

Day has 'independent' spirit

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Grab your stetson, saddle up your Cadillac, and if you don't have an oil well, get one in time for the 145th birthday bash Texas and Texans are throwing for themselves.

March 2 is Texas Independence Day. On that date in 1836, a convention of rebels met at Washington on the Brazos, adopted a constitution and declared Texas independent of Mexico. A month later the fighting ended at the battle of San Jacinto.

Celebrations will be held in at least 65 communities across the state; the Texas flag is scheduled to fly over the City, Chicago and San Francisco. That's just for starters.

In Luxembourg, a radio station will play the University of Texas fight song and 30 minutes of Texas music. UT grads in Kinshasa, Zaire, plan to quaff margaritas and munch nachos in honor of the day.

It has a long - but slightly less than dignified - history. In 1897, for example, March 2 was the occasion of a raucous student gathering at the University of Texas Law students had asked UT President G.T. Winston — newly arrived from the University of North Carolina — to give them a day off to whoop it up in honor of Texas.

Winston refused, saying July 4 was the only day he was going to celebrate.

Not to be denied, the students went to the Capitol grounds, borrowed" a cannon, took it back to school and started firing down University Avenue. The noise shattered win-lows in the Main Building.

Finally, after the hoopla brought out the entire student body of 400, Winston joined the group and proclaimed: 'I was born in the land of liberty, rocked in the cradle of liberty, nursed on the bottle of liberty, and I've had liberty preached to me all my life, But Texas University studentstake more liberty than anyone I've ever come in contact

This year, homesick Texans trapped in Manhattan can gather at the Lone Star Cafe for its third annual Independence Day celebration.

Spain's Basques declare cease-fire

SV FENIUN WHEELER Associated Press Writer

MADRID, Spain (AP) - Basque separatists who have waged a decade-long terrorism campaign against the Spanish government announced a cease-fire on Saturday and released unharmed three honorary consuls kidnapped a week ago.

It was not immediately clear if the moratorium on violence applied to other separatist groups besides the moderate political wing of the organization ETA, which announced the decision in a clandestine news conference-after releasing the honorary consuls of Uruguay, El Salvador and

There was no immediate comment from the government.

The cease-fire offer capped a tumultuous week that began with Parliament held hostage at gunpoint in an attempted military coup and ended with an outpouring of popular support stitution. King Juan Carlos warned Saturday, "We are living in grave moments.

The Spanish news agency Europa reported the Basque leaders, at their news conference in Guipuzcoa, said 'the present political situation is sufficiently serious for political parties and institutions to be the protagonists in resolving the problems of the Basque country.

The agency quoted the leaders as saying they had planned a cease-fire earlier but they withheld implementation when Premier Adolfo Suarez announced his resignation a month ago amid criticism he could not effectively deal with Basque terrorism.

With the nomination of Leopoldo Calvo Sotelo as new premier and fearing a government move to the right, we planned tough action, but the attempted coup five days ago determined a halt of any type of action and announcement of immediate cease-fire," Europa quoted them as saying.

The agency said the ETA leaders announced they had instructed their commandos to stop all their activity. The military wing of ETA, which stands for "Basque Land and Liberty" in the language of Spain's northern Basque provinces, has been blamed for over 95 political assassinations last year - most of them

The ETA moderates said they were not totally abandoning their "armed fight" but would observe a cease-fire to let political forces try to solve the Basque issue.

The ETA is an outgrowth of the Basque Nationalist Party, which fought Gen, Francisco Franco during the 1936-39 Spanish Civil War. Franco died in 1975 and the democratic post-Franco government has granted a measure of home rule to the Basque provinces. But the ETA separatists have wanted an independent Marxist

A "60 Minutes" program that aired over the CBS Television Network two weeks ago and a Better Business Bureau article in last Sunday's Reporter-Telegram have generated a strong protest from members of the Midland Police Department.

Both the article and the television show centered on police fund-raising campaigns and, officers say, left viewers and readers alike with the impression the public is being bilked by fast-talking phone solicitors who mislead prospective donors and line their own pockets with the proceeds of

The BBB story; for instance, said:

"What is not stated on the telephone is that usually 70 to 90 percent of the donation will go to the professional hired by the police group. ..

"Regardless of what is implied on the telephone, the vast majority of the money goes to a profit-making orga-"Of the money that does reach the police union's treasury, the majority will go toward lobbying in the State

THE PART ABOUT the bulk of the money going to the people who promote police fund drives is correct as far as it goes. It simply doesn't go for enough, according to Capt. Roger Meurer of the Midland Police Department's Identification and Rec-

'They (the BBB) didn't contact us before writing the article. Yes, the promoters get 80 percent of what's collected and we get 20 percent. But that 20 percent comes right off the top and we have no expenses.

They do the work and have to pay for the phone banks, the bulk of the advertising, a hall for the performance, the performers' fees and the performers' expenses.

'The remainder -- if anything's left over - is their profit. If the venture lose's money, it's the promoter who takes the bath, not us."

A majority of the city's police force belongs to the Midland Police Officers Association, which was formed about three years ago and is now planning its first fund-raising event: a countrywestern show June 5 in Chaparral Center featuring Johnny Paycheck, along with Wally Fowler and His Sounds of Nashville.

THE PROMOTER offered to reverse the deal and take 20 percent off the top himself, but the association

Another statement in the BBB article that police take issue with is "Whatever the sales pitch, it is usually implied that the caller is a representative of the police department. The fact is, the caller is a salesman working for a professional fund paiser hired by a police union, not the police department."

AP NBC Poll -

phone solicitations for the countrywestern show is representing the police association and not necessarily the department itself, the caller does not misrepresent that fact, according

"We got so much flak over the BBB and '60 Minûtes' saying people are being misled that I insisted the promoters tape-record every phone call," he said.

A PORTION OF one such tape contained this opening line from a solicitor to a local businessman: 'I'm calling for the Midland Police Officers Association. You probably (know) they're putting on this big.

Reagan receives positive rating

NEW YORK (AP) - After a month. in office, Ronald Reagan stands just about where Jimmy Carter did in the public's judgment of his opening weeks of work, an Associated Press-NBC News polls says.

Reagan gets a positive rating from Americans for his work overall, as opinions of the new Republican incumbent have turned increasingly fa-4 vorable in a number of areas sincelast fall's bitter election campaign.

For example, the public now rejects by a 2-to-1 margin the idea that Reagan doesn't understand the nation's complex problems. In October, the public was split evenly on that issue,

The latest AP-NBC News poll was taken Monday and Tuesday and is based on telephone interviews with 1,597 adults across the nation.

They — not the promoter — then deliver the tickets in return for checks made out to the association, which will use the proceeds to estab lish scholarships for needy students at Midland College.

Part of the money raised also will be used to aid the families of dead or injured officers.

"THOSE ARE THE basic places where the proceeds will go," said Detective Lt. Earl Luckey. "In the future, we may use some of it to promote local youth programs.

Of the 26 crew members originally on the Dae Rim, only two had been rescued by late Saturday night. Three others remained on the Dae Rim.

Thatcher wants strong alliance

NEW YORK (AP) - British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said Saturday the West should not 'exaggerate the danger" of Soviet expansionism but 'measure it dispassionately' and toughen the alliance Predicting that "the 1980s will be a difficult and Soviet ambitions and of Soviet life," she said, "There is new determination in the Western Alliance. There is new leadership in America, which gives confidence and hope to all in the free world.' Mrs. Thatcher said the West must seek detente because "the supreme task of modern statesmanship is the prevention of war. But it must be genuine, two-way, detente based on the recognition of the longing of all peoples for stability, for independence, for freedom.' The prime minister said that she had seen in the recent speech of Soviet President Brezhnev "signs of a readiness on the part of the Soviet Union to negotiate,' adding: "Like President Reagan earlier this week, I welcome that. During the dinner in the grand ballroom of the midtown hotel, police estimated 850 pickets stood outside, shouting slogan's such as "IRA All The Way," heard by some of the arriving black tie guests. Held away from the main Park Avenue entrance to the hotel by police barriers, the demonstrators held placards, saving "Boycott British goods," and "Stop The Murder in Ulster," a reference to their support of efforts to separate Northern Ireland from Great Britain. But police said they were orderly.

Mrs. Thatcher flew here at mid-day from Washington after three days oftalks with Reagan and other-officials; a speech at Georgetown University, which awarded her an honorary degree, and playing host to the President and others at a black-tie dinner at the British Embassy

She spent Saturday afternoon in meetings with David Rockefeller, chairman of the Chase Manhattan Bank, at his estate in suburban Pocantico Hills, and with United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim in

At the dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, the OSS veterans presented her with the Donovan Award for distinguished service in the interest of democracy and freedom, named for Maj. Gen. William "Wild Bill" Donovan, who organized the OSS and led its intelligence activities during World War II.

In her speech Mrs. Thatcher said she does not believe that the Soviet Union "is contemplating direct aggression against the West.' She said she saw three other motives for the Soviet military build-up. "Firstly," she said, "they seek reassurance for their own fears. Like many whose consciences are uneasy they find it hard to imagine that others do not conspire

"Secondly, they hope that knowledge of their sheer might will be enough to split Europe and Japan from the United States. They calculate that a collapse of will in Western-Europe would leave them free to determine its fate, and perhaps that of the world, without resort to.

The third reason, she said, was the desire to "increase Soviet influence in the Third World, by subversion and by active intervention.'

When a public official, county commissioner, or etc., is defeated for his or her office, do they receive some kind of retirement or compensation?

ANSWER: Dee Thompson, Midland County treasurer, says that retirement benefits depend on the length of time the official has been in office. Vested interest accumulates on money invested in the retirement fund. An official is entitled to retirement benefits after 12 years of service and upon reaching the age of 60.

ANSWER: The Inspections Department reports that in situations such as this, it is difficult to say that there is a "Used Car Lot" being operated in a residential area. In many cases, the cars are licensed and have inspection stickers, which means it is legal for a person to have as many cars as he wishes in his yard

My son left Rochester, N.Y., January 26 by bus and arrived in Midland January 29. His luggage was missing.

He has checked with the bus station and has been given the run around about locating his luggage. Can you do anything to help us? — J.B.

ANSWER: Answer Line may have been given the "run around," too, but here is the information we received.

The problem was turned over to the Dallas office, after no results were obtained from tracers from the Midland station. The Dallas office also has tracers on the luggage, as well as your claim form. Misplaced luggage and items which have lost identification information eventually are sent to a clearing house in Chicago, Ill. If the luggage does not arrive in Chicago or is not located by the tracers, the bus company will reimburse you for the lost items.

It's my understanding man is the only animal that can still have sex after castration - the reason being that sex is largely pyschological. Could you confirm this? And, if it checks out, why, then, are some people advocating castration of sex offenders? - R.E.O. ANSWER: A Midland physician explains that castration (removal of the testes) in man stops the production of the male hormone, testosterone, which decreases the desire for sex. With the absence of testosterone, the production of the female hormone, estrogen, takes over.

The desire for sex, according to the doctor, depends on the integrity of the automatic nervous system. Those persons advocating the castration of sex offenders obviously are doing so in the hopes the procedure will decrease the possiblily of repeat performances by the offenders.

Reagan's program called 'unfair, unequal'

By W. DALE NELSON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Edward M. Kennedy denounced President Reagan's economic package Saturday as a "program of unfair sacrifice and unequal benefit.'

"I am concerned that the Reagan budget cuts would take the most from middle-income families, and from those who have the least," Kennedy said in. a CBS television program presenting Democratic and other views of the president's plan. # State Senate passes variety of legislation

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - The Texas Senate last week passed legislation strengthening low-level radioactive waste regulations, requiring competency tests for teachers and banning deduction of union dues from state employee paychecks, with strong opposition to only the last of those measures.

The Senate passed SB 118 after attempts by Sens. Lloyd Doggett of Austin and Carl Parker of Port Arthur to prevent its consideration. The bill, sponsored by Dallas Sen. O.H. "Ike" Harris, prohibits deductions from state employees' paychecks unless specifically authorized by law.

On Monday, Doggett tried to-prevent engrossment of the bill by calling for adjournment, but that effort failed on a vote of 10 to 19. The measure was given final approval Tuesday by a 19 to 9 margin with Sen. W.E. "Pete" Snelson of Midland voting in favor of the bill.

SB 480, which sets up new licensing regulations for low-level radioactive waste storage and processing sites, passed 30 to 0, but only after LaGrange Sen. John Wilson attempted to amend the bill to delete provisions which would have given individual citizens standing in lawsuits against operators of such

Wilson contended the provision, if not amended, would open the way for harassment of storage site operators by those opposed to the location of any site in their areas.

The bill's sponsor, Sen. John Traeger of Seguin, was able to get Wilson's amendment tabled by a 20 to 9 vote with Snelson absent. SB 480 passed without

The Senate also gave final approval to SB 50 by Wichita Falls Sen. Ray Farabee, which passed with Wilson casting the only dissenting vote. The bill would require basic skills tests for college students entering education programs and competency tests for graduates seeking teacher certificates.

The bill wouldn't affect anyone currently holding a eaching certificate or any college student currently enrolled in an education program.

All three bills must still be considered by the House of Representatives. The House considered only rou-

Midlanders given engineering awards at banquet

ODESSA - Even among the most sophisticated of persons, a singular element often surfaces as a reminder that education and attainment never dim the unique heritage of warmth and simplicity shared by all West

Such was evident at Inn of the Golden West here Saturday night in the countrified hospitality of the Engineers' Week Banquet that saw Midlanders Roy E. Campbell and Clark Butts take awards for Engineer of the Year and Young Engineer, respec-

Much of the down-home atmosphere was provided by Dallas television personality Michael Brown, who gave a 45-minute talk laced with biting humor and touching upon the idea of the American dream.

Brown, who has spoken to groups across the nation and appeared with Bob Hope, brought uproarious laughter on a number of occasions with his witty views and anecdotal illustra-

"YOU'VE MADE ME feel welcome here tonight, made me feel important," he told the more than 200 engineers and guests. "And after what happened to me recently in San Antonio, I need that."

It seems that when Brown was preparing to eat dinner at a San Antonio convention, prior to his keynote speaking engagement, he asked the waiter for another slice of butter to go on his roll. "One slice per person," Brown recalled the waiter as telling him. When Brown reiterated that he really would like to have more butter, he again obtained the response, "One slice per per-

"Well, he just looked at me and said, 'do you know who I am? I'm the man who hands out the butter."

And then there was the time, Brown recalled, when he was flying crosscountry on a major airline and cigarette smoke was bothering him. He turned to the stewardess, he recalled, and told her that he was paying good money and that he demanded that she find him a seat where there would be no lingering smoke.

"You got it,' she told me, 'Just be sure you lower the lid before you sit

BROWN NOTED THAT he was a product of a small town, Hugo, Okla., and explained that while tiny communities have trmendous intrinsic rewards, the residents often are not well-versed in big-city ways. He recalled his first tripeto New York City as a high school senior. He put a dime in a telephone, he said, to call across Manhattan, and the operator interrupted and ordered him to deposit 75 additional cents for a longdistance call.

'But I'm in Manhattan, and m, friend's in Manhattan, and it's a longdistance call?" he exclaimed. "Why, back in Hugo, Okla., I could call Hell and back for 75 cents.'

"Young man," he recalled the operator as telling him, "back in Hugo, Okla., that'd be a local call."

Brown recalled a boyhood chum with a glass eye who was the best marble-shooter in Hugo Junior High. That wasn't the strange part, he said. What was unusual was that his chum played marbles with his artificial orb and once even lost it at recess in a "game of keeps." The teacher, however, made the boy who won it return came when Brown remembered the initial visit of the Baptist preacher when his family moved to Dallas. His wife had experienced considerable difficulty getting ketchup from a bot-tle, and had been forced to slam her fist against the end.

When his 8-year-old girl answered the door, she informed the minister that her mother couldn't see him right now because "she's in the dining room hitting the bottle again.'

The next time the preacher came, Brown had just returned from a television spot and his young son met him at the door. "My father can't come to see you right now; he's in the bathroom taking off his makeup," he recollected. "A week later we got a letter from the preacher saying he was praying about our alternate lifes-

"An American may be of many skin colors; he may have a masters degree...or till the soil with a pair of mules," he noted, "but all have a bond of strength and tradition which exemplifies the American way.'

"What is an American?" he asked rhetorically. "He is fortunate."

Federal agents conduct surprise search of homes

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Federal agents investigating the assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood confiscated mounds of papers and goods during surprise searches at the El Paso-area homes of convicted drug trafficker Jimmy Chagra and several of his relatives, an El Paso newspaper reported. Justice Department officials refused to comment on Friday's searches, but the El Paso Times quoted a federal source in the city as saying agents of the FBI, the Drug Enforcement Administration and the Internal Revenue Service were looking for "something that should lead to indictments in the Wood investiga-

Wood had been assigned to preside over the Chagra case, one that federal prosecutors said involved the Texas

'kingpin' in a major narcotics ring. Chagra was convicted later of continuing criminal enterprise and sentenced to 30 years in prison without parole. He entered a federal prison in February 1980.

One of the other homes searched was that of attorney Joe Chagra, Jimmy's brother, who said agents had been in his home since 8 a.m. and did not leave until 9 p.m. MST.

"Did they take anything? They took everything," Joe Chagra said. "They took boxes and boxes of stuff. I'm very tired and irritated.'

Another Chagra brother was Lee, a prominent defense attorney in drug cases who was shot to death in his office Christmas Eve 1978.

The federal source would not reveal what specific piece of evidence was

Helgi Tomasson — New York City Ballet

She seemed to defy the law of gravity. Her movements were oprecise and graceful — eloquent testimony to what can be achieved with dedication, drive, natural ability and the proper training.

American Ballet. Theatre principal dancer Yoko Ichino captivated Midlanders Tuesday night with her performance of the pas de deux from "Napoli" and "Don Quixote."

Dancing with Miss Ichino was New York City Ballet principal dancer Helgi Tomasson. He stunned the Midland audience with his style and finesse.

To both — bravo.

Not to be forgotton was the marvelous music performed by the Midland-Odessa Chamber Orchestra, directed by Dr. Thomas Hohstadt. It was, to date, their most outstanding performance of the year.

Only two small problems marred the evening's enjoyment. The Ravel piece performed during the second half, while the dancers changed roles, was not long enough. The first half could have been shortened by performing this Ravel piece and moving one of the longer works to after intermission, thus avoiding the awkward and seemingly unplanned second intermission.

The other problem was apparently unavoidable — the audience wanted more. Unfortunately, the strenuous nature of both dances made that impossible.

As one fan said, 'It's like being a connoisseur of fine foods and loving oysters, but then only being allowed to eat one. It was just a taste and it left me hungry for more.'

Fortunately, Midlanders will be afforded the opportunity to have more. The ballet and symphony performance Tuesday night was being filmed to be used as part of a documentary on the life of prima ballerina assoluta Mia Slavenska, who was Miss Ichino's teacher for many years. The film will include a restaging of the ballet. "A Streetcar Named Desire" that Miss Slavenska created. This ballet was the first to combine theater, modern dance and classical ballet.

The crew, composed of Denis Sanders and Arthur L. Swerdloff, both award winners whose credentials include producing, writing and directing; cameraman Al-Taylor, who has just finished "The Paper Chase" series for 20th Century Fox, and soundman Chuck Lewis, who has for years done the Bing Crosby and Bob Hope specials, will return to Midland this summer for more filming.

Also present Tuesday night was Miss Slavenska. It was the first time in years she had been away from California. The purpose of her trip, besides being filmed for the documentary was to see her protege dance. As is the case with all great teachers, she coached Miss Ichino backstage after the show, utilizing their time together to the best advantage she could

McCamey residents planning clean-up

McCAMEY - The McCamey Chamber of Commerce has designated March as Clean-Up, Fix-Up and Paint-Up Month in which a "massive" community-wide clean-up campaign will be conducted.

'Nearly all McCameyites can claim a small percentage of the blame, at least, for the city remaining in a cluttered, unsanitary, dirty state," editorialized The McCamey News.

Atlanta workers continue searches

ATLANTA (AP) - Volunteer searchers trying to help police solve the mysterious deaths and disappearances of 21 black children in the At lanta area found some bones early today near an interstate highway, but a medical examiner identified them as dog remains.

Earlier, several police officers at the scene had said they thought the bones were human remains. That's when homicide detectives and Cobb County Medical Examiner Joe Burton were called to investigate.

Authorities sald the bones did not include a skull, but some clothing or possibly a sleeping bag were found

It was the 20th weekend search by volunteers in the cases, which have claimed 19 black children in the past 19 months. Two other children - Darron Glass, 10, and Curtis Walker, 13 still are missing. Glass has been missing since last September, Walker since Feb. 19.

The searchers concentrated their efforts today in Cobb County, where one of the victims was found. The area borders the Atlanta city limits.

Meanwhile, police were searching for a man seen driving through a southside park apparently trying to pick up children.

Police bureau spokesman Roger Harris said a "suspicious-looking" white male was seen driving Friday afternoon through Grant Park in a white car with black doors and a black top withea red and blue flashing light. Harris said the man apparently was trying to pick up children.

Harris said police did not believe the car was connected to the slayings and disappearances, although he would not elaborate. Authorities have speculated in recent months that a killer could have posed as a policeman or other authority figure in an effort to gain children's confidence.

Meanwhile, a suburban medical examiner involved in the investigation of two of the slayings says he is being left in the dark even though police have drawn up guidelines to prevent disputes between local authorities probing the deaths and disappear-

DeKalb County Medical Examiner Joe Burton says the State Crime Lab, for example, never sent him a directive to look for a certain fiber on the victims' bodies. Two of the 19 dead children whose cases are being investigated by a special Atlanta police task force were discovered in his

State Crime Lab Director Larry Howard has said fibers found in the clothes of at least two of victims are identical. Other reports have indicated the fiber evidence connects at least five of the victims. The task force reportedly has been given the primary investigative authority for the cases of all the children, regardless of the jurisdiction in which the bodies were found.

Burton, echoing complaints voiced in recent weeks by agencies involved in the probe, said Thursday, "I'm very concerned that agencies intimately involved in this case were not. informed about key things to look for.

Drainage ditch deadline revised

A Midlander walked into a meeting recently and congratulated a city councilman for not closing Big

Out of six main north-south thoroughfares in Midland, portions of three are closed - Midland Drive, Midkiff and Garfield. And the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation is working on the second phase of Loop 250 by adding two more lanes along Holiday Hill Road

That leaves only A Street and Big Spring Street completely open.

WORK ON WIDENING the Northwest Drainage Channel at Garfield Street north of Wadley Avenue has proven to be the biggest obstacle, sidetracking traffic up Ward Street, around Midland College and up Big Spring Street onto FM 868

two heavy snows hit Midland, he explained. Added to the aggravation was water trickling down the street and flowing into the channel from nearby residents' sprinkler systems.

"Then a sanitary sewer line, water line, main telephone line, gas line, manhole and regulator station all had to be moved," he said. "We found out they (lines) were in the way after the contractor got in and began excavating. The lines weren't as low as the plans showed them.

Confederate Air Force warbirds fly into Big Spring

By ED TODD Staff Writer

BIG SPRING - The Confederate Air Force warbird aviator who vowed to "blast" and "blow" every other pilot and aircraft off the landing strip with the prop wash of his thundering Wildcat never showed up.

The sky was not blessed with or shaken by the sight and sound of Col. Joe Mabee's Grumman F4F-4 World World II naval fighter.

"I wouldn't be surprised if of Mabee doesn't show up," joked CAF Col. Arnold Phillips, as he leaned in the crosswinds and watched other aircraft compete in the CAF Desert Squadron's spot-landing contest, which was strictly for kicks and quips. Mabee never appeared.

Even Col. Paul Erdmann, leader of the Midland-Odessa Desert Squadron, took a pot shot at his fellow flier.

There's a rumor that he has a fear of flying," said a laughing Erdmann in blasting Mabee, a Midland rancher. "It's an obvious cop-out. He heard that there was more than one plane entered." Sky-watcher Phillips again passed on a friendly barb. CAF fellows are accomplished at that, in addition to keeping the rare 1939-45 warbirds fly-

We've got a no-show chicken award," jested Phillips, "and so far. ol' Robb (Satterfield) has won it.'

Col. Satterfield, who was "under the weather" with an ailment, and Mabee, who was above the weather in flying elsewhere, never showed up for the CAF fun-and-games on that February weekend. But about a score of other colonels, flying antiques from the WWII North American B-25 Mitchell twin-engine bomber to a Messerschmitt Me. 108, a Cessna 140, the Taylorcraft and a PT-19 open-cockpit monoplane, flew in for the contest. Non-flying colonels either bummed air rides or drove in for the contest, which coincided with a CAF West Texas Wing meeting.

THE RULES were simple: Each pilot was given three tries to touch-down on a marked spot on the runway, and no power was to be increased once the aircraft, on final approach, was 300 feet above ground. One pilot won, most fared well, and some simply bombed out Midland County's flying sheriff, Dallas Smith, who's a hot-rod of a pilot in the P-51D Mustang of WWII fame, came up with the Tail-end Charlie Award in his 1950 vintage Cessna 140 light airplane.

The pilots were bringing in their aircraft on the 9,150-foot runway at Big Spring Airport, which formerly was Webb Air Force Base where jet pilots were trained. In World War II, the base was used for training bom-

WINNING the contest was Midland's Col. Tom Dollahite, who flew the De Havilland Chipmunk, a monoplane used in training military pilots in England and Canada.

His co-pilot and, speculation says, flying coach was his son, Tom Jr., who's a 25-year-old T-38 Talon jet-pilot instructor for the U.S. Air Force. And Satterfield, who once owned the Chipmunk and who flies the P-51D named Miss Torque, the next day good-naturedly "challenged" Dollahite's victory as unfair due to the advantage of his son. Plus, Satterfield noted. Dollahite was the contest's chief judge and coordinator.

· Dollahite's total distance on three landings was 119 feet within the Big Spring's Col. Doug Warren, flying the Me. 108, which was the predecessor of Germany's famed Me. 109 fighter, came in second; his aggregate distance was 154 feet.

Col. Frank Geib, an airline pilot who flew down from Martin, Mich. for the spot landing, raked up third place in his V-tail Beechcraft Bonanza. He picked up a 160-foot total. Col. Jim Hill of Big Spring scored 251 feet in the Me. 108.

Midland's Col. Pat Day, flying his "Ol' Spot Lander" Taylorcraft, ended

Others, including Sheriff Smith, placed farther and farther behind. The heriff scored 900 plus feet due to penalties. Odessa's Col. George Steding, flying the BT-13 Vibrator, got an honorable mention for showing up in his silvery

Ma Bell, PUC to fight in court

STIN, Texas (AP) - People who've been hoping for lower telephone bills because of a Public Utility Commission rate order will have to wait for PUC and Southwestern Bell to fight it out in court.

Late Friday, PUC ruled the telephone company must immediately begin charging the rate the commission set in January. But the company got a temporary restraining order from State District Judge Harley Clark.

And Col. Tom Todd's B-25 out of the CAF New Mexico Wing at Hobbs swooped in low for a try at a spot landing. "We ought to disqualify him," said Erdmann, who didn't place high in the contest in his Chipmunk. Sheriff Smith, who allegedly had practiced spot-landings prior to the contest, must have known he bombed out.

"Boy!" he lamented to Col. Tom Cloyd. "I hate to blow a dollar and 78 cents," which was fee for entering the contest. Late entry fee was $2.02. Warbird flier Connie Edwards, who opted for the Piper Super Cub in the cross-wind spot-landing contest, had added power on final approach as an alternative to plowing up the ground; the rules outlaw crashes. He was penalized an additional 300 feet. "Some days you can't even cheat and win," quipped Edwards, a Big Spring rancher who is adept at aerobatics on the ground and up in the EARLIER ON THE gusty day, Col. Bill Stepp, the squadron's safety officer and a former P-51 pilot, cautioned aviators to beware of the cross-winds and to obligingly abide by the Federal Aviation Administration's rules of the

"You fellows with the light aircraft, remember it's gusty," he said in the hangar. "It'll leave you high and dry. Be careful."

He had more to impart. "I talked with the FAA, and they were emphatic," Stepp said. "There will be no aerobatics." "Killjoy," a CAF colonel grumbled.

A Messerschmitt Me. 108, center, with German Luftwaffe markings, comes in on final approach in a Confederate Air Force spot landing contest in Big Spring. Readying for take-off in a British De Havilland Chipmunk is Col. Tom Dollahite, the pilot,

Teenager's money up for grabs

WACO, Texas (AP) - Two Waco banks have it, and a dozen lawyers in a federal courtroom here are arguing over who should get it.

James Dean Bridges and Percy Garcia dug up the $481,816 in cash in 1977 at Bridges' father's ranch near Alice

The state of Texas says it's unclaimed money. The tate wants it:

McLennan County points out the money was confiscated here when the boys' spending spree ended when they ran a red light. The county wants it. The city of Waco says it's spend $35,000 in legal fees in the case. The city wants its $35,000. The Internal Revenue Service, represented by a lawyer sitting as close to Garcia as possible, wants taxes. The IRS wants $330,000 of the $481,816. The taxman also is poised to take a bite out of the $155,939 in interest if the "Alice rich kids" get the money. In opening arguments Friday, Assistant Texas Attorney General David Bragg said the 15-year-olds' brief brush with the good life started after Bridges fought with his father about smoking. James Hiromsdidn't want his boy smoking, and the two argued about it at a Columbus, Texas, race track,

Bragg said the spat ended when Hiroms' fist bloodied Bridges' nose. The teen-ager picked up Garcia and another friend and headed for the quail pen where Bridges knew there was buried trea-

Mission seeks end to Iran-Iraq war

By FAROUK NASSAR Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - A highranking mission from Islamic nations arrived in Tehran Saturday hoping to use the military stalemate between Iran and Iraq to bring an end to the 160-day-old border war.

The warring nations appeared adamant in their demands — the Iraqis insisting on full control over the Shatt al-Arab estuary to the Persian Gulf and the Iranians rejecting negotiations until Iraq withdraws its troops from about 8,000 square miles of territory in western and southwestern

Iranian Supreme Defense Council spokesman Hojatoleslam Ali Khamenei said before the talks even got under way that Iran's position on unconditional Iraqi withdrawal remained unchanged. "We shall inform the (Islamic) delegation of this position," Tehran Radio quoted him as saying Saturday.

Snow in the west and rain in the south have turned the war into one of slow attrition in the foothills of the Zagros Mountains and the muddy marshes of Khuzistan Province, and mediators hoped the inability of either side to mount an offensive before spring would help efforts to promote a cease-fire.

Missionaries return from Iran

Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) - Three British missionaries who spent six months in Iranian jails on spying charges returned home Saturday, declaring they love the Iranian people and were well-treated in captivity

Two said they longed to return to . the country they served as medical missionaries for 32 years.

Iran released the Britons after announcing the spying allegations were based on documents forged by an Iranian Anglican church worker in that Moslem nation

Yellow ribbons fluttered from the door of a VIP lounge at London's Heathrow Airport, and the Anglican missionaries hugged relatives in emotional reunions

But their statements contrasted sharply with the homecoming last month of the 52 U.S. diplomatic hostages, some of whom complained of ill-treatment during their 444-day captivity in Iran.

"Our feelings toward the Iranians have not changed one iota, and our great desire is to return eventually, said medical missionary Dr. John Coleman, 57, who arrived inm London with his wife, Audrey, also 57, and the third freed missionary, Jean Waddell,

Mrs. Coleman said she passed time sewing and patching her captors'. clothes, while Coleman said he read the Bible five times

'One can't say one has suffered, but even if we had it would have been a privilege to share in the suffering which the church and indeed the whole country is going through in this post-revolutionary and war period.'

Praise for the Iranians came despite Coleman's description of a 'mental kind" of torture he suffered during two months of separation from his wife early after their arrest. He said he received no word of her during

Miss Waddell said that three months before her arrest she was choked into unconsciousness by two young men who burst into her Tehran apartment and said they were going to blindfold her.

'Instead of blindfolding me, one of the men took me by the throat and strangled me unconscious," said the slight missionary. "They must have shot me while I was unconscious. By a miracle my life was saved. Miss Waddell, who had several bullet wounds in the chest, was hospitalized for some six weeks No arrests were made in connection with the attacks, which Iranian Angli-ean officials described as the work of "fanatics and terrorists" persecuting the tiny Christian church, while the authorities appeared powerless to in-

Four Iranian Anglicans also held on spying charges were released at the same time as the Britons, said Terry Waite, the Anglican official who negotiated the release and accompanied the Britons on their flight from

A fourth Briton, businessman An- .: drew Pyke, executive of a Dutchbased helicopter company who was also arrested last August, remains in jail in Tehran, threatened with trial on espionage and embezzlement

Britain has said it cannot normalize relations with Iran - where it closed its embassy last year - until Pyke is Among the welcomers was the exiled Anglican bishop of Iran, Hassan B. Dehgani, an Iranian, who fled in October 1979 after surviving an assassination attempt. His son was fatally shot in central Tehran last May.

All three Britons, dressed casually in trousers and sweaters, look relaxed and cheerful five people and seriously damaged three buildings in San Salvador on Saturday, including the three-story International Telephone & Telegraph office, police said.

Elsewhere in the country, at least a dozen people were reported wounded in scattered firefights between leftist guerrillas and troops loyal to the ruling civilian-military junta.

The police spokesman said there were three separate explosions here Saturday and all appeared to be the work of leftist guerrillas. One blast at 5 a.m. tore out the front of the ITT branch building, wrecked furniture and equipment and shattered windows more than a block away. Earlier explosions damaged a bank branch and the Labor

Ministry building, where five people were killed, the spokesman said. The victims were not immediately identified. Witnesses and military sources reported firefights with leftist guerrillas near the town of El Paraiso, 35 miles northeast; at Conchagua, 135 miles southeast; and in northern Chalatenango province, near the Honduran border. The sources, who asked anonymity, said had no details of the fighting late Friday and early Saturday. But one military source said at least a dozen wounded soldiers were evacuated by helicopter from Chalatenango to the capital. Half a dozen jet fighters were seen taking off early Saturday from a military airport in the capital, headed north. Military officials refused to comment on the flights.

Former U.S. Central Intelligence Agency director Vernon Walters, touring Latin America as President Reagan's personal envoy, said in Chile on Saturday the United States "is not disposed to tolerate that extra-continental countries overthrow governments of this continent." The United States has accused the Soviet Union and Cuba of sending arms and other help to the Salvadoran guerrillas.

We have documentary proof that permits us to clearly conclude that there is interference from outside the continent in the (Salvadoran) insurrection," said Walters, speaking in fluent Spanish to reporters in the Chilean capital.

Walters has visited Mexico, Brazil, Argentina and Chile and is leaving for Panama this weekend. He said his mission was "to inform" governments of the continent "on what is happening in El Salvador, which has us very worried.'

The Argentine government news agency Telmas said in a dispatch from Washington that Argentina, Brazil, Mexico and Venezuela, among others, have told the United States they oppose direct American military intervention in El Salvador. The dispatch cited unnamed U.S. State Department sources.

The intervention by U.S. Marines in 1965 to end a civil war in the Dominican Republic raised sharp controversies in Latin America at the time. Socialist leaders from 31 Latin American and Western Europe-

Refugees facing slow starvation

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) - About 20,000 displaced people fleeing drought in East Africa are dying slowly of starvation in a remote camp in Somalia, according to a spokesman of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees. Leon Davico said the Dega camp was the worst refugee camp he had seen in 20 years of service with several U.N. agencies.

"Never before have I seen children who were so emaciated," Davico told reporters on his return from a four-country press tour of drought-stricken areas. The tour was in preparation for a U.N. conference next April on the needs of the estimated 5 million refugees or displaced people in Africa.

Davico said the region is suffering its worst drought in 30 years. He said two important river beds were completely dry and he had seen people "scratching the ground with their nails in an attempt to dig for water."

Water supplies reach them by truck following a three-day journey over bad roads, he said.

"The situation is very, very serious," Davico stated. Thousands are doomed unless "something is done immediately," he said.

The people at the Dega camp are chiefly nomads fleeing the drought in Somalia, which provides only limited aid to the refugees because they are located in a remote area and resources already are strained by more than a million refugees elsewhere in the

Spring planting starts in some areas of state

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) Spring planting has started in Texas, with the warming of soil temperatures, says Dr. Daniel C. Pfannstiel, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Planters are starting to roll over southern areas, with even some corn being planted in Central Texas.

Corn and sorghum are being planted in the Rio Grande Valley, Southwest Texas, the Coastal Bend and even into parts of Central Texas, Pfannstiel said in his weekly crop report. Some cotton planting has started in Southwest Texas.

Soils have warmed up considerably, and the National Weather Service reports the following 4-inch-deep readings (degrees Fahrenheit): recorded by the National Weather Service: Austin, 60; Beaumont, 55; Beeville, 65; College Station, 57; Corpus Christi, 61; Eagle Lake, 61; Dilley, 65; Longview, 62; Lufkin, 52; San Angelo, 60; Stephenville, 61; Uvalde, 61; Waco, 58; and Weslaco, 66

Most northern, eastern and western areas remain dry so wheat, oats and other small grains are making little growth. In irrigated areas, some watering is under way. Brown is sponsoring a bill requiring transient dealers to register with the Department of Public Safety, record each purchase in a bound book and hold each item for a week before melting it or selling it. Meanwhile, a number of Indian words have even found their way into the Oxford English Dictionary, that bible of the Anglophile, including "pukka" (good or ripe), "sahib" (sir) and "memsahib"

Indian newspapers frequently use local words such as "gherao" (surround), "bandh" (strike) and "hartal" (also meaning strike) in their reports.

Inmates drink from china cups at Big Spring prison

BIG SPRING, Texas (AP) - It's doubtful there'll ever be a riot at the, away in the night and probably be gone two hours before they were only "very good security risks" - such as convicted swindler Billie Sol federal prison here, with angry inmates raking tin cups across the bars of their cells. For one thing, inmates drink coffee out of china cups. Another reason, adds prison Superintendent John Allman, is "we don't have

After a day of work making electronic components or canvass mailbags, an inmate might decide to take a dip in the swimming pool or retire to his private room to freshen up before dinner. -Probably the last thing on his mind is escape.

But if he did decide to make a break, he would not need a file, a shovel, a gun or a jackhammer. According to prison officials, he would only need to know how to walk nonchalantly.

For there are no walls, - not even a fence - surrounding the federal Big Spring Prison Camp, formerly Webb Air Force Base. It's a prison where the mess hall is known as the "dining room," the cell block is the "dormiand the warden is not the "chief screw" - he is the "superinten-

One thing that stops such escapes is that most of the inmates are here for only a short time and if they mess up here it could mean additional years in a traditional prison," he said.

Allman agreed there is little "traditional" about his prison Hardened criminals might even say it's run by a bunch of pussycats.

During the summer months prisoners can relax in the old Webb AFB swimming pool, which Allman said is "an outstanding therapy tool. On acontrol your temper and get along with people.

Tables in the dining room are adorned with checkered tablecloths. and Allman said when you go through the cafeteria line "you feel like you're at a Wyatt's or a Furr's cafeteria.

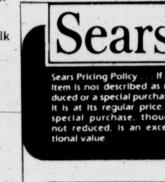

There are no "lifers" here - the average stay is only 14 months, and Estes - are confined at Big Spring, Allman said.

Estes, 55, serving a 10-year sentence for fraud and trying to hide assets from tax collectors, was transferred here last summer from the medium security prison at La Tuna, just outside El Paso. Allman said he is a model prisoner and works in the kitchen. He said Estes receives visits only from family members and will not talk to news reporters.

We have to be careful about violating the rights of prisoners," Allman said. They are apparents a fussy bunch hot day you get in that nice pool and swim a little bit and it's a lot easier to every, day answering charges made by prisoners to their senators for such complaints as a telephone being out of order. "Our prisoners are highly educated and highly sophisticated," Allman said. "Many have never been in prison before. They come from middle to high income brackets. They feel like they are entitled to more than they really are." -

Exiled Russian writer making new life in U.S.

By TOM HARRIGAN Associated Press Writer

PACIFIC PALISADES, Calif. (AP) — Exiled Soviet author Vasily Aksyonov found at least one way that life in America is more restricted than in Russia. He was stopped for driving 75 miles an hour on a wide desert highway on his trip to become a writer in residence at the University of Southern California.

There is no strict limitation of speed in Russia. I thought I would have difficulty with the California highway patrolman because I was a Russian citizen, but that was not a problem," Aksyonov said.

Then, when we arrived here a few hours later, I was told for the first time my Russian citizenship had been taken away," said Aksyonov. The 48 year-old writer had known that permanent exile was a possibility because he was among the "Metropole" group of 23 Soviet writers who banded together two years ago to have their rejected works published outside Russia away from the confines of official and unofficial censorship. When two of the Metropole group were banished from the Soviet writers' union, Aksyonov and two others resigned from the union in protest. My wife and I left Russia in July. It was clear they wanted me to leave. We were granted Soviet passports, and as the passports were issued they warned me, 'You can keep your citizenship if you have good behavior,' When I asked what they meant by bad behavior, they wouldn't elaborate. Aksyonov and his wife, Maya, each have one child. Aksyonov's son, Alex, is an art student in Moscow. His wife has a daughter, Elena Greenberg, who emigrated with the couple last summer and lives in Seattle. 'My son couldn't follow me. He has his mother and grandmother there. He has his art and his art friends. But I'm anxious whether in the future I'll see him

A possible cause of the Soviet withdrawal of his citizenship was recent publication outside of Russia of Aksyonov's "The Burn." He said it was a partly autobiographical novel of a writer's existence in modern Russia with flashbacks to Stalinist repression of the 1930s. Upcoming is publication of "Crimea Island," which Aksyonov described as a tragi-comic novel about a fictitious island off Russia - somehow not overrun by the Red Army during the 1917 Communist revolution. He said his mythical island developed in the 20th century into "a prosperous, cosmopolitan mixture of languages and cultures - but still most people were remaining eager for reunion with big brother Russia. Aksyonov said he didn't want to leave, and would like to return someday if a "thaw, or springtime occurs." But he said in recent years the atmosphere for writers in Russia had been more like the repressive purges under Joseph Stalin with dissident writers now exiled rather than sent to Siberia. Akysonov is solidly built, with dark eyebrows and mustache giving him a

Russian bear-like appearance. But he is soft-spoken and showed no hint of bitterness as he talked about his reasons for leaving Russia. I was intimidated. Some surveillance, vague threats, some hints that my life could be in danger. Even some people warned me, saying, Be careful when you're driving your car.' He has spent the past four months at the University of Michigan as a lecture; r, and now Aksyonov plans to seek "permanent residence" status in the United States. He hopes to settle somewhere on the East Coast — near a developing

New York City area group of former Russian writers and artists. "Of the Metropole group, most of us were forced to leave," he said. "This past 'year four well-known writers left the country."

After he was blacklisted, he said about 10 novels and collections of short stories, along with many of his magazine pieces were removed from library shelves throughout Russia, and six films he had written were taken out of

Racism filling movies?

By DAVID BRUDNOY Hearst Special News Service

The injustice collectors are at it again, decrying "racism" in the movies. In the minor leagues of complaints, we have a grumble from an occasional Italian about the Mafiosi images in "Raging Bull." A small Arab group criticized "Sphinx" in New York City, where it is dying not because of its unflattering portrait of Egyptians but because it stinks. We can probably expect the terribly serious gay press to churn out another diatribe against "La Cage Aux Folles II," the sequel to the fabulously successful comedy.

In Washington, D.C., at least two. small African delegations made their displeasure known at "The Dogs of War," a movie which depicts newly emerged third world dictatorships in the dark continent in a less than flattering light.

Movies rarely intentionally malign significant racial or religious groups

- at four bucks a throw, a ticket sold is a ticket sold. The movie industry has shown an ability to change its ways: Stepin Fetchit was replaced by Superblack who has been replaced by normal blacks. Almost every group has seen itself first parodied, then glorified and eventually treated like everybody else on the screen. The movies need every moviegoer they can get. The danger on the screen is not bigotry but monolithic bland-

Peter Sellers' last movie, the execrable 'Fiendish Plot of Dr. Fu Manchu," was a preposterous parody and it was left to vanish of neglect. Not so another occidentalized nostalgia piece, "Charlie Chan and the Curse of the Dragon Queen.'

An Asian group in Boston called the movie "another attempt of the white male-defined entertainment industry to derive pleasure and profit at the expense of · Asian peoples' dignity. The Chan character symbolizes the history of racism faced by Asian Americans and other minorities...

The problem with the complaint is that it is base, ess. Chan, played by Peter Ustinov, is august, dignified and always right. His half-Chinese grandson, played by the handsome television star Richard Hatch, is a bumbler who looks as Chinese as Bo Derek. The real Chinese people in the movie, which is set in San Francisco. are innocuous, at worst, and pleasant industrious folk, at best.

Few have joined the "official" protesters; demonstrations planned in several cities fizzled "Fort Apache, the Bronx," another movie that opened to decidedly mixed reviews, inspired the most serious and impassioned protests of any film since "Cruising" last year. In Boston the protest was minimal but in New York, several community leaders and many Puerto Rican and black residents insisted that the movie unfairly depicted them.

The decent law-abiding people of the community are shown in the film, as they acted in real life, preferring to gather around the police station while they chat, play with their babies, and stroll. The film accurately depicts the South Bronx

The South Bronx has become a must stop for European visitors to the New York area, so renowned broad that Alain Resnais concludes his "Mon Oncle d'Amerique," which has nothing to do with America, with a long: morose sweep of the South Bronx, As the New York Times put it on Feb. 6, "The South Bronx as a whole retains its national image as perhaps an example of the wost urban blight in the United States.

New rock group made it to the big time all alone

By MARY CAMPBELL AP Newsfeatures Writer

Shoes doesn't have the usual rock group history. Its members decided to write songs before they could play instruments. They made records themselves instead of playing live and inviting bigshots to hear them or making demo tapes and sending them to record companies.

They're on Elektra Records, with a second LP, "Tongue Twister," No. 140 and climbing in its third week on the best-selling charts of Feb. 14. The first LP was "Present Tense," out in September 1979.

Shoes just did what came naturally There wasn't much of a music scene - and no bar scene - in Zion, Ill., a dry town north of Chicago: So there wasn't anybody to ask about the usual route to rock groupdom. And Shoes didn't play live because only two of its members were at the University of Illinois in Urbana. Shoes started with Gary Klebe and John Murphy. There were two of them, just like a pair of shoes. Now they've heard all the plays on words that people came up with when they heard the name and they're sick of them all. But they're philosophical; most are complimentary like "Shoes shine" and "Shoes take great strides" and it gives rock writers something to Klebe says, "The whole concept which is the basis of us is that we were listeners first. We listened to the radio and wanted to make stuff that was good to listen to, rather than us learning to play guitars at age 9.

'We thought there was a lack. The actual sounds of 1970s records were fantastic as opposed to the '60s when they could have used some improvement. But there was nothing hummable on the radio.

Murphy says, "A good melody, that's the tops. Something catchy. The best melodies seem to come from simple hooks, repetition in certain areas. You'll hear a nice little phrase sometimes in a song and not hear it again: you think the writers o'idn't quite know what they had. When we come up with something, we know where is the attractive part that makes it a little more interesting or

"At first we were frustrated because we had to take time to learn instruments. We wanted to dive right

Klebe says, "We started when we began to realize that people who compose the songs on the radio are mere mortals and it could be done. You learn three or four chords and simple chord progressions and that's all it

Asian nation finally turns on TV

By DENIS D. GRAY Associated Press Writer

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — At 7:30 p.m. sharp, a waiter walks briskly to an elevated alcove of Rangoon's marble-and-teak Karawik restaurant. The eyes of diners follow him to the sudden focus of attention: a television set perched on a

In most parts of the world, such an intrusion would at the least be met with indignant murmurs. But at the Karawik - built on a lake and shaped like an old royal barge — a hush descends over the crowded tables as the switch is flicked and a local singer croons a tune, followed by a soccer match - Pegu vs. Rangoon - all in living color.

Burma is one of the last countries in the world to introduce the tube - and the experience is being savored much as it was when television still was a novelty in

Under the one-man rule of President Ne Win, the effort has been made - and rather successfully - to avoid foreign influence through television. Burmese TV filters all news reports, local and foreign, through a fine sieve of Television in Burma still is in the experimental stage. Programming is kept to two hours on weekdays and 21/2 hours daily on weekends. Reception is limited to an area within 50 miles of Rangoon, the capital. The government hopes to blanket the country within three years.

A board of censors in the information ministry reviews all TV fare, insuring that local news, government propaganda and Burmese culture get the proper exposure. The rule is to be safe rather than sorry Coverage of last year's Miss World pageant already had been advertised in newspapers when someone in officialdom recalled that shortly after assuming power in 1962, Ne Win had banned all beauty contests in Burma. The pageant

Burma also gathers foreign programs, tapping embassies for free documentaries and dealing with foreign commercial distributors. American businessman Eric Conrad, whose Bangkok-based Intel Co., Ltd., provides a large percentage of the programs, says the Burmese have shown or asked for everything from "Little Lulu" cartoons and a two-decade-old American TV detective series called "Bear Cats," to "The Strange Life Story of Baron von der Trenck," a West German miniseries.

Some rock music is allowed, although the hard, acid variety is taboo, as is anything remotely resembling pornography.

There are no plans for TV commercials in Burma's socialist, state-controled economy. The government plans to register all sets and collect license fees from owners, once programming is up to six hours a day. This plan has many Burmese worried, since the greater percentage of sets now in the country have been purchased on the vast black market.

Initially, the Japanese - who have been patiently knocking at Burma's economic door - gave the government 200 free sets, which ended up in the ministries and homes of officials.

Under a government-to-government deal, a Japanese firm, Matsushita, has set up an assembly plant which will produce 18-inch color sets for about $1,200 each. The black market equivalent, smuggled across the jungle border from Thailand, now goes for almost twice that.

It's how you can grow

Tired of having your good ideas lost in a big company bureaucracy. Or are you worried about your career being sidetracked in a smaller company that's going nowhere? We'll give you several good reasons to think about a change to Mitchell Energy & Development Corp.

We're pretty big and we're on the move? But we're still small enough to give you high visibility. There are no lowprofile people at Mitchell.

·Grow with us

Exactly how big and successful are we? Take a look. Our capital budget is $456. million. Our natural gas production is up this year from 46 billion cubic feet to 51 billion: Our liquid hydrocarbon production now tops 10,8 million barrels. Our daily gas gathering and throughput is averaging 268 million cubic teet: Our success ratio in drilling is 78 percent. That's right, 78 percent. And our revenues are up 67 percent to $475.5 mil tion. We're not the biggest independent, but a lot of people think we're the best.

Excellent compensation, benefits

Monterey trounces Lewisville, 94-74

Following Friday night's semi-final win over Fort Worth Dunbar, Peggy Tate, coach of the winning Lewisville Farmers said, "We'll have to play four quarters of good basketball to stay with them (Lubbock Monterey)

Unfortunately, Lewisville had only, one good quarter, the first, as Monterey rolled past the Farmers 94-74 Saturday afternoon in Chaparral Cent ter to win the championship of the Region I District 5 girls basketball tournament. Monterey now advances to the state tournament in Austin next mark into the state tournament while the Farmer's finish their season with a record of 26-8.

As usual, the super-sister duo of Plainsmen. Kamie tossed in 33 points, but it was her ball handling that make the biggest impression on the 400 fans in attendance. Alayna Gilmore added 16 and Andrea Moore 14 points for the winners. Lewisville's Billie Chambers took game scoring honors with 36 in the losing effort. At the end of the first quarter, the scrappy Farmers were down by one, 16-15. Chambers was the ringleader for Lewisville with nine points.

points. Carla Houston added 14 tallies

Bev Boyer opened the second quarter for the Farmers by dumping in two quick hoops as Lewisville grabbed a 19-16 lead with 7:26 left in the half. That was to be the high water mark for the Farmers.

MONTEREY proceeded to force three turnovers and ran off seven unanswered points to take a 23-19 lead that the Plainsmen were never to felinquish. Time and time again the Plainsmen outhustled the Farmers for a loose ball and then beat them downcourt for easy buckets. Kamie and Kriss Ethridge's classy passing lead to six points from Tracey Muehlbrad and four by Andrea Moore as Monterey's inside game was too much

During the disasterous second quarter, Lewisville committed 11 turnovers and were shut off the offensive boards. Monterey, controlling the boards, consistantly beat the Farmers in the transition game for

AT HALFTIME, coach Tate said, They are just outhustling us. We are just going to have to be more aggressive and get some more movement in our offense

Lewisville tried, but cold shooting and 17 turnovers were to much for the Farmers to overcome. Kamie Ethridge did most of the damage for Monterey. She dished out seven assists and flipped in 12 points points as the Plainsmen outscored Lewisville 26 to 16 in the third quarter to take a 67-48 lead into the final eight minutes of action. Gilmore, who benefited the nost from the Ethridges pinpoint passing flipped in six points in the Chambers tried to bring the Farmers back in the final period. She tossed in 14 points and Carla Houston added six, but the Plainsmen were equal to the challenge. Gilmore tossed in six points and Kamie Ethridge banged home eight tallies as Monterev coasted to the win and its second straight trip to the state tourna-

Monterey coach Tim Tasker said, 'After we struggled last night we had a team meeting that lasted 1½ hours just to get ourselves in the right mental frame of mind. It must have worked because we played our finest game of the year today." Tasker added, "The Ethridge sisters are great, their passing in so important to our game. They have to be among the best guards in the state.

Aggies hold off Cougars, 78-77

· Michael Young missed a shot just before the buzzer and Texas A&M escaped with a 78-77 victory over Houston Saturday afternoon in a televised Southwest Conference game that enabled the Aggies to clinch a home-court berth for the upcoming SWC playoffs.

Houston freshman Clyde Drexler . hit a 15-foot jumper with 6 seconds to play that would have put Houston into a 79-78 lead, but referees ruled the Cougars had called time out just before the shot.

The Aggies led the cold-shooting Cougars by 20 points early in the second half but had to hold off a furious closing surge by Houston.

The Aggies scored 15 straight points and held the Cougars scoreless for more than five minutes to turn an 8-7 lead into a 23-7 lead early in the first half, and A&M went to the dressing room with a 46-28 halftime cushion.

Senior Rynn Wright led the Aggies with 22 points, while freshman Reggie Roberts collected 16. Two other Aggies also scored in double figures . as, the Aggies improved their conference record to 8-8 and their season mark to 15-11. The Aggies now have won seven of their past eight SWC

The Cougars were paced by Rob Williams and Young with 20 points apiece. with 20. The loss dropped Houston to 19-8 for the season and 10-6

Texas A&M turned the ball over 20 times, allowing the Cougars to steal it 13 times, each time off a full court

The Cougars shut down the A&M offense during the last five minutes of the match as the Aggies missed four one-on-one oppurtunities. After trailing by 18 at the half, the Cougars outscored Texas A&M 49-32 during the second half.

"We were lucky to get out of here alive," A&M coach Shelby Metcalf said following the win. "We've won a lot of games down the stretch but it looks like we can't stand prosperi-

Houston coach Guy Lewis said he told his players before the game that the outcome shouldn't affect the Cougars' readiness for next week's SWC tournament

'During the first half we shot badly and A&M shot well. In the second half we turned that around. I thought they (the Cougars) showed a lot of character," Lewis added.

The top three finishers in each event advances to the state swimming championship in Austin. Jon Franke and Cleve Carrens were the big guns for the surprising Rebels. Franke swept to a first in the 50-yard freestyle in a time of 22.55 and nabbed a second in the 100-yard freestyle witha clocking of 48.98. Carrens also claimed a first and a second for Lee. He won the 100-yard butterfly in 53.52 and turned a 57.45 to place second in the 100-yard backstroke.

Ronnie Black racked up 371.65 points to finish second in the one-meter diving and Bruce Quenzer swam the 200-yard individual medly in 2: 06.90 which was good enough for third. Lee's two relay teams advanced to the state meet with second place finishes. The 200 IM team turned in a time of 1:42.94 and the 400 freestyle team churned out a 3: 19.92 clocking.

Midland High had only one boy advance to the state meet. Billy Worley turned in a 5:03.65 in the 500 freestyle, that was good enough for third

In girls action, Lori Thompson and Gretchen

Koch continue to lead the Midland High Bulldogs. Thompson captured a first in the 200 freestyle (1:58.28) and a second in the 10 freestyle (54.53) while Koch won the 50 freestyle in 25.15 and finished second in the 100 backstroke in

The Purple Pack brought home a third gold medal as Andrea Freeman won the 500 freestyle in a time of 5: 23.92. Suzi Simpson nabbed third in the 500 freestyle to advance to the state meetalso. The Bulldogs' 400 freestyle relay team will go to Austin on the strength of its second place finish with a time of 3:50.09

One swing gives Bean three-stroke golf lead

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - One swing of the club gave Andy Bean a 3-stroke lead going into Sunday's final round of the $300,000 Bay Hill Golf Classic

The swing was made by Tom Watson, with his driver, off the tee on the ninth hole.

He hit it out of bounds. It led to a triple bogey, dropped him out of a share of the lead and, actually, accounted for the difference in Saturday's third round.

"I just got a little quick with it,"

And it put the game's No. 1 player in a catch-up position going into the last 18 holes of play.

"I have my work cut out for me," Watson said. "Andy's a good frontrunner, a very good front-runner. He'll be hard to catch. I've just got to go out and not make any mistakes at all tomorrow.

Bean, who shot a 4-under-par 67 in the ideal playing conditions Saturday, put it only slightly differently.

"Tom played one bad hole and 17 good holes today," Bean said. "He'll probably play 17 good holes again tomorrow. So I've got to play 18 good

"But if I'm hitting the ball as well as I did today, he's gonna have to shoot an awful good round to beat me. And, of course, he's capable of shooting an awful good round.

Bean, who entered the day's play tied with Watson for the top spot, took sole control with a 197 total for 54 holes. He was a whopping 16 strokes under par on the 7,102-yard Bay Hill Club course.

Watson was victimized by the triple bogey when he drove out of bounds and eventually three-putted from the fringe on the ninth. He once was five shots behind on the back nine.

But Watson, golf's Player of the Year for the past four seasons, displayed the grit that has helped make him the game's No. 1 performer. He birdied two of the last four holes to salvage a 70 and took a 200 total into Sunday's final round of the chase for a $54,000 first prize.

Mark O'Meara, a rookie and former national amateur champion playing with Bean and Watson in the final group, was third, a distant seven strokes back at 204 after a third-round

The only other men within 10 shots of the runaway Bean were Mike Donald and Mick Soli, tied at 206. Donald had the best round of the warm, sunny, almost windless day, 4 66. Soli

Rain shortens Olympia

CITY OF INDUSTRY, Calif. (AP) - The third round of the $150,000 Olympia Gold Classic at Industry Hills was postponed by rain Saturday, and tournament officials said the event would be shortened to 54 holes.

Weather permitting, the final round will be played Sunday. If the third round is again rained out, it will be played Mohday. No matter what, a tournament official said, the purse will not be reduced,

Sally Little, a 29-year-old South

African who will become a United States citizen within the next year, is the tournament-leader at 142 by virtue of consecutive 71s on Thursday and Friday over the 5,938-yard, par-73 Eisenhower course.

Two strokes off the pace of Little entering Sunday's play is Nancy Lopez-Melton at 144. Beth Daniel, the 1980 LPGA player of the year, was alone at 145, and six players - Sandra Palmer, Jeanette Kerr, Sandra Haynie, Marlene Floyd, Amy Alcott, and Janet Alex - were at 146.

Pack unveils new star

By TERRY WILLIAMSON Sports Writer

FORT STOCKTON - San Angelo had the quantity, Midland Lee added the quality and Midland High produced a new superstar. In a nutshell, that was the story here Saturday in the annual Comanche Relays as San Angelo won the Division III title by a 144-112 margin over the Rebels of Lee. But the Rebs won six of 15 events and assaulted the record books with five new meet records with some proven veterans. And the Bulldogs unveiled sophomore James Beverley for the first time in the 800 meters for another meet record, showing a rising star in the making.

Lee's Robert Schooler, as expected, led the Rebel record assault by winning both the 3200 meter run and the 1600 run in meet record time: The defending 5-5A mile champion had a 9: 55.19 in the 3200 and a 4: 28.98 in the 1600, neither a personal best, but when added to the fact that he didn't run all week and missed three days of school with the flu, it was an amazing

'I was surprised at how strong I felt while running," Schooler said. "I can't be disappointed in either

LEE'S DAVID Piccolo, the defending 5-5A 300 meter hurdle champ, took up where he left off a year ago by beating his own meet record with a fine 40.04. Arthur Williams came to the front as a 200 meter power with a relay team of Clarence Smith, Troy Barber, Darrin Williams and Arthur Williams set a new meet record with a 43.39.

All of those feats were noteworthy since this was the first meet of the 1981 season, but Midland High's Beverley may have stolen the entire show. In his first competitive high school 800, Beverley slashed to a 1: 55.50, a time that is good for the end of the season. He also showed his brillant finishing kick since he was in fifth place on the last curve only to end up winning by 10 yards. Beverley's showing even impressed Lee coach Sam Volpe, "That kid (Beverley) is a winner and he could be one of the greats before he is through at Midland High. He wants to win and that is the main thing he has going for him.' "I was a little worried when I was fifth and I wondered if I would have enough at the end to win. I got boxed in a couple of times," Beverley said. Coach Johnny Williams said of his new find, "He made three major mistakes in the race and still came away with that time. Just think what record back, he had to beat the time of 40.53 set by Division, II runner Jerry Neatherlin of Denver City, who had beaten Piccolo's old time.

"I was a little tight in the 300 and I'm not where I should be in the highs. I still need a lot of work,' Piccolo said, despite the fact that he cracked the 40 second barrier only once last year and he was close

Arthur Williams was elated with his 21.82 showing in the 200. "I've never been under 22 seconds before in my

Arthur's brother Darrin won the 100 meters with an 11,04, saying, "In the whole race, I just felt I would win."

Darrin's victory was a surprise since Midland High's Billy Taylor was in the race. Taylor finished third with an 11.21, but he is not in top form, according to coach Williams, "This is Billy's first competitive sprint this year because we are bringing him along slowly. He's not where he will be later in the season. I was really proud of how well he did

Darrin and Arthur Williams combined with Bart Ryan and Barber for a 3: 25.63 second place finish in the 1600 relay. "That's about as good as we could expect," Volpe stated. MHSfinished third in that event with a 3: 26.65 with Elston Montgomery, Ro bert Crawford, Beverley and Bruce Philpy. MHS was second in the sprint relay with a 44.39 with Taylor, Bruce Fisher, Montgomery and Scott Yo-

YOCHAM also had a chance to win the high hurdles with his 15.07, but he crashed a hurdle with his knee, drawing blood. He appears to be far ahead of his efforts of a year ago. Elston Montgomery was second to Piccolo in the 300 hurdles for MHS with a 40.78 and he may be a major threat if he can smooth out his stride San Angelo won five events to key their team title, including a record 3:23.65 in the 1600 relay. No other

Ozona edged Rankin for the Division I title by a 168-122 margin, despite the fact that Rankin scored 66 points in the field events. Rankin winners were-Steve Midkiff, 6-2 in the high jump; Michael Peterson, 130-7 in the discus; James Barnett, 12-0 in the pole vault; and Terry Turner, 24.1 in the 200.

Stanton was third with 109 points and got wins from Curtis Williams, 11.54 in the 100; and two from Manuel Rodriguez, 2:02.01 in the 800 and 4: 51.95 in the 1600.

Ozona's Larry Payne keyed the Lions' team victory with a division record of 50.65 in the 400, beating Rankin's Dennis Black in the last few yards and anchoring both relays to come-from-behind wins. Monahans easily took Division II with 118 points while Fort Stockton and Lake View tied for second

Oakland files brief against NFL's Rozelle

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The Oakland Raiders have filed a brief in U.S. District Court charging National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle with knowledge of Super Bowl ticket improprieties and Los Angeles Rams owner Georgia Frontiere with criminal conspiracy to evade income

The brief, filed late Friday with U.S. District Judge Harry Pregerson, asks the court "to compel discovery into the sale and distribution of Super Bowl tickets" by the NFL.

"Basically, the brief presents the Raiders' belief that Frontiere and (Harold) Guiver were involved in a criminal conspiracy to evade federal income taxes," a source close to the Raiders who asked anonymity told The Associated Press.

"It presents evidence of a multimillion dollar Super Bowl ticket scandal, mostly in Los Angeles, and that there has been a conspiracy to protect that market from the Raiders.

The source said that Rozelle and the NFL are conspiring to keep the Raiders from moving their franchise to Los Angeles so that the team won't have access to as many Super Bowl tickets as the Rams in future years, since Los Angeles has been the "host city" for the Super Bowl twice in the past four years and will be again in al Davis, the managing general partner of the Raiders, has been at tempting to move his team to the Los-Angeles Coliseum since early last

"The brief not only charges criminal conspiracy but presents evidence that Rozelle was aware of the situation," the source said. "There's a market for these tickets, a multimil lion dollar black market, and these are totally off-the-book dollars,

'They scalp these tickets, they only report taxes on the face value of the tickets. Rozelle has consistently for a long time used his position to discriminate against the Raiders and other clubs that are not in a special clique of

One passage from the brief read as follows: "If the Raiders were permitted to play in Los Angeles, they would compete with the Rams for, to paraphrase the Court, the dollar in the pocket of the sports fans in Southern California.

'As a matter of economic fact, the Raiders competition in Los Angeles would affect the Rams' opportunity to exploit any part of the market. Following its consistently held policy, the Raiders would sell their 1983 Los Angeles host city allocation to their fans at face value. The Rams would then have to meet that competitive posttion or lose fan support.

Braves courted Cubs' Hartsfield for Savannah

While dickering with the Chicago Cubs, Roy Hartsfield was contacted by the Atlanta Braves about managing in their minor league system, and since Roy is an old Brave, he had to

"I'm getting my pension, so I didn't care at what level I managed," said Roy, who seems happy to have escaped the prima donna level of the game. "I had three talks with Hank Aaron about the Savannah job, but they never mentioned money ..

When Atlanta farm director Paul Snider heard that Roy was headed for Midland, he sent him a picture. It showed Paul holding a dead rattlesnake at Cubs, then Braves, Stadium in Hogan Park, with the notation, "Beware.

The picture was taken when Paul was a hot Braves prospect with the Midland Braves of the old Sophomore League back in 1958. Paul hit the ball hard to all fields and some of the bleacher experts figured he was a better bet to make the majors from that club than Midland's prize $100,-000 rookies shortstop Dennis Menke or pitcher Tony Cloninger, both of whom enjoyed long and successful careers. Unhappily, Paul suffered a shoulder injury that short-stopped his career.

ROY IS looking forward to Midland where he'll be managing "kids who are willing to pay the price and I'm going to make 'em pay it.'

Of his three years managing the Toronto Blue Jays expansion club, Hartsfield noted that the fans were enthusiastic about their baseball, "but when it rained, the ground crew that first year put the tarp on the bullpen pitching mound.' Toronto may be the best major league city. "You can not only walk the city streets at night without fear of a mugging, but you can put your wife and kids on the subway at night and not worry about them. They are great people," says Roy...

KEITH BISHOP, the former Midland Lee lineman who was named on the NFL all-rookie team last season, is disappointed that the Denver Broncos won't play in either Dallas or Houston next fall. "Our interconference games are with the NFC Central, which may sound easy, but those teams have been improving.

As for all those Grant Teaff stories, Keith, who played at Baylor, says 'Believe them. He's the kind of coach I'd want my kids to play for.

One of the biggest changes for Keith. between college and pro ball-was "the smoking in the locker room."

If you want to learn something, the best way to do it is to make a flat statement that you know might be challenged, like we did in referring to Midland Lee's Junior Miller as the Tall City's only two-sport all-stater.

Amend that, please, to Brett Black well, basketball-baseball at Lee, and Eddie Shirley, basketball-track, at Midland High... How about some

More trouble looms for Kush

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) - Another Arizona State University football player who supposedly saw ex-Sun Devil Coach Frank Kush punch punter Kevin Rutledge in a 1978 game is expected to

Rutledge's attorney, Robert Hing, said he will call Bryan Caldwell -a senior-to-be Sun Devil defensive end - to the witness stand as the trial begins its fifth week

Kush and other parties are being sued for $2.2 million in damages by Rutledge, who now plays for the University of Nevada-Las Vegas. Rutledge claims Kush split his lower lip with a "knuckle-punch" after a 26-yard punt during Arizona State's 41-7 loss to Washington Oct. 28, 1978, in Seattle

Rutledge also alleges that Kush and ex-Arizona State assistant coach Bill Maskill harassed him into quitting the team in 1979 and forfeiting his scholarship.

Kush has denied both charges. Caldwell stated in a 1979 deposition that he saw Kush hit Rutledge in the Washington game. Last Thursday, former Sun Devil offensive tackle Steve Chambers testified he also witnessed the altercation.

"Coach Kush had Kevin by the face mask and was shaking it back and forth, then punched Kevin with his right hand, Chambers told the court. "I was 15 feet away from them. I had a clear view. He hit him with a punch between his chin and lip. It moved Kevin's head back a little."

Chambers said the knuckle on the index finger of Kush's right hand was bent when Kush made contact with Rutledge. But Chambers added the punch didn't appear to be the "sweeping upper-cut" that Rutledge has described in previous testi-

In addition, Chambers said the punch from Kush was not full-force and didn'tseem to be a malicious act.

'It looked to me as if he thought about it and didn't want to do it," Chambers told the court. "It appeared he was holding up as if he was deciding whether to hit him or not.'

Chambers added that he didn't tell anyone about what he had seen until "the lawsuit came out in the newspapers" almost a year later because "to me, it just wasn't that big a deal."

iolence worries NHL chief

MONTREAL (AP) - Brian O'Neill, the National Hockey League's chief disciplinarian, said Friday that, while 'orawling isn't rampant, he's concerned about two games involving benchclearing this week.

'We'd gone practically half a season without any problems, and now we have two (incidents) in succession," said O'Neill, the NHL's executive vice president who is empowered to hand out fines and suspensions for playing violations.

Six NHL penalty records were set and 12 on-ice fights erupted at Boston Garden Thursday night when the Bruin's and the Minnesota North Stars were assessed the unprecedented total of 406 penalty minute s.

THE PHILADELPHIA Flyers and the Vancouver Canucks drew 162 penalty minutes Tuesday night at the Pacific Coliseum.

We hadn't had a bench-clearing for quite a while, and I thought we'd got it under control," O'Neill said at the league office. "But if we have" to institute more severe sanctions to stop it, we'll

'We have players coming off the bench to get involved, and they're thrown out of three games automatically. Surely they must know that." But, O'Neill said, brawling "is not rampant just because we have two incidents so close

The only previous comparable incident this season occurred Jan: 3 between the Bruins and the Colorado Rockies at Denver. O'Neill said he was gathering reports on the Minnesota-Boston game and expected to have tapes delivered to him Monday in Toronto.

This time I'll watch the whole game," he

BRUINS COACH Gerry Cheevers, saying the fighting in his club's 5-1 victory is "part of hockey," suggested the North Stars, who have never won in Boston, were out to change that by whatever means.

"We all know what their game plan was. You can tell from the first shift. They've never won here. They came to play that way and we obliged

He said, "It was good. Two people fighting is not violence, in my opinion, in hockey.

"It might be in tennis or bowling, but it's not in hockey.

Minnesota Coach Glen Sonmor blamed the Bruins and rookie Steve Kasper, who collided with Bobby Smith to spark the first fight.

"Kasper, at seven seconds, starts it off," said Sonmor, who raised hs fist at an unidentified man in a scuffle in a corridor after the game. "We're not going to take any of that anymore."

CHEEVERS said a new rule calling for a miscenduct penalty for a player who doesn't go to neutral territory at the outbreak of a fight inflates penalty minute totals and contributed to the records set O'Neill echoed that view when he said,

'There's distortion in any comparison of penalty minutes because of the penalty for not going to a neutral zone. That's just an attempt to keep that second fight from starting.

The Bruins and the North Stars eclipsed the single-game mark of 380 penalty minutes set March 11, 1979, by the Los Angeles Kings and Philadelphia. The record of 194 penalty minutes in a game by one team, set by the Flyers in the March 1979 game against Los Angeles, was surpassed by both clubs. Minnesota drew 211 minutes and Boston 195:

They said Brown wasn't Wooden

LOS ANGELES (AP) - UCLA basketball fans . were warned that a Larry Brown regime would mean stark departure from the Quiet Man era of John Wooden. Most took that to mean they could expect some animated cheering from the bench.

But the two-year Brown Era has been more interesting than some had hoped. The past two weeks have been almost bizarre.

Brown began the week of Feb. 16 by kicking talented freshman center Kenny Fields off the team. A media uproar followed. Then for most of the rest of the week, Brown was busy denying reports he was deserting the Bruins to take the New Jersey Nets' coaching job.

On Friday, Feb. 20, he was the target of a death threat. Later the same day, Brown said he was "reevaluating" his standing at UCLA. Wrapping up the week, his then sixth-ranked Bruins were upset 74-72 by Stanford's lowly Cardinals Saturday night.

Just as it seemed things were settling down, with attention directed toward the Bruins' Sunday date with No. 1-ranked Oregon State, Brown unloaded another shocker: He reinstated Kenny Fields.

Just nine days after vowing he would never again coach the talented freshman, Brown invited Fields to rejoin the squad. "I did it for the kid," he said.

In dismissing Fields, who started the first 16 games for the Bruins before being relegated to the bench, Brown had said: "I know it was for the right reasons, and it's going to help the program." He cited an attitude problem and undue heat from Fields' parents as factors in his original decision. In reinstating Fields, the 40-year-old coach said: "I have principles that cannot be violated. I feel I was justified in suspending Kenny. 'The thing I am most upset about is that because I think so much of this team, and the importance of a team, I over-reacted. Because of my own hurt, I gave Kenny no alternatives. We are a team, and we realize that he's a 19-year-old. Brown, a charismatic, emotional man, has had a rather volatile basketball career as a player and as a coach. An ironical footnote to the Fields matter is that as a player, Brown was himself suspended for a short period by North Carolina Coach Dean Smith. Brown's first season at UCLA was a roller coaster. The Bruins went from 8-6 at midseason to the NCAA finals, where they lost to Louisville. And now, in his second season at UCLA, Brown is being accompanied to games by a police escort.

Brown implied that the death threat, phoned to UCLA campus police, contributed to the team's loss at Stanford, saying: "The kids were pretty good about the Fields thing, but the threat really sort of bothered them and it brought attention back to the situation with Kenny.

'It's kind of hard to walk into the dressing room and see guys with blue suits and baseball caps on who aren't baseball players," Brown said, alluding to his police protection. "I didn't want the kids to know about it, but it became really obvious after a while. Michael Sanders and Michael Holton both came up to me and told me they care and that's really special.

The coach's relationship with the young team, which doesn't have a senior on the roster, apparently

"We can only afford to have one coach," said forward Tony Anderson. "Other people can't run the program. I think we all recognize that:

Brown, weary of all the controversy, gave the team two days off early in the week after co-captains. Anderson and Sanders told him the players needed a

Pack baseballers wait on cagers

By MIKE CRUVER Sports Writer

Tim Whalen, head baseball coach hopes the Midland High basketball team can go all the way to the state championship but if they do it could cause a few problems for his baseball squad.

Five baseballers, Teddy Bartley, Michael Feldt, Steve Miller, Justin Moret, and Jim Gunnels and are playing the cage game. If the Bulldogs basketball team wins state it means the basketball/baseball players won't be out on the diamond until after the Tournament of Champions and only a week before District 5-5A play opens. Whalen is counting on some of the basketball players to work in the Purple Pack's outfield which lost all of last years starters through graduation and on the mound.

Tim Whelan .. 2nd season at Midland

THE SITUATION is not desperate despite the missing players. Whalen, in his second year as head man, welcomes back 10 players off last year's club headed by all-district shortstop Eddie Portillo and all-district designated hitter Jerry Zachery

Last year Portillo hit .310 with five runs batted in. Portillo also led the club with 74 times at bat and was second on the team with three stolen bases. Zachery; despite splitting time between baseball and track, hit .425 on 23 hits in 54 times at bat. Zachery. who Whalen says, "Can hit the ball with power and run" was the Pack's leading homerun hitter and rbi man last year with 4 homers and 26 rbis repectively. This year, Zachery will be concentrating just on baseball. Frank Garramone, starting catcher most of last season, is a player Whalen is looking for to produce some needed power and provide some team leadership. Last year Garramone hit .300 (15 out of 50) but spent the first month of the season fighting some nagging injuries and never really produced the way Whalen feels he is

WHALEN said, "Garramone and some of the others are going to have to "produce so the other teams can't pitch around Zachery." Whalen added, "As long as we have Zachery we are going to have the long ball-threat and some speed.'

Joel Castaneda is another player that Whalen is looking to for some power and says, "Is capable of hitting some out." Last season, Castaneda hit .283 with nine rbis and one homer. He also led the club in stolen bases with four.

Heading the returning hurlers is Mark Hewitt, a righthanded senior, who went 5-3 last year. Steve Miller won three times against no defeats and Doug McLane was 2-3 last season. Justin Moret is another pitcher Whalen is counting on this year. Whalen said, "Basketball has some of our pitchers so we are just going to have to do the best we can until we get them back."

OVERALL, Whalen said, "We have came a long way from last year. Some of the fundementals we taught last year can be seen now; like bunting the ball on the ground. Of course, I wasn't a bit pleased in a scrimmage against Lee where we were just taking strikes and not being aggressive and swinging the bat." Whalen added, "We should have a good defense--but the outfield will be inexperienced. Micheal Feldt will help but he sat out last year to let an injuried knee Whalen also said, "We have had kids make great plays in the scrimmages then turn around and boot a routine play. That is what we have to correct. Consistency is what I am striving for. Ernie Johnson at Lee, one of the best baseball coaches I have ever been around, has the type of consistency in his program that I would like to develop here, not only on the field, but in the coaching ranks.'

When looking at the district, Whalen stated, "It will be a dog fight, and since we are the only Dogs in the district matbe we will be on top when its over." Whalen added, "Big Spring has everyone back, Perminan has a lot of good players, Odessa High has good athletes, Cooper is the the one I think will battle for the district title along with Lee. Lee, as long as they have Alan Kooonce, one of the best pitchers in this end of the state, and Ernie Johnson coaching, the Rebels will be tough.

MHS OPENS its baseball season Monday at 4 p.m. when the Bulldogs entertain Snyder at Memorial Stadium Field. Last season the Tigers whipped the Bulldogs in the season opener 2-0 behind the pitching of hard throwing Tony DeGrate.

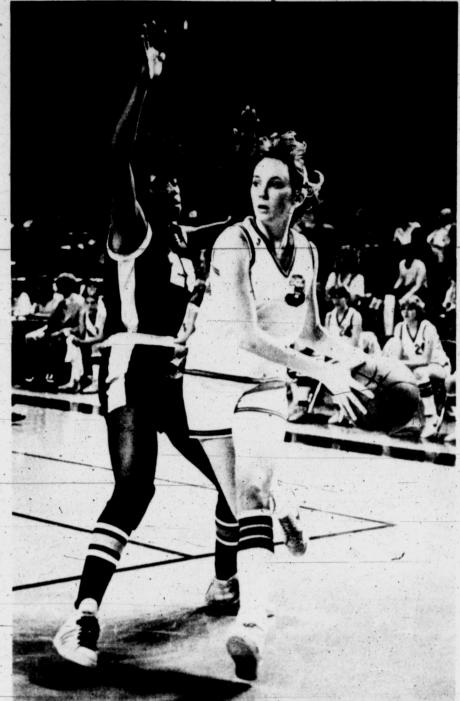

Whalen stated, "DeGrate beat us last year throwing nothing but his 92-mile-an-hour fast ball, and now I have heard he has come up major league curve ball."

Tentative lineup for Monday's game is Eddie Portillo, ss; Joel Castandeda, 3b; Dave Bledsole,cf; Jerry Zachery, 1b; Frank Garramone, c; Kyle Ford, lf; Fabian Ramos, 2b; Pete Gelindo, rf; and Mark Hewitt or Doug McLean on the mound.

After Monday's game, the Bulldogs are off until Saturday when they go to Lubbock to play a doubleheader with the Monterey Plainsmen.

Rebels to build around 4 starters

BY TED BATTLES

Tom Landry and Ernie Johnson. have something in common. Both are the only coaches their expansion franchises have ever known and both materialized on the Dallas and Midland scenes about the same time.

Landry, of course, has been the Dallas coach ever since the club joined the NFL back in 1960. Johnson has been Lee's only baseball coach in virtually the same time spamand he heads into his 20th campaign with four returning starters, who, he hopes, will form the basis for another winning season.

A DISTRICT 5-5A title? Ernie has five of 'em, but he's making no predictions. By the time Ernie finishes listing the probable contenders in this year's race, one suspects the league may have hard time scraping together a legitimate second division.

Johnson's Rebels will be built around seniors Alan Koonce, pitcheroutfield; Barry Corley, centerfield; Randy Velarde, shortstop-pitcher, and Jeff Hicks, first base-DH. All were starters last year and bring impressive statistics into the 1981 campaign.

Koonce was an 8-3 pitcher with a .444 district batting average while Corley had a .500 average to win the district bat title. Velarde, exclusively a shortstop, hit .368, but this year will assume a starting role on the hill, playing short on off days.

Hicks, a 438 hitter last year, suffered a knee injury that bothered him through the winter months and looms as a questionmark. He was a pitcher in predistrict games last year and, if healthy, will be Johnson's No. 2 man on the hill.

That's not a bad start, but the rest of the Lee cast is far from shabby. Other lettermen include, catcher Ron Smedley, who saw a lot of action in the first 10-12 games last year; Ricky Wright, who played third when the departed Wade Cartwright pitched; David Corrales, who came up from the JV's late last season to play left field; and Bill Dern, a .444 hitter on the JV to lead the team.

"DERN HAS a tremendous arm," says Ernie, so strong that Johnson may use him on the mound some.

Kevin Bradshaw was the No. 2 hitter on the JV last year with a .400 average. "He came on strong last year and has the inside edge at first base right now with Hicks hurt.

All are seniors At second base, Mitch Williams, a junior, is the guy to beat out at second, something Randy Pepper, the best infielder on the JV last year, is trying to do. Pepper also played short when Velarde pitched for the JV.

Going into Tuesday's opener against Lubbock Coronado at Lee Field, Johnson has been handicapped by the fact that several possible starters were tied up with basketball until Thursday. They were Chris Parker, junior third baseman pitcher; Pepper, and Barry Blackwell, a sophomore, "Who has a chance to make the club and maybe even-start in the infield." Barry is the younger brother of Brett, an all-stater at Lee in the

AMONG JOHNSON'S pitching candidates is Brian Erxleben, a senior who is the cousin of former Texas kicker Russell Erxleben; and senior David Jennings, coming off tendonitis in a shoulder.

Outfield candidates with a chance to break into the lineup include David Rivas, a senior; Moose Fuentes, senior, while Scott Carrell, first base, and Lane Marks, second, are in the competition for starting spots.

Lee is coming off a 16-13 season The Rebels got off to a slow start, but finished strong with a 10-4 district record.

AS FOR the race this year, Johnson figures two-time champion Abilene Cooper is the team to beat and Midland, Abilene, with a great pitcher; Big Spring, Odessa High, Odessa Permian and San Angelo capable of doing it. "Big Spring has everybody back and they had a good team last year. Odessa has good athletes.

What kind of a team will the Rebels field? Well, there will be speed in Velarde, Smedley, Wright, Parker. Pepper, Blackwell and Corley.

As for power, the least important ingredient if a team has pitching and defense, Johnson says, "Koonce has potential. Hicks hits the ball hard and Smedley is not big but he is strong."

Johnson will find out a lot about his Rebels in a hurry. After Tuesday's 4 p.m. opener, Lee hosts always-tough Lubbock Monterey at 4 Friday, travels to Monahans for two Saturday and then will be at Monterey March 10 in the final tuneup before this year's Tournament of Champions at Cubs Stadium March 13-14.

Reloading ammunition enhances gun education

Reloading your own ammunition is an excellent method of saving a few dollars and getting more shooting pleasure. Besides saving money, as a reloader, you can work up the right load for your particular rifle and for the particular game animal you are interested in. Another benefit is that you will become a more knowledgeable shooter by earning what makes the old blunderbuss work

The basic principles of reloading are simple. The cartridge case is the most expensive part of the complete round and as such is largely responsihle for the high cost of factory cartridges. After the round is fired, the case is still usable and only after repeated loadings will it show signs of wear. Thus, in effect, the non-reloader scraps the most expensive part of the cartridge. The reloader will use this valuable; component many times before it is worn out. With this in mind, lets take a detailed look at how we go about reusing a rifle cartridge case.

Basically, reloading a rifle cartridge involves only five very simple mechanical operations-1. depriming (removing the fired primer), 2. resizing case to original dimensions, 3. repriming (inserting a new primer), 4. charging the case with powder, 5. seating a new bullet.

WITH MOST reloading tools, steps one and two will be accomplished simultaneously. Several reloading tool manufacturers make reloading tools which accomplish these operations with speed, ease and a high degree of precision.

in your choice of caliber, a shellholder, a powder scale and any one of several excellent reloading manuals available. Also you will need primers, powder and bullets.

If you compare a fired case with a factory new case of the same caliber, you may note that the fired case is somewhat larger over most of its length. This is caused by the pressure generated at the instant of firing, expanding the brass case inside the rifle chamber. In step one, the case is resized to original factory dimensions. This allows the reloaded cartridge to work freely and to enter the chamber through the magazine. Also, the resizing reduces the case neck diameter so that it will hold the bullet

Since resizing involves metal to metal pressure and friction, we need a light film of resizing lubricant to reduce the effort required in the operation and to prevent the brass getting stuck in the die.

During resizing the fired primer is pushed out by the depriming pin which extends through the center of the die. Thus, in a single motion, two complete operations--resizing and depriming-are completed. As the case is pulled out of the die, step three--repriming--can be accomplished.

REPRIMING merely involves pressing a fresh rimer fully into the primer pocket. When the primer has been placed, anvil side up, on the priming arm push the arm forward so that it is centered directly. under the shellholder. As the case is withdrawn from the sizing die, it will come to rest on the priming arm with the pocket centered over the fresh primer. Additional pressure on the press lever will force the primer up into the pocket.

Step four is next. Use a powder charge recommended in your reloading manual, you will note the various powder charges are expressed in grains weight. This is the standard weighing system for powder and bullets. Powder scales are caliraed in grains and tenths of a grain. There are 7,000 grains in one pound. Weigh out the recommended powder charge and using a powder funnel pour the powder into the case

Step five is next. Bullet seating is merely pressing a new bullet into the cartridge case neck. The bullet seating die is manufactured so that the bullet is supported in correct alignment with the case mouth. An adjustment stem is provided to vary bullet

A good rule of thumb for bullet seating is to adjust the stem so that the reloaded cartridge will be the same length as a factory round with similar weight and shape of bullet.

Later you may find that you get improved perfor-Though there is a variety of brands and types of mance by varying the seating depth slightly from the firing in SEC cage play equipment from which to choose, basic requirements factory standards. This is but another advantage of

TEXAS OUTDOORS Pro quarterback's life easy, claims angler

There have been as many stories and little white lies told about fishing as any other subject and as ridiculous as some may sound, many are true. Some, over the years, would rival a Hitchcock movie. They say it takes five years for a pro quarterback to learn the game. It takes a lot longer for a fisherman to be able to hold his own in a bull session where fish stories abound.

"If you read Oak Creek Lake reports over the year, you may remember the one about the big bass that took up residence at the fishing dock and became known as Ol Tobb. He caused all kinds of confusion when he first appeared, but little did anyone know how much more he would cause before the episode ended. For the first few weeks, nothing seemed to interest Tobb. Every bait and device was tried to get his attention, but none worked. >

AFTER A while, Tobb developed an appetite for crapple and when an angler was slow it getting the fish out of water, Tobb would dart out, take the fish, break the line or straighten the hook before it was possible to react. After this happened, several times, a $10 reward was offered for his capture. This only added fuel to the fire. Several began to plot against Ol Tobb. Tobb met his Waterloo when Lorene Gregory of Brownfield enticed hime to take a bait on a rig made up for the occasion. Some that had refreshed themselves with Rocky Mountain koolaid had the fish going as much as eight pounds, but his actual weight, sinkers and all was five pounds six ounces.

IKE PATE of Sportsman's Lodge complains. They must have opened every gate in Canada when we got the blast of cold air a couple of weeks ago. The water was already too cold and, now, with it is at its lowest point of the year, it's gonna take some warm weather for it to reach the 50 degree mark we had hoped to see by March 1. While we wait for conditions to get right for the bass, you might want to try crappie. Two pound crappie have a way of drawing attention and they are being caught.'

Tony Hughes of Lubbock landed over 60 ranging from just under one to two pounds.

Despite the fact that she cannot hear a sound from the outside world, Mary Bess patiently and carefully shows the 13 Midland Self-Advocacy students in the adult sign language class how to communicate in sign language.

Just like their teacher, the students have a handicap, but of a different variety...mental retardation.

Starting by spelling their name, the students, slowly at first, make the correct motions and shapes with their hands and arms to spell it out.

The group is the brain child of Karen Smith, president of the Midland Advocates, a group of adult mentally retarded in Midland.

Through the Midland Association of Retarded Citizens, Karen was able to find Mary Bess who had lost her hearing three years ago from nerve damage.

Mary was a perfect choice for she was a former special education teacher and had taught many of the members of the class in school.

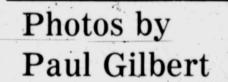

The group fell together like bees and honey.

Donating her time, Mary teaches the group how to speak in sign language so they can better communicate with each other and other people.

The process is slow and often trying, but the rewards are great, especially when one of the students quickly and correctly signs the assigned word or sentence, bringing an ear to ear smile.

Above photo—Mary Bess, heart of the sign language program, goes over and over with never ending patience and care the moves that are required to speak with one's hands. Checking carefully as she makes the sign, Bonita Barber learns a new language that will allow her to communicate with others easier.

Small record company struggles to make it big

By DAVID GOELLER Associated Press Writer

ACCIDENT, Md. (AP) - If Garrett County were the nation, Rob Smith and Keith Roberts would have a monster, seven-fold platinum hit on their hands

Since its release last June, the album of original songs, "Buffalo Run," has sold about 1,000 copies. some 800 of them in Garrett County with an estimated population of approximately 27,000.

If the LP were getting a corresponding response in the tough national market, sales would be approaching 7 million copies. In the record business, a million copies sold earns "platinum" status.

As yet, however, the county's only record company remains a cottage industry in western Maryland, trying to expand its audience, get its record distributed and succeed in one of the toughest businesses around.

Both men, now 29, came to Garrett County separately in 1974 from similar middle-class backgrounds: Smith from the Washington suburbs, Roberts from the Cleveland area.

Smith, who is married and has two children, turned to woodworking in western Maryland after working as a musician and sound man in Washington and New York. He built his own house in the extreme northwestern section of Maryland.

Roberts, who holds a degree in conservation from Cornell, worked for the state, built a log cabin near Accident, got married and, like his partner, began singing and playing pro- cases and took the albums to area fessionally in Maryland, Pennsylva- merchants and the clubs where they nia and West Virginia.

They began working together as an acoustic guitar duo in the fall of 1977. Their first job was at the wedding of Scratch Lauterwasser, who was previously Roberts' musical partner.

Their style - a blend of folk, country, bluegrass and soft rock - caught on in the tri-state area, aided by "Garrett County Time," a Smith song which gave local listeners something to identify with instantly.

Like so many musicians before them, they took an old tape recorder into Smith's woodshed one day and cut a demo tape. The quality wasn't good, but the radio stations in Oakland - Garrett's main town - were happy to broadcast home-grown music

Soon listeners were asking where they could get an album.

So in February 1980, Smith and Roberts began producing their album at a studio in Bedford, Pa. Smith borrowed his share of the $3,000 it cost for studio time, musicians, album jackets and pressings to produce 1,000

To obtain his share of the investment, Roberts took a job with the county. By day, he distributed fuel to needy families. Each night for six weeks he made the three-hour roundtrip to Bedford to work on "Buffalo

Huge pieces of hand-hewn timber sell for structural supports and beams in new homes, restaurants and churches, or as fireplace mantels, Bott says. And, he adds, wood siding is used for rustic paneling and doors in fancy remodeling jobs, or in making tables, and counter tops.

Very little goes to waste. Old bricks and stones in foundations, Bott says. wind up as floors, patios and fire-

Some of the "great barns" in Lake County north of Chicago date to the 1830s. They were built mostly from massive oak timbers squared with axes, locked together with wooden pegs or blacksmith-forged square nails. They were mainstays of a thriving dairy industry and had to be big - 135 feet long, 45 feet high, 40 feet across.

The county, bordering on Wisconsin, once had more than 2,300 "great barns" - those larger than 80-by-40 feet. But only about 700 are-left, and the number. Bott says, is dwindling.

The wooden structures no longer they can't afford the upkeep of the old barns, and they are taxed more than they are worth,

That's where Bott comes in. "I buy about eight a year for around $200 each," he says. "We dismantle them piece by piece, and it takes three weeks of steady work to do it. I have a workshop where the wood is reprocessed for sale.

"Every time we take one down, we get a lot of feeling for the old-timers who built them. I net a profit of about $3,000 on each barn. Bott, 26, has become a student of 'great barns' and has formed a group called Vanishing Heritages to compile information on them, the farmers who built them and their way of life. And he has formed his own company, R & B Enterprises, which also does logging, land-clearing and milling.

Bott and his wife live in a tri-level home that he built himself from massive oak and white pine timbers. He made most of the furniture from choice barn wood.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

We purchased a flotation mattress a year ago and for the first month or so hated it, the reason being that as soon as we got in bed, the fitted sheet would come unfitted. Then, we got the bright idea of taking two flat, full size sheets (two in order to completely cover the mattress) and turning them crossways on the bed, tucking them as far under the mattress as we could, then putting the fitted sheet on.

By putting the flat sheets under the fitted, the mattress was no longer slick, so the fitted one stayed in

Needless to say that took care of our problem and now we love our waterbed! - Debbie Cochran

Slick trick! Or should I say a notso-slick trick! . Anyway, no matter, as long as it works.

Those beds are getting so popular, lots of folks are gonna thank you. Debbie, and so do I, luv, for taking the time to write. - Hugs, Heloise

LETTER OF THOUGHT

Dear Heloise: There can be no BEST hint for everyone when it comes to hated chores, I suppose, but I think the answer is discipline.....

Do small tasks before they become impossible to keep up with and concentrate on doing the most important ones first. One will become better organized and little emergencies and interruptions can be taken in stride. That picnic may rate higher than washing windows! - Mrs. Richard A.

FREEZING BANANAS Dear Heloise: Bananas can be frozen - good to have on hand for cakes, cookies and breads...

Use ripe bananas, peel and mash. Put approximately two bananas per sandwich-size freezer bag. These bags lay flat and don't take up much space in your freezer.

You will also have the proportion, ate size to use in baking. - Mrs. Carl Middendorf

Dear Heloise: Dog and cat hair on furniture can be a nuisance when it comes to getting it off as a vacuum cleaner won't always remove it, but a wet sponge does the trick: I squeeze out the excess water and rub the sponge over the surface of the upholstery. The hair rolls into little. balls and is easily picked up. - Mrs. Minnie Rapp

WINDOW WASH FORMULA

Her fitted sheets would come 'unfitted' on water bed

Dear Heloise: To wash windows, mix three heaping tablespoons of cornstarch in a pail of warm water. This mixture is also good to use

when cleaning mirrors and chrome

Apply with a soft cloth, wipe off with a dry one, and be amazed at the sparkle! - Mrs. R. Kasper

No need to buy expensive products! Just use the things you have at home. - Heloise

PROTECTIVE COVERING

Dear Heloise: To protect the top of the washer and dryer, place a bath towel over them. One in a matching color looks best

The towel will save wear and tear on the appliances, plus it's easily kept clean. — Mrs. R.W. Yoder

NEEDLE THREADING Dear Heloise: When threading a needle, spray a little hairspray or starch on your finger and apply it to the end of the thread. The thread will stiffen just enough to make it easier to put it-through the eye of the needle. - Mrs. Florence Castagna

Know a trick that makes housework easier? Send it to Heloise care of this newspaper. She can't answer your letter personally but, sure as candy is dandy, she'll print the best hints received in her column.

'New ethnicity' a healthy manifestation

With By BOB TIEUEL

The Great American Heritage: America is a potpourri, not a 'melting pot," states a 4,500 word document drawn up by a subcommittee headed by Bishop Stanislaus J. Brzana of Ogdensburg. New York and issued by the social-development committee of the Catholic conference after its approval by its administra-

In a time when mass communications media tend to produce a blanket think-alike, act-alike image of America, the report says the rise of the "new ethnicity" among the various groups is a healthy manifestation. Their greater regard for their distinctive cultural, racial and historic backgrounds is not a sign of division but recognition of the "richness of the American heritage," the report says adding:

'We' urge all Americans to accept the fact of religious and cultural pluralism, not as an historic oddity or sentimental journey into the past, but as a vital, fruitful and challenging phenomenon of our society .... Americanization does not call for the abandoment of cultural differences but for their wider

For a long time, the nation was considered a melting pot, implying that the mingling of differences would eventually produce a nearly homogeneous single pattern of the American. way, the report says. But this was not to be and indeed should not be the future for America, the report adds, saying that history shows that total homogenization of peoples within a nation deprives and weakens it.

Any move to suppress or even to neglect the enriching resource of varied American traditions and backgrounds would make our nation poorer, the report says.

"All ethnic groups are part of the mainstream of American life. and any attempt to discourage or reject their presence, subtly or overtly, is an unacceptable return to "nativism" and "ethnocentrism." Many groups, because of religion, language, origin, customs, color or economic status, have suffered discrimination and even ridicule, particularly in the past, the report says.

The report cites a long litany of popular derision against immigrants - the Irish, the Germans, Italians, Poles, Swedes, Jews, and "harsh oppression" of American Indians, blacks and Hispanics. And while much of the overt discrimination has passed, it often takes on more subtle and less visible forms and continues to erode the good society that should be the common heritage of all. "We solicit the help of all thoughtful citizens of this republic in an effort to blot out of public and private life the stains of ethnic prejudice and discrimination "The report urges greater consideraion of ethnic groups who have too long been unrepresented in large and important areas of American Chimes: The League of United Latin American Citizens wants to become the first group of its kind to establish a formal tie to the Organization of American States. An OAS official said "cooperative status" exists for about 75 to 100 organizations ranging from U.N. agencies to international professional organizations. The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith has drawn up a model statute, which if passed by state legislatures would restrict para-military training camps run by the Ku Klux Klan or other extremist groups ..

Many Texans and others in the Southwest, including politicans, have become unwitting apostles' of Adolf Hitler by demanding that the church keep its nose out of politics, according to Dr. James N. Dunn, national director of the Baptist Joint Committee on Public Affairs. He said critics should remember Hitler's advice to the church to "preach its gospel and stay out of politics." He spoke before the Texas Conference of Churches in Austin recently. Some fifteen denominations are represented in the conference, including the Catholic church, it was reported.

Army limiting female numbers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army says that although most women soldiers are doing "really damned fine jobs," there are indications the service's combat readiness could be hampered by enlisting more women.

"So we are trying to hold the line on the number of women" in the Army, said William D. Clark, acting assistant secretary for manpower.

Clark told a Senate Armed Services manpower subcommittee Thursday that the Army has more than 61,000 women in uniform but is "reluctant" to try to reach the Defense Department goal of 87,500, or 13 percent of the overall force, by 1986.

Defense Department figures show that as of Dec. 31, the Army had 772,351 men and women in uniform, meaning women accounted for about 7.9 percent.

Clark said the department is reluctant to continue increasing the number of women in the Army until it better understands their effect on the Army's preparedness to fight.

"We have got a lot of women in the Army and most of them are doing really damned fine jobs," Clark said. "I don't think it is a question of whether we should have women in the Army or not. I think it is a question of the degree of reliance that we place upon women," he said.

Lt. Gen. Robert G. Yerks, deputy chief of staff for personnel, told the Senate panel the Army should "idle our motors a bit" and not increase the number of female soldiers until completion of "a very extensive study going on now" to measure their impact on combat readiness.

"We have seen indications in readiness reports and so forth that there may be some real adverse impact on readiness ... by just simply the large numbers," Yerks said. For example, he said, about 40 percent of the soldiers in some medical units are women and they encounter "just simple physical problems of lifting litters and so forth.

Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa. chairman of the manpower subcommittee, said the Army should be used "to provide for the national security of our country and not to provide a base for social experimenta-

Sen. John Stennis of Mississippi, the subcommittee's senior Democrat, said he had "no patience" with arguments that women should be treated the same as men in regard to mili-. tary service.

El Paso newspapers end policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department says two newspaper groups, after being told the department was considering filing an anti-trust suit, have decided to end the joint determination of standards for acceptable advertising at two newspapers in El Paso, Texas.

The two groups are Gannett Co. Inc., which owns the El Paso Times, and E.W. Scripps Co., which owns the El Paso Herald-Post.

Assistant Attorney General Sanford M. Litvack, who heads the antitrust division of the Justice Department, said Thursday that the department had received letters expressing the companies' commitment to end the joint determination of standards.

The two El Paso papers are published under a joint newspaper operating agreement authorized by the Newspaper Preservation Act, which provides immunity from antitrust suits for papers which combine their business operations but maintain independent editorial policies.

Litvack said his department viewed advertising acceptability standards as editorial policies under the meaning of the law.

The department said it told Gannett and Scripps last week that it was considering filing an antitrust suit to stop the two El Paso papers from jointly determining their standards for what advertising they would print. Newspaper advertising standards normally spell out whether the paper will accept salacious or political ads or other types of ads. The two El Paso papers had standards which said they would only accept ads in English.

Litvack said Gannett and Scripps have told him they would end existing joint advertising acceptability standards to the extent any exist in other joint operating arrangements where'

Former FCC member says radio deregulation doesn't go far enough

WASHINGTON (AP) - Nicholas Johnson, the former Federal Communications Commission member whose frequent criticism of broadcasters earned him a reputation as a firebrand, says a Senate bill to deregulate radio "doesn't go far enough.

Johnson's suggestions for alternative approaches, however, aren't likely to win him many new friends in broadcasting.

They include such ideas as requiring radio stations to sell time on a first-come-first-served basis without exercising control over content, and allowing anyone who wants to enter broadcasting to-control a station for a specified amount of time each week.

In written testimony submitted Thursday to the Senate communications subcommittee, Johnson argued that the radio deregulation bill introduced by Sens. Jack Schmitt, D-N.M., and Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., "re-

Johnson wrote. "Unless we are going to come up

Congress needs to "create a genuine marketplace in broadcasting, one in which all Americans - not just a few government-favored and protected licenses - can take a crack at entering the broadcasting business," with genuine marketplace alterna-creating a true marketplace.

moves only bits and pieces" of the tives, I respectfully suggest that this committee owes its constituents some current regulatory scheme instead of protections from the worst of broadcasters' excesses.

> The goal of the bill now under consideration is to place in law and also expand the terms of the FCC's recent order deregulating the radio industry. The measure would keep the commission from requiring radio stations to provide news or locally produced programs, adhere to a particular format, maintain logs of everything broadcast and limit the number of commercials they air.

It also would grant radio broadcas-ters an indefinite license, while maintaining the right of citizens to file petitions to revoke that license in cases of serious misconduct. Broadcast licenses now must be renewed every three years.

The measure is based on the idea that with almost 9,000 radio stations operating in the United States, most citizens can obtain whatever type of programming they desire.

"I don't believe there is any successful station in this country that could exist without paying attention to the customers' wants," Goldwater said. "If a broadcaster doesn't satisfy his listeners, then the station will fail as a business."

Arthritic Americans get DMSO treatment in Mexico

By SUSAN STOLER Associated Press Writer

REYNOSA, Mexico (AP) - A small but faithful number of arthritic Americans travel to this border city regularly for controversial DMSO treatments outlawed in the United States

Despite warnings from their own doctors, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the Arthritis Foundation, the Americans cross the Rio Grande from Hidalgo, Texas, and head for a modest clinic on "Doctors Row," a block behind the town's main plaza.

Inside they find Dr. Leopoldo Chow, a 41-year-old orthopedic surgeon who was trained at the University of Mexico City. He says he treats about 250 Americans with a combination of DMSO, physical therapy, medications, vitamins and a strict diet.

Patients pay $500 for a three-day treatment and come every three months for 11/2 to 2 years.

DMSO - dimethyl sulfoxide - is used widely as an industrial solvent and is a by-product of papermaking.

THE FDA ALLOWS its medical use only for treatment of a painful bladder condition, interstitial cystitis. Only Oregon and Florida have approved its sale as medicine for other purposes.

DMSO once was widely marketed in the United States in the 1960s but pulled off pharmacy shelves after tests on beagles indicated it caused eve problems. The purity of DMSO used on the dogs has since been questioned.

the FDA and the Arthritis Foundation dismiss claims that its application to the skin cures rheumatoid arthritis and other ailments. The substance is absorbed into the blood through the skin and causes users to smell of garlic Chow's patients don't care what the FDA says. They write testimonial letters about their claimed relief and send him more patients like Mary Nickson of Beaumont.

She waited for her appointment in the clinic lobby, adorned with Chow's professional certificates in Spanish, a Chinese lantern and oriental decora-

Chow was born in Tampico but his father immigrated from Canton,

Mrs. Nickson said she first visited Chow in April 1979. Arthritis had pained her for 25 years and the gold treatments administered by her Beaumont doctor didn't help, she said.

"I couldn't walk. I couldn't grip my hands. I even had it in my jaws, all over. I couldn't wear shoes. I have been down crawling," said the 65year-old patient.

SHE SAID A friend showed her an article in the local paper about

'I had no alternative but to come. I would hurt all day and all night," she said.

The pain went away after one day of treatment, she said. Mrs. Nickson continues taking vitamins but no longer needs to apply DMSO daily.

"In rainy weather or when it's real cold, I'll get a little stiffness," she said. She continues going to her Beaumont doctor for checkups but has never told him about Chow's treatments.

"I can't conceive of DMSO working as dramatically as that," Charles Bennett, director of public education for the Arthritis Foundation, said of Mrs. Nickson's case

'In so many of these clinics, people are being told they are being given DMSO when they're really being given phenyl butazone or steroids," he said. "There also is simply no evidence to back up claims that diet is responsible for improving arthritis.

Bennett said Chow's clinic operates differently from others on the U.S.-Mexico border.

·Chow talks readily with reporters, unlike other clinic doctors who run them off with threats. He says Americans account for only 5 percent of his practice. Other clinics cater solely to "Yankees," Bennett said.

Chow said he spends most of his time treating crippled children and at the federal, nonprofit hospital for the rural poor, where he is director.

CHOW SAID THAT his work with rehabilitation of crippled children led to an interest in arthritis.

'About eight years ago I started using DMSO with a few patients and I was really impressed with the results," he said in fluent English.

"I don't believe in many miracle drugs," he said. "There was penicillin, then cortisone and DMSO at this time. Chow said his treatment concentrates on trying to arrest calcium deterioration of the bones which leads to calcium buildup and inflammation of the

He said he doesn't use steroids and imports his DMSO supplies from Germany, where it has been used more than 20 years. 'People now are looking for DMSO in veterinary pharmacies, but it's not the same quality. It's for horses and cows," he said. He listed his success rate at 70 percent. Other patients show marginal or no results.

Carrie Zeagler of Grayson, La., was in for her second series of treatments

Her daughters, Martha Eldridge and Leona Watson of Monroe, La., said their 73-year-old mother had relief for a while after her first visit but then the pain returned. . She was more alert than she had been in years. It's not having the same effect of drugging her like the stuff at home," said Mrs. Eldridge.

Thousands of Americans who are unable to see well enough to read conventional books and magazines get a regular information If eline from a federal agency celebrating its 50th anniversary this

The "lifeline" is provided by the Library of Congress through a network of 160 regional libraries which distributes special copies of reading material to the blind and visually handicapped. The agency's Braille and Talking Book Program was established March 3, 1931. It now provides information in a variety of forms to an estimated 350,000 people. Subscribers to the program receive, at no charge, the reading materials - in Braille, on flexible discs or on tape casettes - and the equipment to use them. Every other month, they get a list of new titles, along with a special order form.

Martha Robinson, a spokesman for the Library of Congress, said the program includes about 22,000 titles. There are thousands of books — including most best-sellers; about 50 magazines from Playboy to National Geographic; and public service material - ranging from income tax information to sports schedules.

Ms. Robinson said there are several ways eligible people can find out more about the system. Local libraries should be able to provide information. If they can't, check the telephone book. The program should be listed under "library." Details also are available from the Library of Congress itself. Write National Library Service for the Blind and Physically Handicapped, Library of Congress, Washington, D.C., 20542, or call, toll-free,

One of the latest additions to the system comes from the U.S. Customs Service which has issued a special tape to provide the blind and handicapped with basic information about regulations governing travel overseas. Copies of the tape and a Braille pamphlet are available from the Library of Congress system or from the International Travel Staff, Room 6316, U.S. Customs Service, Washington, D.C., 20229.

Among the suggestions, which apply to people who can see as well as to those who have a vision problem, are:

-If you plan to take foreign-made items overseas, register them with the nearest U.S. Customs office before you go. If you cannot get to the Customs office, take a copy of the original sales receipt so you can prove you bought the item in the United

Famous drive-in restaurant will close its doors

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) - Skillful carhops will no longer dash between celebrity limousines and Volkswagens carrying trays of Dolores burgers, Suzy Q fries and homemade pies at Dolores, one of the last authentic drive-ins in Southern California. On Monday, the drive-in, straight out of "American Graffiti," closes its doors, a victim of urban A Superior Court judge had ordered the restaurant to close to make way for new development. "We'll appeal the decision, of course," said owner Dean Williams after the judge refused to stay the order Friday. "But if we're not out by Tuesday we'll be in contempt of court and I don't need those kinds of troubles right now. The drive in has been a favorite with celebrities, who especially enjoyed the anonymity afforded them as they munched Dolores burgers in their cars. Newly constructed steel and high-rise buildings now line Wilshire Boulevard and another old and famous Wilshire restaurant, the Brown Derby, had been similarly scheduled for destruction earlier this year to make way for new development.

That landmark was saved from the wrecker's ball by the efforts of historians but it will be moved to another site off Wilshire.

There was a faint glimmer of hope Dolores might be saved through the efforts of such celebrity patrons as Sally Struthers, Ricardo Montalban, Shelley Winters and Chuck Barris.

They are members of The Dolores Foundation. which along with the American Institute of Architects is trying to convince site owner Don Levin he could incorporate the restaurant into the building that is to be constructed on the site.

"They have come up with sketches. But, regardless, we'll have to vacate Monday," Williams said. After that, who knows?"

Los Angeles' first Dolores restaurant (it was named after the daughter of founders Ralph and Amanda Stevens) opened on Sunset Boulevard in 1915 and a year later moved to its present site on Wilshire Boulevard. Levin bought the site a year

U.S. Steel Corporation; Robert P. Straetz, chairman and chief executive officer, Textron Inc.; and Capt. J.J. O'Donnell, president, Airline Pilots Association. Moderator will be Bob Schieffer, CBS-TV national correspondent.

The luncheon will be dedicated to honoring the thousands of volunteers who have helped Junior Achievement offer a variety of programs for young people to help them learn how the American economic system works, and how it relates to the daily freedoms we all enjoy. Some four-million young people have "graduated" from Junior Achievement programs, according to Richard Maxwell, president.

Junior Achievement established The Business Hall of Fame in 1975, Maxwell explained, because 'Americans are forever heaping awards and recog nition on athletes, musicians, movie stars, TV celebrities and others. But, we as a people, seem unwilling to acknowledge that to rise to the top in business demands just as much talent, brains, sensitivity, education and effort as are required in any other field of endeavor.

"This kind of attitude — this lack of understanding of business and how it relates to our daily freedoms is dangerous.

"This 'down-with-business' attitude hampers efforts to attract and prepare new generations of business leaders who might eventually be responsible for great achievements that would benefit us all. Business is just too integral and too important a part of all our lives to be dismissed as mere 'profit-mak-

"It is for this reason, among others, that Junior Achievement established the annual National Business Leadership Conference and The Business Hall of Fame.

Business Hall of Fame laureates are selected annually for Junior Achievement by the board of editors of Fortune magazine.

Public inquiries about the NBLC should be directed to C. Mitchell, NBLC Registrar, 550 Summer St., Stamford, Ct. 06901. Conference fee, including all daytime events and The Business Hall of Fame Banquet, is $125 a person. Limited number of tickets available to public.

Insurance rates hiked

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - The State Board of Insurance has increased rates for insurance coverage of commercial vehicles by an average of 8.4 percent, effective May 1.

Commercial auto rates apply to truckers, parking lots, garages, taxi companies and the like -- all vehicles but private passenger cars.

The new rates will raise total premiums in Texas by $13.6 million a year.

The board's staff had recommended a 12.5 percent increase while the insurance industry wanted a 2 percent rate hike.

Gambling nun aware of odds

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — It takes more than she has by going to an Oakland A's baseball game. Godspeed and a few Hail Marys to beat an odds-wise She has no moral objection to gambling, as long as pit boss, and Sister Madeleine Rose Ashton has what the stake isn't the grocery money:

Sister Madeleine Rose - or "Mad Rose," as her math students call her - is well-acquainted with casino odds, and is known in the Bay area for her lecture entitled: "How To Gamble ... If You Must."

The Holy Names College instructor, who last year celebrated her 50th year as a sister of the Holy Names, said Friday that odds-making grew out of her work in probability.

"This (lecturing) is just something I do, because part of the philosophy of the college is that we should go out and share our resources with the community." said Sister Madeleine Rose, a former president of the co-educational liberal arts school.

She said her lectures began when she sat beside a police chief at a service club luncheon and the subject of gambling came up.

"About three weeks later, the chief called and asked if I'd speak to his Kiwanis club because they were going to Reno," she said. "I spoke to them and then they offered to pay my way if I'd go with them.' She turned the offer down.

Though her order and the college take her interest in gambling lightly, she'd rather spend what money don't think so.

Her lecture includes expert tips on how to play,

"In craps, the house has only a 1.41 percent advantage. But there are only six good bets in craps. # Firm starts fireflood operation

NEW ORLEANS, LA. - Texaco U.S.A. has begun its first fire-fighting project in an old oil field in northwest Louisiana, in hopes of increasing production of heavy oil there by 25 to 30 percent, the company announced

The technique invloves lowering an ignition devise into a well and setting fire to the oil in place. The heat created by the fire thins the adjoining reservoir oil and permits it to flow to recovery wells. Air is continuously injected into the ignition well to maintain the fire; which normally consumes about 2 to 3 percent of the oil in Texaco's project is being carried out in a 1,000 foot-deep reservoir in the Caddo-Pine Island field at a location about 24 miles northwest of Shreveport, La. in Caddo Parish. The field extends through much of the parish and has been producing oil for more than 50 years.

Texaco's current production is about 600 barrelds a day, recovered through conventional means. The fireflood project is designed in its first phase in Caddo-Pine Island to recover an additional 150 to 200 barrels a day, Texaco said.

'If successful, this project for insitu combustion could be repeated on other Texaco acreage in Louisiana. and result in the ultimate recovery of from 10 to 50 million additional barrels of heavy oil over the next 10 years," reported Robert G. Shields, vice president in charge of the Production Department-East of Texaco U.S.A. "We expect that approximately 4 million barrels of this total could be produced from the Texaco properties in Caddo-Pine Island,

"Fire-flooding is much more costly than other production methods," Mr. Shields said. "However, the high level of the world market priceds, coupled with the continuing need to cut U.S. dependence on foreign oil, makes this project economically feasible. The technology permits us to recover oil from reserviors where no oil could previously be produced, or where much of it had to be be left in the ground after using-normal production methods," Shields said

The Caddo-Pine Island project involves recovery of 20.9 gravity API oil from an inital pattern of one ignition well and four recovery wells, in a program planned for the next 18 months to two years. An expanded program of additional patterns in the field would last approximately 10 ears and cost more than $24 million,

Surge in U.S. fuel prices is expected to continue

NEW YORK (AP) - The recent surge in U.S. fuel prices may not be over yet, and wholesale gasoline prices soon could be 20 cents a gallon higher than they were at the end of 1980, Shell Oil Co. President John F. Bookout said Friday

But Bookout said in an interview that competition among dealers, who have watched gasoline demand fall steadily as prices rose, may prevent the full effect of the increases from reaching the pump.

"I'm saying nothing, nor can I say anything, about what the dealer response is," Bookout said, adding, "he may not even pass all that (wholesale increase) along - he may squeeze his (profit) margin.

Meanwhile, Standard Oil Co. of California said in San Francisco it had raised wholesafe diesel fuel and home heating-oil prices 4 cents a gallon in the East and South and 3 cents a gallon in the Rockies, while its wholesale gasoline prices rose 1 to 2 cents a gallon, depending on region.

The oil company's Chevron U.S.A. division said the hikes resulted largely from recent increases of $1 to $2 a barrel in the cost of crude oil from Alaska and California.

Bookout, the head of the nation's eighth-largest oil company said he expects refiners' crude oil costs this quarter to be "about 15 to 20 cents a gallon higher than what they were in the last quarter of 1980.

Bookout said of that total, "3 to 5 cents per gallon" is directly attributable to President Reagan's Jan. 28 order lifting crude oil and gasoline price controls eight months ahead of schedule. The rest of the increase is due to foreign oil price hikes since mid-December and increased costs resulting from earlier effects of the 19-month-long decontrol program, he directors of the National Association

Refiners' product prices generally go up "20 to 25 percent more" than crude oil costs, however, because of refinery fuel requirements and attempts to cover losses on sales of low-grade heavy industrial fuel oils, Bookout said.

Asked if all of the 15-to-20 cents-agallon crude oil price increase had shown up at the retail level, Bookout said, "I do not believe ... average prices have increased 15 or 20 cents." But he said "if the marketplace permits, I'm sure refiners will be attempting to recover" their increased

Shell and most other major refiners increased wholesale fuel prices by between a penny and 4 cents a gallon during the past week. The moves followed earlier increases that put the average wholesale price of gasoline up nearly 8 cents a gallon since the decontrol announcement and up 12 cents a gallon since early January.

According to the trade publication Lundberg Letter, the national average retail price of gasoline was $1.32 a gallon as of Feb. 6, up a nickel from Jan. 23 and about a dime from early December, just before Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries members raised crude oil prices 10 percent — or 7 cents a gallon.

Decontrol changes thinking on kind of projects to drill

By MAX B. SKELTON AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - Ed McGhee says decontrol of crude prices is realigning the order of priority oil and gas producers place on the kind of wells they want to drill.

McGhee, executive vice president of the Internantional Association of Drilling Contractors, believes there will be stronger interest in development wells in or near proven areas.

He says; however, such a stress would not mean an end to explorations in unproven areas.

"Wildcatting simply competes less well for funds," he said. "As a result, the drilling contractor will likely find himself bidding for more fast, shallow holes and for fewer deep, slow ones. The change will show up by year end in the count of wells completed. This number will rise faster than will the count of active rigs. In other words, more holes with fewer

In his March report to the trade group's members, McGhee said the drilling community sizes up decontrol as good, maybe even great.

"The economics Two, decontrol raed by revenue. Morle of crude oil and gas. Two, decontrol raises the revenue. More revecrude oil and gas. Two, decontrol raises the revenue. More revenue equals more drilling.

McGhee added, however, that while the economics are simple enough the precise impact and realignment is less apparent.

Previously, development drilling often was relegated to a low priority,

"It had to be paid out by 'old oil' which was regulated at an artificially low level. Now, this old oil commands the same price as 'new oil'. The producer suddenly finds that stepouts, in-fill locations, and deepening jobs are not only less risky but also more profitable.

And, he adds, producers also say higher prices make remedial work more attractive.

These remedial operations will prolong the productive life of many reservoirs previously on the brink of abandonment," he said.

"Moreover, closer spacing does inchrease per-acre recovery. And

Discovery reports made in Ochiltree

Texas American Energy Corp. has announced discoveries in Ochiltree County and a completion in Garfield County, Okla.

The Harbough 3-141 well was completed in the Cleveland formation with seven perforations across the zone of 7,088 to 7,214 feet and flowed oil at rates of 324 to 432 barrels of oil a day through a 25/64 inch choke in inital tests. A confirmation well has been approved by the working interest partners and the well is expected to be spudded in mid-March with a total projected depth of 9,000 feet to. test both the Cleveland sand and deeper Morrow sand zones. Texas American owns 25 percent before payout and 12.5 percent after recovery of lease and drilling costs. Triex Corp., a private company, and other investors own the remaining interest in the venture.

The Clarence Gigoux No. 1 well in Garfield County, Okla. was completed in the Second Wilcox formation with perforations from 7,361 to 7,375 feet and initial production test rates of 39 barrels of oil and 1,300,000 cubic feet of gas per day through a 10/64

The well has been connected to the pipeline and is currently delivering 1.3 million cubic feet gas with a flowing tubing pressure of 2,380 pounds. Texas American owns 25 percent working interest in the well with various private investors owning 75 percent of the working interest.

Clarence Gigoux No. 1 is only the second well in the Sooner Trend area. Most of the wells have been completed in the Mississippian formation which is also penetrated by the Gigoux well as a future producing

Gas problem undecided

WASHINGTON (AP) - Energy Secretary James B. Edwards says the government will not decide whether to seek faster decontrol of natural gas prices until an Energy Department study of the move's effects on the economy is completed.

Edwards said Thursday the study vill take two to four months to com-

A draft budget document drawn up by the Reagan administration suggested Sept. 30 as a possible date for immediate decontrol of natural gas. However, knowledgeable sources said that date was never seriously considwater flood prospects which pre-viously offered too little return can now be started.

As producers readjust their investments to reflect today's economics, McGhee-said, the fallout will change life for more than drilling contrac-

"Well servicing contractors will find themselves more in demand," he "Sales of rods and tubing will rise. More fracturing and acidizing jobs will be conducted. More sand control jobs will be performed, more pumps sold, more pumping units.'

McGhee said the prospect of greater per-rig productivity worries few contractors

"They believe the increase in money supply wilf more than offset,' McGhee said.

In fact, he added, most observers say a shift toward development work. was already under way when President Reagan signed the order ending price controls eight months ahead of schedule. With that anticipation, producers appeared to have been realigning their priorities by the time

McGhee said there is indication that there are now 17 U.S. firms manufacturing oil well drilling rigs.

This compares to fewer than 10 firms only five years ago," he said. The domestic output also is being supplemented by an influx of existing rigs from Canada.

McGhee said new Canadian regulations probably have already caused 100 rigs to move across the border and another 100 are almost certain to

Plant plans announced

NEW YORK - The residual oil hy- in 1985. droprocessing unit to be constructed at Texaco Inc.'s Convent, La., refinery will use a combination H-Oil hy drocracking and partial oxidization process, the company reports.

Richard R. Dickson, vice president in charge of Strategic Planning for Texaco, told a McGraw-Hill sponsored seminar on the economics and politics of crude oil refining that the choice of the H-Oil process combined with Texaco's partial oxidation process for hydrogen production reply sented "the optimum process" for both product yield and long-term economics

Construction of the hydroprocess ing unit and related facilities to upgrade high-sulfur residual oil into lighter clean petroleum products at the Convent refinery is expected to begin in early 1982 and be completed

The H-Oil process was developed by hydrocabon Research Inc. (HRI), a subsidiary of Dynalectron Corp, and is being licensed worldwide by both HRI and Texaco Development Corp., Texaco's patent and licensing subsidiary

Discussing the projected effect of changes in crude oil quality on the refining industry, Mr. Dickinson said, We see the need for much greater refining flexibility as to the type of crude that can be processed." Dickinson said few refiners in the next decade will be able to afford the luxury of constricting refining capacity to a narrow range of better-quality crude

In ordere to remain competitive. they must be able to process crude mixes containing heavier and higher sulfur types, he said.

Price controls sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge has been asked to order President Reagan to reimpose price controls on three fuels until a public hearing is held on his decision to eliminate the ceilings.

A coalition of nine members of Congress, three state governments and organizations representing labor, consumers, senior citizens and blacks told U.S. District Judge Harold H. Greene Thursday that a public hearing must precede a decision to decontrol fuel prices. Reagan lifted the controls from crude oil, gasoline and propane prices by executive order Judge Greene said he would rule in a week on the coalition's request, which was opposed by government lawyers who said Reagan's decision was legal and in the public interest.

Hank's Flite Center has advanced pilot training

Hank's Flite Center located at Midland Regional Air Terminal offers the most-advanced private pilot training in the Permian Basin area, according to Hank Henry, owner and instructor of the center.

While most pilot training courses offer only the 1930-established minimum of 40 hours of flight training, Hank's offers 50-66 hours of in-flight time before a pilot can apply for licensing.

The FAA approved the 40-hour minimum flight training requirements in 1930, Henry said, before pilots used radios (or radar), instrument flying, runways, flaps or made cross-country flights or cross-wind landings. 'A 40-hour pilot is rarely competent because of these reasons," he said.

Henry also administers the FAA-approved written and in-flight tests for pilot licensing for the Permian Basin area. Mechanics exams can also be taken at Hank's.

For more than 15 years, Hank's Flite Center has been turning out qualified pilots. And Hank has new pilot training sessions beginning regularly. For 36 hours of training, the fee at Hank's is only $175 for everything - including equipment and books.

Hank's offers planes for sale and rent, too. For the person who has to get to rigs in places like San Angelo, Big Spring, Hobbs or Roswell where there is limited flight access, flying a private plane makes sense.

And at Hank's Flite Center, buying a plane now makes "cents," too. With the cost of sophisticated aircrafts now somewhere around $400,000 and expected to spiral an additional $52,000 in the next 12 months, smaller aircrafts are increasing at about 10 percent a year as well. Buying now decreases the private owners' initial investment - and can save time and money later by enabling the traveler to fly more directly to the places he or she needs to go.

Gasoline-alcohol blend falling on hard times

By JIM DRINKARD

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Gasohol, the gasoline-alcohol blend that went on the market two years ago and was ballyhooed as a means of lessening U.S. dependence on Arab oil and helping American farms, has come on hard times.

Industry spokesmen say sales of the fuel have leveled off or dropped in recent months, primarily because gasohol generally costs a few cents a gallon more than already high-priced

But although some executives involved with gasohol are pessimistic, most say the fuel has carved out a small, but fairly solid niche for itself in the marketplace.

"Gasohol is not making great increases in sales, but it has reached a level of acceptance," says R.R. Brett, retail marketing manager for Texaco, the nation's largest gasohol marketer with sales in 22 Midwestern and Northeastern states and the District of Columbia.

From a minuscule start in 1979, sales of gasohol grew to just over 1 billion gallons last year, slightly more than I percent of all gasoline sales. But industry officials say most of the growth was in the first six months of 1980. A glut of petroleum and rising prices for the 200-proof alcohol that is used to blend gasohol thinned the ranks of buyers by year's end, they

"Gasohol is a hard sell," says Dick Burket, a vice president of the nation's largest fuel alcohol producer, Archer Daniels Midland Co. of Decatur, Ill. "We don't control our own destiny. We have to find an alcohol buyer who has nine parts of gasoline to mix it with. And the price has to be such that people will accept it.'

When the blend of 90 percent gasoline and 10 percent alcohol was introduced at neighborhood fuel pumps, it sounded ideal, a way to turn the country's grain resources into fuel and to stretch oil supplies.

Many motorists bought a few tanks, usually paying a few cents a gallon more for slightly better performance and the patriotic satisfaction that their-cars were running on fuel that was at least 10 percent native.

But people could only be so patriotic, or so enthused," says Burket, whose company bought thousands of tons of Midwestern grain as raw material to produce half of the 110 million gallons of domestic alcohol used for fuel in 1980.

Some small companies that initially marketed gasohol have dropped it from their lines because of poor sales. One is Highway Oil-Co. of Topeka, Kan., whose vice president Ray Gaffney is more pessimistic than Burket.

"People aren't going to buy it. they're already getting ripped off," says Gaffney. "We can't charge you more for it if your car will run on straight unleaded. You'll buy one tankful to give the Ayatollah (Ruhollah Khomeini a message) ... but no more.

Twenty-nine states now give fuel tax or sales tax breaks to gasohol as a way of making it more competitive, and gasohol is exempt from the fourcents-a-gallon federal excise tax for the same reason. Even then, it often is priced a few cents per gallon more than unleaded regular gasoline, the grade with which it usually com-

Also adding to gasohol's cost is transportation by tanker truck, a process much more expensive than moving gasoline through a pipeline. And there is also the cost of blending the fuel and storing it in separate tanks.

Farmers boosted the introduction of gasohol two years ago as a way to stimulate grain demand and drive up the price of their products. But corn - the primary grain from which alcohol is made - then sold for $2 a bushel. Now it goes for about $3.25; pushing alcohol prices upward to

Those high prices led American Agri-Fuels Corp. to announce this past week that it was closing its alcohol refining plant at Rock Port, Mo., because alcohol had become too expensive to use as a motor fuel. The plant, which Agri-Fuels opened to provide alcohol for its production of gasohol, had employed 28, people at full production but the workforce had dwindled to four.

And Archer Daniels Midland has put on hold its plans for a Des Moines, Iowa, plant that would be the world's largest until the company can see a definite upward trend for gasohol

Most gasohol use is concentrated in the Midwest, near the plants that produce alcohol, says Al Mavis, president of the National Gasobol Commission, based in Lincoln, Neb. Iowa is the leading state for sales, consuming about 15 percent of the nation's gaso-

The steady price increases in gasoline and heating oil since decontrol "escalate public skepticism" and "provide unnecessary ammunition to those who would prefer to see us work under rigid government controls," said William Quortrup, president of the National Oil Jobbers Council.

Quortrup said the hefty increases since President Reagan announced total decontrol on Jan. 28 were "diffi cult to justify in light of the general availability of supply and the extremely competitive retail marketplace.

He said all segments of the petroleum industry should demonstrate price restraint to "avoid a repeat of the regulatory debacle of the past 10 The Oil Jobbers Council represents

China to decrease capital investment

BY MICHAEL PARKS The Los Angeles Times

PEKING - China's determined economic retrenchment, which will reduce capital investment by more than 50, percent this year, is cutting deeply into foreign sales here, ending visions of a vast Chinese market for the West's troubled industries.

Japan, China's largest trading partner, has just seen $1.5 billion in major contracts canceled. West Germany's exports to China were down almost 25 percent last year, and those of Britian, France and Italy were down almost as much.

With few new orders for the past eight months and more project cancellations likely, the outmore bleak The United States, however, is proving to be the major exception. Sino-American trade more than doubled last year, totaling $4.8 billion; and the Washingtonbased National Council for Sino-U.S. Trade is estimating that such trade will increase to more than $6 billion this Tear. despite the construction cutback in China

American exports to China last year came to nearly $3.8 billion, giving the United States a $2.7-billion trade surplus, more than twice the surplus of 1979.

The main reason for the growth in U.S. exports, which are now 27 times what they were five years ago, has been the surge in China's purchase of agricultural products, particularly grain and cotton. Last year, these agricultural sales came to $2.1 billion, and American officials have estimated that they would double by 1985 with the purchase of feed grains and materials for light industry

Slower growth is foreseen for U.S. manufactured goods, particularly industrial equipment, because of the prolonged economic readjustment. But this is a more favorable outlook than Japan and most West European countries face here.

He was speaking not just of future sales, but of past deals, too. "The most discouraging thing about the current economic situation is to see deals we worked hard on for two or three years fall apart 18 months after they were signed," he

When plans were canceled last month for a huge petrochemical complex at Nanjing, the capital of the east China province of Jiangsu, West Germany lost three whole-plant contracts and Japan lost five. The "pause" of six months to a year in the construction of the first phase of the giant Baoshan steel mill outside Shanghai and the indefinite postponement of its second phase will hit Japan and West Germany hard.

Some American companies are also affected by these cutbacks. Wean United Inc., a manufacturer of steel-mill equipment, had an $80-million contract at Baoshan. Pullman-Kellogg Inc. is working to mothball petrochemical plant equipment it had sold here.

Earlier, development of what would have been the world's largest copper mine and concentrating plant was postponed after the Fluor Corp. completed the engineer ing and design study, Kaiser Engineers Inc., a subsidiary of Raymond International Inc., had been doing engineering work to develop a new iron ore mine and expand a 30-year-old iron ore complex when the cutbacks were begun.

But because of their late entry into the Chinese market and the lack of cheap export credits to compete with those of Japanese and West European firms, American companies were not heavily involved as prime contractors in the big projects that are being canceled or postponed.

Leonard Woodcock, the American ambassador in Peking for the past 'Two years ago, China three and a half years, looked like a bonanza for had cautioned U.S. busius, and we committed nessmen that Chinese ourseives heavily," the plans for 120 major ed by 1985 at a ost of $600 billion or more, were "sheer fantasy.

American companies tend to concentrate on sales of equipment and technology to renovate existing facilities and to expand China's export industries, particularly textiles and clothing. Still, U.S. exports last year reflected China's changing economic priorities. The sales of iron and steel-mill products, for example, dropped sharply from $157 million to $42 million as construction was cut back, and China's reappraisal of all major projects led to the halving of U.S. exports of mining and oil-field equipment to $41 million. although renewed growth is expected.

At the same time, the United States became China's biggest commodity supplier, making American exports a critical ingredient in the development of Chinese agriculture and light industry and eventually in the restructuring of the whole economy 'The output of light industry rose by more than 17 percent last year, and it is true to say that we could not have achieved that without the import of cotton, yarn and synthetic fibers from the U.S.," a Chinese foreigntrade official remarked. This cut the previous trade deficit of $2 billion to about $530 million, and gives China a probable balance of payments surplus of nearly $2 billion.

About a quarter of the increased export earnings was due to higher oil prices. China sold less oil, but at higher prices, according to oil industry sources here An export push within

Chinese industry boosted sales of machinery and other industrial equipment by 37 percent last year, reducing the country's dependence on consumer goods and agricultural products as exports when they are needed increasingly for the domestic market.

ClayDesta Towers sets groundbreaking Monday

Groundbreaking ceremonies for ClayDesta Towers are scheduled at 10 a.m. Monday.

The facility, which will serve as the headquarters for the Clayton W. Williams Jr. companies, will be erected in ClayDesta Plaza, a 25-building office complex being developed on a 105-acre plot at the corner of Wadley and Big Spring streets.

On hand for the ground-breaking will be officials of the Williams companies, Midland Chamber of Commerce representatives, and city and county officials, according to Bob Smith, executive diretor of the development, and A. Joe Mitchell Jr., project man-

ClayDesta Towers, a two-building facility, each with six floors, will include 200,000 square feet of working space, including the connecting ground floor

One of the towers will be the corporate headquarters for all the Williams companies. The other will be for lease to other companies.

The second major project announced for ClayDes-Joe Liberty, resident manager of the Midland ta Plaza, a 200,000-square-foot building, will serve as been named one of the top twenty investment bro-sion. Work will start on that project in the near

Revenues, expenses decline

Both revenues and expenses fell slightly under budget estimates in January for the Colorado River Municipal Water District. This is largely due to the distortion of assigning each month one-twelfth of the annual budget, which fails to recognize that heaviest expenditures and revenues occur in the peak periods of the summer.

Revenues of the month amounted to $668,246 which was half of one per cent off budget target. Expenditures for opera-tion totalled $336,778 slightly over one half of one per cent of the budget period. This left $331,-468 surplus, of which $206,468 went to reserves for debt retirement.

Of total revenues, $529, 745 came from cities, $127,504 from oil companies. Biggest single item of expense was $181,645, for electric energy, or $76,535 less than budget. This will change drastically when summer pumping steps up. In Jauary 1980, electric energy cost $125,040. One interesting figure was that 99.9 per cent of the total 939,913,000 galons of potable water produced came from Lakes J.B. Thomas and E.V. Spence. Sale of brine or unpotable lowflow diversion from the Colorado River brought total production for January to 1,050,377,000 gallons. At the end of the month Lake Thomas had 60,070 acre feet, or 29.45 per cent of capacity; Lake Spence had 237,790 acre feet, or 48.62 per cent of capacity.

Vascular surgery said to cut risk of strokes

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) - The best weapon against strokes is vascular surgery, while aspirin is the least effective, a 10-year University of California study has concluded.

Researchers say the use of anticoagulants may worsen the patients. condition and may be only slightly more effective than aspirin in improving it.

The report issued Thursday by Dr Eugene F. Bernstein, chief of vascular surgery at the UC San Diego School of Medicine, was based on the results of 456 endarterectomies performed since 1971. As a surgical procedure, the endarterectomies usually were performed on the two carotid arteries in the neck which provide much of the brain's supply of blood. The surgeon splits the artery open and scrapes out fatty deposits blocking the bloodstream

"This is a very controversial area," Bernstein said of stroke treatment. 'Many physicians ... are very reluctant to recommend surgery in these

"With aspirin, there's no risk, but there's always some risk with surgery, he said. "The question is whether to take that risk. Our study shows that, for selected patients, the risk is worth taking."

After comparing surgery and oth therapies in people who had suffered mini-strokes known as transient ischemic attacks, the researchers said they found surgery reduced the stroke rate in 150 cases to 2 percent.

Aspirin, which has been the most common treatment for stroke-risk patients because of its help in preventing blood clotting, lowered a male's risk of having strokes by only 1 to 3 percent and had no effect at all on a female's risk of stroke, Bernstein

Anticoagulants may lower the risk of strokes, he said, but complications from bleeding were brought on by the drug, outweighing the benefits.

As soon as anticoagulants are discontinued, Bernstein said, the patient is thrown back into another high-risk

'Offensive language' to be removed from monument

- An inscription alluding to white supremacy will be removed from the controversial Liberty Monument, which commemorates a post-Civil War skirmish over reconstruction, an aide to Mayor Ernest Morial has declared.

"The inscription will be removed," Reynard Roehon; the eity's chief administrative officer, told city councilmen Thursday. 'It may take 30 days in order to receive bids, but if it costs less than $2,500 we can get informal bids and do it in seven days.

. The monument was erected at the foot of Canal Street in 1892 to commemorate skirmishs between white sympa: thizers of the Confederacy and supporters of the Union-backed government. The names of 14 whites killed in the battle were inscribed on the monument.

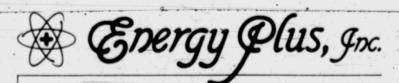

In 1932, an inscription was added, saying the battle was fought for the cause of "white supremacy." The monument has since been a source of controversy among blacks, including Morial, New Orleans' first black

Majority of tiny town Adventist

Associated Press Writer

KEENE, Texas (AP) — Travelers whizzing down Highway 67 through this north central Texas town might not notice that the fast, food joints end at the city limits.

Without stopping, they wouldn't know that the post office is closed on Saturday instead of Sunday and that the only grocery has one of the most extensive arrays of natural foods and meat substitutes in the

The modest frame and brick houses that line the highway reveal little about this town of 3,400, 50 miles southwest of Dallas. The only hint comes from a small sign that points the way to Southwestern Adventist College. The college was built in 1893, but it remains the hub of the town, and its largest employer. College president Dr. Don McAdams estimates 90 percent of the town's residents are Seventh Day Adventists, and says most of them are involved with the

The college owns most of the town's businesses, including the motel, the gas station, the Loma Linda Food Store, the car wash, the shopping center, Brandom Kitchen Cabinet Co. and Southwestern Color Graphics, a print shop.

$15 million a year, McAdams says.

Although Keene is the smallest Texas town with a college, tuition ranks among the highest - $152 a McAdams says the number of professional programs offered, especially the nursing and pre-medicine programs, require expensive equipment and low teacher-student ratios.

'The way the students pay it is by working," he said. "And that's sort of the essential uniqueness of the town ... That's why all these industries are here. About 85 percent of the students work 15 to 20

Some businesses - like Nu-Cushion, the nation's largest stick horse manufacturer - are not owned by the university, but they still rely on cheap labor from the 700 college students

'Some of the industries were started by the college specifically for the purpose of providing labor for the students. Others were started by people who just realized that this was a good labor market," McA-

Others were taken over by the university when they encountered financial problems. An example is Brandom, the town's largest operation.

The college, having several hundred students, working over there, couldn't take a chance on letting it go under, because then where would all the students work? So the college ended up bailing it out and taking it over," McAdams said.

The university-owned businesses operate under the umbrella of Southwestern Diversified Industries, and the college's business manager is the mini-conglomerate's president. Managers of the various businesses are the vice presidents.

"In a sense, we just change hats. We have a meeting as the board of the college. We then adjourn that meeting and start a meeting as the shareholders of Southwestern Diversified Industries," McA-

THE BUSINESSES "could be run directly by the college, but there are some good reasons why they shouldn't be," he added. "We believe in the separation of church and state, and so these industries are set up as a separate organization. They pay taxes and make a profit and they're chartered by the State of Texas, but the college owns all of the stock."

The Adventists shun all drugs and most are vegetarians, McAdams said. They emphasize fresh air, exercise, and low intakes of salt, sugar and fat. One California study showed Adventists live an average

Depression goes back to 4th Century B.C.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've been reading about the common cold and its consequences in terms of the number of days lost from work and the cost of medical care. But it seems to me that there's another illness that is just as common and which costs even more, and that's depression. I don't know of anyone who has not experienced feelings of depression at some time in their lives, and the consequences generally are more serious than those of the common cold. I would like to know what causes depression (Is it the stresses of modern life?) and what, if anything, is being done to find a cure.— Edna

Dear Edna: Feelings of depression are far from a new phenomenon. Even as far back as the 4th century B.C., Hippocrates, who is considered the Father of Medicine, expressed himself on the subject. Today, interest in the causes of depression continues as researchers pursue a number

It is to his credit that Hippocrates anticipated current thinking on the subject by attributing depression to some biological or chemical imbalance in the individual. Specifically, he believed that depression was more likely to affect people who had an excess of black bile. This effort to explain depression on the basis of an internal chemical imbalance is noteworthy in view of the fact that researchers are continuing to seek some biological explanation of what, as you indicate, is a widespread condition.

What is different today is that scientists are looking to the brain for answers to the causes of depression, and they are looking at neurotransmitters rather than at black bile. Dr. Steven-S. Simring, clinical associate professor of psychiatry at the New Jersey Medical School, explains that neurotransmitters, which carry nerve impulses between neurons, are found in small quantities in the brain; and there is some evidence that depressed people often have a deficit in neurotransmitters. Conversely, when people suffering from depression are given anti-depressive medication, their depression seems to disappear about the same time that the concentration of neurotransmitters in the brain appears to increase.

While there are some similarities between the human brain and an electric circuit, the brain differs in that direct connections often are not the rule. Dr. Simring draws an analogy between the work of the neurotransmitters and an electric plug that is stuck into a container of fluid connected to an outlet, rather than being connected directly to the outlet. Since the fluid transmits current from the outlet to the plug, changing the composition of the fluid can change the properties of the electricity it carries.

Further evidence of the role of neurotransmitters in depression is suggested by the finding that people who suffer from mania — a condition which, symptomatically, is the opposite of depression — have an excessive amount of neurotransmitters in the brain

Of course not all changes in mood call for the use of drugs. All of us are affected by the events of the day, and some of these events can be depressing. To be elated in the face of a realistically depressing event would itself be abnormal. But when a person is depressed in the absence of such an event, or remains depressed for an extended period of time, the condition may be due to a biochemical imbalance.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

MOVING COST DEDUCTION

Both renters and home owners are eligible for the often overlooked moving cost tax deduction. This special tax break for taxpayers who move when their job locations change, is available even if other tax deductions are not itemized.

Moving expenses are deductible if your new job site is more than 35 miles farther away from your old home than was your former job location. For example, if your old job location was five miles from your old home, the new job location must be at least 40 miles (5 plus 35) away to qualify.

No dollar deduction limit applies to direct moving expense for transporting the taxpayer and his family and household goods. A $3000 limit applies to some indirect moving expenses. This includes up to 30 days temporary housing at the new location, cost of househunting travel from the old home to find a new one, and expenses for sale purchase, or lease of a residence. Not more than $1,500 is deductible. for temporary housing and house-hunting costs.

Turning Midland Gold

Midland's a proud city and her residents are staunch supporters of free enterprise. We Midlanders like to pay our own way if at all possible and we don't care too much for accepting assistance from the federal government when we can help our own people and take care of ourselves.

Our philosophy seems to be "what the federal government can do for us we can do for ourselves better and cheaper." When we do take care of our own it's a great system. But when we don't, the results can be tragic and heartbreaking.

In the past we haven't done enough for our senior citizens here and, unfortunately, inflation has taken its toll on them. It's true that some of Midland's older citizens fare pretty well. But that. certainly isn't the norm.

Realizing inflation was wrecking the family budgets of the elderly and handicapped on fixed incomes, the Rev. Steve Edwards, senior minister of First Christian Church; Pat Faulkner, who is with Senior Services at First Christian, and Janet Hestwood organized a merchants discount program for senior citizens and individuals: with permanent handicaps. It's called Midland Gold and it promises some relief for the often neglected member of our city — the senior citizen and handicapped person.

Under the program, participating Midland merchants will offer discounts on items ranging from 5 to 50 percent. The program will be operated on a cash-only basis.

The Midland Javcees have become involved in the program, walking the streets to sign up merchants for the program. All Midland bank presidents have put their support behind the program and are mailing letters to local merchants urging participation in the program.

And the Chamber of Commerce . has thrown its support behind the program. All-in-all, Midland Gold has the support of a wide-ranging cross-section of the Midland business and social community.

This is a program that can help brighten the lives of the Tall City's elderly or handicapped residents. They have given a large part of their lives to this community; we all owe something to them in return.

We urge Midland's merchants to support this worthwhile program to help those among us who really have no means of fighting inflation's devastation.

Let's all help in turning Midland Gold!

Costly mail service

An increase in first class postage rates to 18 cents is all but official, so the next question is how soon they will go to 20 cents,

That may depend on whether the unions representing postal workers heed the plea of Postmaster General William F. Bolger for "moderation" in their contract negotiations opening in April. Future rates also may be affected by the outcome of the Postal Service efforts to introduce a nine-digit Zip Code as a means of cutting corners in the mailsorting process.

Mr. Bolger has asked for a 20cent rate effective now, on the theory it would allow the Postal Service to keep rates fixed for as long as three years. That's how long the present 15-cent rate has been in effect. But the Postal Rate Commission believes an 18cent rate is sufficient to keep abreast of rising costs for the foreseeable future.

Rising postal rates arouse nostalgia for the purple three-cent stamp bearing George Washington's picture that was sufficient for many years to send a personal letter. But is it the stamp we miss or the letters? Postal rates have reached the point where a long-distance phone call is not only more convenient than writing a letter but almost as cheap.

Technology has so benefited the economics of telephone communication that a one-minute call can be made to almost any point in the United States for 21 or 22 cents at the most, by direct dialing at the tate-night or weekend rate. When Johnny is scolded for doing so poorly in English class that he can't write a decent letter, he can point to the phone and say, why

'Near Poor' designation a sentence to poorhouse

WASHINGTON - President Reagan hasn't been in office for two months and he's already created a new class of people. Before Reagan we had the rich, the middle class and the poor. The new class is now called the "Near Poor."

The president and his advisers decided they needed another class because the government was putting too many people in the poverty class. Instead of dealing with poverty as previous administrations had, the Reagan people made the decision to eliminate a percentage of the poor people by promoting them to "Near Poor." In order to do this they raised the requirements for what it took to be declared "poor.

· I know a struggling mother who used to think of herself as poor since she had to work and raise her children without the help of her husband. WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Pentagon 'security measure' hampers press

WASHINGTON - The panjandrums of the Pentagon, as they eagerly await the extra billions that President Reagan has promised them, don't want their spending spree spoiled by newspaper exposes of military waste, profiteering and fraud.

They therefore would like to invest government secrecy with the halo of national survival. Already they are busy behind the scenes constructing new barriers between the accusatory reporter and the reading public.

This is a project that will require some tinkering with the laws that uphold freedom of the press. For such a delicate operation, my associates Indy Badhwar and Jack Mitchell have learned, the brass hats have turned to Rep. Sam Stratton, D a crust conservative who, in behalf of the Pentagon, has called for a radical new security program.

Under his proposal, "no declassification of the nation's most vital military secrets can be made by any single official - even the Secretary of Defense." The object of this requirement is to restrict the civilians who are supposed to rule the Pentagon and give greater control over the news flow to the military professionals.

The idea of declassifying information by committee, as these masters of the bureaucratic arts know, would also reduce the amount of news that escapes from the Pentagon. For once a paper is classified by any of the government's thousands of rubber-stamp wielders, it would be almost impossible to prod a committee into removing the secrecy stamp.

Jack Anderson

But the brass hats are also aware that when the government keeps a tight nozzle on the news, the official pipelines spring multiple leaks. Stratton would plug these leaks - shades of Watergate! - with punitive mea-

Citing the British Official Secrets Act - and this 200 years after the American colonies took up arms against the tyranny of just such measures - Stratton proposes that the government "prevent, by the establishment of appropriate penalties, the publication of such secrets, or ... require that any publication of such information by the media be accompamied by the name of the source of such information.

This pernicious proposal would instantly make every editor in the country eligible for a stretch in the slammer. They not only would be unable to expose military misspending unless the government itself chose to enlighten the populace, but they could write no more than the government wished them to report about the mili-

National rail passenger system should not be discarded passenger cars; its on-time perfor-

WASHINGTON - A true conserva tive takes a long-range look at what goes on in this human adventure, and makes judgments accordingly. A true conservative should measure human values as much as analyze ledger. books. That's why the Reagan administration should think three times before pushing hard to diminish Amtrak, that quasi-government enterprise struggling to revive a good national passenger rail system.

Ten years ago, when Amtrak began, that system was a disgrace. It was more fitting to some undeveloped country than the world's leading nation. Since the railroads defaulted on passenger service, Congress decided that the long chore of rebuilding the system was worth the substantial ex-

Amtrak is a money loser. Its riders pay only 41 percent of what it costs to transport them. Even if Amtrak met its present cost-reduction schedule, by 1984, riders would be paying only half of the real cost of a ticket. Indeed, Amtrak may never break even, though the butlook isn't that dismal.

I can think of enterprises that began in much sounder condition than Amtrak which lost money for many years. The infant radio industry is one. Color TV is another. Sports Illustrated lost money for a decade before becoming the highly profitable magazine it is now. Gimlet-eyed Reaganites, do not despair of Amtrak!

Ah, but David Stockman's squinty eye sees the federal Amtrak subsidy growing from $906 million in 1981 to $1.4 billion in 1986. So he wants a quick cut of $25 million for openers, with more and larger cuts each year until 1986, when he would slash more than $1 billion. That's putting rail passenger service down a great deal, Mr.

Stockman. Perhaps if you stepped back, as conservatives usually do, you would appreciate the improvement in Amtrak, and, by using a little vision, see where it could go. In 1971, Amtrak carried 16 million passengers. By 1980, it had grown to 22 million. The 1981 projection is for 23 million. That's a 44 percent increase in 10 years - not bad for a once-miserable system. True, the booming air passenger business has grown 75 percent in the same period.

The point must be made that the U.S. never established a national pas-Senger transportation policy, as Europe and Japan did. Instead of building modern rail systems after World War II, as they did, we built an enormous tax-funded interstate highway network. We assumed that cheap gasoline would be with us forever. We also generously subsidized the airline industry, and let the privately owned railroads go to hell.

We Americans are enthusiastic but impatient. Amtrak got cheered when it began, but it wasn't long before it caught all manner of criticism, some wits wondering whether it was a disease. Consequently, Congress and a secretary of transportation cracked down on Amtrak. Its board and president, Alan S. Boyd, a seasoned transportation official, dutifully promised to make it more cost effective (to use that dreadful term).

As Amtrak struggles, it can also be proud that: by 1982, it will have replaced or completely rebuilt all its mance improves steadily, and in January was 82 percent; 1981 ridership is up; complaints dropped 35 percent last year; by far, it is the safest mode of transportation, with only five passengers killed since 1973. Moreover, when floods knocked out eight bridges used by Phoenix commuters, Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt arranged for Amtrak and Southern Pacific Railroad to provide daily rail service for 46,000 persons during a 10-day period. Amtrak has plans to develop 20 new high-traffic corridors such as those now serving the Northeast and the Los Angeles-San Diego run. Best prospects are Tampa-Orlando-Miami, San Francisco Bay Area-Sacramento-Reno, and Dallas-Houston-Las Vegas. They also want to provide more trains for existing routes which have good patron'age, and, as trackage improves, try to maintain 80 m.p.h. schedules. Resumption of the threehour Washington-New York schedule is set for 1981, and Boyd hopes for an even faster non-stop schedule by

But even Amtrak's friends in Congress now wonder whether Amtrak management can fight off Stockman's proposed sharp cuts. "Normally, this could be compromised," says one Amtrak official, "but this is not a normal time.

Sure, Amtrak is not a gee-whiz story. It can't be at this point. But given more time, it can develop into a respectable national rail system, and after all, we Americans want to be proud of our country, don't we? Isn't there shame in having an inadequate rail passenger system or maybe none at all? Aren't there millions of Americans who don't want to fly, or can't afford to, who can't or won't drive, or just prefer riding trains? Isn't the passenger train, when respectably loaded, the most fuel-efficient transportation system going?

And don't airlines get expensive government support from tax-funded airports, traffic-eontrol systems, and other federal services? How about buses having their right-of-ways, the highways, paid for by taxes? Railroads build and maintain their own right-of-way and pay for their own stations and dispatch, security and police operations.

Besides, isn't it conservative to realize that, if we diminish or destroy what rail passenger system we have, one day when we need it again, it will cost quantum billions to put back in running condition? Our railroad system represents 150 years of investment and work, and is too valuable to discard for the sake of necessary, but short-lived, budget-cutting pro-

Texas legislators back in 'starting gate' on behalf of betting bill

By BILL KIDD Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - It was San Antonio Sen. .E. "Red" Berry who made the classic suggestion that Texas should e divided into two states, north and south, so that the southern half could have its fun by enjoying horse racing, gambling and drinking, with the orthern half having its fun by being outraged over what the southern half was doing

Texas now has liquor by the drink which is moving into its second decade), and gambling - it could be argued, at least - in the form of

But Texas doesn't have pari-mutuel betting on horse racing, and that's what Berry kept pushing during his

and Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston, are sponsoring bills to allow parimutuel betting on horse racing in the state, however, which presumably would have Berry's blessing.

Horse racing is permissible in Texas; betting on horse racing isn't although there's a lot of unsanctioned and uncontrolled betting on that, football games and even (yes, even) elec-

Texas has had legal horse race gambling during, two periods in its history as a state: from 1905 to 1909 and from 1933 to 1937.

And there have been efforts to bring such gambling back in many ses-

It was Gov. James V. Allred who called lawmakers to Austin to repeal the last horse-race gambling legislation, after a rather bizarre legislative incident which saw a bill creating a racing commission and authorizing pari-mutuel betting being defeated but then appearing as an amendment and "rider," appropriately enough, on the General Appropriations Bill.

Supporters of the legislation already are working to get support for the measures from lawmakers.

"We're trying to show them," one explained, "that we don't have forked tails and cloven hooves.

In 1978, prior to another effort to get approval for pari-mutuel betting, three horse raising and racing groups announced a poll in which they said 67 percent of Texans believed that parimuteul betting should be legalized on a local option basis.

Supporters of pari-mutuel betting argue that the current situation in Texas hasn't stopped betting on horse racing, but merely driven it underground, or has caused Texans who want to palce their money in that kind of short-term, risky investment or to go to other state to do that.

Horse racing, the supporters say, is the No. 1 spectator sport in the country, and pari-mutuel betting in Texas would encourage that sport in Texas, with benefits to tourism and to the state in the form of increased tax

And, they argue, there would be additional employment at race tracks, with other benefits to the horsebreeding industry.

But opponents say pari-mutuel betting wouldn't bring any additional money into the state - it would merely take money away from other enterprises, and would be particularly bad in its effects on the poor, who would be encouraged to squander their already inadequate funds to benefit a small group of greedy exploiters.

And, they say, it would encourage the growth of organized crime and a flood of undesirable elements would swamp the state.

In 1968, the Anti-Crime Council of Texas raised the argument that parimutuel betting also would act "as a depressant to legitimate business and industry" by causing plant employees to sneak off from work to bet on horses.

Democrats voted in their May 1978 primary on a referendum on pari-mutuel betting, with that proposal failing by 34,507 votes - with 685,505 for and 720,012 against the local-option proposal

Some supporters of the non-binding proposal contended results were tabulated erroneously - and threatened to sue the Democratic Party.

That 1978 effort also was enlived by Rep. Frank Tejada, D-San Antonio, co-chairman of the Anti-Crime Council of Texas, telling a press conference his lafe had been threatened in 1977 during consideration of that year's part-mutual legislation by the Intergovernmental Affairs Commit-That sort of mage isn't what sup-porters of pari-mutuel like their proposal to have, which might account for the Texas Horseracing Association calling out folks like former Dallas Cowboys star Walt Garrison to argue that horseracing "isn't controlled by the underworld...it's...the healthiest, best-managed and most honest sport in the country.

But whether it is or whether it isn't, it doesn't look like there's any more chance for pari-mutuel betting getting approved in 1981 than there has: been in years past — so that the Red Berry Memorial Sweepstakes remainsomewhere in the uncharted future.

Your newspaper is to be congratulated for the coverage given the controversy over the water situation in Midland County. Yes, and that includes the city. I, for one, have been too long apathetic to this extremely serious problem that confronts this entire community not just the city or the county. All of us had better take an interest in this matter and pull together to successfully find a common solution.

Yes, I did finally drag myself down to City Hall Thursday morning to witness the joint meeting between the two local governing bodies. Unfortunately, there were only about twenty other interested citizens in attendance. As probably the most affluent community per capita in the whole world surely we as citizens can participate more actively in these very vital issues — including me.

I am a civil engineer and have direct experience in the design, construction and operation of sewage treatment plants in California and Arizona, If our sewage treatment plant is allowed to operate as it currently does with state approval, then it is obvious that the two states of California and Arizona enforce much stricter rules.

When surge loads hit a balanced treatment facility it destroys the treatment process for the entire flow. It then requires time to restore the treatment process. #### The water study

To The Editor:

Observing the Midland City Council looking at the proposal to study the problem of water flowing in Midland Draw I would like to make the following comments:

I feel that the City Council should receive our support for their action taken in insisting that Ed Reed and Associates be allowed to obtain the facts before attempting to afrive at speculative solutions that "may or may not" solve anything. I do recognize the desire of officials and the people that live along the draw to solve this as soon as possible as it does effect their livelyhood and health.

Some fifteen years ago, while in the employ of a major oil company, I was requested to work with Ed Reed on a water study for Midland. I found Ed Reed to be very competent and thorough in gathering his facts and data on which he makes recommendations to his clients. I have watched his work through the years for cities throughout the Permian Basin and personally believe he is an asset to our area. He will not make "a possible solution that may work" because of someone's desire; it will be on factual data. I would like to point out however, that at the conclusion of his-study there may be no solution to stopping the flow of water in Midland Draw. But I have confidence enough in him, that he will so advise the city in a competent and honest opinion what is the cause of the problem and if it cannot or can be controlled. If it is in part from the sewage lagoons, or wherever, Ed Reed will let the "chips fall where they may.

I personally know the Midland City Council is very well aware of the rise in the water table as water is popping up in basements and parks in the city. Water is seeping into the basement of City Hall and is controlled by pumping twenty four hours a day. Water is breaking out all over the area. If not in the basement of the County. Courthouse it is probably in the cellar of the elevator shaft. I think that anyone who has water now appearing in their basement or storm cellar should advise Reed of this, as this information is relative to his study.

Where are the laws to prevent this type of thing? I, for one, do not want to be hauled into court for "homicide!

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A female legislator has criticized a group of male colleagues for holding a. staff party at which they put on nylon stockings and had their blindfolded secretaries try to identify them by feeling their legs.

Price worked 10 years for Grammy

BURNS FLAT, Okla. (AP) - It took 10 or so undistinguished years in the music business before Chris Price had something this grand to cele-brate: his share of a Grammy Award. The 28-year-old Price, who lives in this small, western Oklahoma community, was congratulated all day Thursday after the song, "That Lovin' You Feelin' Again," won a Grammy. He wrote the song with singer Roy Orbison.

Orbison and singer Emmylou Harris won the award, for best country performance by a duo or vocal group, with the vocals for the song.

For Price, winning recognition for a Grammy came after years of playing Oklahoma clubs and touring as a backup musician with Orbison. "I'm in shock," Price said Thursday. "Maybe in a week or so I'll wake up and say, 'Hey, I won a

Photographer says his love of nature began at very early age

MOOSE LAKE, Minn. (AP) — For Les Blacklock, known throughout the country for his nature and wildlife photographs, appreciation for the world's natural wonders began at a very early age.

Blacklock hiked and hunted and fished with his father, who practiced law in Moose Lake, from the time he was a little tyke.

"As soon as I was old enough I was in the woods a lot and just fell in love with the wild," Blacklock says. "When I was a kid, I used to take the family Kodak into the brush and shoot pictures of rabbits, ducks and other wildlife. But some of the pictures were just blurs.

"Actually, I didn't get into wildlife photography until I was 9 years old. Can you imagine wasting all those was 2"

Unlike most kids, though, Blacklock never abandoned his early desire to be a wildlife photographer

After a stint training mountain troops for the U.S. Army in World War II and spending time stationed in the South Pacific, Blacklock returned to Minnesota and met his wife, Fran, while attending the University of Minnesota under the GI bill.

"Three months after we were married, Les went to live in northern Minnesota, near the North Shore," Fran said. "He wanted to do a movie on the deer in northern Minnesota, so he went to live in the woods."

"It was the winter of 1948," Blacklock added, during an interview at the Blacklocks' home near Moose Lake. "I stayed in the woods for two months working on that movie. I had a tent, but didn't use it most of the time.

"That movie probably made the biggest jump for me as far as being known. It was amazing how many people associated me with that movie."

Blacklock spent several years working as a commercial photographer and filmmaker, then began his career as a free-lance nature and wildlife photographer in 1956.

His extended trips into the wilderness continued to the Black Hills, to canoe country, to Isle Boyale.

"Les and I spent 4½ months on Isle Royale trying to film a fight between two bull moose," Fran said. "We waited and waited. Then one morning we heard a noise outside the tent and we peeked out. A short distance away there were two bulls charging one another, heads down.

"As we were watching them, they suddenly stopped, looked at the tent and ran toward us. Then they continued their fight right outside the tent. But we never did get pictures of moose fights on Isle Royale."

However, there have been other moose fights immortalized by the Blacklocks, including two Alaskan bulls that grace the September installment of the 1981 Blacklock Wildlife Calendar.

The calendar is one of four produced annually featuring the works of Blacklock and his son, Craig, also a wildlife photographer.

"The four calendars (the others are 'High West,'
'Minnesota Seasons' and 'Great Lakes Country') require about 50 pictures a year, and those are the cream of what we've got," Blacklock said.

And then there are the books — books by Les, books by Les and Fran, books by Craig.

Most recently, Blacklock published "Ain't Nature Grand!", a followup to "Meet My Psychiatrist" and the second book of a trilogy. The final book, "Listen to the Land," is in the works.

"'Ain't Nature Grand!' is more than just an old saying to celebrate a field of flowers or a colorful sunset," Blacklock said. "It's an awesome awareness and appreciation of a magnificent world."

It is to that magnificent world that the Blacklocks travel an average of six months a year — scouring the back country, hoping to capture Dall sheep, grizzlies, pronghorns and other living things on film so they can share their experiences with the world.

"If through reading our books and seeing our calendars people feel closer to the earth and to nature, and if they become excited about nature, then perhaps they will show more concern for our fragile earth," Blacklock said.

"The almighty dollar has pushed the need for clean air and clean water to the background, and we can't afford to do that."

March good time to feed pecan trees

By CHARLES W. GREEN
Midland County Extension Agent — Agriculture

March is a good time to feed pecan trees. There should be an ample supply of nutrients in the soil before bud break so that they will be available to the tree during its greatest period of growth.

A soil analysis would be the best method of determining the exact needs of pecans in any given location. Yard trees, in particular, where many years of fertilizer use has occurred in the lawn area may have special needs or problems of imbalance or excess of certain nutrients.

In general, though, one can assume that pecans will need annual application of nitrogen and zinc only. Less frequently, some phosphorous may be needed. More often, soil tests show an excess of phosphorous which can lead to severe iron deficiency, or unavailability. If the soil does contain excess amounts of phosphorous, then no additional application of this element should be made.

Fertilizers should be applied in the right place. Nitrogen should be applied in the feeder root zone. The feeder root zone is that area around the perimenter of the tree that extends three feet laterally from the drip line (end of the branches) in each direction. By far the largest majority of the feeder roots are located from six to 18 inches deep in the soil. Also the fertilizer should be applied on all sides of the tree because there is very little cross transfer

How much nitrogen does a tree need? On young trees, apply nitrogen at a rate of 1/4 to 1/3 pound of actual nitrogen per inch of trunk diameter measured three feet above the soil line. Some sources of nitrogen and amounts to use to get 1/4 to 1/3 pound actual N include: Ammonium sulfate (21-0-0), 1 to 11/2 pounds per inch trunk diameter; ammonium nitrate (32-0-0), 8/10 to 1 pound per inch; and urea (45-0-0), 6/10 to 3/4 pound per inch.

Zinc is best applied as a foliar spray starting when the first new leaves break. Pecan trees are poor extractors of zinc applied to the soil, especially when soil pH is 7.0 or above. A zinc spray program for mature pecan trees should be as follows: first spray, from bud break up to 2-inch leaves; second spray, seven days after first spray; third spray, 14 days after second spray; and fourth spray, 14 to 21 days after the third. On young, non-bearing trees, follow same schedule as for mature trees but continue to spray every two weeks until the first of August.

Zinc sprays can be formulated by mixing 36 percent zinc sulfate (dry powder) on NZN (liquid formulation of zinc nitrate) with water. You need three pounds of 36 percent zinc sulfate per 100 gallons of warer (two teaspoons per gallon) or 1¼ quarts of NZN per 100 gallons of water (2½ teaspoons per gallon). Spraying should be done in early morning or late evening hours to avoid burning.

Mature pecan trees will be so large that the average homeowner may not want to invest in the high pressure spray equipment necessary for complete foliage coverage. Even though soil application of zinc is inefficient, the grower can vertically band zinc sulfate in 12- to 18-inch holes punched in the drip line. Use a total amount of zinc sulfate equal to one pound per inch of trunk diameter. Space holes three feet apart in two circles underneath the drip line. Apply about ½ cup zinc sulfate in each hole until the required amount is applied.

The zinc sulfate can be combined with the nitrogen described above and the two applied together in the holes. However, if zinc is to be used as a foliar spray, then the nitrogen alone can merely be spread over the surface of the soil in the drip line area and watered in. Nitrogen is soluble in water and can be incorporated that way.

One word of caution in fertilizing pecan trees. Do not apply manure to pecans. It will tie up the zinc and manganese leading to possible severe deficiencies of these elements.

Another job that may be needed in home lawns soon is scalping to remove thatch accumulation. Thatch accumulation is the undecayed layer of stems and roots that may build up in lawns, especially the hybrid bermudas. It probably would be wise to delay scalping for another two weeks just in case we have some more severe winter weather. Most lawns can be mowed closely with a rotary mower to substitute for scalping. If more than a two-inch layer of thatch exists, it may require vertical raking with a special dethatching ma-

CONSUMER TIPS

Plan ahead before making move

By LINDA TRUITT Better Business Bureau of the Permian Basin, Inc.

Americans are constantly on the move. In fact, one out of every five families will change residence this year. Whether it's across town or cross-country, moving can be traumatic. Nevertheless, the more that consumers know about movers, their industry practices and regulations, the better the chances of minimizing problems and expense.

The most important step in a move is the planning. Being well-organized and understanding the problems related to moving households goods result in a nore successful move, according to William H. Kirk. general manager of American Mayflower Moving and Storage Services.

When planning a move, the choice of a mover is a crucial factor. A concerned agent will make sure the process runs as smoothly as possible and problems are handled quickly. If you are unfamiliar with a company, ask for references or call your Better Business Bureau for a reliability report. Another source of information might be recommendations from friends or relatives.

Since a license is required to move goods within the state as well as across state lines, ask to see the company's license or proper authority. Interstate movers are required to furnish copies of their performance record for the previous year. By examining this record, potential customers can learn such information as how punctual the company has been and how accurate with is estimates.

The cost estimate may not be the best factor to rely on in choosing a mover since the final amount cannot be determined until after the truck has been weighed. Kirk-state actual charges are based on three things: the weight of the shipment, the dis-tance to be traveled, and any extra services such as packing or additiona insurance.

Although licensed movers are required to look at your goods and provide you with a written estimate, the final cost cannot be determined until the weight of the load has been checked against a fixed tariff rate. If you prefer, you have the right to watch your shipment being weighed. When preparing to move, seriously decide what is worth moving since the total weight will affect the final cost. State regulations do not allow a mover to handle such items as pets or plants, so arrangements. should be made to transport these items separately. Also, household cleaning products should be all packed or separately transported because spillage could cause serious damage to other household problems; make sure all items are listed. If not explained, ask the mover about liability for loss or damage. State and federal regulations require a company to automatically insure your belongings for 60 cents per pound, but this is generally below the market value of household goods. For very little money, a consumer can purchase added liability coverage.

A licensed mover will inventory all of your belongings and provide you with a copy. To minimize future.

Unless previous arrangements have been made, the company will expect the bill to be paid before the goods are delivered. Payment must be made by a money order, certified check or cash, not by a personal check.

Plan to be on hand for the delivery of your possessions and check each piece of furniture and carton promptly for problems. If a claim is needed, file it as soon as possible with the company agent in the destination city. It is important to remember that the company is not automatically responsible for any problem that arises. Lack of insurance or poorly kept inventory records may keep you from obtaining a satisfactory adjustment.

Preparation, a concerned agent and cooperation can go a long way to cut down on problems. Moving may not be fun, but it needn't be traumatic.

Outbreak linked to contaminated pot

ATLANTA (AP) — Since December, 62 people have been hospitalized in Steubenville, Ohio, and Lansing, Mich., with severe diarrhea linked to contaminated marijuana, federal health officials reported Friday

The CDC, in its Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report, said the severe diarrhea, lasting one to five days, resulted from a bacterial disease called salmonellosis, caused by the Salmonella muenchen organism.

The health commissioner just about fell out of his chair" when the discovery was announced, said Dr. David Taylor, a CDC medical investigator who recently made the link between the marijuana and the diarrhea outbreak.

'On the one hand, there was relief," Taylor said in an interview Thursday. "On the other hand, how do you control an illicit drug? You can't have a re-

Taylor said he was about to give up his investigation when he and co-workers discovered "young adults were involved" in the outbreak

The disease, a type of food poisoning, generally affects young children. It was unusual to find an outbreak among young adults, Taylor said.

'We started to concentrate on exposure in that group," he said. "We checked fast food restaurants and bars - some kind of hangout like that. Then we started thinking about drugs.

'We asked everyone about hard drugs - they all denied it. Some said, 'Well, I do smoke a little marijuana.' We didn't pick up on it right away, but enough said it so we said, 'Well, it never happened before, but why not?'

Samples of marijuana were found to contain the organism, he said.

The marijuana-related disease continues to appear in the two cities because people simply don't believe the connection, Taylor said.

Best costume winner was bunch of grapes

GREENSBURG, Pa. (AP) - Kristen Booser, dressed as a bunch of grapes and bearing a half-empty bottle of wine, won this year's best-costume event at the Miss Pennsylvania-USA contest.

"This was full when I came, but I was a little nervous," the 20-year-old Erie resident joked after claiming her title in Thursday night's event.

Miss Booser wore a wine-colored leotard and stockings with an overlay of large grapes, made of cloth-covered plastic balls on strings.

Second prize went to Glenda War-heit, Miss Host City, who appeared as a tooth fairy. The 23-year-old dental office employee wore an airy mauve and pink costume with a handkerchief hemline topped by a halo of flowers and outfitted with wings.

Cheryl Antoniak, Miss Jeannette, dressed as a champagne glass, was the third-place winner. She wore a tightly fitted silver lame gown tied at the ankles and topped with a plastic cup holding balloon bubbles.
