truck came back to help the driver of the second vehicle and mistook the guardrail for a median strip. He, too, was killed from a fall to the river, the patrol said.

The dead were identified as Earl T. Gregory, 38, of Uniontown, Ohio, Roy D. Rogers 29, of Mexia, Tex., and Richard J. Hill, 37, of Seaford, Del.

Richard Reyerson, 31, of Plymouth, Ohio, was transferred by helicopter to St. Vincent's Hospital in Toledo, according to Connie Mumford spokeswoman for Fremont Memorial Hospital. He is listed in serious condition.

Five other persons were injured in the accidents. One is listed in fair condition in Fremont Memorial Hospital, and four persons were treated and released.

Another rear-end truck mishap five minutes later in the westbound lane of the turnpike seriously injured a truck driver and caused the death of another man from the front truck.

Pot bomb drops through man's roof

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Robert Banta was tossing in bed, fighting a cold and the flu, when something hit his mobile home with "a hell of a jolt." When he went to investigate, Banta found the remains of a 100-pound bale of marijuana in his living room and a gaping hole in his roof.

Authorities said the marijuana was dumped out of an airplane as a pilot made a frantic escape attempt across South Florida skies in an effort to elude U.S. Customs agents.

The plane "was built in the early 1940s," said Broward County Sheriff's Deputy Jerry Sampson. "It was held together with baling wire and duct tape."

No one was injured by the barrage, but Banta's mobile home, which was hit about 3:30 a.m. Thursday, was left with a jagged, two-foot-wide hole in the roof. Another bale struck an empty parked van without doing serious damage and a third crashed through the roof of an unfinished home.

In all, police recovered 12 bales scattered from Pembroke Pines to Port Everglades, which are 15 miles apart.

"We got marijuana bombed," said Banta. "I think this whole thing is pretty stupid. It's tough enough living near an airport, anyway."

Banta said when he heard the noise he thought there had been an explosion.

"It sounded like the hot water heater blew out. We came running out of our bedroom to see what happened and the place was eight inches deep in brown weeds," said the South Florida State Hospital security guard, who lives in the suburban community of Pembroke Pines.

Customs agents had spotted the airplane flying without lights over the Florida Keys, and began the chase at 1:48 a.m.

Police arrested Gerald Finegan, who gave addresses in Woodside, N.Y., and Fort Myers Beach, at Fort Lauderdale-Hollywood International Airport, where his Beechcraft Baron 18 made an unauthorized landing after the chase.

Once on the ground, the plane's pilot first eluded Broward County sheriff's deputies and Customs officials. But an undercover agent spotted Finegan in a cab in front of an airline terminal.

"He was acting suspiciously. He bought a one-way ticket to New York City and was passing the time nervously," said Judi Maffei, a sheriff's department spokesman.

When officers searched Finegan's luggage, they found clothes soiled by airplane fuel and bits of clay, which matched dirt found in the aircraft, authorities said. His fingerprints also matched fingerprints found on the plane, said Ms. Maffei.

Finegan was charged with trafficking in marijuana.

"I'd like to catch up to this Mr. Finegan and talk to him to the tune of $500 or $600," said Banta, who added that he doesn't have insurance to cover the damage to his mobile home.

"I had to chase two guys off my lawn this afternoon. They were on their hands and knees in my yard picking up little pieces," he said. "I chased them off, but they came back."

Chief witness changes testimony

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The refusal of the state's chief witness to implicate Curtis Edwards in the 1979 murder of a drifter has left prosecutors frustrated and concerned for their case against Edwards.

"Well, that's it. It's all over," said Assistant District Attorney General James Harrison as he left Criminal Court Thursday after the testimony of Riley Earl Arceneaux of Houston, Texas.

Arceneaux, 23, told investigators in October and November that he and Edwards picked up Allen Frederick Bradley, 43, near Texarkana, Ark., en route to Memphis in Edwards' car. He said they killed Bradley after arriving in the city.

On the witness stand Thursday, Arceneaux recanted his earlier statements to police and prosecutors.

Edwards, 27, of Somerville, N.J., a former Rutgers University football player, is on trial for first-degree murder in Bradley's death.

Arceneaux and Edwards, former Marines, were charged in November 1979, with the murder of Bradley, who prosecutors said was a drifter.

Bradley's body was found in an alley near downtown Memphis early Oct. 30, 1979. Beneath his body were Marine Corps identification tags bearing Arceneaux' name.

Arceneaux pleaded guilty to second-degree murder two months ago and was sentenced to 25 years in prison. He was brought to Memphis this week from Fort Pillow State Prison near Ripley, Tenn.

Harrison told the court before Arceneaux' appearance he could not vouch for the truthfulness of his witness' testimony.

On the stand, Arceneaux claimed responsibility for Bradley's death, saying he came to Memphis alone with the purpose of killing a white man.

He denied he was traveling with Edwards.

"Why did you come to Memphis?" Harrison asked.

"I wanted to kill somebody," Arceneaux replied. "A white man... I don't like white people."

He said he flew to Memphis, caught a taxi to the Overton Square nightspot district where he met Bradley, then rode around in Bradley's car for several hours.

Arceneaux refused to say what happened to Bradley's wallet or automobile.

Angina often disappears completely, spontaneously

Dear Dr. Solomon: Although I have had angina pectoris for more than a year now, I have continued to work and still play tennis on weekends. In fact, the condition seems to be much less severe today than it was a year ago. I don't want to raise my hopes too high, but is it ever possible for angina to disappear spontaneously? — Gil

Dear Gil: It is not unusual for angina to disappear completely, and this may be happening in your case. One of the findings of the Framingham Study is that one-third of men and 45 percent of women with uncomplicated angina pectoris experience remissions of two years or more. Even patients with a history of angina covering a period of several years experience a substantial number of remissions — 14 percent for men and 19 percent for women. Moreover, remission is as likely to occur in older patients as in younger ones.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I may be worrying needlessly about some discomfort I've been experiencing, but I'd like some information. At what age is cancer of the prostate most likely to occur, and how can it best be detected at the earliest possible moment? — Pete

Dear Pete: Eighty percent of cases of cancer of the prostate occur in men over 65 years of age. The best chance of detecting the condition at an early stage is through rectal examination. This should be part of every physical examination, especially for men over 40 years of age. For some reason, the incidence of cancer of the prostate has been increasing, especially for black men.

If you are concerned about the possibility of cancer of the prostate, why not see your physician? You'll feel a lot better if he gives you a clean bill of health; and if cancer is diagnosed, you'll be able to take whatever steps are necessary to cure it. Simply ignoring a condition will not make it disappear.

Dear Dr. Solomon: During the past few years, my father-in-law has twice had to have electric shock treatments for severe depression. Although the treatments were necessary, they always impressed me as being rather extreme. My brother-in-law now tells me he heard that the dialysis given kidney patients has been shown to help people with serious emotional problems, and I'd like to get more information about it. Is this a possibility we should be looking into? — Marty

Dear Marty: Although there had been some earlier indications that hemodialysis might be effective in the treatment of schizophrenia, more recent research at the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) has failed to confirm this. The NIMH study involved eight patients, none of whom showed a significant decrease in psychiatric symptoms after 10 dialysis sessions.

Obviously, a study of only eight patients cannot be taken as final proof of the effectiveness of any treatment approach. But Dr. S. Charles Schulz, of NIMH, notes that the findings do raise questions about the advisability of treating schizophrenia by the use of hemodialysis.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Ustinov's song

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Peter Ustinov, who stars in "Charlie Chan and the Curse of the Dragon Queen," also helped write the title song and performed it for the movie.

He recorded the song in a five-hour session with a 50-piece orchestra. The orchestra was led by Patrick Williams, who wrote the main theme and collaborated with Ustinov on the lyrics.

Networks still subscribe to unwanted magazines

By PETER J. BOYER

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Suppose you were a network programming boss, and your news guys kept coming up with these magazine programs that didn't cut it. They took up an hour of your prime time schedule without putting any-heart of matters during last summer's political conventions, is a vast improvement over Tom Snyder in this type of program.

Brinkley's "Magazine" team comprises Jack Perkins, master of the off-hand report, Betsy Aaron, Garrick Utley and Douglas Kiker. The format, as Brinkley wishes, is pliant, allowing short segments as well as longer, more deliberate pieces. After each, Brinkley & Co. sit around and mull.

"What we want first is to be loose and flexible," says Brinkley. "Other shows have a rather rigid formula — three stories a week, which means each story has to be 12 to 16 minutes long, whether it needs to be or not. We're doing some that are two minutes long."

"The other thing we want is a degree of relaxation, informal attitude — not to come across as rigid and steeley. Everything in our little roundtable is ad-lib, I've insisted on that. People are better when they're not staring at a TelePrompTer — it's like a cobra. You can become dependent on the damned thing and develop this blank stare..."

Of course, style doesn't count in a dark closet. One upper-level NBC programmer recently said that "Magazine" might be moved to a healthier spot in the schedule after "it has shown itself qualitatively."

That's the only way it can show itself in the meantime.

"I don't worry very much about ratings," Brinkley says, "but I know that without them, a program isn't likely to survive. I don't ever anticipate getting really high ratings. '60 Minutes' does because it's got the best time period in the world."

"But I've had private assurances from Fred Silverman that we'll get a better time period later this year." Which is to say, any other time period.

In the meantime, "Magazine" is in a sort of protracted state of dress-rehearsal, working out its kinks, awaiting the day it gets to play before a real audience.

thing measurable back, such as ratings. You can't just do without a news magazine, much as you'd like to; that would be bad form. The legend of CBS' wildly successful "60 Minutes" beckons loudly. You have to try.

Yet, making a news magazine work is the least of your problems. Your prime time schedule is falling, your daytime schedule is faltering, your late-night schedule is faltering. Your neck is itching, and the board of directors of your parent company may bring an ax with your name on it to their meeting this spring.

96," and the like.

And, oh, what a forgotten corner Silverman found for "NBC Magazine With David Brinkley." What's that, you say? There exists such a program? Sort of. If you were looking, which most viewers aren't, you'd find "NBC Magazine" on Friday nights, situated alongside CBS' "Dallas."

This descendant of NBC's "Weekend" and "Prime Time With Tom Snyder" fiasco isn't "60 Minutes," but neither was "60 Minutes" in the first decade of its life. Brinkley, who won new fans with his refreshing wit and dead-aim to the

Jean Harris said to have 'high moral standards'

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Colleagues and former students of Jean Harris testified at her murder trial that the former headmistress of a posh Virginia girls' school was admired but under great stress in the days before the slaying of Scarsdale Diet doctor Herman Tarnower.

Other character witnesses Thursday described Mrs. Harris as "the most highly regarded woman I've ever known," and a woman of "high ideals, high moral standards, integrity and ingenuity."

One witness revealed to a shocked court that her son was a hostage in Iran.

Ella Grasso takes turn for worse

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The condition of former Connecticut Gov. Ella Grasso, who is battling cancer, has taken a turn for the worse, a Hartford Hospital spokesman says.

Mrs. Grasso's condition was lowered from "guarded" to "serious" Thursday night, hospital spokesman James Battaglio reported, because she had developed stomach ulcers and a low fever.

The former governor, who recently underwent surgery to bypass a cancerous intestinal blockage, had been reported to be improving. Doctors said that chemotherapy treatments were responsible for the slight improvements in her health so that she could consume some semi-solid foods each day.

She was also able to walk short distances and sit up in a chair several times a day, but Battaglio said Mrs. Grasso now back on full bed rest.

The cause of the fever had not been determined, he said.

The ulcers were attributed to the stress and strain the ex-governor has been undergoing. They are not a further spread of the cancer which has infected Mrs. Grasso's liver and intestinal tract. She also underwent a hysterectomy in April.

The 61-year-old Mrs. Grasso was completing the second year of her second 4-year term when she decided to resign because of her illness. The resignation became effective Dec. 31, when her lieutenant governor, William A. O'Neill, was sworn in as the state's chief executive.

The prosecution alleges Mrs. Harris, 57, murdered her millionaire lover of 14 years at his Purchase, N.Y., estate in a jealous rage over Tarnower's affair with another woman.

The defense contends Tarnower was shot March 10 trying to wrest the gun from Mrs. Harris, who wanted to kill herself. Her lawyer has called a host of witnesses to testify about what could have driven her to the brink of suicide.

Dana Schmidt, a former Madeira School student, testified Thursday that Mrs. Harris was under fire from many of the 330 students over the March 6 expulsion of four girls caught with drug paraphernalia.

Mrs. Harris was openly criticized at a meeting March 7 and "was obviously flustered," Ms. Schmidt said.

"She was, I guess, losing ground with the students, losing her position as headmistress. But I admired her for standing up and defending herself," she said.

Karl Wolf, who once worked at Madeira, said that when he last saw her on the afternoon of March 10, she was "depressed and despondent ... as if someone told her she had cancer."

The defense hopes to prove to jurors that the events at Madeira culminated in a decision to commit suicide and that Mrs. Harris drove to Tarnower's home to "say goodbye to the human being who meant the most to her."

And to convince the jury that Mrs. Harris' account of her intentions is truthful, the defense has put many of her long-time friends on the witness stand.

"People saw Jean as someone with high ideals, high moral standards, integrity and ingenuity," said Anne Kinzie, who knew Mrs. Harris when she taught first grade 20 years ago in Grosse Pointe, Mich.

Charles Johnson, whose best friend, James Harris, became Mrs. Harris' husband, said, "She was probably the most highly regarded woman that I've ever known."

One witness, Dorothy Limbert, who worked as a Madeira School psychologist, said she was unfamiliar with Mrs. Harris' character after 1979 because she left the school when "my son was taken as a hostage in Iran; I couldn't function anymore."

Her comment brought a gasp from the courtroom.

As Mrs. Limbert left court, she told reporters, "Don't say too much at this time. Things are really moving."

A.J. Cronin dies

MONTREUX, Switzerland (AP) — A.J. Cronin, Scottish-born author of "The Citadel" and other best-sellers involving problems of social responsibility, died at his home near here Tuesday. He was 84.

Funeral services were held this morning at La Tour-de-Peiliz, near Montreux.

Cronin was a surgeon but turned from a profitable medical practice after the success of his first novel, "Hatter's Castle," in 1931 to devote himself full-time to writing.

His novels, in a direct, simple style, reflected both his medical training and his religious beliefs as a Roman Catholic.

In addition to "The Citadel," his best-known novels were "The Keys Of The Kingdom," "The Green Years," "Shannon's Way," and "Pocketful Of Rye."

Archibald Joseph Cronin was born July 19, 1896, in Cardross (Dumbarton) and was educated at Glasgow University.

He married Agnes Gibson in 1921 and practiced medicine for another 10 years.

He used his background as a physician to create "Dr. Finlay's Casebook," one of the longest running British television series, about a pair of Scottish doctors sharing a practice.

Cronin, who liked golf, salmon fishing and gardening, lived in Switzerland since 1955.

Cuban exile group probed by FBI

MIAMI (AP) — Three members of Alpha 66, a Miami-based Cuban exile military organization committed to the overthrow of Fidel Castro's government, have been arrested while carrying out commando raids in Cuba in recent weeks, a spokesman for the group says.

Enrique Encinosa, spokesman for Alpha 66, told Miami television station WCKT that "in the last two months we have sent in three infiltration teams into Cuba."

"We have received news from these infiltration teams. We know that three of the men in the infiltration teams were captured by Cuban authorities," and imprisoned near Havana.

Encinosa said Thursday the teams were sent to the communist nation 90 miles south of Key West for the purpose of "committing acts of sabotage."

Meanwhile, the FBI was looking into the possibility that Alpha 66 violated U.S. laws by sending the teams to Cuba.

Houston doctor shoots son in Oiler argument

HOUSTON (AP) — An osteopath was free on $10,000 bond today after he was charged with murder in the shooting of his son during an argument over the Houston Oilers professional football team, officials said.

Dr. Franklin Tripp, 69, was accused of killing Lon Franklin Tripp, 29, an oilfield worker, according to authorities.

The two had been arguing Wednesday about the recent firing of Oiler head coach Bum Phillips and the demand by star running back Earl Campbell to either be traded or given a new contract, police said.

Homicide Detective E.W. Yanchak said the "father got fed up with the argument, went into his room, got a gun, put it in his coat pocket and sat down in a lounge chair in the den."

The officer said the argument continued and the son got up from the couch and walked toward the kitchen. The father then allegedly pulled out the weapon.

Young Tripp told his father, "either shoot that gun or I'll make you eat it," according to Yanchak. A .38-caliber slug hit the son in the chest, the detective said.

Yanchak said the younger Tripp had been living with his parents in the six-bedroom brick home since a recent separation from his wife.

Tripp was released from the city jail Thursday.

Tremor shakes Naples, Italy

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — A sharp earth tremor early today jolted the area ravaged by a killer quake last November, and sent thousands fleeing into the freezing night in panic, officials said. No injuries were reported.

The tremor knocked down a wing of home for the aged in Naples. Part of the 18th century building had collapsed shortly after the Nov. 23 quake killing eight elderly women. Police evacuated 70 families from another undamaged section of the building as a precaution.

Israel's Prime Minister Menachem Begin takes a few minutes from consultations about the present government crisis over the teacher's pay dispute to relax in his office Friday morning. Government circles hinted that a last minute compromise could be found before Sunday, thus avoiding the Begin government's resignation. (AP Laserphoto)

Early Israeli elections predicted by minister

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli Interior Minister Yosef Burg said today there was "a reasonable possibility" that general elections would be held in May, six months ahead of schedule.

Burg spoke to reporters after meeting with Prime Minister Menachem Begin to discuss the political crisis that threatens to bring down the Begin government, possibly by next week.

Burg said he brought new proposals for a compromise on salary demands by the nation's 58,000 teachers. He gave no details.

Finance Minister Yigael Hurvitz says he will quit if the government gives in to the teachers' demands for raises, which he claims will add new fuel to an inflationary spiral that left Israel with the world's highest inflation rate last year, 131 percent.

At the same time, Education Minister Zevulun Hammer says he will resign if the increases are rejected. The raises would give an educator with nine years' experience a salary of $546 a month, up from $480. The average wage is $630 a month.

Hurvitz's resignation would leave Begin with a minority in Parliament. Less certain is what would happen if Hammer quit.

His National Religious Party, of which Burg is a member, is divided, with some members saying Hammer's resignation would be grounds for an early election. But Burg and others are cautioning against bringing down the government in haste.

The crisis is expected to come to a head on Sunday, when the Cabinet meets to decide the teachers' salary issue.

Israeli newspapers said that if Hurvitz quit, Begin would wait 48 hours until the resignation legally took effect and then would announce his next move.

He could stay on as a caretaker prime minister until November, the scheduled month for elections, or propose legislation in Parliament for early balloting, a move reportedly supported by two factions in the Begin coalition.

Begin controls a shaky 60 or 61 of the 120 seats in Parliament. The Labor Party, the chief opposition, believes it could get an even 55-55 vote today on a bill to dissolve parliament and hold new elections. But no one knows how the 10 undecided deputies would vote.

In another development, Israel has proposed post-mortem examinations of the bodies of five Palestinian guerrillas to rebut charges that Israeli troops mutilated the corpses by blowing them up after they were killed in a Christmas Day shootout, Begin's office said.

Begin met today with visiting Dutch Defense Minister Pieter de Geus, whose troops in the U.N. peacekeeping force in southern Lebanon reported the alleged mutilation. Begin expressed "astonishment and regret" that the U.N. force had published the charge before checking with Israel, the prime minister's office said.

Stymie of 'Our Gang' dies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Matthew Beard Jr., who played Stymie on the "Our Gang" comedy films from 1930-35, died at the age of 56 after suffering a stroke.

Beard, whose trademark in the series was a derby hat, was stricken at his apartment and lay unconscious on the floor for several days before he was found Friday and taken to the hospital, according to his agent, Helen Barkan.

He died Thursday in County-USC Medical Center. When he was 5, Beard made the first of his 36 "Our Gang" comedies, in which he would steal a scene by rolling his eyes or wiggling his ears.

Later, misfortunes befell Beard, who only recently had returned to acting. After he left the "Our Gang" series to play in such movies as "Captain Blood," "Jezebel" and "Kentucky," he started using drugs.

Children watch as mother slain

HARKER HEIGHTS, Texas (AP) — Horrified teachers, parents and students stood in a crowded schoolyard and watched in disbelief as a man dressed in Army fatigues shot a woman to death, then was wounded as he exchanged gunfire with police after running into a field nearby.

The woman, Betty Bush, 36, was shot four times in the chest Thursday as her two children, age 4 and 6 years old, looked on. She was pronounced dead at the scene, said Ted Wermuth, police chief for this small Central Texas town adjacent to the huge Fort Hood military reservation.

Army Staff Sgt. Edward Groce was listed in stable condition at Darnall Army Hospital following surgery for gunshot wounds he suffered in a shootout with officers about a block from the school, police and witnesses said.

Witnesses said a man dressed in fatigues arrived in a car with Mrs. Bush and her sons at the Harker Heights Elementary School shortly before classes started Thursday morning. The two boys walked across a parking lot toward the school building when Mrs. Bush leaped from the car and began to run, Wermuth said.

Witnesses said the man knocked her down and shot her with a pistol before a shocked crowd in the schoolyard. Two kindergarten classes and a room of first graders witnessed the incident from their classroom windows, a school official said.

The woman's two sons reportedly were treated for shock by the school nurse and were boarded at a neighbor's house, police said. Their father is reportedly on military duty in Korea.

Police said the shooting occurred about 8:38 a.m. and officer D.J. Johnson arrived at the scene almost immediately.

Johnson said the man fired at the patrol car, then fled behind the school. Other officers cornered him in a field and ordered him to drop his pistol, Wermuth said.

Cash dispute threatens synthetic fuels plant

WASHINGTON (AP) — Backers of the nation's first major commercial synthetic fuels plant say the planned project may be "at an end" because of a dispute over financing for the $2 billion facility.

The gasification plant's largest prospective customers objected Thursday to a proposal they said would, in effect, require them to guarantee the financing in the event the North Dakota facility fails.

Arthur Seder Jr., chairman of American Natural Resources Inc., indicated his firm and other backers of the project may withdraw their application for federal support if a financial agreement cannot be reached.

Asked whether a new proposal was likely, Seder said, "I really can't say whether that's possible." The plant, planned for Beulah, N.D., is a key part of President Carter's energy program and would be the country's first commercial-sized producer of synthetic fuels.

The plant is scheduled to begin operations in 1984 and had been expected to produce 125 million cubic feet of gas daily, the equivalent of 20,000 barrels of oil. It would use 4.7 million tons of coal each year.

Great Plains Gasification Associates had initially expected to rely on federal loan guarantees, but they were threatened last month by a federal court decision.

The federal guarantees had been dependent on approval by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission of a rate surcharge to the gasification plant's customers. A federal appeals court ruled Dec. 8 that the commission had no jurisdiction over unfinished products.

Seder, at a meeting Thursday with the prospective customers, said that because the plant would be first of its kind, sharing the risk would be most appropriate.

Bob Van Ness of the Department of Energy said customer opposition to the financing plan would make it very difficult for DOE to give final approval to $1.5 billion in loan guarantees conditionally approved to build the plant.

After Thursday's meeting, Seder said drafting a new proposal could delay completion of the plant by up to a year and add $300 million to $400 million to its costs because of inflation.

He said it would be necessary to ask for loan guarantees of $1.8 billion, instead of the $1.5 billion already requested.

In addition to American Natural Resources, companies whose subsidiaries are involved in the project are Peoples Gas Co., Columbia Gas Systems Inc., Tenneco Inc. and Transcontinental Pipeline Co.

Food-fuel conflict seen by scientist as result of gasohol

TORONTO (AP) — Rather than being a panacea for the transportation problems of the future, the production of gasohol may lead to "food-fuel conflicts," a scientist says.

Production of the mixture — 90 percent gasoline and 10 percent ethanol, or grain alcohol — is rapidly increasing in the United States, a panel on transportation fuels told the American Association for the Advancement of Science on Thursday.

The current rate of expansion could lead to demands for corn by the ethanol producers that would drive up the price of corn-based foods and animal feeds, said Steven E. Plotkin of the Congressional Office of Technology Assessment in Washington.

The grain alone for alcohol fuel production could cost $3.50 per gallon, Plotkin said.

He said he expected that conflicts between the need for cheap food and the need for cheap fuel could arise when the annual production of ethanol nears 2 billion gallons a year, something he predicted would occur in five to seven years. The United States now consumes 110 billion gallons of gasoline a year, he said.

"If you produce 10 billion gallons (of ethanol) a year, you are going to have major inflationary effects and I think that may be less than totally acceptable," Plotkin said.

The panel of energy scientists said such economic uncertainty, along with other problems, indicated that gasohol and other synthetic fuels are not likely to play a major role in replacing gasoline as a transportation fuel in the near future.

Scientists at the final session of the five-day association meeting said that the best hope for maintaining gas supplies is to stop using oil in power plants and other areas where another fuel would do.

"There's a lot of oil that's being used in places where you could use coal. But it's not going to be cheap. A coal boiler costs a lot more than an oil boiler does," Plotkin said.

Michael D. Devine of the University of Oklahoma, co-moderator of the panel, said there were too many questions about the economy and ecology of synthetic fuels production to warrant an immediate push for commercialization.

He recommended a 10-year period of research and development in which commercial-scale pilot plants would be built for various processes to see how well they work. The Energy Security Act signed into law last year serves this end with $20 billion pledged to research, he said, but sets unreasonably high goals for commercial production.

The law establishes a national goal of synthetic fuels production equivalent to 500,000 barrels of oil a day by 1987. The only synthetic fuel now being produced in the United States is in small experimental plants, Devine said.

Bullock on 'warpath' against tax-free cigs

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — California Indians have been "quieter than a totem pole" since state officials here asked for lists of Texans who bought tax-free cigarettes from the tribe, according to State Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Bullock said Thursday the Cabazon Band of Mission Indians in Indio, Calif., advertise the supposedly tax-free cigarettes throughout Texas.

"There isn't any such thing as a tax-free cigarette, unless you leave the country," Bullock said.

Texans who buy the cigarettes from the Indians are supposed to voluntarily pay state taxes of $1.85 per carton, said Bullock.

"We've been on the warpath with these Indians for several months

Tax may be abolished

AUSTIN (AP) — Two legislators have filed bills that would abolish the Texas inheritance tax.

Sen. Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls and Rep. Gerald Geistweidt of Mason said their bills would enable administrators of estates to use only the federal estate tax form in settlements. The bills would eliminate the necessity of filing a separate inheritance tax form for state taxes.

Use of the federal form, they said in a statement, means the state would receive tax credit money which otherwise would go to the federal government.

Savings in the state's administration costs have been estimated at more than $300,000 in 1983, the legislators said.

Bell staying clear of any disagreement with Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Terrel H. Bell, the man chosen to head the Education Department, is steering clear of any disagreement with Ronald Reagan over the incoming president's campaign pledge to dismantle the newest Cabinet agency.

Bell, who was U.S. commissioner of education from 1974 to 1978, supported formation of the Education Department last year, but said Wednesday in an interview he took that position mainly because of his desire to reduce the size of the old Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Asked if he agrees with Reagan's stated plans to abolish the Education Department, Bell replied: "I haven't taken a position on that. I've said we ought to look at what alternatives might be."

He refused to say what those options might include, but there have been reports Reagan is considering downgrading the department to the level of an independent federal agency.

"I don't think it's been finalized that it (the department) is going to be abolished," said Bell, now Utah's commissioner of higher education.

Bell said his Senate testimony in favor of the Education Department last year grew out of his desire to have education programs withdrawn from HEW, which he said was always stronger than his wish to see a new department created.

"I wanted to see an opportunity for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to shrink in size and maybe streamline their administrative processes," he said. "The size of the department was so huge it was a tough management problem for anyone."

One of the most immediate problems Bell will face as secretary is handling bilingual education regulations which the department has drafted to guide school districts in providing equal opportunities for students for whom English is not a primary language.

While he was education commissioner in 1975, Bell supervised the drafting of some interim bilingual guidelines which were used while the final version was drafted. He refused to characterize the newer guidelines, which have come under heavy fire from members of Congress who complain that the regulations would be too expensive and burdensome.

He also declined to talk about other policy matters during the interview, saying he would reserve his responses for Senate confirmation hearings, which are likely to be held next week.

Bell said his conversation with Reagan about the new job did not include references to specific problems at the department.

"We didn't really talk about any of the programs. We talked about general principles and all the concerns we all have about the economy and what we might do to resolve that," Bell said.

Bell's selection for the cabinet had the backing of Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, chairman of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee.

The secretary-designate has served in a variety of federal education jobs. He was associate education commissioner from 1970 to 1971 with responsibility for regional offices and acting commissioner of education for six months in 1970.

Born in Lava Hot Springs, Idaho, Bell received a B.A. degree from Southern Idaho College of Education in 1946, an M.S. from the University of Idaho in 1954 and a Ph.D. in educational administration from the University of Utah in 1961. He studied school administration as a Ford Foundation Fellow in 1954-55 at Stanford University.

Tornado death toll declines

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Twenty-eight people were killed by tornadoes in 1980, the second lowest death toll since figures have been kept, the National Severe Storms Forecast Center has reported.

The death toll was low despite an above-average number of twisters. Approximately 850 tornadoes touched down in the United States in 1980, the center said. Since 1916, when reliable statistics were first recorded, the average number of tornadoes annually has been 670.

The 28 deaths were far below the annual average of 111 tornado fatalities, the center said.

Fred Ostby, director of the center, which is part of the National Weather Service, attributed the low death toll to cooperation from the media and to better public awareness of tornado watches and warnings. Luck had something to do with it, too.

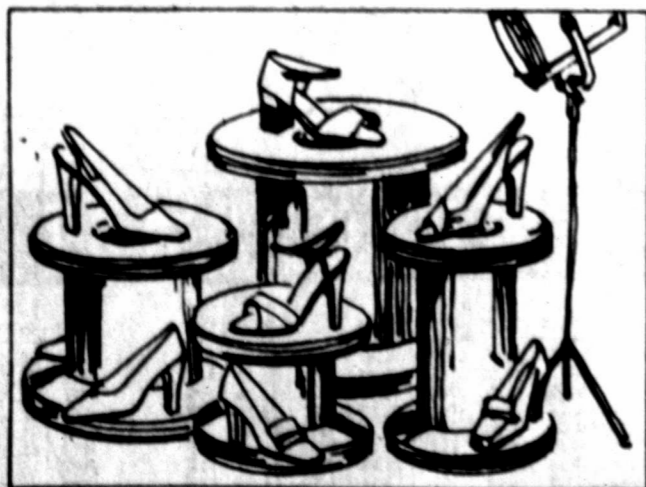

"If there were a real massive tornado that came at the wrong time, even if there were a lot of warning the death toll would go back up. But our preparedness and education of the public continues to improve," he said.

As proof of the improved warning system, Ostby cited three massive tornadoes which struck large population centers without massive loss of life: Sedalia, Mo., on May 12; Kalamazoo, Mich., on May 13; and Grand Island, Neb., on June 3. The Kalamazoo and Grand Island storms each killed five people, and no one died in the Sedalia tornado.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, January 10, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Famous Japanese actor Sessue Hayakawa shares this birthday with you. In the year ahead, your honorable ways command the respect of others and help you to advance your career, business goals. A natural sense of thrift aids your efforts to save, accumulate capital. Although you are a good mixer, you are a highly private person who enjoys regular periods of solitude. Be sure your loved ones know that you are not trying to shut them out! A reputation for thoroughness and reliability could result in your being offered a prestigious executive position. Do not let pride prevent you from accepting a favor from a friend!

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A favorable day for tackling home repairs, domestic chores. Some recent pressures have been removed and you can do pretty much as you please. You may decide to plan a special outing.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Mate's affection, cooperation will make this a happy, relaxing weekend. Do what you can to increase your resources. Romantic ventures are likely to lead you off on a tangent.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The holidays plus a long week of work may have taken a toll on your energies. Relax at home with loved ones. Younger person could make flattering request for advice.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Another good day. Romance should flourish! Extra responsibilities bring new opportunities for growth, development. Your mature, competent attitude makes favorable impression on member of the opposite sex.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You long for adventure and could find more excitement than you bargained for this weekend. Watch your step and be very discreet when it comes to romance. Money matters show improvement.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Take advantage of opportunity to make a good impression on outsider. A friendship could develop into a romance. Shopping trips can produce real bargains now. Buy any linens you need at January "white sales."

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Do not be in too much of a hurry today or you miss a chance to attend an interesting party. This is not a good time to travel. Older person may need your help.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your intuition should be quite accurate today. You may feel like going somewhere as part of a group. Mate, partner will be in agreement with you on the subject of home repairs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You radiate confidence today and can make important contacts that will serve you well in the future. Phone someone who lives at a distance. He or she can be a source of inspiration.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You may be feeling tied down by all the work that has to be done. Let others pitch in and help! You need to get out and about more.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Call on those family members you have not contacted for several days. Romance is likely to spring into full bloom this weekend. Spend time with those who share your interests.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Slow down and enjoy the diversions the weekend provides. You sometimes hurry past things which could prove to be a lot of fun. Include all members of the family in any celebrations you host.

A recent half-page article in The New York Times described the Cavendish Bridge Club in New York as the club with the most world-class players as members. One of them produced this pretty defensive play in a recent rubber bridge game.

South was rather aggressive. Even though it was known from the auction that North had to have fair values outside the heart suit, the misfit nature of the hands suggested that any game would be an ambitious undertaking.

West led a low spade, and the jack was covered by the queen and ace. A club to the ace was followed by the queen of hearts from dummy. East covered and declarer ruffed. A club ruff put declarer back on the table to lead the jack of hearts, again covered by East and ruffed in the closed hand.

Declarer crossed back to dummy with a club ruff, cashed the king of spades and then the ten of hearts, discarding a spade from hand. The scene was set. Declarer was down to three trumps and two clubs, and needed to score only the ten of diamonds to make the contract.

Declarer led a low spade from dummy. If East ruffs low or discards, the contract will sail home as declarer ruffs with the ten. But East had stayed awake. He ruffed with the jack of trumps! Double dummy, declarer can still make the hand. He must stuff a club when East ruffs, then discard again when East leads the nine of hearts. Now he scores three trump tricks by playing West for a doubleton queen of trumps. But declarer decided that East had to have the queen of trumps for his no trump overcall, so he over-ruffed with the king and exited with a club. East ruffed and led a heart, and struggle as he might, declarer had to lose two of the last three tricks for down one.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. For a copy and a scorecard, send $1.75 to "Goren-Four Deal," c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Newwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to NEWS-PAPERBOOKS.
