

'Cold-hearted' valentine on ice

By DAVID PYLE
Associated Press Writer

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — It was early in World War II and the soldiers said they would keep it until she came back to Omaha.

Now, 40 years after a greenish-blue, heart-shaped block of ice was given to Sonja Henie the night before Valentine's Day — and 12 years after the famed skater's death — the heart lies in a cardboard box amid stacks of frozen meat in a cold storage building.

The temperamental skater and movie star left town in a huff over money, vowed she'd never return and never did. The heart waits.

Wendell "Andy" Anderson answers the telephone calls that come about this time every year and says, yes, they have Sonja Henie's frozen valentine heart. And for anyone who asks to see it, he'll trudge up the eight floors of the Omaha Cold Storage Terminals building, lug a wooden box off the shelf and take the heart out of a cardboard box.

"I suppose it weighs about 40 pounds right now," said Anderson, owner of the storage company. "It's still holding its shape, despite evaporation over all these years."

The valentine was the brainchild of Barney Oldfield, who already was a public relations man extraordinaire when the Army mustered him into active service as a captain attached to the Seventh Service Command Headquarters in Omaha.

A publicity man for Miss Henie, who was coming to town with her Hollywood Ice Revue, asked Oldfield to come up with something to get the Golden Girl into a newspaper picture with some soldiers.

Oldfield, now a director of special missions and projects of Litton Industries, Inc., recalls going to Julius J. Gagini, owner of Omaha Ice and Cold Storage, which made blocks of ice in different colors to sell to restaurants and hotels for buffets.

Gagini handed Oldfield a 100-pound block of ice dyed bluish-green, an ice pick and "told me to go to it," Oldfield said.

That night, during an intermission, Oldfield got five soldiers from Fort Crook to present the Norwegian Olympic skater with the heart.

Omaha World-Herald newsclips say Miss Henie took the heart and thanked the soldiers for the valentine, which had begun to melt and run on their uniforms. But at the end of the show, she gave it back and told Oldfield to keep it until she could return to pick it up.

When it came to settling up with operators of the Ak-Sar-Ben Coliseum, Miss Henie wanted more money, Anderson said. "She and the party in charge of the Coliseum got into a big tiff about finances. You know, if popcorn sold for 20 cents, she'd want to charge 25 cents," Anderson said. "So when she left town, she said she would never play Omaha as long as she lived and she never did."

Gagini died in the 1950s, and in October 1969, Miss Henie died of leukemia. She was 56.

Anderson says nobody at the company will ever throw the heart out.

Now "caretaker" of an ice valentine given gamed skater Sonja Henie by soldiers the night before Valentine's Day, 1941, is Wendell "Andy" Anderson. The green-dyed gift has been stored by an Omaha, Neb., cold storage firm since it was presented. (AP Laserphoto)

Explosions rock Kentucky town

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A series of explosions, possibly triggered by an accumulation of flammable industrial solvent, rumbled through the sewers beneath a section of Old Louisville before dawn Friday, leaving blocks of cratered streets and millions of dollars damage.

A continued buildup of the solvent in one part of the system forced Mayor William Stansbury to close four schools and to evacuate a highly industrial 20-block area.

"It's still potentially explosive," the mayor said during an afternoon news conference. He explained that the concentration was spotted in the sewer system running beneath the Ashland Oil Co. refinery.

The evacuation order was lifted after workers succeeded in flushing the sewers. However, 20 National Guard troops were called out to help police patrol the blast area, as only residents with identification were allowed to travel in and out of the area.

Four people were injured during the blasts which chewed giant holes in the streets, shattered windows and cracked walls and ceilings. Helicopter pilots flying over the scene said some of the holes resembled World War II bomb craters.

Stansbury said there was no volatile reaction when hexane — a volatile liquid hydrocarbon — had escaped into the sewer system but Deputy State Fire Marshal Tom Nickle said the explosions involved 150 gallons to 200 gallons.

The Metropolitan Sewer District was investigating the possibility that the hexane might have leaked into the sewer from a Ralston Purina Co. Soybean Division mill.

A MSD spokesman said Ralston notified the agency at 1:30 a.m. that there had been a spill at the plant. A city inspector checked the site and four blocks around it but could detect nothing.

Stansbury said damage to the streets and sidewalks alone would total $10 million and that damage to the sewer system would be millions more.

The blast brought people out into the street shortly after 5 a.m.

"I thought it was the end of the world," said University of Louisville student Dan Williams, who had been asleep in his fifth floor dormitory room. "My whole room lit up, even with the blinds closed."

A few blocks away, graduate student Judy Sauer felt the same thing, she said. "I thought there was a car coming through my window, or a train wreck."

"It looks like a war zone," said another area resident, Pat Sewell.

On Hill Street, where some of the worst damage was reported, 40 yards of pavement collapsed and an additional four blocks of the street was pockmarked with craters.

"We have a probable operations problem and there may have been an accidental spill into the sewer system," said Steve Colthurst, a Ralston-Purina spokesman. "There was no 'dump,' nothing deliberate. We are assessing the degree of the possible overflow."

Nickle said the hexane could have been in the sewer for some time.

Brady said that after three days of meetings with his Cabinet and economic aides, the president had made final determinations on the major budget cuts and tax reductions he would propose. Brady would not provide any details.

Reagan had pledged during his campaign to seek a cut in individual tax rates effective at the start of this year, but many of his economic advisers have since urged him to postpone the date because of a larger-than-expected budget deficit for fiscal 1981, which ends Sept. 30.

At the same time, the president has resolved to seek a phasing out of the government's public service jobs program and a cutback in unemployment benefits, sources reported.

Reagan made final decisions Friday on the key components of his spending and tax cut package, to be submitted to Congress next week. He then left for Camp David, Md., to begin work on a speech on his economic plans that he will deliver to a joint session of Congress Wednesday night.

The business tax cut proposal consists of an accelerated schedule for depreciation of business properties.

Petroleum price fuels increase in inflation rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation at the wholesale level surged upward at an 11.4 percent annual rate in January, propelled by rapidly rising fuel prices, the Labor Department reported Friday.

The report is more bad inflation news for American consumers, and will likely be used as new ammunition by Reagan administration officials arguing for drastic economic steps to slow price increases.

The government's Producer Price Index, which measures the price of finished goods ready for sale to consumers, rose 0.9 percent last month after climbing 0.5 percent in December, the Labor report said.

The index, which is considered a good indicator of consumer price increases or decreases in coming months, rose 11.7 percent during all of last year.

The monthly increase was the largest since last August, when prices at the wholesale level rose 1.2 percent, equal to an annual rate of about 15 percent.

Fuel prices, which the government expects to climb as much as 15 percent this year, remained virtually unchanged at the wholesale level for the second straight month in January.

But energy prices, which also are expected to soar this year, got a good start in that direction, rising 2.7 percent in January, the report said. That was almost twice the energy price increase for December.

Within that overall category, fuel oil ready for sale to consumers rose 5.7 percent in January, gasoline prices increased 2.5 percent and natural gas 1.4 percent.

Analysts say President Reagan's decontrol of U.S. produced crude oil, coupled with price increases levied by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, are sure to keep pressure on energy prices in coming months.

But administration officials say that lifting numerous regulations — including oil price controls — is necessary along with federal budget and tax cuts to spur investment as a main weapon against overall inflation.

Private economist Donald Ratajczak, director of Georgia State University's Economic Forecasting Project, said gasoline price increases would have been even greater in January except for "competitive pressures" among oil companies.

The Labor report said prices for finished consumer goods other than foods and energy rose 0.8 percent in January.

Prices rose faster last month than in December for passenger cars, textile house furnishings, appliances and prescription drugs, the report said.

However, prices for health products, household furniture and floor coverings showed little or no change after increasing in December. Prices declined for sterling silverware and tires and tubes, the department reported.

The Producer Price Index measures costs at three stages of production: finished goods, or wholesale, that are ready for retail sale; intermediate goods, such as rolled steel used to build cars; and crude materials such as iron ore

U.S. bargaining power with oil cartel questioned

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Two Massachusetts energy experts disagreed Friday over whether America has any bargaining power with countries in the Mideast oil cartel.

Morris Adelman said, however, oil consumption in the non-Communist world outside the OPEC countries has declined for the past seven years and is expected to decline further in 1981, which would be an unprecedented eight-year slide.

Adelman, professor of economics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, predicted cartel countries would "ultimately raise the price of oil too far for their own good."

He appeared on an energy panel with four others, including William Hogan, director of the Energy and Environmental Policy Center at the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University.

The panel was part of a symposium sponsored by the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs, the LBJ Library and the Brookings Institution in Washington.

Adelman and Hogan agreed that even if America became totally self-reliant in energy, with zero oil imports, the nation would not be "secure."

Reagan may ask retroactive tax reduction

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan apparently has decided to propose that his three-year, 30 percent cut in personal income tax rates begin July 1, but that a companion proposal to reduce business taxes made retroactive to Jan. 1, sources said.

At the same time, the president has resolved to seek a phasing out of the government's public service jobs program and a cutback in unemployment benefits, sources reported.

Reagan made final decisions Friday on the key components of his spending and tax cut package, to be submitted to Congress next week. He then left for Camp David, Md., to begin work on a speech on his economic plans that he will deliver to a joint session of Congress Wednesday night.

The business tax cut proposal consists of an accelerated schedule for depreciation of business properties.

S. Brady said that after three days of meetings with his Cabinet and economic aides, the president had made final determinations on the major budget cuts and tax reductions he would propose. Brady would not provide any details.

Reagan had pledged during his campaign to seek a cut in individual tax rates effective at the start of this year, but many of his economic advisers have since urged him to postpone the date because of a larger-than-expected budget deficit for fiscal 1981, which ends Sept. 30.

The administration expects this year's deficit to reach $60 billion. A personal tax cut beginning Jan. 1 would drain an estimated $24 billion in federal revenues in 1981, but by postponing the tax cut until July 1, the revenue loss would be held to $8 billion.

The business tax cut proposal consists of an accelerated schedule for depreciation of business properties.

Brady said that Reagan had rejected proposals by some economic advisers that his tax package be accompanied by a proposal to reduce the maximum tax rate on unearned income, such as interest on savings and dividends, from its current 70 percent to 50 percent, the maximum rate on wages and salaries. But the spokesman left open the possibility that Reagan might seek the reduction at a later date.

The unearned income tax primarily affects investors of large sums of money and people with large savings.

According to administration sources, the proposal to phase out the public service jobs program — known as CETA — would become fully effective by Sept. 30, the end of the fiscal year, and would save about $3.5 billion in 1982.

Currently, some 310,000 low-income workers, many of them inner city young people, hold federally subsidized jobs under CETA — the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

Reagan also is proposing the elimination of the "national trigger" for the payment of 13 extra weeks of unemployment benefits nationwide, the sources said. Under the president's proposal, extended benefits would be paid only in individual states with high unemployment, they said.

In addition, the administration is proposing a change in the way it calculates state triggers for the extended benefits.

Taken together, the unemployment proposals would save an estimated $2.1 billion in 1982.

Reagan's budget meetings Friday included two conferences, one over lunch, with ad hoc budget working groups made up of Cabinet secretaries, budget officials and White House aides, and a midafternoon Cabinet meeting before he left for the presidential retreat.

Kidnapped boy found alive Friday

By JOE QUINLAN
Associated Press Writer

NEWPORT, Tenn. (AP) — A 6-year-old boy in Winnie the Pooh pajamas who was kidnapped from his home by two armed men in ski masks and held for $200,000 ransom was found alive Friday, the FBI said.

FBI spokesman Don Owens of Knoxville said Zackary Kent Taylor was found in good condition in Kodak, about 20 miles west of Newport.

"There was a $200,000 demand," he said. "As far as I know that was not paid."

Owens said agents were searching for two white males in their late teens to early 20s. He said one was 5-foot-11 to 6 feet tall, had a full beard, was dressed in a dark windbreaker and blue jeans and had a shotgun. The other man, he said, was about 5-foot-6, was dressed in a corduroy parka and had a pistol.

News organizations agreed to an FBI request not to broadcast or publish reports until agents knew the child was safe. They waited about six hours.

Authorities said the abductors burst into the Indian Hills home of Evelyn Taylor at 8:20 p.m. Thursday, and forced her and a male business partner into a bedroom where they were tied up with duct tape.

They said the abductors tripped a burglar alarm while searching for the keys to a car belonging to Mrs. Taylor's father, Lloyd Starnes. The men threatened to kill the child, authorities said, and Mrs. Taylor gave them the keys to the car.

Officials, who asked not to be identified, said Mrs. Taylor broke loose from the tape and chased the men outside where she was "roughed up" before the men fled with Mrs. Taylor's son, dressed in blue pajamas with matching Winnie the Pooh slippers.

Authorities said the men referred to Mrs. Taylor and her blond-haired, brown-eyed son by their first names.

Officials said Cocke County Deputy Ronald Fowler found the car abandoned at 9:30 p.m. in a rest area on the eastbound lanes of Interstate 40, six miles east of Newport.

A truck driver told the FBI he saw two men get out of the car and speed away in a small pickup truck, the officials said.

They said Mrs. Taylor received a long distance call from a pay phone at 10:20 p.m. and the abductors demanded $200,000 — in $100 bills in bundles of $10,000.

Jaruzelski said the party and government were "completely determined to overcome the dangerous crisis now existing in our country." He added, "We have strong enough instruments, and I don't mean force. Please don't associate this with my uniform. We have strength enough in our organism of a socialist state, its political factors, chiefly the party, which wants to genuinely realize the spirit of renewal." Polish official to meet union head

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's deputy premier for labor affairs said Friday he will meet with independent union leader Lech Walesa in a move seen as a major step toward the new government's sworn goal of averting "fratricidal war."

Mieczyslaw Rakowski, named Thursday by Parliament to deal with the independent unions, told a news conference he would confer with Walesa in Warsaw on Saturday. He said there were "no scenarios" for their talks and he would not consider them a preliminary to negotiations on the draft of a new labor law.

Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, appointed premier by the ruling Communist Party and Parliament earlier in the week, appealed Thursday to union leaders to call a 90-day moratorium on the strikes that are undermining Poland's debt-riddled economy. Jaruzelski, who also retained the post as defense minister, said the truce was necessary to allow the government to restore order and forestall economic ruin.

Jaruzelski, who replaced Jozef Piniowski as premier, named six new Cabinet ministers and two new vice premiers Thursday in the sixth purge of government leaders since labor unrest began here last summer.

Party and government officials apparently hope the presence of four-star general at the top of Poland's leadership will reassure the Soviet Union and other Warsaw Pact allies of Poland that have grown increasingly concerned over labor unrest here. Western fears of Soviet intervention have been aroused by U.S. intelligence reports of Soviet and East bloc troops deployed near Poland's borders.

Both Jaruzelski and Rakowski held news conferences Friday and the premier said they were part of the government's plan to "extensively inform citizens about what it is doing."

Jaruzelski said the party and government were "completely determined to overcome the dangerous crisis now existing in our country." He added, "We have strong enough instruments, and I don't mean force. Please don't associate this with my uniform. We have strength enough in our organism of a socialist state, its political factors, chiefly the party, which wants to genuinely realize the spirit of renewal." Spirit of renewal refers to the reforms undertaken following the summer strikes.

He said he would retain the defense portfolio, with responsibility for police and security, and would take an interest in the administration of justice. The premier said that under the Cabinet alignment, Rakowski would deal with all trade union activities along with science, education, culture and the news media.

Rakowski, said at his news conference that the Solidarity resolution on strikes being the last resort "is not an answer to the premier's call" for a 90-day moratorium. "We cannot treat it as a declaration of support.... It would be good to see a declaration of Solidarity adopting a stand."

He said the government "wants to establish partnership relations with the union but goodwill is needed. It is not enough to declare such a willingness."

"Such willingness," he added, "would be bolstered by Solidarity's determining its attitude toward the new premier."

Rakowski said the selection of Gen. Jaruzelski as premier does not mean the Communist Party is weak but that the nation needs strong government.

Reagan names Peace Corps director, other nominations

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan announced several nominations Friday, including Loretta M. Ruppe, who worked in his election campaign, as director of the Peace Corps.

Mrs. Ruppe, 45, whose husband Philip Ruppe is a former congressman, was co-chairwoman of the Reagan-Bush Committee in Michigan.

A statement issued by the White House press office said she "has spent most of her life in volunteer efforts," including International Neighbors Club IV, and "has traveled extensively and shared ideals with past Peace Corps volunteers in many countries."

Other nominees include:

—Donald J. Devine, a regional political director of Reagan's campaign, as director of the Office of Personnel Management for a four-year term.

Devine, 43, has been an associate professor of politics at the University of Maryland and was Reagan's transition team leader for the Office of Personnel Management. In 1978, he was the Republican candidate for Maryland comptroller.

—Dr. Carolyn K. Davis, of Ann Arbor, Mich., as administrator of the Health Care Financing Administration in the Department of Health and Human Services.

Dr. Davis has been an associate professor of academic affairs at the University of Michigan since 1975. She was dean of the school of nursing from 1973-1975.

—Dr. Edward N. Brandt, Jr., vice chancellor of health affairs at the University of Texas at Austin since 1977, as assistant secretary for health at the Department of Health and Human Services.

A White House statement said Reagan intends to "see that this position is elevated to undersecretary of health in accordance with a reorganization plan that will be announced later."

Brandt, 47, also is a professor in the departments of preventive medicine and family medicine at the University of Texas.

—Dr. C. Everett Koop, 64, chief surgeon at Children's Hospital in Philadelphia, as deputy assistant secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services.

Dr. Koop also is a professor of pediatric surgery at the University of Pennsylvania Medical School and the author of more than 170 articles and books on the practice of medicine.

Body of 16th child found near Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — The body of another black child was found Friday afternoon in suburban DeKalb County, bringing to 16 the number of black children who have been found slain here in the past 19 months, authorities said. Three other black youngsters are still missing.

Police spokesman Chuck Johnson said the child apparently was between the ages of 10 and 14. He said investigators believe the body is that of one of the three children whose disappearances have been investigated by a special police task force.

In south Fulton County, meanwhile, members of the task force were called to an area where a police search uncovered a small skull believed to be that of a child.

Fulton County Police Chief Clinton Chafin said it was not immediately known whether the skull was that of a child or adult, but "we have to assume" it belonged to a child because of its size.

In DeKalb County, Johnson said the body was found about 1:55 p.m. by a maintenance man for Corporate Square, a business complex located on Buford Highway near Interstate 85, in the northeastern section of the Atlanta metropolitan area.

Discovery of the body marks the first time in the string of child slayings that a body has been found in DeKalb County, Johnson said. Johnson said the body was found at the bottom of a ravine behind the business complex. He said the body was fully clothed and probably had been there for only a day or two.

Angelo Fuster, a spokesman for Mayor Maynard Jackson, said the remains found in south Fulton County were discovered while the task force was coordinating a search in the area.

About 40 or 45 Atlanta and Fulton County policemen, Georgia Bureau of Investigation agents and FBI agents were sent to the scene, as well as investigators from the Fulton County medical examiner's office.

Fuster said the remains were found about 45 feet west of Suber Road in heavy underbrush and pine trees, about a mile and a half from the spot where the body of Lubie "Chuck" Geter was found last week.

The 18 cases being investigated by the special task force include 15 slayings and three disappearances. Of the three missing children, two disappeared in 1980 and the third was reported missing last weekend.

On Thursday, a group of Atlanta ministers called on the city's church members to fast and pray each Wednesday until police catch those responsible for the deaths and disappearances.

Hostages

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ignoring the agreement between the Carter administration and Iran, three former American hostages filed suit today seeking $90 million in damages from the Tehran government.

The three charged that Iran violated their constitutional rights since the U.S. Embassy seized by Iranian militants in Tehran is considered American territory.

The suit was filed in U.S. District Court here by Steven M. Lauterbach, who was released Jan. 20 with 51 other Americans just after Ronald Reagan became president.

Tugboat captain describes ordeal

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The captain of a capsized tugboat said Friday he spent four hours in 40-degree Gulf water clinging to one of his passengers who eventually died in his arms.

"He kept saying he was cold. He was going to sleep," said Capt. Thomas Deforest, whose tugboat Galveston sank in rough waters north of Port O'Connor Tuesday.

The passenger — 25-year-old Ken Baze — and four other people still were missing Friday. However, Coast Guard officials said they have called off their search.

"It's not feasible to search anymore," a Coast Guard spokesman said. "We are suspending the search until bodies are found or we choose to close the case."

Hospital officials said the almost 300-pound Deforest survived because of body fat insulation.

Deforest said wind and waves caused the tug to capsize, not mechanical problems.

"There were 8- to 10-foot seas and the wind was blowing 60 miles per hour," he said. "Then this giant wall of water hit us and we turned over."

He said his vessel was capsized by "the biggest wave I've ever seen."

Deforest said he swam under the Galveston after it overturned, and made sure his five passengers had life preservers.

He said he tried to keep the group together, but the storm-tossed waters and high winds swept everyone away but Baze.

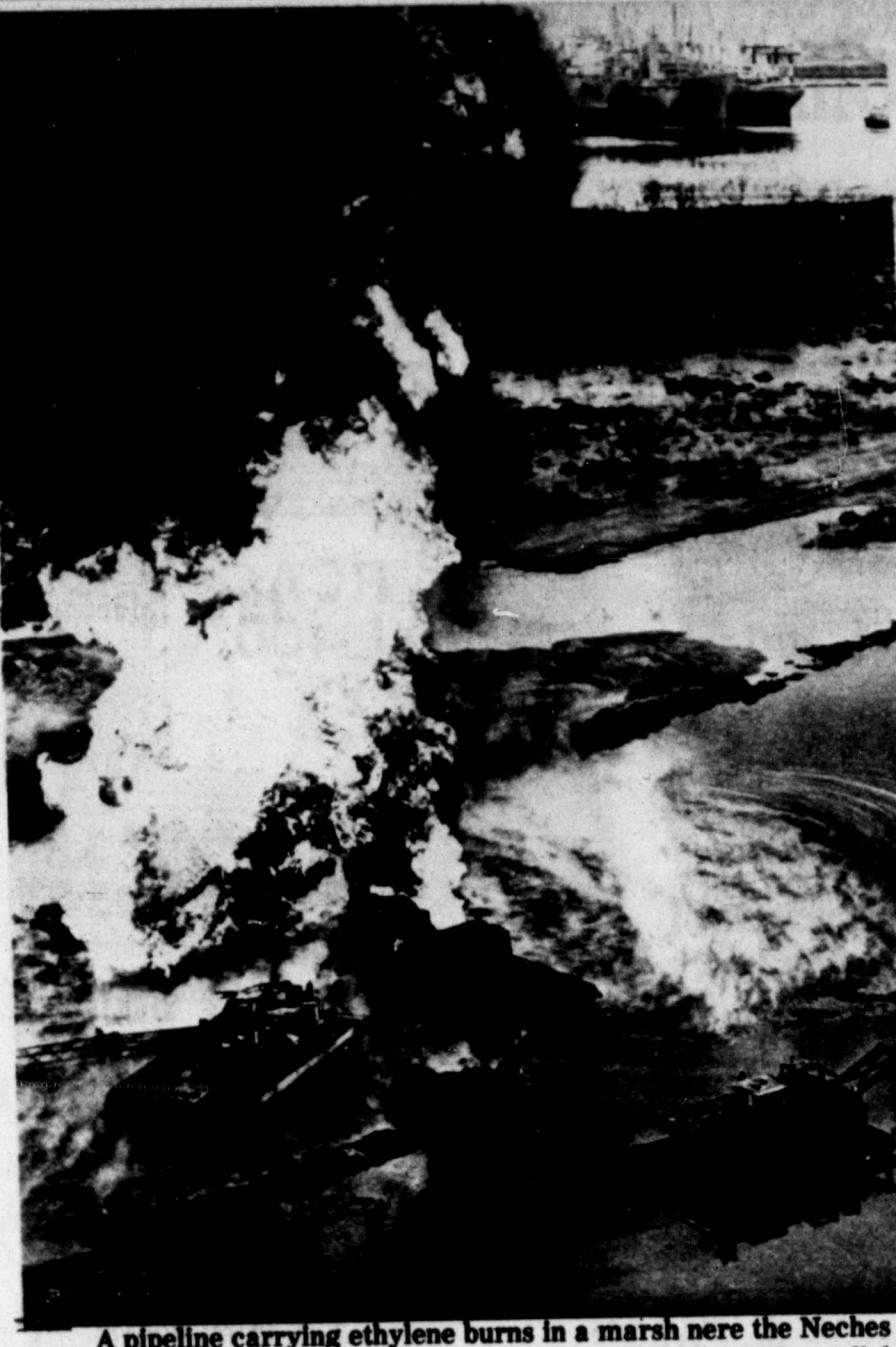

Deforest was released Friday from Champ Taylor Hospital in Port Lavaca. He said he planned to return to his Rockport home.

Doctors said Deforest was suffering from severe exposure when search helicopters spotted him on a deserted strip of beach at the northern tip of Matagorda Island, about a half-mile south of where the tugboat went down.

Deforest said the tug was heading for shore, only about one-fourth mile from the jetties at Port O'Connor, when the accident occurred.

The boat was returning from an offshore drilling rig two or three miles out in the Gulf.

The tugboat was raised late Wednesday from 10 feet of water a quarter mile off the Port O'Connor jetties after two divers had inspected the sunken vessel but failed to find anyone in the tug's watertight cabin, officials said.

Authorities still investigating accused arsonist's story

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Authorities said Friday they don't believe a killer fire that struck the Las Vegas Hilton could have been started by the accidental touch of a marijuana cigarette to a flameproofed drape, as a busboy arrested in the case contends.

Philip Bruce Cline, 23, told police a lighted marijuana cigarette in his mouth pressed against a drape during a homosexual act with a man he identified only as "Joe," accidentally setting off the fire that killed eight people and injured 198 others.

"I don't buy it," said Clark County Fire Chief Roy Parrish. "From my understanding, a regular cigarette has more heat than a marijuana cigarette. You're not going to start a fire that way."

Police and fire investigators said neither the eighth-floor fire nor the three others started at the hotel Tuesday night were accidental.

Lt. John Conner, chief of the Metropolitan Police Department's homicide division, said investigators would try to find Joe — "if there is a Joe."

"We feel it is difficult to believe that a fire of this dimension could accidentally occur as the suspect described it," added Clark County Fire Capt. Ralph Dinsman. "All evidence indicates the fire was arson."

Investigators want to know how a flameproofed curtain could have been ignited by the mere touch of a cigarette, and how three other fires got started within minutes of the time the eighth floor blaze began Tuesday night.

The other fires were set in a second-floor uniform area, a third-floor service elevator and on the ninth floor. Authorities said Thursday evidence of arson included fire hoses on the ninth floor that were severed and stuffed with a flammable material.

Cline, who drifted from job to job in Las Vegas after he arrived in January 1980, has been arrested for investigation of murder and arson in connection with the eighth-floor blaze. He was ordered held without bail pending arraignment next Thursday. No charges have been filed yet in the case. Hotel officials have estimated damage to the 2,783-room hotel at $10 million but say 1,900 undamaged rooms will reopen next week. Most of the other rooms suffered only smoke damage.

Dinsman said a cigarette could "burn a hole" in the drapes like the ones hanging over a love seat in an elevator lobby where Cline says the homosexual act took place, "but it wouldn't cause the curtains to continue to burn."

Robert Eiseman, general manager of the Hilton Hotel Equipment Corp., a supply-purchasing subsidiary of the hotel chain, said the curtains were flame retardant.

Dinsman said Cline is still being investigated in the three fires that occurred while Cline said he was trying to warn guests of the eighth-floor blaze and douse the flames with a trash can of water.

Other unrelated cases pending against Cline include a Feb. 18 sentencing hearing in an embezzlement that occurred when he was a changemaker at another casino, and a charge under consideration for alleged possession of stolen property — a car, police records show.

As police and fire department investigators continued their probe, seven lawsuits seeking more than $6 million already had been filed against the Las Vegas Hilton.

In Sunnymead, Calif., a suburban town 70 miles east of Los Angeles, Robert Cline, a 50-year-old retired Air Force master sergeant, said Thursday he can't believe his son Philip set the fire.

"I don't think he was involved in that fire," Cline's father said. "I don't believe that. My wife's quite upset. It's hard on her — and the rest of the kids."

The elder Cline said his son had a history of truancy and psychiatric treatment as a youth, never went beyond the ninth grade in school and was a loner who couldn't seem to hold a job.

Three hurt in pipeline blast

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Three members of a construction crew were injured Friday when a pipeline exploded in a marshy area along the Neches River. A fireball rose 500 feet in the air, firemen said.

Authorities believe the 12-inch line carrying ethylene, a petrochemical used in antifreeze and plastics, was struck by a piece of heavy equipment used by the construction crew.

The injured were ferried by Coast Guard helicopters to the Jefferson County Airport and then taken by ambulance to Park Place Hospital in Port Arthur. One had burns and the other two suffered smoke inhalation, a hospital spokesman said.

The 12-inch pipeline runs from Norca, La., to Deer Park, near Houston, serving several chemical plants along the route, said Peter Fischer of Shell Oil Co., owner of the line.

The explosion site was about two miles from Beaumont, across the river from the U.S. Maritime Reserve Fleet, where World War II ships are in mothballs.

Author of 'The Survivor' wants to get holocaust message across

NEW YORK (AP) — As Jack Eisner, author of "The Survivor," puts it: 1980 was the year of the book; 1981 is the year of the play. The end of '81 and the year '82 will see the movie. And '82-'83 will witness the opera.

He's talking about the various forms that his message about the World War II Holocaust will take. He has made a television documentary on the subject, too, and plans more than one movie.

Eisner survived the Holocaust as a teen-age Polish Jew. All his immediate family except his mother died. Now, in his mid-50s, he's a sort of Ancient Mariner. He feels a compulsion to tell about what happened — to tell it over and over again.

How come? One reason is that he believes that what happened to the Jews under the Nazis has been misrepresented — by the mass media, among others.

One "myth" that he feels has been perpetuated is that healthy Jews went passively to their deaths. They weren't healthy, he says, they were demoralized, half-starved and often sick. And he says they fought back in every way they could under the circumstances. Also, he says, it sometimes takes more courage to die than to live.

Another myth, as Eisner sees it, is that the Holocaust was the work of "a few hundred, a few thousand people — German Nazis."

"Seventy million Germans went mad," he says. "A whole nation went mad. What is the importance of it? For me to publicly blame them? They are almost all dead. That's unimportant. What is important is that if 70 million Germans can go mad, why couldn't 60 million Frenchmen go mad? Why couldn't 22 million Americans go mad?"

He sees the possibility everywhere, and against anyone, not necessarily Jews.

Eisner also says it's a mistake to equate the Holocaust with such historic events as the Turkish persecution of the Armenians or the Spanish inquisition. The Holocaust wasn't religious persecution, he argues, but "beautification of the race through killing" — a "first."

Why tell the story now, not years ago? And who will listen?

Eisner says he was ready to tell it years ago, but the generation that had been around when it all happened didn't want to listen.

They felt guilty, he says, because they didn't make a greater outcry against it at the time. But now the younger generation — both Jews and gentiles — will not only listen but will also ask what it can do to prevent a recurrence. Those are the people he wants to reach.

One way to prevent a recurrence, he says, is to nip any trend in the bud — when 20 Nazis are marching on Broad Street in Philadelphia or Fifth Avenue in New York — not when 20 thousand are. Then it's too late.

His book is the story of a teen-ager's experience, including romance. And Eisner says it takes a relatively young generation to get it across.

Susan Nanus, who wrote the play, "The Survivor," is relatively young.

Relinquishment of effects ordered

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — A judge went through the motions Friday of ordering Vickie Daniel to hand over the personal property of her late husband, Price Daniel Jr., with the exception of a sealed file of correspondence now in the custody of a criminal court.

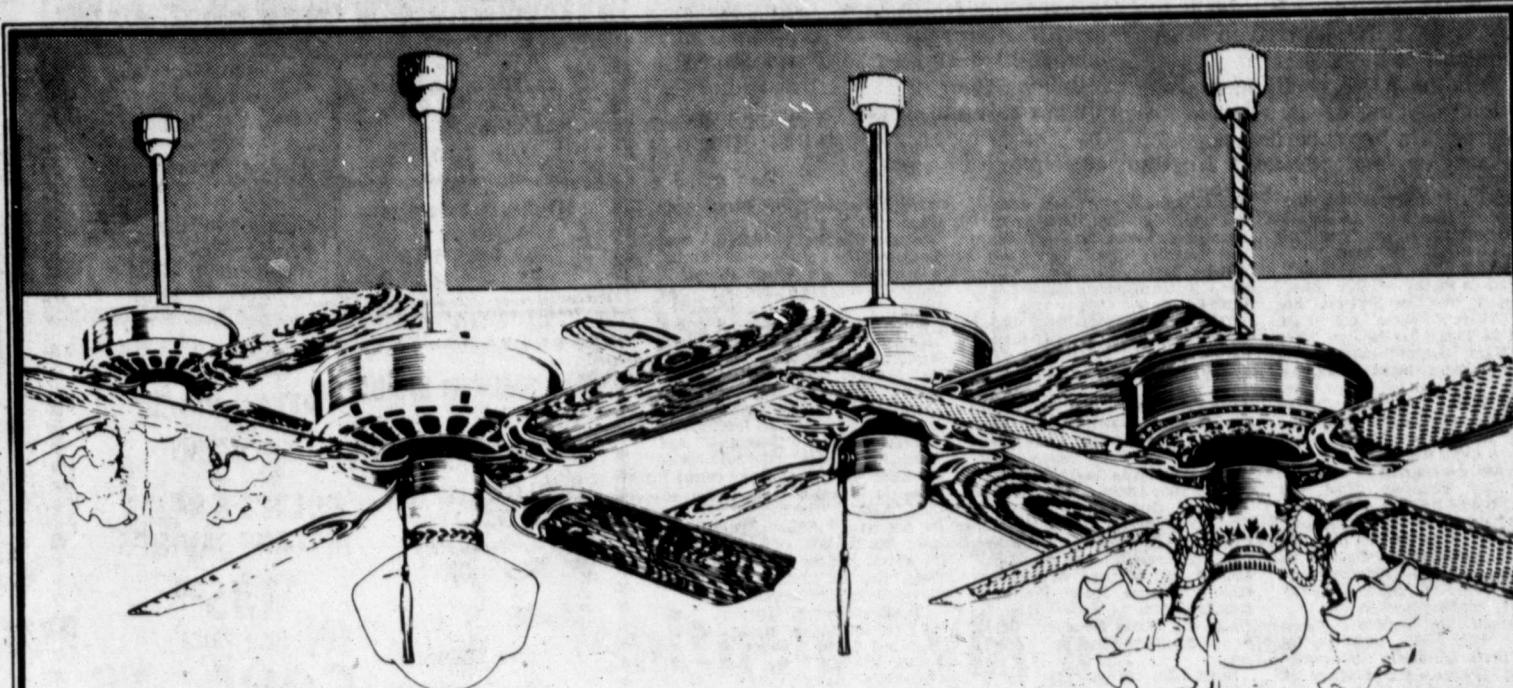

Mrs. Daniel is charged with murder in the January death of her husband, a former Texas House speaker.

State District Judge W.G. Wood's ruling had little real impact because Mrs. Daniel's attorney, Andrew J. Lannie of Baytown, said he returned all of Daniel's possessions, with the exception of the sealed file of correspondence, after a Feb. 4 injunction.

"The order merely states that all properties, except papers filed by Vickie Daniel in criminal court, are to be turned over to the county," said District Clerk Joy McManus.

Friday's hearing concerned one of two suits filed by Daniel's sister, Jean Daniel Murph, who is seeking to gain control of any of Daniel's personal property that might be in his widow's possession.

West Texas newspaper publishers and editors enjoyed a bit of socializing Friday evening at a reception at the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum as the Mid-Winter Conference of the West Texas Press Association got under way. Among those attending

Clements seeks emergency funds for prison construction

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Friday he wants the Legislature to approve a $35 million emergency appropriation to pay for "night and day" construction to build three new prison units by November.

The units would be part of the state's response to U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice's order that overcrowding be reduced.

"This will take care of our problem in the near term. It will not take care of our problem in the long term," Clements said of the proposed units.

He told a news conference he would ask the Legislature for the emergency money next week. The $35 million would pay for three units, each to house 960 inmates, which would not be maximum security facilities. The metal buildings would be for first offenders and prisoners convicted for "not too serious crimes," Clements said.

"This is not what we would build if we had all the time in the world. But it is what we must do because of the federal court order," Clements said.

He predicted legislators would approve the money.

Two units would be built in Anderson County, one at the Coffield Unit and one at the Beto Unit. A third would be built at the Ellis Unit in Walker County. Each of the new units would include about 15 buildings, Clements said.

The "barracks-type environment" would include recreation, education and industrial facilities.

"This will in a large measure answer the immediate problem of getting that (prison) population down where we don't have the situation of three in cell," Clements said.

The units would not be built by prisoners, the traditional TDC construction method.

"Using our own people would be cheaper, but it is also slower. Time is really of the essence here," he said.

Contractors hired for the job might have to use three shifts of workers, working around the clock when weather permits, the governor said.

The buildings, on concrete slabs, could be converted to other uses if the living quarters ever are not needed, Clements added.

Clements' plan drew quick opposition from Charles Sullivan, director of Citizens United for Rehabilitation to Errants, which lobbies for prisoners. He questioned the wisdom of putting a non-maximum security facility at the Ellis Unit.

"Ellis is the end of the line. It's the Alcatraz of the system," he said.

Although the inmates in the new buildings would be housed separately, Sullivan said they would be "eating and working with hardened criminals."

He also said Clements in 1979 vetoed an appropriation to build cell blocks at existing units. However, the governor denied he vetoed the funds. He said prison officials decided the money could not be used.

New buildings would not solve all the problems mentioned in Justice's long opinion, spurred by a civil rights suit against TDC. Clements said, "I think the federal judge's position will certainly include more items than this one thing."

BBB gets injunction against weight firms

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge granted the Better Business Bureau of Southeast Texas Friday a preliminary injunction against a chain of weight reduction clinics, prohibiting it from running ads portraying a Beaumont couple as "BBB spies."

Lawyers for the Weight Reduction Medical Centers indicated they would appeal the ruling of U.S. District Judge George Cire.

Bill and Beverly Hickman of Beaumont, owners of a typewriter repair service, both testified Friday that affidavits they had signed verifying weight losses had been altered.

The couple said they had been conducting "personal investigations" into the WRMC program and passed their information on to the BBB in Beaumont.

Hickman testified he lost 33 pounds in three weeks while his wife said she lost 15 pounds in the same time span.

The chain of clinics had run TV ads in Texas, Louisiana, and Arizona describing the Hickmans as conducting "personal investigations on behalf of the BBB."

The BBB had received a temporary restraining order Feb. 5 prohibiting the ads from being used.

During testimony Friday, WRMC attorney David Berg and Murray Lieberman showed videotapes of 4 of 11 different television ads in which the Hickmans were interviewed about their weight losses and their connection with the BBB. They said they received $100 each for the ads.

Mrs. Hickman indicated the ads shown in court were not the same as shown on television, but attorneys did not let her elaborate.

Laetrile by mouth can be dangerous

CHICAGO (AP) — Oral doses of Laetrile, especially in the form of raw almonds and other nuts, could elevate cyanide levels and result in toxic effects in cancer patients, a study conducted under the auspices of the National Cancer Institute speculates.

However, six cancer patients given Laetrile intravenously under controlled conditions developed no signs of toxic effects, according to the study published in this week's Journal of the American Medical Association.

The experiment was undertaken to determine if the controversial anti-cancer drug, which does not have Food and Drug Administration approval, had any effect on patients taking it.

Doctors reported they gave intravenous doses of pure Laetrile — or amygdalin — each day to six patients with advanced stages of cancer in doses similar to those used by Laetrile practitioners.

A clinical and chemical analysis of the patients indicated the drug passed into the patients' urine largely unchanged and they suffered no evidence of a toxic reaction, the report said.

The study was done as part of a preliminary phase of an NCI study on the effects of Laetrile on terminally ill cancer patients.

One patient was given 1 ounce of raw almonds, from which Laetrile is extracted, after each meal. That patient was found to have elevated blood cyanide levels and showed symptoms of cyanide toxic reaction — including dizziness, vomiting, headache and chills.

Because of the small sample size, the study made no conclusions on the effectiveness of the Laetrile treatment.

Doctors did observe that their patients' disease progressed as expected during treatment. A sixth patient who had complained of severe pain before treatment with Laetrile said her pain subsided substantially for a time after she began treatment with Laetrile, but it returned about eight weeks thereafter, and use of the experimental drug was discontinued, the study said.

Fierce fighting rages in Zimbabwe

By JOHN EDLIN
Associated Press Writer

BULAWAYO, Zimbabwe (AP) — Prime Minister Robert Mugabe's jet fighters bombed and strafed mutinous ex-guerrillas loyal to his rival Joshua Nkomo in the Connemara army camp 120 miles northeast of Bulawayo, the Zimbabwe Inter-African News agency reported Friday.

The agency also said a dozen armored vehicles carrying Nkomo's fighters to the aid of comrades fighting in a township outside Bulawayo turned back during the night and returned to their base at the Gwaai River, near Fort Victoria, 140 miles east of Bulawayo.

Nkomo's supporters killed at least 36 Mugabe followers at the Connemara camp in the last week, and at least 54 other former guerrillas died in factional fighting in three other locations, including the township outside Bulawayo, Zimbabwe's second largest city.

Sporadic gunfire was reported in the township during the night, but Mugabe's troops appeared to hold the upper hand. "Things are more or less back to normal," a government spokesman in Bulawayo said.

Nonetheless, the on-again, off-again violence strengthened doubts that the rival factions could be united in one national army. "We warned this would happen. They can never stay in the same barracks together," a white former army officer said.

White-led regular army units assaulted Bulawayo's Entumbane township Thursday after pounding it with mortars and helicopter gunships. Combat between factions loyal either to Mugabe or Nkomo had raged there since Wednesday night, despite appeals from both men to cease fire.

Nkomo, a Cabinet minister without portfolio and the junior partner in the fragile 10-month-old coalition government, flew in to Bulawayo to survey the situation.

Mugabe and Nkomo led separate guerrilla armies under a loose alliance called the Patriotic Front in the seven-year war against white-minority rule in what was previously the British colony of Rhodesia.

Since independence last April 18, differences that were smoothed over during the war have come to the fore.

There is tribal animosity. Mugabe and his guerrillas are from the majority Shona tribe, which outnumbers Nkomo's Matabele tribe by 8-to-1.

Also, the burly, 63-year-old Nkomo was long considered the father of black nationalism in this country and many political observers expected him to be the main political force in an independent Zimbabwe.

But Mugabe, 56, a soft-spoken intellectual, won overwhelmingly in the British-supervised pre-independence elections last February, and Nkomo reluctantly accepted Mugabe's offer to join a coalition government as home affairs minister. That ministry was in charge of the police.

Last month, however, Mugabe announced that Nkomo had been removed from the key position and offered a job as minister of public service. Nkomo rejected that, but later agreed to become a minister without portfolio with a voice in security affairs.

The Cabinet demotion was apparently the last straw for militant members of Nkomo's political party, the Patriotic Front, and the guerrillas who had belonged to his Zimbabwe People's Revolutionary Army, or Zipra.

Alabama residents question PCB dump

GREENVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Health officials are conducting tests to determine whether cancer-causing PCB dumped in a nearby swamp pose a hazard to area residents.

Frank Redmond, spokesman for the Environmental Protection Agency, said Thursday earlier tests indicated residents of this south Alabama town shouldn't worry about the spill at Mowbray Engineering, but he cautioned people to stay away from the area.

The tests began Thursday after 30 federal, state and local health officials met in a closed session to discuss the spill. Redmond said the public was not admitted because officials didn't want their technical discussions interrupted by questions.

Polychlorinated biphenyls, better known as PCB, were mixed with oil and used as heat retardants prior to a federal ban in 1979. The ban came after scientists found that PCB caused cancer in laboratory animals.

The PCB here was in oil Mowbray Engineering drained from electrical transformers and capacitors and dumped in the swamp, Redmond said. The swamp at Mowbray Engineering is part of Tanyard Branch, which flows in Persimmon Creek and the Seneca River.

The Jules Verne balloon carrying American balloonists Maxie Anderson and Don Ida is seen shortly after liftoff from Luxor, Egypt, Thursday. Visible between the helium-filled balloon and its gondola is a parachute to be used in emergencies. (AP Laserphoto)

Balloon remains 'on target'

By The Associated Press

The balloon "Jules Verne" was "very much on target" Friday on its round-the-world journey after it was sighted over the Persian Gulf nation of Oman, trackers reported. They still had not established communication with the American aeronauts, however, so could not confirm reports it might be leaking.

Dee Schelling, a spokeswoman at the Bedford, Mass., tracking station for the balloon, said it was spotted on radar by air traffic controllers in Muscat, Oman, around 11 a.m. EST.

The balloon was 160 miles northwest of Muscat, moving 53 miles an hour at 18,000 feet on a course toward Karachi, Pakistan, she said.

"They're on a good trajectory right now and very much on target for what we had projected," she said Friday afternoon. "They're in a very desolate area," she added, explaining there were few ham radio operators or commercial airliners to establish voice contact with pilots Maxie Anderson and Don Ida.

There had been earlier reports the voyage might have to be scrapped because the balloon had a leak. When the balloon was heard from about midnight Thursday one of the pilots "raised the possibility" the 20-story-high balloon had sprung a leak, Ms. Schelling said.

"He did not say there was one. He said there might be a possibility. At this point, we are questioning that very highly," she said.

Balloonist's wife recalls flights

By MAGDA EL-SANGA
Associated Press Writer

LUXOR, Egypt (AP) — For 10 of the 28 years of Patty Anderson's marriage, she has chased her husband across continents, mountain ranges and oceans.

He's balloonist Maxie Anderson and the last time she saw him was in the aluminum gondola of the balloon Jules Verne on Thursday, lifting off for what he and a fellow aeronaut hoped would be the first nonstop, round-the-world balloon trip.

The Bradford, Mass., tracking station for Anderson and co-pilot Don Ida reported Friday the balloon was spotted by air traffic controllers in the Persian Gulf nation of Oman and moving on a course toward Karachi, Pakistan.

There were reports some hours after the launch that the balloon had sprung a leak, but trackers said they would not be able to confirm it until radio contact was re-established with the pilots.

"At times I get a little anxious about him, but he's very knowledgeable, and it's something he really wants to do," Mrs. Anderson said in a post-launch interview. "When the idea (for this voyage) first came up I was worried, so many different things are involved in this one."

The balloonists estimated their flight would be a 10-day trip taking them across the Himalaya Mountains, the southern Russian plateau, the icy northern Pacific and Atlantic oceans and the deserts of north Africa.

"Maxie usually makes up his mind on something he wants to do," Mrs. Anderson said. "He doesn't ask me because he knows I'll be hesitant, but in the end I usually accept."

Anderson took up ballooning 10 years ago and has made four previous major flights, including the Double Eagle II crossing of the Atlantic, a first.

Mrs. Anderson waited in Massachusetts "till he was halfway across the Atlantic, then I flew to London. There, I flew in (a plane chartered by one of the American television networks) and we circled the balloon, then flew on to France to wait for its arrival."

During the transcontinental flight of the Kitty Hawk balloon bearing Anderson and the couple's son

Kris, she could not reach their landing site because of logistics.

"I started out from San Francisco on a company plane" from Anderson's mining corporation in Albuquerque, N.M.

"When we got to Nevada it was restricted air space, so we went to Boston, then to Maine. I flew commercially from Maine to Quebec, got there late at night — and couldn't get a cab to get me to the landing field six miles away."

Patty Anderson has ballooned herself, but after an unanticipated descent into a lake during a thunderstorm, she said she will avoid long distance flights.

"They don't appeal to me," she said. "They become tests of endurance, not exciting trips."

Balloonist's wife recalls flights

LUXOR, Egypt (AP) — For 10 of the 28 years of Patty Anderson's marriage, she has chased her husband across continents, mountain ranges and oceans.

Balloon remains 'on target'

By The Associated Press

The balloon "Jules Verne" was "very much on target" Friday on its round-the-world journey after it was sighted over the Persian Gulf nation of Oman, trackers reported. They still had not established communication with the American aeronauts, however, so could not confirm reports it might be leaking.

Dee Schellinger, a spokeswoman at the Bedford, Mass., tracking station for the balloon, said it was spotted on radar by air traffic controllers in Muscat, Oman, around 11 a.m. EST.

The balloon was 160 miles northwest of Muscat, moving 53 miles an hour at 18,000 feet on a course toward Karachi, Pakistan, she said.

"They're on a good trajectory right now and very much on target for what we had projected," she said Friday afternoon. "They're in a very desolate area," she added, explaining there were few ham radio operators or commercial airliners to establish voice contact with pilots Maxie Anderson and Don Ida.

tailor-made for carrying out personal plans. Married couples are able to reignite original romantic spark. Change of scenery provides new inspiration.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Sunday serenity may inspire you to give more thought to the needs of others. Get in touch with a distant friend. Romantic rendezvous will be highlight of day. Dress your best!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You may now be in a position to accept some new challenges. Quiet study, meditation will bring answers to perplexing personal questions. Mate, spouse is unusually sensitive to your party.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Frank discussion with family members will lead to revised budget. Someone pays you a meaningful compliment. Share secret with trusted loved one. Later on in the day you may find yourself in the role of family mediator. Take things as they come.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Influential people may be present at a social gathering you attend. Do not press too hard. Romantic interlude could lead to new contentment. Try to remain untroubled by relatives' irritability.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): This should be the best day of the week for you! A religious experience could make life much more satisfying. Do not change directions until you are sure of where you want to go.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Do not dip into financial reserves without first discussing the advantages and disadvantages with mate. Chances are you will soon be cast in the role of family mediator. Take things as they come.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Use your time constructively. Adequate rest and relaxation will leave you fit to handle the week that lies ahead. A good book can be more entertaining than a dull party.

BIBLE

"OF COURSE I'LL HEAL YOU: BE HEALED"

One day in a certain village Jesus was visiting, there was a man with an advanced case of leprosy. When he saw Jesus he fell to the ground before Him, face down in the dust, begging to be healed. "Sir," he said, "if you only will, You can clear me of every trace of my disease."

Jesus reached out and touched the man and said, "Of course I will. Be healed." And the leprosy left him instantly!

Then Jesus instructed him to go at once without telling anyone what had happened and be examined by the Jewish priest. "Offer the sacrifice Moses' law requires for lepers who are healed," He said. "This will prove to everyone that you are well."

Now the report of His power spread even faster and vast crowds came to hear Him preach and to be healed of their diseases.

But He often withdrew to the wilderness for prayer.

Pastoral Center celebrates seventh anniversary

The West Texas Pastoral Counseling Center will celebrate its seventh anniversary today with an open house and dedication ceremony at the new facility, 202 Pilot Road at Air Terminal.

A non-profit counseling service supported by fees, church contributions and donations from individuals and foundations, the center serves as an extension of the mission ministry of the churches of the area. This center is the seventh of 35 such centers in Texas.

Staff members include Dr. Ray Bristol, executive director; the Rev. John Winham, associate director; and Lee Coats, secretary and treasurer. The board of directors is composed of ministers and laypersons from Midland, Odessa, Monahans, Pecos and Fort Stockton.

The center recently received a spacious building located in the Terminal area. An anonymous donor gave the center a 4,000 square foot, 3½-year-old building plus the 1½ acres surrounding it.

Members of the board of directors, headed by Jo Perry and Mary Rasmussen, will host the celebration from 2 to 5 p.m. The public is encouraged to attend.

The actual dedication service for the center's new facility is scheduled for 4 p.m. today. The invocation will be offered by the Rev. Charles Lutrick, pastor of First United Methodist Church. Introductory remarks will be given by Bristol and the community response will be presented by C. Ron Schwisow, the center's first president.

Recognition of board presidents will be made by the Rev. Joe Brown, minister-emeritus of the First Presbyterian Church in Odessa. Special recognition of all past board members will be given by the Rev. Russell Parchman.

Joe Conley, judge of the 244th district court in Odessa, will make the dedicatory remarks and present the dedication plaque to Mrs. Perry, president of the board. The prayer of dedication and benediction will be made by the Rev. James Christensen, senior minister of Odessa's First Christian Church.

Church to have prisoners at service

The Unitarian Universalist Church of Midland has recently entered into an agreement with the Federal Correctional Institution in Big Spring to have the prisoners attend Sunday morning services at its church here.

Several church members have signed up as sponsors, with one of the sponsors driving to the camp and bringing the prisoners to church. The plan goes into effect Sunday.

Once at the church, each prisoner receives a sponsor for the rest of the day and they are returned to Big Spring by late afternoon. This allows the men to attend the service and the fellowship period which follows.

These visits will take place once a month. Then once a month a group from the Unitarian Universalist Church will take a program to the camp where they will join in a discussion and fellowship with the prisoners and the chaplain, the Rev. Jerry Kelly. These particular visits are already in effect. Kelly reports that the camp has had no trouble with this added privilege to the inmates.

Robinson to expand ministry

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Television evangelist James Robinson says he is expanding his ministry into the ghetto areas of America, starting with a prototype program in Dallas.

He and the Rev. E. V. Hill, a black pastor from the Watts area of Los Angeles, told a news conference that their goal is to form coalitions of local churches, businessmen and others to attack problems of inter-city neighborhoods.

"We are our brother's keeper," Robinson said, "and Christians can't turn all the responsibility for helping the poor over to the government."

INTRODUCING UNITARIAN UNIVERSALISM

Being a Unitarian Universalist means taking personal responsibility for your own religious life. No one will try to make you over religiously. You will not be offered final and absolute truths, or a rigid doctrine. Instead you will provide with a stimulating and congenial worship situation in which, along with others, you will seek answers to life's questions, and

Garwood's rank, benefits reduced; Discharge ordered

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Convicted Marine Pfc. Robert Garwood was ordered reduced to private, forced to forfeit some pay and allowances and dishonorably discharged Friday for collaborating with the enemy while in Vietnam and assaulting a fellow POW. He could have been sentenced to life in prison.

The jury's sentence will not go into effect until completion of an automatic military appeal.

The five-man military jury had begun deliberations on Garwood's sentence shortly before 3:30 p.m. and deliberated only one hour.

The forfeiture of pay applies only to the week between the sentencing and Garwood's conviction a week ago Thursday and not to the 147,000 in pay accumulated during his imprisonment in Vietnam. The presiding judge, Col. R.E. Switzer, had said in an interview that the forfeiture would "only apply to pay and allowances accruing from the date of conviction."

Garwood has not received the pay set aside for him during his captivity. His attorneys have filed a suit in the U.S. Court of Claims seeking the money. The suit is pending.

The sentencing came after Garwood ended months of silence Friday and pleaded for mercy, telling the jury he is mentally sick and has suffered enough for his actions in Vietnam.

Garwood remained impassive when the sentence was read, but the woman with whom he lives, Donna Long, gasped audibly and buried her head in her hands. Her 10-year-old son, D.J., hugged his mother and wept. Mrs. Long is the widow of an ex-Marine who befriended Garwood.

Garwood was smiling but refused to comment on the sentence as he left the base with one arm tightly around D.J.

But when asked how he felt, Garwood said, "It's been a long time."

Switzer scheduled another session for Tuesday to consider a motion by defense attorneys to overturn the conviction and acquit Garwood of all charges.

That motion was made by chief defense attorney John Lowe after the sentence was read.

Saying that "the system has broken down," Lowe said the jury should have voted for a reversal of conviction because of a reasonable doubt that Garwood was guilty.

An eight-paragraph statement from the 34-year-old Indiana man was read by a defense lawyer to the jury.

"He does not know how to explain what occurred in Vietnam 14 years ago; and, he does not know what anyone can say to explain the 14 years he erased from his life in Vietnam," said the statement, written in the third person and read by Capt. Lewis Olshin on Garwood's behalf.

"He knows the experience he had in Vietnam will live with him forever and, together with his conviction, will leave marks upon him for the rest of his life."

Garwood said he wants a chance to receive psychiatric care. He begged the jury to "return him to the people he loves."

In her closing arguments, Capt. Teresa Wright, the prosecutor, said Garwood was guilty of a "heinous and disgusting crime and he should get the full measure of the law."

Lowe strongly objected to Ms. Wright's remarks and asked Switzer to declare a mistrial. The judge denied the motion.

Lowe asked the jury to overturn Garwood's conviction or sentence him to no punishment.

"You've got to feel it," he said. "You've got to believe it. There is reasonable doubt that Bobby Garwood is guilty and it is now in your power to do something about it."

Besides the life sentence for collaboration, Garwood also faced a sentence of up to six months in prison on the charge of assaulting a former POW.

Bush, his wife convert investment assets in blind trust of $900,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush and his wife Barbara converted their investment assets, including 17,000 shares of common stock, into a blind trust valued at about $900,000, Bush's press secretary announced Friday.

President Reagan and his wife Nancy did the same thing about two weeks ago, converting their personal wealth, except for two residences, into two certificates of deposit totaling $740,000.

Peter Teeley, Bush's press secretary, said the $900,000 trust does not include money in Bush's bank accounts or his two homes — one in Maine and a condominium in Texas. The trust was filed last month with the Office of Government Ethics. A list of assets that have been transferred to the trust must be filed with the office within 30 days.

Bush selected W.F. Farish & Co., of Houston, as his independent trustee.

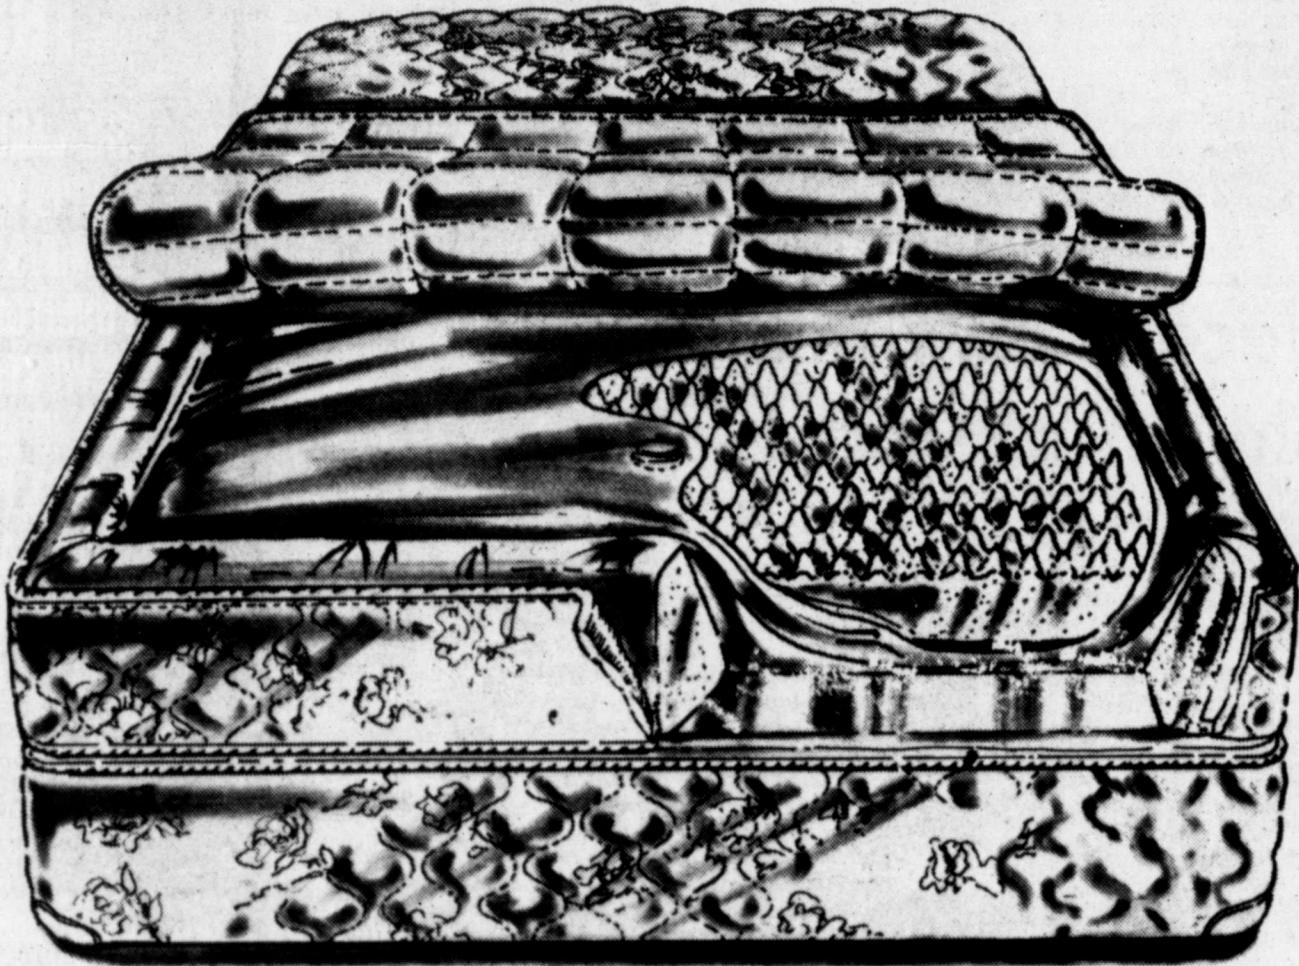

The assets converted into the trust include a $50,000 U.S. Treasury note; a $100,000 U.S. Treasury note; $100,000 in municipal bonds, 17,000 shares of common stocks, and more than 68,000 shares of money market funds.

Arson is killing epidemic in this country

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The fire at the Las Vegas Hilton Hotel was not the only case of arson in the United States on Tuesday. There were 400 others. There will be 400 more today and 400 more tomorrow.

"Arson is an epidemic in this country," said Ed Wall, who teaches investigative techniques at the government's National Fire Academy in Emmitsburg, Md.

Indeed, Americans are setting fire to their homes and businesses, even their cars, in record numbers, prompting new anti-arson efforts by government agencies and private associations.

Yet arson remains one of the toughest crimes for authorities to snuff out. The U.S. Fire Administration said an arsonist has less than one chance in 10 of being arrested, and less than one in 100 of being convicted.

In 1979, the last year for which complete statistics are available, there were 148,500 known cases of arson in this country, and tens of thousands of other fires which may have been started deliberately.

The National Fire Protection Association in Boston said those fires caused 675 deaths, an estimated 10,000 injuries and $1.3 billion in smoke and fire damage. And that does not include the U.S. Forest Service estimate that brush and forest arson cases caused $450 million in damage to the nation's wild lands last year.

THE U.S. Fire Administration said the average arson caused $9,000 in property damage in 1979, nearly twice that of a non-arson fire. And figures still being compiled for 1980 are undoubtedly higher, authorities said.

Bruce Bogart of the American Insurance Association in New York said reported arson cases have increased by about 25 percent each year of the past decade.

"The biggest increase has been in cars. There were 63,500 cases of arson in automobiles in 1979, up 33 percent," he said. "People have these big old clunkers they can't sell, so they burn 'em up."

Apart from actual damage to structures, Bogart said, arson has the most serious economic "ripple effect" of any crime. He said jobs, income, sales and taxes lost to arson probably total $6 billion to $10 billion a year.

For instance, he said, the loss of several hundred Las Vegas Hilton guest rooms for three months of repairs will probably cost the hotel $6 million just in room fees.

"And what about hotel employees who will be laid off?" he asked.

The Las Vegas Hilton

fire killed eight people, injured 198 others and caused an estimated $10 million in damage. Philip Bruce Cline, 23, a Hilton room service busboy, has been booked on one count of first-degree arson and eight counts of murder.

Doug Burdick, a claims consultant for the American Insurance Association, said member insurance companies recently spent $2 million for a computerized system to investigate fire reports.

Lynch said pyromania includes "vanity" arson, such as a fire set by a night watchman who reports it or puts it out and is then hailed as a hero. Cline, the man arrested in Las Vegas, told a newspaper reporter at the hotel that he had been the first to sound the fire alarm and begin evacuating guests.

Lynch credited the quick arrest to Las Vegas' "arson task force," one of 200 set up around the country. The government helps train personnel and organize cooperation among fire and police departments, prosecutors and citizen groups.

"Until 1975, when we set up our task force,

and convictions have gone up and instances of arson have gone down.

"A large problem with arson," Davis said, "is that people don't want to get involved. But now that they are more involved, and we're having more training sessions

Israeli dogfight reported

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli warplanes shot down a Syrian MiG jet Friday in a dogfight over Lebanon, the first aerial battle this year between the Middle East's most bitter antagonists.

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said the Syrian plane was downed in a "short aerial dogfight" that developed when Syrian aircraft scrambled from Damascus and "attempted to shoot down our planes which were on a routine patrol in Lebanese skies." All Israeli planes returned safely, the Israelis said.

In Damascus, a Syrian spokesman confirmed that Syria lost one plane, but gave no other details.

It was the first Israeli-Syrian dogfight since Dec. 31 when Israel reported its planes shot down two Syrian MiG-21 fighters and brought to 13 the number of Syrian warplanes shot down by Israel since June 1979.

The Israeli military communiqué did not identify the type of planes involved in the dogfight, but Lebanese radio stations said the Syrian jet was a Soviet-built MiG-23, a more advanced aircraft than the MiG-21. An Israel Radio analyst commented that if the report was true, it marked the first time MiG-23s had been involved in fighting with Israeli aircraft.

Lebanon's state radio said the air battle was fought over the eastern Bekaa Valley between the towns of Nabi Chit and Deir al-Ahmar, some 40 miles northeast of Beirut. It confirmed one jet was shot down and said the pilot bailed out safely.

The privately-owned Voice of Lebanon and the Voice of Free Lebanon radio stations said the downed jet was a Syrian MiG-23 and that its pilot was taken to hospital at a military base in the Bekaa Valley.

The stations, supported by Lebanon's rightist Christian Phalange Party, said five Syrian MiG-23s crossed the border from Syria while a four-plane Israeli formation was flying over Beirut on a reconnaissance mission.

Stormy non-aligned conference ends

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The ministerial conference of non-aligned nations ended a stormy five-day conference Friday night, adopting by acclamation a call for the withdrawal of "foreign troops" from Afghanistan and "foreign forces" from Cambodia.

Other subjects in the final declaration ranged from the Iran-Iraq war and Israeli-occupied Arab territories to "self-determination and independence" for Puerto Rico. The delegates failed to reach pre-conference goals of opening three-way talks among Afghanistan, Pakistan and Iran on the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan and to pave the way for Iranian-Iraqi peace talks.

Attendance of the foreign ministers' conference came shortly before 11 p.m. - 24 hours after it had been scheduled to end - and the bleary-eyed delegates from 90 countries, the Palestine Liberation Organization and South-West Africa People's Organization began packing their bags to go home.

Disputes over wording, especially in the section dealing with the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, had kept the ministers at work for the extra day.

They scrapped a Pakistani proposal that specifically named the Soviet Union and also rejected an Indian version that made no mention of foreign troops.

As approved, that section appealed for the removal of unnamed "foreign troops" from Afghanistan, after the conference rejected a move by Marxist South Yemen to refer to the embattled country as the Democratic Republic of Afghanistan.

Pakistan and several other Moslem nations that have refused to recognize the Afghan regime of President Babrak Karmal led the opposition to the South Yemeni proposal, saying insertion of the full name would be tantamount to recognition.

The Soviets sent some 85,000 soldiers into Afghanistan in December 1979 to help the Marxist government in its continuing battle against Moslem rebels.

A year earlier, an estimated 100,000 Vietnamese troops entered Cambodia to help pro-Soviet Cambodian rebels overthrow the pro-Chinese government of Premier Pol Pot, and the delegates also struggled with the wording on that issue.

The ministers overruled pleas by Malaysia and Singapore that they name Vietnam in the declaration. Vietnam insisted that no mention be made of foreign troops. The approved section referred to "foreign forces."

Delegates again objected to U.S. and Soviet military presence in the Indian Ocean, without identifying the superpowers, and India lost its bid to name the island of Diego Garcia, where the United States has a naval base.

The declaration said the ministers "object to the military presence by all the great powers in the Indian Ocean region," and said it should be a "zone of peace."

Rain, snow to spread some; Sunny skies forecast today

By The Associated Press

The sun shone on the Northeast as a huge high pressure system moved across the region Friday, while rain hit the Pacific Northwest and clouds stretched from the Rockies to the Great Lakes.

The rain was expected to spread into Montana, Idaho and Utah on Saturday, with snow falling at high mountain elevations.

country was expected to have highs in the 40s, 50s and 60s, with 30s and 40s in the Northeast.

Thompson leads record assault in 5-5A swim prelims

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

If Friday's preliminary times are any indication of the times that will be turned in Saturday's finals, many new District 5-5A swimming records will be recorded at Mabee Memorial Swim Center during the district's championship meet.

District swimmers set six new district marks Friday. Midland High's highly regarded girls led the parade with three record breaking performances.

IN THE preliminaries second event, Lori Thompson splashed through the water in 1:59.90 to smash the old record of 2:05.78 in the girls 200-yard freestyle. Just two hours later, Thompson cruised to a new district mark of 55.29 in the 100-yard freestyle.

Not to be outdone, Gretchen Koch, MHS, churned the 50-yard freestyle in 25.62 to erase the old standard of 27.02. The third record-setting performance rolled up by MHS was Andrea Freeman's 5:22.00 time in the 500-yard freestyle which toppled the old mark of 5:44.12.

The boys got into the record setting act behind Cleve Carrens of Midland Lee with his 55.28 timing in the 100-yard fly. Carrens broke his own district mark of 56.64 set in 1980.

BOBBY BREAUX of Odessa Permian swept to a 49.64

clocking in the 100-yard freestyle to dump the old mark of 49.73 and established the sixth record of the day.

As expected, Midland High dominated the girls competition. The Bulldogs had the top qualifying time in all the events MHS had a swimmer.

Thompson set the pace with her two record performances in the 100 free and 200 free. Koch turned in the fastest qualifying time in the 100 back in addition to the 50 free.

Freeman's record time set the pace in the 500 free and Suzi Simpson turned in a mild upset with her top qualifying time of 1:05.91 in the 100 fly.

THE PURPLE Pack picked up some pleasant qualifying spots when Simpson nabbed a second in the 500 yard free, Freeman second in the 200 free, Julie Spaugh second in the 50 free in 27.22 and Janie Dowdle's second in the 100 fly with a clocking of 1:08.38.

MHS' 200-yard medley relay qualified second in 2:08.42 and first in the 400-yard freestyle relay with a clocking of 4:04.15.

Jesse Marsh, MHS mentor said, "The girls swam exceptional. I was really pleased with Julie Spaugh, Janie Dowdle and Suzi Simpson; they really can through for us."

Midland Lee's best qualifying performance was in the 100-yard back where Sara Stone qualified second, Lisa Breen fourth and Tina Harrington eighth.

Other qualifiers for the Rebels were: Emily Murrah second in the 100-yard breaststroke and fifth in the 100 free; Diane Flaten seventh in the 100 breaststroke; Sandie Colson fourth in the 100 free and sixth in the 200 free; Doreen McGookey sixth in the 500 free and second in the 200 I.M.; and Anne Imber eighth in the 200 free. Lee's 400 free relay team qualified fourth and the 200 medley relay notched a third place.

IN THE boys competition, Marsh said, "We had a good preliminary. Shawn Roden and Kevin Skinner did an excellent job for us. Of course this is only the prelims and we will know tomorrow when we start counting points."

Lee mentor, David Whitylaw stated, "We didn't have any major surprises or upsets. We swam pretty much as expected. It still should be a race to the wire between us and Permian."

In all, Lee qualified 15 for the finals plus its two relays while MHS advanced 12 to the finals plus its two relay teams.

Cleve Carrens, with his record performance in the 100 fly and a first in the 100 back in 1:00.12 head the Rebel troops. Other Rebs moving into the finals are: Billy Worley, first in the 500 free and third in the 200 free; Mark Quenzer fifth in the 200 I.M. and second in the 100 breaststroke; Bruce Quenzer fourth in the 100 fly and second in the 200 I.M.; Jon Franke third in the 50 free and 100 free; Lee Hill sixth in the 50 and 100 free; Andy Williams second in the 100 back, fifth in the 100 free; Ronnie Black seventh in the 50 free; Mike Alvarado fifth in the 500 free; and Keith Huddleston third in the 100 back.

Lee's 200 medley relay qualified first in a time of 1:47.92 while the Rebels 400 free relay squad advanced in third.

MIDLAND'S troops were lead by Billy Worley's first in the 500 free and a third in the 200 free. The Purple Pack also qualified Kendall Skinner sixth in the 100 back; Sean Roden seventh in the 100 back and fourth in the 200 I.M.; Pat Rhamey fifth in the 200 free and sixth in the 500 free; James Schupp fourth in the 100 back and seventh in the 100 fly; Brian Birdwell sixth in the 200 free and eighth in the 100 back; and Devin Williamson seventh in the 500 free.

MHS qualified fourth in the 400 free relay and fifth in the 200 medley relay.

Going into the finals, Midland High appears to have the girls title well in hand. The boys race is a little closer. Permian advanced 16 boys the finals, three with the best times in the event. Lee's Whitylaw said, "It will go to the wire. The championship may be decided in the final event."

Finals for all the swimming events gets underway today at 2 p.m. at Mabee Memorial Swim Center.

Frigid Rebels lose to Cooper

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

The Midland Lee Rebels have been clawing and scratching this year in the District 5-5A basketball race, but they have had a hard time drawing blood from their opponents.

Friday night's game at Chaparral Center was much the same story that the Rebels have written all year long. They made bid for victory against the Abilene Cooper Eagles only to end up on the wrong end of a 69-63 score.

It was a combination of cold shooting by the Rebels and the superb performances of Cooper's Barry McLeod and Lanny Dycus that eventually made the difference. But no matter how you look at it, Lee was on the losing end again, falling to 12-18 for the year and insuring a losing season with the loss. Lee also all but mathematically fell from the 5-5A race with a 1-2 second half record. Cooper is now 14-13 and 2-1.

The Rebels trailed Cooper by 13 points with three minutes left in the third quarter as Cooper's Dycus, who led all scorers with 24 points, and McLeod, who pumped in 20 more, dominated the first three frames of play. But Lee made a rally at victory and managed to knot the score at 53 with 4:36 still left to play in the game.

Alvin Dunson scored six of his 10 points in the fourth period to spark the rally along with Randy Pepper, who canned six of his 12 points. At one point, Lee scored eight unanswered points to tie the game with Dunson getting six of them. But as the season has proven, Lee could not hang on and Cooper outscored Lee by a 9-2 margin after the score was tied.

The Rebels never led in the game as Cooper hit its first four shots for an 8-0 lead to start the game. Dycus was a scoring machine and a rebounding demon as he hit eight in the first quarter and 10 in the third quarter. McLeod had eight in the second and six in the third as he seemed to always split the Lee defense inside.

Kenneth Brown, who keeps improving, also had 12 points for the Rebels as did Andre Van Buren, but that did not offset the Cooper duo. Dycus and McLeod 40 of Cooper's first 49 points. Dycus even had a shot beyond mid-court that found nothing but net to end the third period after Lee had worked hard to climb within four points of the lead. It was another of those nights for the Rebels.

Roger Forkner ended with 12 points for Cooper with an eight point final period, hitting six of seven from the free throw line. Those free throws came when Lee had to foul late in the game.

"I thought we played one of our best road games of the year. We had a bad call and lost Dycus late in the game and that was crucial for us at that time. We also got a technical and Dunson made six straight points to tie the game. But our kids hung in there. This group has really been a pleasure to coach because they weren't picked to do anything and I don't think anyone is taking us lightly now," CHS coach Marc Case said after the game.

Lee will try to rebound from another tough loss Tuesday when they host the Big Spring Steers at the Chap.

Lee, however, had some good luck in the junior varsity outing against Cooper, winning 51-49 when Stephen Cherryholmes hit a 15-footer with three seconds left to nail down the win for coach Randall Smith's crew. Jay Pendleton led Lee with nine points while Kyle Cooley had 13 for Cooper and Greg Galbreath 11.

In an inter-city sophomore matchup at the Chap, Midland High pulled out a 70-69 victory over the Lee sophomores as Wes Davis and Scott Sears both hit for 19 points and David Carrasco added 10. Mike Barton led Lee with 14 while Luther Johnson and Brian White both had 10.

Bulldogs roll to easy victory, 85-62

ABILENE — With a crucial game coming up Tuesday in San Angelo, many thought the Midland High Bulldogs would be ripe for an upset Friday against the Abilene High Eagles. That must have been the imagination of the rest of the District 5-5A field, hoping an upset could be possible, because the Bulldogs rolled to an easy 85-62 victory.

Of course, Herbert "Magic" Johnson had a great deal to do with the rout. The 6-foot-9 senior hit for 33 points, had 20 rebounds and dealt out 10 assists as the Bulldogs rolled to their 13th straight victory. The No. 9 state ranked Bulldogs are now 27-3 on the year and own a perfect 3-0 mark heading into Tuesday's key second half district clash with 3-0 San Angelo, who defeated Odessa High Friday night.

With Johnson hitting for 33 points, his best district scoring punch, there was not many points left to spread around to the other 14 who scored for the Pack. No other Bulldog hit in double figures, but Horace Brown did hit for nine while Don Sharnowski and Mike Velasco both had seven.

Midland rolled to a 17-11 lead in the first quarter, and coach Jack Stephenson even used 14 players in the quarter. The Pack then erupted for 25 points in the second period to take a 42-21 halftime lead, and the song was sung. MHS also had 18 in the third period and 19 in the final quarter for its most consistent showing in a long while. AHS outscored MHS by a 25-19 count in the final quarter or the verdict would have been much worse.

The Bulldogs will hold a key Booster Club meeting at 7 p.m. in the MHS cafeteria and highlights of this game may be seen. Stephenson will also give a scouting report on San Angelo, a team that carried the Bulldogs all the breathing room they need for the loop crown. But they will have to do it on the road.

Since the Bulldogs won the first half race with a 7-0 mark, a victory over San Angelo Tuesday would just about give the Bulldogs all the breathing room they need for the loop crown. But they will have to do it on the first half.

Lass needed

37 for mark, settles for 100

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Linda Page needed 37 points against Mastbaum High School Friday for 2,000 in her career at Dobbins Tech. Instead, she scored 100 for a Public League record.

The final score was Dobbins 131, Mastbaum 38.

The state high school scoring record for girls or boys is 114 points in one game by Bristol's Pete Cimino against Palisades Jan. 22, 1960.

PAGE'S performance set a Public League mark for girls or boys basketball.

Page, who started playing basketball only four years ago, scored 87 points this season in a game against Roxborough High School.

Steinberg could see handwriting on wall

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Dick Steinberg left Los Angeles reluctantly to take a job with New Orleans. But after one season with the problem-plagued Saints he had no qualms about making a mistake in going there.

"It was extremely tough for me. I never really felt totally comfortable there," said Steinberg, the Saints' former vice president of player personnel. "In retrospect, I probably made a mistake in going there."

"It was almost embarrassing to be associated with a team that played so poorly."

But it wasn't the Saints' 1-15 record that drove Steinberg and Steve Rosenblum, the executive vice president and general manager, to resign from the National Football League team Jan. 20.

He said that as coach and general manager at Houston, Steinberg controlled the kinds of

Tale of déjà vu that wrecks ghosts

By GORDON SMITH

Allentown Call-Chronicle

ALLENSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — There have been stories of déjà vu that created more than passing interest.

But the one Jim Booros tells brings the ghosts right into focus.

Booros, an Allentown Municipal Golf course professional, is trying to become an member of the Professional Golfers Association Tournament Players Division. In 1977, he fell just short of playing privilege prerequisites.

Earlier this week, Booros qualified for the Hawaiian Open. The tournament began Thursday at Waiaia Country Club in Honolulu. Booros has been there before. But that's only part of the story.

HE SHOT a 3-under-par 69 in Monday's qualifying round at Torrey Pines Golf Course in LaJolla, Calif., where last week's San Diego Open was staged. His 69 was identical to the score he posted four years ago to qualify for the Hawaiian Open.

Booros made four birdies in Monday's qualifying. He made four birdies in the same qualifying event four years ago — on the same holes.

OK. Irony, that's all. What's the big deal?

Read on ... "It all began three weeks ago," Booros said in a telephone interview. "I missed qualifying for the Crosby with the same score I missed with for years ago for the Crosby. Then things just continued to get weird."

"I TOOK off for San Diego and the Monday qualifying. I shot 71 and made the San Diego Open field. It was the first tournament I qualified for this year. And it was the first tournament I qualified for four years ago."

Booros shot a 71 to qualify for the San Diego Open, which was identical to his score four years ago on the same course, even to the holes he parred, bogied and birdied.

"I figured, what the heck, I was drawing ridiculous parallels. It must be irony. Right? So I figured it was stupid, and forgot about the similarities for a few days."

THEN CAME the first round of the San Diego Open. Booros fired a 1-over-par round of 73. It matched the first-round score he shot four years ago in the same event.

Then came round two, and Booros shot a 1-under-par 71, identical to his score in the second round four years ago.

"Then everything got crazy," Booros said.

Four years ago, Booros didn't make the halfway tournament cut with those same scores. In years since, the cutoff point was as high as 148.

But Booros would learn when the second round was completed that the cutoff point would be 143. Four years ago, the cutoff was 143, so Booros again missed by one shot at 144.

"I can't believe it," Booros said. "It was like I was standing on the same place at the same time of day with the same clothes on and drinking the same cup of Coke when they told me I had missed the cut by one."

SO IT was off to the practice range — a bit shaky — to prepare for this week's Hawaiian qualifying.

"By Monday morning, I must admit I was a little psych'd out," he said.

As Booros stood over a sizable putt on the final hole, it occurred to him that if he made the putt, he would have the same score that he shot four years ago on the same course in the same event.

Plop. Into the cup rolled the putt.

Tate in comeback try against Steichen Sunday

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A wiser but sadder John Tate goes back into the ring against Harvey Steichen Sunday, trying to prove he's not over the hill at 26 after two nose-dive knockouts last year robbed him of his title and esteem.

The World Boxing Association's heavyweight champion just 11 months ago, Tate thinks it will take him six to 10 fights and more than a year to get back into contention for the title.

"It's the biggest fight of his life," Manager Ace Miller says. "If he loses, it's all over. If he wins, he's on his way back. He's got the biggest job in the world right now."

Tate's rag-to-riches story from a grade school dropout and garbage truck driver to world champion turned full circle in 1980 when he was knocked out cold in the 15th round last March by Mike Weaver.

Plop. Into the cup rolled the putt.

In 1975, John Walker was track and field's Athlete of the Year. He was the Black Label Johnny Walker, sporting the midnight hues of the New Zealand track federation.

He was the first man to run a mile under 3:50 — doing 3:49.4 at Goteborg, Sweden, in August of '75. He also ran a 3:32.4 1,500 meters that year.

In the Olympics of 1976, Walker was the clear favorite when the African boycott removed Tanzania's Filbert Bayi from the list. But in the field that year was a precocious young Enlishman, Steve Ovett, 20, a graduated 200-meter man who had been running some phenomenal splits in the mile. Experts were intrigued.

But the inexperienced Ovett ran the fasted preliminary 1,500 meter heat ever run in an Olympics, a 3:37.9. A startled field of six followed him. None of them made the finals. So Walker won his Olympics. He shuffled Ovett clear back to sixth in the heats at Moscow that didn't belong there. There were blokes running the 1,500 meters in 4:15."

Did he have realistic expectations of success against Britain's golden duo? "Well, you look at the mistakes Coe made in the 800, which he should have won. He blew it. Then, you look at the mistakes Ovett made in the 1,500. He threw it out the window. Who's to say that if the Africans and Thomas Wessinghage (W. Germany) and Steve Scott (U.S.A.) are in there, they won't make even more mistakes? Scott's no one to lay back and let you plot your own race, you know. There were guys in the heats at Moscow that didn't belong there. There were blokes running the 1,500 meters in 4:15."

gold medal.

He reflected on the irony of it all as he sat at a lunch preparatory to his appearance this week in the mile race at the Los Angeles Times Indoor Games. First of all, he doesn't think he saved the world by skipping Moscow's Olympic mile last August. "Did it get one bloody soldier out of Afghanistan?" he demands. "Or just one New Zealand runner out of Russia?"

Did he have realistic expectations of success against Britain's golden duo? "Well, you look at the mistakes Coe made in the 800, which he should have won. He blew it. Then, you look at the mistakes Ovett made in the 1,500. He threw it out the window. Who's to say that if the Africans and Thomas Wessinghage (W. There were guys in the heats at Moscow that didn't belong there. There were blokes running the 1,500 meters in 4:15."

AS THEY say around the race track, Coe and Ovett "beat nothing." A field of claimers, "Runners," if you can call them that, from Soviet allies like Benin who turned in 4:15.3 heats, and Vietnamese who turned in 4:06.8 heats. Even Coe's winning time (3:38.4), while better than the 1,500 meters Walker ran in the rain in Montreal, would not have won any other Olympic 1,500 meters since 1956.

There has never been a repeat winner in the Olympic "mile" four years apart (James D. Lightbody won in 1904 and again in the rump Olympics of 1906).

The rest of the track world may doubt it, but John Walker thinks he was a solid threat to become the first ever to repeat the metric mile. His argument runs that, even with everything going their way and competition minimal to nonexistent, Coe and Ovett showed they could be pressured into mistakes. "Coe should have won both the 800 and the 1,500, if he had experience. And Ovett could have won both, too." Anyway, John boasts Coe never did scare him. "They just used Coe as a pacemaker when he ran against me. I beat him every time."

Plummeting NBA gate blamed on too much free television

By BUD POLIQUIN

Earlier this season, San Diego Clipper Coach Paul Silas stood along the sidelines, watching his team take its pre-game layups in front of 11,000 empty seats at the San Diego Sports Arena.

Now, the sight of 11,000 empty seats 15 minutes before tip-off at the cavernous Kingdome in Seattle or the spacious Silverdome in Pontiac, Mich., is one thing. But in the Sports Arena, where the capacity is listed at 13,841, 11,000 empty seats can make one feel very lonely.

And because that is so, Silas turned to Hal Childs, Clipper vice president, and said, "Come on, Hal, unlock the doors. Let 'em in the place."

So it has gone thus far this season in San Diego. And in Detroit. And in Cleveland. And throughout too much of the National Basketball Association.

Certainly, the numbers suggest that the NBA, the 23-team NBA now in its 35th year of operation, is in trouble. And that's trouble with a capital T and that rhymes with P and that stands for People. Simply, there aren't enough of them in the stands.

THROUGH a total of 573 games the average attendance for an NBA game in 1980-81 was 9,662. A season ago after the league's first 573 dates, the number was 10,680 which, when compared to the '80-81 figures, computes to an average attendance drop of 1,018 per game — or 10 percent — from one January to the next.

Breaking it down further, 13 of the 23 clubs' attendances are down, 12 of them by 10 percent or more (led by Detroit with a 42 percent dropoff) and 11 of them by more than 1,100 fans per game (led by Seattle with a 4,201 nightly loss).

Conversely, only eight NBA teams are up, four by 1 percent or less (San Antonio, for instance, with a lot of available seats had drawn only 31 more fans a night despite the sixth-best record in the NBA) while another, Utah, shows only a 2 percent increase, going from 7,300 a game to 7,456.

PORLTAND, of course, which hasn't had an empty seat in its building since April 5, 1977, for a game against Detroit, has remained even with its per-date average of 12,666. The newborn Dallas Mavericks, meanwhile, who are attracting an average of 7,638 to lower the overall league average norm to 9,596, must be excluded from any comparison.

"Attendance is down for two reasons," said Joe Axelson, the NBA's director of operations. "One is the economy. Money is tight these days and people are holding on to it. And the other is the incredible amount of games you can see on cable TV. I live in New Jersey and I can see between 15 and 20 NBA games a week right in my living room.

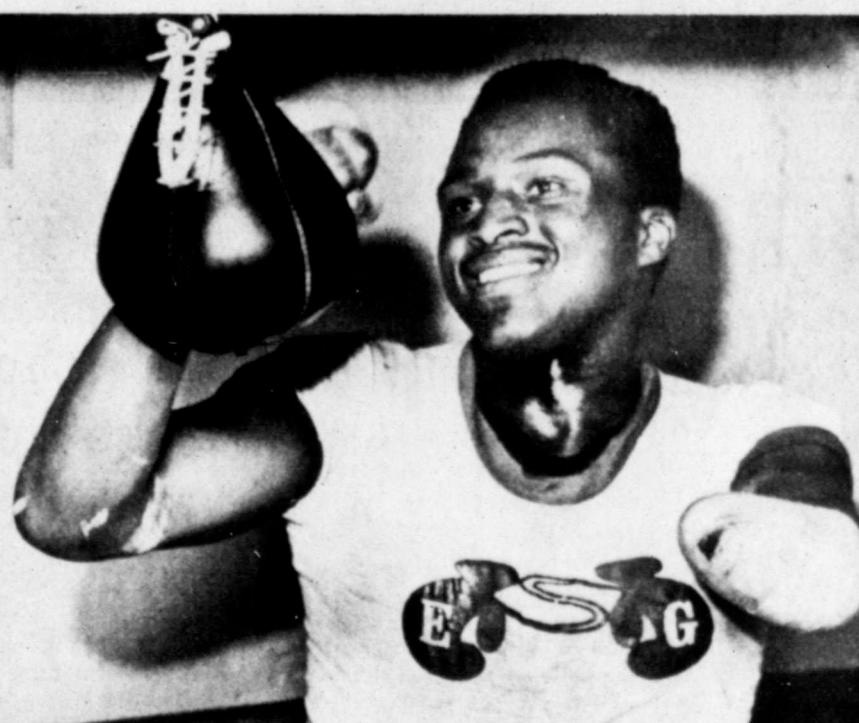

"I'm talking about the Bulls, Atlanta, Philly, the Knicks, the Nets, Boston, you name it. I keep up with the league, but I don't spend a dime on tickets. Another thing you've got to remember is that last season was a record year in attendance, so you're comparing everything to a record."

Indeed, the NBA drew almost 9.94 million fans — its highest total ever — during the regular season in 1979-80. But facts are facts and the fact is that the NBA faces a loss of some 1 million fans this time around, despite the addition of one more team.

THE QUESTION, of course, is why? Why has the NBA fallen from grace with the fans? Why is attendance down? Why is the league coming off a 1979-80 season in which it recorded its second-worst national television ratings in the last 15 years?

"The basic problem is that the NBA has an image problem on a national level," Jerry Colangelo, the Phoenix general manager, said. "It's vogue to talk about the bad points of professional basketball instead of the good ones."

One-armed boxer fights to gain license for ring

By RUTH BONAPACE

ELIZABETH, N.J. (AP) — On the streets of a Newark ghetto, Mike Maye's exhibition bouts with Muhammad Ali and Tommy Hearns will be just another memory. As reality settles, the one-armed teen-ager will resume his forlorn fight for a professional boxing license.

It's his toughest contest. And he's sure to lose in New Jersey, where boxing officials balk at allowing a deformed man into the ring with seasoned fighters.

While Maye's promoters complained of civil rights violations Thursday, Deputy State Athletic Commissioner Bob Lee said he was worried about the youth's safety.

Maye's left arm ends just below the elbow, the result of a birth defect. He wears a glove over the stump that reaches almost to his shoulder.

"An experienced fighter will exploit that deficiency and cause him serious injury," Lee said.

But Thursday night, Maye paid little heed to a professional career.

MAYE WAS awestruck as Ali called him "an inspiration to the handicapped," donned a sweat suit and gave the 19-year-old boxer the boot of a lifetime at the Dunn Sports Center.

By the end of the first round, after Ali danced and delighted the crowd with his animated facial expressions, Maye was so overwhelmed he wan-
