'Even-handed' look at budget expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan takes his case to the people tonight to drive home his message that sweeping budget and tax cuts are necessary to avoid "economic calamity."

Aides said the nationally broadcast address from the Oval Office, at 9 p.m. EST, would offer a broad view of the economic dilemma, rather than specifics for paring government spending and individual tax bills. The details will come in a speech to Congress Feb. 18.

White House press secretary James S. Brady said Reagan would seek to reassure the nation that everyone will be treated even-handedly as he tries to cut spending and taxes. "There won't be any one, two or three groups singled out," and the thrust will be to "weed out the greedy to help the needy," Brady said.

The speech is Reagan's first effort to build public pressure on Congress to accept his proposals. He made a highly unusual visit to Capitol Hill Wednesday to consult with congressional leaders and, in Brady's words, "grease the skids" for the coming economic program.

The address comes four years and three days after Jimmy Carter, wearing a cardigan sweater, delivered a "fireside chat" in which he asked the nation to make a sacrificial effort to save energy and fight economic problems.

Reagan will take a different approach, aides said. "It is not a share shortages, do without, the glory of America is behind us speech," Brady said.

Reagan spent Wednesday afternoon and part of the evening rewriting the speech.

One source said David A. Stockman, director of the Office of Management and Budget, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of Reagan's Council of Economic Advisers, and Martin Anderson, the assistant to the president for policy development, each had an impact on the speech. Brady said Reagan decided to rewrite the speech after meetings Tuesday with big-city mayors and the Congressional Black Caucus.

"He found, in getting into it, that there wasn't a full understanding of things he wanted to get across," the spokesman said, adding that in presenting his message, the president "is going to make certain it is spelled out."

The point, Brady said, will be that if the nation does not act, "the alternative is economic calamity."

One White House official said the president will deal not only with inflation and unemployment, but also with "a whole series of interweaving factors, fundamental, root deep policy matters, the role and growth of government, the irrepressible way programs have grown."

"All of these need to be explored, so when he does submit his proposals, some dealing with cuts, the people will know why," the source said. "People need to know government has exploded in size — it's spinning out of control — and the negative impact of the taxing system and how that restricts prosperity."

As he nears final decisions on what programs to cut, Reagan is coming under increasing pressure from special interest groups.

But Brady said "the biggest special interest we have is America."

The mayors, black congressmen and others have pleaded that the poor be protected, and the press secretary said "no programs that are safety nets for the poor, the indigent and the truly needy are going to be eliminated."

One congressional source, who asked not to be identified, said Reagan gave the impression that his proposed 10 percent tax cut for individuals would be retroactive to Jan. 1.

Three jailers lose jobs; Criminal charges studied

Sheriff Dallas Smith said this morning he has officially fired three jailers suspended Monday for alleged violation of rules and regulations regarding prisoners.

"The dismissal order went out at 9 a.m. today," said Smith. "Specifically, they were fired for opening and closing security doors."

Smith refused to confirm or deny reports that the men were granting special privileges to female prisoners in return for sexual favors. "They violated jail procedures," he added. "That's all I can say right now."

In addition to losing their jobs, the three men, who were not identified, face possible criminal charges of official misconduct — a Class A misdemeanor which carries a maximum penalty of a year in jail and a $2,000 fine.

"We are talking to the county attorney about it," noted Smith.

Sources at the jail say sex was a major factor in the case, which first came under investigation by the sheriff's department two or three months ago. But, according to one source, the women inmates were "willing participants" and weren't forced into the situation.

Chief Deputy George Thompson, who headed an internal probe of the matter, said today it "went dead until a letter intercepted at the jail three days ago" prompted reopening the investigation.

The letter was written by a female prisoner at the jail and was intended for a former jail inmate who is now in prison at Huntsville, according to sources, who said the letter implicated the men in "certain acts of misconduct."

"The letter provided some substance to the rumors we'd been hearing," said Smith, who added that the "procedure violations" weren't ongoing, but apparently occurred on a periodic basis in November and December of last year.

Technically, the three former jailers weren't certified police officers. Instead, they were "correctional officers," one of whom was attending officer certification school.

Smith said he planned to hold a press conference on the matter in the next day or two.

Budget issue above GOP call of duty

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans, most of whom were elected on pledges to cut federal spending, are lining up to make a little history by voting to raise the government's debt ceiling.

It's not unusual for the ceiling to be raised. That's done almost every year. What is unusual is for a majority of the Republicans in the House to be supporting the move. That hasn't happened since 1973.

But that was the case as the House arranged a vote this afternoon on President Reagan's bill to increase the government's borrowing authority by $50 billion to $985 billion.

Leaders were predicting more than half the 191 Republican members would vote for the bill. For many of them, that would be a career first.

In the Senate, meanwhile, Democrats accused Republicans of "conscienceless" politics on the issue and forced a delay on the vote until Friday.

Not since Nov. 7, 1973, has a majority of House Republicans voted in favor of increasing the debt limit. The Carter administration's final such request, last June 1, was rejected 154-0 by GOP House members.

The House Democratic Study Group has noted that the GOP action "forced House Democrats to carry the political burden of passing debt bills which keep the federal government operating."

Now that the GOP controls the White House, the word was passed to Republicans that their help will be needed if the new president is spared an embarrassing defeat.

Unless the debt ceiling is raised within the next few days, the government will be without borrowing authority. Raising the ceiling gives the Treasury power to borrow to pay for programs already enacted by Congress.

A lawmaker can vote for the spending programs he favors, oppose raising the debt ceiling and portray himself as fighting government spending. This became a bitter issue in several congressional campaigns last year when Republican challengers cited Democratic votes for raising the debt limit as evidence of fiscal irresponsibility.

"It was totally demagogic the way they used this, totally conscienceless," one of the targets, Senate Democratic Whip Alan Cranston of California, told reporters Wednesday.

Citing that issue as one reason they lost control of the Senate to Republicans, Democrats announced Wednesday they will withhold their votes from the debt bill until they have assurances that most Republicans will support the measure.

"We are not going to pass this debt limit increase with a majority of Democrats and a handful of Republicans," said Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd. "We cannot continue to allow the Republicans to distribute their irresponsible and distorted campaign propaganda on this issue."

Byrd raised the issue when President Reagan met with House and Senate leaders later in the day. After that session, Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker predicted a vast majority of the 53 GOP senators will support the bill.

Baker agreed to another Democratic demand, that the Senate vote on the measure be delayed until Friday to give senators time to weigh the economic address Reagan will make tonight.

At the Capitol meeting with Reagan, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill told the president he understands the problem facing Republicans on the debt limit issue. "I appreciate how hard it is to move from the role of an obstructionist," O'Neill said.

Republican lawmakers deny that a past vote against raising the ceiling was a politically motivated obstructionist move.

Housing money coming through

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Not only has all the money in the third housing bond issue been reserved, but money for some of the approved applications is coming through this week, Harry Clark told members of the Housing Authority of the City of Midland on Wednesday.

Clark, who is chairman of the Housing Authority and also the Midland County Housing Finance Corporation, said that 229 loans had been made during the third bond issue. Combined with the previous city-sponsored revenue bond program and another county program, 1,230 house purchases have been funded through the project, said Clark.

Average mortgage in the recent issue was $56,000. It's about $4,000 higher than the average mortgage in the first county program of $52,000 and $8,000 more than the city program in December 1979 of $44,000.

Clark also pointed out that more than 50 percent of the money went for new construction, while the other two issues showed that a majority of the money was directed toward previously-owned houses.

He attributed the difference to a lesser amount of previously-owned homes available and a greater demand for new homes. "To get what they wanted, they had the homes built," Clark said.

"The demand is still strong for housing money. All five lending participants have waiting lists," he added.

The non-profit corporation is examining a new law that would allow more bond issues, but with restrictions. One regulation is that people couldn't apply for the money if they had owned a house within the last three years, according to Clark.

Another one would limit Texas to only $400 million in bond issues. Considering that Midland has had $75, million in revenue bonds for the three programs, and figuring in the share that would be taken by large cities, Midland wouldn't get much money, Clark said.

"Midland is the only town in Texas to have had three bond issues," he added.

The Housing Authority, meeting in City Hall Council Chambers, revised the Broad Range of Income Policy to make it come in line with revised Admission Income Limits.

The agency recently had upped the income limit to $10,550 for one person and $12,100 for a two-member family unit. Most of the Hillcrest Manor residents still fall in the bottom income range. Clark said 53 out of 100 units are occupied by persons making below $5,000 a year. And occupants in 89 units make less than $6,900.

Hillcrest Manor is an apartment complex for low income elderly and Klan learning guerrilla tactics near Fort Worth

HOUSTON (AP) — Two men claiming to be commissioned Army officers are teaching guerrilla warfare tactics to Ku Klux Klan members at a mobile paramilitary camp outside Fort Worth, a Houston television newsmen said today.

Louis Beam, Grand Dragon of the Texas KKK, allowed KPRC-TV newsmen Dan Molina, cameraman John Treadgold and a Rice University film crew to watch 25 Klansmen from age 20 to 50 learn hand-to-hand combat.

Molina said the group rented a van and then met Beam last Sunday at a hotel near Fort Worth.

"When the group arrived at the secluded campsite, Molina said two men introduced as commissioned Army officers "were taking the troops through various kinds of tactics."

Solar energy not yet economical

Use of solar energy to help generate electricity for Texas Electric's customers appears technically possible, but not yet economically practical, a nine-month study has shown.

The study of the feasibility of partly converting a Texas Electric gas-fueled generating unit into a solar-powered system was done by TESCO and Rockwell International under a contract with the U.S. Department of Energy.

"The study tells us that electricity from this solar-powered system would be at last four to five times as expensive as electricity would be if we continued to use natural gas in our existing plants," said TESCO President Bill Marquardt.

"We remain interested in the development of solar energy for use in generating electricity, but we will have to defer any actual construction of a solar system until it becomes more cost competitive with available alternative fuel sources," he said.

The study dealt with the possibility of partly converting a unit at TESCO's Permian Basin plant near Monahans to solar power. The solar system could provide a maximum 50,000 kilowatts of generating capacity or about 45 percent of the present 115,000-kilowatt capacity of the unit.

If the solar system had been built in 1980, Marquardt said, it would have cost $112 million. By 1985, when completion would be projected, anticipated inflation would raise the cost to $176 million.

Those costs would be higher than the costs of any fuel that would be saved, he said. The study shows that if the solar system were able to continue operating 30 years, it would save $104 million worth of natural gas fuel. "The fuel cost savings would not outweigh construction costs, and therefore the solar system would not save our customers' money on their electric bills," Marquardt said.

The largest single expense item in the project would be the cost of the half-square-mile of "heliostats," or mirrors, which would concentrate sunlight on liquid sodium in a central tower. The heated sodium would be used to produce steam to generate electricity.

A demonstration solar system, which would be similar to the one considered for the Permian Basin project, has been proposed for construction near Barstow, Calif., as a project of DOE and a California utility. Research findings from that project are to be used as guidance in construction of other systems.

The Barstow project, originally scheduled for completion in 1981, is now a year behind schedule because of delays imposed by Congress and indecision on the part of DOE.

"Any further protracted delays in the Barstow project could result in delays in any system we might build," Marquardt said. "Plus, if the government were to insist on involvement in any project we began, we might face the same kind of indecision and delays which would add to the final cost of the system."

Volcano ready to erupt today, scientists say

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Mount St. Helens blasted a steam plume more than half a mile above its 8,400-foot crater rim this morning as scientists predicted the volcano would erupt today.

U.S. Forest Service spokesman Thom Corcoran said there didn't appear to be any ash in the plume rising 3,600 feet above the crater.

"It's venting but we're not calling it an eruption," he said. "Things haven't changed, we're still in an eruption alert."

Clouds which shrouded the mountain early today were breaking up, Corcoran said. He added that seismographs surrounding the mountain were picking up six to eight seismic events per hour.

The National Weather Service said that low-level winds around the volcano were very light and variable in all directions. Upper-level winds blew to the southeast and west-southwest, the Weather Service reported. Earlier, low-level winds would have carried any ash northwest toward Seattle.

Scientists had issued a volcano alert earlier in the morning.

"An alert means we see enough seismicity (earthquake activity) to feel a strong possibility of an eruption," said Steve Bryant, a spokesman for the geophysics seismic center at the University of Washington in Seattle.

"Seismic data of the last several hours indicate an eruption within the next 12 hours," said Dave Peckham, reading a statement for the center shortly after 5 a.m. (PDT) today. "Seismic and geological data indicate the eruption will be of the dome-building kind of Dec. 27 to Jan. 4."

With the notice from the university, the U.S. Forest Service also issued a volcano alert, notifying 35 local officials and government agencies.

Negotiations stalled in Poland's labor crisis

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Talks aimed at easing Poland's labor crisis broke down in a second southern city and a protest continued in a third today. Some progress was reported, however, in negotiations in three other cities.

The official PAP news agency said the talks in Jelenia Gora between a government commission led by Jan Jablonski and the local chapter of the independent union Solidarity collapsed during the night.

The workers in Jelenia Gora were demanding the resignation of Trade Union Minister Stanislaw Ciosek and other officials. Talks also collapsed in Bielsko-Biala, where a general strike was in its 10th day.

"Of course all of Solidarity is prepared for strike action" if the government uses force to quell the walkouts, a strike leader in Bielsko-Biala said. "That is a matter of course."

Like their colleagues in Jelenia Gora, the workers in Bielsko-Biala are demanding the communist regime fire officials they accuse of corruption.

Czeslaw Kotela, the deputy minister of administration, local economy and environment, took his negotiating team back to Warsaw after talks broke down in Bielsko-Biala.

The strike in Bielsko-Biala has shut about 120 plants and agencies and stopped all transportation. The government says it has cost more than $12 million in lost production so far.

The strikers demanded the replacement of the provincial governor, his deputy, Mayor Marion Kalon and two of his deputies. The governor and his deputy submitted their resignations, but Premier Jozef Pinski delayed action on them and said he would "consider" them.

Despite the political nature of the demands and the government's insistence that it will not countenance political strikes, Solidarity's national leader, Lech Walesa, led the union negotiators at Bielsko-Biala chapter and gave the demands his full support.

"What we are doing here is forced upon us by life. We do not want to go on striking anywhere, but we are compelled to do so," he told The Associated Press in a telephone interview.

"We are not afraid. It is better to fall while carrying one's head high than to retreat ignominiously."

Kotela said the strike was "against the spirit" of the Gdansk agreement that ended last summer's nationwide labor crisis and authorized formation of the Soviet bloc's first trade unions independent of Communist Party control. He said the strike committee would be "responsible for the consequences" but did not specify what those might be.

"The strongest and final measure — a general strike — is unjustified in the case of the issue at hand," Kotela told a news conference before he returned to Warsaw.

In Wroclaw, a sit-in continued at the municipal transportation headquarters. The strikers there were demanding the release of a political prisoner belonging to an anti-Soviet group. A local government official reportedly told the protesters he would look into the matter.

Meanwhile, government and union sources reported progress in negotiations to end a month-long sit-in by workers and peasant farmers in the southeastern city of Rzeszow seeking government recognition of an independent farmers' union.

Telling it like it is

The "war of words" between President Ronald Reagan and officials of the Soviet Union has brought to light some interesting revelations in recent weeks.

It's apparent that there'll be no more of the I'll-be-nice-to-you-even-while-you're-stabbing-me-in-the-back ritual made so famous — or infamous — by Jimmy Carter. That's because President Reagan obviously doesn't believe in living a lie.

On the contrary, the president has begun doing something we Americans haven't experienced for awhile — telling it like it is. Too often, that isn't done. Rather, everything is covered with a fine coat of sugar that, while making what we're devouring taste a little better, hasn't improved the smell much.

Former President Carter was a buddy to everyone regardless of how he was treated in return. He didn't want to hurt anyone's feelings or step on toes. That doesn't mean that his intentions weren't honorable, just that his priorities were out of kilter.

President Reagan went into office with his guns strapped on and shortly thereafter began firing full blast. He revoked Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin's private entrance privileges at the White House. Then he noted that being a nice guy to the Soviets hasn't buttered the United States' bread. Maybe a reversal of our direction will help to set things straight again.

When a State Department official was asked "What is gained by withdrawing this long-time special privilege" for the Soviet Ambassador, the answer was "What is gained by continuing it?"

What Mr. Reagan was saying, in effect, is why exert the extra effort to be nice if it isn't going to get you anywhere?

And the president hasn't been mincing his words, either, a practice that has ruffled more than a few Soviet feathers. But delicate Soviet feelings should not be a prime concern of the president because, as he so aptly noted, many times while the Soviets are patting you on the shoulder with one hand, they're picking your pocket with the other.

President Reagan is correct in getting tough with the Soviets. Jimmy Carter's style of diplomacy accomplished nothing for the United States. Now it's time to try something new.

A lack of conscience

The speaker of Iran's parliament sounds like a man without a conscience. Instead of expressing one iota of regret over the imprisonment of 52 Americans, he heaped praise on the terrorists who imprisoned them.

In an incredibly conscienceless outburst, Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani saluted the militants "whose action was a turning point in the history of Iran's Islamic revolution."

He also thinks Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini is a hero. Khomeini acted, the speaker told his fellow legislators, as a "world leader with his guidance and directives to the Moslem students, the people and the Majlis (parliament)."

The hostage business was no horror to Speaker Rafsanjani: "The greatest result of the hostage-taking was that America severed relations with us and we tried to rely on ourselves. We have made good progress."

The speaker was talking while 52 Americans were still thousands of miles from home, still living with the painful memories of their 444-day nightmare. We will let the rest of the world judge whether Iran's barbarism and criminality constitute "good progress" and, in the meantime, hope that Mr. Rafsanjani will some day come to understand the meaning of the term, human rights.

Inflation creating problems for numerous Latin nations

Inflation in Latin America is so discouraging that even Brazilians are turning pessimistic.

Remember, the people of that vast South American republic long claimed that "God is Brazilian," by way of explaining their irrepressible confidence that nothing serious could happen to Brazil.

Now though, the newspaper O Estado de S. Paulo reports, there has been a break in the optimism of the Brazilian people. A recent Gallup poll indicated that a mere 38 percent of the population expect 1981 to be a better year than 1980.

O Estado said that "the optimists apparently (are) restricted today to the (hemisphere) countries self-sufficient in the production of petroleum: Argentina, Mexico, United States, Venezuela."

Oil is Brazil's most costly import. The nation must buy abroad about eight out of every 10 barrels of oil it consumes.

Current estimates are that its 1981 foreign oil bill will be around $12 billion. In the Western Hemisphere, only the United States has to import more oil.

But Brazil is the biggest of the Latin nations and it has problems to match. Inflation in 1980, for example, soared to 110.2 percent from 77.2 percent in 1979. That was about twice the 55 to 60 percent rate that Brazilians had been expecting, and amounted to more than double the Latin American average calculated as 53.6 percent. Argentina, too, was way above that figure, but Argentines could afford to be pleased with inflation of only 87.6 percent in 1980. As the newspaper La Nacion of Buenos Aires noted, for a whole decade prices had been rising an average of 140 percent a year. So 1980 was a marked improvement for them.

Unemployment stayed low in Argentina and, as salaries are generally pegged to the consumer price index, salaries, measured in dollars, rose 52 percent in 1980.

Argentina is also periodically lowering the dollar value of its peso. Since last November, the government has been depreciating its currency by 1 percent a month. Brazil, too, has what it calls its "monetary correction" system and it shaves the dollar value of the cruzeiro every few weeks, or when necessary. Most of the larger Latin American countries also are letting their currencies "float" against the dollar. Of the major hemisphere repub-

'New' American hostages risking their fingernails

WASHINGTON — A dissident poet and a journalist were sharing the same cell in a small totalitarian country in the "free world," when the guards threw in a beaten-up leader of the political opposition.

"Maybe that will teach you a lesson in opposing General Caesar's martial law government," the guard said.

"What is the news from the outside world?" the journalist asked.

"The United States has a new foreign policy," the opposition leader said. "Human rights will no longer have a high priority."

"No kidding!" the poet said. "What does?"

"International terrorism is going to take the place of human rights as America's first concern."

"I guess that leaves us out," the journalist said. "Or rather in."

The poet said, "I always suspected the United States wouldn't stick with human rights for too long. It never did play in Peoria."

The opposition leader agreed. "I was arrested two hours after Haig made his declaration about the new American policy. General Caesar would never have dared to do it if he thought human rights was still a U.S. concern."

The journalist said, "I can see putting human rights on the back burner, but why replace it with a war on international terrorism? What's he going to do — bomb Rome if the Red Brigade kidnaps a judge, or waste Belfast if the IRA blows up a department store?"

"He didn't spell it out," the opposition leader said, "but I think it has something to do with the hostage fever in the United States. He was enunciating the new 'get tough' policy of the Reagan administration. Haig probably believes protecting human rights is a sign of American weakness, and that showing you're going to be tough on terrorists proves you're a hard-liner."

"It makes sense to me," the poet said. "Besides, as long as Caesar swears fidelity to Washington, Haig feels it's nobody's business who the general throws in jail."

"I wish you would look at it from our point of view and not his. Caesar plays rough with anyone who opposes him."

"I just had a thought," the poet said. "Since we're not going to get the Reagan administration too excited about our plight as political prisoners, why don't we send out word that we're being held hostage?"

The opposition leader said, "That's not bad. Americans get very upset these days about anyone being held hostage."

"But we're not American hostages," the journalist protested. "We're hostages in our own country."

"We'll say we're Americans. This will bring all the media down here and then General Caesar will have to open his jails to prove we're not. Once the American public sees what Caesar has been doing to us, Haig may have to deal with the human rights issue here, whether he wants to or not."

The journalist said, "It's worth a try. I'll smuggle out a letter to Amnesty International saying General Caesar is holding 500 American hostages in his dungeons."

"Haig's going to blow his top when he finds out it was all a trick to get the United States to recognize human rights."

The poet said, "Yes, but for him it will just be his blood pressure. For us it means our fingernails."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Brass hats 'dabbling in the dark arts'

WASHINGTON — Last month, I revealed a Pentagon secret that raised eyebrows from coast to coast. To the thousands of skeptics who wrote in, no, I don't take hallucinogens. The brass hats are, indeed, dabbling in the dark arts.

They are seriously trying to develop weapons based on extrasensory perception. If the research is successful, the next war could be won presumably by casting an evil eye on Moscow.

The true believers are convinced that our national security can be preserved only by spending millions of dollars on such comic-strip concepts as the "hyperspatial howitzer," which supposedly could transmit a nuclear explosion in the Nevada desert to the gates of the Kremlin with the speed of thought.

Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C., for example, is a respected five-term congressman and a member of the House Select Committee on Intelligence. He has advocated psychotronic weapons with the tenacious courage of some death-defying marvel. He has teetered but ever righted himself on the trembling high wire, keeping his balance against the unseen push and pull of mighty interests, inching his way forward a few more yards to his goal.

By Pentagon standards, not much money has been invested on psychic warfare — a trifling $6 million. Rose thinks the United States should be spending a lot more money on these ethereal weapons. "They could make every other weapon obsolete," he told my associate, Ron McRae, urgently.

The congressman is quite correct; the Buck Rogers weapons would certainly make plain old nuclear bombs obsolete — if they should ever work.

One such weapon, it turns out, has been blessed with an Air Force contract. It's an anti-missile system that would throw a time warp over the

Jack Anderson

North Pole. Incoming Soviet missiles would fly into the time warp and explode harmlessly in the past — perhaps blowing up Cmdr. Robert Peary or, if the time warp mechanism was tuned to really high frequency, killing a few dinosaurs.

The National Security Agency, to cite another example, has tried to use ESP to crack Soviet codes. When the agency's computers have failed to break the secret codes produced by the Kremlin's computers, the NSA technicians have enlisted the help of local astrologists and palm readers.

So far, according to my sources, the swamis have been no more successful than our computers. But the Ouija-board warriors are still trying.

Reporting on the bizarre research that goes on in the Pentagon is not without its hazards. Several self-styled psychics have accused me of being an unwitting victim of Soviet success in the field. I am, they say, acting under long-range Kremlin hypnosis intended to persuade the American populace that Pentagon attempts to close the "psychotronic weapons gap" with the Soviet Union are a ridiculous waste of money.

I must confess that long-range hypnosis, like the hyperspatial howitzer, happens to be one of the key weapons in the voodoo warriors' arsenal.

But there are more skeptics than advocates. One critic of ESP warfare, physicist Martin Gardner, characterizes the budget for psychotronic weaponry as a monetary "black hole," into which bad research sucks good money forever. Others suggest the ESP efforts should be classified as "Top Stupid."

The lips of Pentagon spokesmen, meanwhile, are sealed. They will not confirm or deny that the programs exist.

GET A HORSE!: As a freshman member of Congress, Rep. James Coyne, R-Pa., is no big wheel on Capitol Hill. But at least now he can get around on his own wheels, without a chaperon. After driving for weeks on a learner's permit, Coyne finally got his driver's license.

Although Coyne holds degrees from Harvard and Yale and once taught at the Wharton Business School, he has had learning difficulties when it came to automobiles. Twice in recent years, he had his driver's permit suspended by the state of Pennsylvania. He had to be chauffeured around by volunteers during last year's campaign.

Most of Coyne's troubles stemmed from speeding violations — three in the last few years — but one suspension involved an argument over a fine for driving with an expired inspection sticker. He's currently being sued by two youths as the result of a collision last April.

Coyne insists he has learned his lesson — and he recently passed his driver's test. "The three-point turn was tough, but I executed it flawlessly," he said. "Now if I can only get Mom and Dad to let me have the car on Friday nights."

ASPIRIN NEEDED: It's tough enough to be selected for a Cabinet position that the president's top advisers would like to eliminate. But Terrel Bell, Department of Education secretary, will find more specific headaches in store for him.

Not the least is the truly disgraceful situation in the Office of Indian Education, which disgusted professionals have been leaving in droves.

Bell, who comes from an area with a large Indian population, will be appalled at the mess he is inheriting. The mismanagement was systematically covered up by department poobahs who didn't want to rock Uncle Sam's gravy boat.

Cynthia Dwyer held in Iran, John Dwyer Cynthia's husband, Mildred Brown Cynthia's mother

Dwyer's family trying not to get hopes up

AMHERST, N.Y. (AP) — Cynthia Dwyer, an American free-lance writer reportedly tried in Iran on charges of being a CIA spy, was a staunch supporter of the revolutionary movement in that strife-torn nation, according to her friends.

They said she championed underdogs and worked for a variety of liberal causes, from prisoners' rights to anti-Ku Klux Klan activity.

"The idea that she's been accused of working for the CIA is mind-boggling, ludicrous," one acquaintance said.

Mrs. Dwyer, 49, who traveled to Iran last spring to write about the 52 Americans being held hostage, has been jailed in Tehran's Evin Prison since May.

The Swiss Foreign Office said Wednesday she was tried in an Iranian Revolutionary Court on espionage charges and will be sentenced as soon as Monday.

State Department officials, however, said they had been told Mrs. Dwyer was not tried but was given a hearing.

Her husband, John, said Wednesday that "as far as I know, her status is unchanged. I'm neither optimistic nor pessimistic. I'm glad that there has been some movement; that this long ordeal may be winding down, but what the outcome will be, I don't know."

She was one of three Americans who remained imprisoned after the release of the 52 hostages seized at the U.S. Embassy. The State Department said Wednesday that one of those prisoners had been freed.

There is growing support for some action on her behalf, and more than 30,000 people have signed petitions urging President Reagan to press for her release.

When Mrs. Dwyer left her home, husband and three children for Iran last April, she had never written a news story as a professional journalist. She planned to sell articles at home, however.

Friends say she didn't favor radical causes but she did root for the underdog.

"I've always thought her politics are hardly radical left, but more like a liberal, League-of-Women-Voters kind of activism," Elwin Powell, a sociology professor at the state University of Buffalo, told the Buffalo Courier-Express.

"I think essentially she's an individualist. The idea that she's being accused of working for the CIA is mind-boggling, ludicrous," he said.

Dwyer, chairman of the English Department at Buffalo State College, said he didn't try to dissuade his wife when she left for Iran. She had talked about going for a year.

"I think she wanted to see the situation for herself," he said. "I tried to be supportive of her decision, although I was concerned. We talked often about the dangers involved, about the possibility of the unexpected happening."

On May 5, about two weeks after the aborted hostage-rescue mission, Mrs. Dwyer was seized in her Hilton Hotel room in Tehran by revolutionary guards.

Mrs. Dwyer had worked for prisoners' rights and social justice issues after the bloody Attica prison revolt of 1971. Before that, she had worked for organizations trying to win the release of people she considered political prisoners.

Last February, she traveled to Greensboro, N.C., to take part in an anti-Ku Klux Klan demonstration.

A native of Little Rock, Ark., Mrs. Dwyer majored in English at Hendrix College at Conway, Ark. She did some post-graduate work in social studies and briefly attended Radcliffe College in a program for book editors.

She and Dwyer met in Chicago where she was an editor for various book publishers and he was teaching at Roosevelt University.

They were married in 1965 and moved to the Buffalo area in 1967. They have three children, Ben, 14, Dan, 12, and Susannah, 9.

Last 50 years has been golden age of drug discovery

AUSTIN — The last 50-year period has been a golden age of drug discovery and scientists continue to find drugs that can solve an ever wider range of disorders, according to two pharmacy scholars at The University of Texas at Austin.

"We are shooting after the tougher problems today, and the harder problems require a much greater knowledge in molecular biology and molecular pharmacology," Dr. Robert V. Smith, professor of pharmacy at UT Austin, said.

"The problems are harder, but also our scientists are better," Dr. James T. Doluisio, dean and Hoechst-Roussel Professor in pharmacy, added.

Following World War II, Dr. Doluisio explained, from 40 to 60 new drugs a year were approved, while in the 1970s, the number dropped to five or six a year. Dr. Doluisio said he believes we are now entering another golden age of drug discovery as scientists tackle harder problems such as drugs to slow the aging process.

In the first of a two-part discussion, Dr. Doluisio and Dr. Smith will discuss drug discovery and development this week on "The Next 200 Years," a weekly radio production of UT Austin. The program, moderated by Dr. Rex Wier, assistant dean of the College of Communication, can be heard locally on KCRS-AM this Sunday at 6:20 a.m.

Increased government regulation and testing requirements for new drugs have added dramatically to the time and cost of drug research in the U.S. in the last 20 years, the scientists said.

Dr. Doluisio dates the so-called "drug lag" in the U.S. to the thalidomide incident in 1962. Since that time, the U.S. has adopted the highest standards in the world for drug approval, with the goal of minimizing side-effects, Dr. Doluisio said.

When a drug is approved in the U.S., it has been very thoroughly investigated, said Dr. Doluisio. As a result, what used to be two years of research to test a new drug has grown to eight to 10 years and from a $3 million to a $55 million or $60 million investment, he said.

While the goal in drug approval is to achieve an acceptable ratio of good to bad effects, Dr. Doluisio said, "there is no question that we accept different risk ratios for different drugs." As an example, Dr. Doluisio cited the high degree of toxicity accepted in anti-cancer drugs that are used for a life-threatening condition.

The pharmacy dean cautions that while tremendous good has come from drugs, there is no drug that does not carry some risk with it.

Dr. Smith pointed out there is no government subsidy to the private drug industry, which uses profits to support drug research. Consequently, drugs for diseases that affect only a small number of people are not profitable to develop. People in the industry are appealing now to the government to subsidize the development of those so-called "orphan drugs," he said.

Though some very important kinds of drug studies are conducted in universities, the vast majority of drug research is done in pharmaceutical companies, Dr. Smith said.

"In the United States, it is pretty much the drug company who has the resources that can tie the whole package together to present it to the Food and Drug Administration for approval," he added.

The whole process of drug approval is under Congressional evaluation, the scholars note. Dr. Smith said he believes drugs are over-researched prior to entry on the market, and suggests instead that drugs be approved faster and quickly withdrawn if difficulties occur.

"The Next 200 Years," broadcast nationally, is co-produced by The University of Texas News and Information Service and KUT-FM, the university's public radio station.

Sandiford case in jury's hands

HOUSTON (AP) — A state court jury began deliberations today in the murder trial of Kathleen Sandiford, accused of slaying her husband, Dr. Frank Sandiford, a noted heart surgeon, on the night of Jan. 29, 1980.

Defense attorneys, in final arguments Wednesday, said Mrs. Sandiford fired in self-defense to protect her life.

Vickie Daniel leaves Liberty County court after pleading "not guilty" at her arraignment on a murder charge. The 33-year-old mother of three said she did not intend to shoot her husband, former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. (AP Laserphoto)

Vickie Daniel pleads innocent

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — Vickie Daniel, widow of former Texas House speaker Price Daniel Jr., broke her self-imposed silence briefly to deny allegations she intentionally shot her husband to death.

Mrs. Daniel, 33, pleaded innocent Wednesday to a charge that she knowingly and intentionally murdered her husband on Jan. 19.

A composed Mrs. Daniel, who has refused to talk about the slaying, told reporters after the arraignment before State District Judge Clarence Cain that "I did not intentionally shoot my husband."

Daniel, 39, was shot in the stomach with a .22-caliber rifle at the family's ranch home north of Liberty.

District Attorney Carroll E. Wilborn has maintained Mrs. Daniel knowingly and intentionally killed her husband, saying there was an indication of premeditated murder.

But Mrs. Daniel's lawyer, Andrew Lannie of Baytown, contends there was an altercation before the shooting that was witnessed in part by 12-year-old Kimberly Moore, Mrs. Daniel's daughter by a previous marriage.

Lannie also said he would ask Cain, who has scheduled a March 20 hearing to consider pretrial motions, to move the trial to another city because of the prominence of the Daniel family here.

Daniel's father is a former legislator, speaker of the Texas House, Texas attorney general, governor, U.S. senator and Texas Supreme Court justice.

Mrs. Daniel filed for divorce Dec. 31. Daniel's will, filed last week, made no reference to his wife and left all his property in trust for three young children.

Braniff offers anniversary special flights to London

DALLAS — Braniff International has announced a pair of anniversary specials for travel to London during February and March, including free bonus tickets to Hawaii for full-fare passengers and a special $299 roundtrip discount fare.

Braniff is offering the travel specials to mark the third anniversary of its non-stop 747 service between Dallas-Fort Worth and London and the 10th anniversary of its non-stop flights to Honolulu.

Higher airline fares expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Passengers on the nation's airlines can expect to pay higher fares to compensate for the sudden jumps in fuel prices that resulted from the decontrol of domestic oil.

The Civil Aeronautics Board on Wednesday gave the airlines permission to increase fares 5 percent beyond the current ceiling until the end of February. The airlines had requested a fare adjustment of 6.82 percent.

During February and March, each first class passenger flying Braniff roundtrip between Dallas-Fort Worth and London, a 71 percent discount from the normal economy fare. To qualify for the fare, passengers must purchase a ground tour package, available from any retail travel agent or Braniff with a three to five day stay in London priced at a minimum of $50 for three days or $90 for five days. Reservations may be made and tickets purchased at any time prior to departure.

Full-fare passengers will receive Hawaii bonus tickets whether their travel terminates in London or they connect to other European cities, provided the trans-Atlantic roundtrip is flown on Braniff.

The bonus doesn't apply to passengers traveling to London on discount fares.

Passengers receiving the free Hawaiian travel may designate themselves or anyone else to receive the free tickets. Once issued, however, the tickets will be non-transferable. They will be good for travel through Dec. 14, except for the months of June, July and August.

Also during February and March, Braniff is offering a new low individual inclusive tour fare of $299 roundtrip between Dallas-Fort Worth and London, a 71 percent discount from the normal economy fare.

To qualify for the fare, passengers must purchase a ground tour package, available from any retail travel agent or Braniff with a three to five day stay in London priced at a minimum of $50 for three days or $90 for five days. Reservations may be made and tickets purchased at any time prior to departure.

Cause of crash undetermined

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Federal investigators say they have not yet determined what caused the crash of a private plane that killed two men near this West Texas city.

Former Odessa law officer Mack V. Henderson, 34, and pilot Samir Makarem, 51, both of Odessa, were pronounced dead at the scene Wednesday by Ector County Justice of the Peace Jimmy Harris.

A Federal Aviation Administration spokesman at Midland Regional Airport said the Piper Aztec was en route to Odessa-Schlemeyer Airport when it crashed just after dawn about a mile southwest of FM Road 1936 at its intersection with State Highway 158. The aircraft skidded 300 feet after it touched down, said Harris. There was no fire.

The FAA began an official inquiry into the crash Wednesday afternoon.

The FAA spokesman said Makarem had not filed a flight plan with the Midland tower and it was not known from where the flight originated. Henderson, a former city and county law enforcement officer, was an unsuccessful candidate for county sheriff in 1976.

Makarem had recently moved to Odessa from Albuquerque, N.M.

Bush to handle federal effort in Atlanta deaths

ATLANTA (AP) — Vice President George Bush personally will handle the federal effort to assist Atlanta in solving the cases of 17 slain and missing children, say aides to Mayor Maynard Jackson.

Jackson aide Angelo Fuster said the mayor received that information in a call Wednesday from Deputy U.S. Attorney General Charles B. Renfrew.

But Fuster said Renfrew apparently made no firm commitment to Jackson for financial help in the investigations, which have focused on the slayings of 14 black children and the disappearances of three others in the past 19 months.

"We all appreciate some questions as to what the federal government can do under the circumstances," Renfrew said in a telephone interview.

"But (Bush's involvement) shows it's being handled at the highest levels of government and a real concern on the part of the administration."

Jackson met last Friday with Renfrew and another Justice Department official to seek federal help in the investigations, which already have cost the city more than $500,000.

While the special 35-member task force set up by Atlanta police to investigate the child cases officially has been assigned 17 cases, the cases of at least two more black children are being studied by police.

Exuberance key to Albee

By ROBERT GARRETT
Hearst News Service

BOSTON—Welcome to the mind of Edward Albee, or as much of that mind as the playwright permits the public to see outside of his plays. "Every once in a while there are people who expect me to be an expert on all subjects, but I refuse to be," Albee was saying. His adaptation of Vladimir Nabokov's novel, "Lolita," has just opened here. "I remind them that I'm not a television personality and therefore don't know everything."

Albee is a well-known "serious" playwright who enjoys putting metaphorical quote marks around the subjects he discusses. Call it irony, detachment, a need to express himself clearly, or, in his own words, "a peculiar view of reality." He spoke genially and wryly, with a sense of humor only slightly askew—hardly the fire-breather or brooder which he says is the lingering public image people have of him.

"That 'angry young man' business is publicity from the early years," said the author of "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" and the Pulitzer Prize-winning plays "Seascape" and "A Delicate Balance."

"I'm not necessarily eccentric. I read, I go to plays and movies and concerts, I eat well. I make love—you know, the whole thing."

He also writes, constantly. He writes at his apartment in a converted Manhattan warehouse or, better to avoid the distractions of the city, at his beachside house on Long Island. And he writes in his head.

"I've got four or five plays up there that I'm thinking about all the time," he said. "If I want to, when I walk I could look in on one of them to see how it's coming along. It's pleasant, actually."

His latest play, one that is out of his head and being performed here prior to Broadway, is a study of obsession which Albee predicts audiences will find "enormously funny—all these people who've got their fists clenched and teeth tightly closed expecting a humorless, dirty, scurrilous play are going to be sadly surprised."

Donald Sutherland plays Humbert Humbert, probably literature's most articulate lecher. Blanche Baker, the 24-year-old daughter of actress Carroll Baker, plays the under-aged object of Humbert's lust. Albee and the producers decided to cast an older actress as Lolita because a girl of 12 or 13 "could be moral," Albee continued. "My theory of art is that it must be useful. The purpose is to hold a mirror up to people, to show them some truths about themselves and try to penetrate the self-protective barriers most people set up. A playwright doesn't have to sit down and say, 'I want to penetrate barriers.' You've got a play in your head and you want to get it out, but you are aware that what you are doing is going to challenge some people's preconceived values. But I hate to talk about the 'proper' functions of art because I start thinking of myself as pretentious."

Prompted to do so, however, Albee will speak on about his philosophy.

"A lucky person, I think, is a person who goes through life with a constant awareness of mortality, and the absurdity and futility, and yet goes right on with exuberance. He's fully conscious of every implication of what's happening, and I think that's splendid. You have to come to the conclusion that there is no protection from mortality, and you must find that interesting. In preparing for one's own death, one could say, 'How interesting can I make the experience? After all, it's going to be the last experience I have, why shouldn't I investigate it as fully as any other experience.' It's living as fully as possible."

sible to the last moment."

"If that means one's end comes by being drawn and quartered, could that also be interesting? Surely, this takes a superhuman degree of bravery?"

"I don't think it's brave," said the playwright. "But I think it's cowardly not to be this way."

"The problem is, you never know when you're kidding yourself. No matter what degree of self-awareness you have, you could be kidding yourself," he said. "You never know when your talent has collapsed, necessarily. You could think you're doing a fine job, but not be onto yourself, and not know that it's time to quit."

"I think some of my plays that have been attacked are better than others more facetiously accepted. I've got a kind of built-in early warning system. You must not be taken in by success, fame, notoriety. When you're violently attacked, or praised, you should stand back and say, 'Hey, what's up?'"

"There are always dangers you'll get judged by certain standards. There are people who want to know, 'Why doesn't he write Son of Virginia Woolf?' I don't think I've gotten a thick head from that experience. You have to keep in mind that things are very seldom what they seem."

Valentine's Day also birthday for Jack Benny

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Here's an early Valentine's Day treat from NBC: The two-hour special "A Love Letter to Jack Benny."

Three of the late comedian's closest friends, George Burns, Bob Hope and Johnny Carson, are hosts of the tribute, which also includes a comedy segment taped seven years ago with Ronald Reagan.

"I had wanted to do the show on Jack's birthday, Feb. 14, which is Valentine's Day," said Irving A. Fein, who had been his personal manager and producer.

"Jack would have been 87 on Feb. 14. And this would be something special for his birthday and Valentine's Day. But the scheduling just didn't work out so we're a little early."

The "love letter" is made up of clips taken from 10 specials Benny did between 1965, when he switched from black and white to color, and 1974, when he died.

"We have some priceless stuff," said Fein, who co-produced the show. "We have some wonderful people doing comedy who'd never done comedy before. Like Gregory Peck. We have a rare appearance by Ronald Reagan, who was governor of California at the time. We have some classic bits that were Benny's."

The show includes memorable appearances by such guest stars as Lucille Ball, Walt Disney, Dean Martin, Don Rickles, Frank Sinatra, Red Skelton, John Wayne and many more.

And his old gang is there too: Phil Harris, Mary Livingstone, Dennis Day, Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, Don Wilson, Mel Blanc, Frank Nelson and Benny Rubin. The creative staff includes such Benny associates as Fred de Cordova, now producer of the "Tonight" show, Norman Abbott, Hal Goldman and Hugh Wedlock Jr.

Although the show is 75 percent clips, Benny is also remembered on the program by his friends. Fein said, "Hope, Carson and Burns were the people closest to Jack. George was his closest friend. George used to say, 'We've been friends for 55 years — because I always tell him he's a great violinist and he tells me I'm a great singer.'"

"When Johnny Carson was a student he used to tape Jack's radio shows for his radio class at the University of Nebraska," Fein said. "If you watch Carson you'll see he patterns himself after Jack — the slow pause, the look, the hand to the face."

One of Carson's first breaks came in 1953 when he was invited to be on the Benny show. Carson then had a local show. The writers had written a routine in which a young comedian tells Benny that everything he's doing in comedy is wrong.

"After Johnny took over the 'Tonight' show he came out to the coast and Jack called him at his hotel," Fein said. "He said he realized Johnny was probably booked, but if he got stuck he'd be glad to be on the show. Johnny thanked him and hung up."

"The next day Jack asked me why Johnny had been so cold. So I called Fred de Cordova and we found that Johnny never believed a big star like Jack would call him. He thought one of his friends had impersonated Jack and made the call as a joke."

Needless to say, Benny was on the "Tonight" show the next day.

'Stir Crazy' year-end smash hit with $67 million gross

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Says Gene Wilder: "My only philosophy in the choice of film projects is the following: I always want every time I work to be doing something I love, and I hope with all my heart that it will be a commercial success."

The two elements converged in the year-end runaway hit, "Stir Crazy." Certainly Wilder loved the material as well as working with director Sidney Poitier and co-star Richard Pryor, despite the latter's erratic behavior. The commercial success is measured by the U.S. and Canadian gross after six weeks: $67,159,885.

"For only three of my pictures have I predicted before-hand that they would be box-office winners," commented Wilder. "I told Mel (Brooks): 'Blazing Saddles' made you a lot of money, but 'Young Frankenstein' will make you a rich man. I also knew that 'Silver Streak' was going to hit big, and 'Stir Crazy,' too ..."

"It's important for an actor to have a hit every third picture or so. The fact that people are seeing me gives me freedom. I can go to a studio with a project and they will give me money on the basis of my last part. You can't do that if your last picture has been seen by 14 people in an art house."

Gene Wilder is inclined to analyze everything: his successes, his failures, his approach to acting, his search for happiness. Those dancing cobalt eyes turn reflective and he launches into a rationale for his actions, past and present. Like many sensitive artists, he has been devastated by bad reviews.

His friend and mentor Sidney Poitier has counseled him: "If what you loved about the good reviews was the coddling, the stroking, then you are setting yourself up for a knife in the heart. Because the bad reviews will come. I know; it happened to me. That's why I don't read reviews anymore."

"Your only criterion should be: 1. Did I like the material? 2. Did I do my best? That is the measure of success." That kind of thinking could help Wilder avoid depressions caused by such mishaps as "Quackser Fortune Has a Brother in The Bronx," "The World's Greatest Lover" and "The Frisco Kid." Wilder is making no predictions for his spring release from MGM, "Sunday Lovers." It's an odd enterprise, a quartet of vignettes connected only by the single theme: what would happen to a man looking for romance on a lonely weekend in a big city. Edouard Molinaro ("La Cage aux Folles") directed Lino Ventura in the Paris sequence. Bryan Forbes directed Roger Moore in London.

Gene Wilder, right, and Richard Pryor express alarm during a scene from their movie "Stir Crazy." In the first six weeks of release the movie grossed over $67 million in Canada and the U.S. (AP Laserphoto)

Naturalized American freed from Iranian prison

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An Iranian-born naturalized U.S. citizen has been freed from the Tehran prison where he reportedly was awaiting execution for six months, but a local congressman says he has not yet been authorized to leave the country.

Mohi Sobhani, a 44-year-old computer expert, was freed early Wednesday on $1 million bond arranged by his family, according to his older brother Morris Sobhani.

The elder Sobhani, a construction contractor in Santa Barbara, said he learned of the release when he telephoned a relative in Tehran about 2:30 a.m. PST Wednesday.

"We call about twice a week to see if they have heard anything, but this time Mohi answered the phone. He said he had been freed about two hours earlier," Sobhani said. "We are just very happy and very thankful."

Sobhani was one of three Americans who continued to be held in Iranian jails after the release of the 52 hostages last month. Another American prisoner, writer Cynthia Dwyer, was tried Wednesday by a Revolutionary Court on espionage charges and a verdict was expected soon, according to the Swiss Foreign Ministry. There was no word on the third prisoner, Afghan-born Zia Nassry.

Rep. Bobbi Fiedler, R-Van Nuys, warned that Sobhani's situation in Iran was still "guarded."

"I am concerned about the safety of Sobhani and his wife until they get on the plane," she said. "He has been released from jail, but he has not yet been given permission to leave the country."

Ms. Fiedler, who intervened in the case at the request of Sobhani's sister Ruhi Weigand, said she worked with Secretary of State Alexander Haig and U.S. Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Los Angeles, to arrange for Sobhani's release.

Mohi Sobhani went to Iran in 1974 as an employee of Rockwell International. He met and married his wife there and chose to stay and start his own computer business when Rockwell pulled out in 1979. He and his wife have one child.

Sobhani had not been heard from since last Sept. 6, when he was arrested on unspecified charges.

Morris Sobhani said his brother was arrested because he is a member of the Baha'i faith, but one newspaper in Iran claimed he was being held on spy charges.

Morris Sobhani said his brother's wife, a Moslem, was permitted to see him only from a distance on visiting days.

Barnhart says red tape can no longer be tolerated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Texan nominated to run the federal government's multi-billion dollar highway construction program says red tape has delayed too many projects and can no longer be tolerated.

"We must, we shall, reduce the amount of time that it takes to make governmental decisions and we shall avoid intrusions by federal government into areas properly the business and the responsibility of the respective states," Ray Barnhart, just resigned as a state highway commissioner, said Wednesday.

The former state Republican Party chairman spoke at his confirmation hearing before the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee, which promptly and unanimously approved his nomination.

The panel's chairman, Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vt., said the nomination might reach the Senate floor for confirmation as early as today.

Barnhart noted that reducing the role of the federal government also could mean that states and local governments might have to bear more of the costs for their own programs.

"If we accept the premise that the federal-aid highway program was created to assist the states in constructing and improving roads that serve the national interest, have we not expanded the program beyond its federal role when we finance, say, the curbing and guttering of city streets in a town in Texas?" he said.

Barnhart said the top priority for the FHA, which spends about $8 billion annually, must be preserving the interstate highway system.

"By the end of this decade a major proportion of the interstate will be worn out if present usage continues, and we know that it shall," he said.

The costly repair problems that face the interstate highway system come at a time when the national highway fund's income is limited.

Barnhart said that in Texas he advocated raising the state gasoline tax used for highway construction funds, but he declined to take a position on whether the federal gas tax should be increased.

"I believe we must rethink the federal mission and the traditional methods of funding," he said. "I suspect that certain construction projects now in planning stages may not meet the test of economic feasibility."

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, endorsed Barnhart as "one of the best appointments that this administration has made."

Tower noted Barnhart's experience on the Texas Highway Commission, saying that because of the state's size it administered for all practical purposes a national highway system.

Officials complete report on buses

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — Federal transportation officials have completed a report on trouble-plagued buses manufactured by Grumman Fibre Corp., but it will not be made public for several weeks, officials say.

The report, given to officials of the Urban Mass Transit Administration on Tuesday, could prompt a full-scale safety investigation into the buses, authorities say. But a decision on such an investigation is being postponed until a new UMTA administrator is appointed, Joseph Marshall, an agency spokesman, said Wednesday.

The buses have been plagued by cracks in the understructure, leading transit authorities in New York City, Los Angeles and Hartford, Conn., to pull them off the streets until repairs are made.

Pat Hurley to speak on world affairs here

Questions of what America can expect from Congress and from President Reagan will be answered by world affairs analyst Patricia Hurley when she speaks here at 8 p.m. Saturday. The talk is being sponsored by the local chapters of the John Birch Society and will be held in the Frontier Room of the Holiday Inn, 3904 W. Wall St.

Her theme will be "No Honeymoon for Correcting Our Foreign Policy Debacles."

A resident of Southern California, Ms. Hurley has lectured nationwide under the auspices of the American Opinion Speakers Bureau, an adjunct of the John Birch Society. She is the daughter of the late Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, who was Secretary of State under Herbert Hoover and Ambassador to China during the months when the post World War II fate of Asia was being shaped.

Ms. Hurley has had access to her father's records. She also is a world traveler who has visited parts of Africa, Asia, Australia, Europe and North and South America.

She is expected to present evidences to show that for years America's leaders haven't put this country first. Her knowledge of national and international policies is reinforced by her close contact with a number of the 20th century's greatest crises.

Ms. Hurley will give her views on the crises in Iran and the Middle East, the Panama Canal treaties, the Soviet arms buildup, the threat facing the free world, U.S. military preparedness and U.S. policies toward Red China.

Tickets may be purchased in advance for $2 per person from Jim Sommer, 563-2282 or 683-8258. They will be $3 at the door.

Senate OK's teacher retirement bill

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Senate Wednesday gave final approval to a bill, sponsored by Midland Sen. W.E. "Pete" Snelson, which will provide a 5.1 percent increase in benefits for participants in the Teacher Retirement System.

The Senate suspended rules requiring a bill to be considered on three separate days and approve Senate Bill 209. The bill, which originally provided a 3.4 percent increase in benefits, will affect those former teachers who retired prior to 1979.

Snelson said the bill will cost $93 million to implement.

"This is a way we can at least provide some assistance to those who have served the state for so long," Snelson said in urging senators to vote for the bill.

The Senate also approved SB 58, sponsored by Austin Sen. Lloyd Doggett, which will give a similar increase to retired state employees.

Both bills now go to the House for consideration.

Valentine's Day recipes in praise of love

"How do I love thee? Let me count the ways."

That simple statement by Elizabeth Barrett Browning begins one of the most romantic sonnets ever written and sets the tone for Valentine's Day, Feb. 14. The occasion remains the most old-fashioned of holidays, an appropriate time for greetings sweet, sentimental and lighthearted.

Legend holds that Valentine's Day was first celebrated in Rome in 270 A.D., when Emperor Claudius forbade marriage in his realm, reasoning that it distracted young men from their military duties. The pagan Claudius was opposed by a romantic Christian, St. Valentine, who ignored the decree and brought lovers together in secret marriage.

Valentine's Day flourished throughout the medieval period when it was believed that the first man seen by a young woman on the morning of Feb. 14 should become her swain, or valentine, for a year.

The day and its associations persisted, inevitably inspiring messages of love, which quite appropriately, came to be known as "valentines."

In Elizabethan England young men attached such messages to apples and oranges which they tossed through the windows of girls not spoken for.

No other holiday lends as much romantic connotation as St. Valentine's Day.

For a delicious way to carry on the Valentine tradition, why not try some of these special recipes to give to your valentine this year?

MINI CHIP SWEETHEART CAKE

½ cup butter or margarine
1½ cups sugar
2 eggs
1 teasp. vanilla
2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
¼ teasp. baking powder
¼ teasp. baking soda
¼ teasp. salt
½ cup milk
1 cup semi-sweet chocolate mini chips

Wax paper-line bottom, grease and flour two 9-inch heart-shaped cake pans.

Cream butter or margarine, sugar, eggs and vanilla in large mixer bowl until light and fluffy. Combine flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt; add alternately with milk beating just until smooth. Stir in chocolate mini chips; pour batter into prepared pans. Bake at 350 F. for 30 to 35 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool 10 minutes. Remove from pans; cool completely. Frost with Pink Buttercream Frosting. Garnish with candied cherry halves.

PINK BUTTERCREAM FROSTING

3 cups confectioners' sugar
½ cup butter or margarine, softened
1½ teasp. vanilla
3 to 4 tbsps. milk
3 drops red food color

Beat confectioners' sugar, butter or margarine, vanilla and milk in mixer bowl until smooth and of spreading consistency. Tint a delicate pink by adding food color.

VALENTINE CHOCOLATE COOKIES

½ cup butter or margarine
¾ cup sugar
1 egg
1 teasp. vanilla
1½ cups unsifted all-purpose flour
½ cup unsweetened cocoa
½ teasp. baking powder
½ teasp. baking soda
¼ teasp. salt

Cream butter or margarine, sugar, egg and vanilla until light and fluffy in large mixer bowl. Combine remaining ingredients; add to creamed mixture blending well. Roll a small portion of dough at a time on lightly floured board to ¼-inch thickness. (Chill dough if too soft to roll.) Cut with heart-shaped cutter; place on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake at 325 F. for 5 to 7 minutes or until no indentation remains when lightly touched. Cool cookies on sheet 1 minute; remove to wire rack. Prepare Decorator's Frosting and decorate as desired. About 3 dozen cookies.

DECORATOR'S FROSTING

1½ cups confectioners' sugar
2 tbsps. shortening
½ teasp. vanilla
2 tbsps. milk
1 or 2 drops red food color

Combine ingredients in small bowl. Beat until smooth and of spreading consistency. Divide in half. With red food color, tint one half a light delicate pink; tint remaining frosting a dark pink. About one cup frosting.

STRAWBERRY STREUSEL CAKE

½ cup butter or margarine, softened
1 cup sugar

2 eggs
1 teasp. vanilla
1½ cups flour
½ teasp. salt
½ teasp. baking powder
¼ teasp. soda
½ cup buttermilk
Powdered sugar
Strawberry Filling
¼ cup sliced almonds

Cream butter and sugar. Add egg and vanilla; beat fluffy. Stir in sifted dry ingredients alternately with buttermilk, beating just until well blended. Spread batter in greased and floured 9-inch cake pan. Bake in 325 F. oven 45 to 50 minutes, or until cake tests done. Cool in pan 10 minutes, then remove to rack to cool completely. Cut a shallow heart shape around top of cake about 1 inch from edges. With a fork scoop out cake to make a shallow well, reserving crumbs for topping. Dust top and sides of cake generously with powdered sugar. Spoon chilled strawberry filling into center. Shower with reserved crumbs and sliced almonds; sprinkle with powdered sugar. Cut in wedges and serve at once, or refrigerate until serving time. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

STRAWBERRY FILLING

¼ cup sugar
3 tbsps. cornstarch
2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen sliced strawberries with sugar, thawed
2 tbsps. lime or lemon juice

In saucepan, combine sugar and cornstarch; stir in thawed berries and juice. Cook over medium heat, stirring, until thickened and clear. Add lime juice. Cool. Makes about 2 cups filling.

RASPBERRY RIBBON PARFAIT

2 packages (10-ounces each) frozen red raspberries
2½ tbsps. cornstarch
¼ cup kirsch
6 ladyfingers
2 cartons (8-ounces each) raspberry flavored yogurt
1 cup whipping cream, whipped and sweetened sliced almonds

Thaw frozen raspberries and set aside 6 whole berries for garnish.

Combine raspberries and raspberry juice with cornstarch. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Stir in kirsch. Cool. Crumble ½ ladyfinger into bottom of each of 6 parfait glasses. Spoon small amount of raspberry mixture into each glass. Add about 2 tbsps. yogurt, followed by 2 tbsps. whipped cream. Crumble remaining ladyfingers over whipped cream and repeat layers, topping with remaining raspberry mixture. Garnish with whipped cream, sliced almonds and raspberry. Makes 6 parfaits.

HEARTY SALMON PATTIES

1 can (7½ ounces) salmon
½ cup fine dry bread crumbs
2 hard cooked eggs, very finely chopped or forced through a sieve
1 egg, beaten
¼ cup minced onion
1 tbsps. lemon juice
¼ teasp. salt
Oil

Drain and flake salmon; reserve liquid. Combine salmon and reserved liquid with remaining ingredients except oil. Form into 4 heart-shaped patties about ¾-inch thick; pan fry in hot oil until golden brown on both sides. Makes 4 servings.

Serving tip: Patties are delicious served with chili sauce, seafood sauce or tartar sauce.

CENTENNIAL CHEESECAKE

1 8-ounce package cream cheese
½ cup margarine
1½ cups flour
¼ cup sugar
1 teasp. grated lemon rind

3 8-ounce packages cream cheese
1 cup sugar
2 tbsps. flour
1 tbsps. lemon juice
2 teasp. grated lemon rind
4 eggs

21-ounce can cherry pie filling

Combine softened cream cheese and margarine, mixing until well blended. Add flour, sugar and rind; mix well. Form into ball; chill thoroughly. On lightly floured surface, roll ¼ cup dough to ¼-inch thickness. Cut with assorted 1-inch cookie cutters. Sprinkle with sugar. Bake at 375 F. for 8 to 10 minutes or until edges are lightly browned. Spread ⅓ remaining dough onto bottom of 9-inch springform pan. Bake at 375 F. for 25 minutes. Press remaining dough around sides of pan.

Combine softened cream cheese, sugar, flour, lemon juice and rind, mixing at medium speed on electric mixer until well blended. Add eggs, one at a time, mixing well after each addition. Pour over crust. Bake at 300 F. 1 hour and 15 minutes. Loosen cake from rim of pan; cool before removing rim of pan.

Spoon pie filling over cheesecake; top with cutouts.

Topping variations: 1) Mandarin oranges and crushed pineapple. 2) Kiwi fruit slices. 3) Lemon Glaze: Combine ¼ cup sugar and 2 tbsps. cornstarch in saucepan; stir in ½ cup water and ¼ cup lemon juice. Cook until clear and thickened, stirring occasionally. Stir in 1 tbsps. margarine. Cool slightly. Spoon over cheesecake; chill.

PINEAPPLE TRUFFLES

1 8¼-ounce can crushed pineapple
¼ cup sugar
3 1-ounce squares semi-sweet chocolate, cut up
2 1-ounce squares milk chocolate, cut up
½ cup whipping cream
2 tbsps. butter, softened

Turn undrained pineapple into 1 quart saucepan. Add sugar and cook on high heat until liquid is absorbed, about 15 minutes, stirring frequently to prevent scorching. Cool. Combine semi-sweet and milk chocolate and melt over barely warm, not hot, water, stirring occasionally. Heat cream to scalding. Slowly beat cream into melted chocolate, blending smooth. Beat in butter, a tbsps. at a time. Stir in pineapple, reserving 2 tbsps., if desired, to decorate tops of truffles. Chill until set in refrigerator, or set container in pan of ice water, and stir occasionally, for faster chilling. Spoon chocolate mixture into 1-inch bon-bon papers, mounding up. Top with reserved pineapple. Chill. Store in refrigerator until serving time. Makes about 2 dozen truffles.

White Truffles: Use 5 ounces white chocolate instead of semi-sweet and milk chocolates, and reduce cream to ¼ cup. Prepare as above. Makes about 1½ dozen truffles.

Note: Chilled truffle mixture may be shaped in balls and then rolled in cocoa powder, flaked coconut or chocolate sprinkles. Or, dip each ball in melted chocolate and chill firm.

Mini Chip Sweetheart Cake or Valentine Chocolate Cookies to say love in a subtle way.

Special gift suggestions for the one you love

Valentine's Day is a day for sharing personal feelings with the ones you care for. Here are some suggestions for those who like their gifts with a personal touch through making the gifts themselves.

● Make a heart-shaped cake by baking batter in 1 square pan and 1 round pan. Position square cake in a diamond-shape. Cut round cake in half and place on opposite sides at top of diamond. Decorate with a special message to your valentine.

● Kids love a special sandwich for a Valentine's Day snack. Beat well drained canned crushed pineapple into softened cream cheese. Spread on whole grain bread, cut in heart shape, and top with a little bright red jelly.

● Does your valentine love a puzzle? Make a jigsaw puzzle by cutting a heart-shape out of a lightweight cardboard. Decorate and cut up into pieces for the recipient to put together.

● Bake heart-shaped sugar or oatmeal cookies and cool. Stir well-drained canned fruit into homemade or packaged frosting mix. Put cookies together, sandwich fashion, with a thin layer of frosting.

● Make a heart-shaped pillow for your valentine and embroider a personal greeting on it.

● Decorate desserts with whipped cream in the shape of a heart.

● Fashion a Valentine's

Day stocking from felt, and stuff it with small gifts.

● Give homemade candy in special heart-shaped gift boxes.

● For a burst of Valentine's Day greetings, write a personal message on a slip of paper and then put the message in a balloon. Have the recipient blow up the balloon and pop it for their valentine from you. Also, a message could be written on the balloon itself for an added touch.

● Are you giving your valentine a ring or some other jewelry item? Make it extra special by making an old-fashioned homemade valentine from construction paper and doilies and attach the jewelry to the valentine with glue or tape.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: Recently you ran a letter from a reader who sent you an "inspirational piece" titled, "Winning Against the Odds." You invited additions to the list of famous people who had succeeded in spite of adversity.

May I add two of whom you have never heard?

Take away his mother when he's 10 years old and put him to work in a coal mine for most of his life. Let him work in ice-cold water to his knees, or put him on his stomach digging out coal from deep inside a mountain, working hard to feed and clothe a wife and six children, and you have my father!

Put her outside before daylight, milking a cow so her little ones could have milk. (She had read in a doctor's manual what children need for good health.) Send her to a clothesline in freezing weather to hang clothes for a family of eight. Watch her apply ointment to cracked and bleeding hands. (She had no gloves.)

Stand near her rocking chair at night and watch her as she holds a baby and a story book, reading to her little brood, and you have my mother.

Then watch this loving couple grow old too soon and die painful deaths from "black lung" and cancer.

The world will never hear about this hero and heroine, but to me, they were the greatest. — MILDRED IN NASHVILLE

DEAR ABBY: AL IN OREGON has become my hero of the week. (He pointed out the error one makes in saying, "I could care less," when the expression should be, "I COULDN'T care less.")

Now, please take a firm stand against the currently popular abomination, "Hopefully."

It is appalling to hear an otherwise well-educated person say, "Hopefully, I'll finish the report tomorrow."

He should, of course, say, "I hope to finish the report tomorrow." — MARTHA, THE GRAMMARIAN

DEAR MARTHA: Right on. E.B. White, in "The Elements of Style," explains it this way:

"This once-useful adverb meaning 'with hope' has been distorted and is now widely used to mean 'I hope' or 'It is to be hoped.' Such use is not merely wrong, it is silly. To say, 'Hopefully I'll leave on the noon plane' is to talk nonsense. Do you mean you'll leave on the noon plane in a hopeful frame of mind? Or do you mean you'll leave on the noon plane? Whichever you mean, you haven't said it clearly." Now I hope it's understood!

DEAR ABBY: The letter from BEEN THERE AND BACK prompts this response. BEEN THERE, who had spent two years in a mental institution and was frequently asked why, offered a terse response that always put off further questions: "Because I'm crazy."

A colleague of mine once worked in a mental hospital. While making the rounds, he would "test" the patient by asking, "Why are you here?" The response usually revealed the patient's degree of reality orientation.

One morning, the psychologist received a response that rocked him: "I'm here for the same reason you are, Doc. I couldn't make a go of it in the outside world."

Abby, it's obvious that not all who are in mental institutions are

"crazy." Conversely, not all who are "crazy" are in mental institutions. — PROFESSOR LEONARD MOSS (WAYNE STATE U.)

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Turn flat to fitted

DEAR HELOISE:

You are so kind about repeating information that we've missed or lost.

Please, will you repeat the instructions for making fitted bed sheets out of flat sheets? — Charlotte end of your mattress, plus four inches (two inches to tuck under for each side).

Then measure the width and thickness of each side of your mattress, again allowing the four inches to tuck under.

Mark the flat sheet with these measurements exactly and trim to size.

On each corner of the trimmed sheet, using the thickness of your mattress, plus two inches to tuck under, cut out a perfect square (example: if your mattress is four inches thick, cut a six-inch square).

Sew the cut edges together wrong side out on each corner (it should resemble a shoe box when completed). For added reinforcement, use seam binding or doubled cloth on the seams.

Make a shirttail hem all around the sheet. Cut four strips of elastic six inches long and fold each in half, pinning one to the center seam of each corner.

Stretching the elastic as you sew, stitch the elastic from center to end on each side, repeating at each corner.

You now have a custom-made fitted sheet that will stay in place, and won't wrinkle on your bed.

As a little food for thought, you might want to make only one end of your sheet fitted, leaving the other end flat.

This way, you can switch sheets from top to bottom, thus making more even wear. When you use the sheet on the bottom, put the fitted end at the head. When you're using it for a top sheet, put the fitted end at the foot.

Neat, huh? — Heloise

HINTS FROM HIM

Dear Heloise: A piece of 1/2-inch thick foam rubber that's 1x4 inches in size, folded over the end of a small board or stick, makes a marvelous brush for those quick painting jobs.

Just secure the foam to the stick with a piece of string or wire and, when the job's done, just pitch the whole thing in the trash.

No mess and no cleaning up of a brush! — Kenneth Stout

KNITTING EASE

Dear Heloise: To avoid mistakes in knitting, I use index cards, or just squares of paper, to write the directions for each row.

One row per card, and the cards are numbered by rows. When I finish knitting one row, I put the card on the bottom of the stack. Row two is then visible. After I knit that row, the card again goes to the bottom of the pile, and so on.

No more eyestrain and lost places. — Sister

Julia Mae

FABRIC SOFTENER

Dear Heloise: I use liquid fabric softener but, alas, sometimes I forget to put it in the final rinse. Consequently, my clothes come out of the dryer with static cling.

Thank goodness I learned you can pour a little of the fabric softener on a damp wash cloth and put the cloth into the dryer with your clothes.

Now my clothes come out great whether I forget or not. — Evelyn

How can I refuse? There are several ways to do it, some professional-looking, some just to get by. I'll leave the decision of which you want to tackle up to you.

Now, if you're carefree and want to get quick results, just take each corner of a flat sheet and tie it into a knot, tucking the knot under the mattress. Believe me, you can't tell it's there while you're sleeping.

If you want a nice finish to your sheets, then try Brenda Rhinehart's method.

Good nutrition is preventive medicine

"Nutrition is preventive medicine," says Joanne Priddy, counselor at a local diet center in Midland.

"Nutritious cooking begins with nutritious ingredients," she continues. "But like it or not, there is only one way to get or keep weight off...and only one way to have your food become your own preventive medicine. That is by going back to the kitchen...and keeping it SIMPLE."

Ms. Priddy add that, "Literally, every day that you stay with your good nutritional behavior, you are reinforcing that behavior for the next day."

Ms. Priddy, along with Carol Miller, counselor, has hosted luncheons at Midland Center for women who would like to lose weight, or who are on a diet.

Persons interested in these luncheons can call 684-5081 or 694-3421.

Here are some sample menus which are served at these luncheons, plus some recipes which Ms. Priddy gives to her clients trying to lose weight.

A VARIATION ON CHICKEN GUMBO

Combine 1 minced garlic clove, 1/4 cup minced celery (or celery leaves), 2 onion slices, 1/2 pound chicken breast meat in a pan with your chicken broth and water. Bring to a rolling boil, lower heat and simmer about 15 minutes. Remove chicken; add 1 1/2 to 2 cups fresh, sliced okra, 2 rings of lemon, and dashes each of salt and gumbo file powder. Cook til okra is done and the broth is hearty. Sliver chicken breasts. Add 1/4 cup green chiles and chicken and simmer for about five more minutes. Two servings for both protein and cooked vegetable for a chilly day or evening.

On the move

NEW YORK (AP) — Many companies agree that shipping a relocating employee's household goods is the financial responsibility of the employer.

Merrill Lynch Relocation Management says 99 percent of the firms interviewed for its annual study of employee-relocation policies reimburse their employees for this expense, while 40 percent reimburse new professional hires.

In addition to household effects, companies often reimburse employees for other items. According to MLRM's study, for example, most firms — 90 percent — allow the employee to move one car at company expense, 62 percent for two cars and 12 percent for three cars.

CHICKEN SALAD FOR SANDWICHES

Chop baked chicken breast fine. Chop 1/8 green pepper fine, two or three scallions/sliced, and minced celery. Season with any of the following: curry and garlic salt; Krazy salt and dill; tarragon. Spike with Hidden Valley or Farm Style dry mix. Stir well. Then add 1 tsp. blender mayonnaise and stir well.

BLENDER MAYONNAISE

Temperature of your ingredients will make a difference in creating the emulsion. Begin blending on low, 1/4 cup oil, 1 whole egg, juice of fresh lemon and 1/4 tsp. dry mustard. (pinch of light salt.) Add approximately 3/4 cup more oil into the vortex little by little. If you need to add more oil to thicken, do so. If your emulsion curdles, add 1 whole egg. If your emulsion "breaks," put in the refrigerator overnight, and blend it again tomorrow.

SHISH-KA-BOBS

1 chicken breast (boned, skinned and quartered) or 4 oz. green shrimp (deveined, skinned and halved)

1/2 onion (cut onion vertical cut, then quarter)

1/2 bell pepper (cut into several pieces)

4 mushrooms, fresh

On skewer, alternate meat pieces, onions, bell peppers and mushrooms. Grill on charcoal or gas grill for approximately 20 minutes. Turn once. No seasoning necessary, lightly salt if desired, after cooking.

GRILLED FISH

4 oz. flounder fillet or other 4 oz. serving fish on diet

Take piece of aluminum foil and punch 7 or so holes in it. Place fish on foil leaving foil flat. Season with butter salt and place on charcoal/gas grill. Do not wrap foil around fish. Cooks in about 10 minutes. Sprinkle lemon juice on fish before eating or leave it off. Good with nothing else added. Don't overcook fish as it will dry out.

EGG FOO YUNG

3 eggs
salt to taste
2 tsp. chopped green pepper
2 tsp. chopped onion

1/4 cup bean sprouts

Beat eggs until frothy. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Pour into hot Teflon pan and brown well on both sides. Makes 1 serving. Calories: 248.

PEACH "ICE CREAM"

1 peach, peeled, put in blender
6 ice cubes
1 tsp. dry milk
1/2 tsp. vanilla
1/4 tsp. almond extract
barley malt sweetener to taste

Blend until it doubles in volume. Could add 2 tsp. oil if this is first oil serving of the day. Makes 1 fruit serving. Garnish with fresh peach on top.

MHS CHATTER

Catoico Court coming soon

By JULIE GUYTON, VICKI MADDEN and KATHY WOOD

Catoico is right around the corner — Saturday, Feb. 14. This special presentation honors seven beautiful girls who exemplify the excellence of Midland High.

Not only do these girls reflect upon MHS; they complement the pride of Midland, which was founded on cattle, oil and cotton. Thus, the name Catoico was derived by combining these three words to establish a long-standing award to the daughters of the people who have Midland what it is today.

The coronation of the queen will begin at 8 p.m. Interested persons are urged to attend. From 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., the youth center will hold a dance.

THE BULLDOGS maintained a lead in the district play-offs as they wrapped up the first half with a score of 80-57 Tuesday over the Lee Rebels. The second half of district play begins Friday against the Permian Panthers. Everyone is invited to come out and watch the action.

THE MIDLAND HIGH National Honors Society has been selling Valentine telegrams during lunch periods. Remember someone you love (or your best enemy) and let them know you're thinking of them (or what you think of them). Telegrams are on sale in the Trophy Room.

RASCO REMINDS all Junior Council and 100 Club members of the following meetings:
Thursday, Feb. 12 — dance set-up at 4 p.m.
Friday, Feb. 13 — dance clean-up at 7:15 a.m.
Saturday, Feb. 14 — set-up for Catoico (all day)
Sunday, Feb. 15 — clean-up at 2 p.m.
The meetings on Saturday and Sunday are also for members of the Student Council.

LEE HIGH CHATTER

Basketball action leads Lee calendar

By JANET LANDENBERGER, MARTHA WENTWORTH and DEBBIE FOSTER

If you missed all the basketball action this week, you missed some exciting games.

Friday night our Rebel Roundballers took on the Eagles from Abilene. In varsity action, the Rebels had the lead from the start of the game, but in the last three seconds, the Eagles made a basket and won the game 65-64. The Rebels played hard and fast, led by Randy Pepper, Kenneth Brown and Alvin Duson.

Our girls varsity and JV won both games this week against Abilene and Permian. High point scorers for the Abilene game were Gale Wilcox, Yshun King, Tracy Hubbard and Sonya Roberts. The winning score for that game was 62-49.

Basketball action this week includes Lee's varsity and JV boys playing MHS at Chaparral Center. Friday night, they play OHS in Odessa. Our JV and varsity girls play Odessa tonight in Chap Center. Be sure to go and support our Rebel Roundballers.

THIS PAST Saturday, UIL Solo and Ensemble Contest for choir was held at Midland College. Results of the contest will be in on Tuesday.

Artificial pancreas problems solved

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — University of California researchers say they have solved one of the biggest problems with the artificial pancreases used by diabetics.

The scientists reported in the research journal "Diabetes" that they have learned how to prevent the persistent clumping of insulin in the small pumps that act as pancreases.

The pumps, which mimic the action of normal pancreases by supplying insulin intermittently to control blood-sugar levels, could eliminate daily insulin injections for many of the nation's 10 million diabetics.

An artificial pancreas could reduce the complications associated with large daily injections of insulin, the researchers say.

Experiments with animals have shown that the clumping, or "aggregation," can be reduced by mixing the insulin with either of two amino acids that occur naturally in the body, the scientists reported in the January issue of the journal.

"Refinement of the mechanical systems for the artificial pancreas has been progressing well, but clinical application has been slowed by the aggregation problem," Gerold M. Grodsky, who led the research, said Tuesday.

The problem, Grodsky said, is that insulin becomes unstable at body temperature and clumps when shaken, as it would be when an artificial pancreas is attached to or implanted in the body.

Working with Jacques Bringer of the University of Montpellier in France, Grodsky found that mixing aspartic acid or glutamic acid with insulin slowed the clumping.

The researchers implanted pumps with a 14-day supply of insulin in hamsters and found that the pumps with the amino acids functioned for the entire period. Pumps containing insulin not mixed with the amino acids failed after two days.

A number of researchers are working on solving the clumping problem, and Grodsky is not the first to report a solution.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Flashes for real

Dear Dr. Solomon: I remember hearing my mother complain of hot flashes when she was in her menopause, and I always wondered what she meant. Now I think I'm finding out from first-hand experience. Can you explain what causes this uncomfortable sensation, and whether anything can be done about it? — Mrs. T.H.

Dear Mrs. H.: The hot flashes that menopausal women complain about seem to be related to the effect of decreased estrogen on the autonomic nervous system, which causes the capillaries in the skin to open suddenly. This, in turn, results in a rush of blood that causes flushing, a wave of heat, and perspiring. Hot flashes that occur at night often are referred to as night sweats. When the heat and sweat are trapped under a blanket, for example, the person may wake up feeling clammy and cold and have difficulty falling asleep again.

Hot flashes may occur several times a day or only once a month, and they last only a few minutes at a time. Although they may cause embarrassment, they are not dangerous. The best way to handle them is to try to be as comfortable as possible. For example, wearing lower necklines and using cotton clothing will help the heat escape.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Some time ago you mentioned a male contraceptive that the Chinese were working on. I don't recall the name of the drug, but I'd like to know if there have been any further developments in this area. — Mr. D.H.

Dear Mr. H.: The drug to which you refer is called gossypol, and it is derived from cottonseed oil. It has now been tested in 8,000 men, and reports suggest that it is almost 100 percent effective. However, it has not been made available to the public because of concern about adverse side effects, including permanent sterility and impotence. Other less serious side effects include changes in appetite, both increases and decreases, and dryness of the mouth. In most men fertility was restored about six months after they stopped taking the drug, although in some instances it took up to two years.

Despite its apparent effectiveness as a contraceptive, gossypol will have to be modified to eliminate its more serious side effects before it can be made generally available.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My firm is temporarily assigning me from our home office, which is located in a medium-sized city, to a branch office in one of our larger metropolitan areas. The larger city is notorious for its air pollution, and I will be there about one month. I'm not a worrier, but I'm wondering if anyone has ever attempted to evaluate the adverse health effects of exposure to polluted air for a brief period of time. — Andy

Dear Andy: You can breathe easy. The short-term effect of breathing polluted air generally is mild. A study of volunteers in two communities by William S. Linn, of the University of Southern California School of Medicine, Los Angeles, revealed only mild respiratory disturbance among those exposed to polluted air for brief periods of time.

'Hit man' prevents murder attempts

CHARLOTTE, Mich. (AP) — An undercover detective who says he foiled two men's attempts to kill their wives apparently plays the part of hired killer with all the grit the role requires.

For the second time in Sgt. John Fiedler's 16 years with the Michigan state police, his portrayal of a "hit man" has thwarted an alleged murder plot.

"I told them I was from Detroit," he said of the two suspects in the latest case, an anesthesiologist and a handyman.

"All his men come from Detroit," he said. "Everybody knows that."

Fiedler alleges the two men hired him to kill their wives in a package deal. The doctor, "a very likeable, charismatic individual," apparently was concerned about the result of a divorce settlement, but "hate" permeated the case of the other suspect, Fiedler said.

"They did some real stupid things. They didn't realize they were talking to a policeman," Fiedler said. "They did all the right things if they were talking to a killer."

Fiedler said he agreed to a $15,000 payment for the doctor's wife and was still dickering over the second contract, but expected it to be about a $3,000 job.

Dr. Robert Arthur Guild, 46, and Gerald Lynn McKenzie, 43, of Lansing, who police said worked on occasion at Guild's farm in Mason, were arraigned Monday.

Eaton County District Judge Kenneth Hansen set bond for each at $50,000. Guild posted bond Monday night and was released but McKenzie remained in the county jail. Both face a hearing Feb. 18 to determine if they will stand trial.

Guild is charged with conspiracy to murder his estranged wife, Susan Mae Guild of Albertville, Ala., inducing someone to murder, and possession of a firearm during a felony.

McKenzie faces the conspiracy and inducement charges involving Mrs. Guild, in addition to a count of attempting to induce the murder of his wife, Judy McKenzie of Lansing.

The conspiracy and inducement charges carry maximum penalties of life in prison.

McKenzie also was sought as a fugitive on a felony-fraud warrant issued Dec. 21 in Lansing involving rental property, police said.

Fiedler said state police learned through an informant that McKenzie was trying to hire a killer on Guild's behalf.

The officer said he met McKenzie at a Lansing-area motel Jan. 26 and was asked to take care of Mrs. McKenzie too.

"The suggestion was made that she might be shot in a house burglary, or run over by a car," he said.

The two suspects were arrested without incident last Friday after Fiedler met Guild for the first time and allegedly accepted $135 "up front."

Five years ago, Fiedler said, he was "hired" for $500 by a woman in Erie, Mich., who wanted her boyfriend killed. The woman eventually pleaded guilty to a reduced charge, he said.

"Somehow, I just convince them that I could do what I tell them I would do," said Fiedler, 45.

Outlaw's marker missing

FORT SUMNER, N.M. (AP) — The tombstone of famous outlaw Billy the Kid is missing from its gravesite in this eastern New Mexico community, where the Kid was shot by Sheriff Pat Garrett in 1881.

"They got it again," said Alice Cleaver, dispatcher at the DeBaca County sheriff's office.

"We teletyped it out to law enforcement agencies and, hopefully, we can get this back," she said Tuesday.

Ms. Cleaver said someone apparently used a crowbar to break through the chainlink fence that surrounds the grave of William H. Bonney, known as Billy the Kid, at the Billy The Kid Museum.

The tombstone was reported missing Monday. Six years ago, it was stolen and recovered, Ms. Cleaver said.

Powell contradicts Reagan view

By VIC OSTROWIDZKI
Hearst News Service
Washington — Jody Powell, former President Carter's press secretary, took issue Tuesday with President Reagan's criticism of the hostage negotiations, saying that at no time did the talks that led to the release of the 52 Americans held captive by Iran.

The Hearst Newspapers, Powell said that neither Reagan nor any of his closest aides had ever indicated "they would prefer that we end the process of negotiation and allow them to settle the crisis by some other means after they took of Powell, who is helping Carter write a book and is commuting between Washington and Plains, Ga., said that Reagan on Sept. 13 endorsed three of the four negotiating positions which had been presented or proposed by Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini a day earlier.

"Secondly," Powell went on, "throughout the U.S. would not negotiate until the hostages were released. "And then we violated that," Reagan said. "And we went into negotiations. But it was always negotiating the other fellow's demands. It seems to me that way back there, someplace, we should have had a demand, also... that said, you want to talk about our demands, here's the price that we put on your keeping them."

"Let me add that there should be no delay in freeing the hostages with any thought by Iran that it might get better terms after the election in November," he said. Sounding somewhat embittered, Powell said he found himself "a little intrigued by the idea that President Carter should have picked up the phone

Panel stunned by sexual abuse tale

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Dallas policeman has stunned a House committee with accounts of children who became, in effect, sexual playthings of their parents.

One member of the House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee was ready to send to the House floor immediately Gov. Bill Clements' bill raising penalties for rape, sexual abuse and injury of children.

The committee wanted more time to study the bill and voted 8-1 Tuesday to send it to a subcommittee, but with orders to bring the measure back on Feb. 17.

Detective Tom Sewell of the Dallas Police Department's juvenile section said he had investigated a case in which a mother watched as her husband forced their children to drink his semen.

"I didn't know people did this sort of thing to their children. The seven-, eight- and nine-year-olds that we see misused in their homes to an extent you can't believe. We see so much oral sodomy... it almost becomes commonplace," said Sewell, a 26-year veteran of the police force.

He read aloud the confessions of a Dallas couple who are serving 20-year sentences — the maximum — for sexually abusing the woman's 11-year-old daughter.

The woman said the girl had been compelled to have intercourse with her stepfather and to perform homosexual acts with her. "When my mother gets tired of having intercourse with my daddy, he makes me have intercourse with him," the girl's statement said. "Twenty years! With... early parole and time off for good behavior, this is not enough," Sewell said. "There are cases that deserve punishment. Under the present law, justice cannot be adequately served."

Clements' bill increases the maximum punishment for sexual abuse or rape of a child from 20 years to life and the minimum penalty from two years to five years. It also raises the maximum prison term for indecency with a child from 10 to 20 years and for injury to a child from 20 years to life in aggravated cases.

A KDFW-TV series on child abuse caught the governor's eye, and a videotape was shown to the committee.

"The youngest child raped in Dallas County was two months old," said investigative reporter Tom Steyer, who did the series.

Kaiser Aluminum planning lawsuit against ABC, '20-20' magazine

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp. says it plans to bring suit against ABC, contending the television network reneged on its agreement to run a Kaiser rebuttal on its "20-20" program. ABC News had agreed to allow Kaiser four minutes of unedited response time after the company objected to a story on the news program April 13. The story charged Kaiser had intentionally marketed unsafe aluminum residential wiring and withheld information on the product's performance. A spokesman for the Oakland-based company said Kaiser was informed Tuesday by a senior executive of ABC News that the network had changed its mind and would not broadcast a rebuttal on "20-20." Instead, the network said it would consider airing the rebuttal on its late-night "Nightline" program.

"We believe that 'Nightline,' not '20-20,' is the appropriate forum for a full airing of both the subject of aluminum wiring safety and the broader issues of 'response time' and 'access,'" said Richard Wald, senior vice president of ABS News.

Hearst, ABC create service to provide cable programs

NEW YORK — American Broadcasting Companies, Inc., and The Hearst Corporation have formed a joint venture, Hearst/ABC Video Services, to produce and supply programming for specialized cable network services. The joint venture will create, own and operate these services as an independent subsidiary of both corporations.

The announcement was made jointly today by Frank A. Bennack Jr., president and chief executive officer of The Hearst Corporation, and Leonard H. Goldenson, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, ABC, Inc.

The initial networks to be created by Hearst/ABC Video Services are a channel featuring specialized programming for women, using the working title BETA, and the Alpha Repertory Television Service (ARTS), the performing and visual arts channel announced by ABC in December. Additional networks are contemplated for the future.

In making the joint announcement, Goldenson and Bennack said: "Hearst/ABC Video Services is the product of many months of research and joint planning by our two companies. Its creation represents a significant combined entry of two major entertainment and information companies into cable television programming.

"This venture is both a natural extension and a unique union of ABC's video expertise and Hearst's long-established print resources. We join many others in the belief that the cable television industry offers new opportunities for entertainment, information and educational services to the home, and we believe Hearst/ABC Video Services is particularly well positioned to take advantage of cable's potential."

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, February 6, 1981
YOUR BIRTHDAY TO-DAY: President Ronald Reagan—who is destined for a very important place in history—shares this birthday with you. Others born on this day include Zsa Zsa Gabor, Rip Torn and the late Ramon Navarro. For everyone celebrating a birthday today, 1981 will be a year of very hard work crowned with outstanding achievement. Travel and events at a distance will play a key role in career, business decisions. You are eager to see things for yourself instead of relying on secondhand reports. Highly personable and generous, you have many friends, well-wishers. Be careful not to give mate cause for jealousy!

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Stick to a well-planned schedule to turn out a maximum amount of work. Small windfall will brighten your outlook. Long-range business goals can be helped by certain social activities.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Insights gained through observation can be the key to greater business success. Letter or phone call is a source of cheer. Loved one may behave in puzzling fashion. Play a waiting game!

GEMINI (May 21-June

20): Web of confusion could put you in an embarrassing position. Be discreet or you could jeopardize your standing with loved one. Avoid involvement with trendy new social group.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): This should be a hectic but profitable day. Know it and pace yourself accordingly! Finish paperwork before leaving the office. Evening social engagement gets the weekend off to a flying start!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Today can be the beginning of a very productive period. Higher-up is in supportive mood. Put original ideas into action! An old grievance may soon be settled in your favor.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Stick to your priorities and make every minute count! Mate or partner is receptive to your plans. Be cautious when describing or evaluating stranger's actions. Money picture shows considerable improvement.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Self-promotion may be essential now where career or business is concerned. Quiet work environment is excellent for tackling complex project. Double-check all figures. Loved one shares happy secret.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov.

21): A good time to purchase some new items for your home. The domestic scene should be pleasant but uneventful. Invite close friends to join the family circle for a relaxing, inexpensive evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A new career opportunity could appear on the horizon. Be on your best behavior at place of employment. Check with loved one before making final decision regarding a financial commitment.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A sense of humor helps alleviate tension at work. If project is to be completed on time, those with cold feet will have to be urged forward. Hesitation could cause a loss of confidence.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Those special qualities that make you stand out in a crowd receive new attention today. Insure your future financial security by assuming a new leadership role. Associates are eager to join forces.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Special ties, alliances pay off royally now. New work methods may have to be adopted if profits are to increase. Something that has eluded you in the past now moves into reach.

have brought home the contract with a simple safety play. Since he can afford to give up one trick, we suggest that declarer should have led a low diamond from dummy at trick two!

East will presumably win the ten and let's suppose he returns a trump (best). Declarer wins in dummy, ruffs a diamond, ruffs a spade with the ace of trumps and ruffs another diamond. Now he draws the outstanding trumps in two rounds, crosses to the king of hearts and ruffs a third diamond with this last trump. Declarer can still get back to the table with the ace of hearts, and when the king of diamonds drops under the ace, the queen of diamonds is the twelfth trick.

True, if diamonds are 4-1, declarer has presented the opponents with a trick for nothing. But when you are in an excellent slam, 20 or 30 points is a small price to pay to assure your contract.

Vols upset; Irish, Deacons, Demons post wins

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

At the start of the Southeastern Conference basketball season, Tennessee Coach Don DeVoe knew there would be some bad nights.

But he didn't know how bad. "Ole Miss just gave us a good thrashing tonight," said DeVoe after his 11th-ranked Volunteers were routed 71-52 by Mississippi Wednesday night. "They showed us how to play basketball. They played defense the way all coaches hope their teams would."

DeVoe was not figuring on Mississippi giving him such trouble. Kentucky and Louisiana State were supposed to be the teams to beat in the conference, not Ole Miss. "They just did a good job of setting the tempo from the start and we did not do a good job of anything," said DeVoe after losing his fourth SEC game in 11 starts.

IF MISSISSIPPI looked like Kentucky or LSU to DeVoe, it was not surprising. As Ole Miss Coach Bob Weltlich pointed out: "This may have been the best we've played at both ends of the court since I've been here." (Weltlich has been Mississippi's coach for five seasons).

Both coaches agreed that defense was the deciding factor in the game.

"The real key was that we denied (center Howard) Wood the ball inside," said Weltlich. "We've never done that before."

Wood center has averaged 11.9 points a game, but scored just eight points against Mississippi. Also, Dale Ellis, the Vols' leading scorer with a 17.5 average, had only nine points Wednesday night.

In other games involving the ranked teams, No. 3 DePaul stopped the University of Detroit 69-58; No. 1 LSU turned back Vanderbilt 86-81; No. 6 Kentucky walloped Auburn 102-71; No. 8 Wake Forest turned back No. 13 Maryland 67-60 and No. 9 Notre Dame edged La Salle 60-59.

Elston Turner scored 26 points to lead the Mississippi offense. Ole Miss took the lead for good with 10:32 left in the first half when Turner hit a slam dunk to put the score at 18-16. That shot also made Turner the third highest scorer in Ole Miss history with a career total of 1,567 points. Mississippi, now 10-9 overall and 5-6 in league play, also got 16 points from Carlos Clark, Tennessee, 15-1 overall, was led by Gary Carter's 11 points.

SKIP DILLARD scored 30 points to lead DePaul over Detroit. The Blue Demons never trailed, opening an 8-1 lead on three straight baskets by Dillard, who rang up 16 points in the first half. The Blue Demons began applying full-court pressure at the four-minute mark and converted a slew of Titan turnovers to steadily widen their lead.

Forwards Guy Morgan and Alvis Rogers sparked a late surge in the second half to lead Wake Forest over Maryland. The Demon Deacons held a 36-55 lead when they scored nine straight points in two minutes late in the game to settle the issue.

Jim Johnstone led the winners with 16 points, while Rogers and Morgan scored 15 each. Maryland was led by Ernest Grahams' 19 points.

"It was a team victory and we are very, very pleased with the win," said Wake Forest Coach Carl Tacy.

THE TRIUMPH improved Wake Forest's record to 17-2, 5-2 in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Maryland lost its fifth game in 20 decisions and holds a 5-3 ACC mark.

"We played good at times but let it get away," said Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell. "They did a good job taking the ball inside and hurt us a lot."

Forward Durand Macklin scored 20 points and hauled down 15 rebounds to lead LSU past SEC foe Vanderbilt. The victory kept the Tigers' record unblemished in the conference at 11-0. The Tigers, 20-1 overall, became the first Division I team to hit the 20-victory level this season.

Kelly Tripucka had six of his game-high 19 points during a 16-4 Notre Dame scoring spurt to open the second half as the Irish edged La Salle. Notre Dame's winning points were actually scored by Tracy Jackson on two foul shots with 41 seconds left in the game.

Sam Bowie single-handedly gave Kentucky a 9-2 lead at the start of the game and finished with 23 points to lead the Wildcats past Auburn.

"We took a supreme beating by a much superior team," noted Auburn Coach Sonny Smith.

MAPS drops hot potato

By ED SCHUYLER JR.

NEW YORK (AP) — One thing sure about the scheduled big boxing show at Madison Square Garden Feb. 23 is that Muhammad Ali Professional Sports, Inc., won't be involved.

Whether the card survives in part and when it would be held are among many questions still to be answered.

"MAPS attorney (Ed Franklin) and Sam Marshall (MAPS president) have indicated to me they're concluding their business," said Sam Glass, president of Tiffany Promotions, which was to co-promote with MAPS the four-fight card with $8.5 million in purses at the Garden.

Is MAPS out of the boxing promotion business? Glass: "I would assume so."

The condition of MAPS is as follows:

—The Wells Fargo National Bank charged in a suit filed in Los Angeles Monday that it had been defrauded of $21.3 million, and among the defendants name are Harold J. Smith, MAPS chairman, and two other MAPS officials.

—The whereabouts are unknown for Smith, whose company has lost heavily on fight cards but has always paid the fighters ... and well. But Tuesday night two Los Angeles sportscasters and Michael Katz of the New York Times received calls from a man they all agreed was Smith. The man proclaimed his innocence and claimed the alleged embezzlement really involved as much as $300 million, 35 officials and 20 banks in the Wells Fargo system.

—MAPS assets have been frozen. Some fighters have not received all of their advance payments under contracts while others are paid up. Eddie Mustafa Muhammad, the World Boxing Association light-heavyweight champion, reportedly put his $300,000 in a Wells Fargo branch, and it also has been frozen.

John F.X. Condon, president of Madison Square Garden, said Wednesday that the Garden, which is only the landlord for the Feb. 23 show, is owed money by Feb. 12 or "the contract is null and void."

"We'll speak with the Garden about financial arrangements," said Glass. "I am trying to keep the show together. I am asking the Garden to bear with me."

Keeping the show together means getting the fighters to cut their purses and, Glass said, dropping Eddie Mustafa Muhammad's bout against Matthew Saad Muhammad for the universal light-heavyweight championship for purses of $1.5 million.

Meanwhile, ABC Radio reported Thursday morning that the Muhammad-Muhammad fight is off and that the heavy-weight battle between Ken Norton and Gerry Cooney may wind up elsewhere.

ABC, in an interview with Glass, said that Glass has called off the bout in view of the scandal involving (MAPS). An ABC spokesman said that Dennis Rappaport, manager for heavy-weight contender Cooney, told him that "if things are not resolved by Thursday afternoon," he's going elsewhere.

Four of the other fighters — Cooney and Norton in a 10-round bout and Tommy Hearns defending the WBA welterweight title against Wilfredo Benitez — were to get purses of $1 million each. Wilfredo Gomez was to get $350,000 and Mike Ayla $100,000 in match for Gomez' World Boxing Council junior featherweight title.

Muhammad Ali...he's not talking

Bank denies 'preposterous' charges

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After airing his side of the story in telephone calls to three sports reporters, a key figure in a $21.3 million fraud suit filed by Wells Fargo bank remained silent today as bank officials challenged his statements.

Dozens of reporters staked out the elegant Hancock Park home of Muhammad Ali on Wednesday in hopes of locating Harold J. Smith, 37, chairman of Muhammad Ali Professional Sports Inc. But Smith never appeared.

Wells Fargo Bank had issued a statement terming "preposterous and totally implausible" Smith's claims to reporters that up to 35 officials at 20 Wells Fargo branches were involved in the alleged embezzlement and that the amount missing was actually "two or three hundred million dollars."

In a civil lawsuit filed Monday, the San Francisco-based bank sought to recover $21.3 million in missing funds from Smith, L. Ben Lewis, a Wells Fargo loan officer and MAFS director who also is missing; and other officials and associates of MAPS.

"WE FIND preposterous and totally implausible Smith's statement that the taking of funds amounting to $200 million or more is involved and that high officials of the bank are involved," said a statement by Wells Fargo chairman Richard P. Cooley.

Bank officials also scoffed at Smith's contention that attempts were made on his life, that his 4-year-old son was briefly kidnapped and that he was forced to flee to Switzerland and Canada to escape bank-connected thugs who wanted to keep him from talking about the alleged embezzlement.

Cooley did, however, agree to some extent with one claim Smith made in telephone calls Tuesday to Bud Furillo of Los Angeles radio station KABC, Jim Hill of Los Angeles television station KNXT and New York Times boxing writer Michael Katz. Although none saw Smith, all three believe he was the caller.

Smith said the embezzlement had occurred "over a period of time, over eight, nine years," and Cooley acknowledged that the fraud "goes back into last year and maybe even farther. We just don't know yet."

BANK officials have been reluctant to describe how the alleged embezzlement was accomplished. It had been previously speculated that the embezzlement had occurred over several days or weeks at the most.

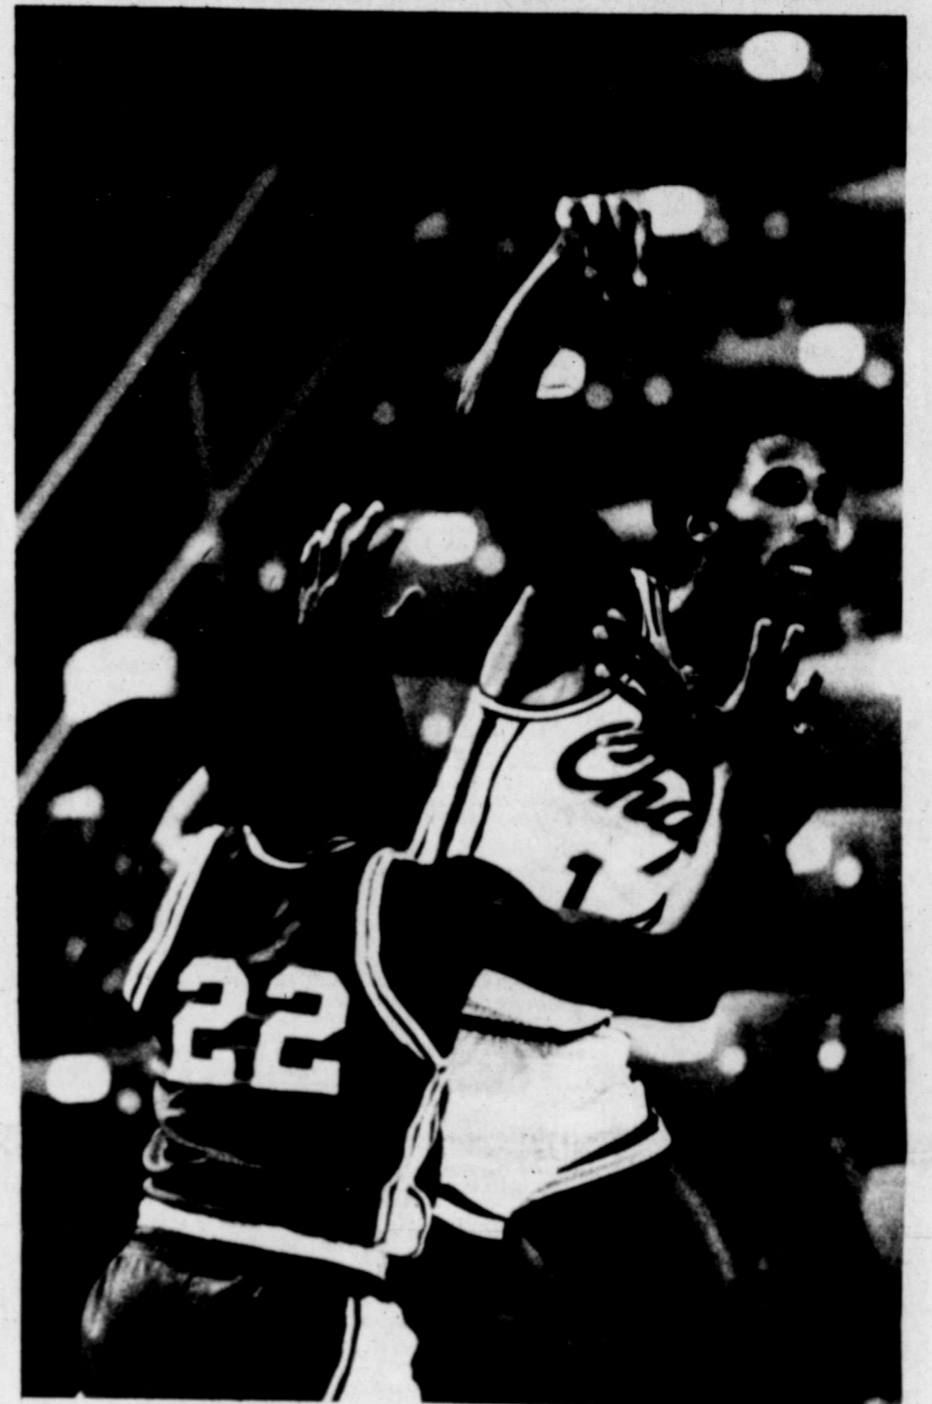

The case is being investigated by the FBI, but no criminal charges have been filed and none of the defendants in the bank's civil suit are being sought by authorities.

However, all MAPS assets have been frozen and the organization will not be promoting a four-fight card with $8.5 million in purses scheduled for Feb. 23 at Madison Square Garden.

It is not yet known whether another promoter will step in so that any or all of the planned fights — including three title bouts — can be held anyway at the Garden or elsewhere.

Smith said Tuesday he wanted "to set the record straight" with Ali — who collects a fee for MAPS' use of his name but is otherwise not involved with the organization — and crowds of reporters gathered at Ali's home all day Wednesday just in case Smith showed up.

Chaps seek to keep grip on 1st in WJCC

Midland College moved into a tie for first place with Howard College in the Western Junior College Conference race Monday by demolishing South Plains College, 90-73, at Chaparral Center. So tonight's visit to Hobbs, N.M., to play New Mexico Junior College takes on added import.

While MC plays NMJC, Howard's Hawks trek to Snyder for Western Texas College while third place Frank Phillips College is at Odessa College, which has been a hot and cold team most of the season.

After last Thursday's games, MC, Howard and FPC were deadlocked for first, but Howard made it two in a row over the Plainsmen at Borger 73-61 last Friday. While Howard was idle Monday, Midland pulled even with its impressive win over SPC.

Loser of their last two on the road to OC, 95-91, and Clarendon, 88-83, NMJC, 5-6 and a regional tournament contender, has been toughest at home and the Chaps had their hands full with the Thunderbirds earlier in the season, eking out an 88-83 win at the Center.

Midland's win Monday, following on the heels of a 75-61 win at Clarendon and blowouts of OC and Western Texas, is an indication that the Chaps are over their post-New Year doldrums.

"We've had better intensity in our last few games and have been stronger on defense," Coach Jerry Stone explained. "Our scoring is balanced so the opposition hasn't been able to gang up on one player to stop our attack."

If Stone has one complaint, it is that the team has been inconsistent in execution. "If we weren't, we could bury some people, but that's the nature of this team."

Led by Mike Smith (17.1 points per game), Jeff Robertson (16.1), and Jeff Hannah (11.2), the Thunderbirds are the most prolific team in the WJCC, averaging more than 94 points per game. They also give up almost as many per outing.

Robertson is the leading rebounder in the WJCC with 16.2 per game. Green is No. 5 and Hannah and Charles Prescott are both among the top 20. Robertson, Hannah and Greer are one, two, three in blocked shots.

Tonight's game will be broadcast on KKKK, 99 FM, at 8:50 p.m.

Palmer heads Arden golf field

NORTH MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Just last week, 39-year-old Sandra Palmer brushed aside suggestions that she was too old for the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour by upstaging her youthful competitors to capture the $100,000 Whirlpool Championship of Deer Creek.

Palmer won the season opener despite a poor, 2-over par finish at 75. Today, Palmer will head the field in the tour's second event — the $125,000 Elizabeth Arden Classic.

Palmer fired an 8-under par 281 to capture the Deer Creek tournament over the weekend, her first tour victory since 1977. She nipped Amy Alcott, a third-year pro and top player of 1980, by two strokes.

One local favorite in the tournament will be Nancy Rubin, a 22-year-old rookie who attended nearby Miami-Dade North Community College and Florida International University.

Rubin, who finished tied for 33rd at Deer Creek, won $566. Like other fledgling or marginal tour players, she must earn at least $3,000 during the year to keep her LPGA card.

Judge dismisses Phillies' drug case

By LEE LINDER

READING, Pa. (AP) — District Justice Albert Gaspari has dismissed all charges against a Reading physician accused of illegally prescribing amphetamine-like drugs to seven members of the World Champion Philadelphia Phillies baseball team.

Charges against two other Reading men accused of illegally obtaining the drugs from pharmacies and delivering them to the players or their wives were also thrown out.

Dr. Patrick A. Mazza, 56, team physician for the Phillies' Reading farm club, and Robert L. Masley, 54, and his son, Robert M. Masley, 24, had all testified in their own defense at the seven-hour preliminary hearing Wednesday.

MAZZA HAD testified that he had prescribed pep pills — the state claimed more than 2,600 — to pitchers Steve Carlton, Larry Christenson and Randy Lerch; first baseman Pete Rose; outfielder Greg Luzinski; shortstop Larry Bowa and former catcher Tim McCarver.

At an earlier hearing last month, Sheena Bowa, Jean Luzinski, Christenson, Rose and McCarver all testified they never requested any prescriptions from Mazza or received them from the Masleys.

Lerch testified Wednesday that he had received approximately 75 Preludin tablets, an amphetamine-like drug, and had paid $15 for them, although he said he never asked Mazza for the drugs.

"WHAT YOU have here are a bunch of ballplayers who are world champions, but who are also champions of lying," said attorney Emmanuel Dimitriou, representing the three defendants. "They have tried to sell this man (Mazza) down the river to protect their own images and their own pocketbooks."

Deputy Attorney General Donald Johnson said that even if the ballplayers had lied about getting the pills, that wasn't the issue in the case.

"This crime concerns the practice of medicine by Dr. Mazza," Johnson said. "What you have here is a doctor dispensing controlled substances that are dangerous and subject to abuse over the telephone and without a physical examination." Johnson said any appeal of the dismissal would be decided upon by the state Justice Department in Harrisburg.

MAZZA testified he had prescribed Dexamyl, Eskatrol, Dexedrine and Preludin. "They were made at the request of the ballplayers and were done in good faith," Mazza said.

Mazza said the prescriptions were made out in the names of the players, except for Luzinski and Bowa. "They asked that they be made in the names of their wives, and I did so," Mazza said.

Carlton has not testified, and efforts by the state to serve him with a subpoena have been unsuccessful.

Asked why the players wanted the drugs, Mazza gave these answers in testimony:

"Greg (Luzinski) had a chronic problem with excessive weight, and he wanted ... help."

"Bowa said he was running out of gas, that he was tired, that he needed something to pick him up, that at times he was depressed when his batting average was down."

"STEVE (Carlton), being a moody person and a loner, needed something to pep him up, and he asked me, 'Doc, can you help me?'"

"Larry (Christenson) was coming off a bad year and wanted something to pep him up."

"Tim McCarver said he was getting up in years and needed something to pep him up."

"Pete (Rose) was having trouble with his weight and he needed some help with his 38-year-old body."

while San Angelo was demolishing Big Spring.

Lee, coming off a 52-27 win over cross-town rival Midland, brings a 3-0 record into the game while Odessa is 1-2.

Midland High travels to Odessa Permian. The Bulldogs are 1-2 in the second half, same as the Panthers.

In the night's key game, 23-1 San Angelo faces Abilene Cooper, 15-9 for the season, but 2-1 for the second half. The Cougars must win to remain in the race and a victory would also do the Rebels a big favor. Cooper lost 46-42 in overtime to Abilene Monday

Shockers shocked by story

WSU players sorry they spilled beans

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Two former Wichita State University basketball players quoted in stories about alleged payoffs to WSU athletes say they regret talking to reporters and were stunned when the newsmen allegedly broke their promise not to use their names.

Lawrence Howell and Auguster "Sarge" Jackson, who are both still WSU students, denied Wednesday that they talked to Kansas City Times reporters in an effort to hurt the Shocker basketball program.

"I figured we didn't have anything to hide," Howell said, explaining that the Times reporters asked to see the players and already had questionnaires prepared.

Coach Gene Smithson said at a

Wednesday news conference the payola allegations are fabrications provided to reporters by "discontented individuals."

"If we had been bitter, we'd have taken matters into our own hands," Howell said.

Jackson told reporters Wednesday he stands by his story that he was given $1,100 in cash while he was on the team. The assistant coach and a Wichita doctor Jackson named as suppliers of the money have denied the charge.

Both former players said they were promised anonymity when they talked to the reporters.

Executive Editor Mike Davies said he checked with the reporters and is positive the former players weren't told their names would be withheld. He said anonymity was granted grudgingly to other sources quoted in the story.

The Times story also mentioned that Jo Ann Carr was able to move from a poverty-level neighborhood to a $62,500 home and buy a new car after her son, current Shocker stand-out Antoine Carr, began playing for WSU.

Mrs. Carr was quoted by the Times as saying a boyfriend helped finance her purchase of the new house.

A copyright story in The Wichita Eagle-Beacon on Wednesday identified the boyfriend as Don Florence. The article said he and his common-law wife, Emerett Jenkins, won a $1 million medical malpractice lawsuit in 1979 and received a substantial cash payment as part of the award.

Miss Jenkins said she was unaware Florence may have been giving money to another woman although she had withdrawn slips showing he had obtained large amounts of cash from their bank account. She said she first realized the possibility Florence may have helped finance Mrs. Carr's move when she read about the house in local reports of the Times story.

On Wednesday, Miss Jenkins filed for divorce from Florence.

National Collegiate Athletic Association officials said Wednesday it would be mid spring before any disciplinary action could be taken against WSU.

David Brett, NCAA enforcement director, said the Association's committee on infractions won't even meet until some time in the spring.

TED BATTLES

Richardson revisits scene of old successes

Nolan Richardson had a few days off so he came back to Texas to do a little scouting for next year in the Western Junior College Conference. After coaching for three seasons at Western Texas College in Snyder where he was 101-13, he has a pretty good idea of what kind of talent circulates through the league.

Last year he went 37-0 in winning the national JuCo title and took that team with him to Tulsa University where he has turned a derelict program into instant success.

Richardson's turn around job has resulted in considerable ink for the reborn Hurricane and the kid who learned there was more to basketball than offense under Don Haskins at UTEP hasn't forgotten where it started.

Even before Tulsa reached its present 15-3 status, Richardson widened some eyes when he pistol-whipped Louisville early in the season.

"WE BILLED it as the NCAA champions against the NJCAA champions all the way," Richardson said at the Chapparral Center the other night. "We wanted to prove we were as good as they were. And we did. After it was over I reminded my kids that they didn't have Darrell Griffith. And they reminded me that we didn't have Bill Patterson."

Patterson was the only starter from last year's national champions who didn't follow Richardson to Tulsa, opting instead for Georgia Tech, where things haven't been going so good.

Going into this weekend's game at West Texas State, Tulsa is a half game behind Wichita State and Bradley in the Missouri Valley Conference race. They have played one more game. But like most conferences, the race isn't that important. "We have a post-season tournament," says Nolan. "The way they work it, the last place team visits the first place team, etc., in the first round."

WHEN Richardson took over at Tulsa, the program was in bad shape. The team hadn't won in five years and the crowning indignity had been the school's inability to beat cross-town rival Oral Roberts. Eight years, to be exact.

Now, Tulsa is not only king of the hill in T-town, but rules all it surveys in Oklahoma. "We've beaten Oklahoma and Oklahoma State, too," says Richardson, but admits Tulsa hasn't beaten Oklahoma City U. "Well, we haven't played them."

Tulsa got off to a bad start in the race by losing to Creighton, but has won seven of eight since.

Richardson is back in Texas beating the bushes for talent even though he took his national championship team with him. He knows there's more where that came from. He sees it all around him, even in the MVC.

Against Drake, he completely shut off Lewis Lloyd. Lloyd starred at NMMI before going on to Drake where he has gained national attention. Richardson's objective is to get the next Lloyd to go Tulsa.

Hank Greenberg finds he's just trivia question nowadays

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

As Shakespeare so aptly put it, "how rapidly doth fame fleeth." Hank Greenberg, the home run king of the Detroit Tigers in the period prior to World War II, was seated next to George Brett, hitting phenom of the Kansas City Royals, at the New York Baseball Writers' annual bash. What did the two stars of different eras talk about?

"Frankly," said Greenberg, "I don't think he knew who I was." So the conversation followed a rather impersonal line for most of the evening — "What a nice dinner it is." "Good to see so many people here." "Think it's gonna rain?"

Then Ralph Kiner, the former home run slugger of the Pirates who like Greenberg is in the Hall of Fame, dropped by for a few amenities.

"Ralph turned to George," Greenberg related, "and said, 'Hey, you better look up to this guy — he once drove in 183 runs.' That was the first time Brett showed any interest."

"He perked up and said, 'Did you really have 183 RBIs? Who did you have batting in front of you?' I didn't tell him they were guys like Mickey Cochrane and Charlie Gehringer. He might not have known them either."

"Brett then asked me my lifetime average. When I told him it was .313 I could see some respect coming into his eyes. He said, 'Gee, I hit .390 last season and only knocked in 118 runs.'"

GREENBERG neglected to remind his dais neighbor that he hit a total of 331 home runs — 58 in one season, 1938.

"It wasn't unsettling at all," Greenberg recalled later. "And certainly I mean it as no reflection on Brett. I found him a very warm and personable guy. It's just baseball's new breed. Few of them grew up in the baseball tradition — there are so many other things to occupy their minds. Now they are so rich and so busy with commercials and other commitments that they don't look too much into the past."

"When I was a kid growing up in New York, I remember the Giants had a pitcher named Hugh McMullen. He wasn't that good a pitcher, lasted only a couple of years or so. But we kids found out that he was visiting a lady friend in our neighborhood. We would wait around just so we could look at him. We were awed by anybody in the major leagues."

Greenberg was one of the visiting celebrities who waited over an extra day to see Baseball Magazine's "Lifetime Achievement" award presented to his friend and one-time front office associate with the Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox, Bill Veeck, baseball maverick and innovator.

LARRY DOBY, first man to break the color barrier in the American League, said he also had found growing insensitivity among the modern-day affluent ball players.

"Too much education and too much easy money," said the former Cleveland outfielder. "When I was a kid, it was tough to get a quarter to go to the movies. Now kids have their own automobiles, fat allowances and anything they want."

"They sign long-term contracts and feel secure for life. Pride and desire are dying qualities. I'll tell you, if I played today, no matter what I made, I'd bust my gut."

For Veeck and Greenberg, it was an opportunity to repeat their strong respect for each other.

"Greenberg should have been the commissioner of baseball," insisted Veeck. "I said it back before Eckert (William Eckert, retired Air Force general) and Bowie Kuhn (former National League attorney) were named."

"He fit every requirement. He is a remarkably fine man. He came up through the minors. He was a star player, an executive. He is articulate, basically honest, makes a great appearance, doesn't need the money and is not contaminated by associ-

...Brett never heard of him

tion with either league."

GREENBERG returned the accolades by saying that Veeck, despite his bitter wars with the baseball establishment, should be named to the Hall of Fame.

"Every innovation in baseball except a couple kookie things that Charlie Finley tried — like orange baseballs and silly uniforms — originated with Veeck," said Hank. "Electric scoreboards, giveaways, fan days, concerts, a pinch-hitting midget."

"Once he gave 1,000 pounds of shrimp to a fan who had to keep it on ice under his seat until the end of the game. He brought fun — and millions of fans — to baseball."

Reds' Wagner fights to hold line on salaries

Compiled from R-T wire services
Cincinnati Reds president Dick Wagner blames baseball owners and executives for getting the sport into a financial mess. "In the last decade we've let ourselves in the industry get into the darndest mess any industry could get into. We've given up control of our business." Bucking the trend toward signing high priced free agents, the Reds signed former Chicago Cub Larry Blittner recently. "We average $200,000 (salary) per man on our 25-man roster," Wagner said. "The average gross for a major league baseball team in 1979, counting sales of wieners, parking, everything, was $11 million. To pay one guy $1 million a year, or even $800,000, does not make sense. "The owners have made bad moves, scary moves ... and it is continuing..."

Allegations of payoffs to Wichita State basketball players are unfounded and have come from "discontented individuals," Coach Gene Smithson said, adding he welcomed an NCAA investigation. He said he has coached college basketball for 10 years and has a violation-free record. "My programs have never been under scrutiny by anyone. And of this, I am extremely very proud." One of the allegations concerned an abortion allegedly arranged by the coaching staff for the girlfriend of a Shocker player. "I have no idea of any abortion. I wouldn't even know where to go to get one," Smithson said...

The San Diego Stadium Authority is considering an offer by Olympia Brewing Co. to sponsor a college all-star football game with players to be picked from a national pool. The proposed Olympia Gold Game Jan. 16 would be played the weekend between the NFL conference championships and the Super Bowl. Coaches would be picked from pro ranks and the players aligned geographically with pro teams, each side in effect representing the regions of the two NFL conferences...

Bill Veeck stated new Chicago White Sox owner real estate developer Jerry Reinsdorf has the "money to do things we were never able to do..." Bank denies charges

ALI was available for some verbal sparring, however, as long as it didn't include questions he said "could get me in jail."

Ali said his attorneys warned him against a planned transfer of an undisclosed amount of funds to the Wells Fargo bank just before news of the investigation broke publicly, fearing the funds would be frozen.

"I decided to take my name off the organization (MAPS) a few days before it happened because it didn't look right," Ali said. "Whoever knew it was going to break told my lawyer."

If Smith visits him, "I'm going to tell him to go right to the FBI before he talks to me," he said. "I'm not going to go to jail. I'm going to tell Harold, 'Turn yourself in. Don't talk to me.'"

And, when asked where Smith was, Ali replied evasively: "Where's Harold? ... It would be illegal for me to know where Harold is and not tell anybody."

KSU officials say all's well

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Kansas State University officials have acknowledged that track athletes improperly used telephone credit cards, but they say the problem has been corrected and they won't let it occur again.

"We are convinced that no violations occurred, rather there was an error in judgment on the part of our coaches in men's track," Athletic Director DeLoss Dodds said Wednesday. "I am sure lessons have been learned by those involved here at Kansas State."

No further investigation into the credit card misuse is planned unless other charges surface, and the coaches who apparently knew about the credit-card use by the athletes will not be fired, university officials said.

The Kansas City Times reported in a copyright story Wednesday that three members of the Wildcat track team and other people unknown to the university allegedly ran up about $7,000 in telephone bills in a two-year period.

Raiders eye LA in 1981

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With a new trial date, March 23, attorneys for the Oakland Raiders and the National Football League say their court battle could be settled in time for the 1981 football season.

"I feel the March 23 date will still permit the Raiders to play in Los Angeles in 1981," Maxwell Blecher, attorney for the Los Angeles Coliseum Commission, said after the date change Wednesday.

On the opposing side, Patrick Lynch, attorney for the NFL, said he was confident a jury would decide the case in the NFL's favor and the Raiders would remain in Oakland in 1981.

More passes for Earl

HOUSTON (AP) — Ed Biles' coaching staff with the Houston Oilers isn't complete, but already there are plans to have quarterback Ken Stabler lift weights and Earl Campbell catch more passes.

Former Cleveland quarterback Coach Jim Shofner, named Wednesday as Oilers offensive coordinator, said he wanted to use Campbell more in first-down passing situations next season.

Stabler, who admits he has his own style of off-season activity, did not lift weights prior to last season, although Biles said it had previously been a regular off-season activity for the Oiler signal-caller.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Roth retains pin lead

By The Associated Press
BOWLING—Mark Roth retained the lead after the third round of qualifying in the $131,000 U.S. Open on the Professional Bowlers Association tour.

Bowling was delayed for a time Wednesday night after the roof leaked during a rainstorm and workers had to mop water from the lanes before the competition could continue. Roth held a 43-pin lead over Ernie Schlegel, who finished with a total of 5,380.

GENERAL—Light-heavyweight boxer James Scott was found guilty of felony murder and first-degree murder by a Superior Court jury. Scott was convicted of slaying Everett Russ in 1975. Essex County Assistant Prosecutor Glenn Goldberg had charged Scott murdered Russ to conceal an armed robbery.

Scott previously was convicted of the armed robbery but a jury was unable to decide if he was guilty of murder. He was the No. 2 light-heavyweight contender in the World Boxing Association but was stripped of his ranking last September because of his criminal record. He was sentenced to 30 to 40 years on the robbery charge and will be sentenced on the latest murder charge before Judge Nicholas Scialera March 11.

TRACK AND FIELD—Pole vaulter Tom Hintnaus and shot putter Brian Oldfield easily won their events, while Dwight Stones finished second in the high jump in an international indoor meet in Milan, Italy. Hintnaus took the pole vault by clearing 17 feet, 8 1/2 inches, beating Italy's Victor Drechsel, whose best was 16-5. Oldfield won the shot put with a toss of 69 feet 11 inches, while Italy's Alessandro Andrei was second at 61-3. Stones lost the high jump to Jacek Wszola of Poland, who cleared 7-5 on his first try.

SKATING—Soviet skaters Irina Vorobieva and Igor Lisovski captured the pairs competition at the European Figure Skating Championships.

HORSE RACING—Sportful, $18.60, nosed out Caterman in the $57,100 Sierra Madre Handicap at Santa Anita... Gasp, $9.20, nosed out Naughty Jimmy in the $38,600 Star de Naskra Handicap at Bowie.

More good news has been received from Lake Amistad. A new lake (unofficial) striped bass record catch was taken from the border reservoir near Del Rio Jan. 21 when Wesley Roddy, Hale Center, caught a 30-pound 8-ounce striper. As far as anyone knows there's not been a larger striper taken by sporting means from Amistad waters. It is just three pounds shy of the Texas record of 33-4, a striper taken out of Toledo Bend last year.

Roddy and Tommy Rogers, Hale Center, also of Hale Center, Tommy Rogers were fishing Amistad with guide Gene Piel when he boated the record. They also claimed for their day's fishing efforts, a 14-pounder and a 20-pounder, plus several smaller striper up to five pounds.

THE THREESOME concentrated efforts in the Castle Canyon region. Roddy said, "The fish were scattered. We would fish areas where we noticed birds working over schools of baitfish or concentrate on a spot that our guide found fish by readings off his graph recorder," Roddy explained. "We did come up on this one spot where dozens of gulls were working. We began casting one-half ounce white bucktail jigs trailed with a white twister gurb and caught our fish within the hour," Roddy said.

"We were fishing a depth of about 70 feet when we made our haul. The fish was suspended in about 40 feet of water," Roddy said. "I didn't know for sure that the fish I hooked was as large as it turned out to be," Roddy said. "After about three or four minutes of battle, the fish surfaced and we got a good look at the brute. That's when I got excited," Roddy explained. It took Roddy about 10 minutes to land the striper, using standard bass tackle with 17-pound test line.

The Hale Center men have fished with Piel several times before and both claim he's one of the best striper guides on Amistad. The veteran guide, once the striper have exploded, is primarily chasing the introduced saltwater specie. Roddy said, "Piel has this certain knack for locating striper. Of course, he relies a great deal on the readings off his graph recorder," Roddy said. "But he knows the lake like the back of his hand and that helps," Roddy concluded.

YOU MAY not think February or early March is for fishing, but these months are prime for striper. It seems like the worse the weather conditions are, the better the striper cooperate. This has held true for the several years on Amistad and E.V. Spence, another noted striped bass lake.

To be a successful striper angler, a lot depends on how well you know the lake and what type baits to use. Fishing Spence Reservoir isn't that big a problem due to its size. You either hit the fish on Spence in only a few areas or you do not. And when the striper are off the feed, you can't hardly buy one.

But at Amistad, situations are somewhat different. Do to the lake's extreme size, striper conditions vary from one sector of the lake to the other. Watching for the birds is one of the best methods of locating feeding hordes of striper. But it's also wise to talk with local guides, marina operators and fishing tackle shop personnel. Stripers tend to follow the same patterns for several days. They hem up schools of forage and will stay with the shad schools as long as the bait-fish remain.

Another good method is to hire a guide. These guides know the lake, continue to observe fishing conditions and when fish are located, they know how to catch the fish. An Amistad's guide's daily fee is now $100 per day. That includes his boat, gasoline and first-hand knowledge of the lake. One good thing to remember is that you can hire the professional for one day. Come the next day if you've towed your own rig along, you can pay the guide a $25 follow fee.

STRIPERS are truly unpredictable. They prefer various baits from time to time.

If you find striper schooling on the surface, a large bait resembling a shad is good hardware. At times large topwater poppers and stick bait are preferred.

When the fish inhabit deeper water, most any type slab-spoon is good in the white or chrome colors, as well as large bucktail jigs trailed with pork rind or twister grubs. Most striper anglers choose the jig in a white or green color with the trailer grub being white.

For the last resort, try trolling areas where striper have been schooling. This is not quite as sporty as other means, but sometimes it's a good system to locate striper.

Rutledge father takes stand in Kush trial

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The father of a former Arizona State football player testified Wednesday that his son told him he was punched by ex-Sun Devil coach Frank Kush in a 1978 game and showed him a lacerated upper lip to prove it.

Gordon Rutledge took the witness stand at the trial of his son's $2.2 million damage suit against Kush, former Arizona State assistant coach Bill Maskill, the university and other parties.

Kevin Rutledge claims Kush split his lip with "a knuckle-punch" after a poor punt in the game and that Kush and Maskill subsequently harassed him into quitting the team and forfeiting his scholarship.

CHUCK DAVIS OUTDOORS Dead deer isn't really as big as you suspect

There is generally more wind in a dead deer's weight than actual pounds. That may be tough to believe when you have just nailed the biggest buck of your life. Unfortunately, it's a fact. Old mossyhorn is not as large as you would like to think.

As a matter of fact, very few deer are anywhere near as large as believed. Not many big muleys are anywhere near 250 pounds on the hoof. Any 300-pounder is remarkable. Indeed, it's something to write home about, and it should be described with reverence and awe. You might shoot one 300-pounder in your lifetime. Chances are, though, that you won't even see one that large.

saw, in one three-day weekend of hunting, 37 muley bucks that were four-points or better (western count).

During my tallying years, a friend tagged a 238 pound buck on the family ranch near Yarnell, Ariz. His big buck is what is considered a desert mule deer as compared to a Kaibab muley. The desert deer don't usually grow as large as the Kaibab deer because of the marginal habitat they inhabit.

The absolute largest buck I've personally seen hanging from a meat scale pegged out at 286-pounds field dressed. That big Kaibab buck was dropped by a hunter from Wickenburg, Ariz. in the early 1960s. He was a genuine monster.

I FOR ONE, have not seen many either dead or alive that would go 250. For a couple of years I kept an unofficial tally of deer weight estimates. These were not my estimates, but were those of wildlife department personnel manning checking stations near Arizona's Kaibab National Forest. These folks see more deer in a week than most of us encounter in years of hunting.

During my unofficial tally there wasn't more than a handful of deer that might have pushed the 300-pound weight. I emphasize 'might' as half of the handful wouldn't have made it on scales. Nearly every wildlife manager I talked with agreed that bucks with really huge body weights are usually the figment of someone's imagination. Condition are very seldom right for a buck to grow that heavy.

THIS TALLY was made in some of the best big buck country in the United States. The Kaibab produces big bucks and has 38 of its whoppers listed in the Boone and Crockett Clubs records of North American Big Game. The Kaibab is where I

THE HEAVIEST buck I have personally shot weighed-in at an even 170 pounds. His live weight was about 220 pounds. This buck was taken at the edge of a big burn (results of a forest fire) on the very extreme edge of the Kaibab.

Must mule deer won't weigh more than about 150 pounds. Whitetails are usually much lighter. The Texas whitetail and the Coues whitetail often seem to be satchel sized. It appears that if their feet were tied together they could be packed out of a hunting area like a person would carry a suitcase. Rifle in one hand, deer in the other.

Recently, Winchester printed a chart listing approximate live and dressed weights for deer. Clip this out and keep it for future reference. It will help keep some folks honest.

Surgery for Waters

DALLAS (AP) — Safety Charlie Waters of the Dallas Cowboys underwent surgery on his right knee Wednesday for the second time in 18 months.

Dr. Marvin Knight performed the surgery at a hospital in Muenster, Texas, and said everything went as hoped. Knight said he removed a cartilage and strengthened a ligament.

Waters underwent knee surgery in August 1979 and returned as a Cowboy starter after sitting out the 1979 season.

Bragg warns bingo could be taken over by organized crime

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas' only form of legalized gambling could be taken over by organized crime if lawmakers do not enact tough standards controlling bingo, according to an assistant attorney general.

David Bragg warned the Senate State Affairs Committee on Wednesday that states which failed to devise tight controls found that "organized crime moved in before the ink was dry on the statute."

Committee Chairman Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls, appointed a three-member subcommittee to look into bingo control on the recommendation of bill sponsor Sen. Carlos Truan.

Texasans overwhelmingly voted in November for a constitutional amendment legalizing bingo in communities that want it. Local option elections will decide where it can be played. The games can be run only by non-profit organizations.

It's up to the Legislature to produce rules governing the games.

Truan, D-Corpus Christi, said the subcommittee was needed to "insure we tighten the bill as much as possible to prevent those organizations we would not want to come into Texas and take over the bingo games."

Bragg said "the criminal element in our society" would be quick to take advantage of any loopholes in the law.

"Without a stringent statute we can expect organized crime to exploit bingo," Bragg testified.

Bragg and Truan said local authorities should be in charge of enforcing laws on bingo games.

Robert Mazer, executive director of United Cerebral Palsy in San Antonio, offered some suggestions for the bill. UCP raised $86,000 through bingo for its work last year, he said.

Mazer said the dictionary definition of bingo should be used in the bill to prevent other legalized gambling. He also proposed requiring bingo operators to have state and federal certifications showing they are non-profit groups.

UCP has been allowed to operate its games because it collects a "donation" for bingo cards, not an entry fee, Mazer said.

Congressman charged in scandal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressman Jon C. Hinson of Mississippi, re-elected last fall after admitting he had visited two homosexual hangouts, is charged today with committing oral sodomy in a public men's room on Capitol Hill.

Deputy Chief Gilbert Abernathy of the Capitol Police said police, tipped off that the restroom was a homosexual gathering place, watched through a peephole Wednesday as the 38-year-old conservative Republican allegedly engaged in oral sex with Harold Moore, 28, of suburban Oxon Hill, Md., an assistant at the Library of Congress. Moore also was arrested.

Hinson, who was released on $2,000 bond, was to be arraigned today in District of Columbia Superior Court, along with Moore and two others arrested in the same men's room two hours earlier.

Abernathy said all four men had been observed committing homosexual acts in the "common area of the rest room."

Within hours of Hinson's arrest, leading Mississippi Republicans said he should resign from office if guilty. "I think we gave him the benefit of the doubt on the other charges," said Clarke Reed, Republican national committeeman from Mississippi. "I feel strongly he should resign if found guilty on the charges."

W.D. Mounser, one of Hinson's chief supporters in Mississippi, said, "Those of us who supported him believed him when he said he was not a homosexual and had never committed a homosexual act. ... If this is true, he has no choice but to resign."

Hinson, who lives with his wife, Cynthia, in suburban Alexandria, Va., was not available for comment. The other three men charged also could not be reached for comment.

Police began surveillance last week at the isolated, fourth-floor restroom in the Longworth House Office Building, across the street from the building where Hinson's office is located, Abernathy said. Congressional employees had complained to police that it was a "tea room gathering (place) for homosexuals," Abernathy added.

The deputy chief said the surveillance team was aware that Hinson was a congressman and alerted Abernathy Wednesday that Hinson was being watched.

"He (Hinson) was not engaged at that time in an illegal activity but appeared to be cruising," Abernathy said.

Earlier Wednesday, in the same men's room, police arrested Jetton S. Douglas, 28, a lobbyist for Children's Rights Inc., and Kerry L. Jones, 36, a staff member of the Democratic Study Group, an organization of liberal congressmen. They were charged with oral and anal sodomy.

Prosecutors said the four, if convicted, each could be sentenced to up to 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

During his campaign last fall, Hinson acknowledged two incidents at homosexual hangouts in the Washington area but denied committing any homosexual acts. He said they came during a troubled period in his life before he was elected to Congress in 1978 and he had overcome his problems with the help of his wife, whom he married in 1979.

He said he was arrested in September 1978 near the Iwo Jima Memorial on charges of committing an obscene act, the nature of which he did not describe, and paid a $100 fine on a reduced charge of creating a public nuisance.

On Oct. 24, 1977, Hinson was one of four survivors of a fire that killed nine people at a Washington movie theater that catered to homosexuals.

Hinson's arrest Wednesday was the third homosexual incident involving members of Congress in recent years.

In 1977, Rep. Frederick W. Richmond, D-N.Y., was arrested for soliciting sex from two males in the District of Columbia. Last year, Rep. Robert Bauman, R-Md., was accused of soliciting sex from a 16-year-old boy. Richmond admitted his act and Bauman conceded he had homosexual tendencies. Richmond was re-elected, but Bauman was defeated.

Attorney General wants review of alien's death

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Attorney General Mark White wants his office to review the police killing of a Mexican alien burglary suspect in San Antonio, despite a grand jury's refusal to return indictments in the death.

Following an outcry from several Hispanic leaders, White announced Wednesday that he will send two assistants, Lupe Zamaripa and Gerald C. Carruth, to San Antonio to review the death of Hector Santoscoy, 25, of Piedras Negras, Mexico.

A Bexar County grand jury last week exonerated San Antonio patrolman James Cammack of any wrongdoing in Santoscoy's death, but controversy has continued about the procedures used by police.

Cammack said he shot Santoscoy four times in self-defense while he was crawling beneath a house where Santoscoy hid after running from the scene of a burglary. Cammack said Santoscoy threatened him with a brick.

San Antonio police conducted an internal review of the case, the grand jury spent four days interviewing 21 witnesses, and the FBI is nearing completion of an investigation it began on Dec. 27 to determine whether Santoscoy's civil rights were violated.

San Antonio's Mexican Consul General, Raul Gonzalez Galarza, also has taken an interest in the case, saying he received numerous calls from the Mexican State of Coahuila after the grand jury exonerated Cammack.

Pioneer reports record performance

K. B. Watson, chairman of the board and president of Amarillo-based Pioneer Corp. said in Midland that strong performance in exploring for and producing oil and gas, in producing and selling natural gas liquids, and in supply contract drilling services led Pioneer to record annual earnings in 1980.

Watson, other officials and directors of the company were guests of honor Monday at a reception hosted by the Midland Wildcat Committee in the Petroleum Club of Midland.

Following a Pioneer board of directors meeting held prior to the reception, Watson said the diversified energy resources corporation had net income of $90.6 million the past year, an increase of 38 percent from 1979. He said earnings per share for 1980 were $2.44, up 36.3 percent from $1.79 in 1979, adjusted for the Dec. 30 two-for-one stock split.

The chairman said Pioneer's revenues for 1980 increased 24.5 percent to $912 million from 1979's $732.5 million.

He said for the fourth quarter of 1980, Pioneer earned $24 million on revenues of $232.1 million. Net income increased 40.8 percent and revenues were up 15.9 percent from the same 1979 quarter.

Watson also reported the company declared a quarterly dividend of 22 cents per share, a 10 percent increase from the previous quarter after adjusting for the stock split. The dividend is payable March 4 to stockholders of record Feb. 19. During the last 15 months, the directors have increased the dividend by more than 80 percent in four stages.

Watson estimated that Pioneer's capital expenditures in 1981 will amount to more than $200 million, of which $100 million is projected for oil and gas exploration and development.

He said about $20 million of the oil and gas expenditure is contingent on results of wells now drilling or completed. The chairman also reported that a gas processing plant will be added this year to the eight Pioneer currently operates, and orders have been placed by Shar Drilling Co., a subsidiary, for six more rigs to be delivered in 1981.

Joining Watson as an honored guest at the reception were: Edward S. Morris, vice chairman; C. D. Culver, executive vice president and director; J. J. Heitz, senior vice president, and T. A. Priolo, vice president, all of Amarillo.

R. E. Throckmorton Jr., president of Sharp Drilling, and Harvey Herd, Pioneer Corp. director, both of Midland also were among those honored.

Other directors of the company who were on hand were Laurence R. Jones Jr., Kansas City, Mo.; Maurice E. Purnell Jr., Dallas; Burton P. Smith, Gunnison, Colo.; A. C. Verner, Lubbock; W. E. Walker Jr., Dallas, and C. I. Wall, Amarillo, honorary director.

FRB says fuel prices would be lower

NEW YORK (AP) — The prices Americans pay for gasoline or heating oil would be 20 to 30 cents per gallon lower if it were not for the lifting of federal price controls, according to a study by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

But the study, published in today's issue of the bank's "Quarterly Review," argued that the benefits of higher prices caused by the shift in energy policy include reduced imports, a savings of about 6 percent in oil use due to conservation and probably increased domestic oil output.

"Crude oil price controls encouraged too high a level of petroleum consumption, discouraged domestic energy production and increased oil imports," the study said, adding, "our dependence on imported petroleum leaves the country vulnerable to the threat of economic disruption."

The United States imports nearly 40 percent of its oil. Major refiners, meanwhile, continued the series of fuel-price increases that followed President Reagan's Jan. 28 decision to drop petroleum price controls eight months ahead of schedule.

Among those announcing increases in wholesale fuel prices of as much as 4 cents a gallon were Shell Oil Co.,

Union Oil Co. of California and Tosco Corp. The increases could be felt soon by consumers.

Most refiners now have increased prices for gasoline, heating oil and diesel fuel by a penny to 6 cents a gallon since Reagan's move was announced.

While some refiners have attributed the increases directly to the lifting of the controls, others have said previous oil-price boosts — including a 10 percent jump in foreign oil prices since mid-December — sparked the moves.

Shell, the nation's No. 8 oil company, said in a prepared statement the Reagan decision "had little or no impact" on its latest moves, and attributed the actions instead to the "increasing cost of imported crude."

Shell said its wholesale gasoline prices rose 1 cent to 4 cents a gallon, depending on region, while wholesale prices for diesel fuel and heating oil increased 3 cents a gallon in most areas. No. 15 Union raised wholesale prices of gasoline, heating oil and diesel fuel 2 cents a gallon in several areas, while Tosco, a large West Coast refiner, increased wholesale gasoline and diesel fuel prices 3 cents a gallon.

The lifting of oil-price controls began in June 1979 and was to have ended Sept. 30, but the authors of the Federal Reserve study — economists Paul Bennett, Harold Cole and Steven Dym — said Reagan's action last week did "not substantially change our conclusions" on the effects of decontrol.

Refiners dependent on imports received payments from those with access to cheaper price-controlled domestic supplies under the scrapped federal program. The transactions left the average effective cost of crude for U.S. refiners below the price of imported crude.

The economists said the gradual abandonment of the controls had allowed the effective cost of oil to increase gradually as domestic crude prices approached world levels and the amounts of subsidies to refiners declined.

If the cost of a 42-gallon barrel of imported oil were to rise from today's $35 level to $39 by October, the "import subsidy" allowed under the controls would have kept domestic oil-product prices down by 24 cents a gallon, the economists said.

At $44 a barrel for imported oil, the subsidy would have reduced prices 29 cents a gallon below what they would have been if no controls existed, they said.

India planning to convert uranium fuel

BOMBAY, India (AP) — In a move likely to stir a new controversy with Washington, the Indian government is planning to begin converting spent uranium fuel from the Soviet Union and the United States into plutonium oxide, a new fuel source and a key ingredient in nuclear weapons.

A top Indian nuclear scientist told reporters the government has begun transporting spent uranium fuel from the Soviet-supplied Rajasthan 1 nuclear power plant in central India to a reprocessing plant in Tarapur, 50 miles north of Bombay.

The reprocessing plant, India's first, was completed about two years ago in an effort to make India less dependent on outside sources for nuclear fuel.

"We will begin reprocessing the Rajasthan fuel within a month," said Vinay Meekoni, director of the nuclear safety group for the Bhabha Atomic Research Center in Bombay, which supplied the plutonium for the first nuclear bomb India exploded in 1974.

Escorting reporters on a rare tour of the research center Tuesday, Meekoni said plans call for reprocessing by the end of the year of the uranium supplied by the United States to fuel the Tarapur reactor it built. India says it notified the United States 10 years ago that it eventually intended to reprocess spent fuel from Tarapur into plutonium.

The Indian government says its original notification was enough to live up to its end of the sales agreement with the United States. However, Washington claims India agreed to give it final approval of any reprocessing of U.S.-supplied uranium.

Meekoni told reporters India will use the recovered plutonium to fuel fast-breeder reactors, now under construction, that generate more fissionable material than they consume. India is pursuing a breeder reactor program so it will no longer have to import enriched uranium for its atomic power plants, which by the end of the century may generate about 10 per cent of the country's electricity.

The Tarapur plant, which began operations 1969, faces a major problem of storage for the ever-increasing amounts of spent fuel.

"It will be the end of the year before we have to face up to the storage problem at Tarapur," Meekoni told reporters. "We have enough storage capacity" until then.

Boston's school system on verge of bankruptcy

BOSTON (AP) — The city's school system is about to go broke and close, both sides in a school budget dispute agree. The only question is, when?

A spokesman for Mayor Kevin H. White told the state Supreme Court on Wednesday that barring legislative or judicial intervention, the shutdown of the 65,000-student system could come next week, based on an analysis by city Auditor Newell Cook.

But James J. Lucey, acting budget director for the school committee, said the schools can keep operating until mid- or late March if Cook releases $25 million in budgeted money that won't be needed for original objectives.

"We are in severe financial difficulties," Lucey admitted, adding he will seek to "reconcile" with Cook's office any differences in figures. He said he was confident that, after the issues are clarified, the immediate crisis will be resolved.

"He is a reasonable man," Lucey said of Cook. Cook has formally advised John D. O'Bryant, chairman of the school board, that the fiscal year's appropriation will be spent or committed when the payroll is met next week.

The budget impasse developed when White refused to let the school committee go over its 1980-81 budget of $195 million. The school committee says it must spend an additional $46 million on special education programs.

The school committee and 10 taxpayers have filed suit against the city, seeking an order to force White to approve the $46 million in spending. Arguments in that suit were heard Wednesday in Supreme Court.

In the past, special education was part of the regular budget which is subject to a cap imposed by the mayor. This year, school officials decided to do things differently.

They declared the approved allowance was for regular needs and demanded additional funds for what both parties concede is the state's most expensive per-pupil special education program.

White says the money for special education was included in the regular budget.

Japan wants new Panama Canal

TOKYO (AP) — Shigeo Nagano, president of the Japan and Tokyo Chambers of Commerce, says he hopes President Reagan will take the first steps soon toward a joint U.S.-Japan project to build a sea-level canal in Panama.

Just back from Reagan's inauguration, he said he was encouraged by meetings with Sen. Charles Percy, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Vice President George Bush and millionaire investor Laurence Rockefeller.

Known here as "Mr. Panama" because of his enthusiasm for the canal project, the 80-year-old Japanese business leader said in an interview that he hopes Reagan will soon name an American member of a tripartite U.S.-Panama-Japan commission to conduct a two-year feasibility study.

He said former President Carter had planned to name former Democratic Sen. Mike Gravel of Alaska if he had been re-elected. Gravel was an ardent backer of a second canal as a way of moving Alaskan oil to the U.S. East Coast.

The idea of a second canal through the isthmus of Panama figured in the negotiations between the Carter administration and the Panamanian government on the treaties transferring ownership of the existing 67-year-old Panama Canal to Panama by 2000.

The controversial treaties, ratified by the Senate in 1977, called for a feasibility study of a second canal at sea level. The idea is not new, but some experts have called it impractical because of the great cost.

Nagano, a pioneer in Japan's steel industry, does not agree. "It not only would be of immense economic value but would play a vital part in U.S. defense," he said.

Proponents envision the new canal as being able to handle ships of up to 500,000 tons. The present canal, with its complicated locks system, is limited to much smaller vessels, cannot accommodate supertankers, and is regarded by military experts as highly vulnerable in event of a world crisis.

Nagano's interest in a new canal, he said, stems from Japan's success in widening and deepening the Suez Canal. "We acquired the necessary technology for a sea-level canal and we have the machines," he said.

Four years ago, ambassadors of six Central American countries persuaded him to visit their area, and he found the idea of a new sea-level canal between the Atlantic and Pacific to his liking.
