City Council awash in draw problems

By LANA CUNNINGHAM Staff Writer

It was a no-win situation Tuesday for the Midland City Council. In looking at a proposal to study the area's rising water table and flowing water problems in Midland Draw, the council ran into a brick wall with the various bricks being:

-Some county residents who didn't want the consulting hydrology firm of Ed Reed and Associates, Inc., to do the study.

Other county residents who felt the study was a waste of time and the City Council should proceed with so-

-A lack of support from the Midland County Commissioners who were to agree during their Monday meeting to pay part of the study's cost. Instead, no action was taken.

AFTER AN HOUR-LONG debate on the study between the council and county residents, the city panel voted to pursue the study on a joint basis with the county. But to assure that the county will participate in the cost, a special joint session of the city and county elected officials will be held at 8: 30 a.m. Thursday in City Hall Council Chambers.

Joe Reed with the hydrology firm outlined reasons for the proposed $53,174 study and its focus.

The two problems facing city and county residents, he said, are a water table that is rising throughout the city and outside the city limits and water flowing in Midland Draw, "which is not normal."

A task force set up through the Human Relations Council to review the problems — and which includes City Councilman Tom Sloan and County Commissioner Charlie Welch - agreed to the six-month proposal of

Two water table maps would be prepared, said Reed. One would be a detailed map in the vicinity of the landfill and sewer plant area, including elevation points on the draw.

This map would be incorporated into a regional water table map that would cover the area, demonstrating abnormal water levels, he said.

Another part of the study calls for sampling the water quality of ground water and surface water to determine various chemicals in the water and if county residents' drinking water is being contaminated.

A FOURTH PART of the study would evaluate seepage from sewage lagoons, or ponds, on a preliminary basis, to see how much of the liquid is flowing into the draw and its effects. Monthly reports would be presented to the City Council and County Commissioners during the study, Reed

Sloan asked that Reed break down the study into what part would deal directly within city limits and what part with strictly the county. Cost of the study would be divided accord-

Benefits of the study "would be multi-faceted," Reed said. "There's a controversy over waste water in the draw. I feel it's a combination of seepage from the lagoons and rising ground water. We can determine some feel for seepage and for the discharge of ground water. I feel the two are inter-connected.'

But when Reed added that the county took no action on the plan during its meeting the previous day, Sloan remarked, "I thought Charlie Welch said the county would agree to pay for at least the evaluation of seepage from the lagoons.'

The hydrologist mentioned that basements within the city are becoming flooded by ground water. This water is pumped into the draw or the sanitary sewer line, and it all winds up in the southeast part of the county

Citizens darken firm's glowing plans for cable

Tall City TV Cable Corp. predicted a glowing future for cable television service in Midland that would start within two years. But some Midland subscribers said Tuesday they would prefer better service on what they already have Representatives of the Times-Mirror Corp., which owns Tall City TV Cable, appeared Tuesday at the Midland City Council session in City Hall to outline plans for the future and hear comments from residents about the service.

Tom Mixon, local manager, said the name would be changed to Times-Mirror Corp. of Midland and by March it would add CNN, a 24-hour news channel

Also planned is the addition of Channel 17, an independent "superstation" based in Atlanta, Ga., on a part-time basis. Federal Communications Commission regulations limit the Midland cable system to only onc independent, Mixon explained, and Tall City already has the Fort Worth station.

A shopping channel should be coming in a few months, Mixon added.

THE BIGGEST PROJECT that will be undertaken in a few months and should be completed within two years is a "major rebuilding of the entire system that will allow 52 channels." Buyers would have a choice of what Mixon called "optional programming." Consumers would buy a $150 to $200 converter and then pay for the programming package they prefer, he explained.

Mayor G. Thane Akins asked Mixon about telephone access, referring to numerous complaints that customers can get only a busy signal. Mixon claimed two more telephone

$6.5 million school bond sought

By RICHARD ORR Staff Writer

A school bond election totaling $6.5 million in repairs and new construction has been tentatively set for April

School board trustees outlined the bond issue proposal at their regular meeting Tuesday afternoon and said they would they would officially set the date for the election on March

The bond package includes a 45,000square-foot new elementary school on the northwest side and a new 42,000square-foot elementary school to replace an aging DeZavala Elemen tary on the far east side. Cost of construction is $45 a square-foot.

In addition to two new schools, the proposal calls for adding $200,000 worth of office space to Lee High and some $800,000 worth of repair and renovation work at Midland High. Total cost to taxpayers, if the issue passes, will be $6.5 million The work at Midland High involves converting the school's library to provide additional office space, building a new library and adding 1,600 square feet to the band hall.

Trustees said the bond package will be worded so that voters will be able to vote yes or no on each of the two proposals, thereby not requiring that the total package be accepted or rejected en toto.

Previous bond issue proposals resulted in criticsm because voters were forced to choose between taking the whole package or nothing.

Board Member Parker Humes said minimum - if any - advertising would be used to promote the propos-

"It'll be education, more than anything else. We'll be speaking to PTA groups and various civic organizations. And there'll be a brochure explaining why we need approval."

In other action during Tuesday's lengthy meeting, trustees reviewed a survey conducted by the administration on the use of alcohol and drugs in city's two high schools.

The 18-question survey was taken Feb. 5 at both Midland and Lee Highs. The surveys were taken on a voluntary basis and administered to senior high school government classes. A total of 918 students mostly juniors - were polled anonymously and provided figures showing alcohol is used far more extensively than are drugs.

Forty-one percent of the students said they drank at least once a week or more. Twenty-two percent indicated they got intoxicated at least once a week. And 27 percent reported they have personally seen students under the influence of alcohol on school grounds during school hours at least once a week or more.

Conversely, 45 percent of the students responding to the survey said they rarely or never drink, while 63 percent replied that they rarely or never get intoxicated.

By contrast, 10 percent admitted using marijuana at least once a week. Ten percent also said they get high at least once a week. Fifteen percent reported seeing grass being sold or given away during the sciool day once a week or more, while 18 percent said they had personally seen students using marijuana on school grounds during school hours at least once a

City merchants to offer Midland Gold discounts

Relief for the senior citizens and handicapped persons on fixed incomes is coming in the form of a discount program at various Midland merchants. Formation of the community program, called Midland Gold, was announced this morning during a news conference in the First National Room of the First National Bank of Midland.

The. Rev. Steve Edwards, senior minister of the First Christian Church, explained Midlanders over the age of 62 and persons who are permanently handicapped may apply for a Midland Gold card at the Senior Services office, 1301 W. Louisiana Ave. Each applicant must show proof of age, such as with a valid driver's license, birth certificate or other legal regardless of age, will need to provide proof of their disability.

A Gold card will be issued and the holders may use it at stores where the merchants will display a Midland Gold sign in their window, explained Edwards. Discounts will range from 5 to 50 percent, depending upon the merchant's discretion.

Edwards pointed out this is a cashonly program. And once merchants sign up for it, they aren't obligated forever. They may pull out at any time by sending a written statement to the Senior Services office. After surveying several merchants first to determine their acceptability of the program, the discount will cover such items as auto services, parts and repairs, barber and beauty shops, bakeries, clothing and shoe

Death of THFC head leads to cancellation of hearing

AUSTIN — The hearing concerning the contiuing fight between Midland and Odessa over the intallation of a cancer treatment machine, scheduled to go before the Texas Health Facilities Commission today and Thursday, was cancelled and has not been rescheduled.

The hearing was canceled due to the death of William Ray Keener, head of the THFC. Keener, 35, was found slumped in the back seat of his 1979 Plymouth in the garage of his home in Austin Tuesday. A hose was attached to the vehicle's exhaust pipe and a note was found inside the car, authorities said.

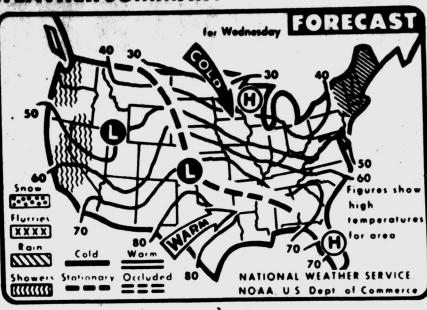

Upon learning of Keener's death, the THFC canceled all hearings for the remainder of the week. The hearing to settle the cancer machine controversy for Midland and Odessa will be rescheduled for a later date.

The controversy centers around an application by Medical Center Hospital in Odessa to install a 6 Million Electron Volt linear accelerator, a major piece of equipment in the treatment of cancer.

Officials at Midland Memorial Hospital, as well as representatives from the Midland City Council, Chamber of Commerce, County Commissioners and Parkview Hospital, are opposing MCH's bid for the 6MEV machine.

MMH is opposing the Odessa bid on the grounds that the machine is not only an exact duplication of the 6MEV machine scheduled to be installed this week in the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center, but also on grounds that the operation of the machine in Odessa would steal essential revenues from the fledgling Midland cancer center

Edwards said the program organiz ers have obtained the support of all Midland bank presidents. Letters from these men will be mailed to about 1,000 merchants this week, encouraging them to sign up for the program, the minister said.

And the Jaycees will be "walking the streets" in getting the merchants to sign up, said that group's president, Alan Hale.

The Chamber of Commerce also has thrown its support behind the program, according to Randy Hicks.

Applicants may start signing up for the program in mid-April, according to Edwards. Locations of registration will be published at that time. "Participants will receive a comprehensive directory showing what merchants are involved in the program, along with discounts and limita Edwards acknowledged that there are "some senior citizens who obviously could buy the city. But this program is to help our city's residents on fixed incomes to tight the battle of

'Midland rapidly is becoming a major retirement center in West Texas with currently over 10,000 residents" over 62.

He added that while the city is in a prosperous era, "it is also burdened with the second highest cost of living in the state of Texas. What once appeared to be an adequate retirement income is rapidly diminishing as double digit inflation means less and less buying power for necessities and every day needed services."

The program is patterned after the statewide Buckeye program in Ohio, explained Pat Faulkner with Senior Services at the First Christian Church. San Angelo has had a similar program in effect for about a year, she said. Ms. Faulkner, along with Janet Hestwood and Steve Edwards, have been the primary organizers.

Mayor G. Thane Akins commented that the city does "so little to help the elderly and handicapped, and I'm excited about this. It should help these people at a time when they're being devastated by being on fixed in-

Seven percent indicated they use grass and alcohol in combination at least once a week, while 7 percent admitted to being high in class at least once a week. The use of hallucinogens was admitted by one percent of the students responding to the poll, while three percent use illegal stimulants at least once a week.

Depressants are used by one percent of the students at least once a week. And one percent indicated they use cocaine at least once a week.

Conversely, 84 percent of the students said they rarely or never used grass, and 84 percent also indicated they rarely or never get high. While 73 percent said they have rarely or never personally seen other students using marijuana on school grounds during school hours. Friends supplied most of the drugs used by students. In general, the survey indicated more boys than girls are using drugs and alcohol, and the majority of those who use drugs and alcohol started doing so in ninth

Trustees discussed the survey at length and determined that most of the drug and alcohol use occurs in student cars and elsewhere off campus - either while students are on their way to and from school or during the noon hour.

Trustees instructed the administration to come back in 30 days with a detailed study of what it would cost to "close the campuses" by fencing parking lots and issuing student identification cards in an effort to control off-campus activity during school

While trustee Johnny Warren favored closing the campuses, he urged the cost study on grounds that "we're doing about all we can afford to do now (various drug education classes and programs).

"There's a limit to what taxpayers can afford to pay in the way of policing this. We need to determine if we can afford fences and the additional personnel it would take for monitor-

Trustee Ron Britton agreed, but added: "At least we will have done all we can to solve the problem" of keeping drugs and alcohol away from students during the school day.

where the draw and sewage treatment plant are located.

AFTER LISTENING to an outline of the study, county resident Pat Anderson told the council he was opposed to the firm of Ed Reed conduct-

'I think the council should bring in an outsider first. Maybe they could solve the problems quicker. These people (Reed's hydrology firm) have been handling the problem for a long period of time and they're not solving it. I'm not the only one who has this opinion," he charged.

County residents, he claimed, aren't interested in problems within the city, such as the rising ground water in Wadley-Barron Park. "We're only interested in contamination; we feel a holding pond is leaking very badly," Anderson added.

Ponds, or lagoons, in the county hold primary treated effluent for 25 days for an oxidation process to occur. Then the water is used for irrigating alfalfa fields.

Anderson also reasoned that rising ground water has nothing to do with water flowing in the draw. "Midland Draw is dry on the north side of Interstate 20," he said.

Durham questioned him if the council was "just throwing a study at the problem or are we following through with a solution."

SLOAN INTERJECTED that "whoever you're talking with is misled. We need this study to find out what to do. And if your people would make them-selves known and pitch in and help, we would appreciate it more than their standing in the background and criticizing."

Marion Jones, who said he lives near Midland Draw, claimed the draw is being polluted again "and it's raw sewage. Soon we'll have contaminated water."

John Lowe, director of public utilities, admitted one of the ponds overflowed "sometime between 9:30 a.m. Saturday and 9: 30 a.m. Sunday." The only reason he could find, said Lowe, was an excessive amount of weeds that stopped up a siphon. That spill, which involved treated effluent, was reported Monday to the Texas Water Resources representative in Pecos. Pat Anderson claimed the council had all the facts and didn't need the study. "What more do you want? Ground water will be pure. Water coming out of the reservoir will be total pollution. When I see polluted water and I see a sewer plant right down from it, I see it as black and white. Ground water would be fresh.

It wouldn't stink and it wouldn't have no algae" as does the water in Mid-

Closed-door session held to discuss Monahans Draw

Midland County commissioners conferred with county-retained lawyer Ted Kerr, County Attorney Robert Rendall and Midland city-county chief sanitarian Jewel Smith in a closed-door executive session for about two hours Wednesday afternoon. Commissioners apparently discussed pending litigation against the city of Odessa in the on-going dispute over use of Monahans Draw and on condemnation proceedings on right-of-way land for the proposed Loop 250 as a northern route connecting Midland to Odessa.

Commissioners are considering legal action against Odessa, which has a Texas Department of Water Resources permit to dump secondary-treated effluent from its sewage treatment plant into the draw, which winds eastwardly into Midland County and which merges with the controversial Midland Draw in far east Midland County.

Apparently, effluent and possibly ground water have caused Monahans Draw to overflow at times and to wash out county roads, flood cotton and ranch land, and allegedly to contaminate water wells along the draw. The contaminants supposedly are sewage effluent and chemicals from the Odessa petro-chemical complexes along the draw.

Commissioners, however, did not publicly discuss any action which they might take against the city of Odessa. However, the commissioners earlier indicated that they might sue Odessa for damages incurred by Midland County and suggested that private citizens might sue for damages to their water or land. Monahans Draw has been deemed a public waterway and a navigable stream. Odessa legally can dump its cleaned-up effluent into the draw.

Funerals of slain Atlanta children being monitored

ATLANTA (AP) - Two more black children, boys aged 10 and 14, have been reported missing in Atlanta, police said today. There was no word, however, on whether their cases had been assigned to the task force investigating 18 deaths and two disappear-

Police identified the boys as Dempster D. Williams, 10, of southwest Atlanta, and Termal Heard, 14, of northwest Atlanta, both last seen on Tuesday.

Police sources could not confirm reports that the cases had been assigned to the task force. Meanwhile, authorities investigating the cases of the murdered or missing children say they have been monitoring the funerals of the victims and the weekly volunteer searches of neighborhoods in hopes of turning up a suspect. DeKalb County Public Safety

Director Dick Hand said Tuesday night that people attending the funerals and the searches for clues in city neighborhoods have been watched by police because "more than likely the suspect in these cases has been at these locations." He did not say if the surveillance efforts turned up any leads that might help solve the 18 slayings and two disappearances. In other developments Tuesday:

-An Atlanta City Council committee approved an ordinance banning children 15 and under from selling merchandise on streets, in public areas or at shopping centers. The measure is another effort to keep unattended children off the streets, particularly since a number of the 20 victims were considered budding entrepreneurs.

Forecast fair, warm

Judging from the weather, it's almost garden planting, grass watering, bud-bursting springtime. Only the calendar doesn't agree. The forecast, issued by the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, is calling for fair skies tonight with warm temperatures continuing. Skies will turn partly cloudy on Thursday. The mercury will drop into the lower 40s tonight, but is expected to climb into the lower 80s on Thurs-Winds should blow out of the southwest at 10-15 mph. No precipitation was recorded during the last 24 hours, leaving the month's total at a trace and the total so far for 1981 at .56.

Tuesday's high temperature was 75, failing to reach the record 84-degree reading for that date set in 1956. This morning's low of 40 was nowhere near as chilly as the 11-degree record for this date set in 1960.

-Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown announced that 18 arrests have been made under the city's fourmonth-old curfew for children under 15. Brown said arrests have been made only in those cases where no other method could get a child off the streets. -A 14-year-old black boy missing since last Thursday was found safe in suburban Decatur. Police said Mario Kirk was turned over to juvenile authorities after he was spotted by a police officer. -The Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Social Change announced plans for a "moratorium on murder" ·rally and march Sunday to show concern over the cases.

-U.S. Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., called on the Justice Department to provide direct financial aid to the city for its investigation of the child cases. Thurmond, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said in a letter to Attorney General William French Smith that the Atlanta case is "a social disaster for all America."

Hand and the DeKalb County police became involved in the child cases earlier this month when the body of 11-year-old Patrick Baltazar was found behind an office complex in the suburban county. Hand said Tuesday he would not discount the theory that the killer or killers dumped Baltazar's body in his county because of his comments critical of the Atlanta police investigation of the slayings. The comments were published shortly before Baltazar's body was discovered. A Marietta psychologist also lent support to that theory Tuesday. Dr. Tom Greco, in an interview with the Atlanta Constitution, said the killer or killers apparently is taking more risks now because outfoxing the police and the system "take on sort of a challenge.

"Publicity sometimes helps feed the ego of the person or persons involved," he said.

The president's remarks came at a Pentagon ceremony to award the Medal of Honor, the nation's highest award for wartime valor, to retired Army Master Sgt. Roy P. Benavidez of El Campo, Texas.

Benavidez, now 45, was credited with saving the lives of eight wounded members of a Green Beret reconnaissance team during an evacuation from a jungle battle near Loc Ninh in 1968.

Reagan used the occasion to tell the nation to extend overdue gratitude to all Vietnam veterans.

"There's been no nthank you' for their sacrifice," he said. "They came home without a victory not because they had been defeated but because they had been denied permission to

Reagan said the citation for Benavidez, the 239th person to receive the Medal of Honor for Vetnam herics, had been

Israel pressuring Reagan to deny Saudi jet requests

Arabia to buy larger fuel tanks and bomb racks for its fleet of American jets, saying the controversial deal would aggravate the arms race in the Middle East.

Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir made the appeal Tuesday in a 30-minute White House meeting in which he asked Reagan to slow U.S. weapons deliveries to all hostile Arab countries.

Shamir said his impression was that Reagan was sympathetic to Israel's security concerns. However, he said he got no assurances that the president would block delivery of the F-15 equipment

Saudi Arabia is to begin receiving next year. In that event, Shamir urged Reagan to ease the blow by providing Israel with new defensive arms.

Saudi Arabia purchased 60 F-15s from the United States. In gaining congressional approval for the controversial sale in 1978, the Carter administration pledged not to make the jets more powerful.

Eight members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee reminded Reagan about the promise in a letter. They said, "Our interest in the region could be jeopardized if we were to disregard past assurances or were to upset the regional balance of power."

Catching the Soviets

Where the United States and the Soviet Union are involved in arms deployment, on one hand the Soviet Union wins, it seems. On the other hand the United States

At least that's the way it looks judging from a recent federal arms control impact statement sent to Congress. The study indicated that if the United States deploys both the Trident II submarine missile and the MX missile system, the Soviets might respond by accelerating their nuclear arms development.

The study went further, however, to note that if the United States chose not to deploy the MX, "the national political and military risks involved ... are even greater."

It seems that we are in something of a no-win situation here: We don't win IF we try to catch up with the Soviets in strategic arms. And we lose if we do try.

Of course, as President Ronald Reagan has noted in the past in more colorful words, when one is dealing with the Soviet Union, he is not dealing with an honest, truth-telling, hands-on-the-table opponent. The Soviets are not bound by the same "rules" of moral conduct that we have been operating under.

And that fact has proven costly, too. The Soviet Union, meanwhile, has concentrated on expanding its nuclear arsenal while the United States has attempted to walk the straight and narrow.

Now we are in a position of needing to do some catching up and we're being told that if we try to do so, the Soviets may become upset and speed up their nuclear arms development.

Realistically, of course, we want to regain and maintain nuclear equality with the Soviet Union without initiating a costly arms race. That won't be easy, but it's what we have to strive for.

It seems that the best course of action would be to increase our arsenal the best that we can without encouraging the Soviets to reciprocate - primarily by deploying cruise missiles and either the MX system or the Trident II

As noted in the study sent to Congress, such an increase in U.S. strategic capabilities in the absence of a SALT agreement might even be an incentive for the Soviets to make concessions toward another arms limitation treaty.

Arms limitation treaties when the provisions are equitable and verifiable - are much preferable to arms expansion.

FEC's out of line

The Federal Election Commission was created in the wake of the Watergate scandal to clean up the mess in campaign financing. The last time we checked, hounding the press and encroaching on First Amendment rights was not a part of the commission's charter.

So, why is the commission investigating Reader's Digest magazine? The answer, it seems, is that overzealous FEC officials have stretched their statutory mandate far beyond anything Congress intended or the courts are likely to permit.

At issue is a promotional campaign waged a year ago by Reader's Digest editors to draw attention to a featured article questioning Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's account of the Chappaquiddick accident.

The commission, responding to a "citizen complaint," is probing the magazine's promotional expenditures on the suspicion that these advertising expenses might somehow constitute a campaign contribution to Sen. Kennedy's opponents in last year's Democratic Really now! If portions of the Reader's Digest advertising budget qualify as campaign contributions, so might similar expenditures made to promote political reportage in hundreds of other periodicals, newspapers, newsletters and interest group bulletins.

And what about the money spent by publishers to spur sales of countless books defending or attacking politicians? Are these to be viewed as de facto contributions to somebody's campaign as

If so, the First Amendment and unfettered political reporting are in obvious peril.

Reader's Digest has gone to court in an effort to block the FEC investigation. Should this fail to restrain the commission's gumshoes, Congress ought to waste no time in amending the FEC's charter to preclude any chance that similar abuses could occur again,

El Salvador's the winner in 'Battle of the Budget'

WASHINGTON — There is no doubt in anyone's mind that the military is going to get everything it asks for in the new Reagan budget. But it's easier to give money to the Pentagon than it is to spend it. All the services want their mitts on the new funds, and once it's been okayed, we may see internecine battles between the armed forces, the likes of which this country has never witnessed before.

As soon as Congress appropriates the money, it will be delivered in a Brink's truck to the doorstep of the Pentagon, where high-ranking offi-cers of the four branches of services will be waiting for it.

An admiral will say to the Brink's employees, "OK, men, bring the money up to the safe in the Navy procurement office.'

"The hell you say," an Air Force general will shout. "That money is going for our MX missile program. The Air Force needs every penny of it, and more.

An Army four-star general will chip in, "Keep your hands off those bags. They've been set aside to build up our conventional forces.

"In a pig's ear," the admiral says.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Waste, fraud ignored by federal officials

WASHINGTON - "Spare the rod and spoil the child" is an old-fashioned maxim that has long since fallen out of favor - with the federal

When Uncle Sam's hardworking auditors find evidence of fraud and waste in the spending of federal funds, the government is supposed to crack down on the offenders and at least force them to give back the money they ripped off from the taxpayers. In many cases, interest and penalties should be levied as well.

Incredibly, though, the middle-level bureaucrats who should be chasing down these wayward billions just can't be bothered. In some cases, they actually reward the ripoff artists with even more government goodies. Spared the rod of federal enforcement, it's no wonder the spoiled recipients of government funds thumb their noses at the regulations — and laugh all the way to the bank.

Here are some examples that show why government auditors are probably the most frustrated civil servants

- In May 1979, auditors at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported that the MacNeal-Schwendler Corp. was marketing a computer program that had been developed by Uncle Sam — but was not paying the required lease fees to the government. The auditors estimated that NASA could recover anywhere from $300,000 to $2 million.

But the space bureaucrats evidently had their eyes on the stars instead of on mundane money matters. A recent unreleased review by the General Accounting Office reported that "although 15 months have elapsed since the audit report was issued, no substantive actions have occurred" to get the money owed.

- In January 1979, Agriculture Department auditors discovered that both Agriculture and the Health and Human Services Department had been reimbursing Philadelphia's Get-Set Day Care Program for food service labor. The program had received $478,000 it wasn't entitled to. But because the two departments' bureaucrats couldn't decide which agency should go after the overpayment "the funds have not been recovered and the day care operator is still being funded by both programs,' GAO reports.

- Housing and Urban Development auditors recommended disallowing reimbursement of $50,500 in claims for personnel costs by the city of South Bend, Ind. But HUD poohbahs allowed the improperly documented claim after the city resubmitted timesheets which had been "reconstructed" from memory.

- During a three-year period, the Fulton County (Ill.) Housing Authority received excess HUD payments of nearly $100,000, but failed to give the money back. Not only has no progress been made in collecting the overpayment, but the county has since been given an additional $250,000 in government subsidies.

- Community Services Administration officials asked the Florida Department of Community Affairs to respond to questions raised in a 1978 federal audit regarding $298,416 in government grant money. The state agency ignored the request. Though CSA warned the Florida department it faced a cutoff of federal funds if it failed to respond, the state still made no reply. Yet it was awarded another $500,000 by CSA - and a subsequent audit raised questions about $70,924 of that grant.

The GAO in 1978 found that 34 federal agencies were owed a total of $4.3 billion according to government audits. A recent, broader survey done at the request of Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, chairman of the Government Operations Committee, showed 73 agencies with a total of $14.3 billion in "unresolved audit findings." Brooks plans to hold hearings on the GAO's survey.

One big problem, veteran government auditors told my associate Tony Capaccio, is that there is little incentive for management bureaucrats to follow up on audit findings. That's because few government officials are graded on their performance in retrieving money owed. In fact, there is some incentive not to do anything, because the audits often involve programs the mid-level bureaucrats are managing themselves. Any enthusiastic pursuit of the misspent money would simply call the embarrassing mistake to their bosses' attention.

COVERUP WITH COBWEBS: William Callahan of North Adams. Mass., has a story of the government's effort to cover up an espionage episode aboard a troopship during World War I. He says the coverup is still continuing 63 years later.

Callahan was a crewman aboard the USS Mount Vernon, ferrying American troops from New York to France in 1917 and 1918. On watch one night off the coast of France, he detected a light flickering in Morse code from one of the ship's portholes. Racing below, he found a civilian VIP, Montefiore Judelshohn, at an open porthole, flashlight in hand. After a scuffle, Judelshohn was put in the ship's brig. Judelshohn was a State Department foreign language expert traveling with Secretary of War Newton D. Baker. To Callahan's astonishment, Judelshohn was released a few days later and allowed to take up his post in the U.S. Embassy in Berne, Switzer-

Callahan, meanwhile, was summoned by the Mount Vernon's skipper, Ashley Herman Robertson, and told to say nothing about the suspected espionage. On his return to the United States, Callahan was transferred abruptly before a board of inquiry could interview him. His new assignment was on a munitions ship.

The ship's log supports Callahan's story. Robertson died in 1930, an admiral by then. Judelshohn served in Berne until November 1919, and retired to Constantinople.

United States pulling back on its foreign aid commitment

WASHINGTON - When budgetcutting axes were being sharpened here a fortnight ago, there was much howling about how foreign aid should get whacked plenty. Somehow, many Americans think we've been giving the country away ever since Marshall Plan days in the postwar era.

The reality is that in terms of foreign aid as a percent of gross national product, the U.S. is currently 15th of the world's 17 "richest" free nations. We're like the $100,000-a-year guy who gives $200 a year to the poor, while his $25,000-a-year neighbor gives $225.

A generation back, the U.S. was at the top of this share-of-GNP list, and, over the years, we paid our dues in the generosity game. We still give the largest amount in dollar terms, but we are not known across the globe as a "giveaway" nation anymore.

The explanation is that the U.S. is focusing more on giving aid where it serves our national interests. Many congressmen are disillusioned with foreign aid because they feel it has neither helped underdeveloped countries nor won any influence for the President Reagan's Economic Recovery Program calls for a 26 percent cut in foreign economic assistance for 1962, and further reductions during 1983-86. Actually, Reagan just wants to hold down the Carter administration's planned increases, before re-assessing how we should disperse loans and grants to nations serving our

"foreign policy objectives."
Of the $4.814 billion Reagan would allow to be spent on foreign aid, the biggest component is the Economic Support Funds. ESF accounts for $2.048 billion currently, and is popular with Congress because the lion's share of this money (none of it for military) goes to Israel ($785 million) and Egypt ($750 million). Since 1973, the U.S. has figured that peace in the Middle East is worth the billions in military and economic support we pour into Egypt and Israel — some 70 percent of all such U.S. assistance in the world.

Lately, we've worried about security and political stability in other ibled nations. That's why we gave Turkey, hard pressed with severe economic problems, $200 million in 1981, and will give $300 million in 1982. Jamaica, El Salvador, Jordan and Somalia also get good chunks. At least two-thirds of these funds are outright gifts. The rest is in low-inter-

Other foreign aid monies go to multi-lateral development banks, such as the World Bank, the Agency for International Development, the United Nations, Public Law 480 food shipments and the Peace Corps.

The Reagan administration pledged it will honor all such existing commitments, but has served notice that there may be substantial cuts in the future. Our voluntary contributions to the U.N. will be cut, according to the Reagan administration.

Reagan's advisers don't go so far as to agree with the new nationalists who proclaim food should be used by the U.S. as a weapon, but there will be new directions in our shipments of food under Public Law 480

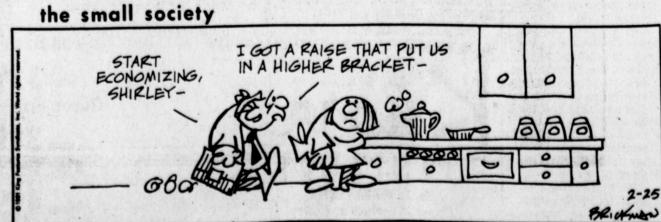

The inference is that nations which receive food aid from the U.S. ought to respect the American standing in the world a little more, and perhaps, in their spare moments, even back some of our positions.

Currently, the biggest recipients of U.S. food aid are Egypt, $339 million; India, $140 million; Bangladesh, $75 million; Pakistan, $61 million; and Indonesia, $53 million. For nearly a quarter century, American farmers have benefited from our foreign aid food program. Now Americans are a generous people, particularly at home. Most of us live on a huge land mass (Hawaiians and Alaskans are outside the old 48 borders), and we tend to think far more about ourselves than about the rest of the world.

Moreover, we have become disillusioned with many seemingly noble American endeavors - food for peace, Vietnam, the war on poverty, and foreign aid. The problem now is that, while we are the strongest and richest country in the world, there are many other nations close behind. Thus, we don't enjoy the stature or influence we once did.

The irony is that, beginning in the late '40s, we rebuilt the war-ravaged nations in the world, and helped put our defeated enemies back on their feet. We also busied ourselves throughout the world, helping the emerging and vastly underdeveloped nations build economies and improve their health and nutrition.

Post in Australia among 'wedding gifts'

By MICHAEL WEST Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) - One of Prince Charles' wedding presents will be a new job, governor-general of Australia, that will take him and his bride to the other side of the world, one of Britain's leading newspapers reported today.

The Guardian said Prime Minister Malcolm
Fraser of Australia and the British Foreign Secretary, Lord Carrington, had agreed informally on the appointment. The report by the paper's diplomatic correspondent, Patrick Keatley, said that if all goes well, an official announcement will be made later

The London Daily Mirror reported earlier this month that there was widespread belief in Australia that Charles would succeed the present governorgeneral, Sir Zelman Cowen.

The governor-general acts as the representative in Australia of Charles' mother, Queen Elizabeth II, and deputizes for her. The British monarch is also Queen of Australia, and the governor-general's duties are largely ceremonial.

Prince Charles currently is going through a program of briefings at British government departments in London on the operation of government. They include the Foreign Office, the Treasury and the Department of Trade.

Buckingham Palace announced Tuesday the engagement of the 32-year-old heir to the British throne and Lady Diana Spencer, 19-year-old daughter of the 8th Earl Spencer, a millionaire landowner.

Charles told the press that he popped the question to her over a dinner for two at his private apartment at Buckingham Palace before she went to Australia

Commission urges legalization of illegal aliens

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential commission on immigration plans to recommend that illegal aliens already in the United States, including up to 3 million Mexicans, be permitted to become permanent residents of the country.

The Select Commission on Immigration and Refugee Policy, in its final report to be released next week, also will recommend a crackdown on traffickers in illegal aliens and employers who hire them in violation of U.S. immigration laws, according to Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill.

But he said the commission will propose that temporary farm workers be permitted to enter the country to help with fruit and vegetable harvesting if employers assume the responsibility for travel, accommodations and payment into medical assistance and compensation programs.

McClory, a member of the 16-member commission, said Tuesday that the basic thrust of the 60 recommendations and conclusions "is to gain control over the entry of immigrants and refugees who may be received annually into our country."

"While exempting certain immediate family members under a broad program of family reunification, the number of more distantly related family members will be more sharply defined," said McClory.

According to McClory, the commission will recommend "a one-time legalization program to give permanent resident status to qualified undocumented, illegal aliens residing in our country."

"Such illegals would be required to come forward and apply for permanent resident status — a group estimated to number 2 or 3 million, principally Mexicans," he said.

McClory said the panel, which studied the problem for two years, will recommend expanded border control and enforcement against entry into the United States of illegal immigrants and refugees.

Former diplomat says El Salvador like early Vietnam

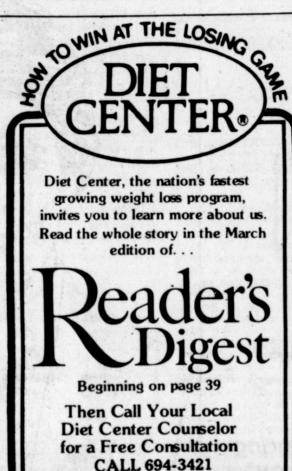

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former U.S. ambassador to El Salvador says the growing U.S. military commitment to the troubled Central American nation reminds him of the "early stages of Vietnam."

Murat Williams, ambassador to El Salvador from 1961-64, also expressed skepticism Tuesday over State Department claims that captured documents prove Cuba is directing left-wing Salvadoran guerrillas.

"There were always documents alleging outside interference" when he served in El Salvador, Williams said. "They (Latin American governments) have always been very good at manufacturing documents."

The State Department on Monday released an inch-thick book containing documents on alleged Cuban and Soviet-bloc arms shipments to insurgents in El Salvador.

U.S. officials charged that Cuba and the Soviet Union have transformed El Salvador's civil war into "a textbook case of indirect armed aggression by communist power."

Former ambassador believes U.S. aid could lead to coup

WASHINGTON (AP) - The former U.S. ambassador to El Salvador said today he opposes giving extensive U.S. military aid to El Salvador because it's not needed and could lead to a coup by right-wing military forces.

"I believe the right is constantly trying to overthrow the government, as is the left, and it's a beleaguered government in the middle," the diplomat, Robert White, said in testimony before the House Appropriations subcommittee on

He said the Defense Department might be trying to exaggerate the guerrilla threat to justify sending U.S. military advisers and increasing American involvement. White said this move, under active study by the Reagan administration, would be a grave error.

White was the Carter administration's last ambassador in San Salvador, and was replaced earlier this month after a year of duty there.

The envoy said that if the Reagan administration extends substantial military aid to El Salvador, "we are going to concentrate their focus on finding a military solution when it's a political solution that's required."

White said the Salvadoran military has demonstrated its capacity to handle the guerrilla threat without U.S. military assistance. He said the Unied States should concentrate on providing economic aid to build up the moderate government of President Jose Napoleon Duarte.

The former ambassador made clear his belief that government security forces, beyond the control of moderate leaders, are responsible for most of the killing in El Salvador, including the slaying of three American Roman Catholic nuns and another churchwoman last year.

"Anybody who thinks the murder of the nuns was done by lefists just is searching for excuses not to face reality," he said.

New committee to discuss options for Midland library

Midland lawyer John Hyde has been appointed by Midland County Judge Bill Ahders to head up a "blueribbon" ad hoc committee to advise the Midland County Commissioners' Court on what to do about expanding or building a new county-supported library and means to build a new courthouse annex.

Each of the four commissioners appointed two members to the committee, which will hold its first meeting at 7 p.m. Tuesday in The First National Room of The First National Bank of Midland. For several years, the commissioners apparently have been in an apparent quandry on how to provide more space for the more than 150,000volume downtown Midland County

Public Library.
Similarly, the commissioners have been indecisive on what to do about providing more room for county functions. Both the five-story — jail included — courthouse and the twostory Courthouse Annex a block north of the courthouse are full; officials are cramped for space, and the Midland County Tax Appraisal District is looking for a permanent home — to be provided by the county — for its proposed 25-member appraisal staff. Virgil Jones Jr., the city of Midland's tax assessor-collector, has been named the district's chief appraiser at $40,000-a-year salary.

Members of the Commissioners' Court's blue-ribbon committee are:

-Chairman: John Hyde, lawyer. Appointed by County Judge Bill Ahders.

-Precinct 1 members: Tom Reynolds, landman-investor; and Gregory Wright, insurance representative and son of Commissioner Durward Wright. Appointed by Wright.

-Precinct 2 members: Reagan Legg, lawyer and a Midland College trustee, and Roy Graham, Greenwood farmer-cotton producer. Appointed by Commissioner Charlie Welch.

-Precinct 3 members: Clark Moreland, rancher and former county commissioner; and Fred Nelms, who serves on several committees in the community and who is in the construction business.

-Precinct 4 members: Charles Priddy, developer, and Bill Heck, a geologist and a former county commissioner.

The commissioners have considered building a new annex on or about Baird Street and between Illinois and Texas avenues and two blocks east of the courthouse. Commissioners have considered selling the present annex building at 218 W. Illinois Ave., which the county purchased from Superior Oil Co. in 1964 for $125,000. Commissioners reportedly are expecting at least $1 million in cash or a trade-off with a building contractor. The pro-posed annex would house district and county tax functions, in addition to functions already being carried out in the old annex.

And commissioners reportedly are considering constructing a new downtown library. The present library, built in the mid-1950s, is at 301 W. Missouri Ave.

El Salvador and Vietnam have similarities

WASHINGTON (AP) — By early Vietnam War standards, the Reagan administration's use of American military advisers in El Salvador is minuscule and appears an unlikely forerunner of wider U.S involve-

There are nonetheless some striking similarities to the dispatching of a small number of American military specialists to help stave off guerrillas seeking to overthrow the existing re-

"We have no intention of that kind of involvement," President Reagan said Tuesday when asked if there were parallels with Vietnam.

The words had a familiar sound. In May 1962, Robert McNamara, defense secretary in the Johnson administration, said in Saigon: "Thereis no plan for introducing American combat forces in South Vietnam."

Earlier that year, asked about reports that U.S. military advisers were returning fire with Viet Cong troops,

McNamara replied:

"I think our mission in Vietnam is very clear. We are there at the request of the South Vietnamese government to provide training.... There has been some sporadic fire aimed at United States personnel, and in some minor instances they've had to return that fire.'

Initially, there were fewer than 1,-000 U.S. troops in Vietnam as advisers during the late 1950s and early 1960s. The number later grew to nearly 500,-

000, most in direct combat with North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces.

Pentagon officials, who asked not to be identified, said Tuesday 19 Army specialists have been in El Salvador for weeks, helping the country's weakly organized and poorly trained 16,000-man Army.

Most are training pilots of six U.S. helicopters supplied to the El Salvador government. Some also are helping plan military operations.

Lubbock policeman wounded

LUBBOCK, Texas
(AP) — A plainclothes police detective thought he was responding to a call for help Tuesday when he ran down a hotel hallway to the room of a robbery suspect where he was shot in the chest.

Police said they learned later that Det. Cpl. George Parramore was wounded after a woman in the hotel shouted, 'Police, police, police' in an effort to warn an accomplice of the officer's approach. Parramore was in fair condition Tuesday night at Methodist Hospital and two Lubbock residents were being held in lieu of $350,000 bond each on charges of attempted capital murder and aggravated robbery.

Parramore was wounded about 5:20 p.m.

Court names attorney

Midland attorney David Lashford was appointed Tuesday to defend murder suspect Stestudent Karen Rickey.

The 17-year-old girl's body was discovered early on the morning of County Road 1110 South. Morse, 19, of Vacaville, Calif., was arrested about 12:15 that afternoon at Midland Park Mall, following an investigation by the Midland County Sheriff's Department.

Morse reamins in the county jail under $100,000 bond and is expected to face a grand jury sometime this week.

Call for disarmament delivered at Hiroshima

By SAMUEL KOO

Associated Press Writer NAGASAKI, Japan (AP) — Pope John Paul II today visited the Japanese cities where the first atomic bombs snuffed out 270,000 lives 35 years ago and called on government leaders everywhere to join him in working untiringly for disarmament and the banishing of all nuclear weap-

"Let us promise our fellow human beings that we will work untiringly for disarmament and the banishing of all nuclear weapons," he said. "In the face of the manmade calamity that every war is, one must affirm and reaffirm, again and again, that the waging of war is not inevitable or unchangeable.'

Vatican sources said the pope considered it the most important speech of his 12-day visit to the Far East. John Paul spoke from a podium beside the simple stone structure built around the perpetual flame that honors the victims of the first U.S. atomic attack that on Aug. 6, 1945, hurled the world into the nuclear

By TERRY A. ANDERSON Associated Press Writer

NAGASAKI, Japan (AP) - Pope John Paul II is being greeted by descendants of Japanese who kept the Roman Catholic religion alive and unchanged during 250 years of persecution. But thousands of others known as "hidden Christians" are ignoring the pontiff's visit.

Their religion became so distorted during the centuries they worshiped in secret that the Vatican does not recognize them as Catholics. They refuse to change so they can return to the Roman faith.

There are 7,000 to 9,000 known hidden Christians in and around this city Jesuit missionaries founded in southern Japan. Others estimated to number between several hundred and several thousand refuse to identify themselves.

"They have changed until they have completely another religion," said the Rev. Diego Yuuki, who runs the Museum of the 26 Martyrs in Nagasaki and has studied the hidden Christians for 20 years. "Some things from Buddhism and Shintoism have crept in, like ancestor worship. Some places don't even practice baptism any more. It's polytheism." Yuuki said all the known hidden Christians were invited to meet the pope during his visit to Nagasaki tonight and Thursday, but only a few hundred ac-

The rest say they are not interested," he reported. "They say, 'We are the real Christians.' They want nothing to do with the pope.'

St. Francis Xavier and a party of Jesuit missionaries brought Christianity to Japan in 1549, landing on the island of Ikitsuki, near Nagasaki. It is now populated by "hidden" Christians who have revealed themselves but remain apart from the Catholic

The Jesuits converted 300,000 to 600,000 Japanese to Catholicism before the Tokugawa Shogunate closed the country to the outside world in the 1620s and banned Christianity. Thousands were killed, including 26 who were martyred on a hill near Nagasaki.

For the next 250 years, Christians worshiped in secret while publicly attending Buddhist temples. Rewards were offered for the names of secret Christians. Each year families in the Nagasaki area were called before their local feudal lords, made to declare they were not Christians and required to stamp on crosses and medals of saints.

In 1856, the government was forced to reopen the country to the West. Christian missionaries, again most of them Jesuits, were allowed to return. But only to administer to resident foreigners.

In 1865, while a Jesuit priest was praying in a newly rebuilt church in Nagasaki, a few Japanese

Some 20,000 Christians emerged from hiding in the next few years. But the Meiji emperor was no more sympathetic than the shoguns had been. Thousands

"Many still refused to come out," Yuuki said. "They still feared new persecutions. I don't know how many are still hiding, though I know of two.or three villages. Maybe several hundred people. Of the thousands who revealed themselves in the 1860s, few rejoined the Catholic Church. "We've had no success with conversions," said Yuuki. "It's the same as converting a Buddhist. The religions are completely different."

Parishioners feel 'sold out

HAMTRAMCK, Mich. (AP) — Parishioners who read in a weekly bulletin that church leaders had agreed to sell their 61-year-old Catholic church so it can be replaced with a parking lot say they feel they've been sold out.

Immaculate Conception Church in Hamtramck is one of several hundred buildings, including at least two Catholic churches, that face the wrecking ball as Detroit and Hamtramck acquire property for a new Cadillac assembly plant planned by General Motors

Corp.
"They're traitors," parishioner Ann Locklear said of Cardinal John Dearden and other Archdiocese of Detroit officials who agreed to the sale.

'They've sold us out to the city and General Motors for 30 pieces of silver."

A weekly church bulletin said Sunday that Dearden signed an agreement with Detroit on Feb. 16 for the sale of Immaculate Conception and the second church, St. John the Evangelist.

"It makes me sick," said one unidentified church member. "I've been a member here for 55 years and now they tell me to get...out. We bent our backs to pay for this beautiful church. And now what do we have - nothing."

Rev. Patrick Halfpenny, archdiocese director of communications, would not disclose sale prices. But the Detroit Legal News reported that $1.3 million would be paid for Immaculate Conception and $120,-000 for St. John.

Halfpenny said Dearden, spiritual leader of 1.2 million Roman Catholics in southeastern Michigan, would have no comment.

"It was a very complicated situation," Halfpenny said Tuesday. "What is the side of justice: To preserve a historic structure or to recognize that the project (the GM plant) represents jobs for several hundred people? Unemployment is a significant problem in this community. I can tell you that the cardinal met with the pastors of the churches involved. It wasn't an easy decision."

'Dallas' still on top

NEW YORK (AP) — "Dallas" continued its remarkable run as the most-watched show in prime time, and the series' success contributed to another first-place finish for CBS in the networks' ratings race, according to the latest figures from the A.C.

The No. 1 finish for "Dallas" was the program's 13th in 16 weeks. Its rating for the week ending Feb. 22 was 34.8, and Nielsen says that means of all the nation's homes with television, just under 35 percent saw at least part of the latest episode.

CBS' effort for the week was helped along by another of the network's top-rated programs, "60 Minutes," last season's most-watched show. CBS, in addition, had two other Top 10 programs, and finished the week with an average rating of 19.9.

ABC was runner-up at 18.3, while NBC finished last - for the third straight week - at 17.4.

"We don't always see ourselves as others see us," Aurnou said during jury selection. "A little guy, 5 feet-6 inches tall, balding, who looks nice, could be a very nasty aggressive lawyer."

Bolen, for his part, would pace the courtroom while questioning witnesses, seeming to disarm them with his deadpan delivery and rich voice.

The prosecutor, who spent 18 months in the homicide bureau in the Manhattan District Attorney's office, liked to portray himself during Mrs. Harris' trial as the earnest prosecutor seeking swift justice - a man on the lookout for defense smokescreens.

Bolen occasionally showed anger during trial, once screaming at a juror. Most often, he would flop in his chair in stony silence in response to a ruling by the judge.

Harris spends first night in jail

VALHALLA, N.Y. (AP) - Jean Harris, trading her elegant brown suede suit for jailissue brown chinos, was under round-the-clock surveillance today at the Westchester County jail where she awaits sentencing for the murder of Dr. Herman Tarnower.

Her first day behind bars today was beginning at 7 a.m., with a breakfast of French toast, cold cereal, bread and butter, coffee, milk and strawberry jam.

An orientation meeting with 20 other new prisoners and Warden Lockwood Jackson on the rules of the house was to follow. One rule is that she must make her bed every day.

Then the 57-year-old former headmistress was being examined by a doctor at the maximum security facility.

Mrs. Harris arrived here Tuesday night after she was found guilty of second-degree murder in the shooting death last March of her longtime She will return to court March 20 for sentencing. She faces a minimum sentence of 15 years to life in prison, which would make her 72 years old before being eligible for parole. Maximum sentence would be 25 years to life.

Mrs. Harris saw her lawyer Joel Aurnou late

Tuesday, but was "absolutely adamant" that no reporters be allowed to see her at the jail.

Mrs. Harris, stylish and intelligent, was given a room with a bed, sink and toilet, separate from the 60 to 70 other women prisoners.

"She's been through a dramatic transition in her lifestyle and we're obviously concerned about her well-being," said a spokesman for the Department of Correction, who asked not to be

Mrs. Harris will be permitted to wear her own clothes and has requested clothing be brought to her at the jail.

She did not request any food after the verdict, but the weekly menu at the jail consists of fried chicken, flounder, turkey, veal, knockwurst, beef stew and meatloaf.

Lunch today was egg salad, beef barley soup, potato salad, vanilla pudding, bread and fruit

Dinner was meatloaf with rice and green

"She's required to make her bed and not allow garbage to accumulate and keep her clothing presentable," the spokesman said. "She can have a radio if she wants and a 10-pound food package once a month.'

Jury recommends death for Bittaker

TORRANCE, Calif. (AP) - After 90 minutes of deliberation, a jury has recommended that Lawrence Sigmond Bittaker, a 40-year-old Burbank machinist, be sentenced to death for the grisly torture murders of five teen-age girls.

The decision Tuesday came five days after the same jury convicted Bittaker of the brutal 1979 killings, in which girls were lured into a van, raped, tortured with a sledgehammer, locking pliers and ice pick, then strangled.

Superior Court Judge Thomas Fredricks ordered Bittaker to appear in court March 24 for sentenc-Defense attorney Albert Garber said Bittaker expected the death sentence. But he said "there is sufficient reason for it (the verdict) to be reversed," adding that the case was "a lost cause from the beginning," after Fredricks allowed a tape of the torture of one of the victims into It was that 17-minute tape, of 16-year-old Shirley

Lynette Ledford pleading for mercy as she was raped and tortured, that had the most effect on the jurors. Several of them said they had nightmares after hearing the tape. The tape, along with hundreds of photographs of girls, was confiscated when Bittaker and Roy Lewis Norris were arrested.

The parents of the victim identified the voice on the tape as that of their daughter and police and prosecutors identified the male voices as Bittaker

Woman hurt in bombing

Suspect, motive still undetermined

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP) - Police in this Oklahoma city are seeking the "John Doe" who apparently tried twice to blow up port manager Mike Bice or his wife, a 31-year-old housewife and mother of two.

'I was lucky," June Carol Bice said after the second blast Monday left her with second- and third-degree burns over 11 percent of her body.

She also suffered "penetrating blast wounds" when the explosion ripped apart the seat of her 1979 van, and remained hospitalized today.

Authorities don't know whether the bomb was intended for Mrs. Bice or her husband, who is manager of the Arkansas River

Port of Muskogee. "There are so many possibilities that we don't know what we're looking at," said Muskogee Police Chief Henry Sharp.

'There are so many goofy things that don't make sense.' The Muskogee County District Attorney's office filed a "John Doe" warrant Tuesday for the person or people who planted the

It was the second blast in the Bice van within a week, authorities said they were told.

One week earlier, a small device went off beneath the seat after Mrs. Bice stepped out of the vehicle at the Muskogee YMCA. She did not report the incident, police said.

"She called me that night and asked me if that was a common prank," said Paul Mullins of the YMCA office. "I told her no, it

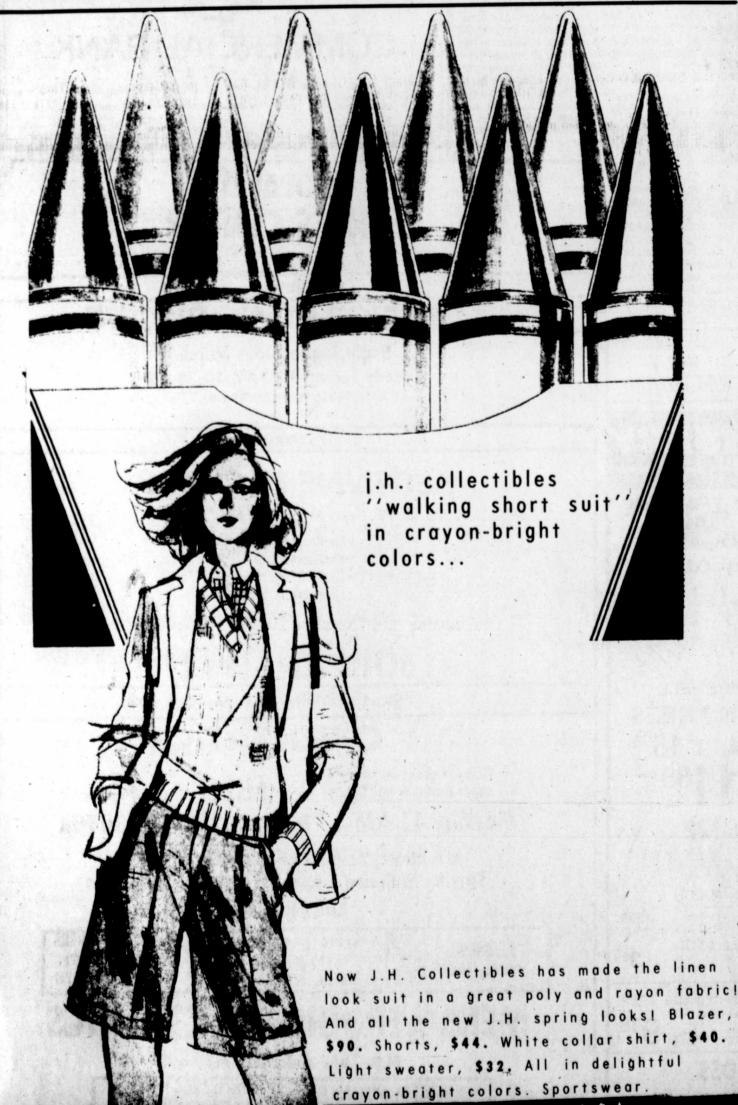

The second, more deadly blast occurred as Mrs. Bice turned a key in the ignition of the van, which she had parked in front of a Muskogee recreation center an hour earlier.

She had gone into the center to see her husband, Mrs. Bice

"I panicked a little, I guess," Mrs. Bice said from a Tulsa hospital where she was in good condition Tuesday. "It had blown the doors so they were jammed, and my back was on fire. "I was lucky. The side door was knocked loose a little and I jumped out that door. I was hitting myself ... patting myself on the back and hair to put out the fire.' Two men who witnessed the fiery blast rushed to the woman's aid and helped extinguish the flames.

'I don't know why anyone would want to do this to me because I don't deal too much with the public or anything," she said. Mrs. Bice caters weddings and makes cakes on a part-time basis from

Magazine focuses on large women

NEW YORK (AP) — A new service magazine, "It's Me," aimed at the large-size woman, has been launched in test-market cities of New York, Chicago and Los Angeles.

"It's a special-interest magazine for more than 25 million women who wear size 16 or over," says Bruce Clerke, editor and publisher. "It's dedicated to the needs of these women - housewives, career women, working mothers and teen-agers."

Only models over size 16 will be used in the publication, which will focus on beauty, fashion and health topics geared to the interests of the larger woman, she said.

"Most large women have very little self-esteem," Miss Clerke said. "They put off getting their hair done or buying new clothes until they lose those extra pounds.

"But, for some women that day may never come, so each woman should work with what she has. Today, attitudes are changing, and I believe each woman has the right to feel great about herself - to be the most attractive she can be." Cover girl for the first issue is Madaline Sparks, who had her first bout with being seriously overweight in high school. She studied drama in college but was shut out of the professional theater because of her size. After working with a physician who set realistic weight-loss goals for her, she now weighs 185 pounds and hopes to embark on a professional modeling

DEAR ABBY She wants more swimsuit covering

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I love your column in the Jacksonville Journal, but I'd love you even more if you would find out why the bathing suit manufacturers don't make a suit for women over 25 years old. Nobody but a teen-ager could wear the things they put out now. I'm a 43-year-old married woman with a fairly good figure, but I need more help than I can get in a bathing suit these days. How about one with a built-in bra like they used to make? Or some with elastic for those of us who need something to hold our stomachs in? - FAYE IN JACKSONVILLE

DEAR FAYE: Some manufacturers do make the kind of bathing suit you're looking for. Go to your favorite store and ask the swimsuit buyer to snap into it!

DEAR ABBY: Today I received an invitation to attend a 25th wedding anniversary party given by three children for their parents. When I opened the card to respond, I found a small piece of paper which stated, $12.50 per person includes meal and gift." Needless to say, I was in a state of shock, and still am

I wrote the enclosed letter and sent it with the response card. Should I have written it? Please give me your opinion. — ALICE

"Dear Rosemarie: We received the invitation to your parents' 25th wedding anniversary party, and were stunned by the request of $25 to cover cost of food and gift!

"Never have we seen anything like this before, and I hope we never do again. If you and your brother and sister can't give your parents a party without asking your guests to pay for it, you should skip the party. Your grandmother would turn over in her grave if she knew about this. We will send your parents a gift of our own choosing, but we will not attend the party. Have a good time without us! Sincerely, Alice'

DEAR ALICE: It's all right to have written it, but you should not have SENT it. Even though it was questionable taste to ask the guests to pay for their own "meal and gift," the children undoubtedly meant well.

DEAR ABBY: Besides being a working mother, I am also a room mother of a kindergarten. For the second time this year, a child's mother has come to school and handed out invitations for a birthday party— excluding a few children. The hurt felt by those who were excluded was overwhelming.

The teacher told me that she was very upset over this and asked me what to do about it.

I've considered having a special party on the same day for those who weren't invited. I've also considered having a party on another day and inviting all the children except the one whose mother singled out a few to exclude at her child's party. (You can see how angry I am.)

I suppose the children who were excluded must learn how to deal with rejection sooner or later, but I hate to see children hurt.

Have you a solution? - ROOM

DEAR ROOM MOTHER: The principal could send a notice to all parents stating that unless ALL the children in the class are invited, party invitations may not be delivered at school but must be mailed instead.

Teen Challenge reps address local club

Chuck Redger, director of Midland's Teen Challenge, and David McDowell, staff member of the organization, were the speakers at the Midland Society of University Women meeting held in the Garden Room of Midland Woman's Club.

"Teen Challege is a rehabilitation program for person 18-35 who have reached the point they can no longer function in society," said Redger, who has been with the program 18 years, seven of those spent in Midland. Redger has worked with Teen Challenge programs in New York and San Francisco.

Midland's Teen Challenge is located at the corner of Texas and "C" Streets and has been operating since October of 1971. In addition to the live-in program, the organization also offers outpatient counseling with parents as well as youth youth.

Those at Teen Challenge usually stay for four to six months and then are sent to another Teen Challenge training center for eight to 10 months, according to Redger.

Redger made suggestions for parents to help prevent drug abuse in their homes. "Keep doors of communication open," said Redger. "Set a good Christian example, demonstrate love and discipline in the home and teach children to face reponsibilities in their live," he added. "These things will help the parents to raise well-adjusted children. McDowell added, "Parents should build the right type of relationship with their children and grandchildren to try to tear down barriers that prevent communication in the family." McDowell, a former drug user from Dallas, has been on the Teen Challenge staff for three years and works with students grade five-

McDowell works with the schools conducting drug abuse prevention programs. Teen Challenge has provided such a program in the schools for the last three years. They are also available to conduct seminars at area churches.

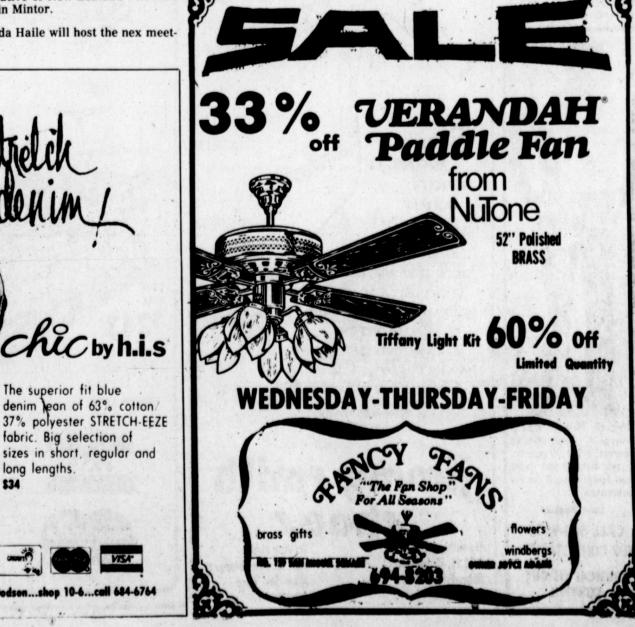

Teen Challenge is supported entirely by private donations, said Redger, and by programs sponsored by Teen Challenge Womens' Auxiliary. Any one wanting more information on the auxiliary or wanting to visit the center should call the center at 682-3244.

Counselors do try to involve parents for the lemy of

> Question: My 13-yearold nephew has had problems ever since his mother remarried two years ago. He has been referred to counseling. His mother has taken him to two or three different counselors in the last year, with very little to show for it. It seems that all the counselors want to spend more time with his mother and stepfather than with the boy. I don't see how anyone can expect any results if the person with the problem is not counseled. What is the reason for this approach?

Answer: Most counselors and therapists who work with children and younger adolescents do place emphasis on involving the parents in the counseling. The reason for this is that the parents of a child are in a much better position to influence that child's behavior and adjustment the therapy sessions than than an outsider is. This greater influence of parents is due to the fact sought again for your that the parent-child re- nephew that a given lationship would have to start from the very be- and a commitment made ginning. A child with behavioral or adjustment problems needs to adjust to his serious depression genparents and to his home erally requires treatsituation. Very seldom is it better for the child to adjust to the therapist's goals, no matter how well-meant such goals

Certainly most therapists seek to involve the child as well as his parents in therapy so that neither is excluded. There are some situations in which the child may be more involved in in others. I would suggest that if counseling is counselor be selected to stay with his counselor for a given period of time be able to devote only one rather than moving from one counselor to another. MAY I HAVE ONE MORE CHANCE?

At one time Jesus was informed that Pilate had butchered some Jews from Galilee as they were sacrificing at the Temple in

"Do you think they were worse sinners than other men from Galilee?" He asked. "Is that why they suffered?
"Not at all! And don't you realize that you also will perish unless you leave your evil ways and turn to God?

"And what about the 18 men who died when the Tower of Siloam fell on them? were they the worst sinners in Jerusalem? Not at all!

And you, too, will perish unless you repent."

Then He used this illustration: "A man planted a fig tree in his garden and came again and again to see if he could find any fruit on it, but he was always disappointed. Finally he told his gardener to cut it down. 'I've waited three years and there hasn't been a single fig!' he said. 'Why bother with it any longer? It's taking up space we can use for something else.' 'Give it one more chance,' the gardener answered. 'Leave it another year and I'll give it special attention and plenty of fertilizer. If we get figs next year, fine; if not, I'll cut it down."

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Dear Dr. Solomon: I am trying to cut down on my use of sugar. Would it be advisable to substitute honey for sugar? -

Dear Tessie: Honey provides no special benefit to those trying to curtail the use of sugar. Honey contains fructose, which is digested differently from table sugar; however, both fructose and table sugar end up as glucose. All honey and other unrefined sugars provide are sweetness and calories just like table sugar.

Dear Dr. Solomon: A neighbor of mine refuses to let her daughter have any coffee because it contians caffeine; yet she permits the youngster to have all the cola drinks and chocolate she wants. When I tried to point out the contradiction, my neighbor insisted that coffee is the real culprit when it comes to caffeine, and that the others contain only insignificant amounts. Can you give me some idea of the caffeine content of some of the more popular items? — Gail

Dear Gail: Assuming use of an eight-ounce cup, cocoa, with 250 milligrams, has more than twice as much caffeine as brewed coffee, with 100 milligrams, and more than four times as much as instant coffee, which contains from 40 to 66 milligrams. Other caffeine-containing prod-ucts include cola drinks, with 32 to 65 milligrams per eight-ounce cup, and am not terribly overweight, but would like to lose a few pounds before my weight gets out of control. I have been trying to stay away from sugar by using saccharin, but have become somewhat concerned about the reports that artificial sweeteners may be harmful. Lately I've noticed that fructose is being sold in the neigh-borhood health food stores. Would its use satisfy my craving for sweets without exposing me to any risk to my health? - Sandi

Dear Sandi: Fructose (like xylitol and sorbitol) is a sweetener that does not contain glucose, and its use in the food and soft drink industries is increasing. According to the American Diabetes Association (ADA), however, fructose is of little or no value in weight control diets.

The ADA also points out that there is a great deal of difference between pure fructose, the kind that usually is sold in health food stores, and high fructose corn sweeteners, which can contain as much as 58 percent glucose. If you wish to lose weight, it would

Opening lead: King of ♡. Which came first, the chicken or the egg? There is no real answer to that question, but there is a logical reason for deciding which suit to tackle first on this hand. West's overcall relieved North of the responsibility of responding to his partner's opening bid. But when South jumped at his next turn, North felt that his ace, queen and trump honor, even though it was a singleton, merited a raise to game. West attacked with the king of hearts, followed by the queen. Declarer ruffed and drew trumps in four rounds, discarding two hearts and a club from dummy. He could see six tricks in trumps and four in diamonds if the finesse succeeded. He looked no further.

East captured the queen of diamonds with the king and returned a heart. Declarer ruffed, took his three diamond tricks and then tried to set up a club trick. West won the ace and took the last trick with a high heart. Down

Declarer was in too much of a hurry to go after the diamonds. Since there was a danger that the defenders could cash heart tricks once declarer's trumps were exhausted, South's efforts should have been directed toward keeping West off lead.

West had to have either the king of diamonds or ace of clubs, or both, for his overcall. Since the king of diamonds could never be an entry, declarer should go after clubs first to eliminate

After drawing trumps declarer should lead the king of clubs. West wins and returns a heart, forcing declarer's last trump. Now South can take the diamond finesse without worrying whether it wins or loses. If West has the king, the finesse will succeed and declarer will make the rest of the tricks. If East has the king, the finesse will lose but it does declarer no harm-East can have no more hearts, so he must return either a diamond or a club, and declarer controls both of those suits.

Bulldogs blast Cougs for 5-5A championship

By MIKE CRUVER

The Abilene Cooper Cougars rolled into the Tall City Tuesday night with dreams of getting revenge for a two-point first half District 5-5A basketball loss against the high-flying Midland High Bulldogs. The Cougs must have left a little disillusioned after what the Bulldogs did to them.

When the smoke had cleared in Chaparral Center, the Purple Pack had dominated the game from start to finish and clinched the district title with a surprisingly easy 93-66 rout. The Bulldogs now stand 6-0 in the second half district race and have only a regular season ending clash with Midland Lee Thursday night at Chaparral Center standing in the way of an undefeated district leager. Overall, the Purple Pack carries a glittering 30-3 mark, marking the second year in a row with over 30 vic-

IT WAS a close game for only the first four minutes of the battle. With 3:47 remaining in the first quarter, the Dogs were holding a 10-8 advantage. In the next minute, MHS forced four straight turnovers and converted all of them into points to take a 16-8 lead. The Cougars were never able to recover from the blow and fell steadly

night, for him. Johnson scored only 13 points after three straight games over 30 points, but did intimidate the Cougars in the middle and forced them to shoot farther out on the floor than they wanted. Magic also dished off numerous assists and hauled in 16 rebounds in about 22 minutes of action. Despite his off-scoring night, Johnson had two thunderous crowdpleasing dunks. Unfortunately, on both dunks, Magic was assessed a technical foul for hanging on the

Horace Brown led the Bulldogs with 20 points with double figure support coming from Michael Feldt with 14, Mike Velasco with 10 and Johnson's 13. Barry McLeod paced the Cougar

After outscoring the Cougars 27-16 in the opening stanza, the Bulldogs kept their running game in high gear as they outscored ACHS 26-13 in the second period to take a 53-29 lead at intermission. Feldt and Brown were the big guns in the first half as they tossed in 12 points each. Don Sharnowski wasn't far behind as he added eight first-half points.

SECOND HALF play was more of the same. All the Bulldogs got into the game and 10 players got into the scoring column as the fine-tuned MHS juggernaut swept around, over and through the outclassed Cougars. The befuddled Cougars were completly unable to stop the runaway as the Purple Pack kept running players in and out of the game and all of them were contributing to the attack. An example of the Pack's domination came early in the third quarter. Coach Jack Stephenson sent Steve Miller into the game and all Miller did was hit two bombs from the corner and add two free throws for six points in less than two minutes of work.

Stephenson stated that he was happy with his team and that they were playing well now. When a couple of enthusiastic fans informed Stephenson that they had already made reservations in Austin, site of the state championship tournament, Stephenson said, "I hope you don't have to cancel them."

In the preliminary contest, Midland High downed the Cougars 57-50.

Eagles nip Lee Rebs again

AHS wins contest by 12-4 margin at free throw line

ABILENE - Midland Lee's old season-long habit of losing close games reared its ugly head again here Tuesday night as the Abilene High Eagles slipped by the Rebels 50-48. The loss drops Lee to 3-3 in second half District 5-5A competition and 14-19 on the season. Abilene won its second game in six second half district outings and raised its season

Abilene High defeated Lee in the first half by a narrow one-point margin. The loss ended a two-game winning streak by the Rebels.

It was at the charity strip where the difference was made. Abilene hit 12 free throws while Lee managed only four charity tosses. The Eagles were whistled for 13 fouls while Lee was tagged with 22. From the field Lee tossed in 22 hoops to only 19 for the home-standing Eagles.

Razorbacks win SWC title despite SMU's delay game

By The Associated Press

It took more than a delay game to delay the Arkansas Razorbacks from taking the Southwest Conference basketball championship.
The Southern Methodist University

Mustangs went into delay game, but couldn't prevail as Arkansas took an easy 47-33 victory Tuesday night to clinch the title

IN OTHER SWC roundball action, Texas A&M edged Texas Christian, 59-57: Texas beat Texas Tech, 65-54, and Houston defeated Rice, 63-55.

Arkansas coach Eddie Sutton said the SMU delay game surprised him, but Mustangs coach Dave Bliss said it was their only chance to win. "SMU had not come out in a spread offense before, so I guess it did catch us a little off guard. But I think our team handled it well," Sutton said.

Bliss said he went to the delay game because, "We're too small and they're quicker than we are. That's a deadly combination." Mike Young had 16 points, including eight of Arkansas' 17 second-half points as the Razorbacks took their third SWC title in the last four years. Scott Hastings and U.S. Reed scored

10 each for Arkansas. Dave Piehler had 12 to lead SMU scoring

VERNON SMITH hit two free throws with just more than a minute remaining to boost Texas A&M to a 59-57 victory over TCU. Horned Frog Cuney Luke's 15-foot jumper rolled off the rim as time expired.

The victory moved the Aggies into sixth place in the conference, breaking the tie between A&M and TCU.

Texas A&M coach Shelby Metcalf said he was not surprised that the Horned Frogs put up such stout resis-

TCU coach Jim Killingsworth said, "We had an opportunity to win the game when we got up by three but we had no patience when we needed it."

The Cougars held a slim 54-53 lead with 1:43 remaining when Williams hit a layup, was fouled and made the free throw to boost the lead to 57-53. Williams added two free throws in the final minute and Michael Young added four free throws in the closing 60 seconds.

Williams finished the night with 19 points. Ricky Pierce led Rice scoring with 21.

Free spending Turner feels salaries too high

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner, who signed outfielder Claudell Washington to a reported $3.5 million five-year contract last fall, says baseball owners must work together to lower major league

'Salaries are just too high overall," Turner said in an interview published in Tuesday's Atlanta Journal. "They've got to come down, or some teams will go broke. They'll have to go out of business."

The flamboyant Turner said he and New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner have hurt other teams by giving "outrageous contracts" to some players.

"No doubt about it," he said. "They have to live up to our salaries in arbitration. I think the top salaries in all sports should be about $300,000 or $400,000. I think the average players should make around $100,000 or $150,-

"We've got to reduce salaries somehow. I don't think all our players are overpaid - (Braves pitcher) Phil Niekro is worth every penny he's getting - but we have given some outrageous contracts," he said.

Turner said the Braves "went a little overboard" on Washington's contract, for example.

Despite his strong statements, however, he said he is not ready to abstain from paying high salaries unless other owners do the same.

"A team could make that decision, but it would risk handicapping itself, he said. "Oakland tried that, and look what happened. Minnesota did it recently and lost all its players. Now, Boston is doing it. You've got to stay competitive.

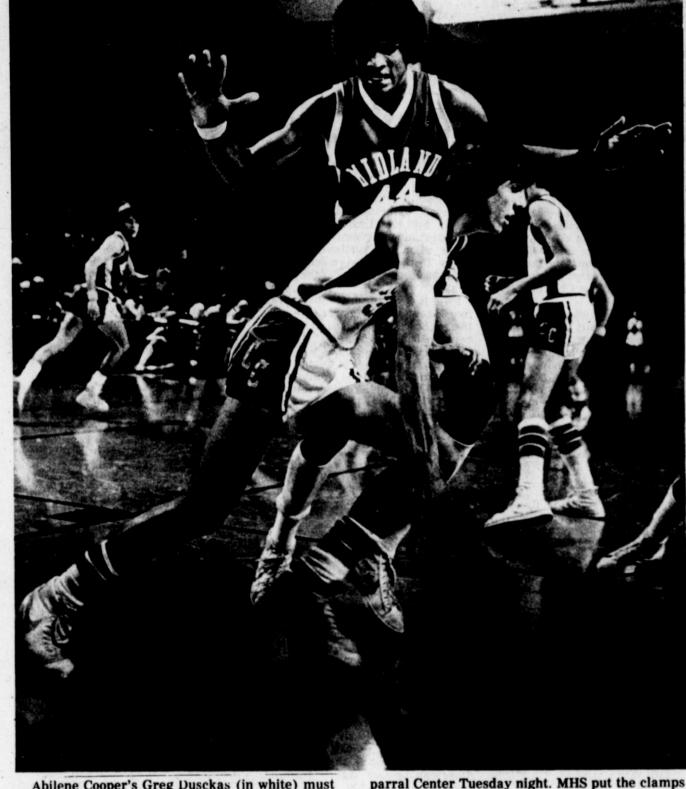

'Somehow, the owners have got to work together," he added.

Turner said he has become disillusioned with players who win valuable contracts and then want more.

"These guys ought to act like they're appreciative of their tremendous opportunity," he said. "They shouldn't walk around with sour faces. They ought to be thankful - not to me, but to life. They shouldn't be complaining about anything."

He said he thinks baseball owners should stand firm if there is a baseball strike this year.

"Let's find out who's boss. The players are supposed to play, and the owners are supposed to control. Let the leaders lead. Let's get things back like they're supposed to be."

Boosters can cause trouble

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The men most familiar with the cloakand-dagger underside of college athletics say the coaches are not always

A lot of NCAA probation cases center on over-zealous boosters who leap into the recruiting wars with cash and favors to romance a local high school superstar. In NCAA parlance, this is known as the lack of "institutional control" and it frequently occurs without the head coach knowing anything about it until a notice of NCAA investigation lands, like a bomb, on his desk.

"I view the lack of institutional control as the most difficult problem we have in collegiate athletics today," William B. Hunt, the NCAA assistant executive director for enforcement, said Tuesday in a panel discussion with several top coaches and sportswriters.

"A BIG effort has been made by the (NCAA) membership to do something about it."

The question-an-answer session on recruiting was the windup of the NCAA's annual college football seminar and included Charles Alan Wright, University of Texas law professor and the chairman of the NCAA Infractions Committee.

Hunt said boosters who violate NCAA rules, whether willfully or out of ignorance, fall into a general pattern of "people who somehow get a vicarious pleasure by helping their favorite teams."

'They look at the team and say, That's my team," Hunt said. "And, 'if my team loses, that reflects poorly upon me.' Psychologically, they get so involved they can affect a program in a very negative way. It's much easier to control an institution than control an individual.

SEVERAL COACHES in attendance said they seek to keep alumni and fans out of their recruiting efforts altogether, and Hunt noted that the most successful programs are generally the ones with the least-active

"My experience has been ... that where the use of alumni is widespread, generally involves programs attempting to be successful," he Nevertheless, said Wright, a noted authority on constitutional law, the NCAA is opposed to making public the names of persons cited for recruiting violations. Doing so would would entitle them to appear before the Infractions Committee when it reviews the

"Our task would be endless if we had to have their representatives (attorneys) and them there," he said. "We do not intend to publish their

Wright acknowledged there is validity to the frequent charge that the NCAA's investigative process moves too slowly. "The greatest single weakness in NCAA enforcement today is the pro-cess is so slow," he said. "That is a real problem. But it has improved somewhat with the enlargement of the staff. And the staff must be further enlarged."

HUNT AGREED there is need for beefing up the enforcement staff, which has been expanded to eight full-time field investigators.

"It is likely some type of adjust-ment will be made. I say so in part because of the addition of championships for women."

The NCAA voted at its convention last month to add women's championships in the larger Division I schools. The smaller Division II and Division III adopted womens championships a

Although the discussion was on football, the subject of basketball invariably arises when NCAA investigators talk about recruiting abuses and Hunt said there are actually more problems in that area.

'I've seen some great football players go into a program and just disappear," he said. "But in basketball, just one great player can make quite a difference in a team's success. I'd say the incentive to cheat is probably great in basketball."

Collectors may be confused

CLEVELAND (AP) - Confusion at the candy counter will reign in coming weeks as those harbingers of spring — baseball cards — begin arriving in stores across the nation.

This year will bring complications for collectors young and old. Two other firms have joined the competition in a field dominated for a quarter century by the Topps Chewing Gum

The result will be three sets of cards and, for the financially limited collector, some confusion and frustration.

Sure, there are going to be kids disappointed who can only go one way," said Jim Kovacs, a long time baseball card dealer and owner of two comic book and card stores in Cleveland. "But I think it's going to do me a lot of good. More money will be spent

A federal court ruling last July in Philadelphia cleared the way for the competition.

U.S. District Judge Clarence Newcomer ruled that Topps, of Broolyn, N.Y., conspired with the Major League Baseball Players Association to create a monopoly in the manufac-ture and sale of the card. Newcomer said exclusive contracts signed between players and Topps blocked competitors from the $10 million-ayear industry. Topps appealed, but no hearing date is set.

THE ANTITRUST suit was filed in 1975 by the Fleer Corp. of Philadelphia, a competitor in the bubble gum and non-sports card industry. Fleer, which boasts of inventing bubble gum in 1922, had tried for years to compete in baseball cards, said Donald D. Peck, president of the firm.

"I don't know why we succeeded this time. I guess our case was just presented better ... We're just having a lot of fun competing in this area,' he said. Fleer figured that if it won the suit, it could take Topps on. The court said at least one more contract had to be offered by the players' association, and Fleer had right to first refusal.

Fleer didn't refuse, but the Donruss Co. of Memphis, Tenn., also sought and received a contract. The contract guarantees the players' association a royalty and percentage of card

"We were not a party to the suit, but we were depositioned for information," said Stewart F. Lyman, presiden of Donruss, a General Mills subsidiary. "We've been in the card business a long time, and we're pretty knowledgeable of the business in

"I'm sure there will be some confusion, particularly among the smaller children. A baseball card is a product known by a name. A potato chip is not a patato chip. It's a Wise or a Lays" Lyman said. "That's what will happen with baseball cards now."

DEALERS EXPECT the competition to improve quality and perhaps force changes in the mostly vetical head and shoulder pictures of the players.

"To me, Topps was coming out the same every year," said Earl Johnson, collector and dealer from Cleveland. "I didn't like the quality of the sets. There were miscuts, and Topps could do pretty much whatever it 'This competition is just the American way," said Wade Carsel, another Cleveland dealer. "Before this, Topps could name its price."

Neither Freer nor Donruss admit to undercutting Topps, but the price breakdown shows it has occurred. Topps offers 15 cards for 30 cents. with 726 cards in the set. Fleer gives 17 cards for 30 cents in a set of 660. Donruss gives 18 cards for 30 cents in a set of 65. All three give a stick of bubble gum in each pack Donruss' Lyman said the competitive aspect of the cards has been overblown. Still, his firm has bought a full-page advertisement on the back cover of many April-issue comic books. The tie-in between comics and cards has been proven over the years, he said.

Fleer is offering an incentive of two free 30-cent packs of cards with each 36-pack box a retailer sells. It hopes to get more businesses interested in carrying its cards, Peck said.

Topps, meanwhile, is talking little and acting fast. On the front of each pack of its cards, Topps prints the slogan, "The Real One." The cards were released in most of the country at least two weeks earlier than usual, according to company spokesman Norman Liss. The firm produces 500 million baseball cards a year.

We've come up with a different slogan every year. That continuity as been established," Liss said. "We don't anticipate any (sales) differ-ence at all. We believe our appeal will be substantiated, and we will win this year." Fleer's Peck doubts that Topps' domination will continue.

"It's too early to tell ... All we know is that we're going to be ahead of last year. We'll sell less than Topps and more than Topps thinks," he said.

Peck said the industry is likely to expand, noting Fleer will market a set of 125 player stickers this year.

Tigers promise to pass Kemp's salary to fans

DETROIT (AP) - The Detroit Tigers might not be thrilled with the arbitrator's decision that made star outfielder Steve Kemp the highest paid athlete in Detroit history, but if so, they're not saying.

"There will be no comment by anyfrom the Detroit organization, Tiger General Manager Jim Campbell said Monday, shortly after learning that Kemp had been awarded a $600,000 salary in 1981, $240,000 more than the Tigers had wanted to pay

"As far as we're concerned the arbitrator has made his decision and it's all over. Now we can get back to baseball," Campbell said from the American League Tigers' training camp in Lakeland, Fla. "That's what we're down here for.'

Arbitrator Monroe Berkowitz, a professor at Rutgers University in New York, ruled in favor of Kemp three days after listening to arguments from Kemp and the Tigers.
Under the rules of the arbitration, Berkowitz had to award Kemp either the $600,000 he had asked for, or the $360,000 the Tigers had offered. Before Kemp's award, Tigers' shortstop Alan Trammell was the highest paid Tiger at $380,000.

Kemp, who was the only Tiger player to take his 1981 salary to arbitration, hit .293 last season and had 21 homers and a team-leading 101 RBI. Neither Kemp nor his agent Dick Moss were available for comment. The decision raises the Tigers' payroll to $3.6 million, an increase of about 50 percent from a year ago. Kemp is only the third Tiger, after Tramell and Lou Whitaker, to enter arbitration. Kemp also won arbitration in 1980, when he was awarded $210,000.

The arbitration ruling is only for 1981 and does not prevent Kemp from becoming a free agent in two years. The 26-year-old outfielder has been trying unsuccessfully to negotiate a multi-year deal with the American League club.

Before the arbitration hearings, the Tigers reportedly offered Kemp a five-year deal totaling $3 million in bonuses and benefits. But Moss proposed a pact that would have brought Kemp almost $1 million a year in bonuses, fringes and delayed pay-

Royster may want a trade if Braves can't find position

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) - While Dale Murphy is working on improving his play in center field, Jerry Royster is looking for a home. "There are still things

I have to learn as an outfielder," the power. hitting catcher-turnedfirst baseman-turnedoutfielder said. So Murphy is spending the early part of camp shagging grounders all over center field. Meanwhile Royster, who wound up last season on Murphy's right, is wondering where he'll be this year. "They haven't told me what I would be doing here in spring training, said Royster, who start-ed at second base, third base and shortstop during his three previous seasons with the Braves. "I don't want to be a position, and if they give me that chance, I'll win it. But if they want me to work at more than one position, I'll ask them to trade me for a team that does have a particular spot open.' "We have an excellent field," insisted Palmer,

"And with the presence of (Tom) Watson and (Lee) Trevino, well, that should help the gallery greatly. I'm very pleased with the quality of the field," said the 51year-old Palmer, who has a financial interest in the 7,102-yard, par 71 Bay Hill Club course and is serving his third year as host and driving force behind the $300,000 Bay Hill Classic which gets started Thursday.

Still, the 144-man lineup lacks Johnny Miller, Bruce Lietzke, John Cook and Hale Irwin, who have won six of the seven tournaments played thus far this year, and Jack Nicklaus. They are missing for a variety of reasons - some because of personal scheduling problems, some simply to take a break.

Although he now spends a good portion of his playing time on the seniors tour, the dynamic Palmer still exerts a magnetic effect on the galleries. Watson and

Georgetown boss study in contrasts

WASHINGTON (AP) - Georgetown University coach John Thompson is a study in contrasts.

A black coach for a predominantly white school in the nation's capital, Thompson has built a highly successful program on honesty, education and basketball, and in that order.

An unlikely candidate to coach at a Jesuit university better known for its academic excellence than its fullcourt press, Thompson came to Georgetown in 1972 after a successful career as coach of a Washington, D.C. high school.

He had been a center at Providence College and later in the National Basketball Association for the Boston

A GIANT of a man, carrying some 240 pounds on a 6-foot-10 frame, he is an awsome sight on the bench, his huge body hunched forward, his massive hands twisting an ever-present towel between his fingers.

He was the envy of just about every other college coach at news that Patrick Ewing, a 7-foot center from Cambridge, Mass., considered to be the best high school player in the nation, will be coming to Georgetown next year.

Thompson's approach to Ewing was the same as he has given any athlete, if you come to Georgetown be prepared to go to class and be prepared for an education.

Thompson puts his program where his mouth is. In his first eight years at the school, 35 of the 37 players he has recruited have graduated or are on schedule to graduate.

The thing that impressed me most when I was a senior in high school was that Coach Thompson never tried to convince me to go to Georgetown," recalls former Georgetown player and current Atlanta Hawk Craig Shelton. "He just explained how getting an education. He knows playing pro basketball is a one-in-a-million shot, and he's more concerned with how much his players learn."

JOHN DUREN, another George town player in the NBA also remembers Thompson's philosophy: "He has the ability to make a 17-year-old realize the value of basketball and educa-

Thompson's record as a coach is a tribute to his recruiting skills and ability to mold raw talent into a highly-tuned basketball machine.

In his first eight years at Georgetown, Thompson's teams won 156 and lost 72, a .684 percentage. His teams have gone to postseason tournaments each of the last six years and las year's 26-6 team came within one shot of reaching the NCAA Final Four. What is even more amazing when looking at last year's 26-6 record is the level of competition. According to the NCAA, Georgetown's schedule was the toughest of any school considered for an at-large tournament bid.

"In my mind," said Frank McGuire, former South Carolina basketball coach, "John Thompson has done the best coaching job of anybody

There is more to Thompson than good coaching, however. There is

DENVER (AP) — Even as Denver Broncos majority owner Gerald H. Phipps confirmed he was negotiating possible sale of his National Football League team, a Denver newspaper reported today that the deal al-ready was closed — for $40 million. Phipps and Edgar F. Kaiser Jr., board chairman of both Kaiser Resources Ltd. of Vancouver, British Columbia, and Kaiser Oil, U.S., Ltd., said Tuesday they were discussing a sale. Both said no final agreement had been reached.

Phipps said he expects to have an answer on the proposed sale "within a week one way or the other."

Kaiser, who was on a skiing vacation Tuesday in Utah, issued only a terse statement saying he was interested in buying the Broncos. But the Rocky Mountain News, sional boxing to enter the business world. Shavers fought twice for the heavyweight crown in his 11-year career, losing a disputed 15-round decision to Muhammad Ali in 1977 and being stopped by Larry Holmes in the 11th round in 1979. Shavers may have been in position to earn a third title shot. He has no regrets about losing that opportunity. "If I got one, it would have to be on seniority," he said. "I didn't want to get it that way. I'll let Ken Norton and the others kill themselves."

Shavers said he made more than $1 million in his 73-bout career that included 62 victories, 59 of them by knockouts. It was enough for him to buy a $600,000 country estate in the northeastern Ohio countryside

Spurs' Johnson is best on the block

By The Associated Press

The San Antonio Spurs are well known for their backcourt duo of George Gervin and James Silas, but George Johnson is still the best on the block.

The 6-foot-11 center blocked 13 shots, the fourth-best performance in National Basketball Association history, Tuesday night to highlight San Antonio's 131-126 victory over the Golden State Warriors.

"If I'm established as the No. 1 shot blocker in the league, then other teams will say, 'You can't hit the layup on San Antonio, so we'll have to do something else," said Johnson. "Anything like that helps you in the playoffs."

Elmore Smith, then with the Los Angeles Lakers, had 17 blocks in one game against Portland Oct. 28, 1973 for the NBA record. Smith also had 14 in a game twice, both within a week of his 17-block performance.

Johnson's latest rejection performance was his sixth time with 10 or more blocks in a game. In contrast, the legendary Bill Russell and Wilt Chamberlain never had a 10-block

"George Johnson was unbelievable tonight," said Spurs Coach Stan Albeck. "We got him here as a shot blocker and he hasn't disappointed

Illness slows Avon tennis

SEATTLE (AP) - Illness continued to plague the Avon tennis championships Tuesday, as Leslie Allen was downed by a tumultuous tummy and the sharp groundstrokes of Julie Har-

Allen, appearing nauseated and weak and at times holding her stomach, lost to Harrington, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1 in the first round of the $150,000 championships. Allen had won the women'scircuit Detroit stop three weeks ago. "I'm not sure what it was," Allen said. "But you have heard enough about players getting sick this week, so I'd rather talk about tennis." Hana Mandlikova, who became top-seeded when Austin withdrew, also did not want to talk about injury or illness after routing Great Britain's Sue Barker, 6-0, 7-5, in the second match of the night. "I'm sick of my hand. I don't want to talk about my hand. Let's go talk about tennis," Mandlikova said. She has been bothered by a tender right hand and had it checked by doctors

Fregosi works Angels hard

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The California Angels wasted little time getting down to serious business Tuesday as they opened their spring training camp with a four-hour, 10minute workout.

Manager Jim Fregosi, starting his third full year at the helm, took 37 squad members and six non-roster players through their paces.

Just three Angels were missing. Player representative Don Baylor was in Tampa, Fla., for Wednesday's meeting. Also absent were sorearmed right-hander Jim Barr and right-hander Luis Sanchez, a Venezuelan who was detained by visa Fregosi's camps have traditionally opened with split-squad workouts, but with 10 newcomers he has switched to combined drills to "enable everyone to get to know each other.'

Among those donning Angel uniforms for the first time were center fielder Fred Lynn, shortstop Rick Burleson and third baseman Butch Hobson, who came from the Boston Red Sox in two separate deals.

That trio gives California a lineup that also includes Rod Carew at first, Bobby Grich at second, catcher Brian Downing, designated hitter Jason Thompson and Baylor and Dan Ford with Lynn in the outfield. Matters are far less settled on the pitching staff, where Fregosi's biggest spring chore awaits. He must squeeze a 10-man staff out of 18 candidates. Four free agent acquisitions and Steve Renko, who came from Boston in the Lynn deal, have been imported to bolster a staff that ranked 13th in the American League last year with a 4.52 earned run average.

Renko had a 9-9 record with the Red

Of the 15 pitchers on hand who saw major league action in 1980, Travers and left-handed reliever Andy Hassler, 5-1 with the Angels after an early season trade with Pittsburgh had the only winning records.

Barr may have become the first eliminated from the pitching sweepstakes. The right-hander missed much of last season with a sore arm and Angel officials are checking into the possibility he may have aggravated his injury when he made an unauthorized appearance in an all-star exhibition last month in Riverside,

"We will be spending a lot of time on fundamentals," Fregosi said as drills began. "I thought we were lazy last year. Also, we'll be working on defense, baserunning an condition-

McEnroe may take rest after losing to Waltke

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Defending champion John McEnroe, listless after a stunning defeat in the U.S. National Indoor Tennis Championship, says he may cut back on his schedule

McEnroe, 22, fell to 26-year-old Californian Trey Waltke 6-3, 6-4, Tuesday night in the $200,000 event in which McEnroe was the top seed.

Waltke pulled the second major upset of the day. Earlier, eighth seeded Brian Gottfried was defeated by unheralded Jeff Borowiak, 7-5, 6-4.

After his match, McEnroe said he hasn't been satisfied with his perfor-"I'm disappointed with the way I've been playing all year," McEnroe said. "I haven't felt like I'm playing all that well. I just feel sluggish, not just today but all season. I think I'm playing too much." McEnroe arrived in Memphis Tuesday after a 28-hour flight from Australia. "I wasn't tired but I wasn't feeling great, but that's been the case all year," he said.

Waltke said too much tennis may be McEnroe's problem.

"Maybe all these exhibitions are hurting his game," Waltke said. "I played him several months ago. He was more tournament sharp then." McEnroe double faulted six times in the first set and never showed much fire. « Waltke said when he played McEnroe several months ago he couldn't handle McEnroe's serve.

Waltke was trounced in that first After Tuesday's victory, Waltke said, "My only strategy tonight was to get back his serve and play it from "The courts here are a little slower than our last match so it helped me more than him."

In today's play, Waltke will meet hometown favorite Jimmy Brown, 15. Brown, who had a bye in the first round, was issued a wildcard into the tournament.

A seeded player who had no problem was Roscoe Tanner, who breezed past Bernie Mitton of South Africa, 6-2, 6-1. Tanner, of Lookout Mountain, Tenn., is the fifth seed.

market loses

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market turned lower today, breaking from the tentative advance of the past two sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 10.01 points Monday and Tuesday, dropped 7.77 to 938.33 in the first two hours today.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about a 6-5 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Before the market opened the government reported that the consumer price index rose 0.7 percent in January. The seasonally adjusted data showed some slowing from the pace of inflation late last year. The CPI rose 1.1 percent in November and 1 percent in December. But Murray J. Weiden baum, chairman of President Reagan's Council of Economic Advisers, said that the latest report, "although welcome, provides little basis for optimism with regard to the underlying rate of inflation." Middle South Utilities was among the most active issues, up 1/8 at 12. A 200,000-share block of the stock traded at that price. The NYSE's composite index fell .31 to 72.60. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 2.07 at 331.18. Volume on the Big Board set a moderate pace, totaling 18.64 million shares by noon.

Housing market funnel plugged like an old sink

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) - If Americans can't put a roof over their heads there may be little point in devising grand plans for improving productivity, reducing inflation or otherwise seeking to tame the savage

But there are problems in roofing America. It takes lots of money to build and buy houses, and the so-called thrift industry pipeline that funneled money to the housing market is plugged up like an old sink.

The reason is inflation and high interest rates, and it works like this:

-With the cost of living outpacing wage increases, many people are unable to save as much as they once

-What money they do save often goes to large commercial banks that can offer high-interest certificates rather than small, local savings institutions, such as savings and loan associations or mutual -Commercial banks aren't as dedicated to making mortgages as are thrift institutions. Seeking a greater return for their dollar, they invest in more profitable and less regulated ventures than hous-

-Thrift institutions have been sinking deep into the hole, one reason being that they hold on their books old home mortgage loans on which they collect only 7 percent or even less. They lose money on —Traditional home mortgage lenders are resolved not to be caught in such a bind again. They are wary of granting long-term fixed-term mortgages. Instead, they want flexibility, which generally means they seek to give mortgages whose terms vary with changing conditions.

-Such mortgages now exist, but after 50 years of expecting and getting the traditional mortgage, some young homebuyers are reluctant to test the new mortgages. Some critics say they are wise to

-The argument of the critics is that flexibile rates mean either of two things: that the monthly payments might rise beyond the earning power of the homeowner; that, as an alternative, the homebuyer would need more years than he or she has remaining to retire the mortgage.

-The critics of the critics concede the new mortgages aren't as desirable as the old ones. But, they argue, we must be realistic. If you want a house, this is the only way you or your family will get it.

There are other elements also. The typical single-family house now requires as much down as the median-income family earns before taxes in an entire year. That's hard to come up with when inflation exceeds wage increases, when taxes are rising, and when saved money erodes in value.

Moreover, housing really doesn't have top priority, as you might think it would. No matter that some 40 million people will reach age 30, or homebuying age, in this decade. The goal of those who would rebuild America is to channel funds into manufacturing plant and equipment, and in that way reduce inflation by lowering the cost of making goods.

Somehow, though, it would seem the housing situation has to be worked out before that can happen. The situation isn't being ignored, as the many innovations in housing design and financing attest.

the rise in prices and bringing down interest rates, in rebuilding savings accounts, in obtaining regulatory approval for new-style mortgages, and in gaining acceptance for them. It takes time, but time is relentless. All those babies born in the boom of the late 1950s and early 1960s, and who are relied upon to get the economy moving, are getting older by the second. They want

IRS, Michigan gearing up to put halt to tax rebels

FLINT, Mich. (AP) - A scheme by about 3,500 auto workers to cut the amount of taxes withheld from their paychecks could result in more being

By EILEEN PUTMAN Associated Press Writer

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) - All the drawing cards are here: sex, money, power, death and scandal. And draw they do, bringing in several hundred reporters, some as famous as the subjects they write about. "She brings out the best cliches in everybody," Duncan Spencer, a Washington Star reporter, said of the woman at the center of it all, Jean

The 57-year-old former girls' school headmistress with the classy clothes and society background, who is charged with the murder of Scarsdale Diet developer Dr. Herman Tarnower, is the center of what reporters call a media "zoo."

When the reporters who were to become the Harris trial regulars assembled in October for pre-trial hearings, among them were Shana Alexander, former "60 Minutes" commentator; Diana Trilling, the writer and critic, and Lally Weymouth, freelancer and daughter of Washington Post publisher Katharine Graham. All three were said to be writing books about the case.

The press corps toniness was established almost immediately when Mrs.

Trilling and Ms. Alexander greeted each other with hugs and kisses.
"I saw you in the Times crossword puzzle last week," Mrs. Trilling said.

You were No. 5 across. No stranger to crosswords herself, Mrs. Trilling acknowledged Mrs. Alexander's reminder that she was once "No. 23 down" in another puz-

But the trial quickly lost its glamour in the tedious waiting during the many conferences the attorneys conducted behind closed doors. Even Mrs. Harris' occasional off-the-cuff remarks to a courtroom artist not to sketch her wrinkles so deep lost their appeal as juicy tidbits to be included in reporters' stories. Reporters worked out of a drafty, makeshift press room in the courthouse lobby, where the heat was turned off at 6 p.m. each day.

"Free the White Plains press corps The length of this trial is cruel and inhuman punishment," read a postcard sent in January to trial Judge Russell Leggett by a pining girlfriend of one of the out-of-town reporters.

Patrick Henry's "Give me liberty or give me death" was stamped on the front of the card.

But the tedium ended abruptly Jan. 27 when the frail blond defendant stepped into the witness box in a mauve Chanel-style suit and pearls. For eight days, she captivated the courtroom with a tale of depression, failed suicide, Tarnower's casual sexual liaisons and her scorn of the other woman in Tarnower's life, Lynne

"I thought she denigrated Hi," Mrs. Harris testified, using the nickname for the millionaire diet developer. Pencils busily recorded the defendance of the d dant's accompanying look of dis-

When Assistant District Attorney George Bolen read Mrs. Harris' last letter to Tarnower, in which she called her rival a "thieving slut" and a "psychotic whore," reporters could not get to the telephones fast enough with the news.

But trial testimony ended in an anticlimax of several pathologists' analyses of Tarnower's palm tissue.

Reporters didn't necessarily enjoy the chase.

"I resent it — the crush, the hordes, the chase, the quarry, the prey. I think it's kind of demeaning for everybody, for the defendant and the press," said Joyce Dopkeen, a New York Times photographer.

"She's a person, a human being. I have very mixed feelings about it, although I recognize it's our job. By our numbers, we make it more of a

Reagan passing buck, say local officials

WASHINGTON (AP) - Many local officials are complaining that President Reagan's proposed budget cuts would merely pass the buck of caring for the sick, lame and needy back to city and county officials. Underlying their warnings was the suggestion that taxpayers will be expected to foot the bill one way or another - if not through federal taxes, then through higher local taxes.

The crunch, both state and local officials say, will be even harder if the Reagan administration eliminates federal revenue sharing, which funnels $4.6 billion a year to local governments to spend pretty much as they please.

'We can delay building a bridge or repairing it even, but if we pick up someone on the street bleeding, we've got to take care of him," said Bernard Hillenbrand, executive director of the National Association of Counties. "We just don't have choices like "Human services are the costly items, and they're the ones that the loss of them or the reduction of them has an immediate effect," added Randy Arndt, spokesman for the National League of Cities. "A city or community of any size cannot afford to turn its back on its population's needs.

Their concerns were typical of those expressed by a large number of state, county and municipal officials who attended the annual winter meeting of the National Governors' Association.

Although the governors also expressed a lot of reservations about the Reagan proposals, it was the officials further down the governmental pecking order most frightened of being left holding

"It's not going to be the feds," said Thomas Cochran, deputy director of the U.S. Conference of Mayors. "The people who are hurt are going to be nearer city hall than the statehouse. The mayors are going to take the heat."

The governors and Reagan favor elimination of many of the direct payments now going to cities and replacing them with block grants to the states - to be spent with greater state discretion.

Reagan told the governors that while no final decision has been made on revenue sharing, he prefers to relinquish local tax sources to the states instead of sending them federal money. 'Increasing authority to the state bureaucracy doesn't help the cities all that much," said Mayor Richard G. Hatcher of Gary, Ind., president of the Mayors Conference. "The final responsibili-

"The fact that you give money back to the states doesn't necessarily mean they will pass it back to where the problem is," Hillenbrand said. "We had bridge money, we got a national program on bridges, and in state after state the state intercepted the bridge money and put the money on state bridges and not on bridges that we have responsibility for at the county level."

The states, nonetheless, are likely to face some budget problems of their own under the Reagan proposals.

For example, Reagan has proposed a 5 percent cap on future increases in federal contibutions to the Medicaid program which provides medical assistance for the needy under state adminis-

"The cost of having an elderly person go to the hospital under Medicaid is projected to go up 15 percent," said Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California. "If Reagan caps that at 5 percent, that means 10 percent has to be picked up by local government.

"Most local governments are facing deficits," Brown said. "That means local governments will have to raise their taxes in order to finance the Reagan tax reduction. Brown also agreed that there is likely to be a game of cat and mouse between state and local officials as a result of the federal 'We'll have a continuing shifting of the burden," he said, "Each politician is trying to shift the burden away from himself so he Gov. Lamar Alexander of Tennessee, a Republican and strong Reagan supporter, concedes: "It's going to cause some dislocations. Any change that big will, and that makes everyone a little Hillenbrand, speaking from the prospective of county officials, said that no matter what Reagan or Congress may do about relieving federal requirements to provide a certain level of service, the courts may not go along. He said courts are likely to continue requiring such things as clean air and water, safe prisons and special education for handicapped children even if federal requirments are relaxed. 'The mandates are going to continue to come regardless of the good intentions of the president or the Congress," Hillenbrand said. "We're still going to have to do it, and they're taking away

Joint Persian force urged by experts

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States should form a joint force with Britain, France, West Germany and Japan "poised and ready to throw itself in the path" of any Soviet advance on Persian Gulf oil, a group of foreign policy experts said

If turmoil in the region threatens Western interests "we need a capacity to intervene on the side of any friendly power which called for help," the policy

Prepared by foreign affairs "think tanks" in the United States, Britain, West Germany and France, the report called for "a thicker web" of allied consultations on East-West issues.

Among its recommendations:

-Expanding the annual economic summit of the six leading western industrial countries and Japan to deal equally with political and security concerns. -Cutting off all scientific contact beneficial to the Soviet Union if the Red Army rolls into Poland.

-Having the Western powers provide military assistance to rebels opposing Soviet occupation of

The proposals were prepared by the directors of the Council on Foreign Relations in the United States, the Royal Institute of International Affairs in Britain, the French Institute of International Relations and the West German Organization for Ex-

All are private institutions, but many of their top officials have served in government and have influential ties. Winston Lord, director of the American council, was closely associated with former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

In the Middle East, the report said, the principal Western nations and Japan should immediately form a "crisis management" group that would effectively extend the reach of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to the oil-rich region.

The United States draws 15 percent of its oil from the Persian Gulf, West Europe about 60 percent, and Japan 70 percent.

'The Soviet leaders have shown themselves extremely reluctant in the past to get into a direct military confrontation with the other superpower,' the report said. "Their knowledge that an American force with European and Japanese support, however inadequate for polonged hostilities, was poised and ready to throw itself in the path of the Soviet advance would therefore have an important deterrent ef-

The main burden of putting together a rapid deployment force to respond to Soviet military expansion would fall on the United States under the proposal, but Britain and France would contribute men and supplies, and all five countries would share in expanding Western bases in the region.

Students printing for profit

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) - Police say they expect to make more arrests in a counterfeiting operation in which students at William Allen High School allegedly used an offset printing press to crank out $1 and $5

Approximately $4,000 worth of bogus bills was recovered by Tuesday afternoon, the deadline set by police for students to surrender the counterfeit

"After that, if we catch any, even in possession, they're going to be arrested," said police Lt. Ronald Neimeyer, head of the juvenile division About $2,000 was turned over to the U.S. Secret Service, he said. Students apparently used the phony bills in coin changers and to buy food, Neimeyer said.

"They're buying pizzas; they're buying cookies and things like that," Neimeyer said. Principal John F. McHugh said it appeared fewer than a dozen of the school's 2,200 students were

One 17-year-old student was arrested on a forgery charge after he allegedly passed a phony bill at a pizza parlor last week

"There'll probably be five or six (arrests) to follow," Neimeyer said.

The operation started in December when a student made a Christmas tree from $5 bills he printed on a press in the graphic arts classroom and gave it to his aunt and uncle

"His aunt thought it was beautiful, and his uncle almost had a coronary," Neimeyer said.

The youth was not arrested because he had no intent to pass the money and cooperated with police,

Other students, impressed with the quality of the phony bills, "printed up some singles," Neimeyer
