Welch outlines proposed actions

County Commissioner Charlie Welch advised The Reporter-Telegram today of proposals he intends to make before the other commissioners at their regular meeting on Mon-day in the Midland County Court-

He said a statement he has issued is the result of about two months of meetings with the Midland City Council over problems with the sewer treatment plant, a rising water table and effects of both upon city and county residents. Primarily, he has been focusing his attention on the health of Midlanders.

Welch explained the reason for his concern. "It is time the citizens of Midland became aware of some facts about the sanitary facilities of the city. The so-called sanitary landfills and the sewage treatment ponds are adjacent to each other. The requirements for such installations call for a type of soil that will allow no more than one-tenth of a foot per year percolation of water. The soils in this area are highly permeable; therefore, the year-after-year saturation has raised the ground water almost to the surface," he explained.

"THIS MOUND OF WATER, along with trash from the landfills and solids from the sewer have, in my opinion, restricted the flow of the underground river, causing water to back up Midland Draw. In spite of this problem being evident for several years, the city did, in 1979, apply for and receive a permit to only primary treat this sewer water.'

Welch related his interpretation of

"This permit requires the water to take 21 days from the time it enters the ponds until it reaches the irrigation pumps for distribution on alfalfa fields, at a specified amount per acre. If they (city) could, in fact, put all the 5.8 million gallons they admit to producing each day into the ponds, and if all pumps connected to the ponds were operating at top efficiency, approximately 5 million gallons could be taken out.

"However, for many months in 1980, only one small pump that could pump approximately 1 million gallons a day was pumping out of the ponds. Therefore, two county roads were destroyed by water flowing over the dikes, out of the ponds and then down the draw until it ponded under many acres of pecan trees. I estimate about 1 million gallons a day flowed out, leaving three million gallons per day to percolate into the underground aquifer with the balance evaporated. Cries for relief from the citizens and county fell on deaf ears."

WELCH, WHO HAS BEEN commissioner of Precinct 2 since 1969, proferred that, "It is my personal opinion that the City acquired the permit knowing full well they could not abide by it, in total disregard for the health and property of the peo-

"Several actions are imperative to begin correcting the situation," he suggested. These include:

1. Start treating the sewer water to the highest grade effluent possible with the present equipment, and begin engineering for a better treatment plant.

2. Several so-called monitor wells near the landfills must be plugged at the depth of the landfills, or the bottom of the top water formation.

3. A portable treatment plant must begin immediately to pump the water out of the landfill area and purify it. 4. A pipeline must be constructed to take the water out of this area.

5. All wells in the area should be pumped until the water table is lowered below the landfills so they can be dug up and hauled to a legal location.

At the last joint city-county meeting. on Feb. 26, Welch opposed a study suggested by Ed Reed and Associates for a long-term investigation of the flowing water in the county and the rising water table. The City Council and County Commissioners approved paying for the study on a joint basis. Welch was against the proposal for this reason:

"IN MY JUDGMENT, our citizens need a second opinion on this matter if, for no other reason, than the fact that simple prudence demands it. That, basically, is the issue to be placed before the Commissioner's

(See WELCH, Page 2A)

"It is my strong personal feeling that we may have a terrible problem, which, unless immediately rectified, threatens the health and well-being of virtually this entire area."

Administration may ask more defense funds

By W. DALE NELSON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Reagan administration, finding support in Congress for its proposed $32.6 billion buildup in military spending through 1982, is promising to seek even more money for defense if it fails to tame inflation. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger, outlining a budget he said would make "a major start on meeting needs too long unmet," said Wednesday he would submit a supplemental request if prices of military hardware increase beyond the administration's estimates.

We have to keep this program intact, absolutely," Weinberger told the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Under questioning by Sen. John Warner, R-Va., Weinberger conceded the revised defense budget envisions lower inflation than the Carter administration's forecast, which he previously said was underestimated. But he said it is "fair to assume a lower (inflation) rate" if President Reagan's proposed tax cut and domestic spending reductions are enacted.

The Reagan administration predicts inflation will drop steadily to 7.2 percent in 1982 and 4 percent in 1986 as the president's economic recovery program takes hold. It was 12.4 percent last year, and the Carter administration's last forecast was for 9.6 percent in 1982 and 6 percent in 1986.

If what we hope does not come to pass and we are not able to reduce inflation and don't get the cuts we are seeking, then I will have to present you with a supplemental," Weinberger said.

Members of the committee generally welcomed the budget increase, which would pay for an expanded Navy, a new bomber, a new kind of nerve gas and substantial pay raises for military personnel.

"There is no doubt that increased resources are required," said Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, the committee chairman.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., the senior Democrat on the panel, told Weinberger, "I believe you will get your money this year," and Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said the additional spending is "absolutely essential."

Tower indicated he wants the Pentagon's major budgets approved by Congress before there is any backlash about cuts in domestic programs.

Baker optimistic on economic action before July

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker said today he hopes Congress can complete work on President Reagan's proposals for budget and tax cuts by July 4, the most optimistic timetable yet outlined by any of the president's legislative allies.

'That may be a very optimistic estimation, but it's possible to do that and I hope we will do that," Baker said at a news conference.

The Senate GOP leader said the Budget Committee would begin drafting a blueprint to accommodate Reagan's proposed spending cuts on March 16, and expressed hope the full Senate could act on the proposal before the Easter recess begins April

On another matter, Baker predicted the full Senate would support Reagan's request to cancel a scheduled increase in the dairy price support program.

The Senate Agriculture Committee voted Wednesday to support Reagan on the issue, handing him a victory in the first real test of the administration's effort to restrain federal spending. Canceling the increase would save an estimated $147 million this

Baker said the full Senate would vote on the proposal either next week or the week of March 23. "I predict it will pass in the Senate and I hope and trust it will pass in the House of Representatives as well," he said.

Previously, Baker had said it might be next year before Congress enacts a tax bill for the president to sign.

Congressional Democrats seems to be operating under a slower timetable than Baker, and there were indications their honeymoon with Reagan is wearing thin. Still, party leaders publicly promise they will cooperate with the president.

"We aren't ready to play hardball yet," House Speaker Thomas P.

O'Neill Jr. said. "We're not obstruct ing, we're going along. Nevertheless, by a growing number of actions. Democrats are demonstrating their displeasure with many aspects of Reagan's package.

Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee, said Reagan had overlooked several important areas where money could be recovered that had been lost due to government inaction on audits and inadequate collection of delinquent loans and overdue debts.

There is waste, fraud and abuse, and this committee intends to eliminate that before valuable programs are destroyed," Jones said.

Donald L. Scantlebury, chief accountant of the General Accounting Office, the auditing agency of Congress, testified that in 1980 federal agencies reported they had receivables due of $126 billion.

Of that amount, it was anticipated that about $6.3 billion will be uncollectable while delinquent debts total about $24 billion, Scantlebury said. He said billions of dollars could be saved by more-effective debt collection, improvements in agency management and other efficiencies. Critics of the Reagan plan say these improvements would eliminate the need for deep spending cuts in social programs.

The Reagan administration says. big budget cuts are needed, and Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan asked businessmen today to help fight any delaying tactics in Congress

He told U.S. Chamber of Commerce members at a breakfast meeting that public interest in the issue could diminish soon, "and that's when the letters have to start arriving.

Business leaders "have to tell the people on the Hill what their people want." Regan said.

Escalation in El Salvador hinges on Soviet action

WASHINGTON (AP) - Secretary - tion should supply no military assis of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., dismissing a call to draw the line now on aid to El Salvador, says any further escalation of U.S. involvement depends on what the Soviet Union and Cuba do.

The possibility of additional aid, Haig said Wednesday, "will depend largely on the willingness of Cuba, the Soviet Union and those associated with them to continue to intervene illegally in the affairs of the member states of this hemisphere.

Specifically, Haig refused to say whether U.S. aid would stop with 20 additional military advisers and $25 million in new military assistance. "It would be foolish to attempt to do so," he said.

The administration has accused Cuba and other communist nations of complicity in smuggling at least 200 tons of military supplies to leftist insurgents in El Salvador.

"This is no longer an acceptable or tolerable kind of activity in this hemisphere," Haig declared after a closed

Senate briefing. Earlier the No. 2 Democrat in the enate said the Reagan administratance to El Salvador beyond the 20 additional advisers and $25 million in-

"Enough is enough," said Sen. Alan Cranston of California, the assistant Democratic leader in the Senate. "In the interest of protecting American lives and avoiding deeper and more dangerous U.S. involvement in the fighting in El Salvador, we must draw the line somewhere.

"And as far as I'm concerned, this Cranston said Congress is unlikely to block the extra advisers and military aid, "but whether some people will try or not I don't know.' Haig and White House Press Secretary James Brady, meanwhile, denied a Salvdoran rightist leader's statement that the United States wouldn't oppose a military coup in the Central American Republic.

Brady called that "pure fiction." "We are in support of the stability of the current government of El Salvador, and anything that can be done to make sure that reforms are carried out and elections held," Brady told reporters.

Upward expansion suggested by panel studying courthouse

Staff Writer

A blue ribbon ad hoc committee suggested an upward proposal not just outward - in trying to help the Midland County Commissioners' Court solve the county government's expansion problems.

The committee, conceived by Commissioner C. DeWayne Davis, was appointed Feb. 23 by the county commissioners and Judge Bill Ahders to drum up proposals on a new Midland County Courthouse annex building and a new or expanded library. "How about going up?" committee man Reagan Legg said in proposing that the downtown courthouse grow like a skyscraper.

When they put that fifth floor on (in the early 1970s), that was the maximum," speculated John Hyde, committee chairman. "That's possible (going up), too.'

It's more than possible, Clark-Moreland, former county commissioner, suggested later in the meet-

MORELAND SAID that the court house, built in 1929-30 and renovated in the early 1970s, was designed and built to support eight stories. He suggested that three additional stories might provide adequate space for the county's 24 offices and 200-plus employees. That fifth floor added in the early 1970s was the jailhouse. The committee also hashed around other proposals, earlier discussed by the commissioners, to solve space problems. For several years, the commissioners have been laboring over what to do about needs for an enlarged library and more space for county government.

The committee considered building a courthouse annex on or along a segment of Baird Street between Illinois and Texas avenues.

Another proposal included buying or leasing the abandoned Sears, Roebuck & Co. building in Town & Country Shopping Center in central Midland. Sears has relocated to Midland Park Mall.

"We have got to use foresight," regardless of the route taken, said Legg, a lawyer who has seen Midland grow from a town of 19,000 to 55,000 or 56,000 in a four-year period in the 1950s. "That was the (oil) boom era before this last one." "I think we ought to plan for a town of 200,000," said Moreland.

"My experience has been that the people of the county will support anything that's worthwhile, that is needed," Legg said.

THE COMMITTEE again considered the annex and, as is the practice now, the placing of county offices in two major buildings. Such measures would not be as convenient to the taxpayers, who might have to walk a distance to take care of "county business," as would one building housing all county functions, excluding the county's Road and Bridge Depart-

"If we're going to have a big town," said Moreland, "we're going to have to do like they do in big towns People are going to have to learn to walk

However, federal agents say Robert Ringo, former president of Tascosa National Bank of Amarillo, was only one of a number of people duped by a counterfeit operation that has sold the fake Krugerrands in Houston, Austin and Amarillo.

Investigators have confiscated gold-plated lead coins with a counterfeit value of almost $1.5 million in Amarillo and about $70,000 worth in Houston, said Secret Service agent David Freriks in Lubbock. He said some fake coins have turned up in the Dallas-Fort Worth area and agents are aware of sales in Austin.

Besides the Tascosa National Bank, agents say another unidentified lending institution in Houston authorized a $35,000 loan with fake coins as collat-

Ringo abruptly submitted his resignation Wednesday, which the bank's board immediately accepted.

"I made a loan secured by a gold Krugerrand that turned out to be counterfeit. That's what it's all about," Ringo said, adding he made four loans totaling $270,000:

Federal agents say they still cannot account for about 300 of the fake coins that were being sold for $200 to $350 each. The value of a genuine Krugerrand - a 1-ounce, all-gold South African coin - fluctuates with the price of gold and currently is about $588.

Sidney James Heard, 38, of Amarillo, was released on $10,000 bond after he was charged in Houston with theft over $10,000 in connection with the alleged sale of fake Krugerrands,

Houston police became involved when a coin dealer called to say he was suspicious of Krugerrands he was offered for $350 each. Detectives watched the purchase of 100 of the coins for $35,000, then arrested Heard at a bank

Federal authorities were tipped last fall by a suspicious jewelry manufacturer in Austin, who said he thought he was stamping out the lead coins as: costume jewelry.

Agents say the coins were shipped to Amarillo, where they were plated with .22-carat liquid gold, then put in cardboard and plastic coin protectors to prevent the gold from rubbing off. Freriks said those who were duped should have known that Krugerrands do not come in protectors.

Freriks said the real Krugerrands weigh twice as much as the fake ones, are shiny and ring when dropped while the counterfeits have blurred details and sound flat when dropped. A federal grand jury in Amarillo is expected to hear evidence in the case $1 million or more. March 25, Freriks said. growing judiciary.

"It is my strong personal feeling that we may have a terrible problem, which, unless immediately rectified, threatens the health and well-being of virtually this entire area. I want an outside firm, which has no previous opinions or decisions in this matter to support, to come and analyze this problem.

The Reeds have been the hydrolo gists employed by the city in the past for studying water-related projects.

"I say this without meaning to comment in any way upon any person or firm's competence or integrity," he stressed. "It is simply that the stakes are too high; we just cannot afford to be wrong. It is my personal belief that the extra expense of such a study will discourage the Commissioner's Court from authorizing it. I am calling every citizen to come to the Court, or contact his or her commissioner prior to the meeting in an effort to show that, in this particular instance, we must secure a second opinion in spite of the expense, and that we must do it now," Welch said in outlining his alternate plan.

'Therefore, on Monday, I will make a motion at the Commissioners Court meeting for the county to employ a hydrologist out of Austin, with or without the city's cooperation. I will further make a motion that the Commissioners Court request a new hearing before the Texas Water Quality Board to cancel the raw sewage permit under which the city is now operating.

Man charged with assault

A Mexican national who allegedly assaulted two sheriff's deputies following his arrest Sunday on a public intoxication charge was formally charged Wednesday with aggravated assault on a peace officer.

He also was charged with two counts of assaulting private citizens in incidents that reportedly occurred prior to his arrest.

Justice of the Peace Charlie Sprayberry set three bonds totaling $23,000 on Silvano Garcia, 27, of Mexico. Garcia was arrested as he walked eastbound in the westbound lane of traffic on Highway-80 near Midland Regional Airport Sunday afternoon.

As he was being booked into the jail, deputies said Garcia kicked Chief Jailer Richard Sexton in the groin. Sexton remained in satisfactory condition at Midland Memorial Hospital Wednesday. Early Monday afternoon, Lt. Pat

Fuller was escorting Garcia back to his cell - unhandcuffed - following arraignment on the public intoxication charge when he allegedly began kicking Fuller as they neared the sheriff's department reception area on the ground floor of the court-

Sheriff Dallas Smith and Investigator Benny Matlock came to Fuller's aid and Garcia was quickly subdued and returned to his cell. Fuller filed assault on a peace office charges Wednesday afternoon.

Also Wednesday, two Midland men filed additional assault complaints against Garcia, after telling deputies he struck them during an altercation outside a trailer park near the airport just before his arrest. Garcia allegedly hit one man with a hammer and kicked the other man in the face.

Garcia remained under bond in the county jail late Wednesday. He is expected to be brought before the grand jury next week.

were James Lee Tucek, 22, of Lampasas, suffering from a broken pelvis; Marvin Kadley, 37, of Austin; and Jacke Tinney, 47, of Austin. Tucek was the driver of a southbound pickup which overturned five miles south of here on U.S. 87 at 6:50 a.m. Wednesday. According to a Department of Public Safety report, Tucek apparently fell asleep at the wheel and lost control of the vehicle when he attempted to regain the roadway.

Kadley and Tinney were passengers in a van containing 11 persons which overturned in the median 6.6 miles south of here on U.S. 87 at 11:35 a.m. Tuesday.

Cancer machine hearing reset

The Texas Health Facilities Commission has rescheduled its hearing for Odessa's application for a new cancer machine for April 13 and 14. The two-day hearing for Odessa's Medical Center Hospital's certificate of need application was postponed from Feb. 25 and 26 when the THFC's chairman, William Keener, died the afternoon before the hearing. Keener was found slumped in his car and pronounced dead at the scene of apparent carbon monoxide poisoning. Odessa plans to replace its cobalt radiation unit with a "state of the art" 6 Million Volt Electron linear accelerator.

Midland Memorial Hospital officials will oppose the application, stating the installation of the machine in Odessa may financially hinder the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center. The Allison Center, scheduled to open in late May or early June, will feature the 6MEV linear accelerator as its "major work unit."

Other Midland groups, such as the Chamber of Commerce, the City Council and Parkview Hospital, have joined MMH in its opposition to the application. Medical Center Hospital officials claim the machine is the natural replacement for the Cobalt-80 machine which has been in use in Odessa for

A spokesperson from the THFC said this morning a new chairman has not been named, and Hearing Officer Kevin Reeves will preside at the session in April.

118 others remain captive

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) - A Pakistani plane flew back from Kabul today with 27 people freed from a hijacked jetliner. But 118 others, including several Americans and a World Bank official, remained captive, and the hijacker again threatened to set off grenades

He demanded that 79 Pakistanis, including political prisoners, be flown to the Afghan capital. A Pakistani official said some of them were in jail, but that others were "not even in custody."

The hijacker has identified himself as Mohammad Alamgir, said he has two accomplices and hand grenades aboard and that his final destination is Iran.

The hijacker freed 13 children, 13 women and a sick man Wednesday from the Pakistan International Airlines Boeing 720 which he commandeered Monday during a flight between Karachi and Peshawar, in northern Pakistan.

Radio Afghanistan reported that an American child of Pakistani origin. Zubair Qureshi, and his mother also were released but embassy officials said they could not confirm this.

The embassy officials said at least two other Americans were believed aboard the hijacked plane - Mrs. Hubbell's husband Frederick and Miss Weisner's fiance, Pakistani-born Mian Manzoor Ahmed, a deputy sheriff from Auburn.

Two others, Craig Richard Clymore and Lawrence Clifton Mangum, were believed to be either Americans or Canadians. A World Bank official identified as Jeffrey Balkind, a resident of Washington, D.C., also was on the plane, but officials declined to give his nationality.

Diplomatic sources said the jetliner remained parked on a runway about 700 yards from the Kabul airport terminal and was surrounded by Afghan and Soviet troops. The Soviet Union has 85,000 soldiers in Afghanistan fighting an a Moslem rebellion against the communist regime

Texas' next 145 years

This week is a special one for Texans because it was 145 years . ago last Monday that our forefathers signed the Texas Declaration of Independence, freeing our ancestors from Mexico's rule.

U.S. Sen. John Tower alluded to the Republic of Texas in his "Capitol Update" column last week and compared the trials and tribulations endured by early-day Texans with those faced by citizens of the Lone Star State today.

"When our forebears spoke of tyranny from a 'far distant seat of government," the senator wrote, "Mexico City was their target, not Washington, D.C. But while we today are not plagued by 'the merciless savage, with the tomahawk and the scalping knife,' some of the Texas freedom fighters' concerns have as much meaning today in the interminable conflict with a 'savage' bureaucracy whose 'weapons' are the regulation and impenetrable organization."

Sen. Tower went on to note that "sometimes in recent years it has

Despite all the challenges facing us today, we still should recognize the fact that we are fortunate enough to live in a state bubbling over with promise. While many parts of the nation are engulfed by economic calamity and are suffering urban decay and the prospect of industrial stagnation, Texas is marching boldly into the 1980s with the certainty that the future holds only good things.

Perhaps a part of our confidence is a derivative of our unique state heritage — our independent spirit and pride and our adherence to high principles.

The next 145 years will bring greater revelations to the people of Texas than did the last 145 years; challenges will be abundant. But we will meet those challenges unafraid as we have the others that preceded them.

Americans searching for another trustworthy man

March is the cruelest month of the year, particularly this year when we all lose Walter Cronkite as anchorman on the CBS nightly news. We are not only saying goodbye to a man who has spent more time in our homes than most of our children, but also to a person who has been voted, year after year, as the most trusted man in America.

I am a personal friend of Walter's and I can now reveal for the first time how Walter achieved this title.

Walter Cronkite was born in St. Joseph, Mo., the only child of a dentist and a housewife. When he was 7 years old, his mother sent him to the store for a quart of milk. Walter saw a lady drop a dime on the floor of the store. He picked it up and gave it to her. She patted him on the head and said, 'Someday you will be the most trusted man in this country

This incident changed Walter's life because he finally knew what he wanted to be when he grew up.

His family moved to Houston and Walter attended Sidney Lanier High School, and was the only student the teachers would trust to clean the blackboards.

He was also the only boy that parents in Houston would trust with their daughters. Walter never violated that trust, and most of the girls he went out with reported it was the most boring date they ever had.

After finishing high school, Walter enrolled at the University of Texas where he majored in "TrustworthiBuchwald ness," with a minor in "Integrity." Although he had a brilliant record in scholarship, his social life suffered because the word was out that Walter could be trusted not to make a pass at a girl. The coeds at the University of

with him. For the first time Walter started having doubts about wanting to be the most trusted man in America.

Texas refused to have anything to do

He told his mother, "Maybe I should go into law or politics instead. His mother sympathized with him and said, "I know it's hard not to lie and cheat and mess around in convertibles, but someday if you stick to your vows and become America's most trusted man, women will throw themselves at your feet, and you will never have to do without again.'

So Walter graduated from the University of Texas "Magna Cum Virgin" to take up his role in journalism, which many say is the second oldest profession in the world.

Walter worked on newspapers, for wire services and eventually joined the electronic media. In 1962 he took over the CBS Evening News, and achieved his dream of becoming the most trusted man in this country.

The role Walter Cronkite has played in all our lives cannot be overestimated. I recall during one of the space shots, when the astronauts were having trouble with their capsule, Walter was the first to tell us that there was a malfunction in a computer that had made the ship lose control. I was sick with fear, but my wife said, "Don't worry, Walter will solve the prob-

Sure enough, 20 minutes later Walter was back on the air, reporting the computer had been fixed and the astronauts were safe.

A man less trustworthy would have taken credit for correcting the problem, but Walter refused. Yet everyone in America knew that once again

Walter is not leaving television. He will be doing specials and other newsworthy events. But he won't be coming into our living rooms every night

We'll miss him not only in the evenings, but also during the space shots and political conventions and the summit talks

Cronkite had saved the day.

But most of all the American people will have to find another person in this country they can trust. With a population of only 220 million citizens to choose from, it isn't going to be

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

But while others may pooh-pooh the Reagan advisers' concern over Cuban help to the Salvadoran guerrillas. U.S. intelligence experts point to the intermittent presence of a dangerous Cuban official in Nicaragua, the primary transit point for Soviet aid to the guerrillas. The man our intelligence people are worried about is Fernando Vecino Alegrit, a 47-year-old major general in Fidel Castro's clandestine service. DGI. He travels under the cover of Castro's minister of higher educa-

Here's what intelligence sources have told my associate Dale Van Atta about Vecino's undercover career:

Born in Havana, Vecino was an early associate of Castro and became an influential member of the inner circle that took control of Cuba after the ouster of Fulgencio Batista.

Vecino was initially put in charge of a Cuban province, but in 1962 was made director of the National Institute for Agricultural Reform.

In 1966, while nominally in charge of the Union of Cuban Communist Youth, Vecino performed a secret and successful — espionage mission in France.

- Later in 1966, Vecino was given overall command of Cuban missile forces - a post that required close connections with the Russians.

- From 1967 to 1974, Vecino performed a number of missions for Castro's secret police, including a period as military attache in North Vietnam. Intelligence sources say he took part in the interrogation - and torture of American prisoners of war.

- Promoted to vice minister of the armed forces in 1975 and made a member of the Cuban Communist Party's central committee, Vecino supervised Castro's adventures in Angola and Ethiopia.

- In 1978, Vecino was named minister of higher education, a post that allowed him to send large numbers of paramilitary agents into various Central American countries under the cover of educational assistance.

- In 1979, Vecino set up headquarters in Costa Rica, where he was able to keep in constant touch with the Sandinista rebels while they were fighting Anastasio Somoza's Nicaraguan dictatorship. When the Sandinistas won, Vecino and a sidekick who was also a Cuban general moved to

Managua for a time. Since then, according to intelligence sources, Vecino has been close to the more leftist elements of the Nicaraguan government, making regular visits to Managua. Among his services to the Nicaraguan regime was arranging the shipment of 100 captured American 105-millimeter howitzers from Vietnam to Nicaragua. The artillery pieces were shipped to Nicaragua in a vessel operated under Lebanese registry by

tion Vecino's role as Castro's spymaster and general troublemaker is well known in Latin America. In fact, his presence anywhere in the area is enough to panic military and intelli-gence circles. For example, his visit to the Dominican Republic in 1979 with two Cuban transport planes, supposedly to offer humanstarian assistance in the wake of a devastating hurricane, produced a cold rebuff from President Antonio Guzman.

In Nicaragua, meanwhile, Vecino has tried to cash in on the Cubans' military aid to the Sandinistas. Intelligence sources say his DGI cohorts were allowed to prepare the guest list for the rebels' first anniversary celebration last year, and the guests were reportedly frisked by the Cuban police agents. The Cubans also are reported to have a training camp in icaragua.

In addition, sources disclosed that Vecino's Cuban agents have maintained two guerrilla training camps in Mexico - one run by the Palestine Liberation Organization, the other by a Cuban Army major whose secondin-command is an Argentine Montenegro terrorist.

Footnote: We recently reported that the leftist insurgents in El Salvador were being supplied with arms and ammunition by Cuba and several Soviet satellite nations. The State Department later confirmed the story in every detail.

DIPLOMATIC NICETY: In 1975, the State Department's Office of Foreign Buildings decided the time had come to give the American ambassador in Cairo a new official residence. So a house was purchased in a posh section of the Egyptian capital called Maadi, for $1.8 million. It took another $3 million to refurbish it to the proper level of elegance. But the ambassador refused to move in. It was not only too far out of downtown Cairo, but was not suitable for entertaining. The State Department's house-hunters are now working on a new residence at a cost of some $2 million.

I'VE GOT A SECRET: The following paragraph, designated "Secret," is from a Pentagon report that is itself stamped "Top Secret." But the only secret I can detect in this rehash of truisms and previously published information is what in the world is secret about it. Here is the paragraph, in full:

'The military's dependence on space operations is expanding rapidly. The United States uses satellites for a wide range of military support applications, including communications relay, navigation, weather observation, mapping and geodesy, reconnaissance, and surveillance and warning. As space systems become a more integral part of the operating forces, their survivability becomes increasingly important."

FBI's sordid tactics threaten rights of all Americans

(EDITOR'S NOTE: David H. Berg is a criminal attorney in Houston.)

By DAVID H. BERG

To its sordid and well-documented history of illegal activities, the Federal Bureau of Investigation can now add Abscam and Brilab. These two scandals should serve to remind the nation that, when the FBI unlawfully threatens the freedom of even the most corrupt among us, it threatens the freedom of us all.

Thus far, there have been 12 Abscam convictions. Two others were recently overturned by a federal judge who ruled that the defendants, city councilmen from Philadelphia, had been entrapped, and that their rights of due process had been violated. The remaining convictions will probably be reversed as well.

For 25 years, the FBI collected raw data on dissenting citizens, few of whom were even remotely connected to crimes. There is little distinction between those tactics and that of involving members of Congress and others in criminal cases that did not even exist before the FBI invented them. As with their agents provacateurs of the 1960s, the FBI has againhired disturbed individuals - this time convicted felons - and sent them out to create crime. While the mission of the FBI is to investigate, apprehend and prosecute those engaged in criminal activity, it cannot be overemphasized that Abscam and the related Brilab (bribery-labor) "investigations" were begun without a single suspect in mind. The FBI has exceeded its authority for no discernible purpose other than to prosecute politicians to improve its tarnished public image. Nowhere has the bureau failed so miserably at this purpose than in the Brilab trial recently concluded in federal court in Hous-

Joseph Hauser was an ex-convict who had been found guilty of one multimillion-dollar insurance fraud and was awaiting trial on another when he was hired by the FBI to act as an undercover agent in Brilab. His job was to press bribes on public officials through their labor associates. In exchange for "working off his case," the government promised Hauser lenient treatment. He was paid approximately $55,000 to cover both his "fee" and his personal expenses. Hauser operated out of a Beverly Hills office but, because his criminality was so well known in the insurance business in California, he was forced to rely on contacts in . Texas. He could not have implicated three less likely candidates for "bribes" than the men he chose.

Billy Wayne Clayton was the Speaker of the Texas House of Representatives and dreamed of becoming governor. Randall Buck Wood and his partner, Donald Ray, were prominent lawyers in the state capital of Austin. There Wood, as chief lobbyist for Common Cause, had successfully worked to reform state campaign-financing laws, Ray had served at various times as chief counsel to the Texas attorney general and to a previous speaker of the house.

Hauser posed as an agent for Prudential Insurance Co. seeking state employee insurance business. When he finised with Wood and Ray, each was indicted for allegedly facilitating a bribe to Clayton. Clayton was indicted for accepting $5,000, allegedly in return for throwing state insurance business to Hauser. The government produced what one defense lawyer described as "20 miles of tapes" secretly recorded by Hauser. Ostensibly these tapes were obtained to capture the truth; instead, they revealed a scenario of bribes and influencepeddling created entirely by Hauser. Hauser purposely obscured his intent; when he spoke to FBI agents he always referred to "bribes," but when he talked to the attorneys he spoke only of "campaign contributions." Nonetheless, there are instances on the tapes in which Hauser's suggestions to spread money around are quite clearly rejected. Wood said to him, "We don't do business like that in Texas.

After six weeks of trial, the jury took one vote and acquitted all three men. But, despite its loss, the FBI has left indelible scars. After months of well-publicized leaks and poisonous headlines, it seems unlikely that Clayton will ever serve as governor. And Wood and Ray now struggleagainst an insidious tide of innuendo and lingering doubt while trying to rebuild their once-flourishing law practice. "You can beat the rap," FBI agents like to say, "but you can't beat the ride."

In recognition of its failure to abide by the laws and Constitution of the United States, the Department of Justice has recently issued a coy mea culpa. Former Attorney General Benjamin R. Civiletti prohibited the FBI from inducing individuals to commit crimes that they would otherwise not commit. In addition, potential subjects must now fully understand the corrupt nature of the proposed activity. It is too late to undo the punishment endured by the victims, but in all likelihood these guidelines would have foreclosed the ruinous indictments of all these men.

The testimony in the Abscam and Brilab cases showed that the field agents and informants were on their own and out of control. To prevent this sort of abuse in the future, Congress should exercise its powers to shut off the funding of such ill-conceived operations. Until it does so, the FBI will be free to threaten our liberty rather than safeguard it.

Texas Department of Agriculture recently released a report, based on information furnished by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, on foreign ownership of Texas agricultural land.

THE TOTAL, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown says, is 378, 847.8 acres - or 0.5 percent, based on the 1978 agricultural census, the latest figures available

Brown notes the total acreage figure "could be misleading" since the federal regulation on reporting calls for reporting acquisitions if a foreigner owns at least five percent of the property - and because in other cases the citizenship of members of corporate buyers may not be known.

Kubiak, appearing before the House State Affairs Committee, argued there's a danger that growing foreign control of agricultural lands ultimately could pose a threat to the nation's food supply

And, he argued, it already poses a danger by increasing prices for agricultural land beyond what Americans can afford to pay.

PATTERSON AGREES with Kubiak on both points, saying he may 'have an unwarranted fear" of foreign control of agricultural production, but that he feels the effect on land prices already is being felt.

We give tax advantages to foreigners we don't give to our own people," Patterson argues. "Capital gains - they can avoid that, and inheritance taxes.

Patterson's proposal, HB 112, would ban additional purchases of agricultural land by non-resident aliens, and would require reporting to the Texas Department of Agriculture of foreign ownership

'We don't cause divestiture," Patterson says. "The people that presently own the land could continue to own

Patterson says the bill has been researched "pretty good" and there appear to be no constitutional problems with it.

Bell information service testing could be halted

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - A March 13 court action will determine if Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. may continue preparations for an electronic information service before the Public Utility Commission holds a public hearing on the June test.

State District Court Judge Peter Lowry issued a temporary restraining order Wednesday against PUC and said a hearing on a temporary injunction would be held March 13.

The order Wednesday temporarily set aside the utility commission's Feb. 25 decision stopping Bell's preparations for the test.

As a result of an action filed by the Texas Daily Newspaper Association, the PUC had ordered Bell to halt preparations of the electronic information test as of 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Bell said in its request for the restraining order that PUC had no authority to order the company to stop the test. It said the company has at least 40 full time employees working on the Austin test along with employees in other locations. Bell said it has invested more than $6 million in the test to date.

The Austin electronic information service trial, scheduled to begin in June, would involve placing television-like terminals in 700 Austin residences and businesses. Bell said customers would have access to various types of information, including white page listings from the telephone book, yellow pages advertising and other types of advertising.

Feiner said the equipment was unnecessary and added that the Federal Communications Commission backed this position in 1976.

The trial continues today and is expected to last more than a year unless there's an out-of-court settle-

In another antitrust matter, AT&T announced Wednesday that its attorneys had asked the U.S. District Court in New Jersey to remove restrictions in a consent decree that ended a federal suit in 1956. That decree, which prohibits AT&T from going into businesses other than equipment and long-distance segsubject to public regulation," has been interpreted as barring the company from entering any unregulated fields

AT&T is asking the court to specify that the prohibition does not apply to the provision of advanced terminal equipment, or services like data processing, that are "incidental" to telephone communication.

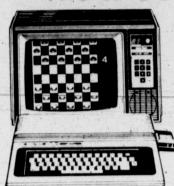

If AT&T is successful in modifying the 1956 decree, it could cut short what are expected to be lengthy appeals of a recent decision by the Federal Communications Commission deregulating the telephone industry. AT&T says it is imperative that the court clarify the 1956 decree if it is to comply with the terms of that

Despite the emphasis on the FCC decision, a favorable ruling by the New Jersey court could help AT&T fight the government's latest antitrust suit, which returned to the courtroom Wednesday after a six-week

U.S. District Judge Harold H. Greene had given the two sides until March 2 to negotiate a settlement in the latest case, in which the Bell System denies that it tried to freeze out would-be competitors in the communications services and faciliments of the telephone industry

Rose Society offers help

The Midland Rose Society is offering persons who need information on pruning roses a chance to brush up on the thorny issue with a demonstration from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday.

Dr. Gene Spires, president and consulting rosarian with the Rose Society, is in charge of the demonstration that will be held in the Midland Rose Garden, 1501 W. Texas Ave.

A spokesman for the organization explained that one of the biggest mysteries of growing roses seems. to concern pruning. All hybrid tea, grandiflora, floribunda, miniature roses and some varieties of climbing roses need a general pruning in the early spring. This enables them to produce their best and the largest number of roses during the growing

At the demonstration, persons will be told when to prune and how to prune different types of rosebushes. The public will be invited to help prune the rosebushes in the Rose Garden with the guidance of a knowledgeable rosarian.

Tools needed will be a pair of sharp rose pruners and a pair of thick gloves.

The Rose Garden Committee requests persons who can help prune the Rose Garden this spring to respond.

If weather conditions Saturday are unfit for the demonstration, the session will be reset for March

Moscow issues warning to new strike threat JCPenney

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - After a two week lull in Poland's labor turmoil, a local Solidarity chapter called a strike alert as Soviet and Polish Communist Party leaders again raised the threat of intervention by other members of the Soviet Bloc if "anarchy and disarray" does not end in Poland

Leaders of the independent trade federation's chapter in Lodz, Poland's second largest city, said Wednesday that they ordered a strike alert to protest the firing of five hospital workers, four of them Solidarity organizers. Under the strike alert, union members distribute leaflets and posters and fly

Polish flags in a show of strength. Union members are to meet Saturday in Lodz, the center of Poland's textile industry, to discuss their next step. A union spokesman said the five were dismissed without explanation, and local and national government officials failed to respond to the union's appeal for their reinstatement. He said the alert was approved by the 10-million-member labor federation's central headquarters in the Gdansk.

"In this situation we believe that all possible means to solve the problems were used, without using the last resort — a strike. So we decided to announce a strike alert," a union communique said.

Father buries last daughter

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — His daughters are dead now, all four.

Against the longest string of odds, each was slain or killed at different times in different ways. Less than a decade filled the painful gap be-tween the first funeral and the Now, staring at an old portrait,

Donald Shreeves says he can't be-lieve all his babies are gone. "It's like looking at a blank piece of paper," Shreeves said in a recent interview. "What the hell was wrong with us? That's what I'd like to know. Did we drink out of the wrong side of the cup or what?'

His last surviving daughter, Candace Lang, was buried Thursday in a family plot in Iowa, Her husband has been charged in her shooting death.

Shreeves found out about her death Feb. 22 when he was listening to the car radio. He was driving from his new Princeton, Mo., home to Peoria to do some work on the family house he had put on the market.

A few months ago, Shreeves and his wife, Bea, had given up their house here. It held too many bad menories, he said.

The radio newscaster was saying something about a woman being shot o death in Schaeferville.

"I knew that's where my last liv-ing daughter, Candy, lived," Shreeves said. "But I quickly dismissed it as impossible. It couldn't be Candy. A man simply does not lose all four of his daughters.

Shreeves lost his first daughter, Debbie, "the saint of the family," in fiery car wreck in 1972.

Soon after she wrote her father that she believed she had found Beverly's killer, Denise was discovered dead in an elevator in Chicago. She had been injected with enough drugs to kill a horse, the medical examiner

But the father's tragedy did not end there. When Shreeves went to Chicago to try and find out what happened, he learned that his girls were not secretaries. They were prostitutes, he said.

"I raised them since they were babies. I held down two jobs, washed their diapers and ironed their dresses. I thought I knew them," he

Peanut butter

price climbs

NEW YORK (AP) Peanut butter has disappeared from some supermarket shelves in the city, and shoppers who find it are paying a price that rivals that of steak, the city Consumer Affairs Department said

A 21/2-pound jumbo jar was being sold for from $3.99 to $7.25, according to the department.

The average price for the staple of brown-bagging schoolchildren was up by 122 percent since April 1979. Dwindling supplies and high prices stem mainly from last summer's drought, which wiped out about 42 percent of the nation's peanut crop.

Consumer Affairs Commissioner Bruce Ratner said some wholesalers were allocating peanut butter to supermarkets based on how much they bought last year, much like gasoline was allocated during the last oil squeeze. An A&P spokesman said that chain was getting about half its 1980 supply.

The bad news about peanut butter came in the department's biweekly market basket

Scientists discover why people drink coffee

By KEVIN McKEAN AP Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists have finally discovered why coffee, tea or cola can keep you alert: that shot of caffeine inhibits a natural mechanism that's trying to slow you down.

"Now we know why we drink coffee," said Dr. Solomon H. Snyder at a seminar held here Tuesday by the Society for Neuroscience.

A research team led by Snyder, director of neuroscience at Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, pinpointed the exact method by which caffeine acts as a stimulant.

He said the discovery may point the way to improved drugs — including an improved form of theophylline, a chemical relative of caffeine that is commonly used to treat asthma but which can be toxic in large doses.

Caffeine is "the most widely used psychoactive substance on earth," Snyder said at the seminar, which dealt with frontiers of research in the neurosciences.

It's found in coffee, tea, chocolate and many soft drinks and foods. It's also a common ingredient in over-thecounter medicines ranging from stayawake pills to cold remedies to pain killers.

The research, by Snyder, Jefferson Katims, Robert Bruns, Zoltan Annau and John Daly, will be published in May in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences, Snyder said.

For two decades, scientists have theorized that caffeine worked by inhibiting an enzyme known as phosphodiesterase, which is needed for energy production in cells. But Snyder said he began to doubt that explanation since there are other drugs which better inhibit the enzyme but which are not stimulants.

The researchers hatched a theory that caffeine might work by blocking the action of a compound called adenosine which they were already investigating.

Adenosine is one of the building blocks of DNA, and it's also involved in cellular energy. But its crucial function, as far as the Johns Hopkins researchers were concerned, was its role as a "neuromodulator" that tends to depress activity.

Even in microgram amounts, adenosine derivatives injected into the brain could bring mice to a virtual halt, Snyder said, "which makes this, in mice, more potent than LSD."

The researchers studied caffeine and a number of its close relatives, including theophylline, and showed that the stimulant effect of each was proportional to its ability to block this natural anti-activity chemical, he said.

The caffeine relatives worked by occupying a brain "receptor" intended for adenosine, hence preventing adenosine from doing its job.

Theophylline is taken by asthmatics to open the air passages of the lungs but it can be hazardous because of its caffeine-like stimulation of the brain and heart. But Snyder said that if adenosine receptors in the lung differ from those in the brain or heart, as is likely, then a modified drug might be devised that would confine its action to the lungs.

The researchers have already identified two kinds of adenosine receptors, and Snyder says there may be as many as four.

The Johns Hopkins scientists also are investigating why the body has developed the natural mechanism of adenosine to depress activity. Rats which receive the chemical cease all activity, yet they remain awake, relatively afert and sensitive to pain, he

The chemical is not especially toxic, even in large doses. Snyder said its action resembles that of a potent natural tranquilizer.

Decision may justify draft

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army's decision to hold down the number of women in enlisted ranks is "a step backward in efficiency and justice" and may be a ruse to justify a draft, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said today.

Proxmire, a member of the defense appropriations subcommittee, commented on testimony given to an armed forces subcommittee last week by William D. Clark, acting assistant secretary of the Army for manpow-

Clark said the Army was "trying to hold the line on the number of women" pending the outcome of a study to determine how combat readiness would be affected by signing up female soldiers in the numbers the Defense Department has proposed.

Air Force personnel officials, on the other hand, told the same subcommittee Tuesday that the 61,000 women on active duty in their service are "doing a tremendous job" and their number will be increased to 64,000 or 65,000 next year. They are serving in all but four jobs that are combat roles, from which women are banned by law.

At the end of 1980, there were 61,970 enlisted women in the Army, a little over 9 percent of the total enlisted force of 669,800. The Defense Department has directed the Army to increase this to 87,500, or 13 percent, by 1986.

Proxmire said Clark "not only contravened Pentagon policy, but he in essence told American women: you can't do the job."

"The Army is just using the new administration as an excuse to deny women equal pay, promotion and enlistment rights," the senator said. "Women have made the all-volunteer force successful to date," he added. "So maybe what lies behind the Army's change of policy is the simple decision to restrict women recruits, accept the inevitable shortfalls in manpower levels, and then justify a return to the draft."

Clark also said in his testimony, "We have got a lot of women in the Army and most of them are doing really ... fine jobs. They are valuable and productive."

An Army spokesman, asked for a response to Proxmire's statement, said the Army's decision was "prompted by indications from field commanders that combat readiness is being affected by such factors as attrition, pregnancy, sole parenthood, strength and stamina which have come to light during the recent rapid increase in the numbers of women in the Army."

What's Cooking?

Dr. Bill Trotter

Many people may think of doctors as too busy to spend much time at home with their families. And if the doctors do get some extra time with their families, most people don't picture the doctor in the kitchen. But such is not the case with at least one local physician.

Dr. Bill Trotter, chairman of the radiology department at Midland Memorial Hospital, often dons a chef's hat in his home. Trotter said he began cooking a couple of years ago because "if you like to eat, you learn to like to cook.". He added "when men are cooks, they are good cooks because they like to eat."

He said his wife, Yvonne, is an "excellent cook, but hates it." So they share the cooking chores, "about half and half," he said.

Trotter said he does a lot more cooking when all the children are home. The Trotters have three chilren, Brooks, a senior at Texas Tech Medical School; Stacy, a senior at Texas Tech University; and Heather, a junior at Midland High School.

The following recipes for Russian Mushroom Soup were derived after Trotter and his family went to Moscow several years ago. "While at Moscow, we had this heavy, thick mushroom soup and I could not get the recipe. When we got home, I started fixing it and after several years' experience, I found a quick way to prepare it." The quick-recipe follows the longer version below.

Trotter said the soup is a good way to have a filling meal without a meat. He also suggested serving Spinach Salad and fresh French bread with the soup for a delicious meal.

AT WIT'S END

'Thank you' enough .

By ERMA BOMBECK

I have a recurring nightmare in which my son is getting the Nobel Prize for Science. After he is presented the award, he turns to see the entire audience on its feet clapping wildly. Finally, the applause dies down and there is a silence that lasts at least a year.

I can't stand it. I crawl to the stage on my hands and knees, tug on his pantsleg and whisper, "Say thank you!" He is 55 years old.

To a mother, "Thank you" is the ultimate in manners and breeding. It's toney...it's style...it transcends raggy underwear, knotted shoestrings and dog hairs on your sweater. It melts the hardest hearts, bends the rigid, and insures a happy death for her.

To a child, "Thank you" is something you say to make your mother let go of the cookie.

Looking back, I think my kids were under the influence of hypnosis. They'd stand there like a fire hydrant until I said the key words, "What do you say?" and then they'd respond with all the feelings of a doll with a string in its neck, "Thank you."

I could never get them to use the word in the right place.

They'd say "Thank you" for a lick off a second-hand ice cream cone from a friend. They'd remain mute when their grandmother gave them a check for their birthday.

They'd say "Thank you" for a piece of auto glass and a weasel tooth.
They'd be comatose when someone gave them a ride to the library in a blizzard.

The "Thank you" experience may be an exercise in futility, but it is one lesson that mothers never seem to give up on. They pursue it forever. The other day I said to my son, "Did you ever thank Mrs. Butler for that little bathtub toy for your birthday?"

"Mom! That was 23 years ago."
"She's probably wondering if you liked it."

"I ate it, didn't I?"
"And I don't suppose you ever thanked Aunt Mary for the atlas for your graduation."

"Why are you bringing all of this up now?" "Because I am tired and I want to put child-raising behind me."

He lifted up the phone, dialed and finally said, "Hey, thanks a lot!"
I beamed. "You see; that wasn't so difficult, was it? By the way, who were you talking to?"

He shrugged. "It was a recording. I forgot myself.".

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Pie-making trick

DEAR HELOISE

Putting raw apples in a the good china and silpiecrust and covering ver. them with a top crust sure makes the pie nice way! USE your trea-and thick before it's sures! — Mary Ann baked. Right?
But what happens

after the pie is baked and you cut that first piece? Your beautiful high-piled apples have shrunk and you have a much flatterlooking pie.

That's all there is to it! No more caved-in crusts due to apples which have shrunk in baking. -Gloria Williams

SEWING ON BUTTONS

Dear Heloise: I'm so frustrated, I could POP! How does one re-sew buttons on heavy coats?

I know a smaller button goes on the inside, but what is used to raise the top button high enough to allow for winding the thread to form a kowsky shank?

Metal tweezers were about the right size, but kept slipping out. Wow!

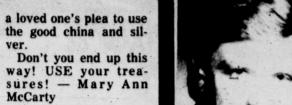

Place the tines of a fork under the button while sewing it on. After removing the fork, you will then be able to wind the thread under the button to form the shank.

Good idea, too, 'cause it makes for easier buttoning with less wear and tear on the thread. - He-

Son and mother to be reunited after being apart for 40 years

STOUGHTON, Mass. (AP) - The knock on the door came in November 1941. It was the German police, and 18-year-old Michael Ozog was taken from his Polish home to work for the Nazis in a German coal mine.

After Ozog was freed by the Allies in 1945, he moved to the United States. He admits he gave up almost all hope of ever seeing his mother, Ludwigka, or his family again.

Then came the letter last October from the International Red Cross.

'My wife got it and rushed into the bedroom and woke me-up," Ozog recalled Wednesday. 'They found your family, your mother,' she said. I was stunned, amazed. I picked up a piece of paper and started writing. ... There's a lot to cover in 40 years,'

Ozog, 58, a cafeteria worker at Cardinal Cushing General Hospital in Brockton, said it was the first word he had received about his immediate family since 1945.

"I managed to get a letter from an aunt in 1945. She said my mother was alive and wanted a picture of me," the softspoken man said.

Ozog and his wife, Victoria, who met at a postwar relocation camp, had tried writing to Ozog's home in Waldorf, Poland, without success.

Michael Ozog, 58, who works in a hospital cafeteria, holds up a photo showing his mother, seated, with two relatives as he sits in his Stoughton, Mass., home. Ozog was separated from his family when German police took him from his home in Poland in November 1941, and has not seen his mother since — but recently the International Red Cross located her and Ozog has received letters from her, in foreground. Orphan tells of being forced to dig into graves, take clothes

· WASHINGTON (AP) — Sitting stiffly erect, the 15-year-old Cambodian orphan told of being forced to dig into graves and remove the clothes from

Arn Chorn appeared at a news conference Wednesday to dramatize an attempt being made to rescue Cambodian children in refugee camps who, he said, face the danger of being kidnapped to be used as soldiers in Cambodia's internal struggles. The camps are in Thailand, just across the border from

Arn is one of only four children who have made it receive them and volunteer agencies have found

'First we were taken from our homes and sent to labor camps of the Khmer Rouge," Arn said. "Then when the Vietnamese invaded, we were forced to help the Khmer Rouge, to fight and to die, to dig up graves and take the clothes. If we refused, they put plastic bags over our heads to kill us. Finally, we escaped to Thailand. There, a few thousand children have waited and waited and waited. The teen-age children, like ourselves, have been taken sometimes, from the camps by the Khmer Rouge to fight again. These children are very frightened about their future.' A group of Americans - members of the Task Force for Cambodia Children of the National Center for Genocide Studies - visited Jeanne Kirkpatrick, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, and other government officials Wednesday to seek a change in U.N. policy regarding the refugee children.

The policy, they said, although well-meaning, has the effect of keeping the children in the camps, exposed to danger. The United Nations seeks to find relatives of the children in Cambodia and reunite them with kinfolk. The search can take years, but until it ends, the children will not be released to volunteer agenies for resettlement, according to spokesman Peter Pond. Pond, executive director of the Jefferson Foundation of Jefferson, N.H., and the son of a tormer U.S. ambassador to Cambodia, has sponsored three of the four refugee children who have reached this country. He said the longer the children are in the camps, the greater the prospect that they will "become cannon fodder against the Vietnamese in Cambodia.

'Tracing efforts have been able to place 958 children with their families," the task force said. "However, at the same time, over 400 children have been kidnapped by the Khmer Rouge,

The Khmer Rouge is the Cambodian force which is conducting guerrilla warfare against the government installed in Cambodia by Vietnamese invaders

Task Force spokeswoman Judith Thompson said Kirkpatrick was "extremely sympathetic."

'She said she would talk to the U.N. secretary-general on our behalf and do what she could to get this process moving," Miss Thompson said.

Mardi Gras re-evaluation looms after deaths of two children

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - The annual Mardi Gras, a wild, colorful parade dampened this year by the deaths of two children, will come under police scrutiny this week as New Orleans officials try to balance the need for safety with concerns for tour-

"There will be a full critique" when police and city officials meet Friday, Deputy Police Chief Louis Turner said Wednesday, adding that there "has to be some give and take."

Turner noted that "overcontrol" of the festivities could be as detrimental as too few restrictions.

We could wind up with a plain vanilla thing that they could have in Centerville, Iowa," he said. Turner said one option is to reduce the number of parades so police could patrol them more closely.+ than is possible now, when up to three big parades may be in full swing at the same hour. Floats could also be given skirts or "cowcatchers" to keep people from going under wheels, Turner He said Mardi Gras parades, which w.nd through throngs of up to a million people, have always been "I went to a Rose Bowl parade once. Everybody sat there on the sidelines and watched it go by, Turner said. "All they were interested in was beauty and music. At our parades, they are interested in beauty, music, booze and baubles.

Strings of beads and aluminum doubloons are flung into the crowd by Mardi Gras revelers riding the gaudy papier-mache floats built onto a truck chassis and towed by small tractors.

Though the trinkets are of small value, the scramble for them can be dangerous.

Police said 2½-year-old Margaret McKenzie was Police said 2½-year-old Margaret McKelizle was killed under the wheels of a Zulu float Tuesday when she grabbed for a little necklace. Christian Lambert, 8, was run over by a float when the pressure of a crowd knocked over the stepladder he was sitting on, throwing him under the truck.

"All festivals have their peril but this is still the safest celebration on earth," said Blaine Kern, who designs and manufactures most Carnival floats.

Turner said the most notable change was the rash of incidents involving high school brass bands that march in the parades.

One band had some instruments battered and One band had some instruments battered and broken in a clash with spectators who said they were deliberately jabbed by trombone slides.

Another quake rocks Greece

ATHENS, Greece (AP) - Another earthquake rocked Greece today, adding to the fear and misery of thousands of people camping out in the streets and squares across the nation after a quake-less than a day earlier.

Many schools, stores and offices were closed because Athenians were afraid that new tremors would bring down more buildings. No new casualties were reported in the latest quake, which measured 5.8 on the Richter scale.

Police said more than 170 houses in rural areas collapsed and hundreds were damaged in the quake Wednesday night. Many of the houses had been weakened by two previous quakes over the past two

Two Greeks died of heart attacks and 30 were injured in Wednesday's quake, which measured 6.2 on the Richter scale and was centered 42 miles west of Athens in the Gulf of Corinth. The state radio said the tremor caused a three-foot high wave in the gulf that pounded the beaches of the town that was damaged by the quake on Feb. 24.

That quake left 18 dead nationwide and caused some damage to the nation's ancient artifacts. The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Thus a reading of 7.5 reflects an earthquake 10 times stronger than one of 6.5. An earthquake of 5 on the Richter scale can cause considerable damage, 6 severe damage: A 7 reading is a "major" earthquake, capable of widespread heavy damage; 8 is a "great" quake, capable of tremendous damage. The San Francisco earthquake of 1906, which The San Francisco earthquake of 1906, which occurred before the Richter scale was devised, has been estimated at 8.3 on the Richter scale.

'Tolerance' main issue of creation-science trial

By BOB EGELKO Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A judge has virtually eliminated the issues of evolution and biblical creation from a trial that was expected to renew the legal war between Darwin and Genesis.

Superior Court Judge Irving Perluss told lawyers Wednesday that the central issue in the case is ensuring 'sensitivity, understanding and tolerance' for children whose religious beliefs may clash with what they learn in science classes.

The state dropped plans to call astronomer Carl Sagan, Nobel laureate Arthur Kornberg and other prominent scientists as witnesses to defend evolutionary theory, developed by Charles Darwin, who wrote "Origin of Species."

The suit by the religious fundamentalist Creation-Science Research Center, a San Diego group that espouses the biblical account of creation as scientific truth, contends the state violates religious rights in the way evolution is taught in science classes.

The case had promised to be a head-on collision between evolutionists and "scientific creationists" in what observers predicted would be a rerun of the famed 1925 Scopes "mon-key trial" in Tennessee.

But the Creation Science group dropped its attempt to get creation ism taught on a par with evolution. And other potentially explosive issues have been kept out by Perluss.

He told lawyers Wednesday he didn't care whether evolutionary theory was endorsed by every scientist or whether the fundamentalists had any scientific grounds for their complaint that their children's rights were being violated.

Perluss said the state's educational policy should, in effect, appeal to teachers to "have some understanding and sensitivity to the fundamentalist Christian child," or any other pupil whose religious beliefs might clash with their academic instruction

The Creation-Science group says it doesn't object to the teaching of evolution, only to its presentation as absolute fact. The state denies it is teaching evolution as absolute fact.

The plaintiffs wound up their case Wednesday, the third day of the trial. It consisted of testimony from the creation center's director, Kelly Segraves, and his 13-year-old son, Kasey.

They said their religious beliefs, that humans were specially created by God, were offended by the way evolution was presented in Kasey's classes and textbooks. The father said their rights were also violated by "dogmatic" statements on evolution in the state's guidelines for science textbooks.

The first defense witness, biophysicist Thomas Jukes, a University of California professor who wrote the language on evolution in the 1978 guidelines, denied they were dogmatic and said he had made several concessions to creationist groups.

State officials must come up with desegregation program

ST. LOUIS (AP) — State officials are deliberately stalling the court-ordered desegregation of St. Louis schools and must come up with a voluntary desegregation plan within 60 days or face contempt charges, a federal judge has warned.

U.S. District Judge William L. Hungate on Wednesday also ordered an interim report in 30 days on the progress of efforts to gain the cooperation of suburban school districts in the plan.

He pointedly warned state officials — who have already missed several deadlines — against trying to "defy the authority of the court" in the nine-year case.

State officials named as defendants in the desegregation case are the governor, the attorney general, the treasurer and the members of the state Board of Education.

"The orders of this court must be complied with," said Hungate, who added that he is under orders from the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals to "countenance no excuse for further

State officials had said they were hampered by suburban districts fearful that cooperation in a voluntary plan might result in participation in a mandatory plan.

The NAACP and other interested parties have asked the federal courts to make as many as 40 suburban school districts in three surrounding counties part of a mandatory desegregation plan for city schools.

Hungate, who took over the case from Senior U.S. District Judge James H. Meredith in December, was critical of all parties involved in the issue, but reserved his harshest words for the state.

Public records, he said, "reveal extraordinary machinations by the state defendants in resisting Judge Meredith's orders. In these circumstances, the court can draw only one conclusion — the state has, as a matter of deliberate policy, decided to defy the authority of the court.

"To grant the state defendants a stay would permit the state to escape triumphantly from the consequences of its defiance of Judge Meredith's orders."

House legislation could establish guidance centers' for youngsters

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Youngsters whose behavior disrupts classes could be isolated in state-financed "guidance centers" under legislation that has advanced in the House.

A bill authorizing the centers and the state funding for them were on the calendar for final action today, and passage seemed likely.

Dallas, Houston, Austin, Pasadena and Richardson had successful pilot programs, said Rep. Carlyle Smith, D-Grand Prairie, sponsor of the mea-

His bill would authorize any school district with 6,000 or more pupils to set up a guidance center that would keep troublesome students in school and try to correct their behavior.

Smith took a beating over how the program should be financed.

He wanted districts to get automatic state funding under the Foundation School Program but did not want to add any money to the FSP appropriation recommended by the Legislative Budget Board.

Rep. Bob Davis, R-Irving, won approval of an amendment requiring separate line item funding of the program, whose estimated two-year cost is $18 million.

Davis said, however, he was all for the guidance centers, adding that the pilot programs had given teachers better control over their classrooms and reduced daytime street crimes committed by expelled students.

A House Study Group report said
1,890 of the 2,043 students in the pilot programs "exhibited improved performance and behavior when they returned to the regular classroom."

Brooklyn becoming battlefield

It's Jew against Jew in religious dispute

By ABNER KATZMAN Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A religious war has erupted in the streets of Brooklyn, pitting Jew against Jew in a brick-throwing dispute over whether the state of Israel should exist and when the messiah will come.

The combatants are unlikely urban warriors: black-clad ultra-Orthodox members of rival religious sects, the Belz and the Satmar. Each subscribes to a Jewish tradition known as Hasidism, which emphasizes mysticism, ecstasy and a strong belief in the coming of the messiah.

Even though some of them live there, the Satmars refuse to recognize the state of Israel, denying that there can be a Jewish state before the messiah comes, which Jews believe has not yet happened. The Belzers recognize Israel, and are said to feel that the creation of a Jewish state may even speed the messiah's coming.

The simmering dispute recently became violent, bringing heavy police patrols to the Brooklyn streets where the Hasidim have carved out a culturally separate community rooted in their 19th century Eastern European origins.

Some 400 police officers were dispatched to the neighborhood Tuesday after threats were made against the life of the Grand Rabbi of Belz, who is on a two-week visit from Israel to mark the 30th anniversary of the founding of Belz institutions in the United States.

There was no violence as Rabbi Yisucher Dov Rokeach, guarded by a phalanx of police and security men, met followers at a Brooklyn school. He is revered as the only surviving heir of the founder of the 200-year-old sect, which began in the Polish town of Belz, now in the Soviet Union.

On Sunday night, police responded to a rock-throwing attack on a Belz synagogue by some 500 jeering Hasidim. Witnesses alleged the attackers were Satmars protesting Rokeach's visit.

"It's like the Hatfields and the McCoys," said Officer Steve Bonomo-

Leaflets and graffiti against the grand rabbi have appeared in Brooklyn Jewish communities and in Manhattan's diamond district where many Hasidic Jews work.

"Not since Nazi Germany have the streets been splattered with such hate against Jews," charged Rabbi Michael Halberstam, an aide to Rokeach. Halberstam said the 33-year-old grand rabbi came to strengthen followers' morale because of "harassment, slander and physical attacks against them."

A Satmar spokesman who asked not to be identified said that sect believes the messiah will organize the Jewish state. Belz spokesman David Orlander said his group believes "we have to accept the state as a reality," and added the Satmars believe the Israeli government "is stopping the messiah from coming."

After meeting with Belz leaders in recent weeks, New York Mayor Edward Koch, a Jew, reportedly summoned Satmar leaders to Gracie Mansion and told them to restrain their followers.

Koch's office refused to confirm reports of these meetings, which appeared Tuesday in The New York Times.

The Satmars have hired a public relations firm to present their case. In a statement issued through the firm, Rabbi Leibisch Lewkovitz, president of the international Satmar community, condemned violence, saying that "despite our philosophical differences, we believe in everyone's right to visit our city in a peaceful manner."

Each sect claims 100,000 adherents worldwide, a figure observers believe exaggerated in both cases. The Belz are more numerous than the Satmar in Israel; the Satmar have more adherents in New York.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger had said he was attracted to the idea of basing the MX missile at sea, but a Pentagon spokesman said last

Shortly after being named defense secretary, Weinberger indicated that by deploying the MX missile on a large number of surface ships court battles with environmentalists and other opponents of the land-basing plan could be avoided.

Navy Secretary John Lehman told reporters Tuesday that he is "highly skeptical" of the concept of putting the MX on surface ships because of the problem of "pre-launch survivablity," among other things

ietnam War memories resurrected

By JAMES GERSTENZANG Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The words rang a bell, as they rolled off the tongue of the retired general, the secretary of state.

"Wet season." "Country team." "Military advisers." They were part of the lingo of the Vietnam War. But now, the focus was El Salvador, and Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. was talking about the extent of U.S. military involvement

For more than a week, questions put to the senior officials of the Reagan administration, and the responses, have resurrected memories of the war.

And in the White House press room, one wag with a sense of black humor cracked nhat in 10 years, "we'll have 60,000 American casualties and 50 El Salvadoran restaurants in Arlington" - a Washington suburb where Vietnamese restaurants have sprung up since the end of the Southeast Asian war when refugees flocked here.

The administration has been extremely sensitive to suggestions that it may be approaching the same road that Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson followed nearly 20 years ago when they first sent teams of U.S. advisers to Saigon, then counterinsurgency experts and eventually American combat troops to Vietnam.

Those suggestions stem not only from the administration decision to increase to 45 the number of U.S. military training personnel in the Central American nation - with orders to remain out of combat zones

- but also from such comments as Haig's. The secretary of state, in what could be an echo of Gen. William Westmoreland, the former U.S. commander in Vietnam, said emphatically that "our problem with El Salvador is external intervention in the internal affairs of a sovereign nation in this hemisphere. Nothing more. Nothing less.'

Questions about whether the United States would become so involved in El Salvador that it could not extricate itself were "part of the Vietnam syndrome," the president said last week, adding that 'we have no intennion of that kind of involve-

Reflecting the White House effort to deflect comparisons between the Southeast Asian buildup and the course of events in El Salvador, Reagan's press secretary, James S. Brady, said "everybody's had the El Salvador train farther down the track

It is difficult at this stage to tell if that is the case. The deliberations of the National Security Council and the Joint Chiefs of Staff, of course, are kept mostly under wraps. reaction was less friendly

Immediately after French Foreign Minister Jean pa said today. Francois-Poncet met with Reagan last week in the Oval Office, he strolled about 50 feet away to the White House press room where he said that it was important to remember that the solution in El Salvador must be political and not military.

In Bonn, the West German government expressed interest in serving as an intermediary in possible talks between the leftist guerillas and the government in San Salvador, thus setting itself apart from the Reagan administration's efforts to isolate the rebels. That initial effort, however, was rejected.

Comments made at the White House by British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, from whom Ronald Reagan could have been cloned when it comes to international philosophy, were notable in that the prime minisfer refrained from voicing public support for whatever course the president is following in Central America.

Acid rain creating concern

By ROBERT LOCKE AP Science Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Acid rain, which has polluted hundreds of lakes on the East Coast and in parts of Europe, is falling on California and state officials say tough new emission controls are needed to save scenic mountain lakes.

"It takes a period of time for the effects (of acid rain) to show up - maybe we're a decade or so behind the East Coast," said John Holmes, director of research for the state Air Resources Board.

"We have the opportunity now to take some action to prevent these things," he said during a board meeting here Wednesday

DOES CHEATING EVER PAY?

Jesus now told this story to His disciples: "A rich man hired an accountant to handle his affairs, but soon a rumor went around that the accountant was thoroughly dishonest. So his employer called him in and said, 'What's this I hear about your stealing from me? Get your report in order; for you are to be dismissed.

"The accountant thought to himself, 'Now what? I'm through here, and I haven't the strength to go out and dig ditches, and I'm too proud to beg. I know just the thing! And then I'll have plenty of friends to take care of me when I leave!"

So he invited each one who owed money to his employer to come and discuss the situatition. He asked the first one, 'How much do you owe him?' 'My debt is 850 gallons of olive oil,' the man replied. 'Yes, here is the contract you signed, the accountant told him. 'Tear it up and write another one for half that much!

'And how much do you owe him?' he asked the next man. 'A thousand bushels of wheat, was the reply. 'Here,' the accountant said, take your note and replace it with one for only 800 bushels!

The rich man had to admire the rascal for being so shrewd. And it is true that the citizens of this world are more clever (in dishonesty!) than the godly are.

"But shall I tell you to act that way, to buy friendship through cheating? Will this ensure your entry into an everlasting home in

DR. NEIL SOLOMON Hospitals serve wine to patients

Dear Dr. Solomon: One of my former college classmates, with whom I continue to keep in touch, phoned me from her home in another city to tell me she had undergone some minor surgery. What surprised me was that she said she had been served wine while in the hospital. Is this a unique instance, or do other hospitals serve wine as well? - Diane

Dear Diane: It can scarcely be called unique when more than 600 hospitals in the United States serve wine to their patients. The exact number, according to a study by the University of Oklahoma, is 628. In 177 of these hospitals, wine is listed on the patients' daily menus; the others require the request for wine to be made by the patient's physician.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've been on medication for high blood pressure for several years, and I'm resigned to the fact that I'll be taking pills for the rest of my life. Now my son, who is still in college, has been told that his blood pressure is moderatly high. This makes me wonder about any grandchildren I may be fortunate enough to have in the future. Is there any way to detect susceptibility to high blood pressure early in life so that treatment can be started as soon as it is indicated? - Mr. T.Y.

Dear Mr. Y.: Research studies now under way may bring about the kind of screening program you suggest. Scientists at both the Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore and the Medical University of South Carolina in Charleston report that many children whose parents have high blood pressure show evidence of a condition called myocardial hypertrophy. Moreover, the condition can be detected through a noninvasive technique called M-mode echocardiography, in which sound waves reflected from the heart show the internal structure of the walls and valves. The researchers suggest that children with a thick left ventricle, the main pumping chamber of the heart, seem to be more prone to high blood pressure than children without this condition.

If these studies are validated, it may be possible to use echocardiography to detect children at risk for hypertension. They could then be followed closely so that treatment could begin as early as it became advisable. The test is not recommended for use as a mass screening procedure, but only as a means of detecting the problem in children from high-risk

Drs. Anthony F. Cutilletta and Kenneth G. Zahka of Johns Hopkins University studied 107 people, eight to 19 years of age. Of these, 55 had a normal blood pressure reading, while the remainder showed mild high blood pressure. Of the 52 subjects with mild hypertension, 42 were diagnosed as having left ventricular hypertrophy (LVH).

Growth hormone tests delayed

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Stanford University medical researchers say they still hope to begin tests this spring of an artificially produced growth hormone despite a delay to investigate possible side effects.

Tests on children were to begin this month at 11 medical centers in the United States and England, said Ron Rosenfeld, assistant professor of pediatrics at Stanford.

However, the tests were delayed when the human growth hormone produced by Genentech, a leader in the gene-splicing industry, was tested on 12 adult volunteers who reported some pain.

The tests were comparing the artificially produced hormone with HGH from human cadavers.

"We are going to take some time to review the data," Rosenfeld said Tuesday. "We are still projecting going ahead sometime in the College basketball tournament time, when losers some-

On Wednesday night, the Southeastern Conference played the first round of its postseason tournament, with Florida edging Auburn 50-48 in overtime and Vanderbilt defeating Mississippi State 71-58.

The SEC powerhouses, third-ranked Louisiana State, No.7 Kentucky and No.10 Tennessee, had first-round byes. They get underway tonight against Florida, Vanderbilt and Mississippi, respectively.

The only ranked team to play Wednesday night was second-ranked DePaul, which got 21 points from Mark Aguirre as the Blue Demons pounded Dayton 84-64.

CBS scores basketball coup

By FRED ROTHENBERG

of the National Basketball Association, signed a three-year agreement Wednesday to broadcast the NCAA postseason basketball tournament, beginning in 1982.

The contract is a real coup for CBS because the college tournament is one of sport's prestige events. What's more, CBS stole this one from fierce rival NBC, which will be forced to end its longtime association when it airs the playoffs late this month.

The announcement of the new alliance was made jointly by Wayne Duke, chairman of the NCAA's Television Committee, and Van Sauter, president of CBS Sports.

Duke said CBS won over finalist NBC and two preliminary bidders, ABC and TVS, "based on the extensive broadcasting program it proposed, its plan to undertake a sustained national promotion of the games and its strong and competitive financial terms.'

IT WAS learned that CBS made the highest bid, reportedly $48 million for three years, with a negotiating posi-

AP Sports Writer CBS, which already is the network tion for the future.

Sauter, during whose nine-month stewardship CBS has become an aggressive force on the sports scene,. said he was honored to win the rights, which reflected "our committment to college sports and the unique position they hold in this country.

CBS is in a unique position of its own. For some time, it has battled NBC's college basketball for Sunday ratings; now it has both the pro and college games.

The NCAA doesn't have the regular season TV rights, but was concerned that college basketball maintain the high visibility and revenue that network exposure affords. CBS has promised to air 14 regular season games in 1982 and 17 in each of the next two

TVS, WHICH has seven major conferences locked up for two more years, has been putting college basketball on NBC for some time. NBC said in negotiations it didn't want the regular season unless it had the playoffs. CBS has entered into discussion with TVS, which prefers a network vehicle, rather than syndication, for its games. But TVS would seem to be able to drive a harder bargain because it knows CBS has made a commitment to the NCAA on the regular

"We assume we will be able to make some sort of arrangement suitable for all parties," said Neal Pilson, vice president, business affairs, for CBS Sports. "We don't accept the premise that TVS has us over a bar-

CBS said it assured the NBA its full complement of games will be aired in 1982, the final year of a four-year, agreement. Pilson said CBS is still interested in the NBA in 1983. "It would be a mistake for anyone to write off CBS as an NBA possibility,' he said.

Several changes made it easier for CBS to find programming time for the NCAA regular season games in '82. First, the NBA decided to begin its season three weeks later to avoid a conflict with the World Series. This opens three weekends for college basketball early in '82. In addition, CBS dropped three golf tournaments in the first quarter of '82.

CBS AGREED to have 16 tournament exposures in each of the next three years. NBC currently has 11, with only the final Monday night game in prime time. CBS has offered to also air the tournament semifinals in prime time. "It's not resolved yet. We're prepared to go either way,' said Pilson

CBS also acquired broadcast rights to the women's college basketball championships for the next three years and offered to purchase five other NCAA championships.

CBS had tried to steal the Rose Bowl from NBC late last year but managed only to drive up the price.

Rangers' boss still bitter over firing

By WILL GRIMSLEY

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) -While Don Zimmer sits in the dugout down here, spitting tobacco juice into an oil barrel and salivating over his revived Texas Rangers, he can't completely erase memories of Boston, where he was victim of a different kind of tea party.

As was the case when he was a shortstop for the Dodgers, Cubs and old Senators - twice rallying from what could have been career-ending injuries - he bounced up and landed on his feet with the Rangers.

It is a rare challenge. The Rangers, loaded with talent, were favored to win the American League West last year. They foundered and wound up fourth, 201/2 games behind Kansas City.

Chaps only 4 away from nationals

Coach Jerry Stone feels his Midland College Chaparrals were the second best team in the nation last year, but they didn't even make it to the nationals, thanks to Western Texas, which rolled to a 37-0 season on the national

This year's Chaparral team may or may not be as good as last year's 27-6 club, a team whose only failing was four losses to WTC, but starting tonight the Chaps will get an opportunity to provide some answers.

MC is four victories away from its first appearance at the National Juco tournament at Hutchinson, Kan., but it won't be the Chaps first appearance there. Stone probably had something in mind, let's call it a premonition, when he took his Chaps to Hutchinson for a tournament back in November, a tournament MC won, incidentally.

If MC wins the Region V tournament, it still must beat somebody, most likely Tyler JC, in a playoff to decide which Texas team makes it to the 32-team nationals March 16-21.

BARRING an upset of staggering proportions tonight, MC's first big challenge should come Friday night against Frank Phillips, a team with whom it traded two-point decisions.

or anyone big enough to beat FPC. Most likely to emerge from the other bracket for Saturday night's finals will be Cooke, the Northern Conference champion, or Howard College, 1-2 against MC this year. The big rap against Midland is that it doesn't have the big man, the Sam Bowie, Ralph Sampson intimidation. Stone does eight have sophomores and more depth than most. Puntus Wilson and Lance McCain may be freshman, but they play more like sophomores.

AND MAYBE he doesn't have the 6-10 wheelhorse, but for intimidation, 66 Ernie Tate can scare some people. "Our kids may not be that big, but some of them are skywalkers, claims Stone.

Probably the most courted of the Chaps is 6-6 Charles Johnson, the sophomore from Midland, who Nolan Richardson would like to whisk off to Tulsa, along with his kid brother,

But Kevin Willingham may be more typical of this year's Chaparral team and the secret to its success despite a lineup without a super star.

Willingham, just 6-3 1/2 is listed as hailing from Chicago, but actually comes from Chicago Heights, "which is about 30 miles south of Chicago.

STONE SAW Willingham and Tate playing for Fort Hood and recruited them for MC. "I was in the Army three years. Funny thing, except for basketball, I didn't wear a uniform after the first six weeks in service. Once I made the basketball team, that's about all we did, was travel and play and wear civvies.'

Despite his height and the fact that he weighs only 200, 25 less than Tate, Willingham plays inside, usually giving away six to 10 inches in height, but he holds his own. One reason may be that in high school, he played defensive end, a spot where you can't let folks shove you around, and was good enough to receive several scholarship feelers.

Kevin rarely is the Chaps top scorer, but he'll get you the big bucket when you need it...like that night in Borger when his goal from underneath climaxed a rally which saw MC come from nine points back with four minutes to left pull out a 57-55 victory in the final seconds over Frank Phillips, the win that clinched the WJCC title for MC. *

No, I'm not offering you some clumsy ground chuck from Modesto, some pituitary type with stone hands and the touch of a blacksmith, some fastbreak killer from the boondocks.

I'm offering you probably the dead-liest scorer of all time. Nobody, but nobody, puts in the points-per-minute this guy does -- not Wilt, Oscar Robertson, Kareem, Jerry West. Nobody. PERIOD.

THIS FELLOW will go No. 1 in the draft next year. His team, Oregon State, is currently No. 1 on all the polls, and he's the reason. He's the best basketball player ever to come out of Oregon, and that includes Mel Counts, Dave Gambee, Lonnie Shelton, Swede Halbrook and all the

If he's so great, you say, how come he wants to be backup anything? Why doen't he just go direct to the Hall of Fame in Springfield? Beats me. It's kind of hard to explain Steve Johnson. Not so hard as it is to defense him. But he's not your average free-wheeling cocky jock.

Let's look at the stats first: Steven Johnson scores more points, faster, than anybody in the game. This year he has racked up 533 points in 629 minutes. Last year, he threw in 509 points in 711 minutes.

THERE IS hardly a basketball player alive who isn't better from the foul line than he is from the floor. Wilt Chamberlain was the notable exception, but Wilt was, so to speak, a baasketcase. Certainly, a backboard

Standard stats call for a guy to be 450 from the floor and .750 from the line. Last year, Steve Johnson, a good-enough free-thrower, was .600 in foul throws -- and .710 in field goals. This year, he's 6.73 in foul throws and .750 from the court.

Now for the bad news: When he's not making baskets, Steve Johnson is making mistakes. And getting caught at them. Steve Johnson gets all those points-per-minute because he's not around for many of them. Minutes, that is. He gets thrown out of more places than a sailor on shore leave. Sometimes, Steve gets confused. He doesn't remember whether he's supposed to throw the basketball through the hoop or the guy holding it.

ASU players got big laugh over Kush denial

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) Members of the Ariboth charges. Maskill zona State University has yet to testify. The football team "got a big trial is in its fifth week. laugh" when former Sun Devil Coach Frank Kush told them he didn't punch punter Kevin Rutledge in a 1978 game, a former player testified Wednes-

"The laugh indicated 'You're crazy.' We'd all seen it or been a part of it," Gary Bouck told the court. "Coach Kush just said, 'You guys know me well enough that I've never punched anybody.'

Rutledge is suing Kush and others for $2.2 million - claiming Kush split his lower lip with a punch following a 26yard punt in Arizona State's 41-7 loss to Washington Oct. 28, 1978, in Seattle.

He also claims Kush and ex-Sun Devil secondary coach Bill Maskill harassed him into quitting the team in 1979 and forfeiting his scholar-

SIX TIMES this year he's been told to pack his things and go. But that's nothing. In his freshman year, Steve got kicked out of 18 of the 28 games he appeared in. As a sophomore, he got kicked out of 12 of 27 -- and last year, 13 out of 30. This year, he's 6 for 25.

It's not that he's improving. Any game he doesn't get the requisite five fouls for eviction, he gets four. He's had 97 personals this year, below last year's 120, but his team has a few games left yet.

The reason Steve's rate of dismissal is declining is, the coach is getting more artful at spreading his fouls out. The trick is to have Steve get his fifth foul with the game out of reach end only a minute or so to play. Steve averages only 25 minutes of the 40-minute game. For those 25 minutes; his scoring average is 21.2.

PART OF the problem is, Steven didn't learn the set shot in the moving pick when he was barely out of hisbaby stroller like most Mom and Dad were Seventh Day Adventists and they enrolled him in its private religious school in Loma Linda, and Steve was an upper classman in high school before he had a basketball in his hands. He was taking up the game about the time other high-schoolers were applying for hardship so they could join the Milwaukee Bucks. Steve is aggressive but not mean.

Despite his 6-10 1/2 height and 235-pound weight, he still tends to have some baby fat on him and to take a pounding under the basket. His specialty is "turning in" on the defensive player, a maneuver in which you back into the defender and push him under the basket and, when you arrive there, turn and slam the ball off the backboard into the hoop. The players call him "Big Butt" because of the part of his anatomy he uses to push the defender back like a cowcatcher on a locomotive. Johnson's baskets, laid end-to-end, would not make it much past mid-court. But nothing prepares you for his strange ambition. To warm a bench. A reporter asked him, as he toweled off vigorously after Sunday's Oregon State 82-76 win over UCLA where he threw in 26 points in 30 minutes and fouled out with 3:20 to go, "Do you have any druthers as to who will draft you in the pros?" "Yeah, said Steve, "I'd like to go to the Lakers." "The Lakers?!" gasped his listeners. "They've got Kareem!" "I know," said Steve. "But I could play back-up center for however much longer he's going to play. Think what I could learn from him! Then I could play some power forward, too.'

So, there you have it. The Lakers can have 15 years' security at the pivot, although you might say not guilt-edged. (cq) Because, the first thing Jabbar has to teach him is to look pained when they call a foul on him, not guilty.

Bulls upset 76ers while Celtics win

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Sports Writer

It's been nine years since the National Basketball Association has had two teams with records as good as the Philadelphia 76ers and Boston Celtics have

Both teams are 54-15, a .783 percentage, the best since Los Angeles finished .841 and Milwaukee was

But after Boston beat Houston 108-101 on the road and the Chicago Bulls upset the 76ers 111-100 in Philadelphia Wednesday night, the moods of the two powerful teams were decidedly different.

"I'll have to sit down and figure out what went wrong," said Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham. We looked quite dead. It didn't look like it was any fun to be out on the court. I guess I'll have to make changes in the lineup. I'll decide that after practice tomorrow.'

When we went on this road trip, we felt that we had a good chance to win two of the three games. We now have a chance to win all three," Boston star Larry Bird said. "Philadelphia thought that they could widen their lead on us when we went on the road, but now we have pulled even and the pressure is on them." Kings 111, Spurs 97—Kansas City passed Houston in their battle for a Western Conference playoff berth as Otis Birdsong scored 39 points to beat Midwest Division leader San Antonio. Injury-ridden Lafleur reaches 1,000-goal level

The last thing Guy Lafleur plans to do now that he is a 1,000-point scorer is rest on his laurels. Instead, the 10-year veteran of the Montreal Canadiens will get started on his next 1,000 National Hockey League

'I'm proud of it but I still have four or five years to play," Lafleur said Wednesday night after his two goals and an assist brought the mark in the Canadiens' 14th straight game without a loss, a 9-3 bombing of the Winnipeg Jets. "I'm not sitting on it."

It took Lafleur, whose string of consecutive 100-point seasons will end. this year at six, 720 games to get to 1,000, the fastest anyone has done it. Los Angeles center Marcel Dionne reached 1,000 earlier this season in his 740th contest.

Lafleur has missed 22 games this season with assorted injuries but still is the second highest scorer for Montreal. And, having reached 1,000, the rest of the season should go easier for

LONDON (AP) - John Conteh, a former lightheavyweight champion from Great Britain who fought in seven world title bouts in his career, has decided to retire from boxing. Martin enjoys unique role as manager of Oakland's A's

By BOB OATES

(c) 1981, The Los Angeles Times In his second year with the Oakland A's, Billy Martin has embarked on a new and difficult trip. He has accepted two fulltime jobs this season as Oakland's manager and director of player development.

"I'll be making all the (player) moves from one (farm) club to another and on up to the A's," Martin said the other day when asked about his new responsibilities.

This is unprecedented in baseball in this half of the century. Although Don Shula and other pro football coaches control the destiny of their players, the last to wear both hats in baseball was a catcher named Connie Mack, who owned and managed the A's from 1901-50.

Yet, strangely, Martin is only one of two big league managers who have recently taken charge of the personnel in their organizations. The other is Whitey Herzog of St. Louis, who, doubling as the general manager there, oversees all departments, including personnel development. The difference at Oakland is that, starting this spring, Martin is/making every player decision himself.

THIS PUTS him on the same level with the National Football League's strongest coaches, including Shula, Chuck Noll, Chuck Knox and Dick Vermeil, who make the personnel decisions for their clubs. And as might be expected, Martin's philosophy is the same as theirs:

"How can you run a ballclub right when somebody else has the authority over your players?

Asked to comment on the parallel between an American League manager and an NFL coach, Martin said:

"A football coach spends more time around his players than anybody. So does the manager of the ballclub. The football coach is the guy who knows. what (players) he needs to win. So does the manager.

Martin said the parallel also extends to trading, in which Shula, for instance, shares the responsibility with the owner of the Miami football team, Joe Robbie.

"I have two bright young owners who want to work on this (trades), the Oakland manager said, referring to former Levi Strauss executives Roy Eisenhardt and Wally Haas. 'And I'm glad they do. As owners they should. But none of us can make a trade on our own."

BECAUSE HE has to do everything now but sweep out the locker room, Martin was the first in baseball to go into spring training this year, calling his people together in Arizona, where, during a free moment, he was asked to outline the managerial philosophy he has developed over the years.

He said there are four planks in the Martin platform:

1 - Most important, a manager must have a major voice in personnel (which explains his new role in player development).

- There are two other keys "Take nothing for granted" and "talk to the players in their own language. I don't see a generation gap. It's a terminology gap.

3 - Aggressiveness is what wins games and pennants. Therefore, Martin said, "The manager must take all the blame when things go wrong ... If I tell you to steal home, it's my fault if you're out ... Don't be afraid to take a chance. 4 — The reverse side of that coin: "Force the opponent to think defensi-

MARTIN speaks with an air of selfassurance and forcefulness rare even in a business full of extraordinarily confident persons. Fiery, feisty, wiry (6-0, 165) and fast-moving - known as the scrappiest individual in the majors - he is also among the sharpest.

As Angels Vice President Buzzie Bavasi says: "Billy is as smart as he thinks he is

Martin's determination and aggressiveness are such that he consistently played closer to his full potential than perhaps any other athlete of his time (11 years as a big league second baseman, seven with the New York Yankees). Except for his final two seasons at Milwaukee and Minnesota, he never hit over .267 or under .255 in any year in which he had 100 or more at-bats. His lifetime average: 257.

One of the least gifted players in the 1953 World Series - from which he nonetheless emerged as the star and MVP - Martin was born 52 years ago in Berkeley, Calif.

He never knew his father. "I don't even know what he did for a living," Billy said. "My father was Portuguese, born in Hawaii. My mother is Italian." Billy is the oldest in a family in which he has two half-brothers and two half-sisters. Now unmarried, he has a daughter by his first wife and a son by his second.

Some who know him best explain Martin in terms of his feisty, fiery mother, Joan Downey, 79, with whom he remains close. "For better or worse, Billy inherited her nervous system," a friend says. "He's nearly as much of a fighter as she is.

Standing under 5 feet and weighing under 80 pounds, Joan Downey born Joan Salvini - reacted to the first big crisis of her life as Billy would have expected her to. This was six months before Billy was born.

"I heard some girl down at the schoolyard had my husband's watch, on," she told Oakland Tribune sports writer Dave Newhouse last year. "I" went to the school, took the watch off the girl and beat the hell out of her."

Then she went home and kicked out her husband. She still lives in that house. She has lived there - it's in Berkeley - since 1906.

JACK DOWNEY, her second husband, has been married to Billy's mother for more than 50 years. He is a truck driver who worked as a WPA handyman during the Great Depress-

Billy was probably thinking about all this a few months ago when, at an Oakland fan club luncheon, he was asked why he was so cocky 'You'd be cocky, too, if you were a WPA baby," he said. "Nobody gave you anything. You have to fight for everything you got.'

This attitude and its consequences, combined with Martin's uncommon talent as a leader, have carried him to more heights (and a wider variety of lows) than most other managers have known His ability to turn around losers in baseball is as remarkable as George Allen's in football - and even more wideranging. This is how Martin has torn up the American League in the last 12 years:

1969: Led the Minnesota Twins to first place. (They had finished seventh under Carl Ermer in 1968.)

1971-72: Led the Detroit Lions to second and then first. (They had finished fourth under Mayo Smith in

1974: Led the Texas Rangers to second. (They had finished sixth under Whitey Herzog in-1973.)

1976: Led the New York Yankees to their first pennant in 11 years. 1977: Led the Yankees to their first World Series championship in 15

vears 1980: Led the Oakland A's to second with an 83-79 record. (They had finished last with a 58-104 record under Jim Marshall in 1979.)

IN CHANGING base six times in 12 years, Martin has shown some selfdestructive tendencies. But conceivably he has also been getting some bad raps

Many of his well-publicized problems over the years have originated in differences with his owners over personnel. The A's decision to give him a free hand in this area will end one source of irritation - possibly the main source - in his life.

The world may see a new Billy Martin now that he has full responsibility in the department that can make or break any manager.

"The thing that should help the most is that we'll all be on the same page," he said, referring to himself and the managers of Oakland's four farm clubs. "From one level to the next, we'll all do everything the same

"Because they (the other managers) won't have to think about the best way," Martin said, "or even a good way. There'll only be one way and they can concentrate on one thing: improving the players.'

Are there that many ways to play baseball?

There are different systems and it will be better for us in Oakland if everyone in the organization is teaching the Oakland (Martin) system.'

This being the case, why doesn't every major league club give its manager authority over player development?

'We're a new organization, which makes it necessary here at this time. Teams like the Dodgers have a veteran organization to teach the Dodger system.

What part of your baseball philosophy can best be implemented when everyone in the organization is teaching the Martin system.

Earl in favor of free agency

(Compiled from R-T wire services) Baltimore manager Earl Weaver refuses to take a public stance on a threatened May 29 players' strike, but minces no words about his feelings on thre free agent issue. "Baseball is more competitive than it ever has been. Free agency has helped equal everything out. Baseball is prospering. Before free agency, the Yankees and Milwaukee were in the doldrums. They went out and bought other people's players and got back into the competitive picture ... the best example is California. The Angels were low on the totem pole. They went out and bought players, made the playoffs and the fan response has been tremendous. Kansas City improved itself. Now the club has sold 12,000 season tickets."

Gaylord Perry, a Cy Young winner in both leagues, is just 11 victories short of his final goal in baseball, 300 victories, as the 42-year-old righthander heads into his 20th major league season, this time with the Atlanta Braves. Perry, coming off a 10-13 season, has lost 15 to 20 pounds and " I could lose five more and feel even more comfortable, but it's tough losing ... I was too heavy last year, and that hurts you when you get into your 40s. I love a big steak with baked potato, dessert and a glass of fine wine. But when I signed with the Braves, I gave that up. I didn't eat after 6 o'clock at night and ate very little then. Lots of fresh vegetables and salads. It's a lot easier out there now. When I sit down to the table, I just eat a lot slower." ..

Pitching machines have no respect for majorleaguers, Cincinnati infielder Junior Kennedy discovered Wednesday after being struck in the back by a ball from a mechanical pitching machine. "I didn't get hit all last year and now a machine hits me.'

Yankee owner George Steinbrenner said he has no plans to meet with slugger Reggie Jackson to renegotiate the outfielder's future contract. "I see no reason to be meeting with him anytime in the foreseeable future. I pleaded with Reggie to reach camp on time by March 1. He failed to show up. If you can't reason with a man better than that, I don't know what to do."

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) - Oregon State's No.1 ranked basketball team is just two victories away from finishing its regular season schedule without a loss - something Coach Ralph Miller had thought impossible.

But Miller has no trouble figuring out why his team has done better than he thought it would.

The biggest surprise has been the development of our defense," said Miller, whose team can clinch its second straight Pacific 10 Conference title tonight with a victory over Arizona

The key to the success on defense has been the two new players in the starting lineup - freshman Charlie Sitton and junior college transfer Lester

We lost two fine defensive players last year and it was questionable whether we could be as good a defensive team in 1981 as we were in 1980,' he said. "However, Sitton and Conner are both excellent defensive players — better than I thought they would be

Oak Ridge Boys send fans home with a 'smile on

"Come on in, baby take your coat off, Come on in, baby take a load off, Come on in, baby shake the blues off, I'm going to love that frown away... Come on in, baby put a smile on" Come on in, the blues will be long gone...

- The Oak Ridge Boys

Those feeling "tired" or "a little lonely" or as if "the world's turned its cold back on" them, went home with a "smile on" after Sunday night's Chaparral Center Oak Ridge Boys concert.

As bass Richard Sterban said prior to the performance, "We enjoy performing and we try to get that across to the audience. We want them to leave their cares and troubles behind.'

And the Oaks spent the evening planting joy. It was hard to tell who harvested more from the experience, the Oaks or the audience.

The foursome includes baritone William Lee Golden of Brewton, Ala., tenor Joe Bonsall of Philadelphia, Penn., lead singer Duane Allen of Paris, Texas and Sterban of New Jersey. The oldest Oak in terms of longevity - 17 years - and age is Golden, who also is the only single member. Allen has been a member for 16 years. Bonsall, who has eight years as an Oak, has the shortest tenure with the group. Sterban is a nine-year veteran.

PERHAPS THE most popular Oak of the evening was/Sterban. His deep bass voice and confident manner on stage wooed the female audience members to the point that he couldn't sing a line without getting applause

Finally, Bonsall, the group spokesman on stage and general jokester, said to him, "Hey Richard, you want to go home with them?" Then to the audience he said, "Well, we're off tomorrow. You can have him. Just get him to Houston by Tuesday.

Sterban was the only one of the four that didn't go to the edge of the stage at least once during the evening. And it was a good thing because he might not have made Houston by Tuesday.

Also on stage that night was country recording artist Con Hunley. He performed before the Oaks and, at their insistence, did a number with them. The number, which was recorded by Hunley, was "You Lay A Whole Lot of Love on Me" and the audience loved it.

Backstage between performances, Hunley said, "I've been singing all my life. I started out singing in church with my family. I was surrounded by music at an early age and I thought it was something everybody

BUT HE DIDN'T really get serious about music until 1969-70.

"Now I love my music. It's a passion I can't explain. "I'd like to have a string of hits, but I can wait. As long as I can sing a song and people can relate to it and enjoy it, then I'm happy."

Hunley, who has done several shows with the Oaks, said, "They have faith in

It was obvious watching Hunley and the Oaks joking around backstage together that they have a congenial relationship. The Oaks were originally a gospel singing group. In fact, Allen has been singing in church with family members all of his life. So there is much that they have in common.

DURING SUNDAY night's performance, the Oaks played their previous hits — they have had 12 in a row since "The Ya'll Come Back Saloon" in 1977 - several new songs from their album to be released this spring and two gospel selections. Each group member sang solo as well as harmo-

"To this point in our country music career," Sterban said, "none of us have written our own songs. We're in a fortunate position because some of the best song writers in the industry come to us. It wasn't always that performing groups in the country. Sterban attributes part of the group's success to its stage show. And, after seeing them perform, it's easy to see

The show was very professional with a lot of action occuring on stage that appears to be completely ad lib, but probably wasn't. Viewing the stage scene from a distance, it was possible to see the influence of television on the group's lighting and stage mannerisms because the show would fit perfectly into a television screen.

THROUGHOUT ALL of the selections, the band's music varied from country, minus twang, to popular, which was at times shaded with a rock tempo. The final selection was a gospel number, "Have a Little Talk With Jesus," that left the audience on an up beat tempo. In this number the music had a distinct rock tint.

Suddenly the lights went out and the Oaks left the stage. Immediately the audience was on its feet clamoring for more.

At that point, smoke began filtering up from the stage floor creating an eerie, other-world feeling. The band returned followed by the Oaks, and amid red lights and knee level fog, they sang their encore number. It was, appropriately enough, "Heaven Bound." And with that, they were gone.

ABC's Robinson trying to meet responsibilities as a journalist

By PETER J. BOYER AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Max Robinson, a competent, serious-minded journalist, is at a crossroad.

Max Robinson, journalist, has helped make ABC's "World News Tonight" a success. Max Robinson, concerned black American, has put a flowering career in jeopardy by publicly speaking his mind on issues that cut deep.

Robinson recently made the mistake of becoming news - a no-no in his business - by giving a college speech in which he discussed racism in our society and suggested that racial considerations have played a part in decision-making even at ABC

The next day, Robinson was called on the carpet by

ABC News chief Roone Arledge, and an explanatory statement from Robinson was immediately draft-

In that statement, Robinson softened his tone considerably, saying that his remarks were distorted and that he hadn't intended "to leave the impression that decisions at ABC News are based on racial considerations.

ABC's chariness over Robinson's public speaking adventures is rooted in the nature of national TV journalism, an institution that relies less on credibility per se than on a journalist's acceptance by the public, his personal appeal. A certain credibility is implied in that relationship.

ABC knows that Robinson isn't about to go radical on the air - he just reads scripts on "World News Tonight." But what worries the network is how Robinson is perceived by network news viewers, whose attentions are daily becoming more valuable

Todd works displayed

The works of artist Marilyn Todd will be on display at the J.W. Parks Gallery through March beginning this weekend. Ms. Todd will be in Midland this weekend for the show's opening.

Ms. Todd, a former Midlander, has been listed in "Who's Who in American Women" for two years as an outstanding American educator. She was an instructor at Midland College from 1974 to 1977. One of her paintings is on display at the Petroleum as the evening news competition intensifies in the post-Cronkite era.

An anchorman who raises uncomfortable questions becomes newsworthy himself in doing so. And that is the very antithesis of the "ideal" network-news persona, institutionalized by Walter Cronkite.

The Smith College incident wasn't Robinson's first adventure in controversy; a few months ago, in Los Angeles, he told an audience that he didn't think the election of Ronald Reagan was necessarily good for black people.

That statement stirred a lot of conversations, but it was the suggestion of racism at ABC that brought Robinson's future into question. Arledge and others felt their anchorman was "throwing down the gaunt-let to news management," as one staffer put it.

Robinson's conflicts come at a crucial moment, a time in which all three networks will be re-evaluating their nightly news programs. His own contract expires this spring.

Chastened but not cowed, Robinson insists he can do his job and fulfill what he regards to be his responsibility as a black American.

"I think it would be very dangerous for anyone in this society to suggest that anyone gives up his or her First Amendment rights no matter what his or her job may be," he says.

But he notes that "a great deal of care" must be used by a man of his station in dealing with a subject as race, saying that such dialogue "can be more vigorous within the company.

'We've been talking with each other in an atmosphere that has improved." Robinson says of his relations with the network since the Smith College controversy. Indeed, Robinson has been able to convince ABC of more in-depth coverage of a story deeply concerning the black community, the murders of black children in Atlanta:

Country Squire play entertaining

"Do we really have the right to take another person's life?" Arlene questions, somewhat pensively.

'Of course not, that's why it's called murder," replies Mitchell. And murder it is. The motive is clear. As is always true in affairs of the heart, two's company and three's a crowd.

The location is set — the Howard Johnson Hotel.

However, the party to be murdered changes with the seasons as does the fickle heart. What is consistent is the laughs as the three acts of Sam Bobrick's and Ron Clark's "Murder at the Howard Johnson's" unfolds at the Country Squire Dinner Theatre, located east of Odessa on Highway 80

Cast members include James MacArthur as Paul Miller, Patti Heider as Arlene Miller and Ray Stewart as Mitchell Lovell. All do an excellent job of carrying their roles and entertaining the audience.

The play is well balanced with each of the three carrying major roles. As a team, these actors work well together and are quite effective on stage.

MacArthur, perhaps best known for his portrayal of Dano in the television series "Hawaii Five-O," is the son of the first Lady of American Theatre and two-time Oscar winner Helen Hayes and the late newspaperman-playwright Charles MacArthur.

By the time he was 21, he had appeared in five movies, including "Kidnapped," "Third Man on the Mountain," "Swiss Family Robinson," "The Light in the Forest" and "The Young Stranger." MacArthur also co-starred in 'Spencer's Mountain" with Henry Fonda and Maureen O'Hara, which later was made into the television series "The Waltons."

Ms. Heider has made television appearances on such shows as "McCloud," "I Dream of Jeannie," "M.A.S.H.," "Switch," "Holmes and Yo Yo" and "It Takes a Thief." A seasoned stage actress, Ms. Heider has had featured roles in the motion picture films "They Shoot Horses, Don't They" and "Three's Company.

Stewart, who was born and raised in the Rio Grande Valley and is a graduate of The University of Texas at Austin, has appeared on Broadway in "The Lincoln Mask" with Eva Marie Saint and "Poatcards." He has acted in many off-Broadway productions including the long-running musical, "The Fantasticks." His television credits include appearances on "Barney Miller,"
"Dallas," "Benson," "Hart to Hart," "The Rockford Files," "Fantasy Island"
and "Canon." His last film was Mel Brook's "Silent Movie."

For an evening filled with one liners (that Tuesday night kept the audience aughing throughout), make a reservation to see "Murder at the Howard Johnson's" by calling 563-4111. It's a pleasant way to kill an evening.

'Sixty Minutes' knocks out 'Dallas'

NEW YORK (AP) - CBS' newsmagazine "60 Minutes," the most watched show in prime time last year, has toppled "Dallas" from the top spot in the networks' ratings race, according to figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co.

'Dallas' took first place from "60 Minutes" early in November, and has won the weekly competition 13 times in the last 16 weeks: Only January's Super Bowl, historically a big ratings winner, and a key 'Monday Night Football" game on ABC in December marred the program's record before last week's 60 Minutes.

Despite the setback for "Dallas," CBS was a big winner once more — for the 15th time in 18 weeks with seven of the 10 highest-rated shows for the period ending March 1.

CBS' rating for the week was 21.6 to 17.5 for NBC and 17.3 for ABC. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 21.6 percent of the nation's TV-equipped homes with television were tuned to CBS

ATLANTA (AP) - Countries surrounding the Persian Gulf, with help from the United Nations, are developing plans to prevent and clean up oil spills in waters clogged with huge oil tankers, according to an oil spill con-

The Kuwait Action Plan involving eight nations is one of several programs initiated in the world's oil-producing regions by the United Nations Environmental Program, Richard Golob, executive editor of the Bostonbased Oil Spill Intelligence Report, said Wednesday.

Greene's written opinion Wednesday said Reagan was not required to call for a public hearing before eliminat ing the ceiling prices in a Jan. 28 executive order.

Nine members of Congress, three state governments and organizations representing unions, blacks and consumer groups contended in a suit that a hearing was required.

Greene said he agreed with the administration position that advance notice of decontrol likely would have led to stockpiling by suppliers hoping. to sell the fuels at higher, decontrolled prices.

Mobil starts coal mining

NEW YORK (AP) - Mobil Corp. began construction Wednesday of a coal mine in the Powder River Basin near Gillette, Wyo., marking the first venture by the nation's second-largest oil company in the coal-mining business, the company said.

Start of construction was cleared Tuesday with issuance of the last of more than 24 federal and state permits and authorizations, Mobil said.

and called the Rojo Caballos Mine, is scheduled to begin in January 1983. The mine is designed to produce 6 million tons a year at the outset, and could be expanded to 15 million tons a year, the company said. Mobil has a contract with Western Fuels Associa tion to supply 50 million tons over 20 years from the mine. Rojo Caballos surrounds a 4,100-acre federal coal lease containing 320 million recoverable tons of low-sulfer sub-bituminous coal, the company said.

"Mining and reclamation will be conducted on a continuous cycle, with the land restored to a condition equal to and possibly exceeding the quality of its original condition," Mobil said.

"At the close of mining, all buildings, equipment and roads will be removed and their areas revegetated," the oil company said.

Mobil, which has a total of 4.1 billion tons of coal reserves including the Wyoming holdings, said mining will be done with the open pit, truck and shovel method.

ucts," said the judge, quoting from an administration statement. Greene also said he would have caused "dislocations" in the economy by granting the plaintiffs' request for a preliminary injunction to restore the controls pending a full trial. He said those in the petroleum business would then "have to readjust to price controls after a month of proceeding on the assumption that such controls had ceased to exist.'

The controls were scheduled to expire by law Sept. 30, Greene noted. Michael Cooper, an attorney for the nine members of Congress in the suit, said no decision has been made on an appeal. There was no immediate comment from the White House. In oral arguments, the challengers said decontrol had been a major factor in recent price increases. The administration claimed prices would have risen anyway, since the market price was below the previous government-set ceiling.

Greene said that although the government's position was "highly speculative," the challengers still couldn't make a case for an injunction. In fact, the judge said, the plaintiffs hurt consumers "by waiting for three weeks after the executive order was issued before instituting this action."

Greene said the president had the legal authority to decide whether it was necessary to hold formal hearings on the decontrol issue. That decision "may not be overturned by a court except upon evidence that it either lacks a rational basis or the reasons upon which it is based constitute impermissible grounds for official action," the judge said.

"The need for preventing probable economic disruption and for avoiding an economic emergency constitute, of course, perfectly permissible reasons for official action and they can hardly be said on their face to lack a rational that spills be reported and have contingency plans for handling the spills. In contrast, most of the world's oil-producing nations - and non-producing nations along shipping routes - lack laws to limit oil discharges into their waters, the ability to track spills and bureaucracies to coordinate clean-ups, Golob said.

Golob acted as a UN consultant at a December meeting in Bahrain to develop the plan. He was in Atlanta for the national Oil Spill Conference sponsored by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, the U.S. Coast Guard and the American Petroleum Institute.

Officials currently do not know the extent of pollution in the Gulf because reporting and monitoring systems are nonexistent, he said.

"We did a survey of all the countries in the region and identified no more than 15 major spills in the area since 1967," Golob said. "Our feeling is there were undoubtedly more than 15, but the reporting systems are not in place, and any real understanding (of the problem) does not exist yet."

The first goal of the Kuwait Action Plan is the development of a Marine Emergency Mutual Aid Center to act as a clearinghouse for spill information, to train personnel in cleanup tactics and to coordinate cleanup efforts when spills occur.

Additionally, the plan would promote regionwide regulations limiting the amount of oil which refineries or wells may put into waste water and the amount of oil ships may discharge into the Gulf.

Another phase of the plan calls for regulations requiring producers or carriers to report their spills and a monitoring program to check for oil slicks and other discharges on the waters.

Unlike the United States, the Arab states and other oil-producing countries do not have the enormous pressure from the public and news media to protect the environment, Golob said

But partly because of the threat of oil contamination to water desalinization plants, fisheries and hydroelectric plants using seawater, concern over the environment is growing in those areas, he said.

The eight Persian Gulf states are Bahrain, Iran, Iraq, Kuwait, Oman, Qatar, Saudi Arabia and United Arab. Emirates.

Using the existing Mediterranean Sea plan as a prototype, regional response plans also are being developed for the Caribbean Sea, South China Sea, southwest Pacific and West Africa, Golob said.

Tax will cause modernizations

Dawson reports two wildcats

WASHINGTON - According to a recent report released by the American Petroleum Refiners Association (APRA), President Reagan's tax package will stimulate the modernization of the nation's refining industry, making possible more efficient processing of high sulfur heavy crude

Under the President's proposal, investments in refineries will be written off in five years, retroactive to Janaury 1, 1981. Currently, such investments depreciate over 13 years. APRA has previously advocated faster write-off for refinery investment as part of its seven point tax proposal for modernizing the nation's refining capacity. "President Reagan's initiative will benefit greatly investment in this vital industry at a critical juncture for U.S. refining policy," said APRA executive director Ray Bragg. "We are delighted to see that the administration's tax program resembles the approach taken by APRA last July. The eight-year difference in depreciable life will make it possible for many refiners to finance investments in sophisticated equipment that they otherwise could not. In July, APRA released a survey of the nation's 162 small refining companies which showed that they would spend over $6 billion over the next few years on plant equipment, building site preparation, and pollution control equipment if the asociation's tax proposal is enacted. In September, APRA chairman Larry Steenberg testified before a Senate subcommittee that the incentives could save as much as 100,000 barrels of oil per day by spurring investment in more energy efficient refining equipment.

"We shall continue to press for the other elements in our proposal, including an additional 10 percent investment tax credit for investment in more energy efficient refining," said Bragg. "The need to maintain the most modern and efficient national refining capacity is a national concern. Without such investment, we will not be able to process efficiently the heavier oil prevalent today into light products such as lead-free gasoline and jet fuel. APRA's tax incentives include: incentives to free-up sweet crude oil supplies, so that the majors can concentrate on processing heavier, more sur crude and small refiners can have access to sweet crude during a transition period: an additional 10 percent investment tax credit for certain investments in new refining equipment so as, for example, to permit processing of more sour crude and to conserve energy; a broadened asset depreciation range for small refiners' equipment to permit a lower range life of seven years, effective January 1, 1981, for equipment whenever placed in service; allowance of an immediate write-off, or expensing, of pollution control equipment; a rapid write-off of certain obsolete equipment, including equipment made economically obsolete by the withdrawal of the entitlements program; nonrecognition treatment on the sale of assets and reinvestment of the proceeds in another small business, plus relaxation of existing restrictions on carry overs of net operating loses; and codification of a streamlined procedure for re-export of petroleum products pursuant to toll-refining agreements. (These are agreements whereby U.S. refiners obtain access to foreign crude in return for their agreement to refine and re-export additional barrels of foreign crude.) The American Petroleum Refiners

Association represents the interests owned oil company. of the responsible small refining industry. Its member companies have a combined capacity of aproximately one million barrels/day, providing five percent of the nation's domestic petroleum needs. fixing within a few months.

Price-fixing costing billions

OTTAWA (AP) — Price-fixing by the U.S.-dominated Canadian oil industry has cost Canadians several billion dollars and apparently there is no way to recover the money, a federal report quoted by The Canadian Press says.

The news agency said all major oil companies were implicated in the seven-volume report, the result of an eight-year investigation involving the seizure of hundreds of thousands of company records. CP said the report, to be released

today, contains details of collusion

among oil companies to fix prices and makes specific recommendations about how to stop the practice. However, the news agency said the government apparently decided it would be impossible to get a conviction under weak existing legislation and plans instead to launch a public inquiry into the matter. The report did not specify exactly how much money the alleged oil company collusion was believed to have cost.

The investigation was started in 1973 after the Consumers Association of Canada said seven major oil companies had conspired to set gasoline and fuel oil prices. The associated said the companies made substantially the same price increases within two or three days. The companies named then were Shell, Imperial, Gulf, Texaco, Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. Sun Oil Co. Ltd. and Petrofina, recently purchased by Petro-Canada, the state-Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet said Tuesday in Parliament that the government's restrictive trade practices commission would begin a public inquiry into oil price-

New program to help smokers quit

To help smokers quit on their own, the American Lung Association of Texas is joining lung associa-tions nationwide in launching the new self-help program, Freedom from Smoking.

"Developed after four years of Christmas Seal supported research and testing, the program provides a nuts-and-bolts approach to kicking the habit in 20 days," said Midlander Pearl Cobb, RN, PHN, a member of the lung association's Big Country Area Advisory Council Area Advisory Council.

"Since more than 90 percent of smokers who quit do it on their own without attending cessation clinics, a self-help approach is by far preferred by most people," Ms. Cobb said.

"The unique aspect of this program is a mainte-nance manual, which helps smokers quit for good," she said. "Tensions and events that cause backsliding in new non-smokers are anticipated. Counterstrategies for coping without cigarettes are spelled

The manuals explain ways to change and improve eating habits, reduce stress, assert feelings and produce a healthier lifestyle, while encouraging the smoker's interest in quitting.

According to the ALAT, the annual health costs of cigarette smoking to the overall economy have reached $27 billion. Of this amount, $5 to $8 billion is in health care expenses; the rest is the cost of lost productivity, wages and absenteeism caused by smoking-related illness. Some studies show that smokers are absent from work because of illness 33 to 45 percent more than non-smokers.

'If the questions for smokers are when and how to quit," Ms. Cobb said, "then the answers are easy. The when is now and the how is the Freedom from Smoking program.' When ordering the Freedom from Smoking materials, a contribution of $5 to the lung association is requested to cover printing and handling costs. Contact the American Lung Association of Texas, 7701 N. Lamar Blvd., Suite 104, Austin, Texas 78752, or call (512) 458-2206

It is a natural instinct to win a trick when it is presented to you, especially if, by so doing, you have the chance to retain a potential second stopper in the suit. But before you do, study the position carefully.

The auction was routine. South had a minimum no trump, but no other bid should be considered. And although North had something in reserve for his jump to three, he did not have enough to contemplate

West led the fourth-best of his longest and strongest suit. East played the queen and declarer won the king. bringing his total available tricks to seven. It was obvious that the club suit would have to be developed for the extra tricks declarer needed for his contract, so he ran the queen of clubs. East took the king and returned a diamond, and West scored four diamond tricks to defeat the contract one trick.

Bad luck, you say, After all, the contract hinged on the club finesse, a 50-50 shot. Not so! Declarer's line of play was something less than best.

Declarer was in too much of a hurry to win the first diamond trick. Consider what would happen if South allowed East to hold the first trick!

East returns a diamond (no other return is better), and the contract would be safe whether East started with two or three diamonds. If East started with three diamonds, best defense is for West to let declarer hold the second diamond trick. When East gains the lead with the king of clubs; he continues another diamond, enabling the defenders to score two more diamond tricks. But that gives them only three diamond tricks and a club, and declarer has nine tricks.

As the cards lie, West can win the second diamond and return the suit to knock out declarer's stopper. But West has no entry to his two diamond winners, and declarer coasts home with ten tricks after losing the club finesse.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" Prosecutor wants Judy executed on schedule

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Convicted killer Steven T. Judy says he doesn't want the help of the American Civil Liberties Union as the county prosecutor urges state officials to execute Judy next week as scheduled.

G. Thomas Gray, Morgan County prosecutor, issued a statement after Wednesday's request by the ACLU that Judy's execution be postponed.

"It is my opinion that Mr. Judy needs to be executed in the electric chair March 9, 1981, for crimes he has committed," Gray said in a letter to Indiana's Clemency Board. "I know of no more serious or heinous crime that has been committed in Morgan County since its creation. And with very few exceptions, no more heinous crime within the state of Indiana."

The ACLU and 10 Indiana religious leaders filed a petition to halt the execution, scheduled before sunrise Monday at the state prison at Michi-

The governor's office has received about 700 letters seeking clemency for Judy since Amnesty International launched a letter-writing-campaign.

But Judy, convicted of the rape and murder of an Indianapolis woman and the drowning of her three young children, said the ACLU was acting without his authorization.

Judy, 24, issued a brief statement through Warden Jack Duckworth:

"I understand what this statue (sic) means, and I do not want a hearing. The ACLU has filed for this hearing without my permission," he said.

The ACLU petition was sent to Gov. Robert D. Orr and the State Clemency Commission. A stay of the death penalty would be up to the governor, who also said the execution should proceed as scheduled.

The petition "seeks a reprieve until such time as the Supreme Court of Indiana and the United States Supreme Court can review the constitutionality of the death penalty.'

But the Legislature created the death penalty for people like Judy, the prosecutor said.

"He has no purpose or use within society," Gray said. "Society can only be harmed by his continued exis-

Jobless bill doctored

Word given on state redistricting

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Proposed legislation denying jobless pay to people who quit their jobs has been doctored to give a break to the sick, discharged soldiers and sexually harassed women employees.

The House worked over the Senate-passed bill on Wednesday and was ready to vote on it today. Senators then may decide whether to accept the

Sen. Roy Blake's bill would deny unemployment benefits to people who quit, are fired for misconduct or refuse to accept "suitable" jobs found for them by the Texas Employment Commission. They could get future benefits only if they found new jobs, earned the equivalent of six weeks' benefits and then were laid off.

Currently, people who quit their jobs are denied benefits for one to 25 weeks, with the TEC basing its decisions on the facts of each case.

"The sole purpose of Senate Bill 2 is to force the Texas Employment Commission to do what the law intended originally - to provide benefits only to workers who are unemployed through no fault of their own," said Rep. Bill Messer, D-Belton.

He said the TEC had been so lenient in allowing benefits that unemployment had become, in some cases, a welfare supplement.

The House amendments would: - Guarantee that military men and women who do not re-enlist would not be denied benefits for "quitting" their jobs.

Allow a person who quits because a spouse must move to a new city to collect jobless benefits after a disqualification period of six to 26 weeks.

Prohibit denial of benefits if a person quit because of medically verified illness, injury, disability or pregnancy.

Allow benefits to people who quit because of a reason that is "urgent, compelling and of a necessitous nature so as to make separation involuntary.'

This conceivably could take care of the kind of situation described by Rep. Frank Collazo, D-Port Arthur - a woman "whose boss was making advances and instead of making a big thing of it, simply left her job."

Rep. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, called the bill 'almost ridiculous, almost funny" and said it went
