Reagan guard's gun misfires after church

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Secret Service says an "in-house inquiry" will be conducted to determine why a rifle used to guard President Reagan malfunctioned and harmlessly discharged a bullet shortly after the president left church.

Reagan, in an armored limousine, was about 100 yards away from the National Presbyterian Church, when the gun, used by a Secret Service officer stationed on a nearby rooftop, misfired Sunday, said Dick Hartwig, a Secret Service spokesman.

"It was weapon malfunction and it happened while it was in a storage case," Hartwig said. "So no bullet got out."

Accidental discharges "happen all over the country," he said. People remaining on the church grounds thought a firecracker had gone off and did not take cover, he said.

Hartwig said he assumes Reagan was told about the incident. Mark Weinberg, assistant White House press secretary, said there would be no reaction from the president.

When asked if the officer, who was not identified, would be disciplined because of the incident, Hartwig said an inquiry would be conducted.

Uniformed Secret Service officers are not part of the president's protective detail. They guard the White House and foreign embassies and are also positioned on rooftops when the president travels in the city. Outside of Washington, SWAT teams of local police often are used for such duty.

Reagan going public with defense of economic plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan told urban officials today that his economic program is running "a political gauntlet of interest groups" whose selfish concerns threaten the nation's economic recovery.

He appealed for the backing of local officials, who support his goals but worry about how he wants to achieve them.

In a speech prepared for the National League of Cities, Reagan condemned the "federal Goliath (that) brought us to the economic brink now confronting this nation."

"For a time it appeared that Congress had more solutions than the country had problems," Reagan said. "Or, put another way, cures were invented for which there are no known diseases. Just conceiving of a program that might help someone, somewhere, was itself reason enough to pass a law and appropriate money."

Working together and exercising "will power," the new administration and its allies can bring the economic crisis under control by implementing his proposed budget and tax cuts, regulatory overhauls and monetary controls, Reagan said.

"However, this program now faces a political gauntlet of interest groups; and I'm finding it increasingly difficult not to call some of them 'selfish interest groups,'" the president said. "Unless something is done to turn the economy around, local governments will suffer right along with many other respected American institutions."

Reagan noted there has been some congressional opposition to his call for a three-year, 30-percent tax cut.

"Nevertheless," he said, "the real threat to recovery comes from those who will oppose only a small part of the overall program. Needless to say, the small portion these parochial groups oppose always deals with cuts that affect them directly. Those cuts they oppose."

"They favor cutting everybody else's subsidy as an important step in ending inflation and getting the country moving again. The accumulative effect of this shortsightedness can be damaging.

"We are all in the same boat, and we have to get the engines started before the ship goes over the falls."

The urban leaders, at the annual Congressional-City Conference, gave qualified support to Reagan's program Sunday, endorsing "enthusiastically" the president's objectives but issuing a list of reservations.

They said they could go along with eliminating a third of the 300,000 public service jobs Reagan wants to terminate, but they urged him to reconsider proposed cuts in urban redevelopment aid.

The city officials' reservations were much the same as voiced last week by the National Governors' Association — fear that reduced federal grants will pass along a burden which state and local tax bases cannot absorb, a demand for plenty of time to make adjustments, and a call for close consultation as exact cuts are determined.

The city officials fear that unless Reagan's program is tempered, the result could be empty holes where new buildings were planned, unemployment without adequate relief and higher taxes.

Mardi Gras shooting hurts three

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A high school band drum major and two spectators were wounded when gunfire erupted at a crowded Mardi Gras parade honoring nine Marines held hostage in Iran, authorities said.

The shooting Sunday occurred well after the floats carrying Marine Sgt. John D. McKeel and eight other Marines who had been held hostage in Iran for 444 days went by.

Two of the victims who were shot were hospitalized in stable condition. The third person, who suffered flash burns, was treated and released, hospital officials said.

Police said no arrests had been made.

"We're getting numerous conflicting stories about what happened," said Don Joly, chief spokesman for the police department. Investigators worked through the night, questioning most of the band's members and dozens of other witnesses.

Charity hospital authorities identified the shooting victims as drum major Ray Johnson, 17, of St. Augustine High School in New Orleans and spectator John Barker, 20, of Plaquemines, a student at Nicholls State University.

The bullet went through Johnson's cheek and neck, and Barker was hit in the groin, they said.

Gary Francis, 25, of New Orleans, was treated for powder burns near his eye.

Exactly what prompted the shooting was clouded by the near-panic it caused among the throngs that stood packed 15-feet deep on each side of the broad boulevard of Canal Street, at the edge of the city's French Quarter.

"All of a sudden, I heard a noise. All the band began moving to the very front. The police pushed everybody away. There was a lot of confusion," said onlooker Leslie Ward of Memphis, Tenn.

"The police got their riot sticks out and started pushing the band forward to clear the street. People were running and screaming," she said.

Assistant band director Edward Allen said the shooting occurred during a scuffle that broke out when an armed young man refused to give way to a St. Augustine alumnus clearing crowds out of the band's path, said assistant band director Edward Allen.

The band is all black, and witnesses described the gunman as white, well-dressed, wearing a sports coat and a holstered gun at his hip. Band members said they feared the attack was racially motivated.

The alumnus and the man struggled, and the man pulled his gun and fired, Allen said.

Two persons received minor injuries in this two-car crash on the north service road of Interstate 20 near the intersection of Rankin Highway about 8:15 p.m. Sunday. Treated and released from Midland Memorial Hospital were 49-year-old Joyce Massey of Monahans and 36-year-old Roy Lee Simmons of 2200 S. Lamesa Road. Police said that Ms. Massey was the driver of the white 1974 Pontiac, while Simmons was the driver of the 1978 El Camino. (Staff Photo by Paul Gilbert)

Blimp slammed to ground by 'freak wind'

CARSON, Calif. (AP) — The 192-foot Goodyear blimp Columbia, slammed to the ground by a "freak wind," will be grounded for at least six weeks, according to a company spokesman.

The strong, gusty winds Sunday morning lifted the blimp into the air and then pushed it back to the ground, ripping a hole in the aft area, said Goodyear spokesman Bob Urhausen.

Goodyear personnel then ripped another hole in the top of the airship to quickly release the craft's 202,700 cubic feet of helium so the ship would not be damaged further, he said.

"It was just a freak wind," said Urhausen, who estimated damage at $800,000.

The Columbia is used for promotion and public service events. It is one of three airships Goodyear operates in the United States. The America is based in Houston and the Mayflower in Miami.

Soviet troops in Poland starting maneuvers

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — With the Polish government gearing up for nationwide meat rationing in hopes of quieting public dissatisfaction, Western officials in Vienna said about 35,000 Soviet Bloc troops stationed in Poland were preparing to start scheduled maneuvers.

Western diplomats said all Warsaw Pact countries, including the Soviet Union, were expected to take part in the exercise, which is likely to last up to 10 days and is called "Shield '81."

The sources said it was known the exercise was to start at "the beginning of March" but they could not say if it was yet under way.

A DEFENSE MINISTRY spokesman here at first denied the maneuvers were under way but later told The Associated Press he did not want to comment on the report.

The Soviet Union maintains two tank divisions and logistical units in Poland, and, according to Western observers, massed other troops near the border between the two countries last fall at the height of Poland's labor unrest. The United States, its allies and even some Communist leaders have warned the Soviets that military intervention in Poland would have grave consequences.

The Polish government announced Sunday that coupons will be distributed soon for meat purchases under a rationing system to be tried for three months beginning April 1. Also, sugar allotments in effect for five years are being cut in half today.

MORE EQUITABLE distribution of the available meat was one of the priority goals set by Poland's new premier, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, in his inaugural speech Feb. 11.

In the exception of a rationing program employed briefly last Christmas, the meat distribution plan is the first regular rationing in Poland since World War II, and the first under the Communist regime.

Rationing was one of the key demands of workers during last summer's labor rebellion, which began when the government tried to end the food subsidies that now cost $5.3 billion per year.

The strikes led to the ouster of Communist Party First Secretary Edward Gierek, the legalization of the first labor unions independent of Communist Party control in the Soviet Bloc, promises of revised labor and censorship laws and other reforms.

Many Poles say that the food situation has worsened in recent months, and some regard rationing as a welcome relief.

Under the plan, the basic ration for adults is 7.7 pounds of meat, meat products and poultry per month. Teen-agers and small children get somewhat less, while manual workers and underground miners get more.

Beginning today, the monthly allotment of 4.4 pounds of sugar per person, in effect since 1976, will be cut in half — although children, pregnant women and new mothers will get 3.3 pounds.

"I wish we already had food rationing," said a 50-year-old woman standing outside a shop. "Perhaps I would be able to buy something. Right now, I spend days trying to do my shopping. If there are supplies, the lines are so long that you have to spend hours to buy basic things like butter, cheese, milk. Forget about meat and meat products."

THE OFFICIAL PRICES for such "essentials" as meat, bread, butter, milk and milk products are the same as they were before the government's attempt last summer to raise prices. Prices of vegetables and fruits have risen by 40 to 60 percent, but most complaints are about supplies, not prices.

"I do not even want to talk about food supplies," said an elderly man on a shopping trip. "There is nothing to buy beginning with milk and ending in detergents. You have to have plenty of time or very good connections, but they do not even work any more."

Nevertheless, the Poles are not starving. There is usually ground pork to be found that can be molded into a patty and fried. It's called a mielone and the ground pork costs about 80 cents per pound.

There are also private markets across the Vistula River from downtown Warsaw where veal is available for about $3.50 per pound, double the official price. These prices are paid by Poles whose average monthly salary is about $200.

THE CAUSES OF THE food shortages are complex, ranging from four years of bad harvests to disastrous flooding in 1980. Plant production, notably of grain crops and fodder for animal feed, dropped to their lowest levels in 20 years, according to Agricultural Minister Jerzy Wojtecki.

Although food prices are high in relation to income, government subsidies have kept them down for more than a decade. Attempts to raise prices in 1970, 1976 and 1980 were met by strikes or riots.

The consumer price is far below the cost of production to Poland's private farmers, who produce 80 percent of the nation's food.

Grocery prices drop in February

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Grocery bills have more than doubled in the past eight years, but February brought good news to shoppers in the form of the biggest monthly drop since late in 1976, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows.

The AP drew up a random list of food and non-food products and priced the items at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973. Prices have been rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month. The list originally included 15 items, but chocolate chip cookies were dropped when the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the survey.

The latest price check showed: —The average marketbasket total was 109 percent higher at the start of this month than it was when the survey began in March 1973.

—The marketbasket bill dropped during February at the checklist store in 10 cities, down an average of 3 percent, and rose in three cities, up an average of 3.4 percent. Overall, the average marketbasket bill went down 1 1/2 percent last month. The drop was the biggest since a 1.8 percent decline in October 1976.

February's decreases were due mainly to drops in the price of sugar and eggs. Sugar went down at the checklist store in nine cities and eggs in 10 cities. Sugar prices have been rising since early last year because demand for sugar is expected to exceed production in the current crop year. Recent declines in consumption have caused drops in the price of raw sugar on the world market and the decreases were reflected at the supermarket last month.

The outlook for egg prices is less clear. Production was cut by the drought which killed more than 7 million chickens last year and continued low supplies could boost prices again.

—Orange juice prices went up at the checklist store in eight of the cities surveyed by the AP. The increases reflect rises in wholesale prices following the January cold snap that damaged the citrus crop in Florida. Florida provides almost all the nation's orange juice.

February's drop in marketbasket bills followed an increase of only two-tenths of a percent in January, meaning that grocery prices today are lower than they were at the start of the year. The situation is expected to change, however. The U.S. Department of Agriculture is predicting that food prices alone will rise 10 percent to 15 percent this year. Less than one-fourth of last year's 8 percent rise in grocery store food bills was caused by higher farm prices, the USDA said. Most of the increase was due to higher processing costs to get the food from farm to market. This year, however, the USDA expects farm prices will have a greater effect on family food bills because last summer's heat and dry weather cut into crops, including feed grains, and will boost meat prices.

A look at the overall number of items in the AP survey showed fewer increases during February than during January. Here are the percentages of increases and decreases:

	Jan.	Feb.
Up	28.0	20.9
Down	29.1	28.0
Unchanged	37.4	42.9
Unavailable	5.5	8.2

The AP did not weigh survey results according to population density or in terms of what percent of a family's actual grocery outlay each item represents.

The cities checked were: Albuquerque, Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I., Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Texans working at White Sands owe New Mexico state taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court left intact a ruling that Texas residents who work at the federal government's White Sands Missile Range in New Mexico have to pay New Mexico state income taxes.

Texas residents who work at White Sands have been battling the New Mexico tax for more than 18 years.

Five Texas residents representing almost 2,000 White Sands employees appealed to the high court after the New Mexico Supreme Court refused last Oct. 8 to relieve them of the state taxation.

That appeal was denied after the justices cited the lack of a "substantial federal question."

The Texas residents argued that the federal government provides all public services on the isolated, high-security White Sands range, located only six miles from the Texas border.

The Texas residents' appeal said workers who commute from homes in Texas are required to pay New Mexico income taxes but receive virtually no benefits except the use of the six miles of state road they must drive to reach the federal compound.

Workers in that position pay New Mexico an estimated $750,000 a year, they estimated.

Texas residents don't even get the "grocery tax rebate" and "medical and dental expense credit" which the state grants only to residents, the appeal said.

Rejecting the argument that the White Sands Texans "do not get enough for their money," the New Mexico Supreme Court said: "The power to tax does not rest on a measurable economic duty of the state toward its citizens, but on less tangible benefits, on the fruits of civilization."

As for the grocery and medical rebates, the state court said they were adopted as relief to poor people who pay gross receipts and property taxes.

Harris says she would have killed woman, not Tarnower

NEW YORK (AP) — Convicted murderer Jean Harris says that if she had meant to kill anyone, it would have been Lynne Tryfones, her rival for the affections of Dr. Herman Tarnower.

Mrs. Harris, in jail awaiting sentencing for killing the diet developer, told People magazine, "Christ, if I were going to kill somebody, I'd have killed her."

The jury that convicted her last month concluded that she fired the fatal shots intentionally, rather than accidentally, as she had claimed.

"I certainly didn't want to kill Hi," she insisted. "I have been through two years of hell struggling with my integrity over that woman."

"Hi called me wacky for years," Mrs. Harris added. "He said, 'You'd have to be wacky to love me.' But I'm getting tired of this 'crazy' business. I wasn't, and am not, crazy."

"I don't feel sorry for Lynne or me. I think we both were just stupid... I loved him in spite of all the warts — and could make fun of him. And here's a woman who told him he was God every day for 20 years, and I guess he began to believe it."

She continued to defend Tarnower, saying, "I don't want Hi smeared. Hi isn't the reason it (the shooting) happened. He kept me alive for 14 years."

Without apparent provocation, the man kicked Sexton, but was quickly subdued and placed in a cell without injury, according to the report. He was originally arrested on a public intoxication charge after being found walking east in the westbound lane of traffic on Highway 80 near Midland Regional Airport about 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

The suspect is a transient from Mexico and had earlier created a disturbance at a trailer park near the airport, deputies said. He also may be charged with aggravated assault in that incident.

Deputy injured in county jail incident

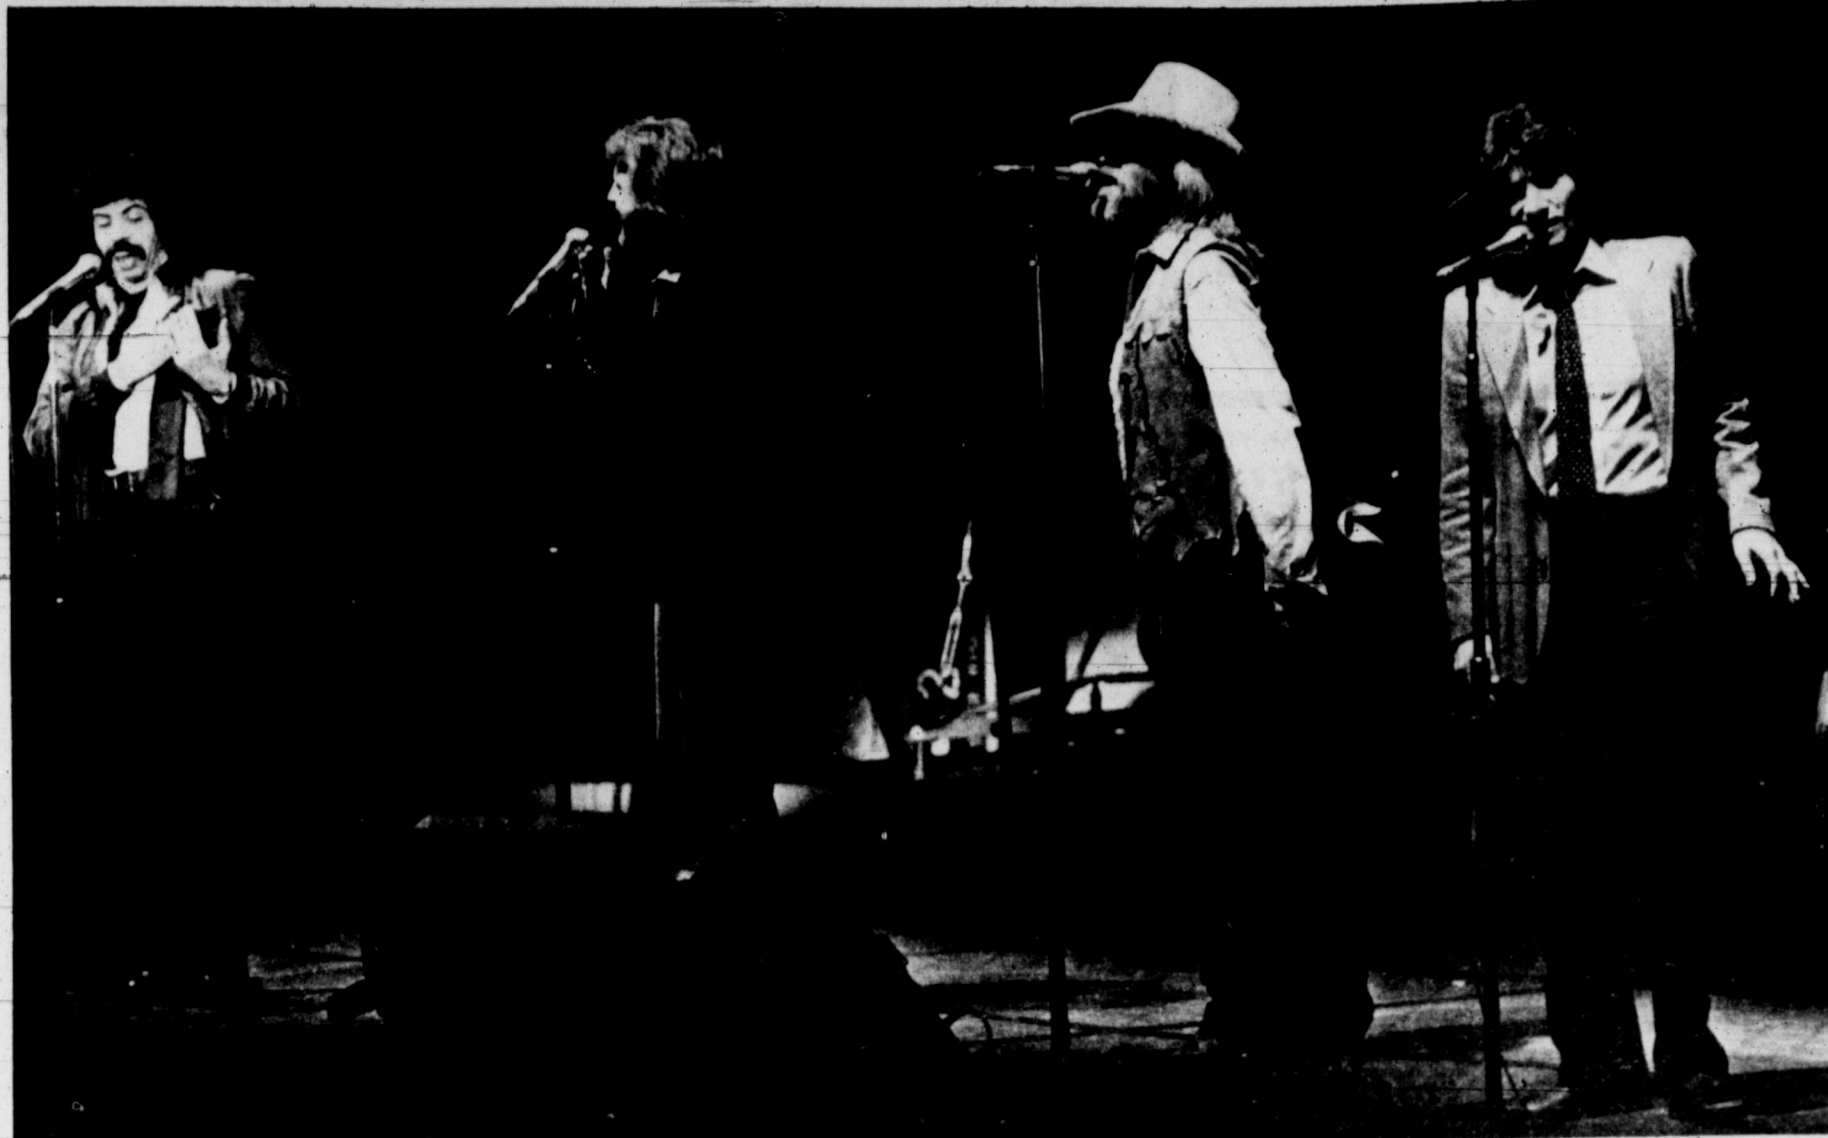

Felony charges of assault on a peace officer are expected to be filed today against a 27-year-old man who allegedly kicked a Midland County sheriff's deputy in the groin during an incident at the county jail Sunday afternoon.

The deputy, Chief Jailer Richard Sexton, also 27, was listed in fair condition this morning at Midland Memorial Hospital. Sheriff's department reports say the suspect was brought into the jail about 1:40 p.m. Sunday and Sexton opened a security gate to allow the man and a deputy into the booking area.

The 56-year-old former city councilman and mayor of Midland was first elected to the hospital post in April of 1978 and has been involved with reorganization efforts currently under way by the hospital district.

"I feel like the district needs a little more time to complete the reorganization," Magruder said this morning. "I've been involved with the district since its inception (1977) and would like the opportunity to continue and see the reorganization completed."

"My experience in municipal affairs will stand the hospital district in good stead."

State can't publish prayer on maps

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today refused to allow North Carolina to publish a prayer on its official state highway maps.

The justices, without comment, left intact a ruling that the prayer, appearing on such maps since 1964, violates the constitutional separation of religion and government.

The nation's highest court also: — Agreed to decide whether workers with access to confidential company information may belong to labor unions — an issue that could affect thousands of workers, especially in white-collar jobs.

A federal appeals court — in a ruling that applied only to workers in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin — said such workers could be barred from joining unions. The National Labor Relations Board has asked the Supreme Court to overrule the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals' ruling.

— Left intact New York restrictions on a public utility's passing on to ratepayers the costs of informational advertising.

The Federal Elections Commission, which had held that the arrangement was legal, took the issue to the high court when a federal appeals court struck down its contention.

— Allowed Eastern Air Lines to take any female flight attendant to force unpaid maternity leave after her 13th week of pregnancy.

The justices left intact a federal appeals court ruling that gives Eastern the legal right to force such leaves. Previously, a federal trial judge in Richmond, Va., had ruled that Eastern could not force the leaves before the 28th week of pregnancy unless it could be proved that the individual involved was unable to do her work.

— Left intact a ruling that Chicago was guilty of sex discrimination in paying women less than men in some job categories, rejecting Chicago's arguments that the salary differentials resulted from a "merit system."

The city was sued by the National Organization for Women and by five women employed by Chicago's Department of Public Works or Department of Water and Sewers. The suit charged that male custodial and clerical workers were paid more than their female counterparts.

Two North Carolina residents, aided by the American Civil Liberties Union, sued in 1975 to get a "Motorist's Prayer" off state maps.

The prayer says: "Our heavenly Father, we ask this day a particular blessing as we take the wheel of our car. Grant us safe passage through the perils of travel; shelter those who accompany us and protect us from harm by Thy mercy; steady our hands and quicken our eye that we may never take another's life; guide us to our destination safely, confident in the knowledge that Thy blessings go with us through darkness and light sunshine and shower... forever and ever. Amen."

The state maps are distributed free of charge.

U.S. District Judge Franklin Duree upheld the prayer's constitutionality but the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed his ruling last Sept. 11.

"In this country, it is no part of the business of government to compose official prayers. By printing a prayer on the official map, the state is placing its power and support behind a particular form of theological belief," the appeals court said.

Its opinion added that the prayer "has the potential for entangling the state in a politically divisive conflict."

Apparently, it already has. Gov. Jim Hunt and many state legislators reportedly were displeased by the

Ed Magruder files for second term as hospital board trustee

Independent oil operator Ed Magruder this morning filed for a second term on the Midland Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees, a seat he has held for the past two years.

The 56-year-old former city councilman and mayor of Midland was first elected to the hospital post in April of 1978 and has been involved with reorganization efforts currently under way by the hospital district.

Magruder serves as mayor pro-tem on the council and is completing his second term as a councilman. Each term is for two years.

He is on the boards of the American Cancer Society, Human Relations Council, MidTran Commission and Midland Country Club. He is a deacon and treasurer of the First Presbyterian Church.

Marcum filing for re-election to Place 2 on city council

Gordon Marcum II has announced his filing for re-election to Place 2 on the Midland City Council.

In filing with the city secretary's office today, Marcum remarked, "I am seeking re-election in hopes of continuing to guide Midland's growth. It is important that we have a proper balance of growth and fiscal responsibility."

In listing some problems that need to be tackled by the city, he said, "We must do a better job in the downtown area with traffic and available parking. Finally, since I have advocated Community Development funds for many years, and now that we are going to receive the funds, I want to help direct the proper allocation of the funds."

Gordon Marcum Marcum is vice president and exploration manager of Olix Industries, Inc., and a member of the state and county bar associations.

Odessa man killed when struck by car

ODESSA — An Odessa man died when he was struck by a car as he was crossing FM 2020 road near here early this morning.

The Department of Public Safety identified the victim as Gumezindo Huerta, 65, of Odessa. Authorities said Huerta was attempting to cross FM 2020 some seven miles west of here about 12:40 a.m. today when he was hit by a 1978 Chrysler driven by 29-year-old Thomas Michaelis, also of Odessa.

Huerta was pronounced dead at the scene by Ector County Justice of the Peace Manuel Valles. His body was taken to the Easterling-Wilson Funeral Home in Odessa, where services are pending. No charges were filed in the accident.

Six men escape serious injury in light plane crash Saturday

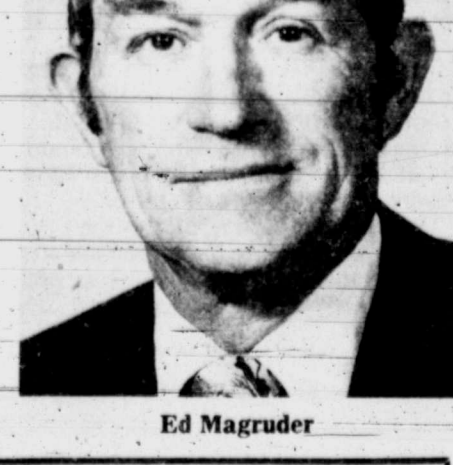

ODESSA — Five Odessans and a Midland man, members of the Midesa Roughneck Soccer Team, escaped serious injury when their light plane crashed near here early Saturday night.

Ector County authorities identified the men as Raymond Aguirre, 19, of 506 W. Estes, Midland; Bill McDonald, 25, George Bugg, 22, Javier Castillo, 19, Lalo Castillo, 24, and Frank Prokup 39, all of Odessa.

The team was returning from a soccer meet in Abilene when the single engine Cessna piloted by Prokup went down in a rain-soaked field about two miles from Schlemeyer Field on the northern outskirts of Odessa.

The plane reportedly was on final approach to the airfield when it hit the ground, struck a barbed wire fence and overturned. The men walked away from the wreckage and were taken by Ector County sheriff deputies to Medical Center Hospital, where they were released following treatment for minor injuries.

Cause of the crash, which occurred about 8 p.m. Saturday, was not immediately known.

Firefighters battle motel room blaze

City firemen battled a blaze in an unoccupied room at the Westwind Motel at 3803 W. Wall shortly before 11 p.m. Saturday and reported heavy smoke and fire damage to the room. No cause was listed for the fire.

Minor smoke and fire damage occurred in a blaze at 1801 W. Washington about 7:40 a.m. Sunday. The residence was occupied by Deral Truex and cause of the fire was listed as a blanket that had been placed over an electric heater.

Slight damage was also reported in a closet of an apartment at 2438 Whitmire after a piece of macrame caught fire about 3:30 p.m. Saturday. The apartment was occupied by Richard Sullivan.

Correction

A story in Friday's Reporter-Telegram mistakenly said a car driven by 21-year-old Paul Judd of Star Route B, Midland, was northbound on FM 715 when his vehicle and one driven eastbound on Garden City Highway by Patricia Garner of 2407 Maxwell collided about 11:15 p.m. Thursday.

Judd was in fact eastbound on Garden City Highway and the Garner woman was northbound on FM 715 when the mishap occurred. Judd was not injured in the wreck, but the Garner woman was hospitalized and reported in critical condition this morning at Midland Memorial Hospital.

Midland College's loss

Dr. Al Langford's decision to step down as president of Midland College is understandable, but regrettable. The college will miss his talented leadership.

The only president Midland College has ever had, Dr. Langford guided the institution from its inception through the hazy first years and right into the dynamic present. He's witnessed the good times and the bad times and it is a testimonial to his ability as an administrator that the former vastly outweighed the latter.

Visitors to Midland College today see an impressive campus with fine buildings, beautiful landscaping and students strolling among the facilities. It wasn't always that impressive. In the early days Midland College merely was a few classrooms in Lee High School. But there was a dream.

Dr. Langford guided the institution skillfully through the early years and devoted more than his creative abilities and energies to the school; he gave the school his love and that personal touch.

Now he wants to devote a portion of his life to other business interests. He cannot be blamed for that. He's given Midland College much of his life over the past 12 years and deserves some time out of the public limelight.

Fortunately Midland will not be losing Dr. Langford. He has been a driving force in the civic and educational life of this community and, doubtless, will continue to be one of the Tall City's best citizens. Furthermore, he has indicated he will continue as one of Midland College's most vocal and avid supporters. For that, we are appreciative.

A community college president's job is not an easy one. Dr. Langford was simply so good at the position that he made it appear easy. Finding a replacement for him will be difficult; he leaves big shoes to fill.

Officials and faculty members at Midland College realize there will be a void when Dr. Langford's resignation becomes effective. Students, past and present, will feel the effect of his leaving, too.

Midland and all our residents owe Dr. Langford a debt of gratitude.

Case changes hands

An immigration judge in Los Angeles has ruled that a Lithuanian father and his son who hijacked an airliner to flee from the Soviet Union can renew their application for political asylum in the United States. This lays an old case before a new administration in Washington, but circumstances still weigh against granting them status as political refugees.

Parnas Brazinskas and his son Algirdas, who was then 14, smuggled guns aboard a Soviet domestic airliner in 1970 and forced the crew to fly to Turkey. Soviet security guards on the plane opened fire, and a stewardess was killed. The Brazinskases were convicted of murder in Turkey, spent six years in custody there, and then began an international odyssey that ended in New York. They have been fighting deportation ever since.

The Brazinskases say they were part of a political resistance movement in Lithuania, which was invaded by the Russians and annexed to the Soviet Union in 1940. The U.S. State Department under former President Gerald Ford ruled in 1976 that a political grievance does not justify the criminal act of hijacking an airliner and that the Brazinskases could not be granted asylum here.

The United States has been a leader in trying to gain acceptance in international law of the principle that hijacking airliners is a crime under any circumstances and that hijackers should be denied refuge and returned to the country where they committed their offense. The Brazinskases face the cruel reality that they chose to flee the Soviet Union in a way that is not morally or legally defensible.

The Refugee Act of 1980 will allow for a review of their case. Many Lithuanian-Americans who regard these two countrymen as heroes are bringing political pressure on their behalf. But if the facts stand as they are now known, it is hard to see how Secretary of State Alexander Haig can make an exception in this case without abandoning a basic tenet of U.S. policy on hijacking.

INSIDE REPORT:

Controversy developing over where to deploy MX system

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration to everyone's surprise is stalling a decision on where to base the MX mobile missile in a delay that pits the Pentagon against the State Department and delights the environmentalist lobby.

The delay over whether to base this country's most vital new weapon on land or sea is fraught with potential dangers. It raises the disturbing question of whether President Reagan, who is totally committed to rapid MX deployment, is kept fully abreast on whether and how his desires are carried out by competing bureaucratic power centers.

Ronald Reagan himself is partly to blame for the latest procrastination over where the U.S. should base the 10-warhead missiles desperately needed to give the U.S. land-based system protection against possible Soviet attack. Reagan pledged while campaigning in Nevada and Utah to take a look at Jimmy Carter's decision to base the mobile system there despite fierce environmentalist opposition.

But what should have been a pro forma Pentagon review with a foregone conclusion may be heating up into a major test. Favoring sea-based deployment, a position he espoused while deputy director of the CIA, is Deputy Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger privately warns that environmentalist law suits could conceivably tie up the Carter-approved Nevada-Utah plan "for years." But Weinberger says he has an open mind on basing and a public commitment not to let the new study delay deployment of the system, expected to start in 1985.

Evans

Why, then, has Weinberger told his panel of experts they have until "June or July" to make their report? The question is particularly relevant for another reason: National security and budget officials in Reagan's White House are committed to Nevada-Utah basing. They worry that another long delay in the ever-receding "final" decision will do exactly what Weinberger privately warns against: give environmentalists that much more time to mobilize for a total assault on the Nevada-Utah plan.

Secretary of State Alexander Haig is quietly advancing a blockbuster rationale of his own against what the Pentagon calls "going to sea." If environmentalist and other political pressures are allowed to overturn the Nevada-Utah decision, Haig predicts an irreversible torrent of political reaction in Europe against modernizing NATO's land-based nuclear systems. Boiled down, that means environmentally-sensitized West Germans would physically block the nuclear modernization program agreed to by North Atlantic treaty states (NATO) in December 1979 if the U.S. knuckled under to political threats or legal suits by its own environmental lobby.

European statesmen visiting here have made this point hard to Haig. They reason that any U.S. decision to "go to sea" would be interpreted as a valid excuse for Europeans to demand that NATO's new nuclear weapons should also be based on boats (which military specialists say would be impossible). When the visiting Europeans warn Weinberger that moving the MX to sea would create massive political problems for NATO, he not only appears to be unimpressed, but at least on one occasion argued that sea-basing the MX might be the best deployment in view of environmentalist delays.

Yet President Reagan has a precedent to ask Congress for a special exemption from law suits and other legal delaying actions now being planned by the environmentalists (by no means confined to Nevada and Utah). Congress gave the Alaska pipeline project such an exemption nearly five years ago. The project was built to specifications laid down by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), but it was immune from most special interest law suits.

A Reagan request for similar treatment for the Nevada-Utah-based MX would get quick attention; the national security aspect is far graver in protecting America's land-based missile system than in any oil shortfall.

Moreover, White House advisers say that the courts have been friendly to Uncle Sam in rejecting environmentalist law suits involving military work. Federal courts have been loath to grant injunctive relief when government attorneys stake their defense on grounds of national security.

Accordingly, the preference of Carlucci and other officials for a sea-based system has little to do with environmentalists and much to do with arcane debate over weapons strategies that was resolved last year by the Pentagon after years of agonizing indecision. More indecision is not needed at this point, which is why some White House aides hope Ronald Reagan will himself end the delay forthwith.

CHARLEY REESE

How will America fare in her economic crisis

How well President Reagan's spending and tax cuts fare in the Congress will tell us more than just how skilled a politician he is. It may tell us something we don't want to hear, which is that we have become so undisciplined and unrealistic that the nation is doomed.

Charley Reese

The program will not, of course, be passed intact. The Congress has to tinker with it just to prove its own institutional masculinity. As long as sizeable cuts are made, however, the message will be positive. We will have at least turned a corner and started in the right direction.

If the Reagan program is emasculated, however, we might as well turn in our chips for Swiss francs and make travel plans. That will be a clear indication that the ship of state is about to join the Titanic and Lusitania.

It's not a partisan issue or even a Reagan issue. All of us know that federal spending is out of hand and that taxes consume too much of our national income. After all, this mess was not imposed on us by a foreign invader. We did it to ourselves. The question is, do we have the will as a nation to break our own bad habits?

I used the plural pronoun deliberately, not rhetorically. I think any honest observer must admit that liberals and conservatives, Democrats and Republicans, have all traveled down the same road, differing only in degree or in which programs they wanted. Not in my lifetime, not at any level of government, have I seen a consensus develop to reduce government services. On the contrary, the consensus has been to expand them.

It is important to keep in mind that even Reagan's proposal is a reduction in his predecessor's proposed increase, not a reduction over the previous year's spending. In other words, even if every penny Reagan wants cut is cut, federal spending will still be substantially higher this coming fiscal year than in the last.

We just simply wandered away from the principles of our beginning. Our original and uniquely American concept of government was a government of limited power and limited duties, a government which provided internal order, defense against foreign aggression and a very few essential services.

From that concept, we changed to the old European concept of government as the greater fixer and provider and ruler of every aspect of our lives. You might say, we decided we wanted a king after all, a great white father who would take care of us. It remains to be seen if we have learned that all kings, no matter what you call them, practice three R's: rip off, rule and ruin.

The federal government is a rip off. It takes a river of money in the name of helping the needy and sprays the truly needy with a fine mist of small change. The principle beneficiaries of the welfare state are the politicians, bureaucrats, consultants and smart guys who know how to channel tax dollars into their bank accounts.

No less a hard-nosed conservative than Bill Simon testified to this. New York City is supposed to be the welfare capital of the world, but Simon, in his book "A Time for Truth," shows conclusively that welfare was not the cause of the Big Apple's rotten financial picture. Rather, it was the city's subsidies to the middle class and the rich which ran the well dry.

The point is that the national well has just about been drained of its last drop. Either we will reverse the trend and increase private productivity or we will go bankrupt as a nation. Continued inflation and continued confiscatory taxes will unavoidably lead to a total economic collapse which will mean the end, not only of prosperity, but of all our freedom as well.

We may already have gone too far to turn back. I frankly don't know. I hear a lot of people screaming even at the thought of budget cuts. Well, if we lack the discipline and will to put our house in order, we will get just what we deserve — a disaster of such proportions that the Great Depression will seem like the good old days.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

ACTION staffers upset by appointment

WASHINGTON — An internal White House furor is boiling up over the controversial selection of a former military intelligence officer to head ACTION, the federal government's multi-branched good-works agency. The move could jeopardize the safety of American volunteers abroad.

For ACTION's most celebrated offspring is the Peace Corps, whose thousands of overseas volunteers might suffer if there is the shadow of a suspicion that they are even remotely connected with U.S. intelligence activities.

Anti-American elements, jealous of the goodwill the Peace Corps volunteers have earned through their selfless efforts to help the poor and illiterate, would like nothing better than to smear them as spies.

This is no idle concern: Kidnapping and death threats have resulted from scurrilous rumor campaigns, linking the Peace Corps volunteers to the Central Intelligence Agency or other U.S. espionage organizations.

One example of this danger was Richard Starr, the Peace Corps botanist who was held for three years by communist guerrillas in Colombia, until he was ransomed a year ago. One reason he was kidnapped was because his captors suspected he was a CIA agent using the Peace Corps as a cover. He was repeatedly interrogated on this point during his captivity in the Andean jungle.

Granted, the man chosen to head ACTION, Tom Pauken, had only a relatively brief connection with intelligence work. During his service in the Army, he was an intelligence officer stationed in Vietnam. He stoutly denies any CIA involvement; he told his associates Jack Mitchell and Indy Badwar he did only routine research work on North Vietnamese leaders.

But the Peace Corps has historically been careful to keep both its officials and its volunteers free of any espionage taint. Like Caesar's wife, Peace Corps personnel must be above suspicion — for their own protection if nothing else. This has been the policy ever since the agency was founded under President Kennedy.

On one occasion years ago, the agency attempted to hire an ex-intelligence official; it set off an international ruckus which embarrassed ACTION and virtually ruined the official's career.

ACTION officials and some White House insiders were appalled at Pauken's nomination. And though it is his intelligence background that upsets them most, they were also disgruntled by the manner of his selection. Pauken's name wasn't even on the list of possible nominees until the last minute, the critics claim.

Moreover, he was cleared by an old friend, White House Counsel Fred Fielding, who survived the Watergate era without taint. Fielding insisted that while he was aware of the misgivings surrounding the choice of Pauken, they were "not a problem."

Pauken, an amiable 36-year-old Texan, figured in a minor controversy in 1971, when he was associate director of the White House Fellows program. He was roundly denounced for writing an article in U.S. News and World Report on an unofficial trip to the Soviet Union.

His boss at the time, David Miller, called Pauken's actions "disloyal, selfish and immature." Another colleague wrote that he had "damaged the Fellows program by some basically devious techniques."

That little-noticed internecine wrangle doesn't enter into Pauken's present situation. It's his intelligence past that troubles key administration and agency officials — and could haunt the Peace Corps in the years to come.

Footnote: Pauken said he thought it would be unfair to be "penalized" for his volunteer military service.

UNDER THE DOME: Freshman Rep. John LeBoutillier, R-N.Y., is regarded as a conservative Reaganite, but he's showing some maverick tendencies toward businessmen — particularly those who want to resume business-as-usual with Iran. "American businessmen should not be trading with heathens and barbarians," said LeBoutillier. "These guys are exactly like the ones I saw at Harvard Business School. They're more loyal to profits than patriotism."

— Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., the new chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, got some bad press when he was quoted as admitting privately to Kremlin leaders that he favored bringing the Palestine Liberation Organization into Middle East peace talks. But Percy, apparently remembering Richard Nixon's famous "kitchen debate" with the late Nikita Khrushchev in Moscow, has taken to boring fellow senators and committee staffers with a favorite anecdote about the time he stood "eyeball-to-eyeball with Leonid Brezhnev."

— Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, has a group photo of his GOP colleagues hanging on the wall of his office, with signatures of each one on the margin. Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, apparently in fear that he wouldn't be recognized, drew an arrow from his autograph to his face. He must have been kidding.

— It wasn't noted at the time, but President Reagan demonstrated a showman's instinct when, shortly before his inauguration, he announced that he intended to keep former Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., as ambassador to Japan. He made the announcement to Democratic senators in the Senate's Mansfield Room. The location was suggested by GOP Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker — and Alexander Haig, who was facing nomination approval at the time.

California produce embargoed

DALLAS (AP) — For the next 28 days, California fruits and vegetables will be unwelcome in Texas, thanks to an emergency measure signed in Austin and upheld by a Dallas federal court judge.

The 30-day order, drafted by Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown, puts an embargo on imports of all California produce. Despite arguments from California produce growers of potential financial ruin, U.S. District Judge Patrick Higginbotham refused to block Brown's order in a Saturday night ruling.

Brown said he was responding to Texas farmers' fears that California products infested by the Mediterranean fruit fly would be brought into Texas, giving the tenacious pest a foothold in this state's farms and orchards.

Higginbotham met with three attorneys representing the growers, then all four men held a conference call with Texas Attorney General Mark White.

Higginbotham's decision followed that conversation but he said his ruling probably would not be the last word on the matter because of a suit the State of California filed before the U.S. Supreme Court demanding the Texas order be struck down.

"It seems this will be a temporary holding pattern because the Supreme Court may take the case and obviate all our work," he said.

The Supreme Court sought an opinion from the U.S. Solicitor General, whose response is expected Wednesday. Meanwhile, attorneys for the growers said they would appeal Higginbotham's order.

Two California counties are under a U.S. Department of Agriculture quarantine imposed after "Medflies" were spotted last year.

But Brown said Texas growers are not convinced the problem is confined to those two locations and insisted all California products be fumigated or cold-treated, then labeled, before being brought into Texas.

He said a "Medfly" infestation could cost Texas as much as $200 million and destroy 30 percent of the state's fruit and vegetable crops.

California growers and packers claim the Texas embargo would have far-reaching effects, including an immediate cost of $535 million, a 3 percent to 5 percent price increase nationwide and possible future ramifications.

"We're not worried about fumigating for Texas," said Jerry Scribner, head of the state effort to wipe out the pest. "We're worried that Japan and Taiwan and other countries thousands of miles away might look at our peculiar system of laws over here and say, 'Gee, maybe we ought to do the same thing.'"

"While Texas is a very valuable market, we fear the domino effect," said Clark Briggs, spokesman for the 96,000-member California Farm Bureau. He claimed the Texas embargo is "political," retaliating for California requirements that Texas grapefruit be treated for the Mexican fruit fly.

Especially hard-hit would be the avocado market, California growers contended in their arguments to Higginbotham. California planned a record harvest of 400 million pounds of avocado, with about 3 million to 4 million pounds destined for Texas each month, they said.

Texas is second in the United States, behind California, in avocado consumption, marketing statistics showed.

Crete earthquake forecast by 1990

NEW YORK (AP) — Two geologists are predicting that a strong earthquake or earthquakes will strike sometime in the next decade near the Mediterranean island of Crete, possibly posing a threat to the island or the southern tip of Greece.

Dr. Max Wyss and Dr. Manfred Baer predict the earthquakes will register between 7.25 and 8.25 on the Richter scale, be centered in the ocean west of Crete and begin by 1990.

Wyss said he could not forecast the extent of damage, but he said past earthquakes in the area have occasionally been very destructive.

However, he said, damage from the predicted earthquakes was unlikely to reach as far north as Athens, where two earthquakes in a nearby resort area last week leveled 200 homes and injured dozens.

The prediction by Wyss and Baer appears in the current issue of the British journal Nature.

"The trouble is our prediction ability is so poor. I cannot say it will happen in such and such a week or in such and such a year," Wyss, of the University of Colorado in Boulder, said in a telephone interview.

"All I can say is that all the evidence we have points to the possibility of increased seismicity (earthquakes) in this area that in the past has been rather serious, and we better study this carefully."

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded by seismographs. The San Francisco earthquake of 1906, which occurred before the scale was devised, is estimated at magnitude

8.3. Wyss and Baer, who is at the Swiss Institute of Geophysics in Zurich, studied all earthquakes of magnitude 4.9 that occurred between 1950 and 1978 along the Hellenic Arc, the string of islands that includes Crete.

They noted that since 1962, there has been a marked deficit of earthquakes — a zone of "seismic quiescence" — west of Crete. Scientists believe that such quiet zones in an otherwise earthquake-prone area may mark the site of future great shocks. The theory is that earthquakes relieve stress in the Earth's crust, and an absence of earthquakes may mean stress is building without being relieved.

Between 1856 and 1926, the Hellenic Arc was struck by four earthquakes registering 11 — next-to-highest — on the 12-point Mercalli scale of damage, Wyss said. An 11 means destruction of most masonry houses and damage to many wooden houses, bridges, dams and other structures.

Although the quiescence theory can predict the general area of an earthquake, it gives little indication when it will occur. Nevertheless, the theory was used in 1976 to predict an earthquake near Oaxaca, Mexico, which registered magnitude 7.8 when it occurred in 1978.

The theory was not, however, used for the widely criticized prediction that a huge earthquake may hit Peru this summer. That forecast was made by Dr. Brian Brady, a U.S. government specialist in rock mechanics, based on his own theory of earthquake prediction. Many other geologists have been skeptical.

Five Hells Angels arrested in Omaha

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Five Hells Angels and the widow of a slain member of the motorcycle gang have been arrested on charges of using murder, torture and threats to corner part of the Omaha drug market.

Four other men named in an indictment returned by a federal grand jury remained at large.

Janice Fitzgerald, 40, of Omaha, and four men were arrested Saturday in a series of raids in Nebraska by more than 80 state and federal law enforcement officers. The raids came in the wake of a grand jury indictment accusing 10 Hells Angels and associates of drug-trafficking.

A fifth man, John Coffman, 38, of Santa Rosa, Calif., was arrested in California.

Besides Mrs. Fitzgerald and Coffman, also facing arraignment today before a U.S. magistrate were Omaha residents Gary Apker, 38; Calvin Davenport, 43; Raymond Gearhart, 50; and James Cronin, 27.

Still at large were Dale Haley, 37, of Council Bluffs, Neb.; and Omaha residents Walter Phillips, 33; Lamont Kress, 34; and Danwel Vacanti, 25.

During the raids, police confiscated a human thumb preserved in a jar of clear liquid, a skull, a cache of weapons, a variety of drugs, $1,350 in pennies in bags marked "U.S. Mint, Denver" and various Hells Angel paraphernalia. Officers said they would attempt to lift a print from the thumb and try to identify the skull.

The weapons' cache included rifles, shotguns and automatic weapons that had been greased and wrapped in paper. "We found an arsenal," one officer said.

According to the indictment, the gang created an "absolute monopoly" in the local market for methamphetamine, an illegally manufactured stimulant known as "crank."

It said the motorcycle club obtained "multi-pound quantities" of methamphetamine through their association with other Hell's Angels chapters and clandestine labs "throughout the U.S." and transported the drugs to Omaha.

The indictment charged that the death of Joseph Sackett in August 1979 was one result of the conspiracy, although no murder indictments were handed down. Sackett, 22, was found shot to death in a field.

Acting U.S. Attorney Thomas Thalken declined to elaborate on the methods of torture and intimidation the indictment said were used by the gang.

Thalken said in an interview Sunday, however, that he did not expect the Omaha case to run into the same problems that plagued prosecutors in California.

A San Francisco trial of 11 Hells Angeles and associates on drug and racketeering charges ended last month in a mistrial as did an earlier trial involving 18 defendants. Prosecutors alleged the defendants used murder, attempted murder and other violence in an attempt to corner the illegal drug market in the eastern San Francisco Bay Area.

Angels' founder Ralph "Sonny" Barger was acquitted in the first racketeering trial, and the government dismissed remaining counts against him.

"The California cases were much more complex than they are here," Thalken said. "We wouldn't have gone on if we'd have thought we'd have those problems."

Newspaper prints speech on Afghanistan, Poland

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda published an Italian Communist's speech containing implied criticisms of Soviet policy today, two days late, after Italian party officials reportedly complained that his comments on Afghanistan and Poland had not appeared in the Soviet press.

Giancarlo Pajetta, a member of the Italian delegation to the Soviet Communist Party congress, in a speech Friday called for a settlement to the Afghan crisis that would include the withdrawal of all foreign troops. He also said Poland's problems must be resolved with full respect for Polish independence. Pajetta, the Italian party's foreign affairs director, made the speech to a Moscow city communist group after failing to receive an invitation to speak to a full session of the party congress. And the Soviet press ignored the speech.

On Sunday, Italian sources reported, Pajetta and other members of his delegation protested to the Soviet party because the speech had not been published. Soviet officials replied that the speech would be published today and said the delay was due to technical problems, the sources said. The text published today appeared to be a full translation of Pajetta's speech. The Italian party, Western Europe's largest communist party, is a leader of the independent-minded "Eurocommunist" movement. Its chief, Enrico Berlinguer, has criticized Soviet involvement in Afghanistan and warned the Kremlin not to intervene in Poland. He did not attend the Moscow congress.

NOW opposes male-only draft

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Organization for Women, although opposing the draft, argues that women should be included if selective service continues.

The Supreme Court will decide whether the male-only draft registration program is legal and NOW President Eleanor Smeal said her group would file papers with the court today.

The court is hearing a case brought by the American Civil Liberties Union in which a three-judge panel in Philadelphia ruled the registration program unconstitutional. Registration has been allowed to continue, however, pending a decision by the high court.

The male-only system "disserves society as it creates a pool of eligibles much more limited in numbers and ability than if it included women," Ms. Smeal said.

She said NOW's brief concentrates on social principles rather than on the specific legal points, on which she said the ACLU "did a remarkable job."

While she declined to predict what the court will do, citing political and emotional elements of the case as well as the legal questions, she said excluding women from registration is bad for women, bad for the military and bad for men. In an interview Friday, Ms. Smeal said excluding women from the draft limits the pool of draftees and also military flexibility.

The modern military needs brains rather than brawn, she said, adding that a major factor in success in the service is a high school diploma. More women have diplomas than men, she said.

The current system, she said, "gives men a feeling of entitlement to full citizenship because, by nature of sex, they risk service."

This feeling, stemming from all men being at "risk" and all women being "not at risk," carries forth into the behavior of people and keeps women from being full participants in decision-making, Ms. Smeal said.

There is a high correlation between being a veteran and public service because veterans get preference for government jobs and "they are also given preference by the voters," Ms. Smeal said.

The bias against women being registered fosters the stereotype of women as weak and unfit to serve their country, even though many are serving well, she said.

Such attitudes even help encourage violence toward women — rape, assault and wife beating — by making women seem helpless, Ms. Smeal said.

Child sex abuse rate up

By LAURA RICHARDSON Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Profile of a child molester: male, age 30 to 45, married, employed. The victim: his 12-year-old daughter.

Mostly he fondles her and forces her to touch his sex organs, but half the time he makes her have intercourse with him.

These are among the conclusions of a Texas Department of Human Resources report to the Texas Legislature, which has before it several bills concerning sexual child abuse.

The number of confirmed cases of sexually abused children has increased 89 percent since 1978, the study showed.

"Such a dramatic increase in reports of child sexual abuse is indicative of a growing public awareness and of willingness to deal with this problem," the report stated, adding that the actual rate of occurrence is unknown.

At present, TDHR has 2,100 active sexual child abuse cases, and estimates there will be 2,800 cases in 1982 and 2,975 in 1983.

The study, conducted at the request of the 1979 Legislature, involved 1,379 cases. It found that:

— Sexual child abusers were "almost always male" age 30 to 45. Nine out of ten victims were girls; the average age was 12 years.

— Slightly more than three-fourths of the cases were incestuous. Two-thirds involved the child's father or stepfather.

— The non-abusing parent (the child's biological mother in three-fourths of the cases) knew what was happening but did nothing to prevent further abuse and often left the child alone with the abuser.

— Sexual intercourse occurred with almost half of the female victims. One out of 12 became pregnant.

The study noted a "positive relationship between successful criminal prosecution and participation by the perpetrator in treatment," but also stated that abusers generally did not cooperate well with the department.

"Protection of the child sexual abuse victim cannot be attained in most cases unless treatment is provided to all family members ... to correct the problems which cause or contribute to the sexual abuse," the report said.

Included in the report were recommendations for improving services to the families traumatized by sexual abuse. Money was the first priority. TDHR asked funding for additional staff, community treatment programs, training programs, and medical examinations of victims.

The department also asked legislators to amend the Texas Family Code to include sexual abuse and exploitation as grounds for taking a child from his or her home. Sexually abused children often are not physically injured, but current law allows removal only if there is an immediate danger to the child's physical health or safety.

The report did not recommend increasing criminal penalties for sexual abuse of children, but Gov. Bill Clements has.

Cut back in nutrition challenged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A consumer group today accused the Reagan administration of being "terribly misleading" about the effect of its proposed budget cuts on food stamps and child nutrition programs.

"The administration's budget cuts seem designed to hurt the most vulnerable: the sick elderly, the disabled, those pregnant women and young children with medically verified nutritional deficits," said Nancy Amidei, director of the Food Research and Action Center.

The group said in a statement that there has been "over-aggressive selling of the administration's program without regard to facts" or the needs of people who depend on federal assistance.

Specifically, the center:

—Challenged President Reagan's assertion that the "truly needy" would be spared in the budget-cutting process and that the school lunch program for needy children would be protected.

—Expressed "outrage" that, according to some reports, the WIC nutrition program, which is intended to help feed women, infants and small children, may be cut by 30 percent.

—Criticized statements by Agriculture Secretary John R. Block that food stamp losses to families would be made up by tax reductions proposed as part of President Reagan's economic package.

Under the proposed $1.8 billion cut in the food stamp program, a family of four with a gross income of more than $10,985 a year would be denied assistance.

Block has said that those deprived of food stamps are "going to make it up very easily" under Reagan's tax-cutting proposal.

The Food Research and Action Center, which describes itself as a non-profit law firm and advocacy group, said a family of four with a gross annual income of $11,000 currently is eligible for $1,428 a year in food stamp assistance, about $119 a month.

Under the Reagan administration proposals, that family would be denied food stamp assistance, but would receive a tax reduction for calendar year 1982 of $72, the group said.

Food stamp eligibility currently is determined according to net income, which has allowed some families of four with gross annual incomes of more than $14,000 to qualify for assistance, according to Reagan's proposed budget.

Murray Weidenbaum, Reagan's chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, told the National League of Cities on Sunday that the administration will redefine just who is "truly needy."

"It's deliberate policy to exclude people who can afford benefits from the benefits, so that the truly needy among our citizens, black and white, will be met by the food stamp program, by the school lunch program," Weidenbaum said.

"But families of over $15,000 a year, black and white, very frankly we hope Congress will see the wisdom of telling them they should pay for their own children's school lunch," Weidenbaum said.

"But the truly needy, those below $15,000 a year, will continue to have a generous federal subsidy in the school lunch program."

Fargo, Pride, Twitty replace ailing Parton at Houston rodeo

HOUSTON — Country-western entertainers Donna Fargo, Charlie Pride and Conway Twitty will replace the ailing Dolly Parton at three rodeo performances of the Houston Live Stock Show. Miss Parton notified show officials last week acute laryngitis would prevent her appearing Friday night, Saturday afternoon and Saturday night. The three performances had been a sellout — 132,000 tickets. All three replacement stars will appear at each of the three performances. But officials set a Thursday deadline for those desiring refunds. Pride, the regularly scheduled guest star Saturday, drew a record 46,620 at the evening performance. The show also decided to send a special gold medallion to Miss Parton because of the three sellout performances.

'Live from the Met' will be shown on PBS tonight

By MIKE SILVERMAN Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Alexander Scourby thinks he knows the secret of his success as host for the Metropolitan Opera TV broadcasts — and it's not a profound knowledge of opera. "Let's face it, nobody looks more natural wearing a dinner jacket in an opera lobby than I do," Scourby, his white beard bristling with distinction, said in an interview. "And in this kind of job, appearance is what counts." Scourby, a veteran actor-announcer who has recorded the Bible four times and once portrayed ongoing roles simultaneously on five different radio soap operas, will introduce the "Live from the Met" broadcast of Donizetti's "Elisir of Love." It will be shown on the Public Broadcasting Service-network tonight, beginning at 8 EST. "Actually, it's just about a minute and a half at the beginning, with me sitting in Box 15, welcoming the audience and then handing it over to Peter (Allen, the regular Met announcer)," Scourby said. "Since it's a comic opera, we're doing it with as light a touch as possible." "Elisir" which stars Luciano Pavarotti and Judith Blegen, is the fourth and last opera in the 1980-81 television series — and only the second that is truly live from the Met. The other live performance was Berg's "Lulu," while Puccini's "Manon Lescaut" and Strauss' "Elektra" were taped during performance last season. "When I did 'Elektra,' they showed me sitting in an empty orchestra saying, 'Boy, when I was here a year ago, it would have been dangerous, to be in the aisles,'" because of the standing ovation for soprano Birgit Nilsson, Scourby said. "But of course, I wasn't there at all a year ago," he added. As host for the broadcasts, Scourby succeeds the late Francis Robinson, a long-time Met spokesman who died last year. Actor Tony Randall was host for some of the earliest programs, but his extreme devotion to the opera proved a liability, and many observers felt he was unable to maintain the requisite sense of dignified authority. "I love the opera, but I'm not a buff by any means," he said. "One of the nicest things about being host for the series is that my wife, daughter and son-in-law all get to join me at the performances, though they have to sit in another box, because there's no room in mine with the cameras." Scourby said he wasn't certain how he came to be tapped as Robinson's successor, but thinks it might be because "someone remembered" him from a film he did on opera several years ago for Texaco, which underwrites the TV programs. "Of course I knew Francis Robinson, a very dear man," he said. "I used to pinch-hit for him on the lecture circuit. He would have planned a talk about opera, and then I'd do my Walt Whitman profile instead." Scourby, who got his professional start during the Depression working in Eve Le Gallienne's repertory theater on 14th Street in Manhattan for $15 a week, maintains a refreshingly candid tone about his now-highly suc-

Work to begin on 'envy of world'

By CHARLES RICHARDS Associated Press Writer

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The first shovel will be turned late in March on a mesquite-covered prairie 15 miles northwest of downtown Dallas that may become the world's foremost video and film production center.

"If this project fails to be the most magnificent in the world, it will be the fault of the architect. This is the most exciting project in my career," said the architect, Martin Growald of Fort Worth.

The developer is Trammell Crow Jr., 28, of Dallas, whose father runs the nation's largest private development company and whose wife, Barbara, is the daughter of multimillionaire oilman Herbert Hunt.

Crow agreed with Growald that the facility may become "the envy of the world."

"Nowhere, including either coast, is there the same type of campus concept we are going to create," Crow said. "Now, anyone in the industry will be able to do filming, production and post-production work, all in one location."

The showcase of the $25 million first phase will be a sophisticated soundstage with three studios of 3,000, 6,000 and 15,000 square feet. All will be equipped with the latest technology in stage lighting, acoustics, air conditioning, electronics and uplink-downlink satellite equipment.

When completed early in 1982, the complex also will contain 100,000 square feet of office space for lease to such industry people as producers, writers, editors and animators, and 80,000 square feet of warehouse space for larger concerns such as film and video rental companies.

Allen Cullum, vice president of the parent Dallas Market Center Co., did much of the design work for the project. The goal is to make work as easy as possible for the producer.

"From Day One, they can walk in with a concept and walk out with the finished product. Anyone in the industry can do filming, production and post-production, all in one location. Filming, editing, scripts, everything, including getting the talent they need," Cullum said.

The first phase is planned on 25 acres, four miles north of Texas Stadium, but an additional 77 acres is available for additional expansion. Growald pointed out there "have been no financial limitations on the pursuit of the ultimate in technology or building materials."

The uplink satellite system will allow live transmission from the studios to anywhere in the world, Cullum said.

With such technology and the capability of putting more than 100 television channels into a home, the industry must be prepared to meet a tremendous demand for production facilities, Cullum said.

"It's reasonable to assume that the extraordinary explosion in electronic communications, and particularly entertainment, will dominate our civilization for the next 20 to 40 years," Growald said.

A November issue of Variety, the trade paper, said themajor West Coast soundstudios are booked solid for the next 18 months.

"We have good weather, we'll be only eight minutes from Dallas-Fort Worth Airport, and the facility itself will be a draw because it's going to be the best," Cullum said.

The site is in an area that has been exploding with new hotels, office buildings and elaborate residential development.

"All we lack is the Atlantic or Pacific Ocean, and it would not be unreasonable to assume that young producers, directors, writers and actors will find the Dallas video and production campus a stage for the world," Growald said.

The two larger studios are designed primarily for use by major film producers or for made-for-TV movies, but Cullum said one of the more exciting concepts of the project is the way the smallest studio can be utilized by corporations.

"Somebody like IBM could have a meeting, we could rent them our sound stage, and they could transmit their meeting live around the world rather than bring their people in. It could do away with conventions," Cullum said.

Growald, who designed the Tandy Center in Fort Worth and other major buildings in New York, Detroit, Johannesburg and other cities, said, "It is a facility, I think, in direct lineal descent from the amphitheater of ancient Greece, the Roman Coliseum, the opera house in Paris and, more recently, Hollywood."

Times high now for veteran Mickey Rooney

By BOB THOMAS Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The unstoppable Mickey Rooney is back in town, enjoying to the hilt his 10th career — or is it 11th?

He claims to have performed 59 of his 60 years, and he has known high times and low times. Right now it's high. That's because of "Sugar Babies," the hokey, happy Broadway hit, and "The Black Stallion," which won him an Oscar nomination and renewed recognition of his powers as a dramatic actor.

No longer need Mickey rely on dinner theaters to keep him alive.

While appearing in "Sugar Babies," he made four feature films in New York as well as a pilot for an NBC series, "O'Malley," about an over-the-hill private eye. Also a children's show, "Misunderstood Monster," for CBS.

Rooney is here on leave from "Sugar Babies" for a CBS movie, "Leave 'em Laughing," a true story of a Chicago circus clown and his wife (Anne Jackson) who cared for dozens of homeless children. The director, Jackie Cooper, another ex-prodigy.

The last time they worked together? "I guess it would have been 'The Devil is a Sissy,'" recalled Rooney. That was only 45 years ago.

In his Land Cruiser-dressing room at CBS Studio Center (once Republic, where he produced and starred in two films in the 1950s), Rooney laid down his favorite reading, the racing form, and talked. And talked.

He was brimming over with enthusiasm for his ambitious enterprises: Fun-Filled Family, a program for senior citizens. ("Don't retire — inspire"); his chain of Star-B-Q eateries ("The best food in the world"); his self-taught acting course ("Anybody can learn to act").

Rooney also talked about Rooney, and these are some of his comments:

"I'm not a reborn Christian, I'm a thoughtful-again Christian. About 11 or 12 years ago I went back to the early teachings in my life — I was raised in Christian Science. 'Be ye renewed by the renewing of your mind.' That's what I did.

"I recognized where I was again, I finally found myself. I've made the commitment and a choice for Jesus Christ. They — I'm not specifying who they are — offered me $10 million to become a preacher. I said no; if I had the calling I would have done it for nothing.

"God is my agent, God is my manager. Seek ye first and all things will come to you."

"It hasn't been easy seeking Rooney. I should know, I've had to live with him for 60 years. But what good is easy? 'I've been the hardest on Rooney, not other people. I dislike nobody. I may like some better than others, but I never use the word 'hate.'"

"My height never bothered me, there's nothing dastardly about being short. People ask me, 'Doesn't it bother you always to be classified as short and pugnacious?' That's like asking Willie Shoemaker, 'Are you sorry you're a successful jockey?'"

"You must accept your own individuality, not allow others to classify you. My reputation has been built up by complete lies. I was supposed to be a big gambler; I've never lost a lot of money. A big drinker; I never drank to that extent.

"For years I was supposed to be waving the banner of The Alimony Kid. Well, I never paid a lot of money. In the first place, all of my (eight) wives were Ladies, and we parted friends. Secondly, many of them remarried two or three times after me, and I'm sorry to say, ended up unhappy women.

"I'm happy to say that all of my (nine) progeny are close to me; we're like bees in a honeycomb.

Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A.—You haven't much of a hand, and partner's jump to three hearts wasn't forcing. Nevertheless, by first doubling and then jump raising your suit despite the fact that you could have nothing, partner has shown a hand worth about 20 points in support of hearts. With your six points, you should have no qualms about continuing on to game.

What do you bid now?
A.—Once partner has made a two-over-one response, showing 10 points or better, you should insist on game, and slam possibilities are very bright. Start off with a jump rebid of your own suit—unconditionally forcing here. The auction should allow you to show your diamond support at your next turn.

What do you bid now?
A.—You have to decide between rebidding your six-card suit or supporting partner's suit. With only three spades, we would have favored rebidding your suit. But it is dangerous to suppress good four-card support—partner might pass two hearts thinking the hand is a misfit when, in fact, your hand will make an excellent dummy. Bid two spades.

What do you bid now?
A.—Slam is a distinct possibility, but it would be wrong of you to commit the hand to a twelve-trick contract unilaterally, either directly or via Blackwood—you could have two fast losers in clubs. Just carry on bidding what you have. Cuebid five diamonds to see what effect that has on your partner.

A.—You passed a hand that you might well have opened, and now your fit with partner has made the hand even stronger. The only way to draw partner's attention to your holding is to make a jump shift. Bid two spades. Even by a passed hand, that is forcing for one round. And it tends to show a fit for partner's suit.

What do you bid now?
A.—Partner's acceptance of your game try by bidding three no trump shows that most of his values are in spades and diamonds. His failure to support hearts for a second time, either at the three- or four-level, strongly suggests that he has only weak, three-card support. With your all round values, it will probably be easier to make nine tricks in no trump than ten tricks in hearts. Therefore, pass.

Peace Corps still wants volunteers

EDITOR'S NOTE — The Peace Corps, instituted by President John F. Kennedy, marked its 20th anniversary Sunday. The following report tells how it operates today in one area of the world — a remote corner of southern Chile.

By TOM FENTON
Associated Press Writer

CHILLAN, Chile (AP) — Sandy Hoffmann, a 23-year-old from Clinton, Iowa, may have the toughest job in the Peace Corps.

She is visiting the rural villages of southern Chile trying to talk peasants into killing their dogs.

Miss Hoffmann is a member of a health team trying to check an outbreak of rabies near the village of San Ignacio.

Two rabid dogs were found there recently and 40 people had to get painful rabies shots as a precaution. Since few dogs in the area are vaccinated against rabies, authorities decided to destroy all dogs in a 25-mile radius.

"There's no telling how many dogs are infected. Killing them is the only way," she said. "It's rough on the peasants. They need their dogs for livestock protection and for some they are companions."

Most peasants eventually agree to her entreaties, she said, but the health team destroys the dogs even if the owners refuse.

Miss Hoffmann is one of 107 Peace Corps volunteers in Chile and one of 5,500 volunteers in 62 countries as the agency marked its 20th anniversary Sunday.

Most volunteers in Chile work in rural areas. Many are teachers and community developers. They also keep bees, tend gardens, grow rabbits and sheep, work with retarded children and counsel juvenile delinquents.

Their goal is to teach their skills to the Chileans and help them help themselves. Many live with the very poor and endure the same hardships.

"There's nothing romantic about what I do. It's no fun freezing your butt off in the winter without heat and going for two or three weeks between showers," Miss Hoffmann told a reporter in a recent interview.

All the volunteers in Chile receive $285 a month as a living allowance. When they leave the Peace Corps, they get $125 for every month served. The normal tour of duty is two years.

The Peace Corps budget in Chile is $989,000 a year. Rhoda and Earle Brooks, the husband and wife team who run the operation in Chile, contend that dollar for dollar it is one of the best investments the U.S. government ever made.

"The amount of influence volunteers have in rural areas is phenomenal," said Brooks, a former Pillsbury vice president.

They were among the first 500 Peace Corps volunteers back in 1961, also served in Ecuador and say the agency has matured into a much more effective operation.

"Today's volunteers are older and more professional. The training and screening is 100 percent better," said Brooks, a native of Boston.

Volunteers for service in Chile get three months of intensive training here before they are accepted. This includes six hours a day of Spanish plus other courses geared as much as possible to the work the volunteer will be doing, Brooks said.

Brooks said 60 people were in the group he started out with in the corps in 1961, and 40 percent dropped out during training in Puerto Rico. He said all 17 volunteers who came to Chile in September to begin training were sworn in Dec. 5 and are still in the field.

Rene Lara, a Chilean and the corps' liaison officer with the Chilean government, said the government likes the volunteers and has asked for many more than the corps can supply. "I have 135 requests for special education teachers. We'll be able to supply five this year," he said.

Chile was one of the first countries to receive volunteers, with the first arriving in 1961.

The political upheaval that began here in 1970 with the election of a Marxist government and the right-wing military coup that followed in 1973 was a difficult time for the agency, which cut back to about a dozen volunteers.

Brooks said the agency survived by staying away from politics and warning volunteers to keep their political opinions to themselves.

What does the United States get out of the program? Peace Corps people agree there are many benefits but say they are hard to measure.

"People here take their impressions of the United States from 'Kojak' and 'Charlie's Angels,'" Lara said. "It takes some simple guy from Wyoming who's not a superhero to make them realize we're both human beings. The volunteers win a lot of friends for the United States."

Miss Hoffmann said her experience will make her a better citizen when she goes home.

"It's the best apprenticeship for learning how to help your own community," she said.

Crews work to contain toxic lagoon

EPPING, N.H. (AP) — As environmental cleanup crews worked to lower the level of a rain-swollen lagoon filled with toxic chemical wastes, state layers prepared to ask for a court order closing down the waste storage site, the only legal treatment facility in northern New England.

The Blue Goose, an enormous, mobile water treatment machine, pumped away throughout the day, and by late Sunday had brought down the level of the contaminated liquid to seven inches below the rim of the man-made lagoon.

"They're going to stop at midnight to get a little sleep, but everyone will be back on the job by sunrise," said Paul Keefe, owner of Keefe Environmental Services.

An analysis of the lagoon's contents showed it contained a variety of acids, solvents and heavy metals, but officials of the federal Environmental Protection Agency insisted that after the chemically-saturated liquid was passed through the 40,000 pounds of charcoal and sand in the treatment unit "it will be clean enough to drink."

Nevertheless, state water quality engineers monitored the water being pumped into a nearby swamp.

Record-breaking rains last week raised the level of the 8-foot deep, plastic-lined lagoon to its edges. Keefe and his crew spend several nights mopping up small spills, but on Friday Keefe gave up and told the EPA he was "helpless" to control any overflow.

EPA officials declared the site an environmental emergency and ordered in cleanup specialists from as far away as New Jersey.

Cleanup crews wearing respirators worked all day and night Saturday, often in driving rain and sleet, and added another foot of dirt atop the retaining wall of the 120-foot-square lagoon.

While the engineers worked deep in the mud, lawyers prepared to take Keefe to court for the tenth time.

"On Tuesday, we hope to bring (a state judge) out to the site and get an order to close them down," said Tupper Kinder, the assistant state attorney general who has worked with Keefe for the past two years to clean up the site.

"We just don't want any more material coming onto the site and the closure makes it official," Kinder said.

The site was ruled a health hazard in November 1979.

Keefe called it the largest chemical storage lagoon in the country.

"When we built it in 1979, it was the state of the art, and I built it big because EPA said it was a good way to handle waste," Keefe said. "It looks like it's all over now. We've done as much as we can, and there's no place left to go."

Keefe predicted the shutdown would increase illegal dumping in the area, which has long been a favorite spot for midnight dumpers. At least nine dumping sites have been identified in southern New Hampshire and northern Massachusetts, and police in both states are investigating several others.

"Now that I'm closed, what do you think is going to happen to the million gallons of waste that I handled every year. The illegal dumpers are going to have a field day," Keefe said.

Photos of distant galaxies support 'big bang' theory

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Astronomers who have found new galaxies at distances more than halfway to the edge of the known universe say their observations support the theory that the universe was born in a "big bang" about 18 billion years ago.

The identification of a group of four galaxies at least 10 billion light-years from Earth was reported by University of California scientists today in the Astrophysical Journal.

The distance of the galaxies means that light now reaching earth left the star systems 10 billion years ago and has been traveling to Earth at 186,000 miles per second ever since.

Previously the most distant galaxy was estimated to be 8 billion light-years away.

Hyron Spinrad, a professor on the Berkeley campus and leader of the research team, said Sunday the blue color of the light from the galaxies shows that they were made of stars that had already matured 10 billion years ago.

According to Spinrad, that supports the theory that the universe was formed in a cataclysmic explosion about 18 billion years ago, with the violent clouds of atomic gases from the "big bang" condensing into stars and galaxies 2 billion years later.

The huge star systems, which show up as faint smudges of light on the best photographs, contain as many as a thousand billion stars, Spinrad said — 10 times as many as our own galaxy, the Milky Way.

He said the discovery of the galaxies was made with a computer-controlled spectroscope at the Lick Observatory of the university's Santa Cruz campus.

Two galaxies have been officially catalogued and assigned numbers, and two others have been identified but not yet numbered, Spinrad said.

Assisting with the discovery were John Stauffer, a graduate astronomy student at UC Berkeley, and Harvey Butcher of the Kitt Peak National Observatory in Tucson, Ariz.

Spinrad predicted that galaxies far more distant will be discovered as soon as rapidly advancing technology allows.

"We've always presumed there were things more distant than telescopes of the era could see," he said. "The long-term outlook of moving (forward) on this and understanding these objects better is quite bright."

Spinrad said astronomers may ultimately be able to see galaxies 16 billion light-years away, meaning that the light reaching Earth would have left the galaxies when they were in the process of being formed.

Such observations could help answer fundamental questions about the formation of the universe, Spinrad said.

Prosecution expected to rest case today in joggers' deaths

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — After hearing his ex-wife and a former cellmate testify that he admitted killing two black joggers, Joseph Paul Franklin was returning to court today to hear the prosecution's last witnesses in his civil rights trial.

Prosecutors were expected to rest their case today in U.S. District Court as the trial went into its second week.

Franklin, a 30-year-old avowed racist from Mobile, Ala., is accused in the deaths of Ted Fields, 18, and David Martin, 20, who were shot by sniper fire as they jogged with two white women near a city park Aug. 20. He is charged with violating the men's civil rights by killing them. He also faces state murder charges in the shootings.

Franklin has denied killing the men, but told reporters before his trial they deserved to die for "race-mixing."

Defense attorney Robert Van Sciver said Sunday no decision had been made about whether Franklin would testify. "We're working on other things at the moment," he said.

Van Sciver said he planned to call about 16 witnesses this week, and expected the case to go to the jury late Wednesday.

Franklin's other defense attorney, Edward Brass, has said the defense may attempt to show that more than one person fired the shots that killed the joggers.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven Snarr told U.S. District Judge Bruce S. Jenkins that prosecutors expected to call one or two more witnesses today before resting their case.

Prosecutors haven't produced a murder weapon or a witness who could identify the gunman who killed the joggers.

Last week's testimony ended dramatically with Franklin shouting "you liar!" at a former cellmate who testified that Franklin had admitted slaying the two blacks.

Salt Lake County Jail inmate Richard Hawley told the jury that in a jailhouse conversation a month and a half ago, Franklin said he didn't like blacks associating with whites and "decided to do something about it."

Some witnesses indicated a third man was involved in the attempted holdup, but police said they had not confirmed

Police trying to sort evidence in botched supermarket holdup

ALHAMBRA, Calif. (AP) — Police were interviewing witnesses in an attempt to find a gunman still at large after a botched supermarket robbery that ended with an exchange of gunfire and the capture of another alleged gunman.

No one was injured in the attempted holdup Saturday, and one man — Oscar Duran, 43, of Montebello — was arrested after he allegedly engaged police and a liquor shop owner in a gunfight at the entrance of the Alpha Beta market in this northeastern suburb of Los Angeles.

Duran was booked for investigation of armed robbery and two counts of assault with a deadly weapon on an officer, police said Sunday. There were no injuries in the exchange of gunfire.

Some witnesses indicated a third man was involved in the attempted holdup, but police said they had not confirmed that.

"As far as we know, there is one suspect outstanding," said Sgt. Bart Aharonian. "However, there might possibly be another. That has not been discounted."

He said officers had not finished interviewing witnesses Sunday.

Sgt. William Cash said $6,700 and a .38-caliber revolver that had been fired six times were recovered when Duran was arrested.

Acting on information from shoppers and employees, Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department special tactics officers and helicopters surrounded the market for five hours in the belief that a second gunman was holding hostages inside the store. Deputies eventually entered the market and searched it with dogs, but no one was found.

DEAR ABBY

Forgiving wife thinks twice

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: Last New Year's Eve my husband got drunk and told me he was in love with another woman. The next day, after he sobered up, he said he loved only me and to forget what he said about his being in love with another woman. He said this woman was just a friend who needed someone to talk to, so he had been meeting her to help her sort out her problems, but there was nothing between them. He said he had kissed her a few times to cheer her up, but all he ever gave her was a T-shirt with "One Fantastic Woman" printed on it.

Abby, I love him regardless, and there is no way I am going to get into a fight with him and lose him to somebody else. We have three small children who worship him. I told him that I forgave him totally, and now he is knocking himself out trying to make it up to me. Do you think I was too easy on him? — MARYANN
DEAR MARYANN: No! But I think he gave the T-shirt to the wrong woman.

DEAR ABBY: So PLOTZING IN PLATTSBURGH, N.Y., complained because she got a lot of useless gifts for Christmas? Last Thanksgiving my youngest son's darling wife got together with the family and had them all put in an envelope what they were planning to spend on a gift for me.

The week before Christmas this daughter-in-law came to my house with a housecleaning crew, and in four hours, two husky men and two spry little ladies cleaned my five-room house from top to bottom. My windows were washed, the oven was clean as new, and all I did was sit and watch! When they left, there was $14.80 left over for me.

On Christmas Day the whole family came back with a picnic-like supper and useful presents such as new dish cloths, dish towels, a pot scrubber, rubber scraper, etc. And when they left I felt like the best-loved grandma, mother and mother-in-law in town! Cleaning is tiresome and sometimes impossible for us senior citizens. Wouldn't it be wonderful if everybody gave such practical gifts? — HAPPY GRANNY IN COLUMBUS, OHIO

DEAR GRANNY: Wonderful—in-deed. Readers, jot this down on your Christmas gift list. There are only 298 days until Christmas.

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest the letters in your column supporting the theory that wearing jockey shorts has contributed to the infertility of the American male. I submit the following as evidence to refute that theory.

In India, where I was born and raised, it was customary for men to wear a "langoti" under their loose-fitting garments. (A langoti is a triangular cloth truss, similar to an athletic supporter.) Some wear it because they believe it will prevent their body magnetism from flowing off their extremities. Some say it has religious significance. In any case, wearing the langoti is an ancient Indian custom, passed down from father to son. The point I make is that the majority of men wear the langoti VERY TIGHT!

Abby, the population of India is over 600 million, so obviously they have no fertility problem. I wore a langoti — a tight one — and I have nine kids. My father had 10, and my grandfather had 12, not including those he had while sowing his wild oats. — TIGHT LANGOTI IN LONGVIEW, TEXAS

Teens get early start on careers

NEW YORK (AP) — The five finalists in the All-American Girl of the Year Contest, chosen on the basis of their talents and accomplishments, all plan careers in male-dominated fields. They agree that in view of the progress women have made in the past decade they should have no trouble reaching their goals.

The outstanding achievers, all of whom earn top grades and are active in both their schools and their communities, were selected from entries submitted to "Teen Magazine," which co-sponsors the contest with Noxzema.

Stacey Teas, 14, of Cape Elizabeth, Maine, the national winner in the competition, is aiming at a career in zoology.

"I can work in a zoo, train, do research or teach," she says. "But, most important, I'll be with animals."

Stacey designed and installed one of the few live fish and wildlife exhibits in the country, called "Animal Acres," at the Children's Museum in Portland, Maine, and guided up to a hundred visitors a day through the museum.

To broaden the scope of the exhibit, she then initiated the "Animal Outreach Program": each week she takes smaller species of Maine wildlife into local first-grade classrooms to give children a lesson in animal behavior and care.

"I think it's a must for a woman to work in today's economy," says finalist Karen Hurd, 15, Springfield, Ohio. An artist, who drew before she could write, Karen has won numerous art contests, including one for which she designed the insignia for the USS Ohio

Trident submarine.

She has yet to make up her mind between a career in cartooning and animation, commercial art or industrial design. Whatever field she chooses, she doesn't think being a woman will be a hindrance.

Along with her art career, this ambitious teen has thoughts of owning a ranch in Colorado, starting a program for talented athletes (she's a weekend marathon runner) and working with humane societies to protect wildlife.

"I've always had an interest in chemistry, but I want to be with people, too," says Tammy Johnson, 16, Belvidere, Ill. "So I've settled on a career in pharmacy." Tammy, a straight-A student and president of her class, spends about three hours a day studying.

She says her concentration has been helped by one of her favorite sports, karate, in which she holds a second-degree black belt. She began karate when she was 9, then became the youngest female black belt in the country at the age of 11. Having broken a sports record, she's confident of her abilities in her career: "Attitudes toward women are becoming better every day. But to keep what we've gained, we need to remain ambitious."

According to Sharon Gifford, 17, of Rienti, Miss., "working and having a career allows a woman to make a positive contribution to today's society." Sharon has donated over 3,100 hours to school, church and community betterment projects, such as tutoring and working with the elderly and handicapped.

Now she has chosen a career which will enable her to continue to help people: medicine with concentration on cancer research.

"I think I may encounter some difficulties at first," she admits. "Medicine has traditionally been a male-oriented field. But women have it better than ever today and I'm confident that once I demonstrate my abilities, I'll be treated equally."

Like Karen, Janine Gutknecht, 18, Morris Plains, N.J., also plans a career in medicine and she expects equal treatment and pay when she embarks on this career.

"Women should be judged intellectually, not on the basis of their sex, and be paid according to the job they do," she says. "I think women can make increased progress by entering even more fields than they have so far — and by standing up for their rights."

Right now, Janine has her own business, the Jannessa Cattery, and is perhaps the youngest breeder of purebred cats on record. She began when she was 14 and her first litter produced a grand champion. Since then, she's bred and sold numerous other kittens, and they've not only paid for their own "room and board" but have left Janine with enough profit to take a dream trip to Europe this summer.

All the finalists were treated to three days of sightseeing, parties and theater in New York City, as well as a makeover and photo session. In addition, the grand prize winner received a $2,500 Noxzema Educational Scholarship and a trip for two to Los Angeles.

Russian perfume is something to remember

By VERONIKA MINTHORN
MOSCOW (AP) — Apply a tiny drop of Russian perfume and your head can swim. The sweet, penetrating odor clings tenaciously, surviving even a morning-after shower.

Brands such as "My Secret," "Only You," and "Triumph" come in fancy flacons, but there is no way to mistake them for more subtle foreign brands. The Soviet Union imports some foreign cosmetics, but potent local perfume is the standard for most women.

At Moscow's New Dawn perfume factory, a breathtaking mixture of sweet, flowery fragrances envelops the visitor.

The New Dawn factory is the oldest of about 20 perfume and cosmetic enterprises in the Soviet Union. It started production in 1922, using buildings and facilities of a perfume factory seized from a Frenchman during the Bolshevik revolution.

"We produced about 53 million bottles of perfume and eau de cologne in 1980, and this year's plan calls for more than 50 million bottles," says Antonina Sidiyakina, the factory's 50-ish director and herself a fan of "Triumph."

"Our goal is to satisfy our consumers completely," she said in an interview, parrying a question about possible gaps between demand and supply.

The factory has a staff of 1,400, mostly women. "Chief engineer" Tamara Soboleva heads the team of eight "noses" who create and test new fragrances.

Mrs. Soboleva does not seem to mind long hours of sniffing sweet, strong odors. But, she admits, "after lunch we get a bit tired."

The New Dawn factory produces more than 70 different perfumes and about 50 eaux de cologne. "Every year, eight to 10 new fragrances are introduced with about the same amount being discontinued," Mrs. Sidiyakina said.

Some fragrances are produced for special occasions. "New Year" and "Winter" came out by Jan. 1. And bottles of "International Women's Day" already crowd the shelves of Moscow perfume counters.

Still popular after more than 50 years is "Red Moscow," one of the first perfumes produced in the factory, Mrs. Sidiyakina said.

There is plenty of it available in Moscow. But two other fragrances, "Triumph" and "Only You," both of which are very popular with Russian women according to Mrs. Sidiyakina, are not always available in stores.

Prices range from 50 kopeks (75 cents) for a cheap-looking bottle of eau de cologne to 20 rubles ($30) for a one-ounce perfume flacon in a gift box. The average income of a Soviet industrial worker is about 180 rubles ($270) per month.

Shopping for perfume in Moscow can be a frustrating experience. Saleswomen either flatly refuse or are very reluctant to let customers try a fragrance.

At one of the biggest perfume and cosmetic shops, on modernistic Kalinin Prospekt, there are a few strips of blotting paper on the counters, with the names of different fragrances, but all smelling about the same.

At one cosmetic store, the perfume counter was totally deserted while there was a mad scramble for East German deodorant spray at the next counter.

Every woman who bought the deodorant tested it at once, and with good reason — on about half the tins the spraying mechanism was defective.

In all the shops there is still a large supply of "Misha," the fragrance created at the New Dawn factory for the Moscow Summer-Olympics. "Misha" comes in bear-shaped bottles which seem to be gathering a lot of dust now on the shelves of Moscow perfume counters.

In 1979 the Soviet Union imported 226 million rubles (about $340 million) worth of perfume and cosmetics, most of it from East Germany, Poland and Bulgaria.

The trade statistics do not indicate any perfume and cosmetics imports from Western countries, but there is a limited supply of French perfume and other Western beauty products at special hard-currency stores for foreigners.

Firms turning to consultants

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Many law firms are turning to management consultants to help solve management- and business-related issues as part of their services to clients.

According to Dennis Callaghan, president of Theodore Barry & Associates, a management-consulting firm, "Many lawyers don't have an understanding of how companies operate and are managed, and that's where we provide expertise. We show them how the management was implemented or how it operated well."

Sarkis Soutanian, executive vice-president of New York-based National Utility Service, a company which advises its clients on their utility bills, says his firm is frequently used by lawyers in court cases because "we're more familiar with the technical aspects of operations and we're more familiar with public service commissions' practices and regulations."

Barber cut out for his work

GREENPORT, N.Y. (AP) — Clayton Harrell, 81, doesn't believe in frills.

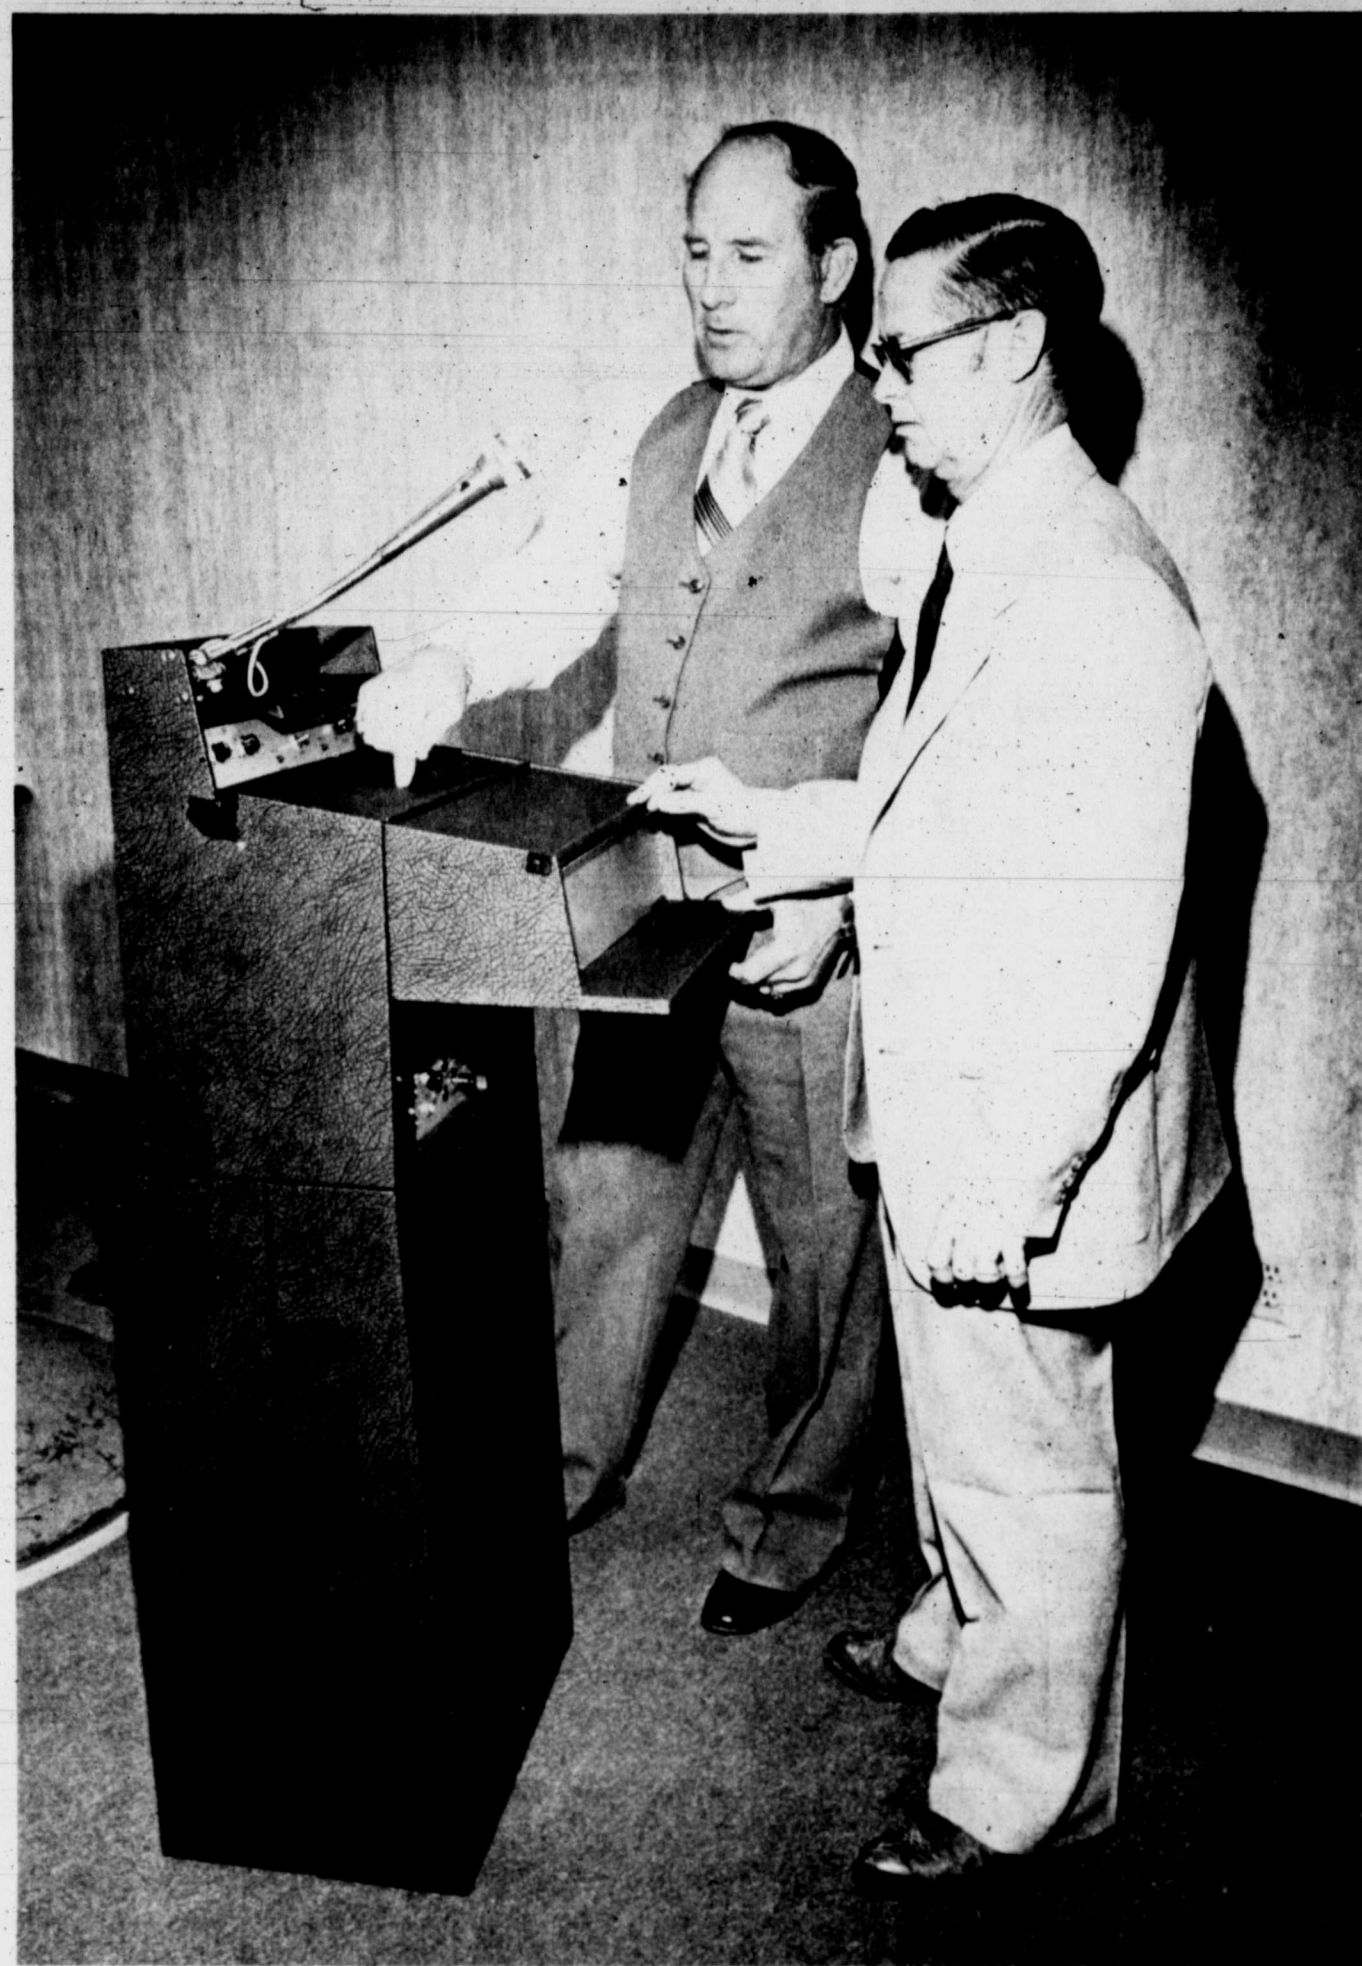

The sign in his window only reads "Barber Shop." When he arrived 48 years ago, there were nine barber shops here; now there are three.

Many barber shops have gone out of business, replaced by stylists and beauticians, the Department of State says.

Harrell has been cutting hair since 1914.

He has no hanging plants and no disco music. He just keeps cutting, under a sign that reads, "If you believe in credit, loan me $5."

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Ring around the table top

DEAR HELOISE: Could you please tell me how to remove white rings from a leather-topped table? Wet glasses were put on the table and left unnoticed. I'm at my wits' end! — June

Don't you wish folks would think before they set a glass or cup down on a piece of furniture that's not protected? The rings can't be removed but can be covered up.

Well, since the damage has been done, first clean the entire leather surface with saddle soap, letting it dry completely.

Sparingly and evenly, apply a scuff-type liquid shoe polish with a soft, clean cloth to the affected area, using a shade that closely matches the natural color of the leather.

If the polish should stain the leather darker, pour a little of the polish on a clean cloth and lightly coat the entire top of the table to more or less even the color.

Never coat leather with varnish or similar products. Leather is a skin and needs to breathe. It contains fats and oils from the tanning process that give it luster and keep that alive look.

If your table top has become dull, it's most likely dirty. Saddle soap will properly clean it, and it should be cleaned every six months. Saddle soap contains essential oils the leather needs.

As a final caution, if you must polish leather for any reason, use only leather dressing polishes sold by most better furniture stores. — Heloise

SHREDDED FOAM RUBBER

Dear Heloise: When stuffing toys or pillows with shredded foam rubber, try putting a little dusting powder into the bag and shaking it around before using.

The powder cuts down on the static electricity. — Altha Johnson

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise: While visiting my son and his family over the holidays, my 3-year-old granddaughter, Melissa, noticed I was wearing new shoes.

She asked me where I got them and I replied, "McDonald's" (a local department store).

Her quick reply was, "Did you get french fries too?" — Mrs. D.C.

NIFTY KEY-RING

Dear Heloise: I hooked my key ring onto a plastic bracelet. These "warden" keys are so handy to hang on the front door knob (so I won't forget them on my way out), and are easy to find in an overstuffed purse.

Why, I've even worn them on my wrist when carrying in a load of bundles. Makes opening the door much easier. — Betsy

HANDY KITCHEN TOOL

Dear Heloise: One of the handiest tools in my kitchen is the wooden toothpick.

The round kind is the best for cleaning crevices around the sink, faucets and stove. Even my appliances get a thorough cleaning from time to time.

The toothpick doesn't scratch, either, yet gets into the smallest of corners. — Fran Moran

And I love the price! — Heloise

EARRING REPRIEVE

Dear Heloise: I've been wearing pierced earrings for five years, since I was 10, so I've lost dozens of earrings, and it's usually just one.

Seems I always ended up throwing them away, until I thought to use them as pushpins on my cork bulletin board.

They're very decorative. — Allison

Make it good

CLEVELAND (AP) — The use of materials is an engineering problem. "Simply stated, you want what you are making to work," said Robert L. Stedfeld, editor of "Materials Engineering," a trade magazine.

"To make a stirrer for gin and tonic, the stirrer can't dissolve or break. For more serious problems, there are recognized materials engineering courses in more than 25 U.S. universities," Stedfeld said.

Heavy fighting in El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Heavy fighting was reported at two towns in eastern El Salvador as the international socialist organization asked Nobel Peace Prize winner Willy Brandt to mediate between the guerrillas and the government and the United States suspended aid to Nicaragua for allegedly funneling communist arms to the rebels.

Government troops and jet fighters repelled weekend attacks by leftist guerrillas on the towns of San Lorenzo and Santo Domingo, according to peasants streaming into this capital city to escape the fighting in the eastern province of San Vicente.

Witnesses said "sporadic and heavy gunfire" continued Sunday around the two towns. A military spokesman said "an army clean-up operation" was under way.

"We have some wounded," said the spokesman but refused to give casualty figures. There were no reports of rebel losses.

The leftist guerrillas who want to replace this Central American nation's civilian-military junta with a Marxist government had been rumored for the past week to be planning a new offensive. But their leaders issued no communiques on the fighting in the eastern province.

A large-scale rebel drive in January, billed as a "final offensive" against the government, was quickly crushed by government troops.

An estimated 14,000 people have been killed in El Salvador's political strife since the October 1979 coup that ousted President Carlos Humberto Romero's rightist regime and paved the way for the current U.S.-backed junta.

In Panama City, Panama, delegates to an emergency meeting of the Socialist International unanimously condemned the junta "as responsible for the violence which is bloodying the country," according to a spokesman who briefed reporters on the closed-door meeting of the world's non-communist Socialist parties.

He said the group called on Brandt, the former West German chancellor, to try to mediate between the Salvadoran leftists and the junta.

"We have selected Brandt for that mission because of his democratic political leadership and because he is the owner of a Nobel Peace Prize," said the spokesman.

In Washington, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said on NBC's "Meet the Press" program that the Reagan administration has cut off aid to Nicaragua because it is funneling arms to the Salvadoran guerrillas.

State Department spokeswoman Sue Pittman said the senator was "technically correct," that "aid to the government of Nicaragua has been suspended. None is going forward. However, a decision on this matter will not be made until we have completed a thorough review of Nicaraguan compliance with all the conditions related to extension of aid as provided for in U.S. law."

The Reagan administration and the Salvadoran junta claim Nicaragua's leftist government has been channeling arms to the guerrillas from Cuba, Vietnam, Ethiopia and other Soviet allies. The Nicaraguan government has denied the charge, and the Kremlin and its allies have denied sending arms to the rebels.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the right-wing government of Honduras, which is between El Salvador and Nicaragua, said war between Honduras and Nicaragua "could be inevitable because of the belligerence shown lately" by the Nicaraguan army.

In Managua, the Nicaraguan capital, the pro-government newspaper Nuevo Diario said Nicaraguan troops have been put on the alert because Honduran forces were evacuating civilians from the border area.

Honduras is ruled by a military government and has been accused by Nicaragua of sheltering troops of former Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza, who was ousted in a bloody leftist revolt in 1979. Nicaragua has repeatedly charged that the Somoza men in Honduras make hit-and-run attacks across the border. Honduras denies the charge.

Pollution control need cited

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — The Ohio River Valley, which runs through the heart of the nation's richest coalfields, suffers from the worst sulfur pollution in the nation because of its coal-fired power plants, a government study has found.

The Environmental Protection Agency has recommended stricter pollution controls, but coal industry officials say they need fewer controls, not more, to keep miners at work.

The EPA study, ordered by Congress and reported Sunday by Indiana University, says stricter controls on electric power plants could prevent 54,000 pollution-related deaths and billions of dollars in crop losses in the Ohio River Valley by the year 2000.

It says the valley, where about 95 percent of the electricity is coal-generated, has the nation's worst sulfur dioxide and sulfates pollution.

Public Service Indiana and other electric utilities say the researchers used "faulty study techniques" and reached false conclusions.

"They shouldn't put out figures like that when they're wrong and they just can't back them up," said Vernon Massey, a Charleston, W.Va.-based member of the International Executive Board of the United Mine Workers, whose membership has experienced thousands of layoffs because of slumping coal demand that is blamed in part on pollution regulations.

"The EPA is putting coal miners out of work. We're having a lot of problems with them," Massey said.

More than 100 faculty researchers from eight universities participated in the $4.3 million Ohio River Basin Energy Study.

The authors of the study investigated a 190,000-square-mile area including Kentucky, most of Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia. They investigated effects of regional pollution on health, crops and water quality.

Their report said if coal continues to dominate the area and if current pollution-control requirements remain, 163,000 people could die in the area before the year 2000 from sulfate-associated respiratory diseases. With stricter pollution-control laws in all affected states, the mortality estimate becomes 109,000.

Sulfates are associated with acid rain, which may cause heart and lung distress after long-term exposure.

Farm crops could be stunted by increased air pollution, and under existing practices crop damage could be about $7 billion from 1975 to 2000, the report said.

Although much of the blame for pollution-related crop damage went to coal-fired power plants, automobiles and similar polluters creating nitrogen dioxide and hydrocarbons were mentioned.

Scientists recommended a regional agency be established to coordinate locations of future plants.

The electric-power industry has asked the EPA for an independent scientific review of the study.

"In authorizing this study, Congress ordered all potential impacts of energy supply be considered. Yet nowhere does the report treat beneficial effects of power plants," said Hugh A. Barker, chairman and chief executive officer of PSI. He said the report was "grossly erroneous and scientifically unsupported."

The East Central Area Reliability Coordination Council, composed of electric utilities including PSI, wants a review of the report by the EPA's science advisory committee or the National Academy of Sciences.

"Meantime, the report should not be considered in any legal, scientific or policy proceeding," Barker said.

Researchers involved in the study came from the universities of Illinois, Louisville, Kentucky, Pennsylvania and Ohio State and West Virginia.

Split jury decision may set precedent

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — A fundamental principle of American criminal law is that juries must reach unanimous verdicts, but under an agreement between defense attorneys and prosecutors, 19 defendants in a drug-smuggling trial have been convicted by an 11-1 vote.

"I've never heard of it before and I've been a judge for 16 years," said U.S. District Judge Lawrence King, who approved the 11-1 vote that convicted 19 members of the so-called "Big Pine 29" Saturday.

"I've never known a jury to do this. This may be the first time ... in this country," King said.

Defense lawyers said they would rather appeal than have a mistrial and start over on the lengthy, costly case. The four-week trial cost an estimated $1 million.

Besides the 19 convictions by the split vote, the jury unanimously convicted three other defendants and acquitted four. Earlier, King had acquitted two defendants. One other will stand trial alone.

After deliberating eight hours Friday and three hours Saturday, the jury sent King a note saying it could not reach a verdict on the 19 defendants.

The defense then decided to gamble, not knowing whether most jurors were in favor of acquittal or conviction.

"We're talking about 10-2, judge, or 11-1," said defense attorney Alvin Entin. "In other words, 10-2 or better. We might go 9-3. We're shooting craps with destiny."

Attorneys cited precedence for split votes in six-person civil cases and military trials.

After consulting with U.S. Attorney Atlee Wampler III, prosecutor Tom Scalfani told the court that "the government will agree" to "9-3, 10-2 or 11-1."

"I have some concern about the procedure you have outlined. But I suppose if both sides are willing to do it, I shouldn't impose my concerns on you," King said.

Defendants then stood individually and were asked if they would accept any split verdict of 9-3 or higher. Each replied, "Yes, I agree."

The four-week trial stemmed from the Nov. 14-15 arrests of 29 people while some 15 tons of marijuana was being unloaded on Big Pine Key.

The 22 convicted will be sentenced within 30 days. They face possible 30-year prison sentences.

"I've never seen a trial like this in my whole life," said Scalfani. "I've never seen more incredible things happen in one criminal case."

Basque radicals reject cease-fire

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Three policemen of the Guardia Civil in the Basque country of northwest Spain were wounded in a bombing and machine-gun attack seen as the rejection by the radical military wing of the Basque separatist organization ETA of a cease-fire appeal from ETA's more moderate faction.

The moderates, known as ETA-Political-Military or ETA-PM, on Saturday released three foreign honorary consuls who had been kidnapped and held more than a week.

The moderates, who admit to kidnapping and assassination but claim to avoid the indiscriminate attacks of the radical ETA-Military, or ETA-M, declared an unconditional cease-fire because of the attempted rightist military coup last week.

"The present political situation is sufficiently serious for political parties and institutions to be the protagonists in resolving the problems of the Basque country," spokesmen for ETA-PM told a clandestine news conference.

ETA-M did not immediately admit to the attack on the policemen Sunday as they were on patrol in Portugalete, a suburb of Bilbao. But a police spokesman said: "ETA-M has given its answer to the cease-fire."

Authorities said two bombs exploded near the policemen's car, showering it with nails and metal fragments. Then they were the targets of machine-gun fire from a passing car.

One officer was rushed into surgery and reported in grave condition. In addition to the other policemen, a woman passerby was injured, but not seriously.

Carrying out a plot by a group of right-wing army generals, some 200 members of the Guardia Civil, the paramilitary national police, occupied the Parliament building Monday, took some 350 members of the lower house hostage, and called for a military dictatorship. But King Juan Carlos was able to rally the army to support the civilian government.

ETA was blamed for more than 95 killings in 1980, and ETA-M claimed responsibility for 66 of them. It is believed to have about 100 guerrillas and is fighting for independence for the Basque provinces and establishment of a Marxist state.

ETA-PM, which is believed to have about 300 active members, has said it would try Basque home rule under the Spanish state. It claims its assassinations are politically selective while ETA-M's are made at random on the police and military.

The honorary consuls of Austria, Uruguay and El Salvador were taken from their homes in Bilbao and Pamplona on Feb. 19. ETA-PM demanded that the government publicize evidence of police torture of imprisoned Basque separatist guerrillas, but the demand was not met.

The Newspaper BIBLE

I FOUND IT; LET'S CELEBRATE!

Dishonest tax collectors and other notorious sinners often came to listen to Jesus' sermons; but this caused complaints from the Jewish religious leaders and the experts on Jewish law because He was associating with such despicable people—even eating with them!

So Jesus used this illustration: "If you had 100 sheep and one of them strayed away and was lost in the wilderness, wouldn't you leave the 99 others to go and search for the lost one until you found it? And then you would joyfully carry it home on your shoulders."

"When you arrived you would call together your friends and neighbors to rejoice with you because your lost sheep was found."

"Well, in the same way heaven will be happier over one lost sinner who returns to God than over 99 others who haven't strayed away!"

"Or take another illustration: A woman has ten valuable silver coins and loses one. Won't she light a lamp and look in every corner of the house and sweep every nook and cranny until she finds it? And then won't she call in her friends and neighbors to rejoice with her?"

"In the same way there is joy in the presence of the angels of God when one sinner repents."

Mismatched brain cells may explain some retardation

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — A University of Iowa scientist has turned up experimental evidence that may help explain why some babies born to chronic alcoholic mothers are mentally retarded.

The research by James West, professor of anatomy at the University of Iowa college of medicine, dealt with rats, and West said the results may not apply directly to humans.

"But if I were a pregnant woman, I would not drink," he said. "We have demonstrated convincingly that alcohol alters the brain (cell) connections" in test animals.

West's study was published in Friday's issue of Science magazine and relates to a human birth defect called "fetal alcohol syndrome."

Fetal alcohol syndrome, a complex of symptoms that affects many infants born to alcoholic women, is the third most common type of birth defect of the central nervous system after Down's syndrome and spina bifida, both genetic disorders.

The syndrome is characterized by a variety of facial malformations — thin upper lip, flattened nose and small head — as well as varying degrees of mental retardation.

"It occurs once in every 750 births, and it's the only one (of the three) that's preventable," said West.

"The fetal alcohol syndrome was only defined in 1972, although it had been suspected for generations," he said. "Aristotle even wrote that mothers who drank had defective children."

"The (disrupted) facial features are a minor problem," said West. "The big problem is the brain."

In his study West fed pregnant rats liquid diets composed of 35 percent alcohol. He examined the offspring and found that their brain cells were connected abnormally when compared to a control group.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Alcohol can cause impotency

Dear Dr. Solomon: Would you have any idea why a 35-year-old man should gradually become impotent? My husband and I lived together for about a year before we decided to marry nine years ago, and we now have two children. Impotence was never a problem with him. Aside from the fact that he drinks more than he should, there is nothing unusual about his behavior. In fact he has always been considered a heavy drinker, so this is nothing new. He is too embarrassed to discuss the problem with our doctor, who is also a close friend of the family. Would you have any suggestions? — Mrs. N.D.

Dear Mrs. D.: You do not indicate whether your doctor is treating your husband for his drinking problem, but this may very well be the root cause of his impotence. Alcohol abuse has many adverse health effects, including loss of sexual function in men, and it should not be shrugged off as simply part of a person's usual behavior.

While your husband's drinking today may be no worse than it was years ago, the fact is that excessive drinking over a period of time can be cumulative in its effects, and these effects may include impotence, sterility, and a tendency towards increased femininity as a result of hormonal changes.

Dr. David Van Thiel, associate professor of medicine at the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine, notes that alcohol abuse can decrease testosterone, the key male sex hormone, and that drinking an average of a pint or more of hard liquor a day over a period of five to eight years may cause complete loss of sexual function. The condition may be reversed in some men when they stop drinking, but this is not always the case.

Alcohol damages the hypothalamus and pituitary, disrupting the production of hormones that, in turn, stimulate the production of testosterone and sperm in the testes. A low testosterone level may make a man impotent and decrease his sex drive, while a low sperm count makes him sterile.

If your husband's impotence is related to alcohol abuse, it can be diagnosed without too much difficulty; changes in the cells of the testes stemming from such abuse are easily seen. The solution to the problem is equally simple — your husband will have to stop drinking.

Many people are able to maintain both a social and a professional relationship with their physicians. If your husband is unable to do so, I suggest he find another doctor. If, as you say, he has always been a heavy drinker, and if he continues to drink he may soon have more to worry about than impotence, as serious as that is.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Is there a rule of thumb for determining how much weight a newborn infant should gain during his or her first year of life? — Mrs. T.D.

Dear Mrs. D.: To achieve normal weight, an infant should gain approximately one ounce per day during the first six months of life, and one-half ounce per day for the second six months.

Bani-Sadr wins skirmish with clergy

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr appears to have won the latest skirmish in his power struggle with the clergy-dominated Parliament by delaying discussion of a bill that would deny him the right to approve key appointments.

The tug-of-war over appointment of leaders for three key ministries — finance, commerce and foreign affairs — has for the past 10 months pitted Bani-Sadr against his chief rival, Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai, whom the president calls "incompetent."

Bani-Sadr, a political moderate who appointed Rajai last June only after the Parliament made it clear he had no choice, has repeatedly rejected the prime minister's nominees. The prime minister, a member of the clergy's hardline fundamentalist Islamic Republican Party which commands a majority in the Parliament, has refused to nominate any of Bani-Sadr's choices. Neither will compromise.

Tehran Radio said Sunday that Parliament had postponed for a week discussion of a proposal for parliamentary appointment of "supervisors" to the three ministries.

A day before consideration of the bill was postponed, Bani-Sadr bitterly attacked the proposal, saying it would usurp his right to approve heads of ministries.

"The plan they have presented to Majlis (Parliament) has very dangerous consequences for the country," the president wrote in a statement published by his newspaper Enghelab Islami (Islamic Revolution).

Bani-Sadr wrote in his newspaper that the supreme Iranian ruler, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, had formulated a compromise plan for filling the three posts, but he did not elaborate. He said: "I have written a letter to the imam (leader) and I am waiting for his initiative."

Tehran Radio reported that Rajai, Parliament Speaker Hashemi Rafsanjani and other clergymen and officials met with Khomeini today.

Rajai was quoted by the official press news agency as saying:

"The meeting dealt with resolving problems and filling the Cabinet posts. The imam issued certain guidelines."

By pressing Khomeini to enter the dispute, Bani-Sadr appears to be confident the 80-year-old leader will come down on his side and hand the clergy a defeat. In recent months, Khomeini has repeatedly appealed for unity and tended to side with Bani-Sadr in his disputes with the Islamic Republican Party.

On the second anniversary of the revolution Feb. 11, Khomeini declared that the clergy should not interfere in matters they are not competent to handle. In December, Khomeini banned a march by pro-clergy groups. Last Nov. 17, he said he did not like all clergymen and hated some.

Also to mark the second anniversary, the Islamic revolutionary tribunal ordered the release of six military men and four civilians who had been imprisoned in connection with an abortive coup, according to Tehran Radio.

New 'monkey trial'

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A case reminiscent of the Scopes "monkey trial" of more than half a century ago goes to trial today in Sacramento County Superior Court.

At issue is whether the biblical version of creation should be taught along with the theory of evolution in California public schools.

The trial pits a fundamentalist San Diego group called the Creation-Science Research Center, which has filed suit, against the State of California.

Creation-Science has been trying for 18 years to restrict the teaching of evolution in science classes. It contends that presenting the evolution theory without an equal, scientifically based presentation of the biblical account of creation, violates religious freedom.

The California Board of Education's 1978 guidelines for science textbooks refer only to evolution, treating it as a theory generally accepted by scientists about the development of life forms.

Separate guidelines for social studies texts allow the presentation of divine creation theories along with other beliefs.

The founder of the Creation-Science center, Nell Segraves, says the state policy "imposes a particular belief system on every child in the state at the expense of all other belief systems."

But state Deputy Attorney General Robert Tyler calls the suit "an intrusion of religion into science."

'Rich kids' trial begins

WACO, Texas (AP) — James Dean Bridges takes the witness stand in federal court here today as six jurors begin trying to figure out who should get the $481,816 Bridges unearthed on his father's farm in 1977.

Bridges and Percy Garcia, the "Alice rich kids," say the money is theirs. They dug it up at Bridges' father's ranch after the Bridges, then 15, and his father had a fight about smoking, according to Assistant Texas Attorney General David Bragg.

The boys' spending spree ended in Waco when they ran a red light. Police found the money and confiscated it. It was put in two Waco banks, where it has earned $155,939 in interest.

Bridges and Garcia want the money back. However, the state claims it as "misplaid" money. McLennan County also claims it. The city of Waco wants to recover $35,000 it has spent in legal fees.

The Internal Revenue Service wants $330,000 in taxes if Garcia and Bridges get the money back.

A six-member jury will decide if the money was stolen, mislaid or lost. U.S. District Judge Fred Shannon will decide if the money was legally taken from the boys.

In opening arguments Friday, Bragg said Bridges knew where the money was buried and decide to take it after a spat with his father about smoking.

Hunts' new dream goes up in steam

By JERRY KNIGHT
(c) 1981, The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Hunt family of Texas, accused in the past of trying to corner the markets in silver and soybeans, once again is trying to dominate an important natural resource.

This time the Hunts are in hot water.

Family members have obtained federal leases making them the biggest developers of geothermal energy: the power of Old Faithful and Mount St. Helens, hot water, steam and blistering rock trapped below the earth's surface.

Hunt family members, Hunt trusts and Hunt corporations have staked claims on roughly one-sixth of all the federal land that has been leased for geothermal power exploration. Department of Interior records show.

The Hunts hold 252 of the 1,600 geothermal leases issued by the Bureau of Land Management, which oversees development or resourcement federal property. The Hunts' leases give them control over about 480,000 of the 2.9 million acres of federally leased geothermal land, according to BLM records.

And they are trying to get still more, with applications pending to lease 435,000 additional acres.

A little-publicized source of energy, geothermal power generates much of the electricity for San Francisco and heats homes and offices in Boise. It is used to dry onions in Nevada and heat greenhouses for growing roses in Utah. The hot springs in Bath County, Va., use geothermal energy, and an exploratory well at Crisfield, Md., has shown geothermal potential.

Geothermal power someday could supply 10 percent of the nation's energy needs, the Department of Energy estimates.

Many major oil companies — Phillips Petroleum, Chevron, Occidental Petroleum, Atlantic Richfield — are getting into geothermal energy, but the Hunts' holdings are already three times as big as any of theirs.

The Hunts have moved into geothermal energy with the same techniques they used in silver and soybeans.

As with silver, once they decided to invest the Hunts went in heavily, quickly making themselves the biggest in the business. Their purchase of as much silver as the United States consumes in six months is still being investigated by three federal agencies, a congressional committee and a federal grand jury.

As with soybeans, the Hunts evaded limits on how much geothermal land an individual can control by obtaining leases in a dozen different names. A federal judge ruled that all the Hunts' beans had to be counted together, but the Department of Interior says there is nothing illegal about splitting geothermal leases among several family members.

Geothermal is one of two alternative energies into which America's richest oil family is trying to diversify.

The other is gasohol, the blend of grain alcohol and gasoline.

Until last week, when they abruptly withdrew their application, the Hunts were seeking federal subsidies to build the third-largest fuel alcohol plant in the United States.

The Hunts pulled back their application for gasohol loan guarantees after a House investigations subcommittee headed by Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., began asking questions about it.

The heads of the Hunt family tangled with Rosenthal last year, when the same Commerce consumer and monetary affairs subcommittee investigated their silver dealings. The committee slapped a contempt of Congress citation on Nelson Bunker Hunt and his brother, W. Herbert, and withdrew it only after the two agreed to testify and turn over records.

The House panel is still pursuing the Hunts, and has expanded its probe into other activities of the billionaire Texas clan, including both the gasohol project and the geothermal leases.

The Hunts, who shun publicity, did not respond to inquiries about their interest in geothermal energy. Calls to the Dallas law firm that represents the family were not returned.

Geothermal is an infant energy industry, just as petroleum was when H.L. Hunt founded what has become an oil dynasty.

The U.S. Geological Survey has identified about 2.1 million acres of federal land that have known geothermal resources: deposits of 300-degree hot water and steam. The government has taken bids on some of the tracts, and several successful geothermal wells have been drilled. Electricity is being produced from geysers in California. Other sites are waiting for power plants to be built to harness the heat.

But the frontier of geothermal development is 55 million acres of national forests, Indian reservations and other federal lands in 12 Western states that have been identified as "potentially valuable geothermal resource areas."

On these tracts, hot water wildcaters can stake a claim and, without competitive bidding, get the right to develop geothermal power for the next 10 years.

BLM records show that virtually all the Hunt investments have been in non-competitive leases, in Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Idaho and Utah. The Hunts have also filed for non-competitive geothermal leases in Arizona and California.

Getting a non-competitive geothermal lease is a relatively simple process, BLM officials say. It takes about 20 minutes to fill out the forms.

The maximum size for an individual geothermal claim is 2,560 acres, or four square miles. Hot-water wildcaters typically "block up" several adjacent claims, giving them a bigger target at which to aim.

The leases are cheap, $1 per acre per year for the first five years. The government gets a 10 percent royalty of any geothermal energy found, and can get more if the lease produces over a long period.

Federal law limits the amount of geothermal land an individual can lease to 20,480 acres per state, but that has not prevented the Hunts from acquiring nearly half a million acres of federal claims in five states.

The Hunts have made the limit meaningless by taking out leases in 20 names, including individuals, corporations and trust funds consisting of various groups of Hunts.

Nelson Bunker Hunt has leased 50,000 acres in his name. Brother W. Herbert has 24,000. The third brother, Lamar, owner of the Kansas City Chiefs football team, has the biggest individual holding, more than 56,000 acres.

Herbert's wife, Nancy's, name is on leases for 33,500 acres, and his son, Douglas, is listed as owner of 21,000 acres.

Several other groups of leases are held by trusts composed of various Hunt family members. A Hunt son-in-law, Hugo M. Schoellkopf, has 24,500 acres under lease. About 48,000 acres are held by the Rosewood Corp., whose mailing address is the Dallas office of the various Hunt enterprises.

Interior Department officials said use of various entities to acquire more than the usual limit of land does not violate regulations, as long as any one does not exceed the limit.

If all the pending applications for additional leases are approved, some members of the Hunt group would appear to have more than their legal shares. BLM officials said that if any Hunt hits the limit, he will have to turn back some leases before getting new ones.

The Hunts used a similar technique of splitting holdings among family members when they invested heavily in the sybean market, where there is also a federal limit on how much one investor can own.

That time they got in trouble with the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, which ordered that all the Hunts' holdings be counted as one. A federal judge upheld the CFTC and ordered the Hunts collectively to observe the limit.

The CFTC soybean case against the Hunts is still open. Their dealings in the silver futures market are under investigation by the CFTC, a federal interagency task force and a U.S. grand jury in Denver.

Several bills to increase the acreage limit on geothermal leases were introduced the last session of Congress, including one by then-Rep. Steven D. Symms, R-Idaho. Nelson Bunker Hunt served on Symms' campaign finance committee in his successful race for the Senate last fall.

The Hunts "generally are pretty aggressive" in exploring for geothermal power, say Geological Service officials who oversee the tracts after they are leased. Family members reportedly have drilled several deep wells more than a mile into the ground in New Mexico.

Poll finding shows

Oil deregulation hits sour note

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans weren't pleased by President Reagan's decision to lift federal controls on domestic crude oil, one of the first major actions dealing with energy by the new administration, an Associated Press-NBC News poll says.

Overall, the public is not happy with Reagan's actions and policies in the energy field. They give him a remarkably low rating for his work in the area, only about a month after he took office.

This low rating contrasts sharply with the favorable ratings Reagan received in the poll on his work overall and his work on the economy and foreign policy.

As one of his first actions in office, Reagan ordered the final level of price controls be lifted from crude oil produced in this country, arguing that the regulations discourage oil exploration and are an unnecessary burden on oil producers. The controls were due to expire in September in any case. Lifting of the controls was one reason that gasoline and heating prices have risen a dime or more a gallon in recent weeks.

The public takes a somewhat negative view of Reagan's action, although there is a substantial lack of knowledge about the move, according to the AP-NBC News poll taken Feb. 23-24.

Thirty-one percent of those questioned said they approved of lifting the controls, while 39 percent disapproved. But 30 percent of the 1,597 adults interviewed by telephone nationwide said they really didn't know enough about the decision to have an opinion on it.

And the public is not too happy with Reagan's work overall in the energy area.

Only 32 percent of the public said that the President's work in this area has been good or excellent, while another 32 percent rated his efforts "only fair." Twenty percent said Reagan's work has been poor and 16 percent were not sure.

This relatively low rating is in definite contrast to the judgment of Reagan's work in other areas.

On his work overall, 56 percent gave Reagan top marks. Twenty-one percent said he has done only a fair job and 5 percent judged his work poor. Eighteen percent said they were not sure.

In dealing with the economy — the focal point of Reagan's first month in office — 50 percent of those questioned gave his work good or excellent marks, with 24 percent saying it has been only fair and 9 percent rating it poor.

Reagan got 48 percent excellent or good ratings in foreign affairs. Twenty-five percent rated his work in the international arena only fair and 8 percent said it has been poor.

As with all sample surveys, the results of the AP-NBC News polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variations in the sample.

For a poll based on about 1,600 interviews, the results are subject to an error margin of 3 percentage points either way of such chance variations.

President seeks commercial development in west

By BILL STALL
(c) 1981, The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — While President Reagan's economic plan may face a tortuous journey through Congress, his program for opening up Western lands to vigorous new commercial development is riding high at the Department of the Interior.

In just one month, there has been an eye-opening turnout in the sprawling agency that manages most of the federal domain:

— A speedup in mining and oil and gas leasing.

— Elimination of park and recreation grants to cities and states.

— New life for the dormant dam-building program.

— A shift of land management attitudes back toward meeting the needs of the stockman, the prospector and the oil geologist.

And in 43-year old James G. Watt, the new secretary of interior, Reagan has found the man to take on those he calls "extreme environmentalists" and to open up more federal land to the development of natural resources.

A sometimes blunt, sometimes genial man who makes no apologies for his commitment to economic development of "locked-up" public lands, Watt has stunned traditional environmentalists by the speed with which he has changed the course of policymaking at the Department of Interior.

This is happening, of course, because the Nov. 4 election results, particularly in the West, indicated that the people agreed with Reagan's campaign thesis: environmentalists have had their way too long and have shielded too much of the public domain from economic development.

Given the November returns, it was inevitable that things would be different at the Interior Department, that Sierra Clubbers in turtlenecks and blue jeans would no longer roam the department's halls the way they did — their place taken, more often than not, by visitors in Western-tailored suits and cowboy hats, just in from Cheyenne, Bozeman or Susanville.

What is surprising is that changes have come so rapidly and in such contrast with the style of the more environmentalist-inclined department under the last secretary, Democrat Cecil D. Andrus.

Before the dust settled from the

Feb. 18 budget cuts and reordering of priorities, Rep. Phillip Burton, D-Calif., a flag-carrier for conservationists, declared "The worst nightmares of the environmental movement have become reality."

But in Watt's first meeting with the Washington press corps, he made it clear that he is willing to take such flak and give it back in kind — sometimes with a candor that borders on bluntness and sometime with a flash of down-to-earth good humor.

Major oil firm is moving headquarters to Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — A New York-based oil company that is little known outside the industry but earned more money in 1979 than Shell Oil Co. is moving its base of operations to Dallas, the Dallas Times Herald reports.

Caltex Petroleum Co., jointly and privately owned by Standard Oil Co. of California and Texaco Inc., hopes to move all 640 of its corporate employees from New York to Dallas, the newspaper reported in Sunday's editions.

Caltex had 1979 earnings of $14.6 billion in 1979, the last year for which figures are available, the newspaper reported.

If the company were publicly held, those earnings would have ranked Caltex 13th on Fortune magazine's list of the nation's 500-largest companies, just behind Atlantic Richfield Co. and ahead of Shell Oil Co., the Times Herald said, and a company spokesman told the newspaper that 1980's earnings were "probably over" the 1979 figures.

Caltex is the administrative arm for a group of companies involved in petroleum refining, marketing and transportation with operations in the Middle East, Africa, Southeast Asia, Japan, Hong Kong, Korea, the Philippines, Australia and New Zealand, company spokesman Jon Allen told the newspaper.

In addition, he said, the company owns or controls 60 tankers and 17 refineries with total capacity of 1.5 million barrels of oil daily.

Allen told the newspaper Dallas was chosen over Honolulu, Denver and Houston.

"New York's a tough place to be," Allen said in discussing the reasons for the move. "An awful lot of energy-related industries are operating out of Texas now."

The company has 13,000 employees world-wide and its 1979 revenues were more than for any other Dallas-based company, the newspaper said.

CHICAGO (AP) — Jane Byrne won the support of blacks, independents, community groups and labor unions, and jolted Chicago's political machine, by promising to bring unity and decency to City Hall.

Two years after she won the mayor's office, many of the people who labored to get her elected now say she has delivered only division and malice.

"Jane Byrne has systematically insulted every one of her constituencies," said James Masini, head of the Independent Voters of Illinois. "I would seriously question whom she's going to be elected by next time she runs."

"I can't think of any major group that supported her that doesn't feel something between disappointment and revulsion," said Don Rose, the mayor's former political strategist. "I don't think she's enhanced any constituency of support."

A spokesman for the mayor, when told of the criticism, said Mrs. Byrne was unavailable for comment.

Mrs. Byrne, a protegee of the late Mayor Richard Daley, pledged reform after winning the Feb. 27, 1979, primary. Winning the Democratic primary is tantamount to election in this city and she rolled to an easy victory in the March general election.

Her campaign attracted voters who had traditionally been counted on the side of the Democratic establishment. But halfway through her term, the tough-talking mayor is in trouble with these groups.

Her ex-supporters point to these examples:

—She promised police and fire-fighting unions they'd get their first contracts (the city has never had collective bargaining), but the fire-fighters won their battle only after a bitter 24-day strike and the police are still without a contract.

—She vowed to steer clear of the old patronage system, remarks high led independent supporters to hope for new faces at City Hall and an end to the remnants of the Daley machine. But many of the people who ran the city under Daley are still on the job.

—She appointed a new school board with a black as president, which was applauded. But she also removed two blacks from the 11-member board, which governs a district that is more than 60 percent black.

Pointing to the school board decision, Rose said it exemplified the way the mayor had alienated many of those who got her into office: "She has the capacity to foul up even the good work she does."

The blacks seem to be the people Mrs. Byrne has angered most.

"As far as blacks were concerned, they were just hoping against all odds that she would turn out to be an angel in disguise," Renault Robinson, head of the Afro-American Police League, said. "She turned out not to be that person."

Robinson, also a member of the Chicago Housing Authority, said the mayor has repeatedly insulted blacks by failing to improve public housing, by pushing for a white school board president and by dumping the black school board members.

"I think the black community thinks she's fickle and a racist," he said.

But Paul McGrath, a political adviser to the mayor, disagrees. Mrs. Byrne, he said, "has very good popularity in the black community. Some of the (black) leaders trying to make hay are out of step with what the people are saying."

Rep. Harold Washington, a black Democrat who once supported the mayor, now charges that Mrs. Byrne has tried to racially polarize the city. He wants a black mayoral candidate in the next election: "There's no question that from the black community will come a strong candidate in 1983."

Masini says his group is also looking for challengers.

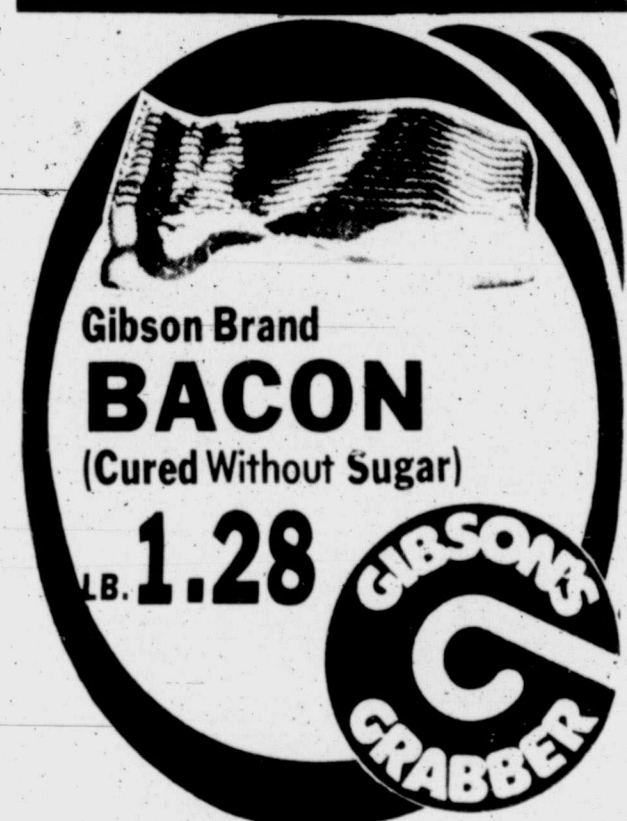

"The reason that independent voters voted for her was they wanted a change. ... They wanted to see some fresh air around City Hall," Masini said.

Chicago people are disappointed, upset with Mayor Jane Byrne

Dollar to follow trend and begin to show strength

Hearst Special News Service

PARIS — We've had hard rock and hard porn. Now, we are going to have the hard dollar.

That, at least, is how international bankers have begun describing America's currency and its outlook on world exchange markets. As one U.S. private banker here put it, "It's going to be a big change for Americans traveling abroad. For the first time in years, they needn't be ashamed of the dollars they'll be carrying in their wallet."

For nearly a decade, since the Nixon Administration abandoned its international convertibility in terms of gold, Americans have had a "soft" dollar whose movements were mostly downward. During the past three months — roughly from the moment of President Reagan's election — the dollar has been climbing steadily in value, a trend which culminated in mid-February when it reached exchange values against currencies like the German mark and Swiss franc that the dollar had not known since the early 1970s.

But the widespread view that the dollar has entered a prolonged period of "hardness" is not based solely on its recent three-month performance. During the past week or more, there has been evidence that it rose too high too fast and it has started dropping back against most major foreign currencies, though remaining relatively strong. The money market experts say gyrations of that kind can be expected frequently in the months ahead.

The belief that the dollar is going to continue showing a fundamental strength in world markets, which has been absent for most of the past 10 years, is rooted in a host of economic and political factors. According to a leading international banker, Alex de Takaszy, "an underlying cause of the new faith in the dollar is a belief in banking circles that President Reagan and his men are really committed to the idea of the dollar's integrity and stability as part of the process of restoring America's overall strength and prestige. The prestige of the dollar looms very large in their eyes as a part of total American prestige."

In de Takaszy's view, "that is something which has not been seen in American politics in a long time. The last President to insist he was determined to protect the dollar and to be believed was Jack Kennedy. His political determination kept the dollar buoyant even when the economic factors did not warrant. We are likely to see the same with Reagan."

Hard-headed bankers like de Takaszy do not make the mistake of confounding the Kennedy and Reagan eras in other respects. The last two decades have witnessed too much inflation and too sharp a change in the world economic balance for that. But nearly everything Reagan has done since taking office has strengthened their conviction that the White House is once again occupied by someone to whom the dollar's strength is a paramount consideration.

Europeans now see interest rates as the prime "technical" element in a currency's day-to-day fortunes. They believe that Reaganite economic policies are, as one banker here put it, "locked into" high interest rates for a long period ahead. Bankers are betting that U.S. rates will remain substantially higher than those abroad, helping to increase the dollar's attractiveness for the bigtime currency holders: multinational corporations, international banks and, indeed, other governments.

But, just beneath the surface of events, other factors may be having nearly as significant an impact on the dollar's dramatic comeback. Financial experts here agree that these have less to do with the new U.S. administration than with what is clearly happening elsewhere, especially in western Europe. A large piece of the 1970s was spent deploring the decline of the U.S. economy and, of course, that continues to be one of Reagan's leitmotifs. However, recent developments have indicated that most foreign industrial economies may be even worse off.

Unemployment and economic stagnation are more serious in most western European countries than in America. What is more, the prospect is they are going to become worse yet. Inflation is generally higher over here. The Europeans' ability to withstand Japanese competition and penetration of their own industries was once thought to be better than America's. Now, it is realized that is not so.

Nowhere is this more evident than in West Germany, not so long ago held up to Americans as the model of what a modern industrial economy should be.

Oregon State stretches record to 25-0

Kentucky beats LSU to end longest win streak

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

First, the nation's longest winning streak came to an end ... and then it didn't.

In a Super Sunday of college basketball action, second-ranked Louisiana State had its 26-game winning streak ended by No. 9 Kentucky 73-71.

That put the pressure squarely on No. 1-rated Oregon State and the unbeaten Beavers, erasing a 6-point halftime deficit for the second road game in a row, overtook No. 13 UCLA 82-76, boosting their record to 25-0 and remaining the only team in the country without a setback.

"One by one we're accomplishing all the goals we set for ourselves," Coach Ralph Miller said after Oregon State clinched at least a tie for its second consecutive Pacific-10 title. "And it's the first time we've swept UCLA and USC since 1958."

THE BEAVERS also came from behind Friday night to beat Southern California 73-64.

"I'd have to say this is my best team at Oregon State," added Miller, who is in his 11th season. "We should be in good shape for the playoffs because we've used a lot of people this year and our players are pretty well rested."

Steve Johnson, the Beavers' 6-foot-10 center, rested some Sunday with foul problems but still scored 26 points. His two free throws 3½ minutes into the second half put Oregon State on top to stay 48-47 and contributed to a 17-3 spurt.

The 61-year-old Miller received some more good news Sunday when the U.S. Basketball Writers Association voted him Coach of the Year.

Kentucky closed out its regular season by preventing LSU from becoming the first team in 23 years to go through its Southeastern Conference slate without a blemish.

FOUR WILDCATS scored 11 points apiece — Dirk Minnifield, Chuck

Verderber, Melvin Turpin and Sam Bowie — to offset a 24-point effort by LSU's Howard Carter while Minnifield also thrilled a packed house of 24,000 at Kentucky's Rupp Arena with his floor leadership and ball-handling.

"I'm proud of this team and of the crowd," Coach Joe B. Hall said after the Wildcats turned back a series of rallies by LSU, which never led in the game. "This was the kind of support we needed to wake our young players up. If we'd had a dead crowd I don't know if the outcome would have been the same."

"It was a difficult position coming in here," LSU Coach Dale Brown conceded.

In other Sunday action, Edmund Sherod's free throw with four seconds left in overtime gave Virginia Commonwealth a 62-61 decision over Alabama-Birmingham and its second straight Sun Belt Conference postseason tournament crown — plus an automatic berth in the NCAA Tournament — while four free throws by Kris Anderson in the final two minutes helped Florida State defeat Marquette 81-78.

ON SATURDAY, No. 3 Virginia beat No. 17 Maryland 74-63, No. 4 DePaul outscored Chicago Loyola 105-95, No. 5 Arizona State whipped California 81-68, No. 6 Notre Dame routed Dayton 70-57, Wyoming upset No. 7 Utah 53-50, No. 8 Iowa crushed Wisconsin 96-75 and No. 10 Tennessee defeated Auburn 75-63.

In a pair of Atlantic Coast Conference upsets, both by 66-65 scores, Duke edged No. 11 North Carolina in overtime and North Carolina State nipped No. 12 Wake Forest. Also, No. 14 Illinois trimmed Purdue 81-70, No. 15 Brigham Young stopped Colorado State 80-69, No. 16 Indiana whipped Michigan 98-83, No. 18 Arkansas shaded Texas Tech 64-61, Indiana State knocked off No. 19 Wichita State 75-72 and No. 20 Louisville, the defending national champion, trounced Western Kentucky 90-75.

Virginia snapped a two-game skid by beating Maryland thanks to a 10-2 second-half burst keyed by Jeff Lamp and Ralph Sampson. Mark Aguirre scored 31 points and Terry Cummings added 22 as DePaul overpowered Loyola. The Blue Demons led 63-41 at the half.

With the NCAA playoffs just around the corner, Robert Morris was selected as the sixth team in the ECAC South tourney, which opens Tuesday at two home-court sites.

There were five-way ties in Philadelphia's Big Five competition, as well as in the Mid-American Conference among Ball State, Western Michigan, Northern Illinois, Bowling Green and Toledo.

In first-round Southern Conference playoff action, Tennessee-Chattanooga whipped VMI 89-63, Western Carolina beat East Tennessee State 91-80, Marshall smashed Davidson 90-77 and Appalachian State shaded Furman 75-71.

One team that doesn't have any tournament aspirations is Southern Illinois. The Salukis lost to Drake 72-67 and became the first Missouri Valley team in 12 years to go winless (0-16) in conference play.

GOLF—Andy Bean cruised to a seven-stroke victory over Tom Watson in the Bay Hill Golf Classic on a final-round 2-under-par 69 and set a record on Arnold Palmer's Bay Hill Club course with a 266 total, 18 under par. He earned $54,000.

Heavy rain washed out the third and final round of the Olympia Gold Classic at Industry Hills, the second straight day that inclement weather had caused postponement of play. The last 18 holes will be played on Monday. South African Sally Little holds a one-stroke lead over Kathy Whitworth and Lori Garbacz in the event that was originally scheduled for 72 holes.

Taiwan's Chen Tse-Ming shot a 2-under-par 69 and won the $120,000 Cathay Pacific Hong Kong Open Golf Tournament by one stroke over Australian Graham Marsh, finishing with a 279 while Marsh had a final round 69. Tom Sieckman closed with a 72 and tied for third with Scotsman Brian Barnes at 281.

MHS, Lee are ready to Play Ball

Midland High's Bulldogs open their 1981 baseball season against the Snyder Tigers at 4 p.m. at Memorial Stadium Field and then will go to Lubbock Saturday for a doubleheader against the Monterey Plainsmen at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Midland-Lee, meanwhile, marks time until Tuesday before launching its campaign against Lubbock Coronado at 4 p.m. The Rebels host Monterey for a 4 p.m. game Friday.

Both teams are pointing for the Tournament of Champions at Cubs Stadium March 13-14, where they will be joined by Amarillo Tascosa, Monterey and Carrollton Turner in the everybody-plays-everybody meet.

Coach Tim Whalen will start either Mark Hewitt or Doug McLean today against a Snyder club that spoiled the Bulldogs' opener 2-0 a year ago. The Purple Pack still has five players tied up in basketball.

Coach Ernie Johnson is building his club around four starters from last year's fast-finishing 16-13 club and probably will go with Randy Velarde as his first game starting pitcher.

Tardy Reggie hurts George's feelings

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Here we go again, by George. "Frankly, I am upset, disappointed ... hurt more than angry," says New York Yankee owner George Steinbrenner.

The object of his discontent Sunday, as it has been so often in the past, was Reggie Jackson. Steinbrenner wanted to know why the high-profile outfielder hadn't materialized for the first official day of baseball's spring training.

"It's time Reggie learned he is not bigger than the Yankees," noted Steinbrenner. "He must reassess his priorities."

Steinbrenner had flown into the Yankee training camp at Fort Lauderdale for a dual purpose — to announce the signing of an old football coaching friend, Lou Saban, as president of the Yankees, and to talk to Jackson about a new contract.

But after making the Saban announcement, Steinbrenner was non-plussed about his continually disconcerting outfielder. Steinbrenner left in a huff, saying:

"The last guy I want to sit down now and deal with is Reggie Jackson."

JACKSON, in California, was AWOL for the second straight year for spring training. While other Yankee regulars met the traditional March 1 deadline, and many had in fact been working in camp for two days, Jackson phoned Manager Gene Michael to advise him he would be late in reporting.

Steinbrenner said the truancy of his controversial outfielder could cost him as much as $2,500 a day in pro-rated salary and bonuses, not counting a $1,000-a-day fine.

Meanwhile, another George — George Brett — was in the news as major league teams went through the first full day of workouts for the 1981 season.

Brett was unable to make the opening of the Kansas City Royals' camp in Fort Meyers, Fla., as the result of surgery for recurring hemorrhoids, the kind that kept him out of part of last year's World Series. The All-Star third baseman and American League's Most Valuable Player of 1979 underwent a 1½-hour operation Saturday that club officials said could keep him out of spring training for two weeks.

BRETT'S BROTHER, Ken, who's trying for a job in the Royals' bullpen, said that George had experienced no problems with his celebrated ailment until last week.

"It's the first time, the only time, since the World Series it's bothered him," he said. "We don't know if it's diet or exercise, or what. I hate to even talk about it ... I feel sorry for him."

In other developments, two noteworthy trades were made over the weekend, as the New York Mets reacquired slugger Dave Kingman and the Philadelphia Phillies sent left-hander Randy Lerch to the Milwaukee Brewers.

The Mets, who dealt Kingman on June 15, 1977, got the 6-foot-6 slugger from the Cubs in exchange for outfielder Steve Henderson and "a cash consideration."

Kingman led the major leagues in home runs in 1979 with 48, but a shoulder problem limited him to 18 last year. Henderson has a lifetime batting average of .285, the highest on the Mets, but didn't give them the power hitter they've long been seeking.

Aggies in backdoor bid for SWC tourney spot

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

Defending champion Texas A&M hopes Monday night to find the backdoor to the sixth annual Southwest Conference post-season basketball classic in San Antonio by defeating the Texas Christian Horned Frogs — the team that started all the Aggies' troubles.

TCU upset the Aggies in the season opener at Reunion Arena in Dallas back in January, starting a 1-7 slide for A&M. The Aggies reversed the record in the second half to earn fourth place and a first round tournament host spot against the Horned Frogs.

IN OTHER first round games, Texas entertains Rice while Texas Tech, which tied A&M for fourth, hosts last-place Southern Methodist.

Arkansas, Houston and Baylor got the free passes to San Antonio. The Razorbacks, regular season champions for the fourth time in five years, will be idle until next Friday night. Arkansas, 11-3 in the regular campaign, is in the top-seeded bracket, meaning it should have an easier road to the tournament finals Saturday night.

The winners of the Tech-SMU and Texas-Rice games Monday night play in a second-round game Thursday night. The survivor gets to play Arkansas.

IN THE other bracket, Houston got the bye to Friday night because of the tie-breakers although the Cougars were tied with the Baylor Bears for second place at 10-6.

Baylor will play the winner of Monday night's Texas Christian at Texas A&M tussle in the Thursday night doubleheader at San Antonio. The winner meets Houston Friday night in the semifinals.

Arkansas, which started the SWC season 2-3, capped remarkable turnaround which included nine straight victories by defeating Texas Tech 64-61 in Lubbock Saturday night.

He's not known for his hitting feats, but Tug McGraw, Phillies' relief ace, takes a mean cut in batting cage as world champions undergo spring training at Clearwater, Fla. (AP Laserphoto).

Celtics, Suns serve notice

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

The Phoenix Suns and Boston Celtics had a couple of points to make — and what better opportunity than before a national television audience?

The Suns, led by center Alvan Adams' 30 points and 10 rebounds, showed they can win in Los Angeles by beating the Lakers 101-96 in the second half of a Sunday television doubleheader carried by CBS. The Suns, who had not won at the Forum since 1977, losing their last 11 games (including playoffs) on the Lakers' home court, stretched their Pacific Division lead over Los Angeles to 4½ games.

Suns 101, Lakers 96—The Suns, who outrebounded the Lakers 42-35, used a 10-2 spurt midway through the fourth quarter to clinch the victory.

Dennis Johnson added 20 points for the Suns, who are now 50-20, and Walter Davis had 19 points despite missing most of the second half because of foul troubles.

Celtics 114, 76ers 107—Center Robert Parish scored 25 points for Boston, including two free throws with 2:44 to play that snapped a 103-103 tie. Boston won its fourth in a row despite six technical fouls — two on Coach Bill Fitch, two on assistant coach Jimmy Rodgers and two for playing a zone defense.

Bucks 137, Bullets 107—Milwaukee opened a 20-point lead in the second quarter and went on to its highest scoring game of the season as Marques Johnson scored 21 points and seven other Bucks tallied in double figures.

Spurs 102, Rockets 86—George Gervin scored 26 points to lead San Antonio over Houston, but the highlight of the game came with 1:13 left in the third quarter, when the Rockets' Calvin Murphy missed his first free throw attempt. That ended an NBA record string of 78 consecutive free throws converted by the 5-foot-9 Murphy.

Mavericks 99, Clippers 91—Guard Ollie Mack scored 24 points as the expansion Mavericks beat San Diego for their 10th victory of the season and assured themselves of avoiding the embarrassment of becoming the losingest team in NBA history. That dubious distinction remains with the 1973 Philadelphia 76ers, who compiled a 9-73 record.

Blazers 108, Jazz 97—Guards Kelvin Ransey and Jim Paxson scored 29 and 25 points, respectively, as Portland beat Utah. Adrian Dantley, the NBA's leading scorer, had 25 for the Jazz — all but 10 in the final period.

Nuggets 137, Cavaliers 127—Denver, the highest scoring team in the NBA, got 41 second-half points from David Thompson and Alex English to overcome a 15-point deficit and beat Cleveland. Thompson finished with a season-high 44 points and English had 30, while Mike Mitchell topped Cleveland with 36.

Hawks 108, Sonics 102—Rookie guard Wes Matthews handed out 18 assists, one short of the club record, to help Atlanta defeat Seattle.

Pistons 117, Nets 104—Terry Tyler scored 27 points as Detroit built a 21-point third-quarter lead and coasted past New Jersey.

Yankees Dave Winfield keeps his eye on the ball in Yankee debut.

Welcome to the Yankees, Dave Winfield Dangerous, but can be pitched to

By THOMAS BOSWELL
(c) 1981, The Washington Post

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — Dave Winfield, bent in a silly crouch that made him look like a 6-foot-6 praying mantis, bunted a few off the Iron Mike, just to practice picking up the flight of the baseball after a winter in which he had done nothing more strenuous than pick up $25 million.

"Ready," he said, preparing to take his first swing as a New York Yankee.

The pitching machine buzzed in a decent fast ball low and away, just as though it knew the book on this career .284 hitter with the immortal potential and the mortal stats.

Winfield swung and missed, just as he usually has at good pitches in good spots. "Dangerous, but can be pitched to," say the scouts. "Big swing. Tends to be impatient."

NEXT, the machine fired at the same spot, low and away, but moved the ball tantalizingly out of the strike zone. Winfield swung and missed by a foot.

By now, dozens of Yankee fans had discovered a walkway perhaps 10 feet above Winfield's head as he took his cuts in this crummy mesh-net batting cage under the stands. They tittered among themselves. For this you get paid $1.5 million a year? With cost-of-living increases? For 10 years? They could contain themselves no longer. Come on, man, this guy's had two swings. He's not producing. Why are "we" paying him all this money?

Before the next pitch, a grating bleacher voice hissed a message to Winfield: "That's two strikes. You only get one more."

"Hey, Dave," said Graig Nettles, "welcome to New York."

SELDOM HAS a baseball player reported to a new team with so much hope and fear compressed into the same psyche as Dave Winfield did last week. Apprehension, anxiety, spontaneous delight, a desire to explode into motion, all seemed to fight for supremacy in his face and gestures.

At one moment, he would break into a huge grin, or dash after a ball in the outfield to make a gazelle-like scoop, or run around the bases with a skipping, exuberant quality like some huge rookie too full of energy. At other times, his face was full of worry at how his new mates would react to him or how the horde of reporters, who outnumbered the 50 Yankees here, might stampede the whole proceeding while following him everywhere as though he were a Pied Piper.

More than any other player in baseball, Winfield is a man on display, a man under fierce scrutiny. And for many good reasons.

Winfield has been playing baseball for 22 years, eight in the majors. He'll be 30 by World Series time. After that long, most players are known, completely tagged and all together docketed. By then, you don't change much. Even the pitching machines, it seems, know how to work you.

Winfield desperately wants to see it differently. Odd as it appears, Winfield is the free agent superstar who has no idea how good a baseball player he is. He has reached his prime, yet has no answers to the most fundamental questions about his ability, temperament or courage. Other men have signed vast contracts for the money; Winfield has signed so he can learn the truth about himself.

Bean's easy victory may have angered Arnie

By BOB GREEN

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Andy Bean had only one disturbing thought after scoring a 7-shot victory in the Bay Hill Golf Classic.

"I talked to Arnold (Palmer, owner and operator of the host Bay Hill Club) early in the week and we agreed that the course was tough enough that something like 10 under (par) would win," Bean said Sunday. The big guy offered a mischievous smile and added:

"I'm afraid I might have made Arnold mad at me."

Combining his awesome physical strength with a deft and delicate short game, Bean ripped Arnold's course and humbled the opposition with an 18-under-par performance on a winning score of 266.

"What can you say, when you've played better than you thought anybody was going to?" Bean asked.

The 6-foot-4, 210-pounder, the tour's most noted alligator-wrestler, made it look easy. He started the final round with a 3-shot lead over Tom Watson, the only man in the field with any realistic hopes of overtaking him.

And it took Bean only three holes to put away the struggling Watson. Bean reached the par-5 first in two big blows and 2-putted for birdie. He birdied the second from point-blank range and Watson, playing with him, bogeyed it after missing the green. And Watson left one in a bunker on the third and bogeyed again.

Bean suddenly had a 7-shot lead.

"That was pretty much the ball game," Watson said.

"I couldn't catch the big fellow. He didn't make any mistakes and I made too many. He deserves to win. He played well enough to win."

WINFIELD is perhaps the best athlete in America. And he knows it. This 6 — 6, 220-pound statue with broad shoulders, invisible waist and hips, long legs, speed and acceleration, is the only man ever drafted by the NFL, NBA and the majors.

This is the fellow who, at age 21, was constantly told that he had to make a terribly difficult choice: should he break the records of Hank Aaron, Elgin Baylor or Charley Taylor? Should he be a fly-chaser, a forward or a flanker?

Now, approaching 30, Winfield is a four-time All-Star, a two-time Gold Glove, who is sort of great, yet sort of not. He has won only one major hitting title — the '79 NL RBI crown (118). In seven full seasons, he has only once surpassed such basic plateaus as 100 runs, 25 homers, 100 RBI, 80 walks, 25 steals. The nasty numbers say he averages 22 homers, 88 RBI and a .284 average per year. Last season, the figs were 20, 87 and .276. Good. Far from great.

EVERYTHING Winfield says and does bears this rich uncertainty about what he truly is. "You smell like what you're planted in," says Winfield, meaning that in his years in San Diego the aroma around him was awful. "We'd be out of the pennant race before the All-Star game. In eight years, I never — not once — played in a game that you could honestly call 'significant.'"

Winfield was warmly greeted here, especially by the previous Yankee free agents. "When I pitch, we'll find out how well you go back on a ball," joked Tommy John. "I lead the league in 425-foot fly outs to Death Valley. I once gave up 1,700 feet of fly balls in one game to Gorman Thomas. And he went zero for four."

What happened to that fat ump?

Eric Gregg... 'just call me slim.'

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — They won't be talking about that big, fat umpire in 1981. In fact, National League ump Eric Gregg may have to reintroduce himself to his colleagues when he arrives in Florida for spring training.

Gregg, 29, weighed 354 pounds at the end of last season. Now he's 251. "I really went on a crash diet after the World Series," he said recently at his home in suburban Bala Cynwyd, Pa.

The 6-foot-3 Gregg said he realized he was eating himself out of his job. More important, the weight threatened his health.

Gregg recalled bringing his children to a game last season and having fellow umpire Harry Wendelstedt ask him: "Do you want to be around to raise those kids? Do you want to be able to play with them? Then you'd better lose some weight."

Gregg said Wendelstedt's remarks hit him where he lived.

At first Gregg went to several spas, but found them more like social clubs. So he called Gus Hoefling, the strength and flexibility teacher of the Philadelphia Phillies, and asked for some help.

"I gave up beer, pretzels, cheese-steaks and pizza. I worked out every day, including running up and down the stands a few times a week," Gregg said. Hoefling put him on a diet of coffee and juice for breakfast, protein milk for lunch and vegetables for dinner. Gregg was allowed six ounces of meat a few times a week. Hoefling also had him doing karate, kung fu and other exercises.

"It really paid off. You'd hardly recognize me," Gregg said proudly. "I'm getting new uniforms, the whole works."

How did he get so out of shape? "When I got to the big leagues I weighed 205. I stopped eating the cheeseburgers I lived on in the minors. I developed bad eating habits. I ate a lot of junk food," Gregg said.

He went from minor league cheeseburgers to major league roast beef. "I felt obliged to eat all that food they serve on first-class airplane flights that you ride as a major league umpire," Gregg said.

Gregg, who works in a phototype engraving company in the offseason, said his crash diet and physical work were the most difficult things he had done in his life. "I'm an eater and it's tough to push away from the table. But I'm all set now. I would look in the mirror and see the results, see myself coming down. It made me a workaholic."

Gregg says the weight didn't affect his work but it did take a step or two away from his movements in the field. "It also made me more tired after doubleheaders."

Last season, he took a ribbing from the players, especially on questionable calls. They'd tell him he was too fat to get to the play.

Mets' Torre ponders where to play Kingman

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — The return of Dave Kingman to the New York Mets could signal a brief round of musical-fielders as they try to nurse the controversial slugger back to full strength.

Kingman, traded away by the Mets in 1977 when he and then-board chairman M. Donald Grant couldn't agree on a salary, was reacquired from the Chicago Cubs Saturday by the Mets' new ownership. The Mets sought Kingman despite a bruised shoulder which kept him out of half of last season's games.

"We plan to bring him along gradually, not to rush him in the spring," General Manager Frank Cashen said. "If that means occasionally playing first base, we can do that, too."

Manager Joe Torre was on Cashen's wave length. "If I have to play him at first base," Torre said, "I could move Rusty Staub to left field and Joel Youngblood to third base."

Also coming to the Mets in exchange for outfielder Steve Henderson and a reported $100,000 cash payment to the Cubs is Kingman's $240,000-a-year contract, which the Cubs refused to renegotiate, and his reputation as a man tough to get along with.

Davidson coach gets pink slip

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — A 24-year-old Ohio boxer remained in a coma after being knocked out in a brutal six-round bout over the weekend.

Fred Bowman of Youngstown was in critical condition in the intensive care unit at the Atlantic City Medical Center after emergency surgery Saturday night for a blood clot in his brain, the nursing supervisor said late Sunday night.

The surgery lasted about four hours and ended just before midnight.

Bowman collapsed at Bally's Park Place casino hotel shortly after he was knocked out in a bout that preceded the afternoon's nationally televised fight between World Boxing Council light-heavyweight champ Matthew Saad Muhammad and Vonzell Johnson.

His earlier teams finished 9-18 and 8-18.

Bowman's dismissal was announced by Athletic Director Gene Bingham, who said in a statement that Davidson wants a conference championship and it wants a berth in the NCAA tournament.

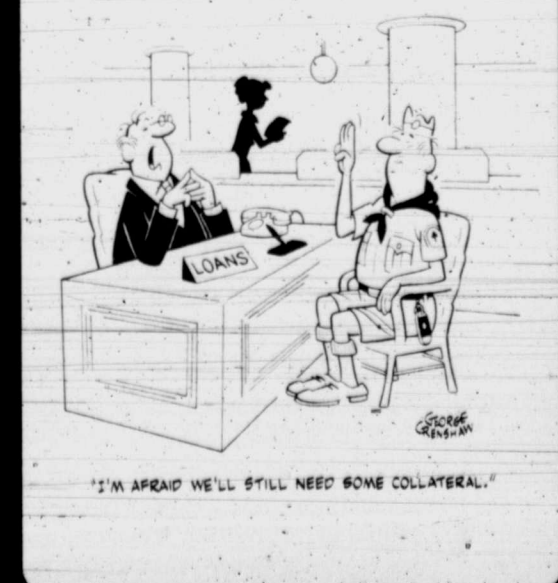

BOWMAN WAS defeated by New Jersey lightweight champion Gino Perez of West New York, N.J. The fight was one of several on the Saad Muhammad-Johnson undercard.

Fighter remains in coma after brutal bout Saturday and a crowd-pleaser, with the two boxers pounding each other mercilessly in toe-to-toe combat.

Each fighter took scores of direct blows to the head, with seemingly little concern for their own defense.

The slugging continued almost constantly until about midway through the sixth round.

Sea-faring Warby's Bounding Main is inland lake

Los Angeles Times
You can tell right away Ken Warby is a seafaring man. The full chest, the red beard, the jovial laughter. He's as salty as a sea chanteur. You want to ask him where Treasure Island is. Or what he did with his parrot.

The only thing is, his "sea" is an inland lake with a slight chop on it, not the Bounding Main. His boat is not a four-master with cannon, it's a glass-hulled jet which is not sure whether it wants to sail or fly.

Still, he's an iron man in a wooden ship. And he's a historical figure in boating like Magellan or Sir Francis Drake.

This Captain Warby has gone across a body of water faster and more dangerously than any man who ever lived. If you think doubling the Cape in stormy seas is risky adventure, you ought to double a kilometer run at 329 miles an hour. If you think Morgan the Pirate was reckless, you ought to see Warby the daredevil locking himself into the cockpit of a boat which will disintegrate in an instant if it runs into a beer can, to say nothing of a submerged log.

THE THING that distinguishes Ken

Warby from the rest of the men who have been world water-speed record-holders is, he's alive. World water-speed record-holders as a group are always referred to as "The Late So-And-So." The Queen's sea captains might die in bed, but water-speed record-setters seldom even die on dry land.

Warby is well aware of this. The fraternity of the quick is the brotherhood of the dead. Part of his activities as reigning speed record-holder this past year has been to drop memorial wreaths on the spot where previous champions were last seen. Long John Silver might have died of cirrhosis but old speedboaters drown.

Warby is the first man to travel over 300 m.p.h. over water, having set a two-way average of 317.596 m.p.h. at the man-made Blowering Lake in Australia on Oct. 8, 1978. It is a record edged in black, a record that eluded Lee Taylor last November when he perished in the frigid waters of Lake Tahoe; that eluded Sir Donald Campbell in 1967 when he disappeared forever (his body was never found) in the depths of Lake Coniston in England; John Cobb, when he perished in Loch Ness in 1952; Mario Verga of Italy who drowned in 1955, and Sir Henry Segrave of Britain, in 1930. Lloyds of London should ring a bell as soon as these ships leave the dock.

Ken Warby is almost the only one of the speed record-setters to build and run his own boat. He built it the same way Noah did, in the back yard of his home at New South Wales, matching spruce from Oregon, plywood from Sydney with fiberglass sheathing and a jet engine from a moth-balled submarine-chaser plane of the Royal Australian Air Force.

WORLD RECORD speedboats are usually put together in wind tunnels by aerodynamicists working in crews, but Warby did his on weekends and holidays under a makeshift awning with mail-order tools. Most people just thought he had a complicated canoe, but when he put it on the water after five years in the building, he broke Lee Taylor's world record of 285.213 by more than three miles an hour. A year later, he broke it by 32 miles an hour.

Warby's homemade boat is unusual in that it stays on the water with a rocking side-to-side motion rather than tilting skyward on its spousons like a runway take-off. "Those boats tend to go over backwards," Warby warns. In a sport in which water surfaces usually have to be as calm as a teacup, Warby's boat actually prefers a slight chop. Not as high a chop as the press boat once gave him when it crossed at right angles to his path and gave him such a white water wake to go over that it put him four feet in the air for 300 feet. Warby says he felt like a guy hanging onto the rear platform of a speeding train by his fingertips.

THE MORBID statistics of his sport do not occupy him except that he deplores the fact their gloomy recital seems to discourage competitors from going for the record. None is currently taking a shot at it. "It's easy to raise money to bring the record back to Australia when it's won someplace else," grumbles Warby. "But when you try to raise money to break your own, donors tend to say, 'What do you want another record for—you've already got one?'"

Warby and his record-setting "Spirit of Australia" boat have been making the boat-show tour lately. If you get a chance, you may want to take a look at the only living world water-speed record-holder. It's for sure you have to say he belongs to a dying breed.

Foster's Hat Trick powers Bruins' win

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

Vancouver's Richard Brodeur prepares to smother shot on goal in NHL action. (AP Laserphoto).

Left side, right side, all around the ice: It doesn't matter where you play if you're a Boston Bruins forward. Once the game starts, you'll be all over the place anyway.

The Buffalo Sabres must have wondered if Boston's Dwight Foster was playing every position on the ice Sunday. The Bruins' forward—who has played mostly at center—scored three goals and set up another as a right wing in Boston's 6-3 National Hockey League verdict over the Sabres.

Foster got Boston's first three goals, then let Terry O'Reilly, Rick Middleton and Wayne Cashman score within a 5:48 span to put the game away. Foster assisted on Cashman's goal.

"He gives us good depth at wing and center," said Coach Gerrie Cheevers of Foster, who was a first-round draft choice in 1977 but had shuttled between the Bruins and the minors for three seasons. "In our system, there is not much to any position."

Blues 4, Black Hawks 4—St. Louis extended its lead in the overall standings to four points over the New York Islanders but the Blues weren't happy about the deadlock.

The Hawks, meanwhile, were quite satisfied with one point, especially since they had to rally from 2-0 and 3-1 deficits. Tom Lysiak produced the tying goal midway through the second period on a wrap-around effort, while Darryl Sutter tied a club mark for most goals by a rookie with his 32nd tally this season. Still, Chicago is winless in seven games.

Canadiens 4, Rangers 4—Montreal extended its unbeaten streak to 13 games—9-0-4—but blew the victory by allowing the Rangers to score twice in the final period. Don Maloney and Mike Allison brought the Rangers back, with Allison deflecting a Ron Greschner shot past Montreal goalie Denis Herron with just 1:59 to play.

"I was off-balance and Gresch had the puck," said Allison. "He shot it and I know it hit my stick as I was spinning around, with my back to the net. Then I heard the crowd scream."

Canucks 3, Whalers 0—Glen Hanlon registered Vancouver's first shutout of the season by kicking out 28 Hartford shots. Bobby Schumatz scored two goals for the Canucks. Hanlon, who entered the game with a goals-against average of 5.11 in 11 games—he was out with a knee injury from Oct. 18 until Jan. 28—made his best stop against Ray Neufeld on a second-period breakthrough. The goalie then stopped Rick Meagher on the rebound.

Red Wings 4, Jets 4—Dave Christian scored twice in a 2:49 span of the final period to put Winnipeg on top 4-3. But Mike Foligno's 26th tally of the season tied it with five minutes to go. Still, the Jets haven't won in seven games.

MIAMI remains rarity in NCAA Division I. CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) - While college basketball flourishes throughout the country, a decade-old problem lingers at the University of Miami, the only NCAA Division I football school without a roundball program. Basketball was "temporarily" suspended at Miami following the 1970-71 season, a year the Hurricanes compiled a 7-19 record - worst in school history - and attracted an average of just 1,166 fans per home game. Total receipts for the season were $23,732 and the net loss was $130,417. The board of trustees voted in April 1971 to suspend basketball until a permanent fieldhouse could be built on the main campus. Dr. Henry King Stanford, university president, said then: "I personally have talked to several prospects in the last two weeks about possible contributions toward a fieldhouse. But something of this frightful magnitude takes time." A decade has rolled by and school officials say their position has not changed - no fieldhouse, no basketball team.
