Courtroom camera decision delayed

By KEN HERMAN Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court probably will not decide how and if television cameras should be allowed in courtrooms until October, the chairman of a State Bar committee said Friday.

State District Judge Tom Cave of Fort Worth, chairman of the Committee on Cameras in the Courtroom, said "at least a straw vote" will be taken among judges in September in Corpus Christi.

A recent U.S. Supreme Court decision upheld Florida guidelines allowing televised trials in that state. Televisions have been barred in Texas courtrooms since the early 1960s when the Billie Sol Estes case was overturned because of problems caused by the coverage.

The committee — including judges, lawyers and reporters — began its work before the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision. At Friday's session committee members looked at a proposed set of guidelines and an expensive camera system that would eliminate the need for cameramen in the

The Texas Supreme Court is awaiting proposed guidelines from the committee.

Cave said advanced technology makes television far less distracting than it was in the 1960s

However, he said, "One of the major objections is the tendency of everyone who is human to say, 'Hi mom,' or, 'Gee, I'm on Candid Camera, what should I say?' "

Adding cameras to a courtroom increases the problems for a judge, he said. "In the high-publicity cases the judge is as tight as a G-string on a guitar...without worrying about TV," he said. The proposed guidelines offered by the Texas Associated Press Broadcasters were taken from guidelines in effect in California. Among the decisions the committee must make before making a recommendation to

"The judge has to run his courtroom," said Cave. "We'll never sell to the Supreme Court the idea that every trial judge must allow television at

The APB guidelines call for a one-year test of cameras in Texas courtrooms. The guidelines call for a pool arrangement, with only one television cameraman and one still photographer. Each must stay in a designated position, and is limited in what equipment could be used. Additional lighting would be barred, as would any noisy equipment that might be distracting.

APB proposed a ban on televising or photographing undercover agents and rape and incest victims who testify. Robert Jones, president of the Texas Criminal Defense Lawyers Association, questioned whether an undercover agent is still undercover when he takes the witness stand.

Judge Truman Roberts of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals said, "I think you'll find some law that says once they take the stand" they are no longer undercover agents.

The demonstration of computerized camera equipment raised the question of cost. The voice-activated system, with five cameras, costs $20,000 for black-and-white television. Color cameras cost about $40,000 each, according to John Harms of Magnetic Media of Austin, who demonstrated the system.

Economic forecast appears optimistic

By JOHN M. BERRY The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - The Reagan administration will soon publish a highly optimistic economic forecast predicting recession for the middle of this year but rapid recovery and a declining rate of inflation in 1982.

In the forecast, inflation falls to a 6½ percent rate next year from its current double-digit pace, on down to about a 41/2 percent rate in 1983 and perhaps as low as 3 percent in 1984, administration sources said.

The forecast puts in concrete terms for the first time the most important, and critics say, least certain element in President Reagan's forthcoming economic program of large cuts in both federal taxes and spending. That is the assumption by Reagan econo mists that their government-shrinking policies will almost of themselves produce a near-180-degree turnabout in the economic expectations and behavior of consumers and businessmen. Beyond that, the predicted economic expansion and falling inflation rates are keys to balancing the budget in fiscal 1983.

But the crucial Reagan forecast already has been described by one critic as "completely implausible," and will set off a major debate among economists and on Capitol Hill over whether the administration's new policies, to be unveiled Feb. 18, can produce such dramatic results.

While the final numbers still are being debated by administration economists, this rosy forecast will include a 7 percent increase in real gross national product next year that is, after adjustment for inflation. That would be double the growth predicted last month by the Carter administration in its last forecast.

The fast growth would continue in 1983, with real output going up another 4½ percent or 5 percent. No details were available about how high the administration expects unemployment to rise during the expected mild mid-year recession or how fast it would come down in 1962 or 1983. Last month the rate was 7.4 percent, unchanged from December, the Labor Department said Friday.

The enormous reduction in inflation included in the Reagan forecast is sharply at odds with virtually all predictions made by other economists recently. The Carter administration, for instance, foresaw a 9.6 percent increase in consumer prices in 1982, down from a 12.6 percent rate this year, and an 8.2 percent rate in 1983.

Even some strong backers of Reagan's tax and spending cut approach, such as Michael Evans, a Washington economic consultant, believe it could take several years to get inflation below 8 percent.

A forecast of such rapid growth in real output hand-in-hand with plummeting inflation rates "can only reduce the credibility of what they are doing," said Rudy Penner of the American Enterprise Institute, former chief economist for the Office of Management and Budget in the Ford administration. "It is sad," he said.

But Alan Greenspan, former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, disagreed, Greenspan, who has helped shape the Reagan policy package as an outside adviser, said, 'Remember what the nature of these numbers is. It is what you would expect to occur if all the president's program is initiated as recommend-

"There is a tendency when one looks at the numbers to say they are out of the ballpark," he acknowledged. "They are not."

Strike leaders, Polish officials sign agreement

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - Strike leaders and government officials signed an agreement in Bielsko-Biala on Friday to end a 10-day strike by 60,000 workers. Union leaders hailed the pact as a "full victory," but more trouble loomed ahead.

The agreement, worked out with mediation of the Roman Catholic Church, called for the ouster of the provincial governor and his two deputies and their resignations were announced hours later. But labor trouble continued in the southwestern town of Jelena Gora and workers have threatened a general strike on Monday if broken-off talks are not resumed.

The Soviet news agency Tass, meanwhile, issued a tough, new warning about Polish labor unrest. Tass charged that "counter-revolutionary forces" have launched a "frontal attack on the (Communist) Party and people's power.'

No details on the meeting were released. Walesa and other Solidarity leaders were expected to go to Jelenia Gora Saturday in an effort to bring about a settlement there.

More than 30 injured in Iranian street fight

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Thousands of Iranian leftists, conducting an illegal anti-government demonstration, clashed with Islamic fundamentalists in a Tehran street battle with guns and knives Friday and Iranian sources said 30 to 40 people were

Iranian police and journalists reached by telephone from Beirut said 7,000 to 10,000 Marxists took to the streets to protest the Iranian-U.S. agreement to release the 52 American hostages and rising unemployment in Police spoke of "many" casualties in the three-hour battle and said some suffered bullet wounds. A Tehran newspaper put the number of casualties at 30, but other sources said 40 were injured in the melee.

The clash came at a time of increasing political tension in Iran between secular-moderate forces that tend to cluster around President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr and clergy-led Moslem fundamentalists who control the Iranian Parliament.

Revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has pleaded with Iranian politicians to stop "biting one another like scorpions.

According to various Tehran sources the thousands of members of the Marxist Fedaveen organization defied a government ban on demonstrations and massed at Freedom Square in the western part of the Iranian capital.

Some sources said they had rallied to mark the 11th anniversary of a bloody clash by the Fedayeen with troops of the late shah of Iran near the Caspian Sea.

But according to a spokesman for the paramilitary Revolutionary Guards, the leftists tried to march to Tehran University to disrupt Friday prayers on the Moslem sabbath and a speech by Prime Minister Mohamad Ali Rajai, who has the backing of hard-liners

"One person who is a clean Moslem leaked the plan to authorities," said the Revolutionary Guard. He said members of the Islamic group "Hezbollahi," or "God's Party," confronted the leftists and fighting broke out. He said the leftists were "carrying guns and knives" and "the Fedayeen started shooting."

But other sources said many of those wounded by bullets were leftists. Police reported that "those who have been shot are now hospital-

Deep freeze due in area Sunday

The weatherman's deep freeze will just about engulf the Midland area in the latter half of the weekend when the chilly weather turns frigid.

The mercury is to plunge into the mid-20s tonight and is to rise slowly to the not-so-cozy upper 30s Sunday.

But today, after the early morning clouds lift and the fog dissipates, early spring-like weather is to prevail. By comparison with earlier this week, today's high temperature will be seem like a warming trend; it's to top out in the mid-60s.

Friday's high temperature was 59 degrees, which was far behind the record high of 83 degrees for the date in 1950. The overnight low was 33 degrees, which was nowhere near the high record low of 2 degrees for the

Texas farmers getting more for citrus crop

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) - Florida's freeze-damaged citrus crop has boosted prices for Texas growers, who report no adverse impact from a farmworker's citrus strike.

"We're getting prices now that we normally only get at the beginning of the season," said Jesus Barrera, shipping manager of Frank Lewis Fruit Co. in Alamo.

Barrera said prices usually are high in November and December when quality in the early orange crop is best and demand for gift fruit packages is highest.

'The Florida freeze did have an effect on prices down here. They rose right about when Florida announced an embargo on fruit shipment," he

The $70 million Texas citrus industry, third behind Florida and California, is expected to produce 360,000 tons of grapefruit, 149,000 tons of early-maturing oranges and 89,000 tons of Valencia oranges in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Eighty-three percent of production comes from Hidalgo County.

Les Whitlock, general manager of the Texas Valley Citrus Committee, said Friday prices jumped about $10 a ton after Florida's damaging freeze. He said prices are averaging $85 a ton for early oranges and $80 a ton for Isolated cash sales of $100 ton for Valencias have been reported but almost 98 percent of that variety remains on the tree. About half the grapefruit crop and three-fourths of the early oranges have been harvested, he said.

"We could have done a little better during the Florida embargo but we had that drizzling weather that slowed things down," he said.

The Texas Farmworkers Union, an independent group, called for a "general strike" against the industry three weeks ago. The union wants higher wages and better working conditions in the groves. A roving picket line has demonstrated outside two juice factories, a packing shed and near groves.

"We've had no impact from the strike," Whitlock said.

An official of a large cooperative agrees the strike has not slowed harvesting or shipping. "None at all," was how Tom Newell of RioTex in Edinburg assessed the strike's impact. RioTex has 500 members.

Farmers join Reagan's effort, accept embargo, budget cuts

By LEE LESCAZE The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - President Reagan won a commitment from farmers' representatives Friday to accept budget cuts that will hurt farmers in order to aid the administration's effort to control federal spending.

The farm leaders also refused to criticize the president for failing to move swiftly to lift the Soviet grain embargo, an action he promised during the presidential campaign.

Jim Billington, president of the National Association of Wheat Growers. said the embargo decision "has to do with the foreign policy of this nation; with what is going on in Poland and the rest of the world."

Billington, whose wheat farmers strongly protested President Carter's imposition of the embargo after the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, pledged to work with the administra-

Robert Delano, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, and others in the group that visited Reagan told reporters that although they still want the embargo lifted, "farmers shouldn't be singled out" if the embargo has to continue for national security reasons. They suggested that other commodities be added to the embargo to spread the burden to other sectors of the American economy, or that new concessions be made to farmers to compensate them for the los of sales to the Soviets.

They said, however, that they did not discuss with Reagan specific concessions that the farmers would like. Delano told reporters that the president should be given time to make his

An earlier report from the Colombian radio station Caracol quoted an airport employee as saying the hijackers had threatened to blow up th plane if it was not allowed to leave.

The hijackers seized the plane as it flew here from the town of B ramanga, about 60 miles to the west, according to the governor of North Santander province, Adolfo Martinez Badillo. Cucuta is about 250 miles north northeast of Bogota and three miles from the Venezuelan border.

The radio said 300 Colombian soldiers and 10 army vehicles surrounded the aircraft and that the pilot had told the Cucuta control tower that his next stop under command of the hijackers would be Barranquilla, 260 miles to the north on Colombia's Caribbean coast.

Reagan makes 'talented' appeal

That's where Reagan can make a difference. He can take the political heat off of Congress by using the presidency as a pulpit to convert the populace to his dogma of less government. That includes making cuts in programs ranging from hot lunches for school children to export loans that profit corporations.

Rep. James Jones, chairman of the House Budget Committee, observed that Reagan's Thursday night speech was a good start toward mobilizing broad support for budget cuts.

But, added the Oklahoma Democrat, "It will take all of his communications abilities, coupled with dedication and determination on the part of both the president and the Congress, their programs," Mattox said.

to successfully build the public support required to restrain federal spending.

Another member of the budget committee was less hopeful. "Mr. Reagan is a good speech maker. It's diffiuclt to disagree with his delivery," acknowledged Rep. Jim Mattox, D-Texas. But, he added, "It's one thing to deliver a good speech; it's another to deliver on it.'

Mattox doesn't see Reagan succeeding where other presidents have failed. He says of the budget-cutting package, "I think it's going to fall apart before it ever gets started because you'll find the special interest groups are going to be protecting

Germans protest U.S.-El Salvador policy

By LARRY GERBER Associated Press Writer

BONN, West Germany (AP) - Disputes over U.S. policy in war-torn El Salvador have provoked conflicts on West Germany's streets and in its Parliament similar to the Vietnam War protests of 10 years

One newspaper called the issue a political "hot potato" that threatens to strain U.S. West German relations and split the Social Democratic Party of Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.

Some 15,000 demonstrators shouting "Yankee go home" smashed windows and attacked Americanowned cars Jan. 31 in Frankfurt, a city with a large radical student population and 76,000 U.S. troops stationed nearby.

The United States has granted the Salvadoran junta $5 million in military aid to fight leftist guerrillas trying to overthrow the regime. Demonstrations protesting the aid also were organized in Mexico, Costa Rica and Nicaragua last month.

Karsten Voight, a Social Democratic member of Parliament, addressed the Frankfurt demonstrators last week and accused the military junta in El Salvador of crimes against its citizens. He called on U.S. President Reagan to negotiate with the leftist guerrilla opposition.

The day before the demonstration, visiting Salvadoran resistance leaders met in Bonn with leading members of the Social Democrats.

The opposition Christian Democrats support the junta, and the Reagan administration's policies on Central America.

Christian Democrat Secretary-General Heiner Geissler expressed support for junta leader Jose Napolean Duarte during a recent fact-finding visit to El Salvador, an act seen as opportunism by many

"Geissler obviously is trying to make himself and, even more so, his party, appear to the Americans as the better ally," the independent newspaper Stuttgarter Zeitung said in an editorial.

'As legitimate as its efforts to regain power in Bonn are, the CDU definitely should not use delicate foreign policy problems for promoting its domestic political aims.

Members of both parties were staying in touch with their counterparts in El Salvador through party and other non-government channels, informed

'Our foreign policy appears to be shaped by Mr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," said the newspaper Frankfurter Allgemeine, an independent, national daily with conservative editorial views.

"In Berlin we praise the faithful American protectors, in El Salvador we denounce them as ugly

The government itself has been urging restraint. 'verbal referee" in Central America, and policy official, who asked not to be identified. makers appeared to be waiting to see how far the Reagan administration would go in its support tense interest in an area so far from its borders

But privately, some senior Bonn government officials have told reporters they fear U.S. support for rightist governments in Central America will only pave the way for greater Cuban and Soviet influence potential dangers closer to their own borders,"

"Washington is making the same mistake it made unrest in Poland. An official spokesman said West Germany was not a with the Shah in Iran," said one Foreign Ministry

> One Western diplomat said West Germany's Inseemed "odd.

> 'It does appear to have a diversionary aspect,' 'he said. "The Germans appear to be paying more attention to problems in El Salvador than the referring to the explosive situation caused by labor

"If anyone is looking for a cause, (El Salvador) is an easy one," said the diplomat, who declined to be identified.

Frankfurt has long been a gathering place for expatriates, and third-world revolutionary movements are a favorite cause of young liberals and leftists. More than five times the expected number of people turned out for the anti-U.S. protest last week, Salvadoran expatriates and West German church

'Impossible' surgery on brain successful

By VICTOR COHN The Washington Post

BALTIMORE - The operation on the back of the brain had been called

The occluded artery that had to be cleaned out was no larger around than a drinking straw. It was buried well beneath the skull and was surrounded by some of the body's most delicate nerves and brain structures. At most, only an inch and a half of its length could be reached, and no one knew whether that might do more harm than good.

But 14 months ago, Johns Hopkins neurosurgeon George S. Allen successfully did what surgeons had been calling impossible.

Operating on a 60-year-old Baltimore teaching nun who had been having repeated attacks of dizziness and hallucinations - tiny, temporary strokes that can presage a major and crippling one - he first removed a 2-by-3-inch piece from the back of her skull.

Then, in a 101/2-hour operation, peering through an operating microscope and painstakingly wielding instruments like long needles, he lifted an offending chunk of yellowish cholesterol from that straw-like artery. In medical parlance, he had successfully removed an atherosclerotic plaque that was preventing an adequate blood supply from reaching the

This month, sure at last that his patient is well, he published his results in a neurosurgical journal.

And Thyrsday Johns Hopkins Hospital introduced the patient: a healthy and vigorous-looking Sister Regina Marie Albert, a mathematics teacher at a Baltimore high school.

The cautious Allen told a news conference only that the operation had been a success so far, and "we do not know whether or not it will really prove safe and effective" and prevent strokes in other patients.

But a surgeon at a large Washington hospital, asked to comment, said: "Dr. Allen has done a very exciting thing. I see no theoretical reason why this operation should not be repeated now, and I predict it will be done at least by the hundreds."

In short, the operation could give medicine a new weapon against the common kind of brain damage known as stroke. Nearly a half million Americans have strokes every year. Nearly 200,000 die annually of a stroke or its aftermath. And strokes cause one-fifth of all senility in the

For her part, Allen's patient, a member of the School Sisters of Notre Dame, told Thursday how she teaches regularly and takes daily walks and rides on an exercise cycle.

"The doctors had told me there was a great possibility that I would have a stroke," she said. "I had seen many of our sisters who had had strokes, and they were really helpless.

"I would rather have died under the surgery than fived to be a vegetable or be dependent on other people.

Allen said he did not want to exaggerate the operation's importance. At most, he and his colleagues calculated, it might help about 212 percent of potential stroke victims; that is, those with a blockage in an accessible section of either of the two vertebral arteries at the back of the skull healthy, refugees of a Laotian tribe who reportedly apparently caused similar deaths at the time, he fought for the U.S. cause in Vietnam. At least nine said. have died from unexplained causes in the past two years, many after awakening in the night, screaming in pain.

In Portland, Ore., Dr. Larry Lewman, Multnomah County medical examiner, noticed the similarities tion of large amounts of rice. among four of the deaths there, two in 1980 and two more in January. He checked with medical authorities in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area, where there is a fairly large refugee community and found five more such deaths during the past two years.

Of the nine, eight came from the mountainous Hmong Tribe, which, according to published reports. had been enlisted by the Central Intelligence Agency during the war. A spokesman for the CIA in Washington said the agency does not comment on such Sudden, unexplained deaths are seen from time to time by n redical people. "We see sud len deaths like this that we can't explain sometimes." Lewman said. "But this is an extremely high incidence for such a small group of people." The Hmong in Portland number about 2,000 of the city's Indochinese population of 10,000.

Autopsies on the Laotians failed to uncover any apparent cause of death, the medical examiner said. More detailed laboratory analysis of body fluids and tissue is continuing, he said.

The connection of the Hmong with the Vietnam war, and the mention of the CIA, triggered speculation that some kind of nerve gas may have been involved. But Lewman discounted this thinking, saying he had found no indication of any nerve disorders. He also said that since any such exposure would have taken place several years ago, it probably would have shown up earlier.

A Hmong tribesman now living in Montana told The Oregonian newspaper in Portland that he knows of at least a dozen similar mysterious deaths among Laotian tribal refugees.

The tribesman, Vang Pao, who said he commanded a secret CIA-backed army of Hmong, added that he believes the deaths were caused by chemicals or nerve gas droppe d on Laos by North Vietnam. Vang said the other deaths have occurred in Texas, Michigan, Iowa, Pennsylvania and Orange County, Calif., but this has not been confirmed.

Coppola puts up assets to qualify for bank loan

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Francis Coppola is putting up $1 million of his personal assets week by week so he can qualify for a bank loan at 21 per cent interest to finish his latest multimillion-dollar film, "One from the

"I'm always in financial trouble," the producer said Wednesday. His Las Vegas musical is three days into shooting and in danger of running out of money. But he says, "I'm not going to stop. I've got it all

However, Coppola said he has been forced to close the story department of his Zoetrope Studio "and unless I find remedies the rest may be taken away, piece by piece."

The trouble started, he said, when he decided to film "One from the Heart" not in Las Vegas, but on the eight Zoetrope stages where he could create a surreal Las Vegas. That added $6 million to the budget, and Coppola's finances were already stretched thin.

He estimates "One from the Heart" may cost as much as $23 million but he hopes to save $3 million by his new mode of shooting.

"The electronic cinema will make all functions of movie making more efficient" Coppola predicted. "By putting everything on (magnetic video) tape, you can pump images around like hot and cold water and rearrange the material, which means editing, instantly.'

Earlier this week Coppola told The New York Times he had averted bankruptcy by pledging $1 million of his personal holdings, including San Francisco real estate, as collatoral for a bank loan. The loan was necessary when foreign investors changed their minds about putting $8 million into the new film

'To get through each week of shooting, I will have to put up one million week by week from the real estate package that represents all of my personal assets, until I've put up the eight million," he told the

Robbing Peter to pay Paul is nothing new to Coppola. He invested his "Godfather" earnings and mortgaged his Napa Valley house and car to make "Apocalypse Now" at $31.5 million. As soon as that film started earning money, he bought an old Hollywood studio for $6.7 million and began turning it into a latter-day Twentieth Century-Fox

'Piaf' opens on Broadway

NEW YORK (AP) -"I regret nothing." The defiant anthem of Edith Piaf, that lusty, childlike, emotional and doomed French songbird whose 47 years were filled with tragedy, scandal, spirit and amour.

Were she alive, she might regret "Piaf," at least the U.S. version. It bowed Thursday on Broadway, starring henna-haired Jane Lapotaire in the title role she created in London in

Written by Pam Gems, "Piaf" is said to have caused a stir in London with its obscenity-filled look at the stormy, loverlittered life of the tiny lady in black they called "the little songbird."

May not be much stir here. This edition, with a cast of 14, is an emotional but mechanical recitation of the rise and sad burnout of the star who first entertained as a streetwalker in Paris.

It's a story both of spirit and disintegration. But there are few surprises. It swiftly becomes a series of predictable ups and downs, periodically interrupted by songs sung partly in French, partly in English.

It's told chronologically. This wouldn't be bad if we didn't already know the story and its outcome. Worse, detail runs rampant. The dramatic concept seems: Too Much Is Not Enough.

It starts with a club owner's discovery of Piaf's singing. This comes as she works the streets with another young prostitute, her lifelong pal, Toine (Zoe Wanamaker), who later in life works "another shift" — a respectable marriage that produces three kids.

Little is spared thereafter: Piaf's constant couplings; her tragic love for a married boxer who dies in a plane crash; the unexpected success she can't handle; the wartime years; the near-fatal car crash; the American tour; the destructive morphine addiction; the lament that show-biz and the fans care nothing about Piaf the human being.

On and on it goes, played out on David Jenkins' stark set, in the center of which is a three-piece band, above which is a huge red neon abstraction that turns blue to signal major moments of woe.

There are many such moments. Pretty soon you're numb, even though Miss Lapotaire's Piaf isn't played as a self-pitying victim. She's brash, loves to shock, a cheerfully amoral imp with a lust for life, full of the language of the gutter whence she comes.

Even her darkest moments swiftly give way to brave, bawdy, fourletter humor. Only near the end of her rapidly disintegrating life does the underlying sadness NEW YORK (AP) — With the hardy "Dallas" once again in top place, CBS is the No. 1 network in CBS, however, had "Dallas" prime time for the eighth straight week, according to figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co.

CBS had only four of the 10 top programs in the week ending Feb. 1 compared to five for NBC. However, it leads the ratings competition for the season to date by both standards in effect - its own, which sets the start of the 1980-81 season at Oct. 27, and that of NBC, which maintains programming for the new TV year began Sept. 15 despite an actors'

NBC is No. 2 for the year by its own yardstick. The network has been runner-up in the weekly competition four times in the past five weeks.

Of the five NBC shows in the Top 10 for the week ending Feb. 1, four were on Wednesday night, when ABC pre-empted its entire schedule for a three-hour news special, "America Held Hostage: The Secret Negotiations." The program had been broadcast the

Jhe Evening Star The brilliant evening star is a symbol of many things to many folk. Mariners hail it as a good omen, for it usually forecasts a clear, calm night and smooth sailing. The shepherd tending his flock on a desolate hillside gratefully notes its appearance in the heavens, for its friendly light offers an intangible sort of companionship during his lonely vigil. To many, the star is representative of God's infinite power and wisdom. Just as this star touches hearts in countless different ways, so may the Church bring to those in all walks of life, peace and comfort which lead to a hap-

Filipinos raising funds to pay for Pope's visit

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Filipinos have been making special donations at Sunday Mass and holding benefits, such as basketball games and movies, to help defray the costs of the six-day visit of Pope John Paul II starting Feb. 17. The pontiff will visit nine cities and expenses are expected to run high.

No specific figure has been set but Felix Bautista, director of the media center for the papal visit, said "the amount could be very staggering."

He added that the church, for example, is being charged $30,000 for telephone lines and $45,000 for a sound system. He said the budgeted expenses for speaking platforms in Manila alone is $225,000.

Most of the expenditures are being raised by the Roman Catholic Church of the Philippines and civic groups. Bautista said big business firms have been approached for large dona-

It is the first trip by the much-traveled John Paul to the Orient. He is to visit Japan and the American island of Guam in addition to a hectic schedule covering some 1,700 miles through the Philippine archipelago.

In the first ceremony of its kind outside Europe, the pontiff will beatify 16 martyrs in Manila. He will address Catholics in China and the Soviet Union via a powerful shortwave radio from a Manila suburb, join a university youth rally, address the poor in a Manila slum, give awards to local media people and meet privately with local Chinese, with diplomats and with Moslem representatives.

He will say Mass in public parks, on airport runways and in sight of the pyramid-like Mayon volcano, ride in motorcades through a half dozen cities, visit poor sugar workers and their planter bosses in Bacolod, meet with lepers and greet Indochinese refugees in their camp at Bataan.

The pope also is to spend two hours with President Ferdinand E. Marcos at Malacanang Palace.

"We gave the Holy Father three schedules to chose from, and he picked the most hectic one," said Cardinal Jaime Sin, archbishop of

A sensitive thermometer that reads minute variations in a woman's temperature determines when she is infertile.

For Roman Catholics obedient to the church's strictures against artificial birth control, the only acceptable form of contraception is the rhythm method, which also is based on determining the period of infertility.

Father Anton Mowat, a spokesman for the Roman Catholic Church in England and Wales, said the new device "would be perfectly acceptable for use by Catholic couples as it does not interfere with the process of the transmission of life."

different from any of the other methods which are acceptable to the church, and in fact it is obviously easier and sounds more accurate.'

A Vatican spokesman. Rev. Romeo Panciroli, said the Vatican would not comment until it had seen the details of the plan.

The inventors - a World Health Organization team of three Britons and an American call the device an "intelligence thermometer, and say it has proved 100 percent reliable in recording the fertility cycles of 500 women who took part in tests.

Dr. Heinz Wolff, 52year-old head of the bioengineering unit of the Medical Research Council here, described the "intelligence thermometer" Thursday.

The woman places the thermometer in her mouth for three minutes. A lead connects the thermometer to a bedside clock containing a micro-chip computer which gives a green "go ahead" light when her temperature indicates she is infertile.

Proposed foreign aid upsets agency

NEW YORK (AP) - Church World Service has expressed "its alarm" at cuts proposed in E.S. foreign aid by President Reagan's budget director — cuts also opposed by the new secretary of state, Alexander M. Haig Jr. The agency, international relief arm of the National Council of Churches which carries on relief work in 70 countries, cited a proposed $2.6 billion cut in the $8 billion foreign aid program proposed for 1982 by the former Carter

"The reductions in aid would mainly affect the poor countries of Africa and the Asian subcontinent," the agency's committee says. "The primary casualties are likely to be many of the poorest developing countries and poorest people

The statement adds that even without cuts, U.S. foreign aid programs "represent an inadequate U.S. contribution" to alleviating serious human

Pope taking more foreign language

VATICAN CITY (AP) - Pope John Paul II, fluent in a half dozen languages, is studying a couple more in preparation for his trip to the Far East - Japanese and Tagalog, the native language of the Philippines.

Besides his native Polish, the pope speaks Italian, French, German, English and Spanish, and has a working knowledge of at least six other languages. In preparation for his trip Feb. 16-26, he was reported concentrating on Japanese since in the Philippines he can get by most of the time with English and

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A national leader of the Baptist Church today told state officials and delegates to the Texas Conference of Churches that "electronic churchmen" aid divisiveness.

"We can't jump on the black and white bandwagon of the electronic churchmen who have belatedly taken up an involvement in politics which they, until recently, denounced," said the Rev. James M. Dunn, national director of the Baptist joint committee on public affairs.

Dunn addressed the traditional legislative breakfast - attended by church delegates, legislators and state officials - at the annual assembly of representatives of the Texas Conference of

Convict escapes as jurors read judge letter of praise

SEATTLE (AP) - Judge George T. Mattson impressed the jurors at his first felony trial so much that they read him a letter of praise. But the defendant, who had just been convicted, put a damper on the celebration by slipping out of the court-

"The defendant was directed to sit down and wait for custody officers," Deputy Prosecutor Fred Yeatts said of Thursday's incident in the King County Superior courtroom. "I turned my back. Then he was gone. It took the custody officers no longer than two to three minutes to arrive. But by then it was too late.' Yeatts said a witness overhead defendant Leroy

.36 11 x113 9 7% 8%+13 Reagan's forecast sounds optimistic

WASHINGTON (AP) -Unemployment remained at 7.4 percent of the labor force in January despite an increase of 410,000 in jobholders - figures the Reagan administration said Friday only confirmed the need for passage of the president's economic recovery program.

Twelve hours after President Reagan declared the economy was "in the worst...mess since the Great Depression," the Labor Department reported that 7.8 million people were out of work last month, 62,-000 more than the month before.

The national unemployment rate was the same as in December and little different from rates of previous months.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said 97,7 million persons held jobs last month, an increase of more than 400,000. Improvement in the unemployment situation for blacks and adults was offset by worsened figures for teen-agers and Hispanics.

The overall unemployment rate has hovered between 7.4 percent and 7.6 percent since May.

Janet Norwood, commissioner of labor statistics, said "the January labor market indicators provide mixed signals on the economy." "When adjusted for seasonal movements, both the payroll and the household surveys showed some evidence of strength," Ms. Norwood told the congressional Joint Economic Committee. "Employment increased and the factory work week continued to rise."

But Murray Weidenbaum, designated as chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, called the January unemployment figures "further evidence our economy appears to be stuck on a plateau. "Reagan believes strong action is needed to restore productivity growth, cut inflation and put Americans back to work," Weidenbaum said in a statement released by the White House. "The program he will announce on Feb. 18 is designed to do that." In a nationally broadcast address Thursday night, Reagan said the country faces an "economic calamity" unless it moves quickly to stem inflation, spur new business investment and create jobs with accompanying reductions in income tax rates, federal spending and government rule-mak-

'We have come to a turning point. We're threatened with an economic calamity of tremendous proportions and the old business-asusual treatment can't save us," he said.

Reagan's address was generally well-received in Congress, although many lawmakers said they wanted to hear more specifics about the president's plans to cut taxes and government spending.

In another development, the Senate was poised to take action on Reagan's avowedly reluctant request for an increase in the government debt ceiling. Under consideration was a Housepassed bill increasing the government's borrowing authority from $935 billion to $985 billion. January's unchanged unemployment rate occurred even as the work force was expanding by 475,000 persons, the first sizable increase since last July. The work force includes those who have jobs and those who do not but are actively seeking work. It does not include so-called "discouraged workers," those who have given up efforts to find jobs. The government said some 1.1 million people were in this category in

Task force checking out Reagan's regulatory powers

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON - In the breathing period permitted by President Reagan's 60-day freeze, a task force of regulatory experts is determining how much leverage the president has to reverse, reopen and redirect the environmental, health and safety regulations that Reagan and his aides say have "shackled" the economy.

The administration's leverage is limited in some cases by specific congressional directives, and in others by political factors. Even so, Reagan's deregulators believe they can have a direct impact on scores of major rulings by executive branch agencies like the Environmental Protection Agency and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration - two agencies whose economic impact is particu-

"I think this administration is thinking big on regulatory reform," said James C. Miller III, executive director of the Cabinet-level Task Force on Regulatory Relief headed by Vice President George

The new administration has not yet filled the top posts at EPA or OSHA, but in Miller it has a student of the bureaucracy who served in the Ford administration and spent the Carter years at the American Enterprise Institute in Washington, developing a strategy for deregulation.

Miller, regulatory administrator at the Office of Management and Budget, and other OMB officials are preparing a new presidential executive order that will make "a significant change in the way

50% off On All Fall and Winter Merchandise agencies issue regulations," Miller said this week The order, which could be issued within weeks, will impose "very hard rules" to assure that regulators issue only those rules that are essential and even then impose the least expensive of the alternatives.

One regulatory issue, of the many that Reagan aides are reviewing, illustrates the potential reach and limits of the new administration's deregulation authority. That is the six-year fight over federal control over noise in industrial plants, where daylong sound levels could threaten the hearing of more than 5 million workers. OSHA has called for expensive changes in equipment and plant layout in a General Motors plant where noisy, high-speed stamping presses are used to make auto components. But Miller and Thomas F. Walton, manager of regulatory economics for GM. writing in the September 1980 issue of the AEI publication Regulation. contend that the problem could be solved by requiring workers to wear ear plugs or ear muffs. The costs of equipping workers with ear protection would be much less expensive than the OSHA plan. which could require construction of an addition to the plant to permit the machines to be spread farther apart and surrounded with sound-deadening enclo-

OSHA's policy is centered in two regulations: A basic 1974 Noise Exposure Standard requires that when workplace noise exceeds an average of 90 decibels over an eight-hour day (or higher levels for briefer periods), employers must make engineering ch$nges in machinery or reduce the workers' exposure to noise by limiting their time on the job. Only when these controls aren't feasible does the regulation permit companies to use ear muffs and ear plugs

On Jan. 16, in the final week of the Carter administration, OSHA issued a new regulation saying that when the average noise exposure exceeds a lower trigger point of 85 decibels, companies must begin a hearing conservation program, installing noise monitoring equipment to give precise warning when the 90-decibel mark is reached, and establishing testing programs for employes.

According to sound measurement, a bus accelerating from a curb records 85 to 90 decibels. A Boeing 727 jetliner, on takeoff, records 91 decibels when measured one-quarter mile from the side of the

The issue of whether protective equipment should be used instead of the much more costly changes in plant equipment and layout runs thro ighout OSHA's regulatory calendar, usually pitting companies against unions. Attorneys for the unions have opposed the use of masks, respirators and other personal equipment as permanent protection, noting that they often are uncomfortable, interfering with vision and voice communication. Some do not fit well over safety glasses, for example, rullifying their

In Miller's view, however, an OSHA administrator has the discretion under the law to rule that personal protective devices are acceptable methods of meeting noise control standards and other health and safety standards. And because of the vast economic savings resulting from that least-cost approach, the Task Force would not hesitate to ask the new OSHA administrator to consider taking just such a position. Miller told reporters.

"I'm sure we would precipitate a few lawsuits,"

Such a shift by OSHA on the noise issue would permit a much wider use of persona' equipment by companies, safe in the knowledge they were in compliance with federal safety rules. The burden would then fall to unions or other OSHA critics to try to reverse OSHA's rulings by appealing to the independent OSHA Review Commission and, if unsuccessful there, to the federal courts.

Some say Rep. Hinson

- House Republican leaders said Friday they think Rep. Jon C. Hinson, R-Miss., accused of attempted sodomy with another man in a Capitol Hill men's room, should resign from Congress.

An aide to Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said Hinson had not submitted a resignation, and that O'Neill had no com-

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1981

Rebels rout OHS, 70-58

BY BOB DILLON R-T Sports Writer

ODESSA-Alvin Dunson ripped the cords for 25 points Friday night to get the Midland Lee Rebels off to a fast start in the second half of the District 5-5A basketball race in routing the Odessa High Bronchos, 70-58, in the OHS fieldhouse.

Dunson hit all types of shots from the 18 to 15 foot range as Coach Paul Stueckler's crew connected on 33 field goals. It's good that they did because the Rebels were unimpressive at the free throw line, hitting only four of

While Dunson waxed hot with his fine shooting performance, teammates Andre Van Buren and Randy Pepper added to the attack with 14 and 10 points, respectively.

RAYFORD Wright, Odessa's 6-2 senior, led the Broncho attack with 22 points, with 14 of those coming in the second half as the Bronchos trailed the Tall City team 38-18 at half.

The game started slowly with Lee taking a 10-6 first period lead, but with Dunson hitting five field goals in the second period, the Rebels erupted for 28 points to Odessa's 12. Van Buren also hit well in the second period, hitting on five field goals as the frustrated Bronchos were unable to hit effectively from the floor.

Odessa came back in the third quarter to outscore Lee 20-18, but still trailed 56-38 going into the final eight

Lee travels to Big Spring Tuesday with Stueckler a little more optimistic than he was at the end of the first half of the race. "We possibly could be 3-0 after our first three games. And if this happens, we might be a contender in the second half."

STUECKLER added that he was happy that his team was hot from the field because, "We sure didn't do well at the free throw line." Lee is 1-0 in the second half and 12-16 for the year while Odessa is 0-1

Odessa swept the two preliminary games from Lee, winning the sophomore game 60-57 in overtime. Sutton and Barton led Lee with 13 and 10 points, while Rodriquez and Jones scored 18 and 15 for OHS.

In the JV game, Lee just got too far behind and finally fell to the junior Broncos 55-47. John Bailey, who had averaged more than 30 points per game for Odessa, led the way with 24 points while Lee's Jay Pendleton had

How could $21 million disappear?

By ROBERT MAGNUSON

(c) 1981, The Los Angeles Times BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. - How could $21 million disappear from the nation's 12th largest commercial

Bank security experts said Friday that an intricate scheme involving false withdrawals and deposits and the transfer of funds between checking accounts may offer the most plausible explanation of how Wells Fargo fell victim to one of the biggest bank embezzlement scams ever, allegedly involving a bank branch officer, L. Ben Lewis, boxing promoter Harold J. Smith and others connected with Muhammad Ali Professional Sports, Inc. Former champion Ali is not now associated with the organiza-

AND, DESPITE sophisticated security procedures, federal bank regulators warned that there is virtually no way to prevent determined individuals from carrying out such schemes at just about any major bank in the country.

"Reasonably intelligent people with a modestly sophisticated scheme can subvert or manipulate even the best (bank security) system," said one highranking bank regulator. "There is no such thing as a fail-safe proce-

Officials at Wells Fargo Bank refuse to discuss details of the alleged embezzlement. They say it could take weeks or even months before their own auditors and federal investigators can sift thrugh reams of bank records and piece together the puzzle that will explain where the money

Lee girls take 4th in San Antonio golf

SAN ANTONIO-Midland Lee's girls shot rounds of 391-372-763 to take fourth place in the San Antonio Invitational Golf Tournament Friday. Kerrville Tivy won with a 720 while Edinburg was second at 737 and Alice had a 739 for third. Midland High didn't take a full team, but Ann Coombs was third medalist after winning a playoff after rounds of 88-83—171. Other Midland scores: Kelle Mobley shot 87-93-180 and Teresa King 108-98-206.

However, Wells Fargo vice president George Caulfield disputed speculation that computers played an instrumental role in the fraud. "Obviously, everything you do in a bank these days involves a computer," he said Friday, "but you would not consider this a computer fraud."

WELLS FARGO has charged Lewis, a former operations officer in a Beverly Hills branch; Smith, and others connected with Muhammad Ali Professional Sports, Inc., with stealing $21,305,000. Lewis and Smith disappeared around the time that the bank realized that the funds were missing, on Jan. 23.

Donald Parker, a computer fraud expert at SRI International, a Menlo Park, Calif., think tank, said "There are thousands of ways" of siphoning funds out of a bank, adding that he had no direct knowledge of the Wells Fargo affair. But, he emphasized, "the key to the whole thing is debiting accounts - the money has to come from someplace."

The secret to a successful bank fraud, Parker added, depends on a mechanism for covering the shortage of funds in looted accounts before the bank issues its monthly statements.

This reasoning suggests that some of the funds in the Wells Fargo case might have been drained from accounts belonging to unwitting customers. At a branch located in affluent Beverly Hills, some account balances could fluctuate substantially without the knowledge of the depositors.

SRI's Parker cited the example of an officer at a New Jersey bank who transferred funds from accounts selected at random. After taking the money, he destroyed the withdrawal slips, covering up any trace of the fraud. The only problem was that he had to flee with the funds, before the diminished balances showed up at the end of the month.

This scam failed, Parker said, because the bank officer tried to continue the fraud into the next month.

Wells Fargo officials have indicated that the $21 million theft took place over the course of several months at least. This suggests that whoever executed the scheme had a method for covering up the losses, perhaps by transferring funds from other accounts or by forging loan agreements

Big Spring pulls upset; Bobcats skim by Cooper

The San Angelo Bobcats keep playing them close and the Big Spring Steers finally won a big one in District 5-5A basketball action Friday.

San Angelo slipped past Abilene Cooper by a narrow 60-59 score to avenge a loss to the Cougars in the first half. San Angelo is now 1-0 in the second half while Cooper is 0-1.

Big Spring outscored Abilene High 18-10 in the second quarter and went on to take a 48-42 upset over the Eagles. Big Spring had lost by nine to the Eagles in the first half. The Steers are 1-0 in the second half while AHS, a team picked to make a strong run at the title is now 0-1 after finishing the first half with a 4-3 mark. Big Spring won only one game in the first half.

San Angelo's Cody Cox hit a free throw with 54 seconds to give the Bobcats a victory. Cooper then went for a last shot with five seconds left, but Jeff Latham blocked the try by Barry McLeod. Cox led San Angelo with 15 points while Mullins had 11 and Miller 12. Lanny Dycus led Coo-to win that one too, and the 30-7 Bulldogs got to stay home. Friday's game put all that in the back of the mind as the Bulldogs, now 25-3 on the year and 1-0 in district after the second half opener with Permian, are now rolling toward a district title. Even as satisfying as the win over

It was Herbert Johnson's magic that ignited the first period spurt. The 6-foot-9 senior pumped in 14 points in the first period alone as a one-man wrecking crew. He hit seven of 11

Bulldogs storm past Panthers, 81-65

But Johnson went sour in the second period and came up with only three points as Permian wiped out the huge deficit, trailing only by a 41-38 count at the half. In fact, MHS went dead, hitting only four of 17 from the field as Permian hit nine of 14. Rusty Inzer scored all eight of his points in that period to lead the Permian charge, which featured a nine-point run.

Sometimes when you jump out to a big lead early, you lose a little intensity, and that's what happened to us,' MHS coach Jack Stephenson said. "You can't play a better quarter of basketball than we did in the first quarter, but we did lose our intensity. Still, I'm pleased with the way things turned out. It was a big win for us."

Johnson said, "It just didn't fall in the second quarter and I really don't know why, but it was going pretty good there for a while.'

WITH JOHNSON not hitting and Horace Brown, who had 10 points, in foul trouble, the Bulldogs had to have some help and they got it from Mike Velasco and Justin Morrett.

Permian and MHS each scored 17 points in the third period. Mike Williams, who scored 14 points, led Permian with six in the third quarter and the Bulldogs would have been in trouble if it hadn't been for Velasco's three field goals and Morrett's defensive play and five markers in the period. Velasco ended the night with 18 points, hitting 10 of 11 shots from the free throw line. Morrett came off the bench with 11 second half points when Brown was in foul trouble. Morrett did everything right and may have been the most single important factor in the victory.

Velasco said of his performance at the free throw line, "When one shot hit the back of the rim and went straight up before falling through, I knew things were going right. Some-times it's like that and I'm glad it was

MHS PUT the game away in the fourth period when they opened play with 11 unanswered points. Morrett keyed the period with six points and Velasco hit five of six from the line. Permian was held to a mere 10 points in the deciding fourth period while MHS rolled off 23, hitting 17 of 23 foul Permian also got 12 points from Ken Armstrong and 11 from giant center Mike Woolley. No other Bulldogs were in double figures, but 11 got in on the scoring. Steve Miller scored six points with limited playing time.

Midland High, the first half champion with a 7-0 mark, is now one game closer to the championship and every time out against a good team is a giant step. Friday's win was a giant step. At least, they are ahead of last

MHS also won the junior varsity tilt, but with a narrow 62-61 margin. Rob Franklin hit the front end of a one-and-one with three seconds left to ice the decision. Troy Hixon led the Bullpups with nine points and Troy Bush had eight. Permian's Brett Ricky had 15 and Jeff Metcalf 11.

In the sophomore game, Permian rolled to a 50-41 victory as Tyce Harris hit for 16 and Paul Peacock 11. Wes Davis led MHS with 10.

Negotiations move to critical period

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) - Major League baseball's negotiations move into the critical period next week toward forestalling a player strike that could jeopardize the opening of the season April 8.

"We gave them the gun, we gave them the trigger, it's all up to them," insisted wily Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players Association, in an interview this week.

"The pistol is in their hands, not ours," countered Ray Grebey, tough negotiating director for baseball's Player Relations Committee. "They (the players) could have pulled the pistol last May if they wanted nothing to happen."

The rival negotiators, two of the best in the business, talk like gunslingers of the Old West as they seek to resolve the knotty compensation issue which was left hanging when the Players Agreement was signed last

IT'S ANOTHER showdown at the OK Corral.

The outlook is grim. It looks as if somebody is going to get hurt mainly, the game itself. Both sides are obstinate. Both sides show little signs of compromise. Pride and perhaps ever egos are on the line. "Frankly, I am not optimistic."

said Grebey, once negotiator for General Electric in a labor dispute that resulted in a 101-day strike. "They (the players) want us to cave in. We have been giving away for years now and have little left to give. Miller sees no brighter prospect on

"We are making no progress," he said"Every time we put a proposal on the table they knock it down. They say, 'Hey, what the hell is this? What are you giving us?

"IF we offer an idea, they shoot it down. They don't want to explore

"Sure," countered Grebey, "but some of the things offered are worthless. Like the plan to set up a cash pool, or kitty, and parcel out money to the needy clubs at the end of the year. I don't think even the players want

UNLIKE pro football and basketball, in which an effort is made to meaningfully compensate a team losing a player through equivalent talent or draft choices, baseball provides the affected club only with an amateur draft choice, a player who may not be major league worthy for years.

Baseball offered a compensation formula based on the number of teams bidding for the player in the reentry draft. If three teams or less bid, there would be no compensation; if four to seven, only an amateur choice and if eight to 13, an amateur draft choice plus an unprotected professional player.

Crucial week coming up for Chaps

With New Mexico Military Institute and Amarillo College coming up Monday and Thursday nights at the Chaparral Center, Coach Jerry Stone will have his hands full...keeping his Chaparrals' attention centered on the business at hand rather than looking ahead a week.

THE FOLLOWING week MC goes on the road for Howard College at Big Spring Monday and then Frank Phillips College at Borger Thursday.

Stone won't have any trouble getting his team's attention for those games. Both beat Midland by two points in the first half of play, the only blots on the Chaps' record this season. The real coaching job will come this week against a couple of teams that are out of the playoff running and consequently will be playing without inhibitions.

Amarillo, of course, is a team Stone has fretted over since the year's start, although the Chaps own two victories over the Badgers. Stone had his fears substantiated last week when Amarillo blew out Howard, 98-71, the game that enabled MC to climb back into first place...

A WEEKLY Wednesday night barbeque at Connors offers Midland College basketball boosters and fans to meet the Chaparrals. It's an informal get together, one in which Booster Larry Freeman and Chap Ernie Tate make the only speeches.

Backers of the MC cage program pair off with Chaps and share a meal with the cagers, which provides an opportunity to get to know the players as more than a distant face on the court or name in the box score...

JOHN HALL, a 6-4 freshman from Cleveland, Miss., received scholarship offers from Jacksonville State, South Alabama, Ole Miss, Mississippi State, Alabama-Birmingham and Mississippi State, to name a few, after graduating from Cleveland's East High, but wo find up at. MC because of Archie Myers, MC assistant who also hails from Cleveland.

"I knew with Coach Myers here, there would be someone who would take a personal interest in me," he explains the choice.

Closer to home. Lance McCain played his high school ball at Andrews and enrolled at Midwestern University in Wichita Falls, but wasn't happy there. So this year Lance transferred to MC, where he is a freshmen, who in the last month has blended nicely into Stone's offensive

Lance grew up in Ingelwood, Calif., in Los Angeles and moved to Andews after finishing junior high. There's still some California left in him, since he hopes to finish college at USC

YOU HAVE to have seen Ernie Tate play for the Chaps to appreciate this one. Ernie has been the People's Choice at Chaparral Center for the past two seasons because of the ferocity and vigor with which he attacks the game of basketball. Highlight of any Chap game is when Big Ernie gets caught for goal-tending after one of his tremendous leaps or when he brings down the house with a blocked shot.

The subject of middle names came up and Virgil Slay admitted, blushingly, that his was "Antoine". Ernie wormed it out of him, and was then put on the witness stand himself,

"What's your middle name, Ernie?"

"It's 'D', just a big 'D'," the sophomore from the Bronx sidestepped lightly.

"Yes, but what does 'D' stand for?"

"Dangerous!" Subject closed.

Baseball's first Black manager becomes its fourth, too

By MARK HEISLER

(c) 1981, The Los Angeles Times LOS ANGELES - Three years after Frank Robinson's demise as manager of the Cleveland Indians, he got a phone call from Bob Lurie, the owner of the San Francisco Giants, asking if he'd be interested in managing Lurie's team.

Shortly affter that, baseball had its fourth black manager.

Robinson ran the Indians from opening day of 1975 to June of 1977. "June 18, 1977," he says, just to show he hasn't forgotten. June 18 was Father's Day and Robinson had compiled the best career record of an Indians manager in 12 years, but they let him go anyway.

This might sound a little unusual, especially since Cleveland officials now concede privately that Robinson had become a pretty good manager by the time that they fired him. But if you look at Robinson's 2 1-2 years, it wasn't much of a trick, getting fired with a decent record. There had been a lot of passion in 2 1-2 years. Some Indians players were going to the club owner, Ted Bonda, asking that Robinson be retained. Others were going to the general manager, Phil Seghi, asking that Robinson be fired.

THE FIRING was followed by a silence that led Robinson to wonder if he'd been blackballed.

"I didn't think I'd get another managing job. It wasn't anything as far as my color. It was just that I was fired nization about a job.' Between mid-1977 and Jan. 14, 1981, Robinson got one offer, but only to be a coach, from Dave Garcia who was then managing the California Angels. Robinson says, he was invited back by Garcia and then fired by Angels Vice President Buzzie Bavasi.

It would be nice to say that whatever happened to Robinson had happened to him, not because he was black, but because he was a manager and managers are hired to be fired, etc. It would also be a little naive. Not only had baseball not had a black manager before Robinson, it had never had a tough black manager.

ROBINSON made up for that in a hurry. He fined players, sent one home from a road trip and challenged another in the dugout. He took on the entire American League umpiring staff and finally he took off on his boss, Seghi.

He was asked recently if things might not have been simpler if he'd walked softer. "Things probably would have been simpler," Robinson said, "but it wouldn't have been massive. That was in 1947.

When Frank Robinson became manager, nobody wanted or expected him to sit still for anything, or nobody said they wanted him to, anyway. That was progress of a sort.

That was a good thing since Frank Robinson was pretty assertive. Eight years after Jackie Robinson broke in, Frank was playing minor league ball in Columbia, S.C., when a fan started yelling "nigger" at him. Robinson went into the stands with a bat and chased him into the parking lot.

"I waited until after the game, though," Robinson says. "The guy had really been getting personal. I wasn't going to jump into the stands because someone called me 'nigger.' If I did that, I'd have been in there after every pitch.'

He went on to become an 11-time all-star, the only man to win an MVP in both leagues. He was widely admired and a little feared for his ferocity - any second baseman who stayed on the bag trying to complete a double play with Robinson coming down was toying with his life - but Robinson had a good sense of humor,

IN 1975, the Indians gave Robinson a one-year contract as player-manager. On his first at-bat, before 56,204 people at Cleveland on opening day, Robinson hit a home run. Gaylord Perry, the team's star pitcher and a native of Williamston, N.C., was the first man out of the dugout to greet year before, went 79-80.

When it was over, Robinson called his first season "brutal," although he says now that he was only talking about the time he had to spend being interviewed.

One or two other unpleasant things had happened, though, starting with Perry, who had been a problem from the moment it became apparent that Robinson would be named manager. Perry announced that he wanted to be paid $1 more than Robinson.

The next spring Gaylord made clear his dissatisfaction with Robinson's drills ("We're not running the marathon....Some superstar who never pitched a game in his life is telling us how to get ready.") The drills and the pay were only part of The Indians, who'd been 77-85 the' what was happening. Perry reportedly told friends privately that he would not play for a black man.

There were other problems, including catcher John Ellis, whom Robinson challenged one day in the dugout. And Jerry Neudecker, an umpire, whom Robinson bumped in his second month on the job, for which he was suspended three days. And the rest of the AL umpires. Robinson's 79-80 first season was the Indians' best in eight years. Robinson asked for a multiyear contract but Seghi insisted on another one-year

"Soghi said that was his rule," Ropinson says. "I asked him why it was OK to give players more than a oneyear contract and coaches more than a one-year contract and to give himself more than a one-year contract. He said we were working on different levels.

The Indians went 81-78 in Robinson's second season, which still stands as their best record since 1968. But by the time Robinson began his third season, with his last one-year contract, there were rumbles that he was in trouble. Robinson thinks that Seghi started the rumbles that destabilized him, then used the unrest to fire him.

"In '77, we got off to a so-so start. Before a game in June, Phil and Ted Bonda came down to the clubhouse and asked for a meeting with me and my coaches.

'Seghi had a habit of not talking to me but through me. He took the floor and started asking my coaches questions: Why doesn't this guy take a bigger lead off first base? My first base coach, Rocky Colavito, says, 'I tell the guy to take a bigger lead, what do you want me to do, push him

"Finally I slammed the desk. I thought I'd broken my hand. I said, 'That's it. I'm the manager and if you have anything to say, say it to me. The coaches just follow my orders.

NOT LONG after that came Father's Day, by the end of which Robinson was unemployed.

"Never at any time did I ever discuss with anyone what I was doing in the confines of my office," Seghi said from Cleveland. "At no time did I put out leaks. It's absolutely untrue.
"I think Frank has become more mature. Maybe if we'd been more patient, that would have happened while he was here. I'm glad he has another opportunity. He deserves

There had been some suspicion that once the pressure was off, once A Black Had Been Named Manager, everyone would go back to the old ways. Robinson wondered if the world was progressive enough that a black who was fired could get hired again. But in 1978, Larry Doby managed the White Sox for half a season, in 1980 Maury Wills beame the manager of the Seattle Mariners and now Robinson is back.

Robinson starts in San Francisco with a two-year contract. An egalitarian society is one step closer.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - Undefeated Greg Page, said by some to resemble a young Muhammad Ali, goes against hardpunching Stan Ward in a 12-rounder Saturday for the vacant U.S. Boxing Association heavyweight title.

Page, 22, ranked fourth by the World Boxing Association, wants to use his bout against Ward to break into boxing's bigtime - a shot at the world title.

Page was 97-11 as an amateur and has won 14 straight fights as a professional, includin 12 by knockouts.

"This is a test to see if I'm ready for the big fights," says Page. "So far, I've hands and quick combinations, moving in never-ending circles and knocking out opponents early. Unlike Ali, though, Page is subdued outside the ring

"Muhammad Ali was the greatest fighter of all time," Page says. "But I'm a lot more

Harrelson sees no end to Red Sox' tailspin

Compiled from R-T wire services

The Boston Red Sox are "in disarray, confused and chaotic," and may finish in sixth place in the American League East, according to Ken Harrelson, a Bosox telecaster and former star outfielder. "I don't see them as a contending team anymore ... and I can't stand what's happening to them," blaming GM Haywood Sullivan for making them "almost the laughing stock of the American League.

When Dick O'Connell left in 1978 — he was fired as general manager — the Red Sox had a potential dynasty," Harrelson said. "Now in 1981 we are almost devastated." Sullivan has traded outfielder Fred Lynn and shortstop Rick Burleson, to California and may lose catcher Carlton Fisk as a free agent. Both traded because the Sox said they couldn't meet the players' salary demands. "If they didn't have the money to pay Lynn and Burleson, they can't afford to own the ball club," said Harrelson....

Pat Haden wants to be traded if he's destined for another quarterback backup role behind Vince Ferragamo with the Los Angeles Rams, although returning to the starting lineup would present problems too. Color snowless Rockies deep Red

By ANDREW ROSENTHAL

Associated Press Writer Ski resort operators in the Rocky Mountains, already millions of dollars in the red after three nearly snowless months, say they hope recent storms that left more than six feet of new snow on some mountains will help usher in a profitable

But resort officials admit it will be impossible to recoup between now and April the losses they suffered until the snow finally started flying in late January, and weather forecasters say they don't see a dramatic reversal in the dry weather pattern

despite the recent storm. "That storm was a one-time thing," said National Weather Service forecaster Jim Schultz in Denver. "We've got that high-pressure ridge back over the western face of the Rockies. The moisture blows up over the Pacific Northwest and into southwestern Canada and then goes around down into the Great Plains.'

ONE NOTABLE exception to the downturn in the industry is Sun Valley, Idaho - an area that normally does its best business in the late spring but already has taken in 20 percent more revenue than last year, resort spokeswoman Kathy Hoy said Wednesday.

"Business is excellent," said Hoy. 'Christmas was full. Every flophouse from Stanley, Idaho, to Twin Falls was booked. We also had a very good

But throughout the rest of the Rocky Mountain West — famous for its "champagne powder" skiing conditions - snowfall is off as much as 60 percent and attendance at ski areas has dropped as much as 30 percent.

IN COLORADO alone, state officials estimate the dry weather has meant lost revenues of more than $30 million to ski resort operators and the hotel, restaurant and shop owners that make their livings from the skiing mountains.

Lift ticket sales alone dropped by $7 million — or more than 500,000 tickets - through Jan. 1, according to the University of Coloraddo's Business Research Center.

Until the recent nows dumped 40 inches on the Jackson Hole ski area, the Wyoming ski mountain had only about 400 skiers a day, said resort president Bruce Nurse. Now, there are about 2,500 skiers a day, he said.

'We lost $1 million in revenues during December and January, Nurse said. "Teton Village (at the base of the mountain) lost about $3 million and the loss for Jackson Hole (businesses) was about $6 million." Utah ski mountains got between five and six feet of new snow in a December and January that saw a 30 percent drop in revenue. But, noted Julie Lawson of Park

IN SOUTHWEST Montana, the Bridger Bowl ski area near Bozeman did not open until Jan. 26, and expects to get only about 70,000 skier visits insteads of the 150,000 that originally were projected, said resort manager Terry Abelin.

Some ski area operators blamed what they perceived as unfair negative publicity for some of their loss in

"It was almost impossible to get the word out when people saw pictures of chairlifts with bare grass under them," said Nurse at Jackson Hole.

In an effort to counter the bad image, many ski areas in the Rockies are offering discount tickets and specially priced packages including lifts and accomodations, or are starting intensive advertising campaigns.

The three-mountain Aspen Skiing Corp. in Colorado is buying newspaper space heavily on the West and East coasts, said resort spokesman Jack Brendlinger.

"At least the cancellations have stopped," he said. "We hope the advertising will help."

Officials at Vail Mountain in the central Colorado Rockies plan to spend $20,000 this month in radio advertising aimed at Midwestern skiers, said resort spokesman Jon

COLORADO SKI Country U.S.A., an industry promotional group, has started a "regional media blitz" concentrating on 11 cities considered prime territory — Atlanta, Dallas, Houston, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Kansas City, Saint Louis, Minneapolis, Chicago, New York and Miami.

In addition, Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm said this week he had appropriated $10,000 in emergency funds to set up toll-free telephone lines providing up-to-date ski information.

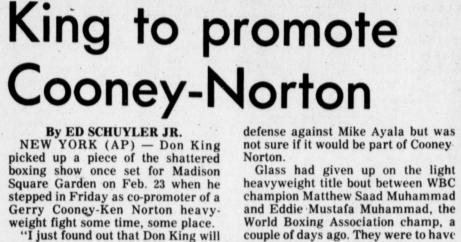

But, Lamm said, "We cannot have large programs to relieve impacts of drought and I don't want to raise expectations needlessly."

TEE TIME

Our apologies for the difficulty everyone had trying to get tee times Friday morning. The telephone was in need of repairs and would not ring or connect. Curt Raney insisted I be sure to let everyone know, contrary to popular belief, that he did not oversleep.

Feb. 1-3 the Northern Texas Section of the PGA held its annual meeting in Dallas. Major topics discussed were: 1. clubs for kids' programs. 2. junior golf-a-thons. 3. travel pro-ams, and 4. the North Texas Golf Academy. We will keep you up to date with each program as they are formulated.

The NT Golf Academy for 1981 will consist of three sessions, the first will be for boys and will run June 7-12. The second session will be for boys also and run from June 14-19. The third session will be coed and will run from June 21-26. Junior golfers between the ages of 12 and 17 are urged to attend the academy.

A primary objective of the PGA is to promote growth of the game with the development of junior golfers. PGA professionals make significant contri-butions to this development through the NTGA and separator pressure, in particular for a closed rotative gas lift system, may show a tremendous rate of return on investment.

 Working example problems to show: (a) the rate possible by natural flow, (b) the rate possible by artificial lift.

WE WILL SHOW YOU:

· How a change in separator pressure will save money withno loss in production. · How a change in flowline size or separator pressure may prevent buying additional compressor H.P. for gas lift. · How increasing the perforation shot density may double the production on gas wells. · Why the tubing size may be

Farmers sagging profits may be below prediction

WASHINGTON (AP) - Many farmers are encountering sagging profits this winter and may wind up government experts had been pre-

'Commodity prices have been under pressure in recent weeks from favorable crop prospects in some Southern Hemisphere countries, larger-than-expected meat supplies, and high interest rates," a preliminary report by the Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

Also, it showed farmers' net income in 1980 at about $23 billion, a drop of more than 25 percent from $31 billion in 1979. Two months ago, a similar report estimated last year's net farm income in a range of $23 billion to $25 billion was no 1981 farm income forecast beyond midyear in the latest report. In December, officials said farm income this year could rebound sharply this year, "perhaps regaining all the loss of 1980.

For all of 1981, the previous reports - including one last November said net farm income might rise to between $27 billion and $32 billion.

The latest report said farmers in the first three months are expected to have an annual rate of net income of $22 billion to $24 billion. Two months ago the first quarter's forecast was for an annual rate of $24 billion to $26

The forecast for the second quarter. April-June, was unchanged at $26 billion to $28 billion.

An annual rate, in this case, means that if farm income during a threemonth period held steady over the entire 12 months, that would be farmers' net income for the calendar
