Punxsutawney Phil sees shadow

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (AP) — Punxsutawney Phil, the famous weather forecasting groundhog, today poked his head out of a burrow atop Gobbler's Knob, saw his shadow and predicted six more weeks of winter, according to his interpreter.

"Son-o-colese, Feeny, meeny miny mo," Phil reportedly told Charles Erhard, president of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club, and the only man who claims the ability to translate the groundhog's predictions.

"At 7:27 a.m., the king of all weather prognosticators seemed temporarily confused by the unpredictable nature of the winter thus far," said Erhard, after rapping on the door of Phil's heated burrow.

"But Phil definitely saw his shadow. There will be six more weeks of mild winter weather," said Erhard, wearing tails and a silk hat.

As Erhard made the prediction, a crowd of a few hundred who braved wet snow and chilly temperatures, booed loudly. That means, so the legend goes, six more weeks of winter.

weather. No shadow would mean an early spring.

The groundhog, according to tradition rooted in Pennsylvania Dutch legend and the Christian feast of Candlemas, will scurry back into the burrow and hibernate for six more weeks if he spots his shadow.

"A mortal man can readily miss the shadow, but Phil never misses it," said Erhard, president of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club. "He'll whisper into my ear. He doesn't lie. He tells me the exact truth."

And Erhard says Phil has never been wrong.

The groundhog made his first official prediction in this town of 10,000 in 1886.

Last year, by Erhard's count, some 1,500 spectators braved cold winds to hear and film the animal's prediction. Foreign exchange students visit. High school students elect a groundhog king and queen and a man and woman of the year are named at an evening banquet

Chun visit symbolizes return to normalcy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, meeting today with South Korean President Chun Doo-hwan, is expected to pledge to maintain U.S. troop levels in that country, officials said.

Chun's visit also is intended to symbolize a return to normalcy in Korean-American relations after four years of friction over human rights and other issues during former President Carter's tenure.

The South Korean leader arrived here Sunday and was greeted at Andrews Air Force Base by Secretary of State Alexander Haig and several hundred flag waving Koreans residing locally.

Carter began a phased withdrawal of U.S. ground troops in 1977, but the process was suspended in 1979 after North Korea's military capability was found to be greater than had been believed.

The suspension was subject to review this year, but officials, asking not to be identified, said Chun was expected to receive assurances there will be no further troop reductions. There now are about 40,000 U.S. troops in South Korea.

Chun's visit here caps an unusually hectic period of political activity in South Korea. Over the past two weeks, Chun has invited North Korean leader Kim Il-sung to visit Seoul, commuted to life imprisonment the death sentence of opposition leader Kim Dae-jung and lifted some restrictions imposed on political activity after the 1979 assassination of President Park Chung-hee.

American officials said Chun's visit will enhance his prestige internationally and in South Korea, where he is expected to receive a mandate for a seven-year term in indirect presidential elections later this month.

Seven full-page advertisements heralding Chun's arrival appeared in the first 20 pages of today's editions of The Washington Post. The advertisements were placed by Korean Air Lines, the U.S.-Korea Economic Council, and several South Korea-based businesses.

The visit also was aimed at restoring international confidence in the South Korean economy, which declined in 1980 after several years of high growth.

Last year was one of the most difficult for South Korea since the Korean War ended 27 years ago. Aside from economic decline and political uncertainty, there were violent anti-government demonstrations during the spring. Relations with Washington were strained when Chun consolidated his power, ignoring repeated Carter administration appeals for a restoration of broad-based democratic rule.

Haig said last week he hopes that Chun's visit will "clarify the air" following the "static" of the Carter era.

GI's try 'contract' marriage for cash

FORT BENNING, Ga. (AP) — Army rules which give extra housing allowances to married soldiers are producing "convenience" marriages among GIs here, though officials warn such arrangements are full of pitfalls.

The typical military couple with a "contract" marriage lives in legal matrimony off post until discharge or reassignment and draws the extra-quarters allowances allotted by the Army.

But Maj. Lou Thompson, a legal affairs officer at Fort Benning, says such marriages could cause problems for both parties, including the possibility of prosecution.

Potentially they could be prosecuted for fraud, by taking a basic allowance for off post quarters when there is no real intention to live with a spouse, Thompson said.

If one partner wants to remain married despite a contract to end the relationship on a specific date, a messy divorce fight could result, Thompson said.

In addition, he said a husband in a "convenience" marriage still is liable for child support should the wife become pregnant, and in many states, the husband is responsible for his wife's debts.

If one spouse leaves the service with the marriage still in effect, the other technically is responsible for support under federal law and military regulations and, according to Thompson, his or her pay could be held up by the courts.

One soldier who went through such a "convenience" marriage said he knew of five other such GI couples at Fort Benning.

The private, who asked that he be identified only as Jack, said his marriage didn't last until his discharge. Divorce came within nine months, partly because of a dispute over fidelity.

Jack and his future wife became friends after both were assigned to a medical detachment at the Fort Benning reservation outside Columbus.

By tying the knot and moving into a $210 a month apartment on the Chattahoochee River, the couple received about $100 monthly on top of the base military each drew.

They drew up a contract agreeing to end the marriage by the time of Jack's discharge in March 1982 and took it to a Columbus lawyer, who reminded them they were legally married regardless of the contract.

Jack said he and Linda lived as husband and wife, sharing household chores, but continued to date others. Within a few months, he was ready for a monogamous arrangement, "but she still wanted to date," Jack said.

Strike called off in Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Teams of government and trade union negotiators met today to try to resolve local wildcat strikes by farmers and workers in southern Poland after a national union government compromise eased Poland's labor crisis.

A commission led by Deputy Agriculture Minister Andrzej Kacala met with representatives of farmers and workers, who have been holding a sit-in for a month in a former trade union building in Rzeszow, demanding legalization of a union for the nation's private farmers.

Lech Walesa, the chief of Solidarity, Poland's big independent labor federation, went to Rzeszow to join the worker-farmer negotiating team led by his deputy, Bogdan Lis.

A Solidarity spokesman said Walesa would also go to the province of Bielsko Biala, where a general strike entered its seventh day today. The strike over local and national grievances has shut down 120 plants, municipal offices and transportation systems, the official PAP news agency said.

Solidarity's national coordinating commission on Sunday called off a nationwide one-hour strike scheduled for Tuesday after the government opened the negotiations in Rzeszow. But Walesa warned that the strike would be rescheduled "if there is any attack on us or on the farmers. Solidarity will consider any attack on farmers' unions as being directed against us."

The coordinating commission also called for "supportive" action Tuesday on behalf of the farmers. Walesa said the local Solidarity chapters would determine what this would consist of, but it might include "the display of flags, the wearing of arm bands or other manifestations."

The private farmers account for 75 percent of Poland's agricultural production. The deputy agriculture minister said the Supreme Court would review the application for registration of the farmers' union in the next 10 days. Labor leaders said the hearing would be held Feb. 10, and several members of Solidarity's presidium expressed doubt that the government would approve the application.

Meanwhile, Solidarity's national leaders were trying to mobilize the support of the federation's 10 million members for their agreement Saturday with the government on two of the other issues that have spawned a wave of wildcat strikes in recent weeks: the five-day work week and access for the labor movement to the government-controlled radio and television services.

The government agreed in principle to the 40-hour, five-day week, but the Solidarity leaders agreed to a 42-hour week and one working Saturday per month this year because of Poland's acute economic crisis.

Soviets escalating war of words

MOSCOW (AP) — In a new escalation of its war of words with the Reagan administration, the Soviet leadership today publicly accused Washington of "deliberate political subversion" for charging that the Kremlin was responsible for acts of international terrorism.

At the same time, it was learned that Moscow had further expressed its anger in a new diplomatic statement to the U.S. Embassy here. Soviet and American officials confirmed that embassy officers were summoned "recently" to the Foreign Ministry, and U.S. sources said the session dealt with the terrorism issue.

If the session, which was believed to have taken place today, amounted to a formal protest, it would be the second in a week to the American mission here. Last Thursday, Jack F. Matlock, the ranking U.S. diplomat in Moscow, was called to the Foreign Ministry to hear a protest against U.S. statements that criticized Soviet press treatment of the Iranian hostage crisis.

Today, a special statement from the official news agency Tass — equivalent to an official government announcement — said "any allegations about the Soviet Union's involvement in terroristic activities represent a gross and malicious deception. They cannot but cause feelings of indignation and legitimate protest in the Soviet people."

The attack followed accusations Sunday by the Communist Party newspaper that the new U.S. administration was "playing a dangerous game" in making the allegations about terrorism. That commentary and two previous days' criticism in the official press, appeared to signal a substantially harsher stance toward the Reagan administration.

Today's harsh, 900-word statement was the most formal Soviet denial yet of charges made last Wednesday by U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. linking the Soviet Union with terrorists.

"Soviet leading circles have taken note of a new anti-Soviet hostile campaign being unfolded in the United States," the statement began — an indication the statement was approved at the highest Kremlin levels.

"Such inventions could be simply ignored as a new primitive trick by professional anti-Sovieters if not for the fact that this campaign was started by high-ranking officials of the American administration," including Haig, Tass said.

The official statement also repeated Soviet charges that the United States was guilty of terrorism by supporting conservative regimes in Asia and Latin America.

"The organizers of the present campaign in the United States resort to a dishonest device also when they equate terrorism and the legitimate struggle of the peoples for their national, economic and social emancipation," Tass said.

If the "newly fledged theoreticians of terrorism" followed their own reasoning, Tass said, "they should also list among terrorists George Washington and other Founding Fathers of the United States, who led the American struggle for independence."

Closing with a warning, Tass said that "Soviet ruling circles would like to hope that they in Washington will give serious thought to where the continuation of their hostile campaign to the Soviet Union can lead." Tass did not elaborate on what the "campaign" might lead to.

Vet hopes prison will end nightmare

DALLAS (AP) — Bobby Ray Johnson figures Vietnam took 20 years out of his life — 10 in the drug-filled hell that followed his tour of duty and 10 yet to come in the form of an armed robbery prison sentence. "The nightmares had started again," says Johnson, 30, following his sentencing after he pleaded guilty to the armed holdup of three nurses for a bag of narcotics. "I was sick. I felt there was no place else to turn to." Johnson's painful journey began after his first major battle in the jungles of Southeast Asia following his 1969 enlistment in the Army. "People were lying dead on either side and as far as I could see, my friends were dead," he says. "I still see it." After the battle, a buddy handed him heroin and told him it would make the horror of war tolerable. It did, Johnson said, but he turned to the drug more and more as the stress of the war bore down on him. Johnson brought his habit home with him, as well as the ugly mental images of his months in the jungle. He sought help from stateside military authorities, but says he soon found himself a civilian with an undesirable discharge and 38 cents in his pocket. "I was set out like a bag of trash," he remembers bitterly. In 1975, his discharge was upgraded and he was allowed to apply for veteran's benefits. Soon his illegal heroin habit was a legal methadone habit, but the nightmares didn't stop. He says he was haunted by guilt and his addiction increased when he felt pressure or something triggered the memories of war. Often, he says, a song would send his mind reeling back to his days as in Vietnam. "It's hard to think there's a little girl out in Boston that has never been held by her daddy," he says, remembering the guilt that comes with old feelings. "He was the best friend I ever had. He bought it walking point for me while I was sick." "When the guilt got so bad," he says, "it came down to a multiple choice — stick a needle in my arm or a pistol in my ear." Johnson says the 10-year sentence he will serve in the Texas Department of Corrections could be no worse than the last 10 years of his life. "They can't put me through the hell I've already been through. They can have my body, but my mind is free." "My biggest question is," Johnson says, "will I ever get to come home — not from the penitentiary, but from Vietnam?"

$9 million paid in Jeep lawsuits

DETROIT (AP) — American Motors Corp. has paid nearly $9 million in out-of-court settlements since 1973 in personal injury claims involving its Jeep CJ line, according to the Detroit Free Press. Previous reports have stated that AMC has paid substantial settlements in suits involving Jeeps, but the copyright story Sunday reported an overall dollar amount for the first time. At least 17 lawsuits are pending against AMC and its subsidiary, the Jeep Corp. of Toledo, Ohio, according to the Free Press, which based its report on the review of court files involving Jeep accident claims.

Fishermen rescued from ice floes

OREGON, Ohio (AP) — John Myers is safe on shore after he and some 80 other ice fishermen were plucked from giant bobbing ice floes, but he thinks his cousin's truck is still out there somewhere, floating around on Lake Erie. "I ain't never going to (ice) fish again. Only my second time out, and we get stuck on a little island of ice," said Myers, a 26-year-old plumber from Toledo. Hostage king

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — For 444 days he was a captive in Iran, but come March 1, Marine Corps Sgt. John D. McKeel Jr. will be king — of a Mardi Gras parade. McKeel, 27, of Balch Springs, Texas, has been chosen as King of Bacchus, one of the major Carnival krewe that stage elaborate parades and balls for Mardi Gras. Mardi Gras is March 3, but parades and balls begin weeks in advance. "It will be a great way to erase some very bad memories," McKeel said in accepting the krewe's invitation Saturday. He also said he would like to bring the eight members of the Marine embassy detachment in Tehran as his guests to the Carnival spectacular. "We served together for a long time," he said, "I sure would like to have them with me." The captain of the 13-year-old Bacchus krewe, said the selection of McKeel to wield the king's wine glass scepter was a departure from tradition. Generally the king is picked from the entertainment world. McKeel gained a certain amount of notoriety at a news conference at West Point following the return of the hostages, when he said he and his fellow Marines wanted to "get back to chasing women."

in the frozen lake surface Sunday morning didn't know right away that the ice they were standing on was coming unstuck. First, as the weather warmed up, a few chunks of ice broke off. Then, at about 10 a.m., a hunk measuring five miles by two miles pulled free and drifted some four miles from shore near Crane Creek State Park, Myers said. "It started off with about three or four (people) on a small piece of ice," said Frank Henderson, a Coast Guard spokesman in nearby Toledo. "By the time we got the call and our people got there, this big hunk of ice had broken off." The floe gradually broke into smaller jigsaw pieces as the temperature climbed to 37 degrees. Within four hours, all the fishermen, including two boys, had been rescued without serious injury. But a dozen vehicles, including snowmobiles, cars and trucks, were left on the ice. Myers' cousin, who had taken Myers and another man fishing, left his 1978 Chevrolet Suburban truck behind on the ice. "We had just jumped a crack in the ice and then got a flat tire," Myers said. "We decided to go back and headed east, but the crack got worse. By the time we got back to where we originally started, there was a 100-foot crack so we couldn't cross." The men sat in the truck, on a chunk of ice about a half-mile long and 200 yards wide, singing and drinking beer, Myers said. "I kept checking the ice depth, making sure we had enough ice to sit on," he said. The ice was 14 inches thick. After nearly four hours, one of the many rescue boats dispatched from the Coast Guard and fire and police departments evacuated Myers and his two companions from the ice. "I was going to kiss the firemen," Myers said. A helicopter from a Toledo hospital lifted others stranded at the center of the larger chunk. Myers said the cold "wasn't a factor. We weren't out there that long."

Gas fumes empty movie

CHICAGO (AP) — More than 200 people were evacuated from a North Side theater after a leak in a furnace forced deadly carbon monoxide fumes into the building, fire officials said. Ten people were given oxygen at the scene by Fire Department paramedics but none required hospitalization, Battalion Chief Theodore Czerwonka said after the Sunday night incident.

Informed teens favor arms pact

By GEORGE GALLUP
PRINCETON, N.J. — Although only a competitive handful of American teen-agers are familiar with the strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union (SALT II), among informed teens positive attitudes outweigh negatives by better than a 2-to-1 ratio.

Two out of three teen-agers (67pct) interviewed in November by the Gallup Youth Survey said they had heard or read about SALT II but only a little more than half of these (38pct) could name either an advantage or disadvantage of the treaty. Among this latter of "informed" teens, 24pct favored Senate ratification, while 11pct were opposed and 3pct couldn't make up their minds.

Adult opinion on the treaty was much more evenly divided than that of teen-agers. When the Gallup Poll first measured the adult public's attitudes toward Senate ratification of the treaty in March 1979 it found that informed Americans supported ratification by a 33-to-1 ratio; by June it had slipped to 5-to-3 and in March 1980, the last time these questions were asked, about equal proportions of adults favored and opposed ratifying SALT II. However, young adults (18-24 year-olds) who were familiar with the treaty's provisions were more favorably disposed toward it than were older persons — following the pattern of the Gallup Youth Survey's findings.

Consistent with the results of quizzes we've conducted in the past on world and international affairs, boys were considerably more knowledgeable than girls, with 72pct of boys compared to 61pct of girls aware of SALT II; 46pct of boys and 29pct of girls were informed about it. However, among these relatively small groups of teens who knew enough about the treaty to describe how it would work, a larger proportion of girls than boys voted in favor of Senate ratification. This same pattern was found in the case of older vs. younger teens of both sex: 16-18 year-olds were more familiar with SALT II than were 13-15 year-olds, but the latter were proportionately more likely to feel the treaty should be ratified.

The most knowledgeable group of teen-agers in our survey were those whose parents had both attended college. More than 3 of 4 of these youngsters (72pct) had heard about SALT II and 51pct could describe it. Among this group approval of the treaty far outweighed disapproval, 37 to 11pct.

Teens from the East and Midwest were more aware, better informed, and more apt to back Senate ratification of SALT II treaty than teens from the South and West.

Teen-agers' awareness of and attitudes toward SALT II are also related to the candidate they said they would have liked to see win last November's presidential election. Teens backing Ronald Reagan and John Anderson were both more aware of and better informed about the strategic arms limitations treaty than were supporters of Jimmy Carter. Informed teens with Carter and Anderson leanings favored ratification by rather large margins. Those supporting Reagan also favored ratification, but by a smaller margin.

While teen opinion was generally more favorable to SALT than adult opinion, arguments on both sides of the issue are similar. According to a 17-year-old Hickory, N.C., treaty opponent, SALT should not be ratified "because the U.S. would be no better off with it." Added a 16-year-old Hinton, Okla., girl: "I feel the U.S. is getting the bad end of the deal." On the pro side was the argument of an 88-year-old Anderson backer from Staten Island, N.Y., who supports ratification because "there should be some control over the nuclear arms race." He was seconded by an Elmhurst, Ill., girl who feels that if we don't put some limit on atomic weaponry, an atomic war will destroy the world.

The findings are based on telephone interviews with a representative national cross-section of 1,030 teen-agers, 13 to 18 years old, conducted in November.

Exploding some myths about the Civil War

By SCOTT M. BUSHNELL
Associated Press Writer

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (AP) — A Wesleyan University professor has written a novel he says will explode some myths about the American Civil War.

Richard Slotkin, a professor in the American Studies program at the small university on the Connecticut River, maintains many of the stereotypes common in U.S. history — like the generally accepted motivations for the War Between the States — are not based in fact.

"Southern side has been mythologized; the Northern side has not," he says.

Slotkin, who won the Albert Beveridge Award of the American Historical Association in 1973 for a scholarly work on violence on the American frontier, says he hopes his first novel is a step toward putting the conflict in perspective.

"The Crater" already has been praised by critics for its handling of the subject, the siege of Petersburg, Va., in 1864. The novel focuses on events surrounding the detonation of a tunnel-like mine by Union troops from Pennsylvania, and the subsequent attack on Confederate forces.

The attack fails for a number of reasons, including the eruption of a bloody fight among the northerners at the introduction of black combat troops.

Slotkin tells the story through the voices of many characters, supported by military dispatches.

"I've been faithful in spirit, and in most cases to the letter, true to what happened," says the 38-year-old author-teacher.

"This is not 'Executioners Song,' not 'In Cold Blood,' however," he says, referring to novels by Norman Mailer and Truman Capote which were more non-fiction than fiction.

"Faction," as Mailer calls it, tends to be very contemporary, the taking of testimony that leads to fiction in the not-too-distant time," Slotkin says.

"One of the main functions of the historical novel is the mythologizing of the past, providing a connection to the past," he says. "But many myths need to be exploded."

Slotkin maintains that the romantic story of the Old South has been told time and again in novels and texts, while the issue of blacks in the North and the post-war South has been ignored.

"The North turned its back on the cause," Slotkin says simply.

His novel draws heavily from analytical studies of the slave society by historian Herbert Gutman for some of its characters.

"I tried to get at racism, the language of racism in the novel," Slotkin, a native of Brooklyn, N.Y., says. "For the soldiers of the time, it was a given. I had to write of characters who were not quite sure whether the men on the other side were human or animal."

A student of the Civil War since boyhood, Slotkin says his novel began as a chapter to the second volume of his scholarly work on violence. But he decided to tell the story of the crater in a novel because of the freedom the form offered and because "there's just too much that is questionable."

"In a historical novel, you take things that were there and recombine them. The freedom of fiction allows you to take what you know happened and add your own educated guess about the rest of the details."

And fiction is exerting some pressure on the writing of history, says the Wesleyan professor. Slotkin concedes that social historians like Gutman have made significant additions by minutely studying previous populations. "But you have to take the analytical views of history and plug them back into a narrative sequence. You have to reconnect the facts of social dynamics discovered by their quantitative work," Slotkin says.

"You have to know your history. Otherwise, you're impoverished today."

DEAR ABBY

Around the world, around the block, moving is a pain

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: IF LOVES TO MOVE were married to a petroleum engineer, as I am, she would soon lose her appetite for moving.

I recently completed my 72nd move! These moves have encompassed 17 foreign countries, three states and four Canadian provinces. To date, the record has been six moves in less than 11 months!

Each of our four offspring has attended over 30 different schools. Happily, none has suffered either academically or psychologically. I consider myself fortunate to have been able to spend TWO consecutive Christmases in the same house.

In the last 30 years, I have set up housekeeping in the bustling cities of the Far (and Near) East, in the steaming jungles of South America, and I've even pitched tents in the deserts of Saudi Arabia. I've braved native uprisings, revolutions, sandstorms, tropical floods and was left completely homeless twice through evacuations.

Small wonder my family and friends think I'm crazy, but were they to read of LOVES TO MOVE, they would consider her to be totally insane! Sign me...MOVIN' RIGHT ALONG

DEAR ABBY: LOVES TO MOVE is sitting on a gold mine! She should help others (for a fee) who hate to go through the hassles of packing and moving.

I don't think she's any crazier than the men who buy a different car every other year, but I do think she's crazy if she doesn't use all that energy to earn money. If she doesn't live in a town large enough to make money helping people move, she can "move" to a bigger town. — ALSO LOVES TO MOVE

DEAR ALSO: Move over for another reader who shares your view:

DEAR ABBY: Why do you think the woman who loves to move should have her head examined? Let her do her thing. And I think her husband deserves praise for understanding. I know people with sillier and more expensive hobbies. At least she is moving within the same city; that keeps the cost down.

We also moved a lot but always to another country — usually crossing an ocean. I'll bet lots of people thought we were nuts, but I enjoyed it tremendously. — LIESEL IN SEAL BEACH, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from LOVES TO MOVE made my day. My husband and I also love to move, but this is the first time we ever heard of anyone else who did. We've been married for 26 years and have moved so many times we've actually lost count. (We even moved back into the same house three times!)

It's expensive and hard work. We're not young any more, and I hope our next move is to the cemetery. — CRAZY LADY

DEAR ABBY: LOVES TO MOVE answered her own question: "I'm never satisfied." I know how her children must feel, because my mother was also a mover. No sooner did we get settled in a new house when Mother found one she liked better. It was hard on us kids having to make new friends in a strange neighborhood.

I had a friend who had the same problem, only worse. Her mother moved 33 times in 14 years, and they never left the neighborhood! This friend's father woke up in bed with a neighbor lady one morning. His wife had actually moved two doors down while he was out of town, and she never told him about it. He came home in the middle of the night, let himself in the darkened house and went directly to bed. The Widow Jensen never got over the shock.

Your advice was perfect. LOVES TO MOVE needs to have her head examined. — HAVEN'T MOVED IN 35 YEARS

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply, write to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

'Fashion humorist' proves that fashion can be fun

By JOY STILLEY AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Judith Keith has a multifaceted career: public appearances as a "fashion humorist"; writer; editor; publisher, and literary agent.

And, still another activity — which she says, "maintains my mental equilibrium" — she's a ski instructor at Camelback ski area in the Pocos, where she lives and works in what was formerly her weekend ski cabin.

"I'm at my desk by 7 and work till 11, then take a break and teach a ski class," the ebullient Miss Keith explained in an interview. "I come back, have dinner and work again from 8 to 10 at night."

That is, if she's not traveling, which she does a good deal of the time to put on her one-woman, one-outfit fashion show before conventions, trade associations and other audiences.

"I've done it for everyone from the wives of top corporate executives to people in correction institutions," she says, "from junior high-school groups to senior citizens. Every woman has the same interest in wanting to look good and to create a look of her own, no matter what her weight, income or age."

For the show, she designed a dress with three tiers that can be zipped off to make it different lengths. The shortest version is a tunic, which she wears with pants. With those pieces and a lot of accessories she presents her fashion philosophy, which she has elaborated on in a recent book, "I Haven't a Thing To Wear!"

The book was published by Tandem Press, which Miss Keith started about 10 years ago in Tannersville, Pa., and which she also runs as a one-woman show with the help of some freelancers. From there she's branched out into acting as a literary agent.

A youthful-looking woman in her 50s who was wearing a checked suit with a wine-color scarf and hat, Miss Keith believes in the five Cs of fashion: Comfort, Contour, Color, Classics and Coordination.

"Comfort is the most important part of fashion," she declares. "Never accept a trend if it's not comfortable. And I'm not talking just about physical comfort. Other aspects are essential: social comfort, psychological comfort and financial comfort."

On the subject of contour, she sums it up with a laugh: "If the shape you're in isn't the shape you want to be, just be careful of the shapes you buy."

"The one commodity in fashion that does not cost a penny is color," she goes on. "You must know the colors that do the most for you and work with them as an artist works with colors."

Classics, she says, are the way to stay timelessly stylish and where you should make your investment in clothes. The simple, uncluttered lines and good-quality fabrics are eternally in style, she points out.

"Fads are the greatest fun in the world," she adds, "but the way to bring some of the trends into your wardrobe is to spark classics by adding an individual touch, to use accessories that you can tack on and then remove."

"Coordination is where you use your own creativity, the first step to igniting your own individuality. You should not be in any way hemmed in by fear if you're working with classics and accessories. This is where you should experiment, mixing separates, adding to clothes with everything from bicycle clips to tiaras."

"Coordination is also the way you make up your face and comb your hair, the way you move your hands and use your body. You don't sit in an elegant dress the way you sit in jeans."

Miss Keith, divorced with three grown children, loves to sew and has made all her slipcovers and drapes. She used to make her own clothes but no longer has the time.

Formerly in the theater, she came by chance into the fashion field. As public-relations director of an advertising agency she developed a program for a laundry trade association. The show explained visually how to create myriad looks with a basic black dress and accessories.

One night when the young model who did the show was sick, Miss Keith was forced to fill in on short notice. She came out on the stage, removed her hat and realized to her horror that she'd forgotten to take the curlers out of her hair.

"The audience roared," she recalled. "It added just the comedic touch that was needed. I was as fat as they were; I was wearing glasses; I was THEM!"

Haig fires ambassador

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. has fired Robert E. White as United States ambassador to El Salvador "as a sign of a new policy in Central America." The New York Times reported today.

White was called to Washington last week and informed that the Reagan administration would soon name a new ambassador to signal a new United States policy, according to the Times report, which was based on State Department sources.

White, a career diplomat, has been strongly criticized by Republican conservatives. The Times said in its report from Washington that the sources indicated White had not been offered a new assignment.

White said any announcement about his future would have to come from the State Department, the Times said.

Haig has ordered an interdepartmental review of United States policy toward El Salvador, where three American Roman Catholic nuns and a lay missionary were killed in December, the Times said.

White had a major role in shaping policy toward the Central American nation in the last year, during which guerrillas have been trying to overthrow a military-backed civilian government.

Debt limit likely to go up this week

NEW YORK (AP) — At least two of the Americans taken hostage in Iran were linked to the Central Intelligence Agency by documents seized when Iranian militants took over the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, according to published reports.

The reports appeared Sunday in Time magazine and the London Observer. The Observer account was written by reporter Ian Mather, who said he saw the documents in Tehran in November, 1979.

Time magazine, in a report on the protection of intelligence materials at American embassies, said that among a "treasure trove" of documents found by the militants was one indicating that William Daugherty and Malcolm Kalp were CIA agents. A margin note, "Show to Tom A.," led the militants to believe that

Thomas Ahern, listed by the State Department as the embassy's narcotics control officer, also had CIA ties, according to Time.

Mather's report also listed Ahern, Kalp and Daugherty as those whose names appeared in seized documents. His story said the documents indicated that a fourth hostage, not identified, was a CIA agent.

"The documents suggest," Mather wrote, "that the CIA was about to launch a new initiative in Iran of which the charge d'affaires, Mr. Bruce Laingen, was aware and that requests for embassy help for former agents of SAVAK, the shah's secret police, had at least been considered."

He said, however, the documents he saw did not "demonstrate that the Americans were seeking to undermine the Iranian revolution. Neither do they justify the taking of the hostages or the subsequent maltreatment of them."

In Washington, State Department officials declined to comment on either report.

Time said Ahern, Kalp and Daugherty suffered harsher treatment than other hostages. Kalp was beaten and kept in solitary confinement for 374 of the 444 days the hostages were imprisoned.

The magazine said many documents and almost all the embassy's sensitive communications equipment were destroyed as the militants were storming the embassy compound on Nov. 4, 1979, but the contents of Laingen's safe and that of political officer Michael Metrisko were captured intact by the militants.

The seized documents, Time said, contained names of Iranians who had visited the embassy, some of whom were believed to have been arrested and executed.

Time said the Iranians also got sensitive documents from a helicopter abandoned after the rescue mission failed last April. The magazine said the documents gave locations of safe houses, procedures and codes for making contact with local agents and secret escape routes.

The seizure of these documents forced some United States agents in Iran to flee the country, Time said.

According to the Observer, one document, dated Aug. 9, 1979, was marked "secret" and spoke of the need for "cover" for Kalp and Daugherty.

Narrow plurality says deal compromised honor

NEW YORK (AP) — A narrow plurality of Americans believes the United States' deal with Iran to secure the release of the hostages "compromised our national honor," according to a Harris Survey published in today's Daily News.

Forty-seven percent of those polled feel "President Reagan should go back on those parts of the deal that still need to be implemented" while 46 percent feel it should be honored, according to Harris.

The survey of 1,250 adults was taken between Jan. 22 and 25. Respondents' opinions on the hostage deal apparently were tied to which presidential candidate they supported. Fifty-four percent of those who voted for Reagan believe the deal compromised national honor, while 58 percent of those who voted for Jimmy Carter thought it did "allow the U.S. to keep its honor."

Other poll results:
—Asked if it was right for the United States to pledge "not to interfere in the internal affairs of Iran," 80 percent said yes and 16 percent said no.

—By 74 percent to 22 percent, a majority supports sending Iran "$2.9 billion of its own money, which had been frozen for 14 months."

—A 75 percent to 19 percent majority agrees that Iran should repay "$3.7 billion in loans made by United States banks to Iran under the late shah."

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Former Gov. Ella T. Grasso, whose battle with liver and intestinal cancer forced her to leave office, was semi-comatose and in critical condition today, a hospital spokesman said.

The 61-year-old Mrs. Grasso, who has been in Hartford Hospital since early December, began to worsen early Sunday. Battaglio said she awoke at 8 p.m. and recognized members of her family, then slipped back into a "comatose state."

Gold below $500 again; Dollar fluctuates

LONDON (AP) — Gold prices slumped back below $500 an ounce in London Monday morning but stayed above that psychological barrier in Zurich, Europe's biggest bullion market.

The dollar fell in early trading but by midmorning had pulled back up somewhat. London's five bullion houses fixed the morning gold price at $493.25 an ounce, $13.50 below the price late Friday of $506.75.

Other European dollar rates were 2.1100 West German marks, down from 2.1155 at the close of trading Friday; 1.9175 Swiss francs, down from 1.9220; 4.8700 French francs, down from 4.8825, and 2.2830 guilders, down from 2.2960.

Cadmium could hurt children's IQ

BALTIMORE (AP) — Chronic exposure to lead and cadmium could reduce children's intelligence and may be a "contributing factor to the decline of academic performance" nationally over the last two decades, according to a University of Maryland neuroscientist.

Cadmium is a toxic element found in pesticides, fertilizers and in the liver of the Maryland blue crab. Automobile exhaust is responsible for much of the exposure to lead.

Dr. Robert W. Thatcher's study of 149 Eastern Shore children, plus the results of research conducted by Dr. H. N. Needleman of Harvard on the effects of lead exposure, underscore the potential dangers of the two elements to child development, according to the neuroscientist.

Thatcher, director of the university's Applied Neuroscience Institute, said the Eastgzo!sstudy showed they "cadmium has a major impact on verbal intelligence, vocabulary, spelling and language skills, while lead has its greatest effect on performance IQ, the manipulation of symbols and images in the mind."

He contends the study has produced the first evidence of a quantitative difference between the effects of lead and cadmium exposure on intelligence.

"If our sample and the Needleman sample is representative of the nation as a whole, then the findings have national significance indicate a pervasive phenomenon," he said.

"Exposure to low levels of cadmium and lead over a long time could be a culprit in the decline of academic performance that's been publicized since 1962 through dropping college entrance exams, student achievement and IQ scores."

Needleman's study of the teeth of 2,000 urban children indicates a negative impact on intelligence.

"long the exposure is to be and at what level the child adversely affect intellectual functioning is unknown," Thatcher said.

Thatcher said his study indicates cadmium is more potent than lead in small doses. But exposure to both elements is worse than exposure to just one of them.

The $1.25 million study is funded by the University of Maryland and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Thatcher said he plans to compare 600 Eastern Shore children with 600 children in Baltimore by 1983.

"We hope to look at the quality of nutrition in children and to see if high quality nutrition can protect children from toxic effects of cadmium and lead," he said.

Thatcher analyzed hair samples from the children, aged 6 to 16, and administered psychological and intelligence tests. Each child underwent brain wave testing and their parents completed questionnaires about family nutrition.

New drug to help weakened children battle chicken pox

BOSTON (AP) — The state of Massachusetts has started nationwide distribution of a new drug, rejected by commercial manufacturers, designed to help children with cancer or other serious illnesses battle chicken pox infections.

The state decided to produce the drug because commercial manufacturers were not interested, said laboratories director Dr. George F. Grady, director of the biological laboratories division of the state Department of Public Health.

His staff developed the drug, Varicella Zoster Immune Globulin, or VZIG, in conjunction with the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute in Boston and the federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

"There are certain products, like VZIG, that can only be used for a very special purpose," Grady said. "And, although the large commercial manufacturers do not find it financially in their interest to produce such a product, the need remains."

The drug became available nationwide Sunday. While chicken pox in healthy children often is not serious, the illness results in death 7 percent of the time and pneumonia 25 percent of the time when it hits children who have cancer or other medical problems that impair the body's natural ability to fight disease, department officials said.

In three years of tests, VZIG reduced the severity of chicken pox infection by 75 percent in children under age 15 who are without natural immunity to disease, said the health department.

The biological labs division will make the drug and distribute it with the help of the American Red Cross.

Grady said revenues from the distribution of the product "will be returned to Massachusetts so that we can continue to produce not only VZIG, but also a variety of other blood products and vaccines that we use to combat disease in the commonwealth."

Scientists said VZIG is most effective when administered within 96 hours of exposure to chicken pox. It can provide protection for up to six weeks.

The drug also is reported effective in protecting newborn infants of mothers who develop chicken pox within five days of delivery or 48 hours after delivery.

Grady said the supply of VZIG was limited, so it will not be prescribed for normal, healthy children who come down with chicken pox.

Man charged with arson in Victoria hotel fire

VICTORIA, British Columbia (AP) — A 26-year-old man was going to court today to face a hearing on arson charges in a $500,000 fire that forced the evacuation of 500 guests at the stately Empress Hotel.

Michael Harold Clarke, 26, of nearby Sidney, remained in custody after being charged with arson Sunday before a justice of the peace.

Police said Clarke was arrested in a van outside a nearby hotel minutes after firefighters arrived early Saturday to battle the Empress blaze.

The arrest came after a man telephoned police to say he had set fire to the hotel, said Jim Blair, hotel assistant manager.

Guests said quick action by firefighters prevented injuries in the first fire at the landmark Canadian Pacific hotel since it opened in 1908.

Man dies after setting self afire

SEATTLE (AP) — A man described by relatives as "terribly disturbed" died of burn injuries after drenching himself with gasoline at an Arlington filling station and setting himself afire, authorities say.

Joseph James Kotnik, 38, died early Sunday of burns after being taken to Harborview Medical Center in Seattle from Cascade Hospital in Arlington, said George Rowley of the King County medical examiner's office.

Rowley said Kotnik drove his car into Arlington Arco and drenched himself with gasoline from a pump.

An attendant, Dean Higgins, 17, said he told Kotnik, "Don't do it. There's another way. He said, 'I'm going to do it... leave me alone.'"

'Ordinary People', 'Coal Miner's Daughter' take top globe awards

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Ordinary People" proved extraordinary and "Coal Miner's Daughter" turned out to be a jewel as the Hollywood Foreign Press Association presented its 38th Annual Golden Globe awards.

The awards Saturday night held few surprises, but did cast the limelight on young new stars Timothy Hutton and Nastassia Kinski and on perennial favorite Gene Kelly, whose special award was greeted with a standing ovation.

"Ordinary People" won best film, best director for actor-turned-director Robert Redford and best actress for Mary Tyler Moore, plus awards to Hutton as supporting actor and new male star.

"Coal Miner's Daughter" took best comedy-musical film honors and earned a best actress statuette in that category for Sissy Spacek.

Robert De Niro scored as best dramatic actor for his performance as boxer Jake La Motta in "Raging Bull" and Roman Polanski's "Tess" won best foreign film. "Tess" star Miss Kinski won new female star.

The multi-Emmying winning Miss Moore, who made her dramatic film debut in "Ordinary People," thanked Redford "for his inspired and inspiring direction and for believing that there was part of Beth in me."

Said Miss Spacek of her acting award: "There's a cowboy named Jim Shoulders who once told me, 'I'd rather have a little luck than all the ability in the world.' I agree with him tonight."

Kelly's standing ovation came as he collected the Cecil B. De Mille award for distinguished service to film from an old-time hoofing pal, Van Johnson.

Winning best musical-comedy actor was Ray Sharkey, the driving personal manager of 1950s teen rock stars in "The Idolmaker." Mary Steenburgen of "Melvin and Howard" won best supporting actress.

Songwriters Michael Gore and Dean Pitchford claimed best motion picture song award for the theme to "Fame." Dominic Frontiere's score for "The Stunt Man" brought him honors also.

One surprise was William Peter Blatty's award for best screenplay on "Twinkle, Twinkle, 'Killer' Kane."

In the television categories, NBC's popular epic of 16th century Japan, "Shogun" was named best series in the drama category, and its stars, Richard Chamberlain and Yoko Shimada, won actor and actress honors.

"Taxi" won in the best comedy or musical television series category, with acting awards going to Katherine Helmond of "Soap" and Alan Alda of

"M-A-S-H."

"The Shadow Box" received the best TV motion picture award.

Valerie Bertinelli and Pat Harrington of "One Day at a Time" shared best supporting player awards in the TV sitcom categories with Diane Ladd and Vic Tayback of "Alice."

The ceremony, broadcast live for the first time in three years and for only the second time since 1968, followed by a week a Los Angeles Times report on the HFPA that raised questions about its awards and members.

Though the Motion Picture Association of America has accredited 220 foreign writers, the Times reported that only 78 correspondents vote for the awards.

The newspaper said it could not locate some of the publications association members were said to represent, and also found that some members actually worked as actors in the films and TV series they vote for.

Margaret Thatcher sticks to her guns

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher vowed to continue her tight-money anti-inflation policy even though it is causing record post-war unemployment and has put her Conservative government last in the public opinion polls.

"We knew it would be painful, we knew it would be difficult," Mrs. Thatcher said in a television interview Sunday.

"It is just at this stage, when previous governments have started to get things right, that they have taken fright and cut and run. They have reflated the economy, which is just w polite word for saying you create a lot of money and pump it in."

Union leaders today announced an "alternative strategy" to Mrs. Thatcher's policies calling for the government to pour $14.4 billion into the economy to save jobs and boost industry. They are to present the plan to the prime minister on Thursday.

Mrs. Thatcher's Conservatives, campaigning on a ticket of tight monetary controls, won a 44-seat majority in the House of Commons and a five-year term in May 1979. Inflation has dropped steadily in the past eight months to 15.1 percent, but unemployment has nearly doubled, to 2.4 million, or some 10 percent of the work force, and the money supply is increasing about 20 percent annually, compared with the government's target of 7-11 percent.

An opinion poll published Sunday in the weekly Observer indicated that even the split in the Labor Party is not helping Mrs. Thatcher.

Honoring the agreement

President Ronald Reagan has indicated his administration will honor the agreement reached with Iran that led to the safe return of the hostages, although it is being examined closely from legal aspects. There are good arguments for both not honoring the terms and for standing by our word.

From an emotional standpoint, most Americans likely would relish repaying Iran for some of the misery dealt the United States and its citizens during the 14½-month captivity period. They would correctly argue that the agreement was reached under duress and that the situation is akin to a deal struck with a kidnapper. That's true and, in light of that fact, many would not fault the United States for calling the agreement null and void.

But, on the other side of the coin, there are other considerations that beg for unemotional, sober logic. Iran is strategically and geopolitically important to the United States. It was prior to November 1979, and the hostage crisis did not diminish that significance.

The agreement with Iran calls for the United States staying out of that nation's internal affairs. As much as possible, that policy should be implemented and adhered to.

Of course, we have agreed to return the Iranian assets previously frozen in this country. The original demand was for $25 billion. That later was lowered to $14 billion and, finally, $8 billion. When all was said and done on that count, Iran received about $2.5 billion after paying off its largest creditors. In that respect the assets served their purpose.

On the question of any claims against the Iranians, though, the government should not tie the hands of individual citizens and companies. Iran has broken international law and many Americans have suffered as a result. They should be free to seek legal remedy.

Most importantly, however, we must quickly — albeit cautiously — attempt to re-establish an acceptable relationship with Iran. A strong and independent Iran is important to the stability of the Persian Gulf region. It's in a vital area and it's rich in oil.

We must make certain that our actions do not drive that country, still racked by revolution and turmoil, into the hands of the Soviet Union.

All-in-all, we should accept part of the agreement no matter how much we detest it, should reject clauses pertaining to claims and then resume our lives, putting this unpleasantness behind us and warning all others that a repeat of Iran will bring swift and sure retaliation.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, Feb. 2, the 33rd day of 1981. It is Groundhog Day and there are 332 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Feb. 2, 1848, Mexico ceded a vast area to the United States, including what is now Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California.

On this date: In 1635, New Amsterdam, now New York City, was incorporated by the Dutch.

In 1876, eight baseball teams banded together to form the National League.

In 1973, Pope Paul VI nominated 30 new Roman Catholic Cardinals, including three Americans.

And in 1974, communists outside Phnom Penh bombarded the Cambodian capital, killing 17 people.

Ten years ago: Battlefield action was at a 10-month high in South Vietnam.

Five years ago: The chief American delegate to the United Nations, Daniel Moynihan, resigned.

One year ago: The FBI's "Abscam" bribery investigation came to light, implicating at least eight U.S. lawmakers.

MARK RUSSELL SAYS

All together now, everybody sing — "Tie a yellow ribbon 'round that newsman's neck!" The Tacky, Stupid, Offensive and Sleazy Souvenir Dealers of America met recently to introduce their latest items. The big money maker will be the eight-foot Elvis Presley, J.R. Ewing, Welcome Home Hostages Tablecloth.

Then there is the Hostage Game. The players move around the board from Tehran, to Algeria, to Wiesbaden, to West Point, to Washington — then on to "Today," "Tonight," "Tomorrow" and "Phil Donahue."

'BUT - I SHOOK HANDS ON THE DEAL'

CHARLEY REESE

No more 'Mr. Nice Guy' routine with terrorists

Like everyone else, I'm delighted the hostages have come home safely to freedom. I think it was generous of President Reagan to name former President Carter his personal envoy so he could do what the Iranians apparently hoped to prevent him doing — greet the men and women in West Germany.

But even as we celebrate the return of our people, we should look at this disgraceful episode and learn from it.

Freeing the hostages was not a victory. We didn't free them. The Iranians, after they had squeezed the last drop of propaganda from them, let them go. They — not us — controlled the situation from Day 1 to Day 44. The hostage crisis was defeated for the United States of world proportions.

Let's not get delirious about the Algerians either. They did a good job acting as go-betweens but as their foreign minister made quite clear in his speech at the Algiers airport, they were acting in behalf of their Islamic "brothers," not us. A polite thank you will clean that slate.

As for the settlement, it should be thrown in the trashcan. If Carter can unilaterally break a 17-year-old mutual defense treaty with Taiwan, a law-abiding nation and faithful ally, then President Reagan need not be bound by an agreement with international terrorists made under duress. Carter, by the way, has a lot of nerve to talk about the nation's word of honor in view of his shabby treatment of the Chinese nationalists.

Iran committed an international crime and publicly humiliated, insulted and berated this nation for 14 months. There is no justification for what they did. For this crime, Iran has not paid one penny's worth of penalty. On the contrary, it is being rewarded.

The Iranian assets should be confiscated, not returned. To put aside a portion of the assets for possible settlement of just claims is not a punishment, but a common business practice. To remove settlement of those claims from U.S. jurisdiction to an international claims commission is to do the Iranians a favor. It will just make it much easier for them to cheat and chisel their creditors.

Let's not forget we are the injured party. What about reparations? None. What about compensation to the hostages for damages done them by their brutal captors? None. How about a simple apology? No way. How about punishing the people responsible? No deal. In short, the settlement is an international disgrace and open invitation to the world's terrorists to try and imitate Iran's success. If we don't repudiate it, we will pay later, probably in blood.

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker should not confine the investigation to the brutal treatment; he should investigate the entire episode and pinpoint the blundering of the Carter Administration which caused it and prolonged it. Don't hold your breath, though. Such an investigation would involve David Rockefeller's role in getting the late Shah admitted and I don't think Senator Baker has the stomach for that confrontation.

But the future is more important than the past. It is imperative that President Reagan make it clear that the new U.S. policy toward terrorists is the same as Israel's — no negotiation. That means future hostages must be written off as casualties the minute they are captured. That is the only way to avoid the corner Carter put himself in, for once you decide that keeping hostages alive is the top priority, you surrender to the terrorists. The only things left to negotiate are the terms of the surrender.

In addition, Iran should be punished. We should maintain diplomatic and economic sanctions. We should get the CIA off its Ivy League bottom and undermine the Islamic Republic of Iran. We should identify the individuals who actually held the hostages and see to it that they die young.

Finally, we should pass special legislation to deport the majority of 200,000 Iranians in this country, especially the 50,000 Iranian students who are taking up space in our universities which American youngsters probably need.

We played Mr. Nice Guy for four years. Enough is enough.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Loophole lets oil companies avoid taxes

WASHINGTON — Americans are understandably not impressed by the obscene spectacle of Big Oil weeping crocodile tears all the way to the bank. Even the most naive consumers can see a connection between the doubling of gasoline and fuel oil prices and the fat quarterly profits the major oil companies keep racking up.

But what many don't realize is that Uncle Sam's tax collectors — who are such relentless tigers when they stalk the ordinary taxpayer — are tame tabby cats for the Big Oil boys. Through a transparent tax dodge enacted by a compliant Congress, the oil companies evade enough taxes each year to handle a healthy chunk of the federal budget.

The device is called "foreign tax credit." On the surface, it seems fair enough: For every dollar in foreign taxes an oil company pays, it is given a dollar of credit against its U.S. income taxes. Ostensibly, this prevents double taxation — or so the slick propagandists of Big Oil would have us believe.

The hitch is this: The foreign "taxes" are in fact part of the purchase price — the same kind of royalties an oil company might pay to private landowners in this country for the right to pump oil from their property. Overseas, the landowners are the various foreign governments, so most royalties paid to them are construed as taxes.

It makes no difference to the foreign governments; a royalty using the alias of a tax is still money. But to the oil companies — and the rest of the American taxpayers — it makes a colossal difference.

Literally billions of dollars are at stake. Comprehensive figures in a revealing Internal Revenue Service study have been reviewed by my associate Dale Van Atta. They cover the tax returns of all American oil companies for the 12-month period from July 1975 through June 1976. Here's what the figures show:

— The 39 biggest oil companies grossed a staggering $291 billion.

— The deductions worked out by their accounting wizards totaled $254 billion.

— After a few further allowances, the total profit admitted to by the 39 oil companies came to an impressive $36.5 billion. For most corporations, this would mean an income tax owed of $17.5 billion.

— Instead, the oil companies wound up paying about $2.5 billion in U.S. income taxes.

How could this happen? Simple enough: The oil moguls claimed foreign tax credits totaling $15 billion. So on an aggregate income of nearly $300 billion, the companies paid a total of about less than 1 percent in income taxes — while individual American taxpayers were giving the federal government 20, 30, 40 percent or more of their annual earnings.

Big Oil's special place in the hearts of Congress is made clear by some figures in another IRS study. Even with all the huge multinational American corporations entitled to claim foreign tax credits — like IBM, ITT, etc. — the oil industry accounted for 75 percent of all foreign taxes claimed by U.S. companies. Obviously, the foreign tax credit law is as tailor-made as an oil baron's $800 suit.

As if the disguising of royalties as taxes weren't bad enough, the fine needlework in the law allows an even trickier use of the foreign tax credits by Big Oil. With IRS and Department of Energy blessings, some oil companies are permitted to charge their U.S. refineries — that is, themselves — much higher prices for crude oil than their cost for drilling and shipping it to the United States. Thanks to various bookkeeping tricks, only minimal taxes are paid on this so-called "foreign profit."

These legal ruses allow the oil companies to reassure outraged American consumers that, really now, they're not making exorbitant profits from their U.S. customers. Most of those eye-popping profits they announce every three months come from their foreign operations, they say with a straight face.

NICARAGUANS ABROAD?: Intelligence reports say there are 500 Nicaraguan troops fighting with the Cuban expeditionary force supporting the leftist government in Angola.

The Nicaraguan government insists it has sent no units to help Fidel Castro in his African adventures. Despite its close ties to Castro, the Nicaraguan revolutionary regime has said it does not want to join his effort to export revolution.

According to the intelligence reports, the Nicaraguans spotted fighting in Angola are former members of the Sandinista guerrilla army that overthrew Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza two years ago.

WATCH ON WASTE: If you can't stand the heat, Harry Truman used to say, get out of the kitchen. At the National Institutes of Health, they hired a consultant — at $600 a day. His job was to teach 20 anxiety-ridden bureaucrats in Grades 12 and up how to survive in the paper-shuffling pressure cooker.

The three-day course covered such topics as "what stress is about," "how to combat it" and "ways of relaxing." Whatever benefit it may have had for the higher-level nail-biters, the course had one predictable result: Lower-level bureaucrats are now clamoring to take a stress course, too. It beats working.

INSIDE REPORT:

Stockman prefers pulling out goats to shearing all sheep

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The audacity of political and economic strategy taking shape in the Reagan administration is glimpsed in budget director David Stockman's rejection of conservative orthodoxy and opposition to broad cutbacks in Social Security benefits.

Politically, Stockman is seeking to protect the Republican Party from its inconvertible desire to throw widows and orphans to the wolves and thereby embellish a villainous reputation that has helped lose elections for a half-century. The new Office Management and Budget (OMB) director is saying that there are methods less painful, both for Republicans and the old, to cut the budget.

His economic justifications are equally intriguing. They are based on his confidence that President Reagan's supply-side economics will transform inflationary contraction of the economy to non-inflationary growth. If indexing of Social Security payments (which is designed to keep pace with inflation) is reduced, it would be tacit admission that Reagan's policy will fail.

Specifically at issue is an idea to save billions in Social Security payments by recalculating cost-of-living allowances. When Stockman visited Wall Street after his selection by Reagan, he found stalwarts of the nation's great financial houses obsessed by the idea of cutting the budget by clipping away at old-age pension checks.

On Capitol Hill, Republicans were equally enchanted by the notion, perpetuating the party's image cryslized when President Herbert Hoover dispatched the U.S. Army against the bonus marchers. Many Democrats were also interested, including House Budget Committee Chairman James Jones. Even Jimmy Carter, who campaigned for re-election as the pensioner's best friend, proposed scaled-down cost-of-living allowances in his last budget.

Evans

Stockman was opposed from the start and said so publicly to the National Press Club in his first speech as OMB director, a position given surprisingly little publicity. Long before that speech, Stockman had determined that the politically feasible way to reduce federal spending is to pull out a few goats from the herd, not shear all the sheep.

Cutting back cost-of-living adjustments for all Social Security beneficiaries certainly would be shearing sheep. Stockman prefers less politically sensitive goats: reducing special categories of Social Security, saving over $3.5 billion a year. That includes eliminating aid to college students and restructuring disability payments.

Stockman always doubted budge-etary benefits from throwing widows and orphans to the wolves. To make sure, he called for advice from an astute supply-side economic analyst: Alan Reynolds, vice president of Chicago's First National Bank.

Reynolds' eight-page memo, now circulating at OMB, asserts "there is no clear evidence that the existing Consumer Price Index (CPI) as a basis for Social Security cost-of-living adjustments exaggerates living costs at all." In fact, he said, "retired people usually spend a larger share of their budgets on food and fuel than the CPI assumes, and these prices have risen faster than the CPI"

The Reynolds memo also points to a pitfall inherent in the Carter budget proposal to switch the indexing formula away from purchased housing to rental housing: declining mortgage rates would then not cause reduced costs, because the decline would not be reflected in the index. Indeed, OMB tables show that if inflation is subdued and interest rates fall, the Carter change would step up Social Security outlays by fiscal 1984.

Thus, tinkering with Social Security indexing would be a sign of retreat for Reagan's bold economic policy. "Undue political concern with the budgetary cost of adjusting benefits for inflation does not give a helpful signal," Reynolds writes. "If political and monetary authorities are serious about getting inflation down, why would they express alarm over minor changes in the way federal spending is adjusted for inflation?"

Supply-siders Stockman and Reynolds clearly would not. They have bigger dreams on their horizon. They are less concerned by vagaries of indexation on Social Security than in using tax reduction for inflation-free growth.

Banker Reynolds, one of the nation's most succinct writers about economics, concludes his memo by making an unrepentant, unbankish comment that economically-strapped retired people are not to blame for the runaway budget: "There is no unambiguous evidence that indexing Social Security benefits by the CPI does more than barely compensate for inflation ... even if real Social Security benefits of retired people rose during inflation, many of those same people are greatly injured by what inflation does to private pensions and lifetime savings."

Accordingly, leaving the Social Security index alone not only fits Stockman's sheep-and-goats tactical maxim but adds a new dimension to Reagan's economic strategy. It avoids the politically ruinous Republican instinct to conscript inflation's sorriest victims as vulnerable front-line soldiers in the war against it.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Hamburger won't replace Rorschach

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've often heard the expression "You are what you eat," and I've always assumed it referred to one's physical condition. For example, a person who eats excessive amounts of high-calorie foods full of sugar and fat will likely be obese and may suffer from conditions such as high blood pressure or diabetes. Now a friend tells me he read that the expression refers to personality traits, not physical health. Is there anything to this? — Jim

Dear Jim: Your friend may be referring to an article by Dr. Leo Wolman, a psychiatrist, in Omni Magazine. He wrote that people who eat hot dogs tend to be outgoing, aggressive, ambitious and extroverted. On the other hand, those who go for hamburgers are quieter, more conservative and introverted. With or without mustard, however, it seems highly unlikely that the hot dog or hamburger will ever replace the Rorschach.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Every so often the papers carry news about advances in the treatment of a variety of diseases. Last week in our Sunday school class, we got on the subject of leprosy, which is mentioned in the Bible. However, no one in the class knew how widespread the disease is today, and whether any progress is being made in treating it. Do you have any information on the subject? — Cindy

Dear Cindy: About 12 million people throughout the world suffer from leprosy, and about 160 new cases are reported in the United States each year.

As you suggest, leprosy has been around a very long time. According to the Center for Disease Control, a vaccine has now been developed that has proven effective in mice; the next step will be human tests. The vaccine is the result of efforts by an agency of the World Health Organization.

Dear Dr. Solomon: What first-aid measures are recommended for burns? If something serious happens, I know enough to call a doctor; but what can the average person do to help the victim before the doctor comes? — Mrs. D.U.

Dear Mrs. U.: Appropriate first-aid measures depend on circumstances. If a burn is caused by fire (rather than by a chemical, for example) and is minor, cold running water or an ice pack should be applied to ease the pain. This should be continued for about 20 or 30 minutes. If blisters form, medical assistance should be obtained.

If a chemical causes a burn, the area should be washed with cool, running water. If necessary, the person can even be placed under a cool shower and then wrapped in a clean, dry sheet until medical treatment can be obtained. In the event of an electrical burn, emergency medical care should be sought as soon as possible, particularly since the extent of the burn may not be immediately evident.

If the eye is involved, it should be flushed with large amounts of water and then covered with a clean, damp towel. And, of course, medical assistance should be summoned as soon as possible.

The Newspaper BIBLE

ANGELS, ANGELS, ANGELS--EVERYWHERE!

Suddenly, the angel was joined by a vast host of others--the armies of heaven--praising God:

"Glory to God in the highest heaven," they sang, "and peace on earth for all those pleasing Him."

When this great army of angels had returned again to heaven, the shepherds said to each other, "Come on! Let's go to Bethlehem! Let's see this wonderful thing that has happened, which the Lord has told us about."

They ran to the village and found their way to Mary and Joseph. And there was the baby, lying in a manger.

The shepherds told everyone what had happened and what the angel had said to them about this child.

All who heard the shepherds' story expressed astonishment, but Mary quietly treasured these things in her heart and often thought about them.

Then the shepherds went back again to their flocks, praising God for the visit of the angels, and because they had seen the child, just as the angel had told them.

Eight days later, at the baby's circumcision ceremony, He was named Jesus, the name given Him by the angel before he was even conceived.

When the time came for Mary's purification offering at the Temple, as required by the laws of Moses after the birth of a child, His parents took Him to Jerusalem to present Him to the Lord; for in these laws God had said, "If a woman's first child is a boy, he shall be dedicated to the Lord."

At that time Jesus' parents also offered their sacrifice for purification--"either a pair of turtledoves or two young pigeons" was the legal requirement.

General Foods seeks to buy Oscar Mayer

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — General Foods, the largest manufacturer of packaged foods, is negotiating to acquire Oscar Mayer & Co. in a $123.1 million deal, the companies announced Saturday. General Foods is seeking to acquire "all outstanding shares of Oscar Mayer at a purchase price consisting of cash and preferred stock value at approximately $29 per share," the companies said in a brief statement released from GF's White Plains headquarters. Stock in Oscar Mayer, a meat processing company headquartered in Madison, Wis., closed Friday on the New York Stock Exchange at $21 a share, its highest price in the last year and up $3.75 in the day's trading. Oscar Mayer registered record sales in fiscal 1980 but posted its lowest net income in seven years and its first quarterly loss in decades. The dip was partly blamed on the purchase of two companies: Louis Rich Inc., a turkey lunch meat producer acquired in 1979, and Chef's Pantry, a food service firm bought last year. Oscar Mayer officials were not immediately available for comment and GF officials declined to provide further details on the acquisition.

Peru claims victory against Ecuador

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Peru and Ecuador each called for a cease-fire after five days of skirmishing along a disputed stretch of their Andean border, but each reiterated its claim to the territory and demanded that the other recognize it.

Peru asserted Sunday night that all Ecuadorean forces had been driven from Peruvian territory and said its troops "have been ordered to cease firing when the adversary adopts a similar measure and abstains from any act of aggression."

Several hours later, Ecuadorean President Jaime Roldos called for a cease-fire that "respects the territorial integrity of Ecuador." His government admitted the loss of one of its three military posts in the remote, mountainous area but claimed ground and air fighting was continuing for another one.

Both governments sent their foreign ministers to Washington for an emergency debate by the Organization of American States today on the border flareup.

The two neighbors on the northwest coast of South America have been squabbling over 70,000 square miles of territory in the Condor mountain range for more than 40 years. In 1941, they fought a war in which there were more than 500 dead and wounded on both sides. In 1942, a treaty negotiated by Argentina, Brazil, Chile and the United States awarded the territory to Peru, but in 1951 Ecuador claimed it signed the agreement under duress and abrogated it.

Peru's objective in the fighting that began last Wednesday has been to wipe out the three military posts it said Ecuador established in the area last month. "Peruvian forces took possession at 5:40 p.m. EST of vigilance post PV4, completing the total possession and full domination of national territory on the eastern slope of the Cordillera of the Condor," Peru's official news agency said Sunday.

Ecuador acknowledged the loss of its larger Paquisha post, but claimed its ground and air forces were repellling the attack on PV4 "with valor and energy."

The Peruvian government reported Saturday that its forces had driven the Ecuadoreans from the third post, Mallaico, about 12 miles from Paquisha.

Each side has claimed it inflicted heavy casualties on the other, but so far Ecuador has acknowledged only two of its soldiers killed while Peru has admitted to one.

Thousands affected by hiring freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) — A middle-level bureaucrat working for the Federal Bureau of Land Management in Utah quit his job, sold his home and left for the Lake Tahoe region on California's border to take a higher-paying federal job. Half-way there, he received word that his job was gone.

"When he called (us), he was hysterical, alternately screaming and crying," recalls a government official. "We were sympathetic, but he said, 'God damn it, I don't need sympathy, I need help.'"

Bruce Merchant, 30, of Fort Wayne, Ind., and his fiancée drove 200 miles to Oxford, Wis., where he was to start work today at a federal prison. They rented a house, installed a telephone, enrolled her 10-year-old child in school and changed their mailing address.

Last week, when they returned to Fort Wayne, Merchant and his fiancée, who had quit her job, discovered his position had been frozen.

"I have no job, neither does my fiancée," he said. "We're at the government's mercy."

These people and thousands of others have been left out in the cold by President Reagan's hiring freeze, which was designed to symbolize the administration's intent to cut federal spending and reduce the size of federal government. The freeze was made retroactive to Nov. 5.

"The panic, the uncertainty can rip your guts out," says a government official who has taken calls from potential federal employees. "We've literally had threats on our lives," he said, requesting anonymity.

The hiring freeze comes as a shock to those who lost jobs. For those who must administer the program, it is creating turmoil.

"Officials are still trying to figure out how this all will operate," says an Office of Personnel Management spokeswoman.

"We have to sit here and tell these people, 'Gee, I don't know,' when we're asked about jobs," said another official.

The freeze applies to "all departments and establishments and to all types of appointments, temporary as well as permanent, except for certain exempted positions."

Exempted positions include jobs that protect life and property and those for medical, hospital and other health care operations.

The freeze does not affect people who actually have begun new jobs. Nor does it affect the U.S. Postal Service, executive-level jobs or non-career positions in the government's Senior Executive Service.

Hardship exemptions also may be granted under guidelines issued by the administration last week.

Congressman hit, doesn't want charges filed

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Rep. Albert Lee Smith, R-Ala., who needed five stitches in his head after a punch from an aide knocked him into a marble stairway, says he will ask federal attorneys not to proceed with charges today against two fired aides.

"I am disappointed in a man I had high hopes for," Smith said of Lige Richardson.

Richardson, who along with Pete Gresham was taken into custody for two hours Saturday, said he hit the freshman congressman in the mouth because Smith lied about jobs for minorities.

The two former aides are blacks. Smith is white. The incident occurred at a federal courthouse here Tuesday as Richardson and Gresham were returning to Smith's office to discuss why they had been fired moments earlier.

Hitting a congressman is a federal offense. Authorities told Richardson and Gresham they wouldn't be charged until Monday. Smith said he would ask the U.S. attorney's office not to proceed with the charges.

Richardson was angry and "was acting irrational" and did not realize the consequences of his act," Smith said.

Richardson said he punched his former boss because "of the fact he lied to us."

The aides met with R.T. Gregg, Smith's administrative assistant, Saturday afternoon to discuss their involvement in Positive Action for Youth. The program tries to locate jobs for minority youths in an effort to combat youth gang problems.

Richardson said he and Gresham were told they were being fired for meeting, without authorization, with Birmingham Mayor Richard Arrington to ask for his support of the program.

Susan McElvey, Smith's press secretary, said the two aides were fired for repeatedly violating the congressman's rule that they were to push programs without consulting him first. Smith learned about the jobs program from a newspaper article rather than from his aides, she said.

Richardson was an aide to former Birmingham Mayor David Vann and Gresham is a part-time student of religion and philosophy at the University of Alabama at Birmingham.

Richardson said he and Gresham campaigned for Smith thinking the former Mountain Brook insurance executive would help create jobs for minorities.

"We felt we had been used. We did nothing wrong," Richardson said. "And then he fired us."

An aide to the congressman said Smith was so impressed by the two men last summer he borrowed $14,000 to help them clear their debts before they joined his Birmingham staff.

Jimmy Young of Davie, Fla., finds riding a Brahma bull a little more difficult than distracting them as others ride during the Homestead 33rd Annual Rodeo. Brahma riding is considered one of the most dangerous events in rodeo, as the rider must avoid being trampled or gored after a fall. Clowns are used to distract the bulls after a rider falls. Young and the bull parted company moments after this photo was taken and his assistant diverted the bull. (AP Laserphoto)

U.S. may use force to retake embassy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Use of force to retake a captured U.S. embassy is an option being considered by President Reagan following the 1979 takeover of the U.S. embassy in Tehran, according to a top presidential aide.

"The president also has asked for a report on the state of our ability to respond with force if such an attack takes place," Edwin Meese III told reporters Saturday during a visit to Pepperdine University here.

Meese also said the United States will pull diplomatic staff from countries that can't guarantee the safety of American personnel.

President Reagan's declared upon welcoming the 52 freed hostages last week that any future taking of Americans by terrorists would be met with "swift and effective retribution."

But the administration has been vague about what type of response that would entail. Meese would say only that "appropriate steps" would be taken to secure "sovereign U.S. territory" and to adopt contingency plans in the event of an attack.

Addressing reporters prior to a mock courtroom competition and banquet for the Pepperdine University law school, Meese took the Carter administration to task for what he termed its failure to heed danger signs in Iran prior to the embassy seizure.

Bullet hits fire truck

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Authorities here are wondering if there is any connection between a fire in a vacant house and a sniper attack on a fire truck that was racing to the blaze.

Capt. Gerry Hubbard said Engine 8 was responding to a report of a house fire in East San Jose on Sunday night when the bullet struck.

Engineer Les Omans, 37, the driver, was injured by flying glass when the windshield shattered.

Earl Campbell of the Houston Oilers falls for short yardage after being tripped up during the first quarter of the Pro-Bowl game in Honolulu Sunday. Campbell, playing for the AFC, was held to a mere 24 yards on eight carries as the NFC won handily, 21-7. (AP Laserphoto)

Defense plays key role in NFC victory

HONOLULU (AP) — Detroit Lions rookie Eddie Murray was the Pro Bowl Most Valuable Player by virtue of his four field goals, but members of the National Football Conference defensive unit made most of the difference in the game.

With Tampa Bay's Lee Roy Selmon, Dallas' Bob Breunig and Los Angeles' Jack Reynolds among the standouts, the NFC defense held the potentially explosive AFC offense in check in Sunday's 21-7 National Conference Pro Bowl victory.

"Our secondary did a great job and gave the defensive line time to get to the quarterback," said Selmon, who logged four tackles and had two of the NFC's four quarterback sacks.

The NFC held Houston running back Earl Campbell, the NFL's leading rusher the past three years to just 24 yards on eight carries. The entire AFC running game netted only 65 yards on 22 attempts and the American Conference passing attack was generally ineffective.

NFC Coach Leeman Bennett of Atlanta lauded the entire defense and added: "I was particularly pleased with the defensive play of Charlie Johnson, Randy White and Rod Perry.

"There was some outstanding play from both teams' defensive secondaries."

The Eagles' Johnson was in on seven tackles, Dallas' White recovered a fumble that eventually led to one of Murray's field goals and Los Angeles' Perry figured in five tackles.

Murray hit field goals of 31, 31, 34 and 36 yards. He missed on pair of 37 yard attempts, the last hitting the crossbar with just 22 seconds left to play.

"I watched the Pro Bowl on television last year and at that time, I wondered if I could even make it in the NFL, much less the Pro Bowl," said Murray.

"This is the highlight of my rookie year, and it's a nice way to cap off the season. I just hope I'll be back again."

THE OTHER NFC scoring came on a 55-yard touchdown pass from Steve Bartkowski to Atlanta teammate Alfred Jenkins, and a safety when the AFC was called for holding in its own end zone.

"Playing well in the game meant a lot to me, particularly since I had gotten into the game when Tony Hill was hurt," said Jenkins, a replacement Pro Bowler who was the contest's leading receiver with three catches for 91 yards.

"I wanted to prove I belonged on the field it's a great way to end a great year."

Although it gave up 21 points the AFC defense turned in a good effort. Kansas City safety Steve Barbaro saved a touchdown when he re-

Eastern stars shine bright

Key assists by Nate Archibald earn MVP honors

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — It can be considered, possibly, a tribute to the unselfishness of the players, or to the defenses of both teams.

But the fact is that, in a game laden with stars, no one emerged as the clear-cut standout of Sunday's National Basketball Association All-Star Game, won by the East 123-120.

"We played team ball today," said East guard Michael Ray Richardson, representing the New York Knicks. "We had some one-on-one moves, but they were in a team concept."

NO ONE for either team could crack the 20-point barrier. Paul Westphal of Seattle and Dennis Johnson of Phoenix shared scoring honors for the West with 19 points apiece, while Julius Erving of Philadelphia had 18 to lead the East.

"These guys' attitudes are beautiful," said Philadelphia's Billy Cunningham, now undefeated in three All-Star coaching appearances. "They have the ability to adapt to any situation. I just thought the overall attitude was great."

Echoed West Coach John MacLeod of Phoenix: "Billy and I talked before the game about how it's a pleasure to watch these guys play — guys you usually coach against, and now you have them on your team."

About 200 media representatives voted veteran Boston guard Nate Archibald Most Valuable Player in the game — even though Archibald scored only nine points. His nine assists and his playmaking earned him the honor.

CELTIC TEAMMATE Robert Parish, who had 16 points and a game-high 10 rebounds, was runnerup in the MVP balloting.

But the favorite of the 20,239 fans — representing the second-largest crowd in the 31 years of NBA All-Star play — was Cleveland Cavalier forward Mike Mitchell, who scored 14 points.

"I thought Michael played exceptionally well for his first game, and being at home," said Cunningham. "He showed he belonged out there today."

Mitchell was added to the East team after Atlanta's Dan Roundfield had to drop out because of calcium deposits in his right leg.

"You just have to feel great when you hear cheers like I did," said Mitchell, who received a standing ovation when he entered the game in the second quarter. "It makes you excited, and it made me want to play great."

The West took a 27-23 lead after one quarter behind 10 points from Westphal.

But Mitchell's eight second-period points helped the East jump on top 61-58 at the half.

Walter Davis of Phoenix and Los Angeles Laker Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, however, led a West surge that cut the deficit to 119-116 with just over three minutes to play.

Baskets by Archibald and Eddie Johnson maintained the East edge, and a last-second West three-point attempt by Seattle's Jack Sikma missed.

"There are always going to be spurts like that, where you're playing sloppy, because you're playing with new faces," said Cunningham. "First you're dead and out of it, but then you get a spurt and you're back in it."

The key was what we did defensively, with (Philadelphia's) Bobby Jones making a steal and Michael Richardson making a big play."

MACLEOD HELD true to a pre-game vow to give all his players an equal amount of playing time. All performed between 20 and 25 minutes except Kansas City's Otis Birdsong, who played only 12 minutes because he was battling the flu.

Playing time varied more for the East players, ranging from 15 minutes for Mitchell to 29 minutes for Erving. Boston's Larry Bird, nursing a badly bruised leg, played 18 minutes and scored just two points.

The victory was the fifth in the last seven games for the East, giving it a 20-11 margin in the series, and made Cunningham the second-winningest coach in NBA All-Star history behind Red Auerbach, who coached seven winners.

MHS, Lee girls face must battle

When the Midland High and Midland Lee girls meet at 6 p.m. today at Chaparral Center as a warmup to the Midland College-South Plains contest, both teams will be fighting for their District 5-5A basketball lives.

Midland High is on the verge of extinction, already owning a second half loss. And Lee must keep pace with first half champion San Angelo to keep its title hopes alive.

Lee won a narrow decision over MHS in the first meeting between the two teams this year, but later lost to San Angelo in the first half title game.

Lee has won the district's playoff berth all three years of league play, but they are now being tested by the 22-1 Bobcats of San Angelo, who appear safe again tonight since they face Big Spring, winless in seven district outings.

MHS must win this one and hope San Angelo loses twice during the second half to keep in contention. Midland High will be out of the race for all practical purposes if the Bulldogs lose tonight.

The Lee-MHS junior varsity game will be played at 4 p.m.

In another key 5-5A tilt tonight, Abilene Cooper, also 2-0 in the second half with San Angelo and Lee, squares off against Abilene High in an effort to remain in the second half chase.

San Angelo won the first half title with a perfect 7-0 mark, but had close games with both Midland High and Lee. San Angelo will have to face the Midland schools in Midland this half.

Chaps hold rematch with SPC

Midland College returns home tonight to face South Plains College a half step out of first place in the Western Junior College Conference basketball race, and after a seige of the flu last week, Coach Jerry Stone has to feel pretty good about that position.

Not long ago, the Chaparrals were No. 1 in the nation and No. 3 in the WJCC, two games out of first.

MC defeated Clarendon College Thursday by a 75-61 margin to raise its record for the season to 20-2. In tonight's 8 p.m. tipoff, the Chaps will be facing a tall and talented SPC quint that brings a 14-9 record into the game and with a 6-4 WJCC record is running hard for a berth in the regional playoff at Brownwood in March.

In the first meeting, Midland won 62-52 at Levelland, a game decided in the final two minutes of play.

In addition to the Chap-SPC game, Midland High and Midland Lee girls will play a 6 p.m. preliminary. The Lee-MHS girls JVs play at 4 p.m.

Amarillo College tightened up the WJCC race last Thursday by upsetting Howard College 98-71.

Halftime activities Monday will include a McDonald shooting contest the giveaway of Fan T-shirts and the South Plains College Tex-Anns, a precision cheerleader squad and dance team.

Looking back at a week in which MC won over Western Texas and Clarendon, Coach Stone observed, "We're pleased with the effort we got Thursday from Bobby Thompson. Several of our players had the flu and guards Scotty Tutwiler and Derrick Wilson made only brief appearances, so it was up to Bobby to direct the offense. Charles Johnson played well on offense and defense while Puntus Wilson came up with six of his nine field goal tries."

Thursday the Chaps go on the road to meet another playoff contender when they travel to Hobbs, N.M., to meet New Mexico Junior College.

CBS pulls up stakes amidst Crosby confusion

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Golf Tournament, which usually leads the PGA Tour in spectacular scenery and coveting seals, is almost certain to top the season in confusion this time.

For example, there's John Cook. Only after he'd finished play late Sunday did he discover that he had but one more round to play. He thought there were 36 holes yet to go.

And there's CBS.

The confused finish — which will have players completing their rounds today on six different greens on three different golf courses — proved too much of a logistical problem for the network.

So, after providing national television coverage of the first two rain-delayed rounds of the famed tournament, they packed up and left it to the seals playing on the rocks in Carmel Bay, the soaring seagulls and the players, 168 pros and a matching number of amateurs. There will be no national TV coverage of the final round.

There's also the question of who's leading going into the last round.

By the numbers, it's Tom Watson and Brad Bryant, with 36-hole totals of 136, eight shots under par.

Not so, said Watson.

"The real leader is (Jerry) Pate," Watson said.

Pate has a 137 total, but also an advantage. He will complete the tournament at Pebble Beach. Most of the other leaders have to play their third and final round at Spyglass Hill, which Ben Crenshaw says is "two shots harder than the others. It gives everybody the willies."

"Pate has that course behind him," Watson said. "If we get good weather, he certainly has the advantage."

Watson, the outstanding performer in the game and golf's Player of the Year for the past four seasons, got a share of the lead when he sank a 22-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole at Pebble Beach, an hour after the TV cameras had ended their coverage of the tournament late Sunday afternoon.

That finished off a 3-under-par 69 and tied Watson for the dual lead with longshot Brad Bryant, who is seeking his first title in three years of PGA Tour activity. Bryant birdied his last three holes at Pebble Beach.

With Pate were Crenshaw and Cook. Both played their second round at Pebble Beach. Crenshaw shot a 70 in sunny weather and gentle breezes. Cook, a former amateur champion and the first-round leader, took a 71.

"I thought we had two rounds to play," he said with a puzzled look on his face.

But there's only one.

A series of storms washed out the first two days, Thursday and Friday and officials decided to cut the tournament from 72 to 54 holes. The purse was reduced from an announced $300,000 to $225,000.

Bob Clampett and Greg Powers were two strokes off the pace at 138. Clampett shot 71 at Spyglass and Powers had the same figure at Pebble Beach.

Jack Nicklaus, a frequent winner here and current holder of the U.S. Open and PGA titles, moved into contention at 139 after shooting a 68 at Pebble Beach. Former President Gerald Ford was his amateur partner.

"It's just a long, hard, tough golf course," he said. "It's about time I played a good round there."

Tied with Nicklaus were Andy Bean, Barry Jaeckel, Hale Irwin and Larry Nelson. Jaeckel had a 68 at Pebble Beach. Bean, Irwin and Nelson all had second-round 69s — Bean at Spyglass, Irwin at Pebble Beach and Nelson at Cypress Point.

Ben Crenshaw hits from the sand on the first hole at Pebble Beach Sunday to save par during the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am. (AP Laserphoto)
