Reagan readying support maneuver for economic plan

Reagan is preparing to battle the nation's economic ills, starting with a one-two punch designed to draw maximum political support for his plans in a possibly reluctant Congress.

The president will deliver a televised address to the nation this week to focus attention on the economy Two weeks later, he will make what an aide called a "State of the Uniontype" speech to Congress detailing his economic program.

The first speech will be made just before Congress begins a 12-day recess. Reagan hopes to be able to send the members of the House and Senate home to constituents who have just heard a convincing presidential argument for cutting the budgets of even their favorite federal programs.

A White House official, outlining Reagan's plans, said Saturday the president would offer a "can do ap proach" to the American public, rather than saying "you have to be miserable" to solve the nation's economic

Shortly after Congress returns on Feb. 17, the president will visit Capitol Hill and present a "much more detailed" report on his comprehensive economic package, said the White House source, who asked that he not be identified by name

Referring to the Democratic major ity in the House, the official observed that "if we don't do some carefu" planning to try to trim those odds. we'll be carried out on our shields

Reagan spent Saturday at Camp David with his wife, Nancy. Press secretary James S. Brady, at the White House, said the president had taken economic and budget materials to the presidential retreat for week end study

David Prosperi, an assistant White House press secretary who accompanied the Reagans, said they also took a walking tour of the mountaintop compound near Thurmont, Md.

Brady said the administration was trying to shift attention to the economy now that the 52 former hostages are home from Iran.

"It shouldn't be a continuing hallmark of this administration to have a preoccupation (with the hostages) now that they are safely home." he said. "The real problem we have to solve is the deteriorated economy. We'll have to fight both inflation and a sluggish economy at the same

Few specifics have evolved about how the new administration plans to trim the Carter administration's proposed budget for the 1982 fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1.

But Brady, referring to a Reagan campaign promise made in Chicago on Sept. 9 to cut federal spending by 2 percent across the board, said "I think we'll do better than 2 percent." A budget working group, under David A. Stockman, director of the Office of Management and Budget, is going through individual department spending requests with members of the Cabinet. A meeting with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig reportedly produced a clash over the budget officials' efforts to cut foreign independent labor leaders threw their full support Saturday behind the unionization effort of private farmers after the government made clear it would not permit registration of the so called "Rural Solidarity" union

The deadlock set up the possibility of another round of confrontations this week between government and labor leaders. The two sides held 1; hours of negotiations overnight in an effort to halt a wave of wildcat strikes protesting the government's failure to honor immediately all the provisions of settlements that ended last summer's nationwide strikes

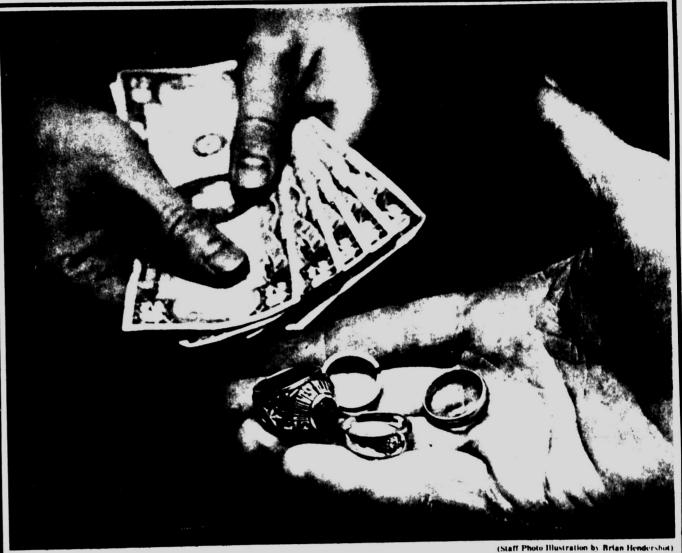

At the conclusion of the talks early Saturday, union spokesmen an nounced they had failed to resolve the issue of the farmers' union and that they had backed off from union de-

Metals buyers could be golden fencing method

By RICHARD ORR Staff Writer

Selling the family jewels may help a person keep abreast of inflation, but the recent emergence of itinerate gold and silver buyers is causing concern among police who feel such activitities need to be regulated because of their potential for becoming an easy way to dispose of stolen goods. What the gold and silver buyers are doing is perfectly legal, and I'm not saying any of them knowingly buy stolen items," said Capt Roger Mourer of the Special Services Division of the Midland Police Depart

But sooner or later, one of them is going to buy something hot. And with no control over the operation, the stuff is here today and gone tonight

A "junk and second hand dealers" ordinance has been on the books since 1975. It regulates such businesses as pawn shops and makes the recovery of stolengoods easier by requiring that the items be held for at least 48 hours and that detailed logs of all transactions be maintained - including a description of the property, along with valid identification of the seller if he's not known by the buyer

THE ORDINANCE also requires a $10 license fee and the posting of a $1,000 bond

The problem with the law in regard to gold and silver buyers is its wording and the fact it specifically exempts persons who deal with the purchase of precious

By refering only to dealers, and defining a dealer as any person engaged in collecting, handling or sell ing articles defined as junk." the ordinance can't be applied to gold and silver buyers.

They're purchasing, not selling," said Brian Martin, an assistant city attorney. "And they're not dealers per se because gold and silver can't be categorized as As things stand now, no questions are asked when a person sells his class ring, wedding band or what have you to gold buyers who characteristically set up operations in motor homes on shopping center parking

THE SELLER could be your friendly next door neighbor who needs ready cash, or some stranger in the night who's peddling stuff he obtained the time you happened to go off and leave your door unlocked.

Because of the precious metals market's volatility. the items are quickly sold to smelters across the country and soon lose their identity, leaving law enforcement officers at a distinct disadvantage in trying to track them down.

"We could go out and check these buyers," noted Capt Meurer, "but it'd be up to them to let us in. They'd probably tell us to jump in the lake. Then we'd have to get a search warrant and that's cumber-

Reputable buyers are governed by the ethics of their profession and the realization that knowingly purchasing stolen goods would eventually cause them more grief than the practice is worth.

'We don't buy from someone under 18," said Bill Morris, a partner in the Permian Metals and Investments Co. on Andrews Highway. "That's especially true when it come to sterling silver sets. We'd be

Many factors create rise in water table

By LANA CUNNINGHAM Staff Writer

It wasn't a sudden thing like getting hit over the head with a club. It was more like waking up one morning and finding water trickling through the basement — and then comes the gradual realization as the basement slow ly floods that Midland's ground water table is rising.

Joe Reed went to college six years to become a hydrologist and has worked 13 years in the business his father, Ed Reed, started back in the 1920s. He's never seen or heard of anything like the phenomenon Mid land is experiencing today.

The hydrology firm of Ed Reed and Associates monitors the level of the water table in state wells throughout Midland County. But, said Joe Reed, there was "nothing alarming which says there is a rise in the regional water table."

THE PIECES TO the Midland water table puzzle started to appear more than a year ago Wadley Barron Park at Cuthbert and A streets couldn't be dried out The city bought an auxiliary pump to get rid of the water. The pump rancontinuously, but the water level remained the same Water began appearing 112 years ago in the bottom of concrete airways at City Hall. City employees first thought it came from a broken water or sewer line. Tests showed it didn't -When construction workers tore into an old basement to begin building

Midland Center on the corner of Wall. and Main streets, they found the basement wasn't exactly void. What greeted them was a pool of water. September seems to be the point when the pieces started falling into place. The heavy rains came and water that had been a trickle in basements suddenly turned into gully washers. Reed was getting calls from homeowners and businesses all over the city about rising water in base And with the rains, a parched Midland Draw began flowing. It hasn't stopped since. We're trying to put the pieces together," said Reed · A lack of rec ords on wells throughout the county and in the city failed to tell the hydrol ogists what was going to happen We're starting to build records. we're writing our own history and having to start from Day One. According to the few records Reed has, the water table in some areas of Midland County is almost back at the level where it was in the 1940s. On the Reed family farm east of Midland, ground water was 35 feet below the surface back in the 1940s, he said During the drought of the 1950s, the level dropped to 85 feet

HE MEASURED THE two water wells in 1979 and 1980. One in 1979 was 11.5 feet, the other was 45.29 feet. In 1980, the first was 41.1 feet and the other 41.7 feet. In both cases, the water level had risen about 31, feet during the year. Readings taken at state water wells in the county confirm the rising water theory. These wells are owned by individuals who allow the state to monitor them for record-keeping Reed explained the depth of the wells are measured and plotted on a chart according to the depth and the year, in which the measurement was taken. This chart is called a hydro-Looking at one well northeast of Midland Air Park, Reed said there was a steep decline in the water level from 1965 through 1970. Then it jumped from 102 feet in 1970 to 97 feet in 1973. The latest reading in 1979 shows the level at 93 feet.

Another well two miles west of Air Park shows the water level at 90 feet in 1968, 102 in 1966 and 87 feet in A well three miles south of Interstate 20 and 212 miles east of Rankin Highway went 57 feet down before hitting water in 1962. The water level had dropped to 68 feet in 1970 and it was back to 57 feet in 1979

REASONS FOR THE rising table are many, according to Reed, but much of it points to Midland's growth and urbanization.

To explain how water flows underneath the ground. Reed traces the story to centuries ago when this area was being formed. "Torrents of

'Tale of Two Cities'—the modern version

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST JR.

NEW YORK A lot of history has been written this past week in the two cities that serve as capitals of the great democrat ic governments of the United States and Great Britain. The news from Wash ington centered on the creation of a new adminis tration, and the news from Lon

In Washington, President Reagan held his first press conference, and handled himself in such a way as to give all of us confidence in his leadership. His performance created a tone, a quality of good humored candor that I hope will set standards for other members of his administration.

He responded to questions like an old pro Although he is sure to be criticized for the many times he said, "I can't answer that." I, for one, was impressed by his frankness. After all, as he said, he has been in office only nine days, and cannot be expected to outline policies for the next four years. But he did not duck any of the tough questions about the economy Iran, or our relations with the Soviet Union He remained consistent, and most articulate, in expressing his de sire to cut the budget, reduce taxes, and at the same time build up our

Is there anyone in Midland who quilts large quilts for the public? I'm enclosing a self-addressed envelope. Thank vou. - Mrs. J. M. Welsch ANSWER: Members of the Women's Missionary

Union at Calvary Baptist Church, 682-8392, do quilting for the public. They do require that persons having the quilting done furnish the top and lining for the quilt. The quilting is done to raise funds for missionary projects.

Ruth Brown at 682-4565, also does quilting for the public. You might contact her.

With all the recent publicity about illegal aliens, would you kindly enlighten the public about our immigration laws.?

1. How long can foreigners remain in the United States without becoming citizens? If they continue to live and work in the United States without becoming a citizen, what procedure do they have to follow? 2.To become a naturalized citizen, is there a requirement that the person be able to speak and read the English language? 3. What would be a "documented worker" as Governor Clements speaks of — what would be the rights and privileges? For what period could such a person remain in the United States? 4. Are aliens (legal and illegal) entitled to benefits and a Fellow of the from the United States Government, such as welfare American College of Surpayments, 551, food stamps, unemployment com-pensation, etc.?

5. How are illegal aliens protected by our Constitution when they are not citizens of our country? -Mrs. Paul Wecker

ANSWER: The following answer was supplied by the U.S. Department of Justice, Immigration and Naturalization Service, in El Paso.

Your letter with enclosure to our Washington office has been referred to us for a reply, in as much as the Midland-Odessa area is within the jurisdiction sity of Kentucky in Lex of the El Paso District Office, INS. We respond to the ington 'four inquiries of Mrs. Wecker a follows:

1. 'Foreigners' — meaning aliens in the United—tice in Batavia, N.Y., Dr. States may be either temporary visitors or workers. Carmody also held the or permanent residents. Those here as visitors are positions of president of subject to a specified time period, depending on the staff and associate chief of surgery at Genesee purpose of their visit, i.e., education, training, Memorial Hospital, prestourist or special employment projects. The period of their stay may sometimes be extended by permission of the Immigration and Naturalization Seresee chapter of the "Only those here as permanent residents may American Cancer So proceed to U.S. citizenship, and, in the majority of cases, they must be here in such status for five ciety Dr. years. "However, there is no requirement that residents. Kathleen and Kevin. His become U.S. citizens. They may remain here during office is located at the Stadium Professional their lifetime as non-citizen residents, and, as such, they enjoy the same protectin under our Constitution - Building at 2030 W. Cuth as citizens. However, they are not entitled to bert Ave vote, serve on juries or hold public office and they are subjected to annual reporting regulations as to their residence here

"Generally speaking, visitors in the United States are not permitted to work here, except for certain categories of temporary workers and those who receive special permission from the Immigration and Naturalization Service

The procedure for becoming naturalized involves obtaining the N-400 application and relating docu ments from this Service, including biographic sheet and fingerprint chart, along with three photographs Here, in West Texas, once an application is submitted, it takes approximately 20 months to become naturalized, owing to the great number of pending

2. Section 312 of the Immigration and Nationality Act requires that applicants for naturalization be able to read, write and speak words of ordinary usage in English. This is roughly equivalent to third grade level

However, those applicants who, at the time of their application are 50 years old or older, and who have lived in the USA for at least 20 years as permanent residents are exempted from the aforementioned literacy requirements. They must, however, along with the younger applicants, answer questions on U.S. government and history to test their under standing of our economic society.

"3. 'Documented Workers' generally are aliens who have been admitted for permanent residence, who are issued Alien Registration Cards (I-151, I-551 or Temporary 1-94's). Alien visitors may also receive "documents" such as the I-186 Border Crossing Card or I-94's, but they are not permitted to work

"In certain special cases, the District Director of the INS authorizes some non-resident aliens to work. usually for compassionate reasons as permitted by the Code of Federal Regulations. These are usually classes of aliens here in the USA who are married to US citizens or residents, or who have children born here or other equities, and who must work to support

"Very often they are aliens permitted to remain in this country while awaiting adjustment of status to permanent residence, which may take several months or years, depending upon their priorities.

Porno displays curbed

LONDON (AP) — Without a dissenting vote, Parliament gave initial approval Friday to a bill curbing the pornographic displays which, sponsors claimed, have spread to nearly every city and town in Brit-

With crucial backing from the government, the Indecent Displays Bill received an unopposed "second reading" in the House of Commons, sending it into a committee for textual drafting.

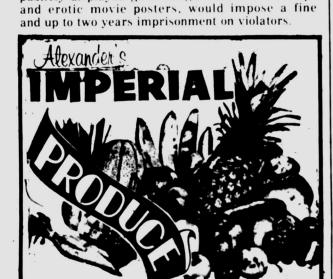

Parliamentary experts said it stood "a very good chance" of gaining a third reading and approval in the House of Lords later this year.

Currently applicable 19th-century statutes on pornography were described as "confused, uncertain and inadequate," and there is no general law covering indecent display.

The bill is the sixth attempt in eight years to tighten anti-pornography legislation. A bill filed last year came close to approval before legislative time ran out: 'There is a measure of anger in the country at the rising flood of indecent material displayed," Home Office Minister of State Patrick Mayhew told the Commons as he voiced the government's backing. The bill, aimed at curbing the recent spread of publicly displayed girlie magazines, sex aid shops

The remainder of the weekend should be nice, but temperatures will be chilly and the winds will be gusting, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional

With partly cloudy skies, today's high should reach only to the low 40s. Winds will be strong from the northwest at 20-30 mph and gusty.

Tonight should become nicer as the skies turn fair and the wind becomes northerly at 15-20 mph and gusty. The low tonight, however, should dip to the lower 20s

Monday will show signs of improvement with fair skies and a high in the

According to the weather service, the normal maximum high for this time of year is 59 degrees, while the normal low is 31.

Saturday's high reached a warm 61, although the winds may have made it seem cooler. The record high for Jan. 31 was set in 1963 at 80 degrees. The low Saturday was 39 degrees - almost hot compared to the record low for the date set in 1951 at 1 degree

Dr. Charles Lutrick, above, senior minister of the First United Methodist Church, inspects one of three water pumps installed in the basement of the church. The pumps were installed shortly after water from Midland's rising water table was discovered in the basement. The water is pumped out into Baird Street and runs down Ohio Avenue, left, and into a storm sewer.

water" flushed over the area bringing material out of the Rocky Mountains: Layer after layer of material began building up. Streams would cut channels into these materials, which later would be covered over.

These layers of material under the surface, called triacic clay, jag up and down in accordance with those channels. Reed related. As to the, theory of a river under Midland, Reed

Essentially, it's an oldtimer's belief. Instead, under all this area lies the Ogallala Aquifer. "It's a sheet of water moving underground which flows until it hits an outlet, such as Midland Draw," Reed said. "You can drill almost anywhere in Midland County and get water," he said, adding there are a few exceptions. Those exceptions are anomalies, or differentiations from the gen eral rule. This is found when a clay ridge rises above the water table.

LAND IN WEST TEXAS dips to the southeast, he said, and so does the water table. That explains why Midland's water table is higher than around Lubbock, why people in south Midland County are finding water flowing through Midland Draw and why all cities in West Texas build sewage treatment plants on the southeast end of the town. That also is why most cities around.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Packs of teen-agers boarded a subway early Saturday, robbing and terrorizing the eight passengers on the train, police said. No serious injuries were report-flows down to the southeast, following the natural contours of the land.

Contributing to the rising water table are the abandoned water wells which were used several years ago to serve city residents. Reed said Cole Park Well Field south of the city. Wadley Well Field north of it and McMillen to the west were pumping out ground water until the level dropped too low. Since Midland no longer is "mining" that water, he said, the water levels have been ris-

The city currently pumps out of Paul Davis Well Field located about 25 miles northeast of the city.

All of the well fields have been located in deep underground chan nels, said Reed, to give the city a wide area from which to draw

Along with abandonment of wells close to the city, residents within city limits in recent years have quit using their private wells, according to

"A number of wells have been abandoned in town because of their poor quality of water. For every one shut down, that's less pull out of the water table.

AS MIDLAND HAS grown and sprawled northward with its paved streets, concrete sidewalks, front and back yards, this urbanization has contributed to more runoff in Midland.

All this paving throws off Mother Nature's plan for an ecological bal-

Reed explained that the natural balance involves a process called "evapotranspiration." It's a combination of evaporation of water into the atmosphere from the ground, and tran spiration by plants which use water for growing.

Put pavement on the ground, said Reed, and instead of water soaking

Gold, silver buying draws fire

here grow to the north and northwest, into the ground, it runs off into a trainage system and eventually into Midland Draw

> 'We don't have water evaporating," he said. "We're concentrating it into the draws.

> Also adding to a buildup of the water table is the diminishing amount of land that is being irrigated as farm land, in the hydrologist's opin ion. While the city grows and gobbles up more farmland for housing and retail developments, less water is being taken out of the underground supply. Instead, it's contributing to PUT ALL THESE factors together and this is the scenario: Water from the city is rushing down the drainage channels into Scharbauer Draw and Midland Draw at the same time that the underground water level is rising. And since water seeks an opening, if finds a spring in Midland Draw, bubbles to the surface and continues flowing until it winds up in the Colorado River, said Reed. The spring in Midland Draw works as a pump, pulling water out of the ground. The water will continue to flow in the draw until the level drops below that spring, he explained.

Where the water table will finally stop on its rise to the surface, Reed. doesn't know. But he's guessing it's about ready to stabilize. He also believes that the draw may start flowing farther up in the channel than where it now comes out near a county road.

'I suspect that we're getting close to seeing water start flowing in Scharbauer Draw. Up around I Street and Scharbauer I suspect the water table is about a foot below the bottom of the draw."

And a city official is starting to think that the pool of water in the Northwest Drainage Channel at Garfield Street may not all be coming from nearby water sprinklers .- "It could be ground water," mused the

"I can't physically prove all this," bubbles and peeling paint on the said Reed of his theories. "And I don't know that the water table hasn't stopped rising now.

Whatever the reasons, the situation was aggravated by the heavy rains last September. It was about that time, said Reed, that he started getting calls from people with flooded basements across the city.

"WE'RE SEEING IT on a wide enough area to suspect it's a regiona! problem," he said. The complaints have come from all over Midland downtown office buildings, basements in the Racquet Club development in north Midland, Wadley-Barron Park and houses in the south

The water level at the old Los Patios Restaurant near Wadley Avenue was 30 feet in 1968. Recently, it was measured at 11 feet, Reed said as an example

The marsh in Wadley-Barron Park will be converted into a lake, the City Council decided, instead of trying to fight the rising water table. Standing water in the bottom was tested by Ed Reed and found to be ground water, verifying his theory of many months that the water table was seeping up-

Dr. Charles Lutrick, senior minister of the First United Methodist Church, recalls the exact day when the water problem hit his church -

"Water had been seeping in around the edges of the floor and in the walls," he said, pointing out water

"We thought it was just a water or sewer main that was broken," but testing showed the problem to be ground water The basement, he said, is about 16 feet deep and was built on a caliche base. Reed said a water well in back of the church shows the water level to be 14 feet.

TILE FLOORING was taken up and the concrete base broken up to give water experts a look at the ground under the basement. True to Reed's theory, water filled the holes.

The church is having three sump pumps installed and will have to put in a storm sewer line to continuously pump out the water, said Lutrick. Until then, the water is being pumped out into Baird, Street where it runs down Ohio and into a storm sewer.

By the time this work is completed, and the basement put back to normal. it will have cost the church $20-25,000, said Lutrick.

"And we'll always have a possibility of it flooding," he added, pointing to a damp crack in the concrete floor-

In fact, the basement flooded New Year's Day even while temporary pumps were running. Lutrick said when he returned to work Jan. 2, there was 61/2 inches of water covering the basement.

If the pumps are turned off, he figures the basement floor would be covered in water within 12 to 10 to find a solution. Reed mentioned that some people are stuck with the water in their basements because even with installing a pump, there is no place to send it. Their neighbors don't want the flooding in their streets, nor does the city.

The city, in fact, is having to do its own pumping out of its basement.

City workers began noticing water coming in around a wall in the outside airway about 11/2 years ago, said City Manager James Brown.

"WE THOUGHT IT WAS from watering the shrubs above," he said. But the water was still there even when no one was watering the bushes.

Building Maintenance Superinten dent Joe Pollard figured the water might be coming from a leak in a water or sewer main. When the water meter showed no unusually large usage, Pollard had the water tested.

"It was four times harder than the city drinking water and had no chlo rine, said Pollard.

He finally believed it was ground water when the September rains came and the basement flooded. A sump pump was installed in the basement and had to start pouring out 19 gallons a minute.

"I couldn't believe it was ground water," he said. "In West Texas you don't have water coming up like this. No one believed it.'

As the pieces of the puzzle locked together, the people with flooded basements have finally seen the com plete picture.

inauguration of President Reagan and the release of our former hos tages from Iran. The enormous emotion of both events washed across the Atlantic where there are ancient ties and customs that bind the United States and Britain closely together.

But the decision adopted by the moderates, rather loosely described as the "right of Labor" is of farreaching dimensions in a nation that prides itself as the cradle of parliamentary democracy. Dissident Labor Party leaders, led by four former Cabinet ministers, were fed up with steamroller tactics taken by left ists. After lots of soul-searching, the moderates formed what they hail as a "Council for Social Democracy."

The move is certain 'to handicap any all-out Labor efforts to topple Prime Minister Mrs. Margaret Thatcher who was elected to of fice 18 months ago with a sound Conservative majority. Mrs. Thatcher, an attrtactive lady and an astute politician, is coming to Washington in three weeks to be the guest of President Reagan. She has already tried some economic policies. favored in his campaign by Mr. Reagan, but which have failed to stimulate the inflation-ridden British structure that admittedly has few of the resources we enjoy ed States holds that the anti-left Labor moderates kind of parallel the Democrats here. Whether in government or opposition, that's illusory. The anti-left Labor group is determinedly left-of-center. They intend to stay that way to convince people among the 56 million in the United Kingdom that theirs is a compassionate party bent on the social democracy that has brought West Germany stability and prosperity.

The moderate group can rally at least half of the 267 Labor MPs to their side. The Conservatives have 337 in the House of Commons, so simple arithmetic shows what will happen to, the leftists who defiantly insist on calling themselves "The Official Labor Party.'

It doesn't require too much additional calculation to turn up what proponents for a "Council for Social Democracy" can muster in any key vote. They can probably add the doughty band of 11 Liberal MPs and a couple from tiny splinter parties. Mrs. Thatcher doesn't have to face a general election until May, 1984, unless defeated in a vote of confidence. Such a possibility isn't in the cards for Mrs. Thatcher but she can -- and probably will -- call a snap election of her own choosing as soon as the two factions of Labor begin internecine warfare in Parliament and the constituencies.

Fittingly enough, it was the Prime Minister of the nation from which America inherited its great democratic traditions who was the first to applaud President Reagan's strong stand against the Soviet Union. Mrs. Thatcher heartily approved.

Such harmony bodes well for continued cooperation between the two cities of Washington and London.

below, puts the pruning saw to a well-groomed assigned to the Texas Agricultural Extension honey locust in demonstrating the proper Service headquarters in Fort Stockton. (Staff pruning of a dormant shade tree. Stockton is Photos by Brian Hendershot)

Properly-groomed trees are encouraged to grow

There's a difference between pruning a tree and sawing off limbs.

One is grooming for health and good looks

The other is, or could be, butchering; the tree suffers. And recently more than 125 Midlanders viewed examples of both when they were offered lessons on pruning and grooming shade trees by Texas Agricultural Extension Service horticulturist Austin Stockton of Fort Stockton, Midland County agents Charlie Green and Willie Stumberg and by Midland professional tree pruner-groomers Mike McAlister and Guy Richards.

Site of the pruning demonstrations was Wadley-Barron Park, which is adorned with elm, honey locust, live oak, pecan and a smattering of "wildroot" soapberry trees. "It's kind of like bringing up a child," Green said of proper pruning under the "shade" of a honey locust, now dormant and leafless in the wintery pruning season. "If you train him right, he'll grow up to be a good Stockton noted various reasons for pruning: cutting away dead wood, ridding the trees of wounds and disease, grooming the trees for aesthetic reasons, encouraging the trees to grow faster and in a desired form, shading an area and keeping branches from high-line powerlines, buildings and

As a group of pruning "students" were intensely listening to Green and Stockton, pruners Richards and McAlister were within ear-shot and were striking up their own conversation on tree grooming. Earlier, they had pruned the honey locust expressly for the pruning demonstrations. Across the park's pond were several elm trees which, due to radical "de-horning" and arbitary "butchering," had under gone shock, extreme stress and had died or were mortally wounded. McAlister said he and his partner had nothing to do with those lethal "wounds" to the tall

What most of the elm trees out here (in Midland) have died of is neglect and de-horning," McAlister said.

The severing of a major limb or several minor branches could be as fatal to a tree as a severe burn or a severed leg would be to a human being, he suggested.

'It (energy and moisture) just aspirates out of the tree," McAlister said. "The tree reacts to this (trauma) just as a human being would to a burn."

McAlister said that "de-horning" is no way to cut a tree. "Butchering is what it is. It's never acceptable unless a tree has die-back, stress, disease" or major damage such as splitting caused by lightning, storms or an overweight and burdensome canopy and unless a trees is relocated.

He likened tree de-horning to radical surgery on a person; it's done solely to save the individual's life, Green and Stockton informally lectured on pruning with a reason, about adequate watering and soil treatment with fertilizer and nutrients. "You need to get that soil tested if you've been doctoring," Green advised. "I've seen it (soil's mineral make-up) get out of balance so bad." And he suggested that too much water could be as fatal as too little. Unless a tree, such as some willows, are genetically adapted to growth in a heavy concentration of water, the tree will suffocate for lack of oxygen

Likewise, saline water, which could lead to a heavy concentration of salts in the soil, could kill a trees.

'You've got a plant setting in wet (salty) soil and suffering from drought," the county agent said. In such a case, a water-logged root system cannot effectively interact with oxygen in aborbing water and vital minerals and nutrients and no food (sap) for the tree and its leaves is produced. The tree may become malnourished and even starve to death from lack of food and drink.

As the two-hour session was winding down, the sun was setting, and as the last of the tree buffs had left, George Logan turned to Green, Stockton and the others to commend them for their conducting the outdoor prun-

They were standing above the "shore line" of the park's playa pond, which the city of Midland plans to excavate and to turn into a living

"You guys did a good job," said Logan, Midland's superintendent of parks. "You're to be recommended and commended in every way."

By LANA CUNNINGHAM Staff Writer

The Parks and Recreation Department wants a piece of your mind.

The one restriction is that it must deal with what residents would like to see provided in the future in the form of additional parks and recreational facilities.

In an attempt to pick Midlanders' brains, the city department is including a survey in the water bills. They are asking Midlanders to fill out the form and mail it back with their bill. Those who live in apartments and don't get water bills should be getting a survey through their manager. These may be dropped back at the manager's office when completed or mailed to the parks and recreation department, 300 Baldwin St., 79701.

tor of parks and recreation, explained the city. is thying to update its master park plan. 'The current one was put together in 1973-74," he said. "These master plans are used for grant applications for state and federal funds. The applications for these funds require the city to have a master plan.'

Each plan tries to look 10 years into the future and suggest projects to fit with an estimated growth rate. But the current plan is out of date or walking, park devel-

Midland's booming economy: How long can it last?

EDITOR'S NOTE: It comes as no surprise to Midlanders that this city, in the midst of unprecedented growth and economic boom, is, in some circles, "the talk of the country." Nor should it be surprising that the Associated Press would send veteran reporter Mike Cochran to The Tall City to see first-hand evidence of that growth and talk to Midlanders about what the future holds. The subject is one that is discussed frequently by residents here. What follows is a view of how at least one "outsider" sees Midland and how some Midlanders look at what's ahead.

view is bleakly spectacular. 'On a clear day, you can see Odes sa," said one occupant.

"Who care's?" quipped a second.
"No love lost, huh?" wondered a third, a visitor to this unusual city. "None," he was told.

THE SCENE: A newspaper office at mid-day. The visitor is talking with two newsmen.

"Yes," said one. "It's going to be the damnedest ghost town you've ever seen. It's got to happen someday. The oil companies are going to pick up their people and go.

WELCOME, THEN, to Midland, Texas, the "Tall City," the good life, 300 miles from Fort Worth, 300 miles from El Paso.

It's the home of 85,000 largely contented Texans, more than a few of them multimillionaires.

Oil and gas multimillionaires. They erect tall buildings, magnificent homes, luxurious country clubs

Gast, project manager of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development's New Community Development Corp., said the federal government previously paid off $10 million in defaulted loans that had financed the project. Total principal and interest payments amounted to $11.5 million, Gast said.

The government declared the project a failure in June 1979, saying Soul City was not meeting its goals and would be unable to pay back its government-backed

The $1.5 million purchase price means that the debt owed to the government by The Soul City Co. will be reduced to $10 million.

Cowboys learn ropes at Sul Ross

By JAMES R. KING Associated Press Writer

ALPINE, Texas (AP) - If you want to be a Baptist minister, you could learn it at Baylor University. An aspiring physicist might choose the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. If you decide to study law, they say Harvard has a real fine school.

But if you want to grow up to be a cowboy, hoss, the smallest publicly funded university in the state of Texas may be just the place for you.

Most students at Sul Ross State University come from the surrounding ranchland, grew up in boots and blue jeans and consider the aroma of an open cow pasture that wafts through parts of the school's rambling campus "natural."

UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT Bob Richardson says some of that is bound to rub off on the other students. no matter where they come from or what they major

"We have a strong geology department, and we're strong in biology and teacher education. But the character of the school has more of a Western flavor than any other school in the state," he declared. For one thing, Sul Ross has a football team, but the only athletic grants available, funded by local civic leaders, go to rodeo riders. Also, it is the only university in Texas where students can learn how to make shoes for their Besides that, students in the school's range animal science program learn how to "break" horses, judge cows, breed hogs and feed goats. There is even an advanced course in making "corrective horseshoes" for those with problem hooves.

"Anybody can go out and just shoe a horse. There is a big difference between that and what we are teaching here," said Dr. Doug Butler, raising his voice over the clanging and pounding of 14 horseshoe-making students in his lab.

'We're aiming at producing a graduate who can shoe the elite of the horse world," and that sometimes means horses needing orthopedic shoes, said Butler, 38, who learned his skills at the side of a blacksmith in his hometown of Lansing, N.Y., and went on to earn a Ph.D. in animal science at Cornell

He said if his students stick with it and get good at it they can command salaries of $20,000 to $30,000 by being skilled farriers, "but only about 10 percent of them excel professionally. The rest of them find out what hard work it is and drop out - it's too easy to make a living some other way.

Butler said one advantage to the school's location in the heart of West Texas cattle country was the availability of horses to work on.

Ranchers bring their work horses in to be shoed for free by students. It's kind of like a barber college, except we don't charge anything," he said.

THE UNIVERSITY'S LOCATION also attracted Penn State graduate Dave Mattison, a geology professor who described Alpine as one of the nation's most geologically diverse areas.

"This is heaven. We can drive 10 miles and see drastic changes in the rocks. Only 30 million years ago this was a volcanic hot spot," said Mattison, despite a claim by his chairman of the geology department. He and the others agreed the small student body was more of an advantage than a problem. With an enrollment of only 1,605, Sul Ross, named for a 19th House went along with century Texas governor, is by far the tiniest of the recommendation of Texas' 24 state-funded, four-year universities. Most of our students march to a different drum- ceed Pasetto, was mer. They don't need the bright lights and the roar of swarmed by legislators the crowd," Richardson said.

He conceded Sul Ross would like to be a little bigger. After all, the student body, about as big as that of a high school in Dallas or Houston, can wander through more than two dozen buildings scattered over 600 acres. He said the college was prepared to accommodate up to 3,000 students, "But we don't want so many that it would change the character of the university. It's relaxed. We want to keep it that way. It's so relaxed in fact that attempts to start a journalism school were abandoned last year for lack of interest, and so while larger universities were having heated political contests to decide who would run their student newspapers, at Sul Ross, official spokesman Lee Sleeper said, "We had to go out on the front steps and say, 'Hey, who wants to be

Midland doctor reveals year's plan for local medical society

By SUE FAHLGREN Staff Writer

Dr. William P. Trotter, local radiologist, has big plans this year for the Midland County Medical Recently elected president of the organization of physicians practicing in Midland, Trotter said this year the group's activities will include two main projects: association with Texas Tech University to make Midland Memorial Hospital a resident training facility and quality control for the physicians.

Midland Memorial Hospital announced its plans in September for affiliation with Texas Tech Universiter. ty and Health Science Center for a family practice residency program. After the program is developed, it must be approved by both the state and federal government and other agencies before it can go into effect. Trotter said he expects the first class to begin here in July 1982.

The quality control project will be aimed at doctors practicing at both hospitals, Trotter said.

'We've had a tremendous growth in the number of doctors here," Trotter said, adding that there are now more than "70 doctors in the county medi-cal society. We have to police ourselves," he continued. "Every doctor must be responsible and have an interest in quality medicine. It is the responsibility of doctors to monitor themselves.'

no longer true. The Midland County Medical Society is now the voice of doctors in Midland.

According to Trotter, "the hospital staff at Midland Memorial is under the control of the auspices of the hospital. We are a separate entity. Our prime role is to make sure that people are getting good care," he said. "And we will continue to put pressure on the hospitals to maintain equipment, keep the level of competency (of employees) high and get new equipment for the hospitals - and that's at both hospitals.

Trotter said because of the nursing shortages at MMH and the closing of some 50 patient beds there, "Parkview Hospital has become a very viable cen-

Kissinger claims peace is more likely

Reagan administration will do a better job of preserving world peace than its predecessor because "unsentimental conservatives" are best able to deal with the Soviet Union, former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Saturday

"I predict that before the Reagan administration is over...there is a better chance for meaningful negotiations than there was in the previous administration," Kissinger said.

Kissinger said blunt criticism of the Soviets by President Ronald Reagan and Secretary of State Alexander Haig shows that the United States means to restore the military and political balance of world power. That balance, he said, has undergone a "dramatic deterioration" in the past few years.

If "the main lines of policy shaping up are pursued, they will be extremely successful," he said in his first public comments since Ronald Reagan succeeded Jimmy Carter in the White House.

The main problem facing the administration is "preservation of world peace," he said, addressing a convention of hotel executives.

Throughout his speech, however, Kissinger stressed that unilateral pursuit of peace is not sufficient. He said there must be "linkage" between any U.S. concessions and curtailment of Soviet expansion around the world.

'Peace must be coupled with justice and freedom, because if it isn't, the desire for peace becomes an instrument in the hands of the most ruthless," Kissinger

'The fundamental task of foreign policy is to preserve both peace and freedom ... to resist those who base their foreign policy only on force; and at the same time hold open the prospect of serious negotiation ance between moderates based on strict reciproci- and radicals. 'And from that framety and mutual benefit."

Kissinger, who recently returned from a private, two-week trip to the Middle East, said the balance between moderates and radicals in the region became "unhinged" by the revolution in Iran.

Furthermore, he said, U.S. allies were disheartened by America's "demonstration of impotence" during the 444day hostage crisis.

"The new administration ... has already demonstrated by its preliminary action that it means to restore the bal- ly Arab nations.

work, later this year after the Israeli election, it will be possible to resume negotiations of the Arab-Israeli problem," Kissinger said. During his visit to the Middle East, he called for creation of a Western military presence in the region to restore the balance of power. He repeated that recommendation Saturday, saying the U.S. should take advantage of agreements - which he did not specify - giving it the right to set up outposts in friend-

Drinking ordinance to be enforced

LAMESA - Lamesa Police Chief Lee Bartlet says the police force will strictly enforce the city's 1956 ordinance which prohibits the drinking of alcoholic beverages in city parks.

Lamesa is a "dry" town. 'We have no intention of taking recreation away from anybody," The Lamesa Press-Reporter quoted Bartlett. "We encourage picnics, family reunions and such, but drinking has gotten out of hand." The chief said he will not permit parks to be turned into a "battleground. "There have (been) numerous senseless fights and assaults down there," he said. He associated the disruptions with drinking.

Police who catch anyone violating the anti-drinking ordinance will be issued a citation and, possibly, could be arrested for public intoxication. Beer, wine, whiskey and other alcoholic beverages are prohibited from being in the city park at any hour.

However, public drinking is allowed at selected times elsewhere in the Citations may be issued to anyone who "consumes, or possesses with the intent to consume, an alcoholic beverage in a public place at any time on Sunday between 1:15 a.m. and 12 noon or on any other day between 12:15 a.m. and 7 a.m.," according to the Lamesa newspaper.

Stanton names new city manager

STANTON - William Rudler, the 34-year-old assistant to the city manager of Saint John, Mo., has been named city manager of Stanton. This town of 3,000 has been without a chief administrator since last September, when Mike Rhea resigned to accept a similar post at Eden in southeast Texas. "We think he (Rudler) is the one we've been looking for, because of his experience," said Stanton Mayor Danny Fryar.

Rudler worked as a wastewater plant operator and laboratory technician at Winter Garden, Fla., as assistant director of public works in North Kansas City, Mo., and as director of public works at Wapato, Wash., prior to his joining the waste-water plant at Saint John.

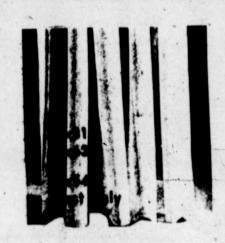

He will assume his job here Feb. 16. Rudler holds Texas state licenses for water and wastewater treatments.

Detroit locals approve pay cut

DETROIT (AP) - Leaders of the United Auto Workers union were optimistic Saturday that a pay cut designed to win more U.S. loan guaran tees for Chrysler Corp. would be ratified by the rank-and-file.

"That does it," said UAW President Douglas A. Fraser after hearing the results of Friday's voting at some large Detroit locals. "We'll make

Meanwhile, Canadian government officials were reported to be considering a new proposal from Chrysler aimed at salvaging up to $170 million in guaranteed loans for the troubled automaker.

A delegation headed by M.J. "Moe" Kloss, president of Chrysler Canada Ltd., met with Industry Minister Herb Gray in Ottawa on Friday night. Gray said Chrysler presented a plan "which the government will analyze" and discuss with the UAW before presenting an answer.

Last year, Canada had promised to guarantee about $170 million in loans in return for Chrysler's pledge to invest $840 million in Canada.

The downsized survival plan that won tentative approval from the Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board in Washington on Jan. 14, however, scaled back that investment to about $504 million through the elimination of projected small-car production in a Windsor, Ontario, assembly plant across the border from Detroit. Under the board's conditions, Canada must approve the change.

Gray said such a plan was "unacceptable" if Chrysler hoped to get the $170 million in 1982 as originally

In a report from Ottawa, the Windsor Star reported Saturday that sources said the latest plan called for "limited production" of a small car on the same assembly line with trucks in one of the two Windsor assembly

Even setting aside the question of Canadian loan guarantees, the 1964 free trade auto treaty between the two countries requires a manufacturer to produce both cars and trucks north of the border unless Canada waives the requirement.

A loan board analysis before the Jan. 14 action estimated that only half the Canadian loans, about $85 million, should be counted on.

The surival plan calls for $783 million in worker concessions, $622 million of that from the UAW, of which $450 million would come from a wage freeze and elimination of $1.15 an hour in cost-of-living raises in March. Another condition is approval by Chrysler's banks of repayment of $500 million in loans at 30 cents on the dollar and conversion of $568 million more to preferred stock. Earlier in the week, UAW leaders fretted that the contract might be defeated in voting by Chrysler's 61,-000 active and 49,000 laid-off workers. A Detroit News survey of 17 large locals out of 85 voting units showed adverse votes ahead 10,261-10,253

Check trees before applying dormant oil

STANTON - Dormant deciduous trees and shurbs in West Texas should be checked for scale insect infestation before applying dormant oil applications this winter, according to David Foster, entomologist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Dormant oil sprays are used to control most scale insects and certain aphids on deciduous trees.

Foster noted that a dormant oil application would be of little benefit if a treated deciduous tree or shrub were not harboring a moderate-to-heavy scale of insect infestation. Scale insects are among the most harmful of plant-feeding insects, he said. Most scale insects are very small and have a hard, waxy, scale-like covering over their bodies. They often appear in large numbers and may weaken or kill a plant by sucking out its juices.

A dormant oil may be used anytime in the dormant season. Best results have been obtained when it is used in late winter or early spring just before the buds break and begin to grow. If applied after the buds break, foliage burn may occur.

County officials to meet

COLLEGE STATION — Approximately 600 of Texas's county judges and commissioners will be on hand Feb. 17, 17, and 19 to discuss issues for more effective county government at the 23rd annual County Judges and Commissioners Conference at the Ramada Inn here.

Keynote speaker will be U.S. Congressman Phil Gramm, a former Texas A&M Univeristy economist.

Other speakers will include Texas Gov. Bill Clements, Attorney General Mark White, and Texas and Agriculture Commissioner Reagan

Cotton producers meet in Lubbock

LUBBOCK — Challenges facing cotton producers in the 1980s will be discussed in the five-state Western Cotton Production Conference at the Lubbock Hilton Inn Feb. 17-19.

Those challenges include political policies, marketing opportunties, production techniques, financing and textile trends.

Speakers will include Lloyd Cline, Lamesa banker-farmer; Dr. Arlie Bowling, senior economist with the National Cotton Council in Memphis, Tenn.; Dr. I.W. Kirk, acting director of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Science and Eduction Administration southern regional research center at New Orleans, La., and a spokesman for the Ronald Reagan administration.

The conference will be co-sponsored by the Southwest Five-State Cotton Growers Association and the Cooperative Extension Services of Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California

The conference general chairman is Joe D. Unfred of New Home, president of the Plains Cotton Growers.

Tax hike likely solution to city worker strike

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio (AP) -Municipal employees reached agreement on a contract with the city Saturday night and were close to ending an eight-day sickout that left garbage piled up and prompted businessmen to hire private security guards.

City Council President Gerald Di-Loreto said the city would have to take several actions to fund pay raises called for in the 30-month agreement, such as layoffs of some employees, budget cuts and a possible tax hike.

But, he said, "I don't think this community could have taken another weekend like this. The way things were going, somebody was going to get killed."

Agreement came after nearly *seven hours of negotiations, DiLoreto said. He would not discuss details of the proposal.

· Police did not immediately return to work in force and said they would not return until the settlement was finalized by both sides.

Skeleton safety forces were on the job for the first time in a week Saturday, but had threatened to renew their job action if negotiations failed to show progress. Police officers, firefighters and non-uniformed employees have stayed off the job since Jan. 23 in a wage dispute with the city. The public employees have worked without a contract since Dec. 15. It was not immediately known how many police officers and firefighters were scheduled to work Saturday.

Non-uniformed municipal workers do not work weekends and it was not known whether any planned to return to their posts Monday. The "blue flu" first struck police at the midnight shift a week ago Friday, then spread to firefighters the following morning. By Monday, 290 of 350 city employees had called in sick. Jefferson County Common Pleas Judge Brenner Levinson issued a temporary restraining order Friday afternoon ordering the employees back to their jobs. Brenner plans a hearing Tuesday to deal with the city's request for a preliminary injunction

It would be up to the city to decide whether to press contempt charges against workers who refuse to obey the court order.

Wages are the main obstacle in settling the dispute. Starting salaries are $12,500 for firefighters and $13,300 for police. The unions say they need a 15 percent raise, but the City Counci! maintains it doesn't have the money.

The two sides offered several compromises Friday night before adjourning after six hours of talks. Any settlement reportedly would be contingent on a proposal asking voters to boost the city's 1 percent income

Garbage has started piling up on the city streets because sanitation workers have joined the sickout. Water department crews are also off the job and city officials say a breakdown in the water plant could leave major industries and two hospitals without water.

The sewage treatment plant has shut down, forcing the city to pump raw sewage into the Ohio River.

Mayor William Crabbe requested state aid Thursday, but was turned down by the Ohio National Guard. He renewed his effort Friday, calling the situation "unmanageable and intoler-

Crime has increased dramatically during the sickout.

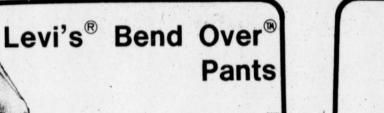

Private security firms have been hired by several downtown businesses to patrol the streets regularly in marked cruisers. Some merchants stay in their stores all night, armed with shotguns, pistols and guard

McKeel leaving Balch Springs to avoid more press interviews

By GARY GARRISON Associated Press Writer

BALCH SPRINGS, Texas (AP) - Marine Sgt. Johnny McKeel says he did not tell a Canadian newspaper he saw a mob of Iranians mutilate the bodies of eight Americans killed during the attempted rescue of the 52 hostages.

He said a report pub-lished Friday in the Toronto Sun was "strictly a rumor. I did not see any

He also denied making any comment about the reported incident when the subject arose during an interview with a Canadian reporter.

The tabloid newspaper quoted McKeel as saying he watched through a window as a mob cut off the hands of the American servicemen.

McKeel, dressed in a Texas Rangers baseball hat and Rangers warmup jacket, talked to reporters on the front porch of his parents' house Saturday before leading a parade to celebrate his return to the Dallas suburb of Balch Springs.

Before the press conference, McKeel cut the yellow ribbons that had adorned an oak tree in the front yard for most of the 444 days the 52 hos-tages were held captive.

He also climbed a ladder to the roof and took down a tattered American flag - another reminder of the hostage

At one point, he said he was forced to remove his clothes and stand outside in the cold with a rifle pointed at his head. Another time, he was told he would be executed, he said, and for about volved with him in a plan 40 days he was tied up

They tried to break our morale. They insulted us. They tried to break us. But we were able to survive because we knew we had the American people behind us," he said.

McKeel was guarding the entrance of the American embassy compound on Nov. 4, 1979, the day Iranians militants seized it and those inside. When he sprayed Mace into the face of one of the Iranians, he said, a scuffle ensued in which a tooth filling was knocked

McKeel leaving Balch Springs to avoid more press interviews

By GARY GARRISON Associated Press Writer

BALCH SPRINGS, Texas (AP) - Marine Sgt. Johnny McKeel says he did not tell a Canadian newspaper he saw a mob of Iranians mutilate the bodies of eight Ameri-cans killed during the attempted rescue of the 52 hostages.

He said a report published Friday in the Toronto Sun was "strictly a rumor. I did not see any of that.'

He also denied making any comment about the reported incident when the subject arose during an interview with a Canadian reporter.

The tabloid newspaper quoted McKeel as saying he watched through a window as a mob cut off the hands of the American servicemen.

McKeel, dressed in a Texas Rangers baseball hat and Rangers warmup jacket, talked to reporters on the front porch of his parents' house Saturday before leading a parade to celebrate his return to the Dallas suburb of Balch

Before the press conference, McKeel cut the yellow ribbons that had adorned an oak tree in the front yard for most of the 444 days the 52 hostages were held captive.

He also climbed a ladder to the roof and took down a tattered American flag - another reminder of the hostage

His superiors have granted him a 30-day convalescent leave, after which McKeel will go to the Quantico, Va., head-to 1880, Lum Medlin, a hunter who was traveling alone, made what was later to become Midland his home. Local history tells us that Lum was one of the first white men to settle in the area. Early in 1880, R. N. Garrett arrived here with a herd of sheep destined for market. Like so many of those who followed, Garrett took an immediate liking to the surroundings and made it his home. Soon, thereafter, his California family joined him.

MIDLAND IS NOW 96 YEARS OLD. A few years prior

In those early days the railroad people dropped off a box car to serve the growing community as a depot, post office and general store. On February 2, 1885 Midland County was established; 26 days later the City of Midland became a reality.

The old, middle-aged and young enterprises of Midland have contributed immeasurably to the progress, pride and prosperity of our city. You will be interested in reading this list of leading firms and organizations whose names have been arranged by the number of years they have served Midlanders and other West Texas residents.

DALLAS (AP) - Texas reserve Virdell Howland peppered the nets for 29 points Saturday night, leading Texas to an 83-63 runaway Southwest Conference basketball win over Southern Methodist.

Ray Harper added 20 points for the Longhorns and 6-10 center LaSalle Thompson added 18 as the Longhorns dominated from the opening tipoff.

Texas led by 18 at the half, 43-25, and the lead increased to as much as 21 points during the second period. Dave Piehler's 25 points led the Mustangs while grard Keith Beverly

J Pro Bowl All - Stars seeing action today

HONOLULU (AP) - The opposing Pro Bowl coaches, Sam Rutigliano of the American Football Conference and the National Conference's Leeman Bennett, have the same strategy for today's game unleash all those talented players, enjoy watching them and hope for victory.

Being with the best football players in the world is a kick for me," said Cleveland's Rutigliano. "I just hope I don't mess them up so much that they don't win.'

"These guys certainly know the game so it's just a matter of getting everything on a common ground and letting them go to it," said Atlanta's Bennett.

Earl Campbell of Houston, the NFL's leading rusher for the past three years, and top-rated passer Brian Sipe of Cleveland will lead Ru tigliano's AFC All-Stars, with the NFC team featuring Chicago running back Walter Payton and Bennett's quarterback, Steve Bartkowski of Atlanta. Buffalo's Joe Gibbs is the other starter in the AFC backfield with John Jefferson of San Diego and New England's Stanley Morgan the wide receivers

St. Louis running back Ottis Anderson will line up with Payton in the NFC backfield, and Harold Carmichael of Philadelphia and Green Bay's James Lofton are the starting wide receivers.

Defensively, the NFC will feature Tampa Bay linebacker Lee Roy Selmon, Dallas tackle Randy White and safety Nolan Cromwell of Los Angeles. The AFC's defensive contingent includes San Diego tackle Gary Johnson, linebackers Robert Brazile of Houston and Oakland's Ted Hendricks, and Raider cornerback Lester

As a comment on the wealth of talent on hand, the AFC reserves include San Diego quarterback Dan

Fouts and Houston tight end Dave Casper, while Minnesota wide receiver Ahmad Rashad and Philadelphia quarterback Ron Jaworski will open the game on the NFC bench.

The nationally televised contest at Aloha Stadium, with a sellout crowd of 49,800 expected, is scheduled for a 3 p.m. CST kickoff.

Rutigliano and Bennett agreed there was little chance of seeing any fancy play-calling in the contest, since they had just four short practices to prepare their respective clubs.

"Offensively, what you try to do is just turn everything into a mutual, basic language," explained Rutigliano. "Defensively, since the rules restrict you to a 4-3, there's no way to fool them.

"We've had great responsiveness from the players. They've enjoyed this past week and I know it's going to be a great game.'

Bennett said, "You really don't have time to put in anything fancy. You don't want to tinker with these guys too much, anyway.

While the AFC has been the dominant team in recent Super Bowls, the NFC has won five of the past six Pro

"I don't understand it," said Bennett, smiling, "but I hope it continues one more time."

Chicago's GM attends fete

Fans hooted and howled when he traded off Bruce Sutter, the former Midland Cub who went on to win the Cy Young Award in baseman Ken Reitz and outfielder Leon "Bull" Durham. But Chicago Cubs General Manager Bob Kennedy hopes it will be remembered in the future as the swap that evens the score for Lou Brock

Brock, of course, was by the Cubs to the Cardinals just before he rocketed to stardom and Chicago fans have never let the Cubs live it down. If they'd kept Brock to go with Billy Wil-

Kennedy, the man selected by the Cubs to rebuild the club, will be among the dignitaries at the Midland Sports Banquet to be held Feb. 10 at the Greentree Country Club. He will be there along with guest speaker Bobby Winkles, Bill Rigney, Sr., Houston Astros' owner John McMul len; Astro pitchers J.R. Richard, Nolan Ryan and Don Sutton; former OU quarterback Jack Mildren; Atlanta Falcons' GM Eddie LeBaron and a few more yet to be announced celebrities. Kennedy rejoined the Cubs in 1976 after serving as a coach and head coach with Chicago from 1962-65 when Cubs introduced its board of rotating coaches. After graduation from Chicago's DeLaSalle High and Morgan Park High, he signed with the White Sox as a 16-year-old in 1937 and played with the Cleveland Indians from 1948 to 1954 and during his playing career he played also with Baltimore, Detroit and Brooklyn.

After retiring as an active player, Kennedy served as a scout, assistant farm director, GM and manager. From 1969 to 1976 he was with St. Louis on special assignments, joined Seattle's expansion club in early 1976 as special assistant to the GM and then was tapped by the Cubs that fall.

It was a Cinderella finish for Odessa Bonham Saturday night. Cedric Thornton picked off an errant Midland Purple pass with 19 seconds remaining in the game, drove in and scored, was fouled and coverted the charity toss to break a 66-66 tie and give the Bohman Owls a 69-66 come-from-behind win over the young Wildcats at Midland High gym in the finals of the Midland-Odessa Freshman Invitational Tournament Satur day night.

MIDLAND FELL behind for the fisrt time when Eugene Bell hit a layup with 3:45 left in the game to give Bonahm a 61-60 lead. Midland came right back to take the lead back on two free throws by Frank Salsido. The teams traded buckets until Bell hit one of two charities to tie the game at 66 with 31 seconds left and set the stage for Thornton's heroics.

Midland, who had one time in the first half held a 12-point lead, led 54-51 going into the final eight minutes of play. But cold shooting and sloppy ball handling by the Wildcats allowed Bonham to score several easy buckets enroute to the upset win.

Midland started fast. At the first break, the Wildcats held an 18-15 ad vantage. Behind the shooting and rebounding of Terry McGowan, Carry Wallace and Dennis Wallace they built up a 34-22 lead with three minutes left in the half. The Owls pecked away and went to the lockerroom down 38-28.

IN THE THIRD quarter, Bonham picked up steam while it appeared the Wildcats were getting tired. Bonham outscored the Midlanders 23-16 in the quarter to cut the deficit to 54-51 heading into the final eight minutes of play. Charles Hunter had a big third quarter for Bonham as he tossed in nine points of his 22 points.

In the deciding eight minutes, Midland tired noticeably as the Wildcats were out hustled on loose balls and Bonham started gaining control of the boards. The Wildcats hit only five of 21 shots in the final period and lost the ball nine times on turnovers to allow Bonham to take the first-place trophy to Odessa.

Bell led Bonham with a game high 24 points while Wallace rang up 20 points for Midland and McGowan added 18 tallies

Midland Purple advanced to the finals with a heart-stopping 87-86 win over Odessa Ector that had all the drama of a TV afternoon soap opera.

Bonham had an easy time getting to the finals. Odessa Nimitz' Admirals fell to Bonham 60-50 in the semifi-

In the third place game, Ector struggled to a 70-62 win over Nimitz. The consolation championship went to the Odessa Crocket Colts with a 48-43 decision over Lee White.

NAMED TO THE all-tournament team were: Terry McGowan, Midland Purple; Greg Polk, Midland White; Leroy Rodriguez, Odessa Crockett; Billy Gibbs, Lee Red: Eu gene Bell, Odessa Bonham; Milton Jenkins; Odessa Ector; Charles Hunter, Bonham; Quincy Clay, Lee White; Cary Wallace, Purple; Albert Reed, Purple.

ODESSA BONHAM (69) — Bell 12-0-1-21; Hunter 10-2-1-22; Carman 1-0-1-2; Hamilton 6-1-2-13; Thornton 3-1-1-7; Handy 0-0-2-0; Ellison 0-0-1-0, Totals 32-5-15-69.

MHS Boosters meeting Monday

The Midland High Booster Club will meet at 8 p.m. Monday at the MHS Youth Center to meet with Bulldog basketball coach Jack Stephenson.

Stephenson will give a scouting report on Midland Lee and Odessa Permain, the teams MHS will face this week. He will also show a flim of one of the previous District 5-5A games. The meeting is being held at 7 p.m. instead of 8 p.m. so MHS fans can see the MHS and Lee girls play at 6 p.m. at Chaparral

NBA All-Stars in battle today

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) -Julius Erving, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Larry Bird and 19 other stars will be on display today when the East entertains the West in the 31st National Basketball Association All-Star Game at the Coliseum.

It's a prime showcase for the NBA, with many of the league's top players competing in one nationally televised (CBS 12 noon, CDT) extravaganza. With the Super Bowl out of the way, this is the chance for pro basketball to make its bid to move out of football's shadow.

It's a big event locally, too. 'This means anywhere from $1 million to $1.5 million in new money to the economy," said Richard DeChant, senior vice president of the Greater Cleveland Growth Association.

"More important than the money to me is the image thing," said Bob Ulas of the Greater Cleveland Convention and Visitors Bureau. "This will show 2,000 people who never would have come to Cleveland that this is a big league city on the comeback.

The East leads the series 19-11 and won last year's game 144-138 in overtime, but the West shapes up as the team with more explosive firepower this time.

The five leading scorers in the league all are on the West squad - Adrian Dantley of Utah, Moses Malone of Houston, George Gervin of San Antonio, Otis Birdsong of Kansas City and Abdul-Jabbar of Los Angeles. Together, they are averaging 139.8 points per

"It will be a real pleasure to coach in a situation where it's virtually impossible to make a bad substitution," said John MacLeod of the Phoenix Suns, who will be guiding the West squad. "It's a great honor to coach in this game, but I wouldn't be able to get there if my ball club didn't have the best record in the West to give me the opportunity.'

MacLeod, making his first All-Star appearance, said he plans to divide playing time equally among his 11 squad

"They are all All-Stars and ought to get an equal chance to participate in a game such as this," he said. "I don't feel that some players should get additional playing time at the expense of anyone else.

The West starters, as picked in fan balloting, are Dantley and Walter Davis of Phoenix at forward. Abdul-Jabbar at center and Gervin - the Most Valuable Player of last year's game, when he scored 34 points for the East - and Paul Westphal of Seattle at guard.

The reserves, picked by conference coaches, are forwards Jamaal Wilkes of Los Angeles and Len "Truck" Robinson of Phoenix, centers Malone of Houston and Jack Sikma of Seattle, and guards Birdsong of Kansas City and Dennis Johnson of Phoenix.

Philadelphia's Erving, the leading vote-getter in the fan balloting, heads the starting five for the East team. He is joined by Dan Roundfield of Atlanta at forward, Artis Gilmore of Chicago at center, and Eddie Johnson of Atlanta and Reggie Theus of Chicago at guard.

The reserves include three members of the Boston Celtics - forward Bird, center Robert Parish and guard Nate Archibald. Other East substitutes are guard Michael Ray Richardson of New York and forwards Bobby Jones of Philadelphia and Marques Johnson of Mil-

"We have a lot of speed at both the guard and forward positions and they appear to have more depth in the middle," said Billy Cunningham of the Philadelphia 76ers, who will be coaching the East team for the third time.

Cunningham guided the East to a 133-125 victory at Atlanta in 1978 and also coached last year's winning team. "Both games were similar in a way," he said. "We had a slow start in the second period each time, but came back to win tough games.

Abdul-Jabbar will be participating in his 11th All-Star game. by far the most of anyone on either squad. Parish and Theus are the only players who will be making their All-Star debuts.

A victory Sunday would let Cunningham stand by himself as the second winningest coach in NBA All-Star history. Red Auerbach posted a 7-4 All-Star record, while Cunningham is currently tied for second with Al Cervi, Larry Costello, Joe Lapchick. Fred Schaus and Tommy Heinsohn with two victories

Utah downs BYU, 60-56, in WAC basketball tilt

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) - Center Tom Chambers scored 22 points, including two foul shots with 18 seconds left, to lift No.9 Utah to a 60-56 basketball victory over 15th-ranked Brigham Young Saturday night.

The victory boosted host Utah to a

18-1 season mark and nailed down a commanding Western Athletic Conference lead for the Utes, who are

The loss, BYU's first in the last five games against their up-state rivals, dropped the Cougars to 15-4 and 6-2.

It was Chambers who, with 1:28 left in the game, slammed home a dunk off a fast break, to give Utah a 55-52 lead it never relinquished.

BYU's Greg Ballif had tied the game at 52 on a layup with 2:05 remaining, but the Cougars went cold and scored no more field goals in the BYU guard Danny Ainge, who was held under 20 points for only the second time this season, hit two foul shots with 19 seconds remaining to move the Cougars to within two at 58-56. But Chambers' two foul shots one second later ensured Utah's vic-

BYU led by as many as six points in the first half on the way to a 28-26 advantage at intermission. The score was knotted eight times early in the second half before Utah moved ahead by six at 48-42 on jumpers by Chambers and Danny Vranes.

Utah got 14 points from Karl Bankowski, 10 of them in the second half, and 12 from Vranes, who also had 11 rebounds.

Ainge managed 16 points to lead BYU scoring, Steve Craig added 12 and Fred Roberts and Steve Trumbo both had 10.

North Texas nips HSU by 78-77

ABILENE, Texas (AP) - Tony Macalik helped erase a five-point deficit, then hit both ends of a two-shot foul with five seconds remaining in overtime to give North Texas State a 78-77 non-conference basketball win over Hardin-Simmons Saturday night.

The see-saw affair saw the Cowboys take a 42-40 halftime lead, but North Texas' Mean Green came out shoot ing in the second half, outscoring H-SU 20-6 for a 60-48 lead with 11:15 left in regulation.

Then it was the Cowboys' turn to get hot and when Ricky Phillips rammed home a layup off an offensive rebound, the game was tied at 66-all at the end of regulation.

H-SU jumped out to an early fivepoint lead in the overtime, but buckets by Macalik and David Vasher brought the Mean Green within a point, setting up Macalik's game-winning free throws.

The Cowboys, 5-12, were led by Phillips and Jake Bethany with 16 points each.

Cook captures lead in Crosby

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) - John Cook slogged over raindrenched fairways to a 6-under-par 66 and the lead Saturday after the twice-delayed first round of the $225,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am

Cook, a 23-year-old former national amateur champion, played his round at Cypress Point, which often yields the lower scores of the three courses used for this storm-plagued event that was two days late getting started.

A series of Pacific storms dumped more than five inches of rain on the Monterey Peninsula early in the week, washed out play Thursday and Friday and forced officials to reduce this to a three-round, 54-hole eventnow scheduled to end Monday.

Tom Watson, golf's dominant force and Player of the Year for the past four seasons, opened his 1981 campaign with a 67, also at Cypress Point, and was a single shot off the lead.

Also at 67 were Ben Crenshaw, 20-year-old Bobby Clampett and Greg Powers, a non-winning journeyman. Crenshaw and Powers also played at Cypress Point while Clampett had the best score of the bright, sunny day

Tom Kite had a 68 at Pebble Beach.

Jack Nicklaus, who has won this tournament three times, said he played "reasonably well but I couldn't get anything really close to the hole. I kept hitting three or four feet from the flag and pulling back 20 feet on the wet greens." He shot a 71 at Cypress Point.

His amateur partner, former President Gerald Ford, failed to help the team a single shot before what Nicklaus called "the biggest gallery I've

"He made some pars, but they were on holes where I made birdie, and he made some pars where he didn't get a shot," Nicklaus said. Jerry Pate, Dr. Gil Morgan and David Graham, a winner last week in Phoenix, had 69s that represented the best scores at Spyglass Hill, the longest and probably toughest of the three courses. 'That's the one I'm worried about," said Watson, who will play that layout on the final day.

'Anybody who played Spyglass and is within two or three shots of the lead probably is the real leader of the golf tournament," said Kite. Cook, who has yet to win in his brief pro career, didn't make a bogey in what he called "my most solid round this year." He didn't miss a green and missed only two fairways, a critical consideration in this tournament since the still-drenched, water-logged conditions forced officials to allow players to lift, clean and place balls in

'We couldn't have played otherwise," Kite said. Crenshaw agreed.

"It was tough out there," he said, clumps of wet grass and soggy sand clinging to his spikes.

'But any time you let these guys get their hands on the ball, they're going to shoot good scores. When you have preferred lies you're not going to get fliers and the greens are so soft you can go right for the flag every

Crenshaw, who had only 23 putts for the round, once chipped in for a birdie, scored the only "2" of his career on the famed 16th at Cypress and played the back side in 30.

Cook scored once from 25 feet, reached a par-5 in two and two-putted for a birdie, had a couple of birdie putts from the 12-15 foot range and scored two deuces from six feet or less.

Watson started his season in rather uncertain fashion going 5-5 on the first two holes. He more than made up for it with a burst of five birdies in a six-hole stretch beginning on the seventh.

Two assistants will stay with Biles on Houston Oiler+staff

HOUSTON (AP) - Two of Bum work under new head coach Ed Biles. team officials announced Saturday

Andy Bourgeois will continue to coach offensive backs and special teams and Bob Gambold will remain as coach of the defensive secondary, said Oilers General Manager Ladd Herzeg.

'This will go a long way in providing us with the continuity which I've felt was so important to the Oilers at this time," Herzeg said. Biles also said he was glad the two assistants decided to stay.

Gambold will enter his fifth season with the Oilers while Bourgeois, dean of Houston coaches, will be starting his ninth year.

Kansas State previals

AMES, Iowa (AP) - Rolando Blackman scored 18 points, leading five Kansas State players in double figures, as the Wildcats defeated Iowa State 75-62 in a Big Eight Conference basketball game Saturday

Kansas State trailed 32-31 at half time and was down 40-36 early in the second half before Blackman led a charge that gave the Wildcats control of the game.

Randy Reed finished with 15 points, Tyrone Adams 14, Ed Nealy 13 and Tim Jankovich 11 for Kansas State, now 13-5 overall and 3-3 in the Big

Three former Houston assistant Phillips' former assistant coaches will stay with the Houston Oilers to coaches left the Oilers earlier this month to join Phillips at New Orleans, including Phillips' son, Wade.

Phillips was fired as Oiler head coach the week after his team lost to eventual Super Bowl champion Oakland in the first round of the NFL

in bowling win

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) - Marshall Holman of Medford, Ore. took a 22-pin lead midway through the championship match Saturday and held off a strong challenge by Richard Martinez to win the $125,000 Quaker State Open on the Professional Bowlers Association tour.

Holman, 26, clinched the $20,000 first prize in the tournament by converting a 3-6 spare in the tenth frame of the final match and rolling a nine count on his final ball to beat Martinez 209-203 in the title

"It's amazing how many games I've bowled better than that and haven't won," he said. "I wound up winning by picking up the 3-6-10 (split) twice and the 3-6 (pins) in the last three fames and I'm not known to be a great spare shooter.

"I'm decent at making spares but my forte is throwing strikes,' It was Holman's first victory since the 1979 Brunswick World Open in Chicago and the 12th PBA crown Martinez, a 26-year-old southpaw from Yuba City, Calif., advanced to the championship match by defeating Mark Roth of Spring Lake Heights, N.J., Earlier, Roth had eliminated fourth-seeded Wayne Webb of Tucson, Ariz., 223-177, after Webb - the 1980

PBA Player of the Year — downed George Pappas of Charlotte, N.C., 212-211. Martinez earned $11,000 for his runnerup finish, the best of his three-year career. Roth collected $7,500, while Webb and Pappas earned $6,000 and $5,000, respectively, The win moves Holman into the earnings lead in the 1981 PBA tour with a total of $35,700. Roth is second with $34,500.

Palmer takes LPGA lead

DEERFIELD BEACH, Fla. (AP) - Veteran Sandra Palmer struggled through tricky winds on the back nine Saturday, but took a 4-stroke lead after three rounds of the Ladies Professional Golf Association's $100,000 Whirlpool Championship of Deer

Palmer turned in a 1-over-par 74 for a 209 total after three rounds, 10 under par on the 6,260-yard, par-73 Deerfield Country Club Course.

Despite the scramble down the back nine, Palmer added a stroke to her lead, moving four ahead of Janet Coles, Hollis Stacey and a rallying Silvia Bertolaccini, one of the few late finishers able to contend with the swirling winds.

Michigan State in upset

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) - Junior guard Kevin Smith scored 22 points, including four free throws in the last minute, as Michigan State upset Ohio State 60-54 Saturday to knock the Buckeyes out of first place in the Big Ten Conference basketball

Ohio State fell to 5-3 in the conference and 10-7 overall. The Spartans are now 3-5 and 9-8.

Ohio State's Todd Penn hit a jumper from the corner with 1:03 left in the game to cut the Spartans' lead to 54-52. But Smith hit a pair of free throws with 57 seconds remaining, then stole the ball, was fouled and hit another pair of free throws with 40 seconds remaining to seal the victory.

Clark Kellogg led Ohio State with 25 points, followed by Herb Williams with 10.

Holman pockets Ferguson Jenkins 5 $20,000 check will pitch again

By PAUL HAGEN Dallas Times Herald

DALLAS - Baseball players, distracted by applause, tend to forget that they are subject to the same rules of life as a car salesman or the Maytag repairman.

One of the most unchangeable of these rules is this: You never miss what you have until you don't have it any more. This was a simple thought that was brought rudely to Ferguson Jenkins's attention last August when two beefy men escorted him from Toronto's Exhibition Stadium and later charged him with possession of cocaine, hashish and marijuana.

For a span approaching two decades, Jenkins has been one of baseball's premier pitchers and class acts. But during the last few seasons, the thrill began to fade. He said many times he would retire when his con tract ran out after the 1981 season. He had come to take for granted that, given good health, he could trudge to the mound every fifth day and throw

Then it all changed. Suddenly Jenkins faced Commissioner Bowie Kuhn barring him from baseball. He might never pitch again.

"I think it really hit me when I was sitting in the courtroom, alone, while the jury was deliberating," Jenkins said earlier this week.

"I kind of summed up my career in my mind. It's like John Ellis always says, baseball is a great summer job. And I knew that I might have to find another summer job, which would be to work on my farm. I have great memories and ties with a lot of fine athletes, but when you get out of the game, those things kind of end."

Jenkins was found guilty of possession of cocaine but the conviction was later erased from his record with an absolute discharge. Now the only barrier remaining is another hearing with Kuhn on Feb. 6 in New York.

The first meeting, shortly after the arrest, was a disaster. Kuhn wanted names of players who used drugs. Jenkins, on the advice of attorney Ed Greenspan, declined all comment. Kuhn, piqued, later suspended Jen-kins with pay, a move that was reversed after the Players Association filed a grievance.

No announcement has been made, but a compromise appears to have been worked out. The Rangers, with Jenkins's cooperation, will set up an ail anti-drug program. And Jenkins will , 761 be allowed to keep pitching.

Now that Jenkins has been reminded of what baseball means to him, his agent (Art Kaminsky) is talking to the Rangers about an extension of Jenkins's contract. "I still feel that my family deserves as much of my time as possible, especially while my kids are young,' he said. "But you have to be realistic, too. I'd like to have those checks keep coming in. The ball club will make that decision, I guess. If they don't want my services after this year, I guess the handwriting will be on the

Illinois upsets Hawkeyes, 79-66

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Craig Tucker and Eddie Johnson, who became the second leading scorer in Illinois history, each put on a secondhalf burst Saturday that carried Illinois to a 79-66 upset of 13th-ranked Iowa in a Big Ten basketball

Tucker scored four points in a 9-1 tear that gave the Illini a 69-52 lead with 4:41 left and their biggest of the game at 17 points. Earlier in the half, Johnson hit a pair of baskets as

Illinois outscored Iowa 8-3 to pull into a 10-point lead with 11: 40 to play, setting the tone for the rest of the Illinois, now 13-4 overall and 5-3 in the Big Ten, used a fast-paced offense and a tough zone that kept Iowa's two big men - Steve Krafcisin and Steve

Waite - far under their offensive potential. Tucker finished with a game-high 20 points and Johnson had 14 as five Illini scored in double figures. Kenny Arnold led Iowa with 12 points, but the Hawkeyes got only 10 points from Waite and eight from Krafcisin.

passing Nick Weatherspoon, who had 1,481, as second on the all-time Illini list. Mark Smith earlier this season became the all-time leader and his 11 Saturday gave him 1,503. Smith left the game with 8:30 left to play after sustaining an apparent ankle injury. Iowa's last lead was at 4-3, but Illinois ran off seven straight points, four by Tucker, to lead 10-4 with 14:20 to go before intermission. The Illini led 38-31 at the half.

Iowa fell to 13-4 and 5-3 in the conference.

Lennon death brings outcry.

The tragic death of John Lennon as become another occasion for antiun hysteria. Every time a public lgure is murdered, gun owners wait n dread for the proganda barrage to egin. Arguments in favor of gun control re emotional and simplistic. Statisics on the increase in violent crime how up, as if these in and of themelves proved the efficiencyof gun ontrol Instead of an analysis of the auses and prevention of crime, we re treated to a lurid recitation of the ffenses committed with firearms.

Entirely lost in the analysis of Lenton's murder is the fact that the fleged killer procured his weapon in one of the strictist gun-control states in the nation. And the crime was committed in New York City, which has the most stringent gun-control statues of any metropolitan area.

Hawaii, where Mark Chapman ought his .38, requires a police permit to purchase a handgun. A license needed to carry a gun, and of ourse, all guns are registered when pruchased through e dealer as reuired by the Gun Control Act of 1968. low much more gun control can you

New York City has all of Hawaii's ontrols and more. These restrictions re enforced in such an arbitary manner as to amount to a virtual prohibition on the legal ownership of handguns. Despite these controls, there are an estimated one-million to two-million illegal handguns in New

If anything, the much-touted crime statistics prove that gun control doesn't work. New York City's homicide rate for 1979 was 19.8 per 100,000--more than double the national average. For the same period, the city's robbery rate was 628.7 per 100,000-over four times the national rate.

A comparison of state crime statistics shows no direct relationship between strict gun control and a relatively lower rate of violent crime. In 1978, of the 15 states with murder rates of less than half the national average, nine have little or no gun control. Conversely, of the 15 states with the highest homicide rates 10 have restrictive legislation.

Perhaps we should ban handguns, period. But John F. Kennedy, Martin Luther King, Jr., and Vernon Jordan were all shot with rifles. Medgar Evers was murdered with a shotgun. Ok, lets outlaw all firearms. All we have to do is figure out how to collect the 200 million guns in private hands, and then enforce the prohibition. That should be easy, considering how well the prohibition on illicit drugs has

Virginia guns down Blue Devils

Seniors Jeff Lamp and Lee Raker led a 14-3 spurt over the last 11 minutes of the first half and a 13-point run after intermission that gave co-top-ranked Virginia a 68-47 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball victory over Duke Saturday.

Lamp, who became the No. 9 all time career scorer in ACC history, finished with 20 points and Raker, eight of nine from the floor, with 18. The Cavaliers ran the nation's longest Division I winning streak to 23 and set a school mark with 18 successive triumphs this season.

The Cavaliers, leading the ACC with an 8-0 record, also got 10 points each from 7-foot-4 sophomore Ralph Sampson and freshman guard Othell

Gene Banks led Duke, 2-5 in the ACC and 11-8 overall, with 18 points but had six of the Blue Devils' 10 turnovers in the first half. Vince Taylor had 10 points for Duke, which brought a four-game winning streak into the regionally televised game.

Raker, who has hit 18 of 22 shots in his last two games, scored the game's first four points. But Duke, playing deliberately on offense, pulled to a 10-8 lead on a 12-footer by Taylor with 11:30 left in the first half.

Then the Cavaliers closed with their 14-3 run, Lamp and Raker scoring four points each and Sampson and Wilson three apiece.

Virginia led 22-13 at intermission, but Duke twice cut the gap to five points in the second half, the last time to 36-31 with 12:55 left on an 18-footer by Kenny Dennard.

Lamp and Raker once again scored four points each, Wilson had a threepoint play and Sampson a basket as Virginia ran off 13-straight points over a three-minute span to build the lead to 49-31 and end any suspense about the outcome.

Nebraska upsets Kansas, 57-54

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) - Ray Collins sank both ends of a one-and-one free throw with 16 seconds left as Nebraska hung on to upset No. 18 Kansas 57-54 in Big Eight Conference college basketball here Saturday.

Nebraksa, now 10-8 overall and 4-2 in the league, took an early lead in the nationally-televised game and found itself up by as many as 10 points before heading in at half with a 31-23 lead. The heavily-favored Jayhawks, now 14-4 overall and 4-2 in Big Eight play.

battled back in the second half with full-court pressure and a tenacious zone defense. Kansas pulled within one point with 12 minutes left, 41-40. The teams traded baskets before Kenny Walton hit an eight-footer to put

Nebraska ahead by three, 49-46 with 6:32 left. But Kansas stayed right with the Huskers, pulling again within one with a minute to play. Then, as Nebraska went into a four-corner stall, Husker Andre Smith palmed the ball with 45 seconds to play.

The Jayhawks inbounded the ball down 55-54, apparently going for the game's last shot. But Jayhawk guard Boody Neal traveled and Nebraska

Neal then fouled Collins with 16 seconds left. Following Collins' two free throws, Kansas took the ball down for one shot, missed and Nebraska held

Oregon State trips USC, 55-48

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) - Center Steve Johnson scored 25 points as a tough Oregon State defense pushed the co-No.1-ranked Beavers to a 55-48 Pacific 10 Conference basketball victory over Southern Cal Saturday. The Beavers, aided by passing of Les Conner and Johnson's scoring underneath, ran off to a 26-10 lead with 6:11 to play in the first half. Johnson had the last seven points of the flurry.

But the Beavers became casual at that point, and the Trojans battled back to score the last 11 points of the period to close the margin to five at 26-21 at intermission. But the early second half belonged to the Beavers, 9-0 in the Pac 10 and

17-0 overall. Oregon State took an 11-point lead, 48-29, when Johnson scored following a miss by Conner with 12:37 to play. The Trojans, 5-4 in the Pac-10 and 10-8 overall, clawed back with a shot by

Barry Brooks at 6:45, cutting the lead to 42-37. But the Beavers responded with a free throw by Conner and a pair by freshman Charlie Sitton. Johnson added a rolling hookshot to make it 17-37 with 2:56 left and the Trojans never threatened after that. Brooks led the Trojans with 14 points. Johnson, who had 12 rebounds and five assists, left the game with four fouls at 11:29 to go. He fouled out in

Kentucky wins in two overtimes

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) - Coach Joe B. Hall of seventh-ranked Kentucky got a couple of welcomed time outs from Georgia Saturday as his Wildcats edged the Bulldogs 71-68 in double overtime in a televised Southeastern Conference basketball game.

"We are real grateful to Hugh Durham for those time outs," Hall said. They came with 18 seconds remaining, just as Kentucky freshman Jim Master headed to the free throw line for a 1-and-1 opportunity and Kentucky leading 67-66. Master, later saying he was "just exhausted," had asked Hall for permission to call time out and it was granted.

But after the Kentucky time out, Georgia called two in a row, giving Master additional time to rest, and he responded with the two free throws' that put the game on ice with a 69-66 advantage.

Hall said Kentucky's patience in the second half was the key to the victory, adding "when you win in two overtimes, there's a lot of heroes. Earlier in second overtime, Master had put Kentucky ahead to stay with a shot from the corner that broke a 63-63 deadlock

Mississippi State prevails

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) - Jeff Malone sank two free throws with even seconds remaining as Mississippi State edged Vanderbilt 69-68 in a Southeastern Conference basketball game Saturday night.

Vanderbilt trailed 37-29 at the half, but rallied in the second period as Wille Jones scored all of his 15 points. Jones' layup with 15 seconds put Vandy ahead 68-67.

Malone led all scorers with Mississippi State with 22 points. Jerry Lewis and Tim Peyton had 11 points each.

Freshman forward Al Miller paced Vanderbilt with 21 points and Mike, Rhodes added 12.

Crazy weather changes keep anglers guessing

The promise of good weather brings out the fishermen, but unfortunately the brief spells of spring-like conditions don't excite the fish very much at Oak Creek Lake.

"It's not much of a letdown for those that come out for an outing, not to catch fish," says Ike Pate of Sportsman's Lodge, "but bass clubs fishing on a competitive basis, well, it's differnt."

This winter the bass clubs have found the fishing tough, no matter where they fished "If the fish established any kind of pattern, some would figure it out and a lot more big fish would be caught, but this seldom happens during the winter months," says Ike. "There is no scientific proof that the 50 degree water is the turning point in how active fish will be, but in our years of observation, it is about as good an indicator as we know of." Oak Creek fishing was not spectacular in December but some good catches were made. Water temperature was in the low 50s, but that ended with the arrival of a norther, dropping the mercury into the 40s. Last week the Merkel Bass Club held its tournament with 20 anglers failing to make a single catch that would quailfy for weighing. However, there have been a few exceptions. Mr. and Mrs. J.B. Moses of Lubbock had a mixed string of 14 black and white bass while Mr. and Mrs. Keith Chambers of Lubbock hauled in a string of 19 blacks and whites. Live baits were used with a float and just enough weight to control the action of the shad or minnow. Despite the hesitant start, Pate still predicts, "I think this may well be one of the best years we have ever seen here.' Current lake condition: Water clear, temperature at one foot 45, elevation 1990.98 = 9.02 feet below spillway for a net gain of 1 1/2 inches

As the hunting seasons wind down to an end hunters should be reminded to take proper care of all their gear prior to storing it away. Rifles, shotguns and pistols can be protected from rust by stripping the gun and lubricating it with WD-40 or silicone oils. Automatics require regular service to parts to insure smooth operation of spring and gas actions.

Used shells should also be wiped off with an oil rag.

Left over ammo used near saltwater need attention. Those who call with wooden instruments should let them dry out thoroughly before boxing.

Anyone who purchased waders this season found out that the prices had sky-rocketed. The lowest price this writer was able to find on hip boots was over $25, on sale. Anyone who has ever tried to patch a hole in nylon type waders has difficulty in getting a patch to hold. This may be your solu-

BLACK PLASTIC RUBBER -Avialable at most large drug store outlets. A tear in my hip boots was triangular in shape with one inch cuts. A couple of light coatings of this plastic rubber and a tire patch as support has kept my feet dry while hunting this winter.

Another use of this plastic rubber is in the repair of decoys.

Some hunters use candle wax to fill in small holes, like shot holes, but wax still will not hold up in extreme heat nor is it effective in sealing larger holes. Plastic rubbers seems to work very well and even though it is black in color it can be painted over.

Now to store those precious fire-arms. Many hunters still store their guns in gun cases. And for some, nothing ever occurs to hurt the firearms, but you can actually ruin a gun while it is being stored in the case.

Especially if the gun and case is stored in a hot, humid area. Moisture forms inside the case, rusting the gun, no matter how much you oiled it before storing it away. It's best to remove any gun from the case. Store them in an open gun rack or in a dry

Some gun dealers have large vaults and charge a nominal fee for storing firearms.Otherwise, obtain a fireproof, thief-proof gun case and add the guns to your home owners insurance policy.

Little believing goes long way

By GEORGIA TEMPLE

The fact that it had never been done before in Midland did not discourage those who believed it could. All it took was a little imagination, a lot of hard work, planning, money and, most of all, the belief that it could be done.

Thus, last spring Midlanders were able to see their first locally produced opera because enough people who believed were willing to donate their time to Janice Archer was among those believers. She played the role of Rosalinda in the Midland College production of "Die Fledermaus." The opera, which was sold out for all three shows, was a success.

Janice and her husband, Rado, had no doubts that Janice and her husband, Rado, had no doubts that it would be and they planned a closing night celebration at their home. Unknown to Janice because it was a special treat for her, Rado hired the Rony Kole Trio to play.

As the saying goes, for every cause there is an effect and this situation was no exception.

Archer's singing ability. When he returned to New Orleans, he recommended her to a friend and associate, Jack Weis, who was looking for Kole was impressed by the opera and with Mrs. for a movie he was in the process of putting together.

The movie, "You Never Gave Me Roses," stars The movie, "You Never Gave Me Roses," stars Mickey Rooney, Jack Palance and his daughter, Toby, and Broderick Crawford.

Although Weis had signed Rooney two years before, due to strikes, hurricanes and other setbacks the movie had not been filmed yet. In the meantine, Rooney has become quite a hot item with his starring part in "Sugar Babies."

Weis, who was the assistant producer of "Live and Let Die," contacted the Archers.

The Archers sent the videotape of the opera plus tapes of other performances to New Orleans. Then

The tapes had to be heard, not only by Weis, but The tapes had to be heard, not only by Weis, but also by Armand Bladium, the president of Westbound, which is a division of Atlantic Recording Company, because Westbound was to do the movie's soundtrack.

Today, with one strike behind them and another coming up in June, when the directors will go on strike, all of the plans for the movie have been finalized. It will be filmed, starting this month, in New Orleans

"The movie has to be done by the end of March and it has to be released by June." Mrs. Archer explained, in a recent interview in her home in Mid-

"I'm an entertainer in a club and I have a singing role and a speaking role," she said, adding that, as things stand now, she has a few scenes with Palance and with Rooney.

The movie is about a mafia-controlled talent agency and the club scenes will show Mrs. Archer and the Rony Kole Trio performing.

What is still in the negotiating stages is the strong possibility that Mrs. Archer will also do a gospel record for Westbound. Westbound will release the sound track recording worldwide in June. The gospel album would be in addition to the soundtrack.

"They (record companies) try to get you committed solely to them so that you are not free to do other recordings," Mrs. Archer said.

For Mrs. Archer, the movie is a "great new There are things you hope maybe you can do in done films."

Although Mrs. Archer plans on maintaining "a balance between my family and what I want to do professionally," this opportunity represents "the fulfillment of a dream."

The tall, slender man with a long afro apparently left through a west alley on the 400 block of S. Adams St., according to police reports. The incident remains under investigation.

Just before 11:30 a.m. Saturday, police answered a call from Raymond Rayos of 1507 N. Lamesa Road. Rayos' warehouse had been burglarized and several items had been taken after burglars entered by breaking out a 5-by-7 window, police surmise. Some of the offices in the warehouse had also been broken into, according to police reports.

After noon, Ravona Smith of 121 Thornridge Drive reported the burg lary of her automobile while it was at 3609 Gulf Drive. Police reported entry had been gained through an unlocked door and thieves took $60 in cash and a watch valued at $75.

Earlier Saturday, Penny Connell of 4405 N. Garfield St. reported the bur glary of her residence at 2:30 a.m. On Friday, Diana Granado of 1111 S. "We want to make people for tomorrow," said Norma Lewis, nursery director.

Community Day Nursery

Not just a babysitting agency

By NANCY LORD Lifestyle Writer

Children enrolled in Community Day Nursery are there to learn as well as have fun. "We are more than just a baby-sitting agency," noted Norma Lewis, director of the nursery.

The non-profit organization was begun in 1949 when the City Federation of Black Women's Club saw a need for a day care center in the community. It began as a small nursery in a House on East New York Street. By the 1960's, the center had grown so much that it needed extra space, so a move was made to Bunche Elementary School, 700 S. Jackson.

Mrs. Lewis said the center lost its lease at Bunche Elementary last year, so the decision was made to construct a building, and into which the center moved last fall. The new $250,000 facility is located at 815 S. Carver. It is spacious and modern, and includes classrooms for the various age groups and a kitchen with a combination dining area-auditorium.

Plans call for a capitol campaign to begin this month to help pay for the building and promote the growth of the center, according to Mrs. Lewis.

The center receives its operating expenses from program fees which are based on a sliding scale and families of all income levels are eligible to participate in the center. "We don't turn anyone away," said Mrs. Lewis.

She said the center also receives allocations from the United Way of Midland and from the U.S. Department of Commodities for the food Community Day Nursery is licensed by the Texas Department of Human Resources for up to 120 children. Currently, the center is serving approximately 114 children in ages which range from one-year-old to ten-years-old. Mrs. Lewis said that she is also working toward including a program for children as young as three-months-old.

The basic programs offered by the nursery include a pre-readiness program, a pre-kindergarten program and an after-school program.

Programs involve planned activities according to ages, interests and abilities of the children. Activities include supervised rest periods, assisted toileting as necessary and developmental activities including alternating active and quiet activities.

Children are provided with outdoor activities, experiences in blocks, dramatic play, art, music, books, manipulative activities, science and large muscle activities.

Field trips are also a big part of the center's learning activities. Mrs. Lewis said that groups of children have been to the Petroleum Museum, the library and various parks. They have been to the bus station, toured a tamale factory and sometimes they just go shopping. On a recent field trip, children learned how to ride MidTran, Mrs. Lewis said.

Mrs. Lewis is originally from Austin, but she is a 1962 graduate of Carver High School in Midland. She attended Houston Tillitson College in Austin and The University of Texas. She is presently working on her master's degree in child development. She has been director of Community Day Nursery since 1977.

Her staff consists of seven teachers and six aides, as well as a head cook and a curriculum planner-secretary, Center is governed by a board of directors which meets the first Tuesday of each month. Michael Williams is chairman of the board of directors

To serve the parents as well as the children, the Parent-Teacher's Involvement Committee was formed. The committee is involved in fund-raising for the center and offers awareness programs, Mrs. Lewis said.

Community Day Nursery is open year-round, Monday through Friday, from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. A breakfast, lunch and afternoon snack is served. To enroll a child in the program, parents or guardians must fill out an application. Proof of income and immunization records are required. Mrs. Lewis said that there is a waiting list for children ages one and three.

Mrs. Lewis said that she encourages her staff to teach the children love and respect and to treat them like their own children. "We are here to love them," she stated.

"We want to make people for tomorrow," Mrs. Lewis said.

Man trying to match money with owners

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - If you see Laura Lynn Addkisson of Dallas, tell her Leonard Baker has $4.55 he'd like to give her.

Baker, who recently sent a $24,000 check to a Houston man, also has 75 cents for Rick Sweat, formerly of Amarillo.

The state tries to match Texans with their unclaimed bank accounts, inheritances or insurance benefits, and Baker, director of the escheat division of the state treasurer's office, is in charge.

'More than likely we're not going to find them," Baker said.

At any one time, the treasurer has about $14 million in unclaimed funds. The state spends the money but will reimburse owners who come forward.

The state gets the money after it lies dormant for seven years. Financial institutions, insurers and corporations must send in the funds after failing to find the owners.

We run an ad in a newspaper in the city of the last-known address on accounts of $5 or more," Baker said. "We run them one time and one time only.

Now there's another way for Texans who think they are long-lost heirs to find out if Baker has any money for them. Mark Burris, 26, soon will publish his first Burris Escheatage Report.

For $178 per year, Burris will send you a monthly list of unclaimed

"The people at the treasurer's office were excited, very cooperative and maybe amazed that someone would take an interest in publishing this information," Burris said at his Austin office-apartment.

Burris admits his market is collection agencies and lawyers who can make a buck by connecting the unclaimed funds with the rightful

The money becomes the state's as soon as it is reported to Baker. However, there is no statute of limitations on claiming the money. If you can prove it's yours, you can claim it any

"We sent out a check for $24,000 a few weeks ago to a man in Houston,' Baker said. "It was from a bank account. I don't know if he forgot about it or he ignored the bank notices about it.'

Some inheritances go unclaimed due to ignorance.

'A lot of times the heirs of the deceased person are not aware of these accounts. A lot of times the old folks just don't talk about their financial affairs," said Baker.

Tell Frances Wells, last known address in Amarillo, that Baker has $605.46 for her. M.T. Atzenhoffer of Dallas has $1 coming.

Stop picking on the post office

AT WIT'S END

By ERMA BOMBECK I think it's time we all stopped picking on the post office. We've all done it. It's a cheap shot. And it's time we really addressed ourselves to the problems of the Postal Service and the options left to us. The simple fact is people are writing more letters than the post office can deliver.

The answer? We've got to stop writing like this. I have three children who not only anticipated the postal problems, but did something about it. During the years when they were in college, they limited their correspondence to three letters a year: (a) legal action by the university; (b) legal action by the bank; (c) annual begging and whimpering. We could all help by following their example and writing only when we have something startling to say.

Pride must be restored to postmen for what they are delivering. I mean it. The quality of mail has been going downhill for some time now. How do you think mailmen feel walking 50 miles a day to put a bundle of mail in your hands and having you stand there in front of them dropping "The Truss Digest" in the trash and complaining about the rest?

I firmly believe that mail addressed to "Occupant" should be kept at the post office and if people want it they have to show three ID's and certification of sanity.

Abolish postcards from vacationers. This constitutes a large chunk of mail and people who are up to their ashes in snow do not want to hear from someone in Tahiti whose tan line is beginning to fade. Let's stop giving the post office a bad time. If the ZIP code helps them hold postal rates down, let's give it a shot. This summer business leaders will be advised to add four more digits to the five-digit ZIP code we now er and go for the numbers. From here on in, you can call me 555852553. I've been called worse.

Besides, having no name will solve once and for all the forms we fill out that give you 1/16 of an inch-line to fill in your name and complete address.

And finally, let's get realistic about the postal rituals. Let's do away with all those funny little stamps they bounce on ink pads and stamp on letters and packages: "Fragile, Hand Stamp, This Side Up, Handle With Care, Certified, Insured, Rush." They don't mean anything anyway. They're just for show

And grow up, America, there is no phone at the post office. You've always known that. It's time to stop telling yourself that there is someone on another line dispensing information. It just rings to indulge you.

We play ball with the post office and who knows . . . maybe someday they'll put the drive-in mailboxes on the driver's side of the car.

Harmon family stays in limelight

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Making the transition from athlete to artist came naturally to Mark Harmon, 29, star of NBC-TV's "Flamingo Road" series. Two generations of Harmons havebeen actively involved in sports and Mark's father, Tom Harmon, was known as "Ole 98" when he won the Heisman Trophy in 1940 as an All-American halfback at the University of Michigan.

At UCLA, Mark led the 1972 and 1973 Bruins to 8-3 and 9-2 seasons as their quarterback and won the National Football Foundation Award for all-around excellence. After college, his father chose a career in sports broadcasting as the first nationally known sports star to successfully make the transition from the playing field to the broadcast booth. Over the years, Tom Harmon has done more than 10,000 radio and television sports shows ranging from the Olympics to football, golf, boxing, basketball and baseball

Tom Harmon, 6l, continues his involvement with sports by broadcasting special events and publishing a weekly football newspaper.

He is also national chairman for the Laurel Wreath Awards program, a public voting sponsored each February by the American Heart Association to select America's top male and female professional and amateur ath-

Like his father, Mark also became a broadcaster, serving as a commentator for UCLA football; however, sports did not continue to be one of his career goals. Today, Mark's association with football is confined to tossthe ball around on weekends with his twin nephews.

"I loved sports and I loved foot-ball," he said. "But at UCLA I proved what I wanted in that field - to see if I could play with the big boys."

Taking his cue from other members of his family, Mark entered a field which involves a different form of playing - acting. Again, the Harmon family background was an asset.

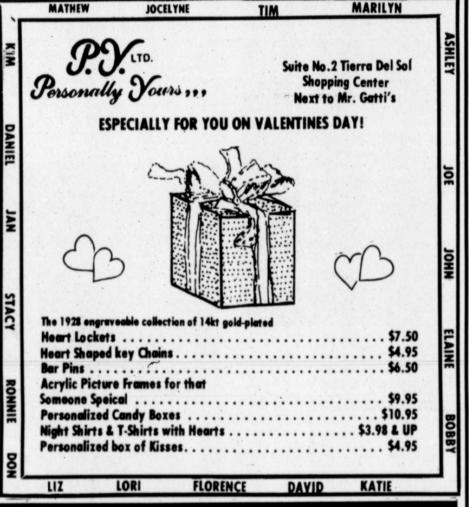

Mark's mother is former actress Elyse Knox, a veteran of more than 20 feature films. His sister Kelly is a model; his other sister, Kris, is a successful primitive artist married to singer-actor Rick Nelson.

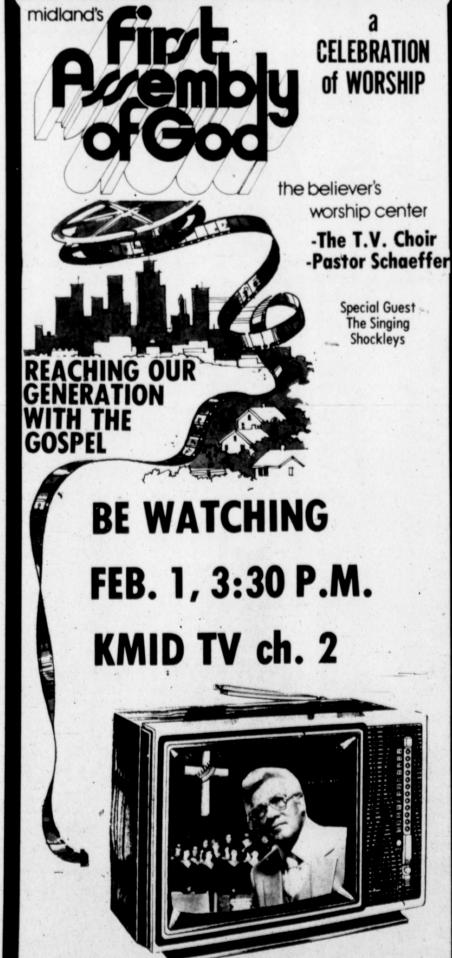

After taking drama courses, acting lessons and participating in workshop programs, Mark made his featurefilm debut in "Comes a Horseman" .

with Jane Fonda and James Caan. Soon after he had a featured role in "Beyond the Poseidon Aventure."

On television, his credits include the miniseries "Centennial" and the movies "Little Mo," "The Dream Merchants" and "Eleanor and Franklin: The White House Years," for which he received an Emmy Award nomination.

Lifestyle guidelines

The following are suggested guidelines for publication of stories in the Lifestyle Department of The Midland Reporter-Telegram:

Information for our Sunday pages must be in our office by 5 p.m. the preceding Tuesday; or two days before publication in a daily paper. Engagement announcements must appear at least four weeks before the wedding date. Wedding stories must be submitted within a week of the event.

Engagements, weddings, anniversaries and club notices must be submitted in writing. All materials should include the name and telephone number of the person submitting them. The Reporter-Telegram has forms for engagement and wedding announcement stories.

We cannot mail pictures or forms to persons living within Midland. Pictures must be picked up in the Lifestyle office within one month after

Only the bride's picture will be used with both the engagement and wedding announcement.

Pictures should be black and white, preferably glossy finish, studio portraits. Studio color pictures may be submitted, but they may reproduce poorly. Good reproduction cannot be assured when color prints are used. In general, snapshots are not acceptable.

There is no charge for publication of pictures and stories.

Associated Press Writer SANDY ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — "You going to get us a bridge?" Ruby Simmons demanded of the two reporters at the landing on Waccamaw Neck, where the state's only school boat was loading up.

The school boat carries 26 children in two shifts from the island to a wooden pier at Waccamaw Neck, where a bus meets them for the trip to Waccamaw school eight miles away, or to Winyah High School in Georgetown.

It is the only regular link between the 20 to 30 families on the island and the mainland. The only other way to get back and forth is by small private boat.

"We could sure use a bridge," said Mrs. Simmons. Clustered around her at the landing were about a dozen battered small boats and an equal number of cars, evidently owned by island dwellers or visitors.

Dear Al: I saw your idea for making a handle a small piece of copper tubing. Your method of drilling a hole in the tube for the short part of the L-shaped wrench to fit into is OK. My idea doesn't require any drilling. I just get a small diameter piece of tubing that will fit over the end of the wrench as snugly as possible. This gives me a longer handle and the extra leverage. I keep several different sizes of tubing in with the wrenches. — J.C. Dear Al: If you ever wanted to have a 2-handed sanding block, you can quickly make one by just wrapping the sandpaper around a plane. Retract the plane's blade. Use a sheet of sandpaper large enough

Thoughts from a master of time

By BARRY RENFREW Associated Press Writer

DAILEY, W.Va. (AP) - Lewis Wharton is a master of time who steps back each day into the simpler patterns of another century and a lost age of painstaking craftsmanship.

In a rambling workshop crowded with relics and memories of other generations, Wharton builds clocks whose grace and style recall the past as they mark the passing hours and days.

'There's happiness in a clock," said Wharton as he watched a grandfather clock gently ticking in his living room, its pulse adding to the sound of other clocks that echoed through the rooms.

Surrounded by the tools and plans of early 19th century craftsmen, Wharton holds on to the values of men who relied upon their own hands and skills to provide for their needs.

A tall, stately man who ponders every action, Wharton settled down to learn the art of clockmaking after retiring from his job as an oil engineer. After a lifetime of watching the clock, he set out to turn a fascination with time into a freedom untouched

"I measured time most of my working life, and I try to avoid it now," Wharton said. "I work on a clock for a while and then maybe I'll go fishing or for

After hunting through old manuscripts and plans, he began turning lengths of pine and oak and strips of steel and brass into clocks that mirror the timepieces that ticked and chimed in the homes, school rooms and offices of his grandfather's day. Some of the clocks stand 6 feet tall and can fill a house with their beat, others are delicate wall clocks etched

"There just isn't much craftsmanship left anymore. Everything's been overwhelmed by mass production and cheap production," he said.

Reaching into a drawer in an old ornate locker,

Wharton pulled out a putty knife that once was part of the stock of his grandfather's store. Tenderly, peeling back the blade's original wrapping, he proudly displayed the gleaming tool.

"Look at that. You don't see anything like that any more, and it cost just 22 cents back then," he said. 'I'll find a use for it."

Returning the knife to a box packed with identical companions, Wharton walked through his workshop pulling out tacks, ornaments and other knickpacks preserved from his grandfather's store, pointing out the careful workmanship in each item.

In the rafters above the drawers, pieces of timber salvaged from old cabins and farmhouses are nestled next to bits of old machinery from the days when America was a nation of farmers. Q. — One of our children marked up the wallpaper in our dining room with a pen. Can the ink marks be removed with an ink eradicator?

A. - Not if the marks were made with a ballpoint pen. If it is some other kind of ink, there is some possibility that the ink eradicator will do the job, but you risk also taking the color out of the wallpaper. Sometimes the best way to handle a problem of this sort is to attempt to disguise the marks rather than remove them. A paint of the same color will often

Q. - I put several coats of varnish on a table a few weeks ago, following all the directions I had read about the application, but the result is a surface that feels something like sandpaper when you run the tips of your fingers over it. What causes this? I already have had one opinion - that the varnish may have spoiled because it was kept for about a year in a cold basement. Could this have caused the trouble?

A. - Most likely. Cold varnish is the most usual cause of that type of finish. There is also a possibility that you used a brush which had previously been used for paint and that it was not cleaned properly.

Q. - Every time I use varnish, bubbles form on the surface of the wood. I cannot understand this, since I mix the varnish thoroughly. What's the trouble?

A. - The trouble is that you mix the varnish horoughly. This causes the varnish to develop b bles that show up on the surface of the wood. If varnish must be stirred, it must be done very gently and then not used immediately.

Traffic professor searches for liveable streets

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — When I was growing up, none of my friends lived across the street. For a child whose home was on a busy boulevard, the other side of the block might as well have been the other side of the globe.

I didn't take time from play to ponder how traffic affected my life. But Donald Appleyard, a professor of urban planning, has spent more than a decade studying how the street where we live directs our lives mine, yours, even his.

His analyses and concrete suggestions are mapped out in "Liveable Streets," a 360-page book just published by the University of California, where Appleyard teaches.

Recently, Appleyard angled his tall frame onto a sofa in the uncluttered living room of his spacious home hugging the Berkeley Hills and talked about traffic. From his window and through the branches of a tall pine, there is a clear view of a commuter highway.

'We moved to the back of the house and we don't use the terrace except on weekends," he said, ex-plaining his family's so-lution to local traffic conditions.

"People adapt to quite intolerable situations. They put up a fence, they don't let the kids play outside, they keep the windows shut" so noise and soot can't filter in.

Often, engineers reroute vehicles to try to solve traffic problems. "But traffic doesn't go away, it goes on to another street," Appleyard

A native of Britain, he has studied many foreign streets. Of Americans he said, "I don't think people realize what streets can be. You can turn a street into a community garden, a place to play, and still have room to

The professor is a big fan of the Woonerf, a Dutch street on which "sidewalks take over." Its best features, in Appleyard's view, are a narrow roadway and a wide sidewalk. A Woonerf also is short - no

HONG KONG (AP) plays the Chinese pipa, the sound of galloping horses and exploding artillery shells can shift in moments to the lyrical music of "White Snow in Warm Spring.'

Ring around the collar

HI THERE: "Ring around the col- It might be a good idea lar, ring around the collar..."

I hate that commercial almost as much as I hate ring around the collar or bathtub, for that matter.

Know what causes ring around the collar? Not the person doing the laundry, but the wearer of the shirt.

Think about it. What is it? It's dirt or oil from the back of the neck. Rather than have to contend with the problem, why don't we try to prevent the problem. I am not accusing your family of having dirty necks... honest! It's just that there are a lot of oil glands back there and sometimes no matter how often you bathe, it's gonna build up.

If you have doubting Thomases in your crowd, have them take a white facial tissue and pour some rubbing alcohol on it and rub it across the back of the neck. Unless they just popped out of the shower and gave that neck a real rub down, there will be some dirt and oil on the tissue and that's what gets on the shirt.

So scrub that neck just like your mother told you when you were small.

Remember, that ring around the collar is body oil. The way to break it down, if you're having a hard time, is to use something that gets rid of oil.

Now think... hair shampoo and baby shampoo are the best, cuz they have the least amount of additives in

May the demon of the dirty shirt collar leave your home forever and you be blessed with no more ring around the collar! — Hugs, Heloise

HOT CEREAL

Dear Heloise: Since I have to leave for work before all the children are up and off to school, ran into the problem of ensuring that a hot breakfast was had by all on these cold mornings. Now I make hot wheat cereal or oatmeal thinner than usual (since it thickens as it sits) and put it into my slow cooker, set on low.

The cereal stays hot for the last indulger. All they need to do is give it a stir, as I even add the sugar and milk.

Of course, they do have to rinse out their bowls, and the last one to eat unplugs the unit. - Mrs. Judy Wright

Drilling goes at unprecedented pace

HOUSTON - After setting new records in 1980, U.S. petroleum industry drilling activity is continuing at an unprecedented rate. Based on its annual survey of major and independent oil companies and the physical ability of industry to perform the work, World Oil expects last year's record drilling will be shattered again in 1981.

The publication's 1981 forcast is for the drilling 74,046 wells and 349.4 million feet of hole, both up about 14 percent over last year. Included in this forecast are 32,110 oil wells and 16,090 gas wells, also new record highs for productive wells in the U.S., and 15,183 exploratory tests, about 15 percent more than in 1980.

According to the publication, optimism is virtually unrestrained among operators, primarily because of higher prices for oil and gas, which have again made the drilling business an attractive investment risk.

In addition, the election of last November added to the bright outlook with Mr. Reagan's promise of a new government that favors a production/conservation solution to the U.S. energy crisis, rather than the pessimistic no-growth/primarily conser vation approach taken by the Carter administration.

The outlook for 1981 is for drilling to increase at a rate directly proportional to the availability of drilling rigs. World Oil expects an average 3,525 rigs to be operating in the U.S. this year and projects that 670 new rigs capable of drilling to 3,000 feet, or deeper, will be added to the fleet during 1981.

Although the windfall profit tax was fiewed with apprehension when it was implemented last year, World Oil's analysis indicates this excise tax will have no discernible impact on industry's ability to generate funds for 1981

In addition, although some localized problems may develop, no significant materials shortages (tubular, mud, etc.) are expected that will have any significant constraint on the forcast.

World Oil expects average U.S. drilling costs this year to reach $89.90 per foot, up 18 percent compared to the estimated $76.19 spent in 1980. Overall, some $30 billion may be spent on drilling in the U.S. in 1981.

State-by-state drilling: According to World Oil's projections, Texas, again, will lead all states, drilling 23,783 onshore wells in 1981 a 32 percent share of predicted U.S. activity. Texas completed 21,261 on shore wells in 1980 - the highest level

Railroad Commission District 7B in North Central Texas will have the highest activity due partially to intensive development of shallow oil wells and relatively low productivity gas wells. This area should drill 4,999 wells, up 12.5 percent.

Other active Texas areas will be District 7C, 8 and 8A in West Texas, which together are projected to drill 6,761 wells, up from 5,968 last year and District 9 in North Texas, which will show a gain of 4.8 percent in drilling 3,720 wells in 1981. District 1 in South Texas will show an increase of 20 percent to 1,630 wells from 1,358 last year. District 6 in Northeast Texas will drill 849 wells - up 9.5 percent over 1980. The Panhandle, District 10 will show an incrase of only 1.4 percent to 975 wells this year. Along the Gulf Coast in District 2, 3 and 4, World Oil forecasts the drilling of 4,554 wells in 1981, up some 15 percent over last year.

The Gulf of Mexico will be an area of intensified activity this year. Offshore Louisiana is expected to be up 10.7 percent over 1980 with a projected 900 wells. Offshore Texas will show a 13.7 percent gain from 307 wells in 1980, to 349 wells this year. This increase is based primarily on bullish plans by Gulf operators.

- Onshore Louisiana will drill 4,508 wells and 25.2 million feet of hole, both up about five percent. Oklahoma is projectd to drill 10,-444 wells — up 16.5 percent. Last year Oklahoma drilled 8,981 wells - the state's best year in history.

-Also in the Mid-Continent, Kansas wells should total 6,137 this year, up some 17 percent over 1980. -Indications are that Rocky Mountain states also will be an area of increased activity. Colorado will show an 11.6 percent gain, drilling 1,510 Montana is projected to complete

1,234 wells, up 28.3 percent from 960 wells in 1980. Northwest New Mexico will be up 6.2 percent to 1,035 tests.

Wyoming is projected to complete 1,672 wells, up from 1,469 last year, and Utah will show a marked 38.2 percent gain, drilling 423 wells. Finally, North Dakota should drill 703 wells this year, a 19 percent jump.

-California is expected to drill 3,-357 wells - up 22.6 percent due pri marily to shallow oil development and expansion of steam stimulation projects.

-Alaskan operations will also into 249 wells is projected for Alaska,

Oil wells should total 32.110 in 1981, ed to provide 10,700 of these new oil producers. Oklahoma, Ohio, Kansas and California will follow with 5,380, 3,210, 2,510 and 2,375 oil wells, respec

this year to 16,090 wells, the highest ever. Texas again will complete the largest number - 4,225. Louisiana

No quick, dramatic hike expected in oil production

By Max B. Skelton AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - No quick and dramatic increases in domestic crude oil reserves and production can be expected from President Reagan's termination of price controls eight months ahead of schedule.

But oilmen are confident the action, like former President Carter's phased decontrol actions of 1979, will stimulate explorations and encourage development of some production that had been marginally economic.

And they contend further stimulation will result from further decontrol of natural gas price controls in 1985

The federal government has controlled the price of natural gas sold across state lines since 1954 when a Supreme Court decision upheld the right of the old Federal Power Com mission to do so.

The Natural Gas Act of 1978 extended federal controls into the intrastate gas market the first time. It created more than 20 categories of gas wells and set different prices and spelled out special rules for each category.

Some categories of "high cost" gas such as production from below 15,000 feet became exempt from the controls in late 1979 and deregulation is to follow for such categories as "new" gas and intrastate gas in 1985 and

Last August, the American Petroleum Institute made a study of early progress made since the 1979 decontrol actions

It reported that gradual decontrol and increased revenues being earned despite the windfall profits tax were encouraging expansion of the search for oil and gas. It cited significant increases in capital and exploration budgets, seismic crews and drilling rigs at work and the number of wells completed.

"The sharp rate of decline in proved reserves has begun leveling off, and production figures for both oil and gas show a slight increase over those of a year ago," the report said.

The API said higher prices, besides stimulating exploration for new fields, are making it economic to keep some older fields producing longer than would have been possible under lower price ceilings.

"And every barrel produced in the

Sizer slated at API meet

Phillip S. Sizer, senior vice president and technical director of Otis Engineering Corp., will be the speaker for the Tuesday meeting of the Permian Basin Chapter of the American Petroleum Institute.

The event is scheduled for Greentree Country Club at 5:30 p.m., with dinner to be served at 7.

Sizer's topic will be "New Product Development Is Good Business." His speech will deal with the interdependence that exists between the man who produces the oil and the man who services his wells.

The API Sour Crude Golf Tournament is scheduled from April 30 through May 2 at Hogan Park Golf

Development well rates oil

Adobe Oil & Gas Corp. of Midland reports it is an 18.75 percent working interest party in an extension development well which is flow testing at the rate of 910 barrels of oil and 1,218,000 cubic feet of gas per day.

The well, No. 15-31 Riggs, operated by Phillips Petroleum Co., is in McKenzie County, N.D. in the Blue Buttes Deep (Interlake) field.

The flow was gauged through an 18/64-inch choke with tubing pressure of 1,179 pounds

The gas and fluid is from pay at 12,316-12,709 feet. Other working interest parties are Texaco, Amerada and Jake L.

Adobe also reports it has a 9.375 percent interest in Texaco No. 4 Reitch which is in the completion state 1/2 mile north of No. 15-31

United States is a barrel we do not have to buy from foreign producers,' the API said

The report said drilling, reserves, and production had been on downward trends most of the decade.

'Therefore, a dramatic turnaround could not be expected overnight," the API said.

"But in a little more than one year, partial decontrol of oil prices and higher prices for some categories of gas have contributed to a sharp acceleration in the search for more domestic oil and gas.'

Between 1970 and 1979, proved domestic crude oil reserves dropped from a record 39 billion barrels to 27 billion. Crude production dropped from a 1970 record 9,637,000 barrels a day to 8,132,000 in 1976 before Alaska's North Slope output led a rebound to a 1980 level of about 8,623,000 a

The API said that in the eight-year period of 1971-1978 the United States used up its proved oil reserves almost twice as fast as new supplies werefound. A similar trend was evident in gas reserves.

The report said, however, the API and American Gas Association annual estimates of reserves at the end of 1979 gave indication that year may have marked a turning point. "Although oil and gas reserves continued to decline, the rate of decline slowed down," the API said.

"Additions to oil and gas reserves that year equaled approximately three-fourths of domestic production. As a result, the net decreases in oil and gas reserves in 1979 were the smallest since the Prudhoe Bay discovery more than a decade earlier."

The 1980 year-end reports on oil and gas reserves have not been released as yet by the Department of Energy which last year took over the compilation responsibilities from the API and AGA.

Oilmen believe the 1980 reports will show further progress. The industry completed a record 64,000 wells last year, including about 13,000 wild-

State firms provide oil

TULSA, Okla. - Japan, the world's third largest consumer of oil products, is emerging from a fundamental restructuring of its crude oil supplies, Oil & Gas Journal reports in its Jan. 26 issur.

From a country that acquired almost 70 percent of its crude oil supply of about 5.1 million barrels a day through contracts with major oil companies, Japan has in two years become a significant customer of state-owned oil companies.

State companies currently provide about 47 percent of Japan's requirements through direct deals with independent refiners and trading companies. The share supplied by major companies has slipped to 43 percent, almost all of which goes to service the operations of the firms' Japanese affiliates, the weekly business magazine says.

The supply upheaval started in 1979, when major oil companies axed most of their contracts with independent refiners in the wake of the Iranian revolution and suspension of Iran's

Japanese companies were catapulted onto world crude markets to find replacement-action that was partly responsible for doubled crude oil costs, the Journal says.

In the midst of this traumatic readjustment, companies were told by the Japanese government to suspend imports through direct deals with National Iranian Oil Co. in protest of Iran's attempt to impose prices well in excess of competitive crudes in the Persian Gulf.

Then last September Iran and Iraq went to war, and Japanese companies saw the halt of 438,000 barrels a day of Iraq National Oi! Co. was the biggest state oil company supplier to Japan. But the loss of imports from this source has been absorbed without panic or a stampede on the spot mar-

Now that the U.S. hostages are safe, Japanese companies are investigating the possibility of resuming Iranian liftings, Iran's official selling price is still out of line with other Persian

Gulf exporters. Japanese oil companies expect to cruise through the high demand first quarter of this year without problems-provided there are no interruptions in deliveries from other sources, the Journal says. The current composure of Japanese companies contrasts with the panic that followed the suspension of Iranian exports in 1979 and the end of third party contracts. The composure reflects the much healthier state of the Japanese industry.

Delivery of a new Permian Basin produced oil field pumping unit was made Friday by BLS Equipment Co., reports firm president Johnny E.

Purchaser of the pump was Vickers

Supply Co. for a wellsite near Big Lake in Reagan County. The pumping unit design is the result of 10 years experience in producing bearings and servicing all types of pumping units at Poly Bearing, Inc., reports Hill. According to hill, his pumping unit is designed for trouble-free operation using American made components and to be structurally comparable to he finest units now available. The Hill unit features a gear-box uilt by Philadelphia Gear Corp.

"Philadelphia Gar has been making geear-boxes for 80 years," Hill said. "And, they still provide spare parts for their first box." BLS Equipment, affiliated with Poly Bearing, Inc., started March 1980 to rebuild used pumping units. Though the rebuild function will continue, the company's main emphasis will be in the construction of new units. A 4,000-square-foot building for manufacture of the pumping units and components will be completed in the near future on the company's

Cotton Flat Road site. According to Hill, BLS intends to initially build five units per month of the recently delivered model, and will offer 228 units by mid-summer, with future plans calling for as many ad

HOUSTON - Cotton Petroleum Corp. has tested gas and condensate from a new, deeper pay zone in the Cameron-Hamill field area of northern Angelina County.

Cotton Petroleum No. 1 Brown "C" was completed from two zones in the Travis Peak formation ranging in depth from 10,594 feet to 10,664 feet. This well flowed at a rate of 3,907,000 cubic feet of gas per day and 221 barrels of condenstate per day on a 16/64-inch choke.

The well is approximately one mile east of Cotton's initial sucessful well in the area, the No. 1 Bynum which went on stream in August 1980. The well was completed in the upper Rose formation from perforations ranging from 7,328 feet to 7,350 feet. Initial flow rates were 1,695,000 cubic feet of gas per day on a 10/64-inch choke. Cotton has 100 percent working interest and controls deep rights in 5,800 contiguous net acres in the vicinity of the two successful wells. Additional drilling in the area is planned by

The First National Bank of Midland has reported record net earnings for the year ending Dec. 31, 1980, at $14,410,843, or $5.84 per share of common stock. Capping the total were fourth quarter earnings of $4,193,701 or $1.69 per share, according to Charles D. Fraser, chairman of the board and president. Compared to 1979 net earnings of $7,385,375 or $3.05 per share, earnings were up 95 percent.

"Such a healthy increase is due to a rapidly accelerating deposit base as a function of the area's dynamic economy and bank's ability to respond to customers' financial needs," Fraser said.

Deposits at year end were $1,042 549,024, up 59 percent from $656,873,065 at the end of 1979. Net loans totaled $715,874,565 at the end of 1980 and $454,406,666 at the end of 1979, an increase of 57 percent.

No financial Armageddon

By JAMES L. ROWE The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - In the popular novel, "The Crash of '79," author Paul Erdman prophesied the collapse of the Western financial system when oil-producing countries withdrew the hundreds of billions of dollars they had on deposit in Western Iran, which figured prominently in the recent novel, will withdraw billions of dollars of deposits from domestic offices and foreign branches of major U.S. banks as part of an agreement to return the 52 American hostages. The funds are a sizable portion of the deposits President Carter froze Nov. 14, 1979, days after the hostages were seized in Tehran. There will be a sudden flight of several billion dollars from the dozen or so American banks with Iranian funds.

But unlike Erdman's fictional scenario, there will be no financial Armageddon for the U.S. banking

Although the numbers sound large, and are, the foreign banks that get the deposits the U.S. banks lost probably will redeposit the same funds in U.S. banks within minutes or hours. A foreign bank, say in Switzerland, will accept deposits not only in its own currency (the franc) but in foreign currencies, such as dollars.

But the banks will take their newly acquired dollar deposits and deposit them in a U.S. bank with which they o business. The settlement of the Iranian crisis could so boost confidence in the dollar that euphoria could overcome the otherwise depressing effect of a sudden selling of dollars by Iran.

If Iran uses some of its unfrozen deposits to buy goods and services, the dollars will either flow to the United States, to foreign banks in the form of dollars that get redeposited in the United States or to the foreign exchange markets.

The settlement of the crisis itself may affect the psychology of the gold, silver and stock markets and. depending upon how those unpredictable investors react, could either push up prices or depress them. Because gold prices usually rise during periods of heightened international tensions, the resolution of the hostage crisis should drive metals' prices down. By DAVID M. KINCHEN The Los Angeles Times

LAS VEGAS - Passive and active are two words that could be used to sum up the 37th annual convention-exposition of the National Association of Home Builders here last week.

Passive as in passive solar energy. Active as in actively seeking to reduce government regulations that drive up the cost of housing or actively seeking tax breaks to encourage construction of those passive solar houses

Most of the meetings were devoted to financial matters as the nation comes off the worst year for housing since 1975: in 1980, only 1,280,000 new houses were started by home builders. The consensus is that housing starts will improve from 5 percent to 10 percent or even more — if mortgage interest rates go down to 13 percent or less. If they don't, starts in 1981 could be in the 1 million range or less.

One convention speaker, Rep. Clarence J. Brown, R-Ohio, celieves that the Reagan administration will be "far more reasonable" in its approach to housing regulations than the Carter administration was REFERRING TO THE CONTROVERSIAL Building Energy Performance Standards proposed by the Carter administration to regulate energy consumption of new homes and other buildings, Brown said that the new administration won't adopt the "Draconian approach" of the original rules.

"For all practicam purposes. I am confident that (the standards) no longer exist as a serious threat to the home building industry." Brown said

Crown told the builders that he has re-introduced a series of regulatory seform bills in the new congressional session that would: ensure that regulatory objectives ase met in the most cost egfective manner possible; eliminate conflicting and duplicative regulations; and limit the cost of compliance with government regulations in much the same way that costs of administering federal agencies are limited.

Some at the convention saw benefits from the housing slump in

With the housing industry in a slump, builders have time to learn how to build houses smarter," said David Johnston, chaisman of the newly formed Passive Solar Industries Council. "When sales pick up again, smart builders can enjoy a competitive edge by offering attractive, sun-filled rooms with low utility bills,"

Passive solar energy principles used by M. J. Brock and Sons in Sacramento, Calif., produced an affordable ($85,000) 1,600square-foot single-family house that saves energy and money for uhe home owner, according to Carroll Brock of the build-

THE 10 BUILDERS WERE CHOSEN in the nationwide competition sponsored jointly by the builders' association and the National Council of the Housing Industry, an organization within the builders' group of manufacturers and suppliers of building products and services.

Brock's house, which has been sold and is occupied, will be monitored over a two-year period to see whether its design achieves energy savings. In addition to the Brock house in California, homes are located in Colorado, Florida, Maryland, Minnesota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Texas and Washington, D.C. Brock said that the home his company built is the first in California to receive a solar tax credit as a house, as opposed to > South-facing dual-glazed windows and clerestories - a band of windows along the top of a wall - allow the winter sun to warm a thermal mass wall and a tile floor.

> An overhanging trellis shields the home from the hot summer sun in Sacramento, and a domestic water heating system cuts energy bills

Houses in colder areas use thicker walls to provide more insulation and are carefully insulated to prevent infiltration of cold air in the winter and hot air in the summer. One of the myths that the program is attempting to demolish is that solar energy is suited only for Sun Belt states.

Homebuilders in the Frost Belt and Sun Belt alike are alreadying offering heavy insulation, double- or triple-glazed windows, and energy-saving appliances, Kohnston of the solar industries council are

A STRONG ENERGY CONSERVATION package can cut utility bills by up to 50 gercent, but builders could reduce energy expenditures an additional 20 percent to 30 percent through passive solar design, Johnston said.

Passive solar homes generally use extra south-facing windows: or greenhouses to collect the sun's heat, which is then stored and a transferred using heavy, dense material such as concrete, brick, by stone or tile. Shading in the form of overhangs or other means; prevents overheating.

One of the solar council's main goals is to get accurate technical information on passive solar design in the hands of builders who can apply it, Johnston added.

Membership in the new trade group includes the 125,000-mem ber builders' association, the American Institute of Architects and dozens of other national trade and professional organizations, manufacturers, engineers and government officials.

Based at 401 Wythe Street, Alexandria, Va., 22314, Passive Solar Industries Council functions as an information source for inquiries about private sector and government passive solar activities from the public and media, Johnston said. "As this industry takes off and we expect passive homes to spring! up all over the country in the next few years - we want to make sure buyers are happy," he said.

ACTIVE SOLAR PRODUCTS FROM major manufacturers and small ones alike were well-represented among the 700 exhibits filling an area as big as seven football fields in the sprawling Las Vegas Convention Center.

The air tent unit of Fedders displayed a solar flash compression [112] furnace for residential water- and space-heating applications. Sunmaster's evacuated tube collector featured a curved reflec-uor to catch and diffuse light from sunrise to sunset. Bio-Energy systems displayed SolaRoll, a flexible collector that can be delivered to the building site in 600-foot rolls to allow sizing for any application.

Other solar exhibitors included American Solar King, Conser-9W vation Technologies Inc., Sun-Day Solar Systems, Photowattall International Inc., Grumman Energy Systems, Carrier and Cornell Energy Inc.

PRODUCTION SYSTEMS ANALYSIS

A ONE WEEK COURSE

Feb. 23 thru 27 Midland Hilton Inn A Nodal (new and revolu-tionary) systems analysis approach for oil and gas wells.

This course is designed for Engineers, Managers and Field Foremen associated with Production Systems and Artificial Lift Planning.

Instructor: Kermit E. Brown, Ph.D.

Each participant will receive Dr

Brown's three new books: · Technology of Artificial Lift Methods. Vol. 1, inflow performance, multiphase flow books).

• Vol. III, 2200 pages of new gradient curves including vertical multiphase flow horizontal multiphase flow, gas production and gas injection curves. (scale = 20,000 ft. by 5600 psi.) (2 books).

This course will show you how you can SAVE MONEY and INCREASE PRODUCTION by:

QUESTIONS TO BE ANSWERED IN THIS COURSE

 Production rates possible - oil or gas?

Enough perforations? Completion problems gravel pack or other restrictions? Safety valve sized and se correctly?

 Is surface choke necessar and is it sized correctly? Should be on Artificial Lift?

predicting the flow rates

possible from oil and gas wells. Showing how to use gradient curves and computerized multiphase flow correlations to select tubing sizes for vertical or directional wells.

 Showing how to use gradient curves or multiphase flow correlations to select flow lines for either horizontal or inclined · Presenting a complete systems analysis to show the effect of perforation shot density. A standard shot density of 4 to 8 shots per foot may not be sufficient.

INSTRUCTORS:

 Applying the Nodal Systems approach to correctly size a choke for a certain flow rate and to see if the choke should be eliminated.

 Applying systems analysis to see what effect the separator pressure has on the entire system. A correct setting of the separator pressure, in particular for a closed rotative gas lift system, may show a tremendous rate of return on investment.

· Working example problems to show: (a) the rate possible by natural flow, (b) the rate possible by artificial lift.

WE WILL SHOW YOU:

· How a change in flowline size or separator pressure may prevent buying additional compressor H.P. for gas lift. · How increasing the perforation shot density may double the production on gas wells.

Halfway down the road

For years now oil companies and some newspapers, us includored — have been saying that if the "federal government would just get out of the oil business, the industry would function a lot better and oil production would increase. And our energy problem would diminish proportionately. Well, now it looks like the oil companies are going to get the I opportunity to make good on their daim.

There is no question that the proposition of controls has hampered this nation's efforts to move toward energy independence, to Whatever degree such independence can be achieved. Of course, the imposition of the controls was nothing more than part of the odream Washington has been living in for quite some time now that it can do private enterprise's ijob better than private enterprise isd It can't and this exercise in Tutility has given us only lessened domestic oil production and articially-controlled prices.

As the experts have noted, Presordent Ronald Reagan's decision to decontrol crude oil prices some eight months early will inevitably lead to higher prices at the gasoline pump. What the oil industry will be returning to, in effect, is the closest thing to a supply-anddemand environment that it has experienced in several years.

It's almost a foregone conclusion that the decontrol decision will further spur the oil activity in the already-booming Permian Basin. It is also virtually a foregone conclusion that more oil production will be realized and the United States gradually will become less dependent on imported oil.

That will help to free us from the "compromised" position we have been in for some time.

We salute President Reagan for his positive step. The nation will reap the benefits of his wisdom. But his job isn't over yet.

There's the matter of this ugly little piece of legislation called the windfall profits tax. It continues to hamstring the oil industry and will until it can be repealed, an action Mr. Reagan promised during the 1980 campaign.

He's already gone halfway down the road to solving our energy woes. Now it's time to go the rest of the way.

Water-starved Midlanders will asoon have their own lake - right hwhere Wadley-Barron Park used to be.

The rising water table being experienced in the Midland area and the City Council made it all possible. We're appreciative.

After all, water is something of a scarcity in Midland and a lake in "Wadley-Barron Park undoubtedly will prove aesthetically pleasing.

The new attraction, when comdelete, will provide yet another diversion for Midlanders who et don't want to drive miles on end "Just to see a body of water. Midand children will even be able to Jearn what a lake is before they

the union.

All kidding aside, we think the idea of turning a portion of the already soggy Wadley-Barron into a full-fledged take is refreshing and functional from a couple of standpoints. It will, of course, provide amusement for many Tall Citians. And it can provide some storm water storage capacity, hopefully relieving a degree of the street flooding in that area of the city during rains.

It'll be good to have our very own lake here in Midland.

Now with some mountains and a few trout streams, we can turn Midland into a real tourist attrac-

Supporting Reagan policy can take a nasty twist

WASHINGTON - The people who have been the most adamant about government spending have been from the business community. I haven't spoken to a businessmen's group in the past three years which hasn't been critical of all the taxpayers' money being wasted by the bureaucrats in Washington.

The only problem with their argument is that, in many cases, the government is big business' major cli-

"I'm sure the people who make furniture for the government feel differently. They're probably saying furniture shouldn't be frozen, because you can't govern if you don't have chairs to sit on. It seems to me that the president is going to have to make his cuts across the board if he hopes to keep his campaign promises.'

You can say that in your business. But Reagan is going to have to get the economy back on its feet, and he won't be able to do that if he won't buy computers. We'll have to shut down our factories if his freeze stays in 'The worst thing is that we never thought of it when we supported him. I just got a call from my boss in the home office and he wanted to know why we weren't moving any computers. "What did you tell him?"

"I told him we would as soon as I figured out how to put them on a cruise missile.'

So the Iranians wanted spare parts as well as cash, eh? How about Monopoly money and Tinker Toys?

How specifically are these spare parts described in the agreement? We could all go through our garages and ship them our broken bicycles, old wheel rims, abandoned toasters and rusty swing sets.

But, being the good guys, we will no doubt send them what they want. So they can fight the Iraqis who are on the side of the Russians. Which puts us on the side of the Iranians. Which also puts us just this side of going crackers.

Which is why so many people watch 'I Love Lucy" instead of the six o'clock news.

In case you've forgotten that we are a nation which practices charity, remember that the father of the friendly folks who made your Japanese TV set might very well have directed traffic at the Bataan death march

Yes, we can eventually reap joy from our old enemies. If you don't believe me, count the Datsun and Toyota commercials on your favorite TV programs.

Right-wingers concerned Reagan isn't 'Reaganish' enough

WASHINGTON — It is fascinating and somewhat amusing to read the conservative prints these days. From the beginning of time, they were Washington's outsiders, the Ishmaels attacking the liberal power structure. Like the Man from La Mancha, they dreamed of one day reaching the to impossible star.

Now that star shines over Washington, and the right-of-center publications understandably are confused. After all, the power base here is now authentically conservative. It is Mr. of Reagan's government. The Hill is far more conservative than liberal. Same for the Supreme Court. Members of the media are taking courses in Friedman economics, and studying Clausewitz.

what could any reasonable conservative possibly attack these days? Ah, but we must remember that those sink-stained scribes of the ideological right were trained in struggle and scontentiousness. Those inclined to throw dead cats at establishment maltars will throw them, whether liberbral or conservative divine officiates.

These days, to read Richard Viguerie's New Right Report or Conserbrivative Digest, or to talk to him, is to wdearn of hurt feelings, suspicion of orbetrayal, and even alarm. At best, they give the Reagan administration timixed reviews on appointments and beworry what it will ultimately do.

When appropriate, we will hammer on the Reagan administration, Viguerie told me. "We've been treated indecently, so far. Remember, we're the hard-core Reaganites. We ran the direct-mail campaigns for conservative causes. We're responsible for Reagan's success.

"Reagan promised to give Bern Again people equal representation in his government. He hasn't named one. (The Rev.) Jerry Falwell can't get a phone call returned. We hear Reagan's people say that they'll give the Moral Majority symbolism, and that's all. That's immoral.

"We see Caspar Weinberger, who doesn't have a gut feeling for Reagan's philosophy, in office. Pierce at HUD and Regan at Treasury are the same. I hope Al Haig is good.

"The surprise is that conservatives are not going to be nice little Uncle Toms and bow to the official GOP position.

The headlines in one righty print here read: "Will This Be a Nixon "Reagan Transition "Carlucci Ap-Troubles Team" pointment Disturbs Conservatives-Weinberger Choice a Slap at Reagan-

There is no more steadfastly conservative paper than Human Events. Every week, it pounds on liberals, exposes fraud and hypocrisy, and looks eagerly to a era ahead. But after screaming "How Sweet It Is ... Victory at Last!" in its post-election issue, Human Events has been fret-

First, it worried about how hawkish Al Haig really would be, and after hearing him testify, reported that "Haig's Performance Pleases Hawks." But now it is anxious over other Reagan appointments, and is worried that he might not back Jonas Savimbi, the anti-Communist guerrilla leader in Angola, or that Henry A. Kissinger will come back:

"We are trying to get Reagan to meet his own standards," says Allan H. Rhyskind, a tireless editor at Human Events for years. "We're still vigilant because we want to see promises kept. The Hill might be conservative, and we think the liberals are weakened, but we're worried about food stamp reform and getting the two-tier minimum wage.

For 25 years, Bill Buckley's National Review has been the literate, witty voice of conservatism. It has been generous to Reagan since he won the election. The N.R. cheered Reagan's renomination of a Hubert Humphrey Democrat, Max Kampelman, as U.S. representative at the Helsinki Accord process. N.R. likes Kampelman's hawkish notions on defense. "For now," says publisher William Rusher, a bona-fide Tory, "we on the right should moderate our criticism. Watch and wait. We expect to like the Reagan administration far better than its predecssors. If we must ride herd, we will."

Now highbrow conservative publications such as Policy Review or the American Spectator do not become frenzied by the daily grind. They in dulge in long-term stuff, intellectualizing, nit-picking, ideological arguments, and, as with the Spectator, having some good laughs. They leave the grubby stuff to Viguerie and others. Let them deal with Reagan and "hold his nose and toes to fire." Let them relentlessly pursue virtue. They know the fallen condition of Neo-conservative outlets such as Commentary, the Public Interest, Harper's, and, on some days, the Washington Post's opinion-editorial pages are even further removed from the right-wing fray. The neo-conservatives now join the Wall Street Journal in proclaiming that liberalism is bankrupt of ideas. Conservatism deserves its hour.

Not all conservatives are enjoying that hour, however. The other day, I was called by one John Lofton, a far-righter who vehemently complained that one appointee was not a true Reaganite. "What is a Reaganite?" I asked. "Don't you know?" he replied. "It's one who believes in Reaganism." My, oh my.

In addition, Carter insisted on some important compromises that weakened the power of the IGs. The Pentagon and the State Department were exempted from the law, the White House was given too-firm control over selection of the IGs — and, perhaps most important, the IGs were re-

But there's not a lot of bribery going on in the sense that lawmakers are driving back homme with bales of dollar bills in the backs of their pickups; it's a little more complicated

Some lawmakers don't even like to talk about the subject - it's almost a taboo subject, frightening and ugly, which shouldn't be mentioned except in whispers.

Some joke about it - one veteran legislator says during his numerous sessions he'd never been offered anthing by a lobbyist "except an old, stale cigar" and was starting to feel like he didn't have any influence.

These days, the subject is a little more sensitive than at other times, with members remembering very well Speaker Bill Clayton's problems with the FBI's Brilab operation, in which Clayton was accused of having accepted $5,000 as a bribe to help Prudential Insurance Co. get a lucrative state contract.

Clayton said he had received the $5,000 but was just holding it to avoid offending a potential supporter for a future race - an explanation which reporters, perhaps ironically, seemed more willing to believe at the time than did the general public.

But Clayton and his lawyers eventually convinced the 12 men and women charged with deciding what Clayton's intention was that the speaker had no intent of taking a

Clayton now has offered HB3, a bill to create a committee to study laws about the conduct of public servants - which would, among other things, study the application of state laws relating to the conduct of public servants, adopt guidelines on the "dayto-day application" of those laws and make recommendation on making that application "more clear and reasonable."

That could help in some situations, but it's unlikely to solve the problems that are real and legitimate concerns - and which have been attacked as 'legalized bribery.'

Jim Hightower, former candidate for the Railroad Commission and now president of the Texas Consumers Association, recently held a news conference to denounce what he described as a flood of special interest legislation — and to chastise lawmakers whose campaigns were financed by contributions from political action

Those PACs, he charged, are now calling in their debts in the form of

That irritated one senator, Dee Travis of Garland, to the point that Travis (who had received some special attention in Hightower's blistering remarks) called a news conference of his own to denounce Hight-

It has been clear for some years, however, that the influence of PACs in bankrolling political campaigns has been increasing - as has the cost of campaigns.

In 1978, Gov. Bill Clements spent $7 million in his race - an indication of what 1982 may hold in spending for the gubernatorial sweepstakes.

Non-statewide races, of course, aren't as expensive - but neither are

Efforts have been made to restrict spending in political campaigns by individjuals, on grounds that lawmakers could become too indebted to a small group; the same problems result with PACs. Some candidates do refuse money from some groups - others say it makes no difference to them who contributes, and that it makes no-difference on how they vote.

Travis says the $100,000 he received from "special interests" reflects support for how he will vote - not an attempt to influence his voting.

But lawmakers must be aware of where their campaign funds come from - regardless of how much or how little, consciously or unconsciously, that comes to mind when

Speaker's aim: being understood

Oratory is an art. So is speaking plainly. Both can be persuasive, impressive

Both can have substance, color and character. Witness the plain-speaking Harry S Truman, the more flamboyant William Jennings Bryan and the intellectual Adlai Stevenson, the 'egg-head.'

Truman's plain language got him more criticism than praise in his heyday, but he won the election.

Bryan and Stevenson spoke eloquently and movingly. But neither, despite their try-try again attitudes and endeavors, claimed the presiden

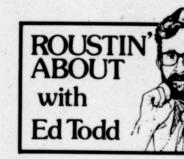

Oratory tends to flaunt. Plain language is without frills. But both are ingrained in culture; both serve mankind.

At whatever occasion either is spoken, both the formal and informal presentations have one pure purpose: to help the listener understand what the speaker meant. Of course, the speaker must know what his intent is and how to accomplish it.

This, then, is the real art of speaking: talking to be understood. Sometimes, it is a rare thing.

"It is a luxury to be understood," wrote Ralph Waldo Emerson.

The spoken word can be overpower ing and overwhelming. Adolf Hitler took that stance: "All epoch-making revolutionary events have been produced not by the written word but by the spoken word."

Perhaps the Fuehrer was flattering his ego and flaunting his oratory. His "Mein Kampf" survives today but mostly on bookshelves; both his oratory and his messages are embed ded in history.

Likewise, Winston Churchill's works survive. He wrote exhaustive tomes and spoke eloquently, plainly and inspirationally. His greatness came in timing. The British Commonwealth, and the Free World, needed the hope, confidence and willpower he offered at a grave time in human history.

Whether it be with flair or not, speaking to be understood is the most important aspect of the spoken word. Once the understanding is reached, the speaker may then contemplate his aim: to persuade, inform, expound, confuse, enlighten, enrage, pacify or incite to action.

Lennon defense

To The Editor:

It seems to me that many of our local "men of peace" would rather stir up hatred among John Lennon fans than help them through a difficult period of their lives.

I was, am, and always will be a devoted John Lennon fan, and it's something I'm not the least bit ashamed of. This is not to say I worshipped him as I would God, but I believed as he believed in the hope that love and peace would conquer

As for Lennon's influence over his fans, it should be known that the opposite held true and that it was the fans, in many cases who influenced him. For example, it was the fans of the Beatles who first persuaded them to pop pills during their early days in Germany so they could play through grueling 6-hour sets.

And yet, people still persist in their quest to condemn a man who is completely helpless to the vicious, uncalled for attacks against him that are futile, pointless, and hopefully ended. But if not, I am as prepared as they are to defend the man they choose to crucify.

Patience pays

To The Editor:

Needless to say we are all thankful that the hostages are home, but I wonder how many appreciate the patience and wisdom that went into the safe return of those strong people, without the loss of one of their lives, except of course the military men who went in the aborted military attempt? There is no doubt that we could have gone in and destroyed perhaps all of Iran, as well as all of our people who were being held hostage and in watching the military men on T.V. last night it seems that they were sorry that they didn't get the glory of the rescue. In words not fit for print, they aptly portrayed the old male ego which demands a shoot out if it destroys us all. For once in American History we were lovingly united, and not because we had an enemy to kill. We were united in our new found strength, of wisdom and patience, and our joy and love for those who were returned to us.

We are one of the two superpowers who along with our respective allies account for eighty percent of the world's military expenditure, and today nuclear weapons number 50,-000, with a combined explosive power one million times that of the bomb that destroyed Hiroshima in seconds. A single missile can carry 200 times the destructive force of the Hiroshima bomb, and it can carry it 6000 miles in less than thirty minutes.

We now have the capability of destroying all of earth's inhabitants in a single stroke, so what reason to multiply that power ten times over?

Let us hope that this long ordeal has taught us something as it held our focus for so long. May it dispell the glamour and illusion that has kept us under the dominance of military mistique, under whose spell "PERIL WEARS THE MASK OF SAFETY"

Child abuse laws

To The Editor:

This letter has been haunting me for several weeks, but I kept putting it off, one reason being the nature of my position as a foster parent. I'm uncertain as to the policy concerning such matters. But the recent incident involving the nine month-old-child who was brutally beaten was more than I could stand

My purpose for writing this letter is to plead with the people in this area to write, call or scream at our state legislators to dramatically improve our child abuse laws. As things are presently, we really don't protect children much at all. It also seems the lawmakers are only hearing from those who want them to leave the family alone as a result funds are being cut, staffs are being reduced. But at the same time, child abuse is

My first complaint about the present system is that the burden of proof is placed largely on the child, who firstly is under age; afraid to speak up; and often unable to speak at all.

We cry, plead, and beg peoplebto report child abuse, then when it is reported, we slap the parent's hand and say, "Don't do that it isn't nice!" Then we give them back their childlif we even bothered to remove it in the first place, and say "Oh, look what wonders we have wrought." To many times these children are maimed or murdered later. Somehow, we must stop this ridiculous absurdity!

We foster parents feel very helpless in these cases. We have no rightsono authority, nothing but ulcers, high blood pressure, and sleepless nights! It really gets to you to see how much damage has been done to these children, sitting up at night with a little one on your lap that is so terrified of sleep and dreams they'll do anything to stay awake!

Due to the complexity of foster parenting security, I ask that you not print my name, if you choose to point this letter.

Parcel post volume shows an increase

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Postal Service is preparing to announce an increase in parcel post volume, reversing a 14-year downward spiral when the private United Parcel Service far surpassed the government agency.

The increase is expected to be announced Monday when the Postal Service's annual report is released. It will be part of a record mail volume, Postmaster General William F. Bolger has promised. "For the first time in 14 years, parcel post volume did not decline, but rather grew during 1980," Bolger told a recent meeting with postmasters. He termed the parcel post increase "a major turnaround The Postal Service, which once was the dominant way of sending packages, has slumped steadily from 1949 to 204 million in fiscal 1979. The new figures will show a modest increase, Bolger said.

United Parcel also will show an increase. "Our volume goes up every year," said Dan Buckley, spokesman for the company which is based in Greenwich, Conn. In 1979, the last year for which there is a total, United Parcel carried 1.437 billion packages. Its share of the parcel market mushroomed starting in the early 1950s as it got increasing authority from federal and state regula-

Until the new increase, the Postal Service's billion-dollar investment in new package-sorting facilities had failed to stop the loss of parcel business to United Parcel.

The 21 highly mechanized centers built in the early 1970s produced reports of high damage rates at the same time that United Parcel was offering lower

Congressional investigators in a 1978 report questioned whether the bulk mail centers ever would handle enough volume to justify the construction cost. At a 1976 House hearing, postal officials said 300 million parcels a year would have to move through the automated system to justify the investment.

The Postal Service has narrowed the gap in rates in recent years, but United Parcel still has lower prices. To send a 10-pound parcel from Washington to Los Angeles costs $4.57 via United Parcel, but $5.34 by the Postal Service. The government agency offers the advantage of post offices in thousands of neighborhoods while United Parcel has far fewer offices.

Postal rates are expected to go up again this spring, which will give United Parcel a new boost. The Postal Service has asked for permission to increase its rate 8.4 percent as part of a general hike that also would make stamps for first-class letters go from 15 to 20 cents. However, the Postal Rate Commission, an independent agency that considers rate requests, could make the parcel post rate increase more, as it did with a Postal Service request three years ago.

Bolger said the new Postal Service increase in parcel post volume is "one that, if we are given the new rates we have sought, I believe we can sus-

Long before there were tall buildings, long before oil was discovered, Midland was settled by a breed of proud, tough, independent cattlemen. Today, the descendents of those early-day Midlanders may be found operating modern ranches, using modern technology along side of the sweat and hard work. Ranching in west Texas has changed greatly since the early days in Midland. # Child's death prompts probe

By WAYNE SLATER Associated Press Writer

QUINCY, Ill. (AP) - Alan Madden was pummeled for perhaps four hours before he died, at times with fists, at times with a wooden club wrapped with gauze and labeled "The Big Stick." He was 5 years old.

Police found his frail body on the living room floor, his blond hair red with blood, his hands bruised from trying to deflect the blows.

Probably he did something an average little kid does, write on the wall or something. That's all it takes,' said a former social worker who had urged that the shy kindergartener not be returned home because she feared "there's going to be a dead kid."

ALAN DIED JAN. 10. His mother and a boyfriend are charged with murder. But since his death, talk has centered not so much on those who may have killed him, but on those who did not.

-On the uncle, who now says he would have told anybody about the bruises he saw — but nobody asked. -On the school principal, who went through all the proper channels when Alan came to kindergarten with blackened eyes. On the assistant state's attorney 100 miles away, confident that when investigators lay the blame they'll find "everybody did their job" by the rules in his county.

-On neighbors who say they never heard the screaming.

-On the judge, who says he was shown no evidence of child abuse before he ordered Alan returned to his mother last August.

"The whole system shoud be torn apart to find out what went wrong," said state Rep. Mike McClain, who's called for an investigation of the Department Of Children and Family Services, the state agency responsible for abuse cases.

Alan, described by a grandfather as "a sweet kid," got lost in the bureaucracy, falling victim to a tragic series of reports never forwarded, questions never asked, evidence never given.

HIS MOTHER, PAM BERG, 24, quit high school, married a sometime factory worker named Gerald Madden and was still in her teens when daughter Tina was born seven years ago. She was dark-haired and attractive, and reportedly had a fiery tem-per and a habit of holding lighted cigarettes out for Tina to touch.

When I asked her why she did that, for lighted things," recalled former Knox County Deputy John Mackey, who investigated bruises on Tina's back and buttocks in 1975.

The Madden marriage ended shortly after Alan was born, each parent accusing the other in court of beating the children. In truth, "They took turns beating on those kids," said the former social worker, who asked that her name not be used

"I remember little Tina waking up with nightmares screaming 'Don't, Mommy, don't!' I saw bruises that were suspicious on those kids and was very much against either parent getting the kids," said uncle Charles Kruger, who kept Alan and Tina for several months in 1976 while their mother served a prison sentence for forging a check.

AFTER HER RELEASE, Mrs. Madden returned to Galesburg for a while, then headed for Colorado. Madden vanished. Efforts to have Alan and Tina adopted got waylaid.

"For whatever reason, I couldn't get this case in court," said the ex-social worker. She said she wrote three times to the state's attorney and finally caught Circuit Judge William Richardson in the hall and asked that he docket the case.

"He said, 'Yes, yes, contact the state's attorney.'

It was the mother who finally got it on the docket. She returned from Colorado a couple years ago with a new boyfriend, a new daughter named Nichole and, she said, a new interest in her two older children.

Hearings were held. The former deputy wasn't called to tell what he knew. The uncle wasn't asked about abuse. Problems in the past were either blamed on the father or not discussed at all.

"She was very neat looking. She said she was going to school," said Richardson, whose hearings dealt only with the mother's interest in the children, where she would live and how she would pay for food and

"The definition of a parent in our society is someone who owns a home, needs to have some education and has some interest in their children. And she met the qualifications," said the former social worker.

Last August, Alan and Tina were returned to their mother, who was living with James Crain, 26. In October, on the day of the kindergarten class photograph, Alan came to school with his face so bruised he couldn't be in the picture. Principal Rick Baldwin alerted the local DCFS

"He was such a shy, quiet little kid," Baldwin said. "I couldn't see any reason to be mad at him, much less beat him."

BALDWIN LATER CALLED the DCFS again. A neighbor, hearing screams, called police, but everything was kept confidential, filed away. "Keeping the family together is our primary goal," said Tim Morrell, local DCFS supervisor.

In December, just three weeks be-fore Alan was killed, the Quincy office mailed a routine report to Richardson. It said the family was doing Coler admitted his agency had ignored or failed to respond to warnings from a clergyman, school officials, a teacher and police.

Record-setting grandma

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Marilla Salisbury, known as Sunbonnet Sue to fans who watch her set world running records at age 73, has some advice for the elderly: "It doesn't hurt any more to run than it does

Mrs. Salisbury, who took up running three years ago, now holds world records in the 100, 200, 400, 800, 1,500, 5,000 and 10,000-meter runs sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic Union for women 70 to 75 years

" Running has stopped my aging," said Mrs. Salisbury, who is called Sunbonnet Sue because she runs in a wide-brimmed hat to protect her from the sun. "My doctor tells me I'll live to be 100 - if I don't run in front of a freight train.'

The 5-foot-6, 114-pound retired school teacher said in an interview that the idea of running hit her after she got a divorce and married Earl Salisbury, a 76-year-old retired space hardware instrument maker who doesn't run but sometimes exercises

"I noticed that all my friends were complaining about their illnesses, using aches and pains as excuses to just sit and look at the boob tube," Mrs. Salisbury said. "I went down to the local fitness center and started working out with weights, two hours in the morning three days a week.

"I started running around the block," she said. "I kept on running around the block. Then they told me about a 10-kilometer race — that's 6.2 miles — in San Juan Capistrano and I went and ran that in 93

The races came fast and faster as did the medals - dozens won at the national track and field championships in Philadelphia, numerous state and regional meets and the World's Veterans Games in New

"I never exercised until I went to San Diego State university and got my master's degree in health education," said Mrs. Salisbury.

"But when I turned 70, I began hearing that it was not only being careful about what you ate, that you had to exercise to stay healthy.

Marilla Salisbury ties on her running shoes in San Diego. A few of her running medals are displayed. At 73, she has set seven world's distance records and is still running strong. (AP Laser-

Probes find damaged tissue in bad hearts

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - Medical researchers are learning to use flexible electrical probes to search inside a human heart for hidden damage that can disrupt its rhythmic beating and endanger life, says an Alabama

"We have been relatively successful in patients who otherwise would be at great risk of sudden death," said Dr. Albert L. Waldo of the University of Alabama Medical Center in Birmingham.

He told an American Heart Association seminar Wednesday that two forms of irregular heart beats, or arrhythmias, which are especially common in patients who have survived a heart attack, are particularly

One is the chaotic beating called ventricular fibrillation that "is absolutely incompatible with life." The other is the racing heart beat called tachycardia, that can be life-threa-

Waldo had no estimate of how many patients suffer the arrhythmias, but he said it is "a very significant num-ber." In the worst of cases, three out of 10 victims may die within a year.

For decades, Waldo said, the only treatment for such patients was drugs that helped many, but by no means

Then surgeons discovered bulges on the damaged heart muscle of many heart attack survivors with irregular heartbeats. Waido said surgeons tried as early as the 1950s to restore normal rhythm by removing the damaged tissue, but that this worked less than half the time.

At the University of Alabama and elsewhere, Waldo said, doctors began experimenting with pencil-sized probes that, when applied during open heart surgery, record the elec-trical impulses that power the heart.

In using the technique on 38 heart attack victims, including 21 with irregular heartbeats, doctors found the tissue damaged in heart attacks produced identifiably low electrical readings. This allowed precise identification of damaged tissue.

Once identified, the surgeon can remove the bad tissue or isolate it by

Although results so far are encouraging, Waldo said, "we don't be-lieve we have (completely) solved the problem as yet. I think we're very early in this game and we have a lot to

"But," he added, "I think this (surical) approach to the treatment of life-threatening arrhythmias has ar-

At Alabama, Waldo said, the probe and one or another form of surgery has been used over the past 15 months on 24 patients, all of whom got no relief with drugs.

Five died. Three were victims of congestive heart failure early in the program, and Waldo said modifications to the surgery have apparently prevented a recurrence.

"In the 19 survivors, we have not had a single episode of spontaneous ventricular tachycardia," Waldo

Decontrol doesn't end bureaucracy

By EDWARD WALSH The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - As of Thursday, the federal government is out of the business of controlling oil prices. But that does not mean the bureaucracy that did the controlling is also out of business.

President Reagan, his energy secretary, James B. Edwards, and his budget director, David A. Stockman, may soon find this out.

Earlier this week Stockman pre-dicted the order decontrolling oil prices that the president signed Wednesday would allow the administration to "phase out ... very quickly" the Department of Energy employees who administer the controls.

Wednesday Edwards said much the same thing, although he admitted he did not know how many people would be affected.

But over at DOE there was no horde of bureaucrats frantically searching for new jobs Thursday, and there may not be for some time. "You may have decontrol, but our operation is not going to end overnight," one was quoted as saying.

There are a number of reasons for this, according to DOE officials. To begin with, by the usual standards of the federal bureaucracy, the control program did not involve a massive number of bureaucrats. Of DOE's 20,000 employees, about 1,750, or fewer than 10 percent, were involved in the control program in the department's Economic Regulatory Administration

The bulk of these, about 1,500, are in two divisions charged with enforcing the regulations. They are lawyers, accountants, computer specialists, secretaries and clerks. And most will be staying right where they are, at least for a while.

The reason is that the department has a number of cases going on that involve alleged violations of regula-tions in the past. Those cases were not automatically wiped out along with the controls by Wednesday's presi-dential action. Moreover, the 1973 law that established the controls authorizes the department to contin;; rlier violations even after the controls have been lifted.

The Reagan administration could halt ongoing investigations and prosecutions. Edwards declined to rule out this possibility Wednesday.

Other DOE employees involved in monitoring aspects of the program also are likely to retain their jobs, as they have in the years since price controls were taken off home heating oil. These monitoring functions are expected to continue.

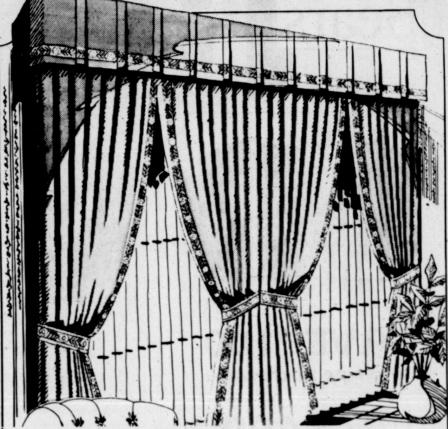

Eventually, however, many of job

slots in DOE's Economic Regulatory Administration will wither away, just as Reagan, Stockman and Edwards desire. But the bureaucrats themselves may be more difficult to get rid of. They are career civil servants, and many probably can count on finding jobs elsewhere in the vast federal bureaucracy.

As a result of these factors, no panic was reported in the Economic Regulatory Administration as the president signed away many of its functions. "These people are not nearly as concerned as I thought they would be," one official said. "Maybe it's the nature of bureaucracy. They seem to be saying that maybe I'll be working under a different title, but they don't seem worried."

Anne Frank's complete diary to be published

Sears

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) - The diary of Anne Frank, the tale of the Jewish girl's ordeal in hiding from the Nazis during World War II, will be published in full next year for the first time, the Dutch War Documentation Institute said Friday.

Institute director Harry Paape said the hard-cover book will contain the so-called first and second versions of Anne's diary, and the version edited by her father, Otto, who died in Basel, Switzerland, last August at 91.

His version was first published in Holland in 1947 and has been translated into 56 languages. About 15 million copies have been sold.

Paape said the new book, to be published in Dutch in 1982, will include sections of the original diary omitted by Otto Frank in his editing, including passages in which Anne discusses disagreements with her mother and tells of the awakening to her sexual development in her early

The institute was left the original manuscripts by Otto Frank, the sole survivor of the eight Jews living in the Amsterdam canal house and betrayed on Aug. 4, 1944.

Anne was sent to Auschwitz and from there to Belsen concentration camp, where she died on an unrecorded day in March 1945, only two months before Holland was liberated and just before her 16th birthday.

Her diary covered a period of two years while the family and friends sheltered from the Nazis in the secret annex of the house.

Paape said the first version of the diary begun by Anne in the summer of 1942 had "a rather childish character" to it. "But she developed very quickly and in the first months of 1943 she rewrote what she had done and this, together with the remainder of the diary, became known as the second version.

Paape said there were no immediate plans to publish the book in other languages, but he said he expected inquiries from foreign publishers.

Haig puts mark on new position

By JOHN P. WALLACH Foreign Affairs Editor Hearst Special News Service

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29 — The new Secretary of State turned beet red when a reporter asked him whether he had on Jan. 20 foisted on President Reagan, who allegedly still was in his formal Inaugu ral clothes, a document enshrining him as the real power behind the foreign policy throne

"Funny you should ask," former General Alex ander M. Haig replied at his first news conference as Secretary of State. "I was discussing that the other day as the President was taking his first shower in the White House." The humor was dis-

Then Haig delivered what was intended to be the knockout punch. "I noticed that there had been a number of dope stories along those lines," he said. "Most of those are totally without fact," the handsome but flushed new captain of the ship of state

THERE WAS NO POWER GRAB at all. What had really happened, Haig explained, was that he had brought "some drafts" of a proposed Presidential directive to "Mr. Allen," the President's new national security adviser, "and I was in the process of coordinating these drafts with the Secretary of De-

It was, Haig continued, "in that context that I accepted this position. I was assured by the President that I would be his chief administrator for the conduct of foreign policy, its chief implementer and articulator of the President's desires to the American people, Congress and the world-at-large.' That small exchange may reveal a great deal about how Alexander M. Haig approaches his new job. For one thing, Richard Allen already has become a fall guy for Haig, the convenient official to be blamed when Haig himself is on the hot spot. Allen's NSC role already has been greatly circumscribed by

Second, Al Haig intends to be the Secretary of State. He used his first press conference to lay down his marker not only to the Russians, the Cubans and the "terrorist government" in Iran but also to Jesse Helms, the powerful conservative North Carolina Senator threatening to singlehandedly veto several of Haig's appointments.

'I want you to know," Haig said almost immediately after striding into the State Department auditorium, "that each and every one of my nominees will be confirmed." Then adding this note for Helms, Haig said: "It's been quite an experience to discover the delays associated with the confirmation pronouncements on policy: — Towards the Soviet Union, the Reagan administration will return to a policy of "linkage," cooperating with the Russians only to the extent that they behave responsibly in the rest of the world. He implied the United States is in no rush to resume strategic arms negotiations with Moscow.

Haig also said that there is no need for a high-level U.S.-Soviet summit or foreign ministers meeting, not yet, Whatever business there is to conduct can be handled "through the regular channels," Haig said. And he had some tough words for Soviet adventurism throughout th last four years.

"It's been clear that we have been witnessing an unprecedented risk-taking mode by the Soviet Union." Haig said. "We have seen the exploitation of Cuban proxies" in Africa and Latin America. "This will be high on the priority of our national security agenda," Haig warned.

 Towards Iran, which he branded a "ter-rorist government," Haig said flatly there would be no provision of arms supplies -- that those already paid for by the late Shah's government would be sold elswehere and Iran reimbursed -- and that a trade embargo would be considered as an option.

The key, Haig said, to future U.S.-Iranian relations would be how Iran behaved both towards fulfilling its obligations under the agreement that freed he 52 American hostages and towards the United States in general. In short, there would be no rush to a return to "business-as-usual." - Towards the Middle East, Haig broke no new ground. "I don't want to inject any sense of urgency in our view of this matter," he said.

Federal regulations restrict flow of needed drugs

By Joann Rodgers Science Writer The Hearst Newspapers

TUSCON — A prominent heart specialist has a prescription for an ailing drug testing system he claims could cut in half the amount of time it takes to get some life-saving drugs to thousands of patients.

Blaming the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, drug makers and scientists for the delays, Dr. Donald Harrison of Stanford University says there are more than a dozen new drugs in clinical trials here and abroad desperately needed by people with life-threatening abnormal heartbeat rhythms.

These anti-arrhythmic agents, Harrison told an American Heart Association meeting, are the best chance cardiologists have of preventing 300, 000 sudden deaths a year in people with electrical rhythm disturbances that arise in the heart's main pumping chamber.

"Yet," he said, "it is estimated that the clinical testing needed with the current system will cost $10 to $15 million and require seven to 10 years. It is time to re-evaluate a system that is now outdated for evaluating the safety and effectiveness of these compounds.

Harrison, professor of cardiology, recommended the establishment of six national Arrhythmia Centers that would concentrate patients, scientific teams, expensive computers and drug testing equipment and rational plans for studying each drug.

At present, he said, individual researchers often haphazardly develop clinical trials that can't be compared. In addition, the FDA requires so much preliminary paperwork that "vans often deliver applications for trials that run to 100,000 pages or more and may take years to be read and evaluated."

Drug companies too often "do only piecemeal research" and expose thousands of people to experimental drugs needlessly. At times 1,000 patients are involved in tests that should require less than 450.

There's a clear need for these drugs for patients whose outlook for survival is not good, Harrison said. An estimated 30 percent of those with the worst disturbances of their heart rhythms die each year.

"There is also a need," he said, "for new relationships between scientists, the FDA and drug companies, coupled with fewer regulations, and exclusive drug patent incentives for companies to encourage their investment in research."

Stanford has developed a "model system" for short-circuiting the barriers to drug availability and has, already used it for two drugs (encainide and tocainide) which are now in final phases of clinical trial.

He said studies to document the effect of the new drugs on electrical conduction required only 30 patients. Only 40 patients were needed to study both the action of the drug in the blood and the absorption of the agent. A hundred more were needed for establishing how well it works compared to placebos, or fake drugs, and perhaps 250 for side effects and drug interact

The total time involved, he said, was about three years, after all animal tests were completed. Costs were generally lower as well.

It is no longer necessary to carry out studies in patients with minor arrhythmias, as was traditional in this field, Harrison said, or on those with no heart disease. "The rational plan of study we have adopted will permit documentation of efficacy and safety at the lowest possible cost and in the shortest period of time."

Six medical centers are already conducting drug studies the way an Arrhythmia Center would, Harrison said. They are at Stanford, University of Pennsylvania, University of Indiana, Hahneman Medical College in Philadelphia, Vanderbilt and University of Miami.

Dr. Jay Cohen, chief of cardiology at the University of Minnesota Hospital and head of the cardiac drug evaluation committee of the FDA, agreed with Harrison that the present system is needlessly delaying the testing and approval of vital drugs, many of them already in widespread use in Europe.

New administration axes Krueger's job

WASHINGTON(AP)—The Reagan administration has decided to abolish the State Department position of special coordinator for U.S.-Mexican affairs, departmental and congressional officials said Wednesday.

The move, hinted by Secretary of State Alexander Haig during his Senate confirmation hearings, is said to have met no objection from Mexican officials who were consulted privately by aides to Haig early this month. Furthermore, abolishing the position is favored by a bipartisan majority of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, a staff official said.

Shutting down the office, which was begun in the summer of 1979, is being done by the simple silent method of not replacing Robert Krueger, the special coordinator who was nominated by President Carter and finally confirmed by the Senate in late OctoKrueger was also given the title of ambassador-at-large to elevate his standing in Mexican eyes and make it easier for him to deal with other U.S. departments in his effort to coordinate U.S. policy toward Mexico. In response to a question during his confirmation hearings, Haig said he would "anticipate" eliminating many of the special ambassadorships that have been created in recent years. "It causes confusion ... for the host nations," he said, referring to countries not knowing whether they should deal with the U.S. ambassadors posted to their capitals, or with various special ambassadors in Washington. Krueger's position was unique, however, as it was the only one dealing specifically with a single coun-

His nomination drew unusual opposition from the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which approved it by a vote of 9-7 only after Deputy Secretary of State Warren Chris-topher pleaded the Carter administration's case in a closed-door session with the committee.

Although Christopher described the position as vital to improving relations with an oil-rich neighbor, few senators on the committee viewed Krueger as more than a thinly disguised, purely political appointee.

Krueger, 46, a Democrat from Texas, had given up his House seat to challenge Republican Sen. John Tower in the November 1978 general election. Krueger lost narrowly, and a few months later the Carter administration offered him the newly created State Department post.

Democrats and Republicans on the committee seemed ready to reject the appointment until Christopher lobbied on Krueger's behalf. The primary concerns of the committee wee that the post was not necessary, that it would undercut the role of the U.S. ambassador in Mexico City, and would establish a precedent that future presidents, reluctant to risk offending Mexico, would feel obliged to continue.

There was no criticism of Krueger's qualifications to work in the field of U.S.-Mexican relations.

Because Krueger never managed to develop the position as being crucial to good bilateral relations, the incoming Reagan administration is said to have had little difficulty persuading Mexican officials that coordination of U.S. policy and good relations could be handled adequately within the standard State Department struc-

No other nation has a special ambassador assigned to it within the State Department here. Krueger's deputy was Everett Briggs, a career foreign service officer in that position.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Agriculture Secretary John R. Block announced on Friday a 1981 burley tobacco marketing quota of 661 million pounds, a nouncement by Feb. 1. Officials said that when adjustments are made for burley producers' overmarketings and undermarketings, the "effective farm quotas" for this year's crop will be about 860 million pounds, up 12 percent from last year.

Farm prices higher than 1980

By DON KENDALL AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Despite prospects for the sharpest climb in grocery prices in seven years, Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says food remains "a great bargain in this country.

"That doesn't mean when you go to buy it you don't wish you didn't have to pay so much," Block said Wednesday at his first news conference since joining President Reagan's Cabinet. "My wife doesn't want to pay so much, either.'

Asked if he expects to have opposition to a greater export effort if food prices rise this year by as much as 15 percent, Block replied:

"No, I don't expect to have legitimate, responsible opposition to exports, because exports, indeed, provide more to us than what they might take away.

For example, he said, last year's export sales meant an agricultural trade surplus of about $20 billion which help offset other deficits incurred by U.S. imports of oil and other non-agricultural prod"Without that, where would we have been, if you total up our balance of trade?," Block said. "Agriculture is the one that carried us over the hump.

Block explained he felt food "is holding its own in relationship to other increases in costs of living" shared by Americans.

Also, he said, Americans pay comparably less for food than consumers in "other modern countries." "They come over here and they think we're giving it away," Block said. "They just can't believe their

The Agriculture Department predicts food prices will rise an average of 10 percent to 15 percent in 1981, with a "most likely" estimate of about 12 percent over 1980.

That would be the biggest one-year rise since food prices soared about 14.5 percent in 1973 and 1974.

Last year, food prices gained 8.6 percent, the smallest in three years. Block was asked about food prices continuing to Farmers especially have been struggling to hold down their production energy requirements so that Americans can continue to get their food at a reasonable cost. In facr, a new agricultural revolution may be in progress - one in which agriculture's own renewable energy supplies may be used increasingly to fuel farm machinery, heat farm buildings, dry grain and serve many purposes. ly from USDA and state land grant universities. Some of the topics featured are how to grow ctops with less energy, the do's and don'ts of home insulation, how your community can cut energy bills and turning farm wastes into usable energy.

WHILE PROTEIN SUPPLEMENTATION is one of the largest out-of-pocket expenses in a cow-calf operation, it is one of the most necessary supplemental feed ingredients when other feed sources are low in protein.

The need for protein supplementation results as nutrient composition in forage changes with the seasons. Therefore, nutrient intake varies. Once grass stops growing and loses its green, lush appearance, it becomes coarse and fibrous. Crude protein content may fall from 12 to 4 percent or less, and forage dry matter digestibility may drop from 65 to 15 percent. These nutrient compositions vary greatly over time and supply cattle completely different diets due to seasonal changes. Spring and summer diets are usually adequate for beef cattle needs while fall and winter diets are lacking in nutrient composition. Cattle can not eat enough poor quality forages to obtain needed nutrients. Winter grass is old and fibrous, low in nutrients and more slowly digested. Thus, consumption is lowered and the animal receives even less nutrients as a result of lowered Added protein increases digestion of fibrous material. It not only helps balance an animal's protein needs but increases forage intake due to increased digestibility of the forage. Since protein is required for growth and milk production, protein requirements for heifers and lactating cows are higher than for dry, pregnant cows. Lactating cows require twice as much crude protein per day as dry, pregnant cows and 26 percent more than heifers.

Protein supplements are available in many types and forms - cubes, cakes, liquids, self-limiting meal products and others to allow different feeding methods. These will vary in nutrient composition, and a producer should calculate protein cost in each. This cost figure and feeding and labor costs will help him select the most efficient supplement.

Protein supplements include cottonseed meal, soybean meal, alfalfa and combinations of these and NPN (non-protein nitrogen) sources such as urea and biuret.

When balancing forage rations with supplementation, dry matter (energy), vitamins, minerals and protein are all considered. Most often, available protein is deficient, but sometimes energy is also

When energy is low, some grain may be fed along with protein to make up the difference in what is supplied from forage. A good low fiber, high protein range cube (with grain) will probably be sufficient.

Airports must streamline federal customs to keep foreigners coming

By KEN GEPFERT

The Los Angeles Times LOS ANGELES - Cumbersome and time-consuming customs procedures at U.S. airports must be streamlined if the nation is to take full advantage of today's influx of foreign tourists, the director of an association representing 106 of the world's airlines warned Wednesday.

"Everyone wants to come to the United States because of your favorable currency exchange rates, but if they have a bad experience at the airport, they will say, 'Once is enough,' "said Knut Hammarskjold, director general of the International Air Transport Association. He also cautioned that international ar travel may move out of reach of the average tourist's ability to pay if jet fuel price increases continue to outrace inflation.

And, he expressed optimism that President Reagan would moderate the Carter administration's policy of insisting that low fares for leisure travelers be the overriding consideration in negotiating bilateral air travel agreements with other nations.

Hammarskjold, nephew of the late United Nations secretary general, Dag Hammarskjold, said that the United States should move swiftly to modernize airport customs and immigrations facilities and policies betractive currency exchange rates have transformed the United States into a prime tourist destina-

"All of a sudden a German, a Dutchman, even a Frenchman or a Swiss can buy more in this country than he can on his own continent," he said. "There are more Europeans flying west than Americans flying east across the Atlantic."

Delays of an hour or more for incoming international travelers are common at U.S. airports because of present customs and immigration practices that "require each and every passenger to be questioned, creating a needless waste of inspection manpower to the detriment of the U.S. taxpayer and the traveler," according to a recent IATA task force

Hammarskjold said an alternative inspection system recommended by Geneva-based IATA would establish separate "red and green channels" for arriving passengers. "People who have something to declare would go through the red channel and those who don't would go through the green," he explained. "Observers would be posted in the green to pick out those suspected of concealing something they didn't declare."

U.S. airport inspection procedures are more cumbersome than those of many other nations, Hammarskjold said, because "until now the direction of tourists has been mainly outgoing. What is needed is a complete rethinking of attitudes to adapt to the needs of a tourist-receiving country.'

Meanwhile, the financial health of the world's airlines - and the future affordability of international air travel — depend largely on how fast jet fuel prices increase, the IATA director added.

"If we're lucky, fuel price increases that is the set objective of the more stable OPEC countries," he said. "If fuel prices increase faster than inflation, things will be terrible.'

IATA's member airlines, which represent 85 countries and account for 72 percent of passenger traffic outside of the Soviet Union, suffered their largest collective loss in history last year, while members' fuel bills jumped to a total of $9 billion from $5

Debt collectors can be abusive

By LINDA TRUITT Better Business Bureau of the Permian Basin, Inc.

During the past several months the staff at the Better Business Bureau has been approached by many consumers to help them cancel contracts they have made to purchase goods or services. The requests involve amounts ranging anywhere in price from a $12 magazine subscription to a $5,000 used car.

Although the BBB does not attempt to become involved in contract disputes unless misrepresentation or fraud can be shown, it is possible many consumers have miscalculated their ability to honor the contracts. If bills are not paid, debt collectors are often used to secure the money.

Both the Texas Legislature and the U.S. Congress have realized the abuses that can be caused by debt collectors. The Texas Debt Collection Practices Act and the federal Fair Debt Collections Practices Act provide consumers with certain rights concerning their dealings with debt collectors. The major difference between the two acts is that the Texas act applies to anyone engaged directly or indirectly in debt collection, while the federal act covers only those hired to collect the debts of others . Important points to remember under the Texas Debt Collection Practices Act are:

-You cannot be threatened or coerced into paying a debt if you notify the debt collector in writing that the debt is in dispute.

—If you owe the debt, the debt collector can threaten to institute a civil lawsuit, but he cannot collect a debt by threatening to file criminal charges when, in fact, the debtor has not violated any criminal laws.

-A debt collector cannot harass the debtor by using profane or abusive language. He also is prohibited from making continuous telephone calls or causing the telephone to ring repea-

In certain instances damages have been awarded to victims of unreasonable debt collection practices in the a consumer must prove that the collector conducted a campaign of unreasonable collection practices and, as a result, the debtor suffered physical or financial injury.

If you are being harassed by an agent of a debt collection agency, the federal Fair Debt Collection Practices Act provides these protections: -When notified in writing the collector must stop all personal contact with the debtor. He still has the right to file a lawsuit or repossess the disputed merchandise.

Dr. Herbert Reynolds. Baylor executive vice president, would give no examples of the offensive music.

"But if there are a series of quite profane words or two or three minutes of someone groaning in ecstasy indicating an ongoing sexual experience, we wouldn't want that on," he said.

The KWBU staff says it already censors that kind of music, but the administration - which just got over the posingfor-Playboy flap — says it has not been enough.

The station was warned last year about profanity over the air after a Waco resident wrote the administration a letter that included a page of "obscene" lyrics he had heard.

"It was just things by groups like the Knack, said a disc jockey who asked not to be identified, "which had words like 'goddamn' or 'I'm mad as hell and don't give a damn.' But the president contacted our department and told us to clean up our act. So we did. We cut out the songs - at least for a while."

In a few weeks, he added, the station was letting profanity slip back on the air.

The latest censoring came after a call from a woman who found her young daughter listening to rock music that she first thought was a tape recording. But when she heard it was the student station at a Baptist college, she was shocked.

She felt the words 'damn' and 'hell' were offensive to her. She had heard them on other stations, but the fact that we were a Baylor station means we couldn't do it," said Barry Rae, one of the station's direc-

BUISE, Idaho (AP) - A state administrator, conceding his whistleblowing efficiency study may have been disruptive, has silenced the whistles. But the study goes on.

Theo Murdock, Health and Welfare administrator, angered secretaries this week when he ordered aides to blow a whistle seven times a day, as a singal for the secretaries to write down what they were doing at the moment.

The procedure was aimed at eliminating three jobs for an economy drive, Murdock said. But secretaries complained it was degrading, insulting and a wste of time.

So on Thursday, Murdock ordered the whistle-blowing stopped and instructed his six aides to drop slips of paper on the desks of the 30 secre-

DMSO users playing deadly game

Dear Dr. Solomon: Ever since watching the television program that reported on the use of DMSO as a pain reliever, I've been reading a great deal about its potentially harmful effects. Yet people I know, who have no reason not to tell me the truth, say they can buy as much DMSO as they want.

I have a moderate arthritic condition and would like to try DMSO if it could possibly be of any help; but I don't want to risk endangering my health. Does the fact that the drug seems to be easily available now mean that it has been approved for general use? I'd also like to know whether DMSO is a new drug; I don't recall having heard anything about it before watching the television program — Randy.

Dear Randy: The only human ailment for which DMSO (dimethyl sulfoxide) has been approved by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is a rare, painful bladder condition called chronic interstitial cystitis. There is no clear evidence that it is either safe or effective in the treatment of arthritis, and people who use the drug for this and similar purposes are playing a particularly dangerous form of Russian roulette. In animals, DMSO has been used for horses and dogs to reduce acute swelling caused

The FDA is aware that DMSO is being widely distributed on street corners and in gas stations, and has warned about the purity and quality of the product being sold. Even if the drug were effective in the treatment of arthritis — which, as I've said, has not been established — the purity and quality of any product that can be purchased on street corners by the general public should be suspect. Furthermore, the lack of control over the production and distribution of the product makes reports that people are injecting the substance directly into their bodies a serious cause for concern.

Monday, February 2, 1981 YOUR BIRTHDAY TO-DAY: Farah Fawcett shares this birthday with you, and in the coming year, both of you will find new and better showcases for your talents. Your business judgment is excellent but a lack of cooperation on the part of your co-workers can hinder career progress. Do what you can to win over those who appear to be envious of your success! Travel is favored, and person-to-person meetings will pay royally. An air of self-confidence helps you to advance socially as well as professionally. The memory of an unhappy romance will not prevent you from finding great contentment with

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Co-workers are congenial but uninterested in combining forces. Work on those projects you can handle alone. Travel plans are apt to go awry. Stick close to home and show more consideration towards mate

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A good day for contacting the professionals regarding tax or legal matters. There is new emphasis on your ability to get across the main point you want to make. Be as precise as possible.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Move swiftly to close business deals! Influential person is clearly in your corner, and it is obvious you are at ease with a new associate of the opposite sex.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Older person may be hard to please. Creative project brings much satisfaction if you are able to work alone. Be sure you know what you are getting into when you grant a special fa-

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The day starts off slowly but things should pick up by early afternoon. Higher-ups that require your working overtime. Postpone any social plans for this evening. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Tend to routine matters early in the day. Creative ideas flow freely in mid-afternoon. Record those thoughts on paper before you forget them! Romance is a source of contentment but not particularly exciting.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): This is not the time to think about changing jobs. Hang onto what you already have and try to improve mutual resources. Financial experts can offer valuable advice.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Letters, messages may be delayed. Self-discipline can help you cope with stressful situation. A cooperative attitude will accomplish miracles at both work and home. Friend may be bearer of glad tidings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your popularity is on the upswing. Some religious activity may be part of the day's plan. Take care of family obligations before concentrating on romance. A clear conscience aids relaxa-

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): This can be a very special day, filled with love and laughter. Your social life shows signs of improvement. Keep entertainment expenses in line. Power of suggestion helps loved one make decision you appreciate. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You continue to make progress in restoring order within the family circle. Romance flourishes. Make the most of an unusual opportunity to further a personal aim. Tend to household chores before going out.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Cross-currents could cause a misunderstanding early in the day. A free exchange of ideas could help put things right again between you and mate. Social activities keep you on the run this evening.

French lawyer claims Carter missed 3 chances

PARIS (AP) - A French lawyer who represented Iranian interests during negotiations to free 52 American hostages said Friday three good opportunities to free the captives were missed, one three months after the Nov. 4, 1979, U.S. Embassy take-

Christian Bourguet, who met secretly several times with former White House chief of staff Hamilton Jordan, told The Associated Press in an interview the missed chances were in February, March and April of last year.

The French lawyer also said former President Carter's only major mistake in the 14-month crisis was the aborted military rescue attempt last April

"In February 1980 the negotiations were going well, but unfortunately for the United States there were great internal political problems in Iran," said Bourguet, whose close Iranian contacts include President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr and former Foreign

Treat children's allowance in businesslike manner

BY LOUISE COOK

Associated Press Writer Young children often are more aware of money than their parents realize. And grown-ups can use that awareness to teach the youngsters how to spend wisely.

A recent issue of "Consumer Views," a monthly newsletter pre-pared by economists at Citibank, one of the nation's biggest commercial banks, looked at children and money.

"The best way to teach is to let children practice using money themselves and to get them started early," the newsletter says.

"Young children usually first notice money when they go to stores with you, so start teaching on shopping trips with pre-schoolers. Give a fiveyear-old or even a toddler some change in the store and let the child pay for crayons or a toy." The Citibank economists asked child-rearing experts about allow-ances, overspending and budgeting. Here are highlights of what the ex-

Children are ready to make their own spending choices as soon as they understand the difference between numbers. Let your son or daughter make the decision about whether to use his or her coins to buy one item costing 30 cents or two things at 15

Youngsters under the age of five or six usually aren't ready for a weekly allowance. They don't have a sense of the future. By the time your child is in the first grade, however, he or she is probably ready for regular spending.

Figure out how much your child needs. Help the youngster keep a record of what he or she spends for a few weeks. Sit down with your child and divide the items into fixed expenses like carfare or lunches, variables like toys or movies, and sav-ings. The variables, or "extras," are important. "The child won't learn much about managing money from an allowance completely tied into 'musts," say the Citibank experts.

Keep things simple to start with. The "extras" category in the allowance of youngsters under the age of eight or nine should be limited to things like ice cream, inexpensive toys or other small items. You can gradually increase the child's responsibilities as he or she gets older, adding a sum for gifts, for example.

A budget for older children should include a category for possible earnings. Unless it is financially impossible, however, earnings should not be subtracted from an allowance. You'll reduce the child's motivation to

Sooner or later you'll probably hear the argument: "The other kids get more than I do." Review your youngster's allowance. Have you adjusted it at all to cover inflation? Is his or her complaint valid? Check other parents to find out what your child's friends are actually getting. You may decide an increase is necessary.

If, however, you feel your allowance is adequate, be firm. Point out that it is not always a good thing to follow the crowd. Explain that different families have different amounts of money and different needs. Be honest with the children. Include them in discussions of family finances

You can to expect your youngsters to make at least a few spending mistakes. Keep criticism to a minimum when possible; let the child learn from his or her own errors and gain confidence.

There are times to interfere, however. As a general rule, you should set simple standards in the beginning and stick to them. Dangerous toys, for example, should be ruled out. So should too many sweets.

It is usually not a good idea to bail out a child who wastes his or her entire allowance, then asks for money. In special cases, however, you may want to give a youngster an advance. Insist on repayment and use the experience as a basic lesson in borrowing and credit.

An allowance should be kept on a businesslike basis. If you tie it to your child's behavior, subtracting from the allowance as punishment or adding as a reward, it becomes irregular.

DEAR HELOISE

If you, or your readers, enjoy doing jigsaw puzzles and would like to make them into a hanging picture, do this: First, put the puzzle together on something sturdy. like a thick piece of cardboard, then apply a coat of a decoupage glaze. Let dry, then turn the puzzle, board and all, over and lift the board off

Cut a thin board fo-size to serve as a backing, then glue it on the puzzle letting the glue dry well. Carefully turn the puzzle right side up and apply two or three more coats of the glaze, allowing each coat to dry well before apply
