Fatal and near-fatal blazes throw spotlight on building codes

By LANA CUNNINGHAM Staff Writer

Occupied housing in Midland that violates building and fire protection codes is, for the most part, left untouched by city officials.

Questions about the effectiveness of city code enforcement have been raised since December when two fires within 2½ weeks of each other killed four children and critically burned four others. Both blazes occurred in what could have been classified under city regulations as substandard structures.

The first occurred in a small wooden structure in back of a residence at 209 N. Madison St. The structure, being rented as a house to Kathy Williams and Brenda Williams, had electricity provided through an extension cord connecting it to the main house. Firemen theorized that hookup may have caused the blaze.

The second fire claimed the lives of the four children of Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Bennett and occurred in the Tall City Apartments, a converted motel located on Garden City Highway. The fire was started by the children playing with matches, ruled a fire inspector.

BECAUSE BOTH FIRES occurred in structures which apparently failed to meet fire and building codes, Mayor G. Thane Akins said it concerns him and the council. "But I don't know offhand if it demands a change in codes. We've heard nothing from our staff."

Under both building and fire protection codes, a structure failing to comply can be torn down by the owner or by the city. But city officials point out they face a dilemma when it comes to substandard structures that are occupied, whether by the owner

The City Charter defines "dangerous" buildings and outlines steps the city may take in forcing a landlord to upgrade the structure to meet the codes or in having it eliminated.

Dangerous structures are defined as "any building with roof, ceiling, floors, sills or foundations or any combination thereof, rotted or decayed and falling apart; windows out, uninhabitable, untenantable and unsightly, due to obsolescence and deterioration caused by neglect or vandalism or fire damage or old age or the elements.

'Or any building in danger of falling and injuring the person or property of another.

"Or any building which is a fire menace, to wit, by being in a dilapidated condition, as fully described above, and which has an accumulation of rubbish and trash which is likely to become a fire, or be set on fire, in and around said building and endanger the person or property of other.

"Or any building which is damp and in unsanitary condition which is likely to create disease and

THE CITY HAS started a push on demolishing abandoned structures which are classified as dangerous. But the person in charge of this area, Tim Chase, said the process is "slow. There's so much paper work to do."

Chase, who was hired for the purpose of filing against owners of dilapidated houses, said he would like to bring at least five such houses before

Haig probe awaits Nixon's decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators conducting hearings on Alexander M. Haig Jr.'s nomination as secretary of state say Richard M. Nixon alone can keep them from getting tape transcripts to investi-gate Haig's role in Nixon's White House.

"The ball is in his court now," Sen. Charles Percy. R-Ill., said Monday night. "He must be answerable for his decision." Percy is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which called Haig back for a fourth day of confirmation hearings today on his nomination by President-elect Ronald Reagan. Archivist Robert M. Warner also agreed during hearings Monday when Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., asked whether "one person stands in the way of this committee having this information and that person is Richard Nixon? 'Well, there are the regulations," the archivist replied. "But that really is the heart of the mat-

He was referring to regulations that give the former president five days to decide whether to object to the committee's subpoena for logs describing 100 hours of taped conversation between Haig and Nixon in mid-1973. Nixon's lawyer, Herbert J. Miller, said in a telephone interview he is reviewing the question of whether to block the committee's access to the log and Nixon tapes and documents.

"I have taken no position," Miller said. But he noted that archivist Warner has given the committee a written opinion that Congress has no authority to subpoena the material.

"I must consider that," Miller said. The committee already has agreed to vote as early as Wednesday on clearing Haig for Senate confirma-today for CIA Director-designate William J. Casey, 67, who directed Reagan's presidential election campaign and served in the CIA's forerunner; lawyer

Samuel Pierce, 58, Reagan's choice for housing secretary and the only black selected for his Cabinet; and Deputy Defense Secretary-designate Frank Charles Carlucci III, 50, now deputy CIA director.

Confirmation hearings were held Monday for Energy Secretary-designate James B. Edwards and Labor Secretary-designate Raymond Donovan. Both were subjected to tough questioning but appeared headed for confirmation.

Donovan defended his New Jersey construction company against a charge it did business with a dummy company specializing in kickbacks. Edwards, former governor of South Carolina, was accused by senators of "waffling" and of being naive. Edwards, an oral surgeon, has described himself as more of a "problem solver" than an energy expert.

Iranian parliament delays debate on hostage issues

By The Associated Press

Iran's Parliament postponed debate today on two bills aimed at resolving the hostage crisis, but there was no indication of opposition to the measures and they are scheduled to be taken up again on Wednesday, a parliamentary spokesman said.

A top Iranian hostage negotiator, Ahmed Azizi, told Tehran Radio, "No final agreement has yet been reached" on a date for releasing the 52 Americans seized 14 months ago. But he added, "Obviously, discussions are being conducted in a positive framework.

The parliamentary spokesman said the debate was delayed because the 12-member Council of Guardians, which must approve all legislation adopted, couldn't attend because it had not been given enough advance notice of the session. "The council was informed of the session very late yesterday afternoon," the spokesman in Tehran said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press in Beirut, Lebanon. The council is dominated by hard-line Islamic clerics who are bitterly antagonistic toward the United States. Their absence could have indicated an attempt to block any retreat from Iran's original demands for up to $24 billion for the release of the hostages.

The speaker of Iran's Parliament, Hashemi Rafsanjani, said Monday that "all roads" were open to settling the 437-day-old crisis, and that he expected approval of the legislation.

One bill introduced in the Majlis would approve appointment of a third-party as arbitrator of financial and legal claims between Iran and the United States. The other would nationalize the wealth of the shah and his closest relatives, providing a legal basis for the Iranian government's demand that the royal family's assets abroad be turned over to it.

"I THINK THAT'S where one of our big worries should be," he opined.

'green, slimy stuff" and stench.

The draw winds easterly out of Midland past the city's sewage treatment plant and meanders on to join with Monahans Draw in far east Midland County. Midland Draw's over-flowing has been due, in part, to the rising water table and apparently to the city's inadvertent spillage of effluent sewage waters into the natural drainage basin.

The natural draw is drawing some unnatural criticism.

Leading the attack on the draw's usage by the city is Ethel Whisler, a Greenwood housewife who said she is sickened by the stench emanating from the draw and is disheartened by the sight of her and her husband Jon's washed-up pecan harvest and cotton and wheat crops.

'The water is now up in the (pecan) trees, in our cotton. And we have not had that much rain." Many of their pecan trees on their 52 acres are in and along the draw.

Mrs. Whisler backed up her protest with a petition keyed to the "unnatural flow of water" in Midland Draw. By Monday afternoon, the petition bore 74 signatures and 82 by night-

THE "UNNATURAL" waters gracing the draw have become, according to Mrs. Whisler:

-A nuisance.

-A health hazard.

-Destructive to farm land and all type of crops.

—An unhealthy play area.

—A breeding place for mosquitoes.

And the draw emits a stench that can be smelled for miles.

"This is a very complex problem, more (complex) than it appears on the surface," he said.

"We've had the highest water table we've had any records of," said Lowe, who said the water table was "super charged" by the heavy September rains. "It's nothing brand new."

the City Council each month. The council's approval is needed before such houses are demolished

Reo Ragan, another officer in the Building Inspections Department, explained dangerous structures need to be reported to that department for the inspectors to know about it. If the structure is found to be unsafe, it is condemned and then goes through legal process of being torn down, he said.

The code states that the owner must be notified, and in this case the city does it by certified mail. The owner is given 15 days after receiving the notice to start repair work, and the repairs must be completed within 90 days.

If nothing is done to improve the building to pass the city's inspections, the City Council can order the structure torn down and removed.

THE "JUNKER HOUSING program," as some city officials call it, has been in operation on an on-again, off-again basis since 1963, according to City Manager James Brown, and about 1,000 structures have been removed.

We had one land owner with 52 apartment units that were substandard and a few were being lived Brown said, adding that the apartments were bulldozed down." Then there was the case of the Belmont Apartments in South Midland that consisted of 36 buildings with several units in each building.

The problem with the program has been primarily the turnover of persons in charge of it. "It takes a while for a new person to get a handle on it," Brown said. "We find a house that we think is bad, look up the landowner and send him letters. We have to get the legal office to look into it and get the building inspector to look at it. We have to take photos and build a file on it.'

Vacant lots, and occasionally entire blocks, dot south and east Midland as visible proof of the city's demolition program. "I would rather see vacant lots than dilapidated buildings," Brown explained.

City Attorney Joe Nuessle said the building code usually applies to new structures while the fire protection code is utilized for older buildings. In reviewing the fire code, Nuessle said the city can "enter any building or premises for the purpose of making an inspection which they feel should be made." But, the code probibits inspecting interiors of a dwelling.

Dwelling, in the City Code, is defined as a building occupied exclusively for residence purposes.

NUESSLE SAID IF an inspector wanted to check the interior of a house and obtained permission from the owner, it would be legal. But when you get into something like this (fire code), it's hard to interpret," he said A housing minimum standards code listed in the

IN HIS OPINION, the two recent fires only "highlight what people have been talking about for a long time - there's too much substandard housing." And, he cautioned, a fire killing more children could

James Brown and Joe Nuessle both acknowledge there are a large number of people who live in substandard structures. But, they question which is better: Letting the people stay where they are with a roof over their heads or pushing them out into the streets while the city tears down the structure. "People that live there (substandard housing) won't say anything to us," said Nuessle. "They don't want to get kicked out." And no one on the city staff has an idea of where these structures are located unless someone complains to the city, he added.

The city manager said many of the owners of substandard housing know that structure can't meet the City Code. But the owners bypass the city when it comes to utilities. Many landowners pay the utilities, thus eliminating any chance that once they are turned off, the city inspectors might be out looking at the place.

If the utilities are turned off for more than six months, city inspectors must check the building and call the utility company before the gas or electricity is turned on again, he said

"BUT RENTERS DON'T call us. They don't have anywhere else to go. Do we just go out and throw out these people and say this house isn't decent to live in?" questioned Brown. "I admit the problem is wrong. But until you have something to replace it, we move with caution on houses that are inhabited.

"If we had a surplus of housing, I'd say OK, move them (renters) out," he continued. "But you have to have some heart, some empathy with these people. I wish we could move them all into decent housing. That would be the Christian thing to do. Our goal now is to attack only vacant properties." Nuessle concurred.

"Seems like we've had a real chronic housing shortage around here for years. There's no public housing to move them to, or standard housing that they can afford. Unless you get a massive public housing program and provide decent, safe, sanitary housing, the next choice is for them to pitch a tent or

If the city decided to demolish all substandard housing that had people living in it, then it should "finish the job" by providing another place for the people, Nuessle suggested.

No matter how much is spent on "decent" housing. tragedies such as the two fires still could happen, the city attorney added. "I'm not being calloused, but you can have a fire any place.' In the mayor's opinion, the two fires "point out that all of us as parents need to keep close tabs on our children. The house doesn't have to be substandard for it to catch on fire and burn down. Forcing the people out of substandard housing won't solve the problem of more possible fires and tragedies, Akins believes. 'The fact that these places burned down isn't strictly because of their being substandard," he said. The solution is in still being careful in regards to

Jones, who is being phased out as Midland's chief tax assessor-collector, and his old City Hall staff have been doing the appraisals and collecting for the city, Midland ISD, Midland College and the hospital, will be separated from the city by September and will work for the tax appraisal

Jones was named chief appraiser at $40,000 a year by the six-member board in a 4-2 vote last year.

Tompson said that should the tax appraisal district rent space from the county, the district could not afford any more than $8 per square foot per year. The "going rate" for downtown office space is about $12 or more per square foot per year.

"I don't think we're looking at the maximum rate downtown." County Commissioner Durward Wright said. 'Eight (dollars) might be the limit."

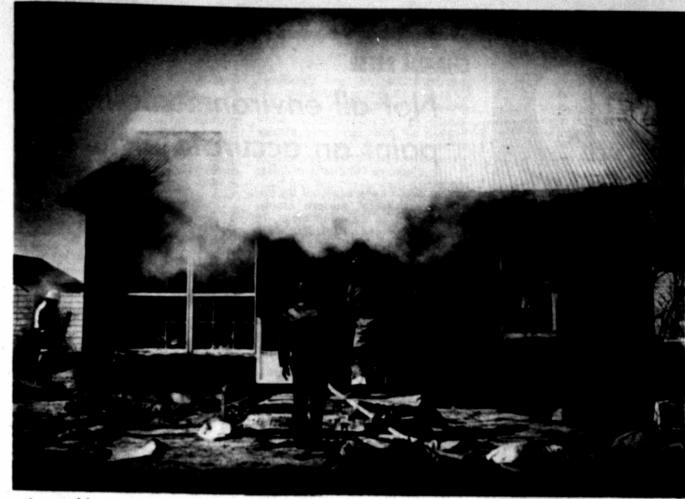

Should the county build a new annex. Wright proposed that the district would pay rent on space in helping the county pay for the building. Afterward, the district would pay its 'pro rata" share in building upkeep and operations.

Wright suggested that the proposed annex would be financed from funds in the suggested sale of the present 11,240-square foot, two-story Courthouse Annex — the old Superior Oil Co. building which the county purchased in 1964. The annex is at 218 W. Illinois Ave. and is a block north of the downtown courthouse.

One killed when rig blows

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) - A partly drilled natural gas well was buring wild in the Gulf of Mexico today after a blowout that forced dozens of men into the frigid waters, killing one and hospitalizing two, authorities said.

The rig burst into flames Monday evening, about eight hours after the blowout that sent 31 rig workers scrambling overboard, said Coast Guard spokesman Jim Munro.

Spokesmen for Placid Oil Co. of Houma, La., which owned the well, could not be reached for comment. It was not known what action was being taken to stop the fire.

Most of the rig's workers plunged into the Gulf, and authorities said 30 minutes in the cold water killed John Brewbridge, 53, of Iowa, La.

Brewbridge's heart stopped while he was being transported by helicopter to a hospital and only emergency machinery kept it working until 7 p.m., said hospital spokesman Stephen Folkson.

The worker was nearly blue when he was wheeled into the hospital, authorities said.

"The guy was really in bad shape. I don't know what his temperature was, but it was in the 80s," said hospital spokesman Stephen Folkson. "We did our best, but I guess we just couldn't get his temperature up fast enough.

Folkson said Mark Pearce, 21, of Bossier City, and Ronald Parr, 23, of Lake Charles, were in stable condi-

In all, four helicopter loads of survivors were taken to the hospital. Twenty-eight men, most of them cold and wet, were given dry towels and checked by doctors, but were not seriously hurt. Doctors said they suffered various degrees of hypother-

"I was in bed when it happened," said Kenneth McCauley, a derrick hand from Abbeville who was the last one off the rig. "I grabbed my clothes and took off, following everyone else. We thought about using the cranes, but were afraid they would blow up. So I went down the rope ladder and there were already 15 to 20 people in the water," he said. "By the time I reached the water, they had pulled a boat up and we picked the people up out of the

Another worker, a roustabout who asked that his name not be used, said, "We could not feel the blowout, but we heard the shouting It would have been like a bomb if there had been a spark. We're lucky to be here." The rig was owned by Penrod Drilling Co. of Lafayette. It was located about 15 miles off Cameron, La., in the High Island area, block 38, in the vicinty of Sabine Pass.

At the time of the blowout, the temperature was in the low 30s, with winds 18 to 20 miles an hour and the seas rolling at 4 to 5 feet. Officials said the temperature of the water was about 20 to 24 degrees. Penrod officials were not available for comment.

Van Coges, a spokesman for Placid, said cause of the blowout was not immediately determined.

Oiling the machinery

The first hint of what to expect from a new president comes with his choice of a cabinet. Now that Ronald Reagan has completed these top-level appointments, we can draw some conclusions.

Contrary to what Democrats were saying before the election, Mr. Reagan is not turning the government over to rabid rightwingers. His cabinet has a definite conservative tilt, but so does Mr. Reagan, and on an ideological scale his appointments lie about midway between the center and the deep-end.

The president-elect is not afraid of a fight. He was warned that his choice of Alexander Haig for State and James Watt for Interior would likely arouse more than token dissent in the Senate confirmation process. He stuck with his choices.

He is not persuaded that the Energy and Education Departments - those new bureaucracies created under President Carter - deserve to survive. He is assigning them to secretaries who share the same doubts.

He is not reluctant to draw one experience from the Nixon and Ford administrations even if there is national anticipation that the inaugural Jan. 20 will usher in a truly new political era in Washington. Several of his appointees have held high federal posts in the past.

He appeared to be resisting the unwritten rule that his key appointments must include a minority member and a woman, but he wound up with one of each -Samuel Pierce at Housing and Urban Development and Jeanne J. Kirkpatrick as ambassador to the United Nations. But their qualifications belie any tokenism. Both can easily stand on their

Finally, he wants some of his closest friends and advisers from his years in California politics to be close at hand in Washington -Cap Weinberger at Defense, William French Smith at Justice, and within the White House, Ed Meese, Richard V. Allen and Lynn

Assembling the right people for a new administration is one test for a president-elect, but a bigger one comes later. How are they going to mesh into an effective government? How much independence will cabinet secretaries enjoy? Who will have access to the president and how often? Is Mr. Reagan's idea for a small, select 'inner cabinet' to discuss major policy issues going to pan

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Vesco bribe probe stalled by Carter 'allies'

WASHINGTON - When law enforcement becomes entangled with White House politics and when a lackey is appointed to administer justice. then justice becomes vulnerable to the political fix.

Benjamin Civiletti, an earnest-look ing fellow with an air about him of legitimate purpose and honest naivete, has been a servile attorney general who could be trusted not to pursue White House scandals too far

He was caught lying, for example, to protect the White House in the Billy Carter case. Now there is evidence in the Robert Vesco case that Civiletti may be guilty of even worse.

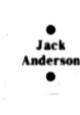

Vesco is a renegade financier who put up $12 million worth of stock in an abortive attempt to buy White House influence. The first time the incriminating facts were laid before Civiletti, according to his own handwritten notes, he acknowledged that "at least three people, maybe four are involved

Yet Civiletti merely went through the motions of conducting a grand jury investigation. The most damning facts were withheld from the grand jury for several months. Not until I learned about the whitewash and demanded to testify did the jurors learn the suppressed details from my testi-

Then the grand jury, led by a conscientious foreman named Ralph Ulmer, overrode the prosecutors and pursued the evidence. Ulmer has complained to a Senate subcommittee that Justice Department officials withheld crucial information and otherwise obstructed the investigation.

My associates Indy Badhwar and Bob Sherman have reviewed secret Justice Department files which show how the prosecutors, for example tried to destroy the credibility of a key witness.

The witness, Georgia businessman R.L. Herring, was convicted of fraud in another case and was hustled into prison under unusual circumstances. Since the conviction damaged his credibility, he offered to take a lie detector test to back up his testimony that he and an associate, Spencer Lee IV, had conspired with White House aides to fix Vesco's legal problems in return for a multimillion-dollar pay

Lee is an intimate friend of White House aides Hamilton Jordan and Richard Harden whom he protected during his own appearances before the grand jury. To bolster his testimony, Lee also agreed to take a lie detector test - which he failed, not once but twice.

At first, the Justice Department simply refused to test Herring, but this would have made a bad impression on the grand jury. So on March 6, 1980, Assistant U.S. Attorney Harry Benner and polygraph expert Warren Holmes visited Herring in prison to administer the lie detector test

They handed Herring a set of general questions, which would not have implicated the White House crowd. Herring insisted on rewording the questions so they would show direct involvement of White House officials and Carter cronies.

According to a transcript of the taped discussion between Herring and his two callers, he charged that the questions "are designed to protect individuals (in the Administration) The transcript also shows that Herring was subjected to verbal badgering and bullying before Holmes finally agreed to return later.

The questions were never revised and Holmes never returned to give Herring the test. Yet Benner falsely informed the grand jury that Herring had refused to take the test, thus destroying his credibility.

Under Senate auspices, meanwhile, Vesco passed a lie detector test. which corroborated Herring's testimony and disputed Lee's testimony. Never tested were White House witnesses, who swore to Lee's version of the facts. Yet Lee failed two lie detector tests, while Vesco passed the test and Herring was never permitted to take a meaningful test.

The grand jury was finally shut down after 18 months. Benner told the jurors flatly that the Justice Department would not prosecute any indictments because the $12 million bribery attempt was a minor influence-peddling scheme

Under those circumstances, the grand jury didn't bother to return any indictments. The prosecutors then asked the grand jury to sign a "Bill of Ignoramus" — a form which would have exonerated targets of the investigations. The jurors were handed a blank sheet of paper and were asked to list the names of those they considered innocent

The grand jury refused to list a single person, not even President Carter, who had sent a suspicious note to then-Attorney General Griffin Bell asking him to see Spencer Lee back when Lee was still in contact with Vesco.

Yet the Justice Department put out a statement implying that the grand jury, by failing to indict, had found everyone innocent. This simply was not true

WATCH ON WASTE: Uncle Sam's NATO allies are not above picking the U.S. taxpayers' pocket while they find shelter under our military umbrella. They charge the United States hefty 'property taxes' for military bases and the quarters for U.S. servicemen who are there to protect them.

In one recent year, the Pentagon paid Great Britain $1.4 million in such taxes on American bases, plus $3.3 million in housing taxes for U.S. troops. West Germany, where most of our forces are stationed, collects $6 million a year for the housing of American service families - up from $2 million a decade ago. Congress is trying to end this friendly ripoff.

Not all environmentalists

paint an accurate picture

Charley Reese

True, we humans have to live within the parameters of natural laws, but that does not mean we cannot drill an oil well in a wilderness area or stripmine coal or dispose of nuclear wastes if we use our wits to do those things in an intelligent manner. The earth's crust can heal itself from man's puny efforts a lot easier than an old widow can survive a blizzard without heat.

Some environmentalists have frankly spread a lot of falsehood and myths about the environment. I wish they could be forced to go into some foreign countries and explain to the parents of children who died of malaria after DDT was banned exactly in what way trace amounts of DDT are harmful. I would like to see them eat their prophecies of doom which they uttered at the time of the Santa Barbara oil spill which they used as an excuse to hamper offshore drilling operations. As it turns out, of course, the oil spill caused no permanent damage to the environment. As a matter of fact, I would like to see them explain why the fishing is so good around an offshore drilling platform and come up with a more economical way to keep millions of acres under trees than paper companies

The environmental movement has its extremists like any other movement and when the storm broke over Watts during the Senate confirmation process, you should have kept in mind that not everyone who cries. "Environment, Environment' is a good

We are an industrial society of over 220 million souls and we cannot turn back the clock. Environmentalists love to speak of leaving things for our children, but what many of the extreme environmentalists would leave is grinding poverty. That's the normal human condition in an unpolluted wilderness. Industrialization brought pollution but it also brought a higher standard of living, healthier children, longer lifespans, and leisure for masses of people.

The right course is the middle course between those who would irresponsibly damage the environment in the name of a quick buck and those extremists who would irresponsibly destroy the economy in the name of preserving the environment.

We must have energy to fuel our economy and we must have food Energy and food have to have a higher priority than preserving reindeer or timber wolves or whooping cranes, although it is important to keep in mind that it is not an either-or situation.

If you are inclined to agree, let me challenge you to take a test. Ask yourself if you would be willing to give away all of your assets and your present income, move to any major city, depend entirely on a job paying a few bucks above the minimum, and then still think timber wolves and whooping cranes have a higher priority than ample energy and food.

The great majority of Americans will never see the Alaskan wilderness, but they can enjoy the benefits of its oil and minerals and they have a right to do so. That oil underneath public land is as much a part of their heritage as the moose on top of it and right now they need the oil more than they do the moose.

Castro's ambition keeps him at odds with United States

By ERNEST CONINE (c) 1981, The Los Angeles Times

If these were the first days of 1978 or 1979 instead of 1981, there is no question that the Chump of the Year award should go to Fidel Castro. Better late than never.

During the first half of his presidency, Jimmy Carter made it crystalclear that he was prepared to normalize relations with Cuba, given a decent amount of accommodation on the

But Castro blew it. He allowed the historic opportunity to pass. Carter is out, Ronald Reagan is in, and it may be a long time before Cuba gets another good chance to patch things up with the United States on the basis of mutual dignity and self-respect.

Cuba-watchers are still divided over whether Castro jumped willingly into Moscow's embrace 20 years ago or was pushed by insensitive U.S. policies. In any event, Castro soon emerged as a self-proclaimed Communist and ally of the Russians.

Through most of the 1960s, Castro did his damnedest to promote revolution elsewhere in Latin America - In Colombia, Venezuela, Bolivia and Central America, among other

But it turned out that the Cuban model of revolution was not exported so easily. The crowning failure came in 1967, when Bolivian troops executed Che Guevara. Castro never entirely abandoned his subversive efforts. Young leftists inued to come to Cuba for training in guerrilla warfare. A certain quantity of Cuban arms and money still flowed to "anti-imperialist" forces in the hemisphere. Cuban propaganda remained hostile to the Unit-

Basically, however, the Castro regime shifted its attention from promoting revolution overseas to developing it at home.

In the early 1970s, under pressure of economic adversity, Castro began to put out feelers for better relations with Washington, which, beginning with the Nixon administration, made known its cautious readiness to meet the Cubans halfway

When Carter became president, the movement toward normalization quickly gained momentum. The ban on travel to Cuba by Americans was lifted, and selected Cubans were given visas to visit the United States. Quasi-embassies. called "interests sections," were established in Washington and Ha-

Foreign subsidiaries of U.S. companies were allowed to resume trade with Cuba. Provisional agreements on fishing rights and maritime boundaries were signed. Americans with dual citizenship were allowed to leave Cuba.

There was no question that Castro dearly wanted to win the lifting of the U.S. trade embargo so that Cuban sugar could once more be sold in the American market, and Cuba could gain access to U.S. credits, technology and investments.

For a few heady months Castro wined and dined one delegation of U.S. businessmen and journalists after another. Each came back with glowing accounts of Cuba's desire for accommodation. Unfortunately, though, Castro sim-ply dismissed the Carter administration's insistence that real normalization was impossible if Cuba continued to provide troops to serve Soviet interests in Africa. Castro could have reduced Cuba's military involvement quietly, without loss of face. Instead, the flow of Cuban "advisers" to places such as Angola, Ethiopia and Yemen actually increased

That would be defensible if Cuba's national interests were advanced by putting its soldiers and airmen at the service of the Soviet Union, or if the Cubans had been forced into such a role as a condition of Russian economic aid.

But U.S. experts are generally convinced that the use of Cuban soldiers as a sort of Soviet foreign legion was Castro's idea, not Leonid I. Brezhnev's. And Cuba's national interest, far from being advanced by that role, suffered because of the destructive effect on relations with Washington.

Even if the United States had chosen to swallow Cuba's involvement in Africa and the Middle East, it could hardly have overlooked Castro's increasingly overt efforts to build an anti-U.S. coalition in the Caribbean and Central America. Cuba did not create the Marxist-led Sandinista movement, which overthrew the Somoza dictatorship in Nicaragua. The guerrilla uprisings in El Salvador and Guatemala probably would have occurred if Castro had never been born. But the fact remains that Cuba has been a source of arms and military training for many guerrilla leaders in the area. Castro has gone out of his way to nourish the anti-U.S. inclinations of leaders in Grenada and Jamaica, and has made himself the international patron of the Puerto Rican independence movement.

Why does he do it? Why does the Cuban leader insist on anti-U.S. policies and posturing when he must know that by those actions he is making a normalization of relations with Washington impossible? The easy answer is that Castro is a man of ideals who will not abandon a deeply felt obligation to help revolutionary forces in other countries for the sake of better relations with the United States But that explanation gives too much credence to idealism and too little to plain egotism. It's pretty clear that Castro sees himself as a new Simon Bolivar, a "great liberator" destined to free Latin America - and maybe the whole Third World - from socalled imperialist oppression.

More than 20 years after he came down from the Sierra Maestra to establish a new government, he continues to affect the beard and military fatigues of his revolutionary youth.

There is ample evidence that Castro still would welcome a normalization of relations with the United States. But that would require him to tone down his posturing on the world stage; what would be good for Cuba would be devastating to his romantic self-image as a larger-than-life revolutionary leader. It's all very human. Unfortunately, though, it's the Cuban people who suffer from the mismatch between their country's small size and Castro's large ambitions.

It's Ronald Reagan Day in Los An-

The floors at City Hall were scrubbed and waxed, walls outside the City Council chamber were painted and pillars were polished for today's ceremonies.

The red carpet treatment laid on for Reagan was the first since Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, stopped at City Hall Oct. 26, 1977.

A City Council resolution honors Reagan as a "man of strong patriotic spirit and love for his country" and commends him for "dedicated service to insure a stronger America ... for years of distinguished leadership which has instilled a renewed sense of confidence and hope to people throughout America and ... the world for a more peaceful and economically stable international environment."

All this for a man who, during his two terms as the state's chief executive, had little to do with the city's officials, according to a spokesman for Democratic Mayor Tom Bradley.

"There was not a great deal of communication between the governor and city officials," said Tom Sullivan, Bradley's press secretary, who described relations between the Democratic mayor and the Republican governor as "proper but not very Bradley became mayor in 1973. Reagan left office at the end of 1974. Sullivan said "a couple of city officials said they never remembered seeing Reagan here (at City Hall) or hearing him talk about the problems" of Los Angeles. "The only time he was in town was when he was at home," Sullivan said.

The spokesman said Bradley, who supported President Carter's re-election campaign, "would be as proper as he can be" during the ceremon-

"He does hold a very proper respect for the office" that Reagan is assuming, Sullivan said.

Today's celebration came one day before Reagan leaves for Washington to become president and one week before he is sworn into office. And it came nearly 40 years after he arrived in Los Angles as an unknown, aspiring actor.

The president-elect is nearly moved out of his home on a hillside in the city's exclusive Pacific Palisades section. His five-bedroom house was officially listed for sale Monday asking price: $1.9 million - and movers already have taken some of the furniture and boxes of clothing on the road to Washington.

The president-elect spent most of Monday at home, except for a short trip to nearby Will Rogers State Park where he received an Arabian stallion as a gift from Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo, with whom he visited in Mexico Jan. 5. After a brief ceremony the horse was sent to the Reagan ranch near Santa Barbara to join five other horses.

While in the park, Reagan told reporters he felt developments in the Iranian hostage crisis were prompting greater optimism that went farther "than anyone has gone."

He said that what he had been told in national security briefings over the previous two days "has indicated this optimism.

Asked whether he would consider as binding any agreement reached by he said: "I hope and pray and I think the president is negotiating on a basis that we can all agree to, but on the other hand I don't think anyone should be asked to sign a blank check."

Three are hurt in truck collision

PENWELL — Three people were injured in a collision Monday that involved two truck-tractors. The accident occurred at 10: 50 a.m.

13 miles west of Odessa on Interstate Highway 20.

A spokesman for the Department of Public Safety said Charles Edward Fisher of Odessa had parked his truck on the south side of the eastbound lane of Interstate 20 for repairs. Arthur Damboise of El Paso was driving his rig eastbound on I-20 when his truck collided with the parked truck on the side of the road.

Injured were Fisher, Damboise and a passenger in the Damboise truck, Jessie Cannoy of El Paso. DPS said Damboise was admitted to Odessa Medical Center and the other two were treated and released. However, a hospital spokesman this morning said none of the three were admit-

Nation is in deep freeze from Northeast to Florida

By C.W. MIRANKER Associated Press Writer

Gripped by a ferocious deep freeze from the iceclogged harbors of the Northeast to the citrus groves of Florida, cars by the thousands refused to run, heating systems went on the blink and people yearning for warm islands began plaguing travel

The national record low Monday was 43 degrees below zero in Old Forge, N.Y., but dozens of communities had record lows for the date: Harrisburg, Pa., minus 4; Indianapolis, minus 8; Roanoke, Early today, the temperature in Jacksonville, Fla., dipped to a low of 19.

While the temperatures were dropping, business was booming at travel agencies.

"Rarely have I seen so many requests for Florida in one day. Florida, Florida, Florida - everyone wants to go to Florida," said Tom Donnelly of Foley Travel Inc. in Hartford, Conn. "I'd say it's definitely the cold weather that's making them do

'They're jumping like hot cakes to go anywhere, especially the Caribbean or the islands," said a travel agent at Garber Travel in Boston. "They come with cash in hand ready to go. One man called this afternoon and said he wanted to get out tonight. That's how desperate people are.

But in Florida, sun-seeking Northerners donned earmuffs and blankets as temperatures dipped below freezing. In Jacksonville, one man was found frozen to death.

FOR CITRUS GROWERS, the cold spell was the worst in four years, and growers' associations were monitoring weather data so they could alert farmers to turn on grove heaters or wind machines if the temperatures fell too low for too long.

been inundated with thousands of rescue calls, and auto service stores were busy.

'The weather is bringing them all in ... They want everything: batteries, cables, starting fluid,' said Rick Humphreys, manager of A&A Auto Parts in Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

People traveling by train or bus haven't been much luckier. In New York City, where Monday's chanted "No heat, no rent."

low of 2 degrees tied the record, Long Island Rail Road trains ran 30 minutes late and seven trains were canceled. Conrail also canceled one train in each of its three divisions.

Gas lines froze in buses serving Pennsylvania's Naticoke Area School District, and classes were cancelled. Students at a Birmingham, Ala., high school also got the day off when a water pipe froze in the heating system.

Schools for 15,000 children, as well as many businesses, were closed in Lowell, Mass., because jammed pipelines prevented natural gas supplies stored in Pennsylvania and New York from being shipped in.

Harbors were clogged with ice, and a ferry trip from Woods Hole to Nantucket took 12 hours in-

The Cape Cod Canal, packed solid with ice, was closed to commercial fishermen, small vessels and most barges, including ones with heating oil and gasoline for Boston and northern New England.

FISHING NETS HAVE frozen to boat decks, boats have frozen to moorings and Massachusetts fishermen were using chain saws to cut around their boats to keep the ice from crushing the hulls.

The ice also has frustrated fishermen trying to pull up their lobster pots, and Nantucket scallopers estimate they have lost $200,000.

Despite the efforts of nine Coast Guard ice cutters on Chesapeake Bay, "it freezes right back 30 minutes after we've been through it," said Lt. Rodney Bowles, assistant coordinator for the 5th Coast Guard District's ice-breaking operations. The deep freeze continues to claim lives: Three elderly men were found dead Monday in Birmingham, Ala., where the mercury registered 10 degrees. A Norfolk, Va., man was found dead Monday next to his wood stove, which was out.

Power and natural gas companies reported record-high demand, and Jacksonville, Fla., officials Across the East, automobile associations have ordered rotating power blackouts so utilities could cope with increased demand.

Doctors warn bitter cold can be a direct assault on health cold temperatures that spread across the country lately can be a direct assault on a person's physical well-being, doctors say

It's easier for the flu to get around when people are crowding together for warmth, and in some cases, living shoveling snow can trigger a heart attack.

"Our busiest times of the year are invariably January and February. It's just a less healthy time of year all around," Dr. John L. Roglieri of New York's Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center said healthy people.

Winter is hardest on the very young, the very old and the chronically ill. Death rates kept by the National Center for Health Statistics usually peak in the bleak months of December, January or February, when pneumonia and the flu take their highest Cold weather by itself doesn't cause the flu, said Dr. Timothy F. Nolan, an epidemiologist at the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

But "people might be just more crowded into offices and transportation systems and that would infusing warm solutions into the blood or abdominal make it easier for a virus to get around," he

This bug is causing "significant" numbers of deaths among the elderly nationwide, according to a preliminary CDC survey of data from 121 cities. But the precise number won't be known until the flu season is over.

Perhaps the most direct cold-weather hazard is freezing. Stranded motorists can freeze before help arrives, and elderly or sick people can die in underheated rooms that are only mildly uncomfortable to

The first signs of hypothermia — or low body temperature - are chills and paleness, followed by confusion and disorientation.

Eventually the sense of cold passes and the victim lapses into a coma-like unconsciousness so like death that doctors have a saying for it - "No one is dead until he is warm and dead.

The treatment is straightforward: Raise the body temperature. Doctors use a variety of special techniques to rewarm frozen people, including water immersion, forcing warm air into the lungs, and Normal body temperature is 98.6 degrees Fahrenheit, and most fever thermometers don't even read below about 92. But people with temperatures below 70 have been revived.

In rural Minnesota last month, a 19-year-old woman was revived after being frozen "like a piece of meat out of a deep freeze," as her doctor put it. She had spent the night in snow in temperatures down to 22 below zero.

The woman, Jean Hilliard of Lengby, suffered only frostbite that could be corrected by skin grafts, her doctors said. Her body temperature while frozen was not known, but was below the 88-degree minimum quate natural gas for homes. A spokesman for Commonwealth Gas Co., parent firm of the two local gas companies affected, said the problem was not one of a shortage of fuel but of demand outstripping pipelines' ability to handle it. Massachusetts is at the far northern end of the nation's natural gas pipeline system, and officials

"If we bail out of this one, none of us will have to worry about this again," said Harold A. Melden, vice president in charge of supplies for Commonwealth

Despite winter temperatures 25 percent colder than normal across the Northeast, the American Gas Association in Washington, D.C., said Monday that supplies remain adequate across the nation.

Steps urged to stretch energy reserves during intense cold

By The Associated Press

Record cold is creating record demand for heating fuels across much of the United States, utilities report. And while fuel supplies are reported ample, some conservation steps are being urged to stretch reserves - just in case.

In New Jersey, homeowners were urged Monday to set thermostats at 65 degrees during the day and 55 degrees at night, to close draperies and blinds to reduce heat loss and to set water heaters at no higher than 110 degrees.

"We have been alerted by the gas utilities of a need to cut back on gas usage throughout the state because of a concern that the cold spell will deepen, putting pressure on reserves which are already below acceptable levels," said state Energy Commissioner Joel R. Jacobson. Similar conservation steps were urged in Massachusetts, where schools and factories in the Lowell and Cape Cod area closed Monday to ensure ade-

The Edison Electric Institute and the National Electric Reliability Council, meanwhile, said that nationwide demand was not outstripping generating

There have been spot shortages, however. Rotating blackouts of about 15 minutes each were ordered for 71,000 customers of the city-owned Jacksonville Electric Authority after demand surged near full capacity of 1,228 megawatts Monday morning. The temperature in the Florida city dipped to 27 degrees. Similar chill elsewhere in the South created similar demand. Georgia Power Co. said demand in the Atlanta area was the highest since winter 1977. Philadelphia Electric said demand was hovering round 4 million to 5 million kilowatts daily, "the kind of demand we plan for a cold spell." However, natural gas demand in the utility's four-county service area was running at peak levels, causing pockets of low pressure that knocked out

The same problem was reported by Atlanta Gas Co., which called out extra crews, according to

Meanwhile, in the nation's largest city, record cold triggered record demand for energy. The temperature in New York City dropped to 2 degrees at 7 a.m. Monday, and in the following hour customers of Brooklyn Union Gas used a record 38.7 million cubic feet of natural gas. An hour later, Consolidated Edison reported, demand for steam to heat office and apartment buildings soared to 12.1 million pounds - second only to 12.8 million pounds used last Valentine's Day.

Since Christmas, both New York utilities have posted their top three days ever for natural gas demand. However, both reported adequate supplies with no delivery problems anticipated.

A short time later, the front ranks of the "inaugurai parade" stepped away from the East Front of the Capitol and headed down Pennsylvania Avenue. Sunday's version actually was only a small mili-

City's poor seek refuge from cold, heatless homes

NEW YORK (AP) — Dorothy Wright's children put a pot on the kitchen table in her Brooklyn apartment, filled it with paper and set a match to it — just to keep warm. They haven't had heat since winter began.

winter began.

"We were wearing four pairs of pants, two sweaters, lying under eight quilts and we still were cold," Ms. Wright recalled Sunday as she sat in a New York City shelter where more than 270 people have sought refuge from dwellings without heat, gas or water.

The Northeast's cold snap has taken a human toll in New York City. Hundreds of thousands of the city's poor live in dilapidated apartments where bone-chilling winds whip through broken windows, rusty boilers provide little, if any, heat and gas leaks are a way of life.

are a way of life.

In Ms. Wright's apartment, water has been frozen in the toilet since December, the gas was shut off after someone stole a gas pipe and her cat froze to death one recent night. Sunday's high was 19 and no relief from the biting, bitter cold was on the way

"We spent some of our savings on a hotel, just to get to someplace warm," said Ms. Wright, 30, who draws $83 a month in state aid to feed and clothe her draws $83 a month in state aid to feed and clothe her two sons, ages 8 and 11. "Now we're here. I pray the city relocates us. But I pray so much I'm tired. I'm beginning to think he doesn't even hear anymore."

New York's Human Resources Administration and the Red Cross have opened a shelter at a red-brick National Guard armory on upper Fifth Avenue, overlooking the windswept Harlem River — far from the avenue's fashionable shops.

Transients joined families on welfare and a few homeowners in the moist warmth of the cavernous brick building.

brick building.

For every person in the shelter, there are a hundred who refuse to leave their apartments, fearing burglars will take what little they have. The ing burglars will take what little they have. The fortunate ones — those with gas service — are using their ovens and stoves for warmth, despite the dangers of fire and asphyxiation. They'll worry later about the gas bills they can't afford to pay.

Several people have died as a result of the cold since bitter temperatures arrived Christmas Day. City officials say nearly 400,000 residents have complained of heatless buildings, and one landlord was arrested last week after a housing court judge had tried for a month to get him to supply heat to his six-story apartment building.

The city also has spent $5 million repairing boilers, delivering fuel and setting up shelters.

In the Hariem armory, refugees from the cold relaxed on flimsy cots covered with green government-issue blankets, eating chicken sandwiches and hot vegetable soup and thankful they wouldn't have to spend another night sleeping in their coats under piles of blankets.

to spend another night sleeping in their coats under piles of blankets.

"We would boil water, open the oven door for warmth, and then wash up in the kitchen sink," said Mildred Harris, 24, who with her 6-year-old son moved into the shelter on Tuesday.

The boiling water created a sheet of ice on the windows and "when everybody in the building would put on their ovens, you could hear the plaster cracking," Ms. Harris said.

"We couldn't afford to pay our gas bill, so (the utility) cut off our electricity," she added. "They can't cut off your gas." But her son was having trouble breathing and had

Jose and Nancy Mojica decided to move out of their fourth-floor apartment in The Bronx when "it got colder inside than outside," said Mojica.

Mojica, 19, quit his job as a cashier two weeks ago to take care of his wife and 2-year-old son. When his son developed a high fever and bronchitis, he sent them to a relative's house and camped out in the apartment himself.

"We'd already been burglarized once. I had to watch our things," he said.

Search for trapper called off in Nevada

WINNEMUCCA, Nev. (AP) — Four days of intensive searching produced "absolutely nothing" on the whereabouts of trapper Claude Dallas Jr., accused of slaying two conservation officers, and a Névada sheriff has called off the formal hunt.

Authorities in Idaho and Nevada had combed desert and mountain areas around Winnemucca for Dallas since Wednesday, after the body of one Idaho Fish and Game officer was found. A second officer is missing.

Frank Weston, sheriff of Nevada's Humboldt
County, said Sunday he was calling off the organized search although deputies would continue looking for the fugivitive.

Weston said his department would continue to check out leads. Ground crews would concentrate today on looking for the missing officer, William "Bill" Pogue, Weston said. Officers say a man identified as Jim Stevens said he saw a shooting at Dallas' remote mountain camp on Monday. Stevens said Dallas allegedly threw the body of Wilson Conley Elms, 34, into a river and disposed of Pogue's body somewhere in the Nevada

A federal fugitive warrant was signed against Dallas after it was believed he crossed the Nevada-

Even though some of the searchers were dropping out, at least one pledged to remain "as long as it takes." Ed Pogue, brother of Bill Pogue, joined the search on Friday.

Authorities turned to sophisticated infra-red cameras, a psychic and skin divers in their search, but nothing was turned up.

Dale Baird, chief of enforcement for the Idaho Fish and Game Department, said if Dallas were still in the area, it would be very difficult to find him "in

During the Civil War, the battleship Merrimack was scuttled to block the entrance to a harbor. From this desperate act was derived the term "Merrimack Coup," a play where a defender deliberately sacrifices a high honor for the purpose of knocking out an entry. But if the sea route is blocked, there is nothing to stop you from going by land!

Although North held only 8 points, he felt that his good six-card suit amply compensated for any high-card shortage. We endorse his decision to bid three no trump.

West led the four of spades, won by East with the ace. Had East tamely returned a spade, this column would never have been written. But East could see that dummy's diamond suit posed a very real threat and that it was vital to attack dummy's entry - the ace of clubs - before the ace of diamonds was dged. A shift to a low club would have proven ineffective for declarer would win in his hand and force out the ace of diamonds. Therefore. East made the brilliant shift to the king of clubs— the Merrimack Coup!

It would have been to no avail to hold up the ace of ny of a loved one. GEMINI (May 21-June clubs - East would simply continue the suit to render dummy entryless. So declarer won the ace but now he could count only eight tricks - two spade, two hearts, one diamond and three clubs. However, he found an intriguing method of bringing home his contract.

After winning the ace of clubs, declarer ran dummy's nine of hearts. West won the jack and exited with a club to declarer's jack. Declarer led the queen of diamonds and overtook in dummy with the king.

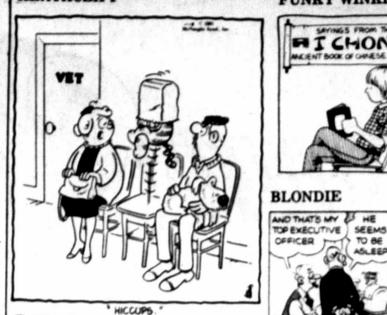

East could not afford to win the diamond, for that would set up the whole suit

Cubans may still arrive in Texas

MARSHALL, Texas (AP) — Despite a barrage of protests aired against the proposed relocation of Cuban refugees into seven East Texas counties, the head of a church placement agency said he expects the first Cubans to arrive as scheduled "in three to four weeks."

An East Texas congressman called an all-day hearing Monday "a waste of time" and said the federal government wasn't interested in getting output from the East Texas officials and law officers who attended an all-day meeting.

The information offered at the meeting dealt primarily with "what type of people will be sent," said an angry U.S. Rep. Sam Hall, a Marshall The total rejection of all the law enforcement people here should be reason enough not to proceed with the relocation plan," Hall said. East Texas officials and law officers met behind closed doors Monday morning with representatives of World Relief Organization - which had announced plans to move from 150 to 300 Cubans to East Texas - and representatives of the Justice Department's community relations de-

The Rev. T. Grady Mangham, director of refugee services for the World Relief Organization of Wheaton, Ill., said in a telegram that the opposition to the move has prompted his group to review the proposal. However, the proposed move would be effected through Bellvue Missions — a spinoff of the Bellvue Baptist Church of Hurst — which located 143 Cubans in Haltom City in October, and its president said he is moving forward with the relocation plans..

Ronald Meers, president of Bellvue Missions, said he won't relocate any Cubans who don't have housing or jobs assured, but that if jobs and housing can be found he has the authority, guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution, to bring the Cubans into East Texas without local approval.

Mangham's telegram said, "We are not certain at this time if World Relief can now undertake the East Texas resettlement, and are currently reviewing the situation and its feasibility within our own agency." He added, "We work exclusively through local churches and it is not our policy to bring people into communities in any way which would prove disruptive.' Justice Department officials had told officials of area towns in December that as many as 2,000 of the 5,000 Cuban refugees remaining at Fort Chaffee, Ark., might be transferred to the East Texas counties of Gregg.

Harrison, Camp, Morris, Titus, Franklin and Upshur. They amended that Monday, saying that was merely a possibility, not a World Relief is a 34-year-old relief and development organization of the National Association of Evangelicals. It has helped resettle Indochinese refugees throughout the United States.

We have a very successful record of bringing in refugees without any disruption to the community," said Dick Burrow of World Relief. "It's not our policy to dump people

Local law enforcement officers were not given "a chance to express themselves," Hall complained. When Hall learned the officials had not polled those attending the meeting to see how many supported the resettlement plan, he said he conducted his own poll, asking those in favor of the plan to stand up. "No one stood up," he said.

Elected officials from all seven counties presented unanimous resolutions opposing the refugee relocation. The congressman said he felt government officials offered very little new information at the meeting, which was closed to the public.

The congressman said he spoke with Texas Attorney General Mark White about the relocation Sunday and that he would meet with representatives of White's office again to determine what action should be

After the morning closed-doors meeting and a luncheon for about 40 city and county officials, about 120 citizens from across East Texas joined the officials for another meeting that became a forum for questions that often were hostile.

If the World Relief Organization pays attention to what was said at Monday's meeting, the relocation proposal "will die on the vine," Hall

State legislators take oath today

Two tests of strength, 42 new faces expected

By GARTH JONES Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Texas' lawmakers take an oath shortly after noon today to do their best for Texas voters and taxpayers the next two years. For at least the next 140 days, ending June 1, the 31 senators and 150 state representatives will wrestle with the critical problems of better schools, tax breaks for homeowners and redistribution of lawmaking power.

The session also is a test for Gov. Bill Clements, the first Republican chief executive in Texas this century, who is expected to seek re-election in 1982. Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby in the Senate and Secretary of State George Strake in the House will call the 67th Legislature to order at noon. There will be eight new senators and 34 new faces in the House.

If things go according to the political script, Strake will quickly yield the House gavel to Speaker Bill Clayton, who has more than enough votes for election to an unprecedented fourth term as speaker.

Clayton made an apparent lightning-fast political comeback after a federal court jury in Houston acquitted him Oct. 22 of corruption charges arising from the FBI's Brilab "sting" investigation.

Although Clayton expects the votes of more than 115 of the 150 House members, Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, says he remains a candidate.

Clements also is expected to push hard for legisla-tion designed to improve public schools by requiring new teachers to take competency examinations. Taxpayer outcries also will get attention, with a host of bills and constitutional amendments designed to lower property taxes or keep them within reason following mandatory revaluations.

Monday night Clements appeared at an Austin reception with tax crusader Howard Jarvis, who is ending a six-day, 18 city tour of Texas. Jarvis predicted a tax revolt because of the 1979 state law requiring assessment of Texas property for taxation at 100 percent of market value.

Arbor Day was once a special event in the lives of citizens of this state. In many communities, the trees that are so admired today are the direct result of the labor and attention given so readily by the children

In recent years much has been written about the value of trees for other purposes than to provide lumber and shade. Research reports indicate that tree barriers can greatly reduce noice levels from traffic and industry. They also serve as giant air cleaners filtering out the dust as well as utilizing the Cotton harvest delayed again by rain

By CHARLES W. GREEN Midland County Extension Agent - Agriculture

Midland cotton producers, about 90 percent complete with the harvest, were delayed again this week by the rain in their effort to get out the meager yield of the 1980 crop. The moisture could be considered a plus, however, in that it does keep out soil-water status in excellent condition for this time of the year. Land preparation - listing and deep breaking which has already begun on harvested field, is being carried out in excellent fashion and the deep moisture reserves are a definite positive in looking to this season's crop and range prospects.

"HOW TO SUCCEED with Roses in West Texas" will be the subject of an in-depth seminar, scheduled from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Thursday in the Midland Room, Midland National Bank building.

Sponsored by the Midland Rose Society with the County Extension Landscape and Turf Committe cooperating, the seminar is open to the public and is designed to assist the newcomer or native West Texan is sharpening their rose-growing skills.

Program topics will deal with the basics as well as the special problems of soil, water and climate that must be understood and dealt with in growing roses. successfully in this section of the state.

Committee will serve as moderator. Midland Rose Society members Joy Butts, Dr. T.E. Spires and Jim Galyean will discuss construction of rose beds, selecting and planting bare root roses and pruning exsisting rosebushes. Charles Green, County Extension Agent (Agri.) will talk about Midland soil types and characteristics of structure and fertility and they realate to rose growing.

Information packets containing take-home information will be provided all program participants. The seminat will provide localized information, presented in easy-to-understand form for anyone

Church groups promise anti-homosexual drive

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) - A coalition of church leaders is fighting a bill to outlaw job discrimination against homosexuals as part of a campaign against laws that "protect immorality."

The Rev. Jose Granda of the First Amendment Coalition of Davis questioned Monday whether homosexuals are a "legitimate" minority deserving legal protection.

He said religious leaders will organize to defeat lawmakers who threaten their "family and cultural values.

The fight over the bill introduced by Assemblyman Art Agnos of San Francisco is shaping up as a repeat of one that occurred last year.

After an estimated 3,000 gay rights advocates demonstrated in Sacramento last year, Agnos defeated fundamentalist church opposition in committees. But the bill was killed on the Assembly floor. This time, Californians for a Biblical Morality made the first public move by promising a campaign to kill the Agnos bill and defeat legislators who vote against "family values."

The Bible condemns homosexuality as a sin and a crime," said the Rev. Roger Wagner of Sonoma, spokesman for Californians for Biblical Morality.

Auditions scheduled for spring opera production

Auditions for Midland College's spring opera production have been scheduled for Saturday and Sun-

Midland College will stage the light opera "The Merry Widow" by Franz Lehar this year. Dr. Charles Lawson has set auditions for singing and speaking roles from 7: 30 to 10: 30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday at Theatre Midland. Scores and material for persons wishing to audition may be obtained from Dr. Lawson at Midland College's Allison Fine Arts Building. Additional information may be obtained by calling him at Midland College, 684-7851, or at home, 699-9952.

Midland College staged the community's first locally-produced opera last spring and drew standing-room crowds for its presentation of "Die Fleder-

Lawson noted that, in addition to principal singers for the opera, there would be places for those who would like to be in the chorus, understudy roles, plus backstage opportunities in stage management, lighting, sound, costumes, make-up or general help-

"Although this is a Midland College production, we would like to involve the general community in the opera," Lawson said. "They can learn a great deal about opera, but also can become involved with the many aspects of staging a production."

Performances of "The Merry Widow" will be held in Theatre Midland in April, Lawson said.

Mafia chief sentenced SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Reputed Mafia chieftain Joseph Bonanno, who is 76 and reportedly suffering from cancer, has received the first prison sentence of what federal officials say has been a 50-year career in crime.

U.S. District Judge William Ingram sentenced Bonanno on Monday to the maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine on a September conviction for conspiring to interfere with a federal grand jury investigating allegations that money was 'laundered" through his sons' busin-

However, Ingram said he might reduce Bonanno's sentence to two years or to probation if the defendant's health was found to be sufficiently poor.

"On account of my health, I have nothing to say," remarked Bonanno, who stood calmly before the judge. His attorney, Albert Krieger, said he would appeal the conviction. Ingram said the investigation of Bonanno's health would take place after the

During the sentencing, Krieger argued for leniency, saying Bonanno suffers from bladder cancer and is recovering from the death last year of his wife, Fay.

Bonanno, whose sentencing was repeatedly delayed because of claims by his attorneys that he was too ill to attend, has also suffered several heart attacks and said he was too sick to travel from his Tucson, Ariz.,

After the sentencing, Bonanno was released on $75,000 bail and a bond amounting to 10 percent of the value of his personal property.

Bonanno's only previous conviction was on a misdemeanor violation of the wages and hours act in New York City in 1945. He was fined $450.

His alleged crime career goes back to the 1930s, when he was accused of running guns for Chicago mobster Al Capone. During that era, authorities say, Bonanno joined younger Mafia members in attempts to take over the organization in New York.

Dogs rebound to down Mojo

By TERRY WILLIAMSON Sports Writer

After two straight tough losses to Abilene Cooper and Midland Lee, the Midland High girls basketball team could have rolled over and played dead for Odessa Permian at the Chaparral Center Monday night, but they Janice Littlefield pumped in 19 points, 17 coming in the second half, to lead the Bulldogs to a 58-45 District 5-5A victory over the Panthers to even the district record at 2-2 and upped the season mark to 10-12. Permian, a much taller team, fell to 1-3 and 8-13.

"I thought our girls just played super," MHS coach Jane Young said after the contest. "We've got some people who can play and I told them that we could very easily be 4-0 at this point in the district with just a switch

MHS ranks 9th in poll

Texas stuns Hogs

By KEVIN McCULLEN Associated Press Writer

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) -Texas Coach Abe Lemons said he was shocked by the Longhorns' 62-60 Southwest Conference basketball victory over Arkansas Monday night.

Winning this was a bigger surprise for me than beating Arkansas up here two years ago," Lemons said.

It was the only game involving Southwest Conference teams Monday night. Baylor is at Rice, Houston is at Southern Methodist and Texas Christian is at Texas Tech tonight. The Longhorns spread out their offense and shot selectively. Defensively, the Longhorns prevented the Razorbacks from scoring inside and outrebounded Arkansas 28-

Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton praised the Longhorns' game plan. "Texas played a great game," Sutton said. "It was perhaps their greatest game of the year. They showed a lot of patience. They spread our offense out to go one-on-one on us." "A couple of times our guards gambled and gave (Ray) Harper and (Fred) Carson easy shots. This time we weren't on our magic level." The Longhorns snapped a 21-game scored Texas' last point on a free throw with Arkansas' fans screaming frantically to distract him, said the Longhorns were confident with their game plan.

"We knew what we were going to have to do and we went out and did it," Wacker said.

"We gave them the shot deep in the corners and from the top of the key

"The big key was our defense. We never let them inside.

The Longhorns led most of the game, and held a four-point advantage at 59-55 with 1:30 to play.

The Razorback's Darrell Walker stole the ball and dunked it to cut the lead to 59-57 with under one minute to

The Razorbacks forced a turnover seconds later and Tony Brown scored on a layin to tie the score at 59-all.

Walker fouled Carson on the inbound play and Carson buried two free throws to put Texas back on top

The Razorbacks missed a shot moments later but Greg Skulman grabbed the rebound and was fouled by Texas' Henry Johnson with 12 seconds left.

Skulman missed his first free throw but sank the second and Arkansas trailed 61-60. Skulman fouled Wacker who had 12 points in the game and Wacker sank one of his two free throws to preserve the Longhorns'

The win was Texas' first in league play. The Longhorns now are 1-3 in conference play and 6-7 overall. Arkansas suffered its first conference loss and the Razorbacks are 2-1 in the conference and 11-4 overall.

Lee girls retain share of first place

ODESSA-Midland Lee's girls scored a resounding 69-41 District 5-A basketball victory over Odessa High here Monday night and re-mained on a collision bound course with San Angelo Thursday night in San Angelo.

San Angelo nudged Abilene Cooper, 52-50, in a battle of district unbeatens Monday to boost its record to 4-0 in district while the Cougars dropped to 3-1. In other action, Abilene High demolished Big Spring, 66-28.

Midland Lee jumped in front 19-11
after a period and led 31-20 at half before blowing the lid off the contest in the third period by outscoring OHS 15-7 for a 57-27 advantage.

We played well in the second half," said Coach Shirley Stephenson in what may be the understatement of the young year.
Gayle Wilson led Lee with 15 points on seven field goals and a free throw, but Shun Harris with 14 points and Washun King with 12 also scored in double figures. Ten of the 11 Lee players to see action crashed the scoring column

Gibbs selected to direct Redskins

WASHINGTON (AP) - Joe Gibbs, hired Monday night as the new head coach of the Washington Redskins, says he hopes to field a team "the fans can be real proud of."

According to publish accounts, Gibbs, who is leaving his position as offensive coordinator for the highpowered San Diego Changers, agreed to a three-year contract believed to be worth $100,000 per year. The 40-yearold Gibbs agreed to terms after a five-hour meeting in a New York hotel with Redskins owner Jack Kent Gibbs succeeds Jack Pardee, who was fired after the Redskins' 6-10 finish this season and clashes with General Manager Bobby Beathard. Last season, Washington's record was 10-6 and Pardee was coach of the year in the National Football League's National Conference. Gibbs and Beathard flew to New York from San Diego after the Chargers, who gave the Redskins permission to talk to Gibbs, lost to the Oakland Raiders in Sunday's American Conference championship game. A sense of urgency was attached to the meeting because Gibbs also had been linked to the coaching vacancy with the New Orleans Saints. "I'm, of course, elated," said

Gibbs, who did not reveal the terms of his contract. "I'm just very thankful to be put in this situation where you can actually accomplish your life's dream.

"Joe is going to bring a cohesion to our team," said Cooke, who also would not discuss details of the pact. "I think the young fellow has blazed a new trail, taking advantage of the changes that are occurring in the National Football League. He's at the forefront of those changes, and I be-lieve he's going to introduce the new path into the Redskins' offense."

MHS unanimous 5-5A cage pick

Midland High was the unamimous choice of 13 voting writers and coaches to win the District 5-5 A basketball title, polling a maximum 96 points. Points were awarded eight for first, seven for second, six for third,

The Buildogs, 10-3, garnered 1.2 first place votes. Coaches were not permitted to vote for their own teams. Abilene registered the other first place vote to finish a distant second with 69 points.

Odessa Permian and San Angelo tied for third with 65 each.

Midland Bulldogs have high hopes for 5-5A cage race

By TERRY WILLIAMSON Sports Writer

The saying goes that "Hope is Eter-nal", but that doesn't hold water in the District 5-5A basketball race. It just doesn't take too many slips for hope to vanish.

But at least today there is solid hope on all fronts as the league season gets underway at four sites tonight, Eight teams with hope — the record clean at this point in time. One (Midland High) may have more hope than all the rest with the best record heading into loop action at 17-3 and picked by virtually everyone to win the crown. But the other seven teams aren't dead yet, and they won't give in without a battle. Midland High is the marked team and gun sights have been set.

MIDLAND LEE coach Paul Stueckler is one with hope as his Rebels entertain Odessa High at 8 p.m. today at Chaparral Center. "I'm really looking forward to the district race. I think we will be able to compete in this district and our kids are improving," Stueckler says.

Tonight's outing is a very important test for the Lee Rebels because they need to get off to a fast start. The Rebels own a meager 9-11 record entering the game, but eight of their losses have been by three points or less. They need something good to happen to them.

Lee has the makings of a good team with the heavy handed shooting of Alvin Dunson, who is averaging around 18 points per game, and Kenneth Brown, who is a rebounding demon. Brown recently had 27 rebounds against Sweetwater to break a school record that had been on the books for 17 years. Randy Pepper, Andre Van Buren and Darius Berry all have had big games for the Rebs this season.

There are two ways to look at Lee's performance of late. They have lost six of their last eight games, but they have won two of their last three. Last week Lee defeated El Paso Austin and lost by three to El Paso Irvin. Irvin lost by one point to MHS earlier this year.

ODESSA HIGH is only 4-15 on the season and has long been the doormat of the loop, winning the fewest district games of any team in the past five or six years. The Bronchos have lost eight games in a row. However, OHS is considered to be vastly improved this year despite their record. They do have 6-2 senior Rayford Wright, who is averaging over 17 points a game and they have some height with 6-5 Jimmy Gillilland, 6-4 Ray Kesler and 6-4 Tommy Stahl. Larry Natividad is also capable of scoring.

Meanwhile, Midland High returns to the site of "The Downfall" when they meet Odessa Permian in Odessa at 8 p.m. today. Midland High lost an overtime decision on Permian's floor last season, which set up the district playoff game in Big Spring where Permian eliminated MHS from the playoffs with an 83-82 heart

MHS doesn't want that to happen again this year, but coach Jack Ste-phenson refuses to see the game as a revenge match. "This is an important game for us because it is the first district game and we want to win it. But I don't see it as a revenge match. I hope its not that way with our kids

BUT ONE wonders what is in the mind of 6-9 All-American Herbert Johnson, who missed a free throw last year in the playoff against Permian that could have possibly sent the game into overtime.

Johnson is averaging well over 20 points per game this season, but the Bulldogs have ample support with Horace Brown, who is just under 20 points per outing. After those two comes "The Bench", maybe the best in the league, and Stephenson goes there often in the course of a game. The Bulldogs have the best depth in the league and there is not much question about that. "I sometimes think it would be much easier if we had five solid starters and go with them, but all these kids can play and I'm not afraid to use them," Stephen-

Permian is 9-7 on the year and is led by 6-8 Mike Woolley, who is averaging about 10 points per outing. He is the leading scorer, but Permian seems to be a defensive minded unit.

Permian has not played a game since Dec. 30 and there are two ways to look at that. They could be well rested or they could be a little rusty. MHS is on a two-game winning streak with two victories over a good Lub-bock Estacado team last week.

In other games tonight, San Angelo (12-5) tests Abilene Cooper (7-9) while Big Spring (9-9) goes against Abilene High (11-7).

They have captured the imagination of a state, but the Connecticut Huskies might lose it all if they don't wake up, says basketball Coach Dom

Fans were hoping for a national ranking after their Huskies won their 11th straight game this season, including a 78-59 romp over Syracuse last week, and many Connecticut newspapers, and radio and television stations expected it.

"Huskies Focus in on National Picture" Monday's lead story in The Herald of New Britain, Conn., read. Braves sign

ATLANTA (AP) - Pitcher Gaylord Perry signed a one-year contract reportedly worth $300,000 with the Atlanta Braves Monday and said he plans to make sure the Braves get their money's worth.

"People talk about my age, but I know I have a lot of good baseball left in me," the 42-year-old Perry said at a news conference. Perry, a North Carolina native, is that milestone next season. 'Now my family and friends can watch on TV and share in the thrill of Perry was referring to television station WTBS in Atlanta, which televises most Braves' games over cable television systems around the country. The station is owned by Ted Turner, who also owns the Braves.

The Braves did not release details of the contract, but Al Thornwell, the Braves' executive vice president, said a report that it was worth $300, 000 "was good speculation."

Perry had a 10-13 record overall last season with the Texas Rangers and New York Yankees. The 19-year veteran has 289 major league victories.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) - The National Collegiate Athletic Association is scheduled to vote today on a financial aid plan based on need which its opponents say could open the door to wholesale cheating in football

In fact, one athletic director says he hopes the NCAA's major football schools ignore it if it passes, while a conference commissioner says he'd just as soon be kicked out of the organization than go along with

The proposed legislation specifies that Division I and II institutions shall award financial aid only on the basis of need, except for tuition, fees and required course-related books. Division III already has adopted need.

The need issue failed by a whisker five years ago, thanks to an impassioned speech by the Rev. Edmund P. Joyce. executive vice president of Notre Dame

'I'm going to speak on it again," Father Joyce said Monday. "It creates the temptation to cheat and it could do serious damage to college the fabric of integrity." The Big Ten adopted a need formula in the late 1950s, but it proved to be a disaster and was repealed after a few years. The need proposal is given a real chance for passage this time. Frank Broyles, athletic director and former football coach at Arkansas, says it's "because the college presidents have gotten involved and they're looking at the bottom line and not how the coach on the field has to deal with it. It's impossible to administer. Broyles pointed out that Southern schools ignored the NCAA's socalled "sanity code" in the 1940s and said, "and I hope they ignore this like they did then. The major schools namely, the 61 members of the College Football Association - want to decide their own bottom line. But the CFA comprises only 22.6 percent of the 292 voting members in Division I. Penn State Coach Joe Paterno calls the need issue "an awfully impor-

The immediate effect if need passes, says Georgia Coach Vince Dooley, would be "confusion. It opens up all sorts of questions."

Like, "cheating and slush funds," adds Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer.

Other proposed football-related legislation includes: eliminating the limit of 30 scholarships for one year, while retaining the overall maximum of 95 at one time; instituting a progress rule toward a degree to remain eligible; cutting down on recruiting time; reducing the number of campus visits by a prospect; adding a ninth fulltime assistant coach; and permitting a tiebreaker in bowl games.

Dallas lost on turf, not in psychology

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Tom Landry gives Philadelphia its due on the field, but the Dallas Cowboys' coach refuses to concede the Eagles an A-plus in psy-

In the wake of Philadelphia's 20-7 National Conference title victory, Eagles' Coach Dick Vermeil hinted. Dallas might have been suffering from the big head.

"I kept saying Dallas had a great team because I wanted them to come in here overconfident," said Ver-Landry said Monday "what they

'They weren't playing in that final game like they were Sunday," said Landry. "Now THAT's the kind of thing that rocks you to sleep. It's hard to convince our guys that the Eagles will be a different team. But it's certainly nothing that was said or the blue jersies." Vermeil opted for the Eagles to wear white jersies, forcing to Cowboys to slip on blue, a color in which they were batting only .500 lifetime. Landry said what happened to the Cowboys psychologically was the same thing that brought Los Angeles down in the NFC wild card game. "The Rams beat us 38-14 then had to turn around and play us two weeks later," said Landry. "There was no way you could convince the Ram players that they weren't going to believed it." The 21-year veteran Dallas coach refused to accept running back Tony Dorsett's assessment that he cost the Cowboys the game with a third quar"It was the biggest play of the game without a doubt. It's something I've got to live with and it's going to haunt me until next year," Dorsett said.

Landry called the fumble "a critical play at the time but one play didn't give them the game. No one player should take the blame. Philadelphia deserved to win. There were other mistakes out there.'

The Cowboys were trailing 10-7 but had moved to the Eagle 40 on a 28-yard completion from Danny White to Jay Saldi. The next play, cornerback Roynell Young hit Dorsett and linebacker Jerry Robinson picked up the fumble and returned it 22 yards to the Cowboys' 38. Six plays later the Eagles scored a touchdown.

"If we had gone down and scored on that drive we would have had a psychological edge, but you just have to give Philadelphia credit. Defense was the key to the game and the Eagles played the best defense," Landry

Comeback at 23

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - Randy Lightfoot, a four-year pro bidding to make a comeback at the age of 23, averaged 242 for eight games and held an 18-pin lead after the first round of play Monday in the $135,000 Professional Bowlers Association

Showboat Invitational. Lightfoot, of St. Charles, Mo., rolled high games of 259, 258 and 259 and headed the field of 384 bowlers with a total of 1937. Mark Roth of Spring Lake Heights, N.J., was second at 1919 and Joe Hutchinson of Scranton, Pa., was third at 1880. In fourth at 1877 was Cary York of Salem, Ore., and rookie Steve Ru-dolph rolled 1874 over the eight games and was fifth.

Lightfoot was the youngest bowler ever to qualify for the PBA's nationally televised finals when he finished fifth in the 1976 St. Louis tournament while still in high school. Two years later, after turning pro, he won the biggest first prize ever offered for a PBA event — $30,000 — when he captured a tournament in Miami.

But his career went downhill after that. He earned only $7,315 last year and he even quit the tour for awhile.

Chrysler talks to resume today

By GUY DARST Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The struggle to save Chrysler Corp. from bankruptcy is testing the patience of workers and suppliers as the government bargains over its conditions for $400 million more in loan guaran-

The key issue in talks resuming today after four days of negotiations at Chrysler's Michigan headquarters is the company's proposed $600 million wage freeze.

Treasury Secretary G. William Miller also reportedly wants assur-ances the United Auto Workers union will not try to regain parity with the other Big Three automakers all at once when the current contract expires in September 1982.

UAW President Douglas Fraser, who is a member of Chrysler's board of directors, warned during the week end there are limits to the workers' patience. Asked whether Miller's requirement might sink the negotiations, Fraser replied, "It could cause serious problems."

Some of Chrysler's 20,000 suppliers may be nearing the limits of their patience, too. Chrysler, which expects to report a loss of $1.7 billion for 1980. has acknowleged it is not paying most Company sources say about a dozen suppliers have worked out deals to be paid with cars, and others have halted shipments for "eight hours, 12 hours, came through.

Fraser said the truck assembly plant in Warren, Mich., near Detroit, scheduled before Christmas for closing this week to reduce truck inventories, cannot resume production because it has no gasoline tanks, tank attachment straps, radiators and carpets. Suppliers of those items have held up shipments because their bills have not been paid, he said.

The UAW president says he is wor ried about the latest demands sought by Miller, who is chairman of the Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board which the treasury secretary hopes to reconvene Wednesday. The board is reworking Chrysler's latest survival plan to clear the way for approval of the crippled, cash-short No. 3 automaker's application for $400 million more in government loan guaran-

Fraser, saying the September 1982 negotiations should be left to Chrysler and the UAW, said he thought Miller was "exceeding his legal mandate" by seeking assurances about union goals for the 1982 contract.

Union members "don't want to extend the time unnecessarily (that) we'll be at a disadvantage vis-a-vis the other companies," Fraser said

Chrysler's 64,000 active UAW members in the United States and Canada twice before have approved concessions totalling $446 million in an attempt to save the company. Fraser has said he was "not too confident" another round can win approval in the necessary ratification vote

While Chrysler and the UAW are negotiating with Miller, Chrysler is also trying to win acceptance of previously announced requests of suppliers to cut prices 5 percent through March and hold them at the old levels through December, Fraser said.

Miller will be dealing with 125 banks who have been asked to convert $572 million in outstanding loans into preferred stock, Fraser added

On Saturday, the union revived decades-old proposals calling for disclosure to the union of financial data until now kept secret. Fraser declined to specify what he was looking for, but added, "Boy, I'd love to know produc-

Crowds defy ban on Sunday shopping

VANCOUVER, British Columbia (AP) - More than 60,000 shoppers thronged streets as merchants in the Gastown area of Vancouver opened stores and slashed prices to protest a new ban on most Sunday store openings.

Prices were cut 25 percent at boutiques, restaurants and speciality shops in the redeveloped area to represent the 25 percent drop in sales which merchants say will result from Sunday closures

The Gastown Merchants Association had hoped between 30,000 and 40,000 supporters would pour into the area for the widely advertised sale. British Columbia's Holiday Shopping Act, which went into effect last Sunday, prohibits Sunday openings unless residents of a municipality approve it in a referendum. The exceptions include small grocery stores, plant nurseries and drugstores

Sunday closures used to be determined on a municipal level, and the law was an attempt to gain some

Several thousand people signed a 65-foot Gastown protest scroll which the association plans to wrap around Social Credit party headquarters

Labor secretary to be queried

WASHINGTON (AP) - Labor Secretary-design of it. nate Raymond J. Donovan faces a public grilling from a Senate committee about his business dealings business dealings as an executive of the Schiavone in New Jersey, the only potential barrier to his confirmation to the Cabinet.

The results of the (committee's) investigation will be made a part of the record," one aide to the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee said in advance of today's hearing. "He will be questioned about" it

Donovan, who was questioned as part of a federal investigation into illegal kickbacks several years ago, insists he did nothing wrong.

Until the questions cropped up about Donovan's Construction Co., he appeared likely to win confirmation easily in the Republican Senate.

He is supported by the conservative National Right to Work Committee and has the tacit blessing of the AFL-CIO, the nation's largest labor organization. The Teamsters, a union independent of the AFL-

CIO, also has endorsed him. But Donovan's confirmation hearing was abruptly postponed last week to permit a staff investigation into questions about a payment his company made "I was never a target of any investigation," he told more than a decade ago to a New Jersey company a news conference last month. "Nothing ever came involved in illegal kickbacks to politicians.

DAISETTA, Texas (AP) - This small community, nestled 50 miles northeast of Houston in the piney woods country, has an unhappy choice of accepting one of two dangers, City Attorney Zeke Zbranek

"I don't know what would be worse, an explosion and fire or for residents to freeze to death this winter," Zbranek said.

Residents of the community, who have decided to face the possible danger of explosion, learned Monday they do not have to comply with a Texas Railroad Commission order to turn off the town's gas supply.

The commission, citing numerous leaks in the system, ordered the city to turn off its gas supply on Jan. 2 until extensive repairs were made. The city took the matter to court and State District Judge Harley Clark issued a restraining order allowing the city to keep the gas on pending a Jan. 22 hearing.

Mayor Harold McCann, city councilmen and residents worked through the holidays and replaced a 1,000-foot section of pipe after gas leaks were found in 12 homes and several public buildings. But commission member say the problem isn't solved.

Jeff Hill, a commission spokesman, said residents' attempts to repair the gas system would be admirable "if one were playing with a hay bailer but not a natural gas system.

Hill said a cigarette lighter or the flip of a light switch could be enough of a spark to ignite an explosion in or near any of the 342 homes which receives fuel from the gas system.

TODAY'S ANSWER

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Cancer spreads in several ways

Dear Dr. Solomon: Would you please explain how cancer spreads in the body. - Mrs. S.A.

Dear Mrs. A.: Cancer cells grow into the tissue surrounding them. In addition, they may enter lymph channels and blood vessels and in this fashion be carried to other parts of the body.

Dear Dr. Solomon: A friend of mine tells me that persons who are hard of hearing cannot get seasick. Is this true? I don't understand how one condition can possibly have any effect on the other. What causes seasickness and what is the best way to treat it? - Russ

Dear Russ: The relationship between the two conditions becomes clearer when you understand that seasickness, which is only one form of motion sickness, results from distur-bances in the fluid that stimulates the nerve endings in the inner ear. Because the ears of deaf individuals do not function properly, they are immune to motion sickness. Everyone else, however - and animals, too, for that matter - may be affected if the stimulus is severe enough and if it continues for an extended period of

The most common causes of motion sickness are continuous wavy and rolling motions. It has been established that a pattern that occurs every four seconds is most likely to precipitate the condition.

Dr. C.D. Wood, a pharmacologist at the Louisiana State University Medical Center in Shreveport, says that the use of anticholinergic drugs, which block the stimulation of the nerve endings in the ear, is the best way to prevent motion sickness. However, the drugs do cause side effects, including dry mouth, increased pulse rate, drowsiness, head-ache, elaborate dreams, blurred vision, and vertigo (a form of dizzi-ness). Because of this, the anticholinergic drugs often are given in combination with other drugs that nullify the unpleasant side effects. These drugs are obtainable only with a doctor's prescription. Some antihistamines, which are available over the counter, also are effective in combatng motion sicknss.

Oral doses of antimotion drugs should be taken at least one hour before exposure to motion. The protection lasts from four to six hours. cection lasts from four to six hours. Once an individual experiences the symptoms of motion sickness, oral drugs no longer help. For this reason, astronauts are provided with antimotion drugs that can be injected, thus speeding up their absorption into the bloodstream.

Susceptibility to motion sickness decreases as a person grows older, and in relation to the length of time the person has been exposed to the motion. For example, people who travel by ship may feel sick at the outset but are less likely to experience the symptoms of motion sickness after the third day at sea. However, any change in the pattern of the mo-tion may cause a new susceptibility. Eating and drinking to excess and being overweight also increase the likelihood that a person will be prone to motion sickness.

Eagleton: Edwards' fitness in question

WASHINGTON (AP) - James B. Edwards, the oral surgeon and former governor who is Ronald Reagan's choice for energy secretary, is being questioned by a Senate committee with at least one member skeptical of Edwards' expertise on Edwards, who since his nomination has backed off from his support for shutting down the Energy Department, was appearing at hearings before the Senate Energy Committee, which must make a recommendation to the full Senate on his confirmation to the Reagan Cabinet.

Reagan's choice of Edwards brought immediate questions about his qualifications. Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., said Friday he feared all the Charleston, S.C., dentist knew about drilling for oil came from "drilling a tooth."

Edwards' name was not among those at first mentioned for the energy post. He reportedly was chosen only after Deep South senators pushed for a southerner on the Cabinet and Sen. Strom Thurmond, R. S.C., suggested him.

Reagan has defended Edwards. saying energy has been a "vital interest" of the former South Carolina governor and that he was "involved in the governors' organization on energy problems." Edwards has said he considers himself more a "problem-solver" than an energy expert, but he was a strong advocate of nuclear power in South Carolina and set up a state Energy Research Institute. Despite Edwards' backing for nuclear energy, by Friday afternoon no tify at his confirmation hearings.

direction from Reagan before deciding how to manage the department. During his campaign, Reagan promised to shut down the Energy Department, but indications are that he now is thinking more of simply reducing its power. Edwards is a staunch conservative who has told friends he got into politics because he was disturbed by the direction the country was going in the early 1960s. He said he was reading a newspaper, threw it down in disgust and said to himself, "Why doesn't somebody do something?"

What Edwards did was get involved in Barry Goldwater's 1964 presidential campaign. He went on to become a state senator, state Republican chairman and, from 1975 until 1978, the first Republican governor of a Deep South state in nearly a cen-

Investigator claims proof of stolen Indian oil

FORT WASHAKIE, Wyo. (AP) — An investigator hired by Indians on the Wind River Reservation in Wyoming to check charges of massive oil thefts says he has "solid proof" of those thefts, a Denver newspaper re-"I don't want to hear the word

'alleged' anymore" when refering to Indian claims that oil worth millions of dollars has been stolen, Charles Thomas, the director of the Joint Tribal Mineral Department said.

Thomas' statements were reported in a copyright story in the Denver Post.

In one instance alone, Thomas said, "in excess of 86,000 barrels of oil were taken off just two leases during a four-month period. No royalty was paid on that 86,000 barrels."

Thomas, a former U.S. Geological Survey employee now working for the Indians, declined to name companies, but said he had papers supporting his statements.

"There have been literally thousands of barrels of oil taken off this reservation every month without any royalty having been paid," he said. The Indians hired Thomas, as well as prominent Washington, D.C., attorneys Abe Fortas and Mitchell Rogovin, to check allegations of massive thefts when they appeared several months ago.

Federal authorities are conducting their own investigation and last month a grand jury in Cheyenne in-dicted Charles Lund, a former USGS inspector, on 12 counts of mail fraud and three counts of violating conflict of interest laws in connection with their investigation. Orville St. Clair, chairman of the Shoshone Special Investigative Com-mission, said the Arapahoe and Shoshone Indians are doing their own check, and haven't volunteered evidence to federal authorities.

Just days ago, a USGS spokesman said operations on two leases on the reservation were shut down after an inspection. Don Kash, chief of the USGS Conservation Division, said all 92 producing oil and gas leases on the central Wyoming reservation had been exa-The two were shut down because the operator failed to correct some kind of "deficiency," he said. He said others were out of compliance with federal rules but most involved technical failures, such as not having appropriate valves sealed or locked. At that time, Kash said there was no evidence of fraud or theft. Oil and natural gas have been produced on the reserve since before World War I, but the Indians were made suspicious when their royalty payments did not increase as fast as they thought they should have considering the increase in the price of oil.
