U.S. will sell Saudi Arabia jet equipment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department announced today it will sell Saudi Arabia additional equipment for F-15 jet fighters to increase the planes' range and military capability.

Department spokesman William Dyess said the decision was justified because of a "serious deterioration in security conditions in the Middle East."

Final approval of the sale may rest with the Senate, however, where Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., planned to introduce a resolution to block the deal.

Biden argued the equipment would undermine Israel's security.

State Department officials said the United States would respond to the Israeli concerns by increasing military assistance to that nation also.

Today's announcement by the State Department means the 62 F-15s the Saudis are due to begin receiving early next year will be equipped with larger fuel tanks than originally planned and with Sidewinder air-to-air missiles.

The planes will be provided under a deal approved by Congress in 1978. When the sale was proposed by the Carter administration, officials pledged that no additional accessories would be sold which would enhance the fighters' capabilities.

But Dyess said today that "circumstances in the region have changed dramatically" since then.

"The Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, the turmoil of the Iranian revolution, the Iran-Iraq war and the Soviet presence in South Yemen and Ethiopia underscore the instability of the region and the dangers of Soviet penetration and exploitation."

Dyess said the Saudis will also get aerial surveillance aircraft, pending a determination of specific Saudi requirements.

The United States also will provide the Saudis with refueling equipment, but the type of equipment has not been determined, and the two nations will examine the possibility of Saudi purchases of bomb racks, which would give the Saudis an air-ground defense capability.

While Israel has expressed concerns about any equipment to increase the range and firepower of the Saudi F-15s, the greatest concern is over those bomb racks.

Energy fuels wholesale price rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rapidly rising energy costs pushed overall wholesale prices 0.8 percent higher in February, although food costs were falling, the government reported today. Unemployment dropped to the lowest rate since last April, but the decline was only slight.

The Labor Department's seasonally adjusted Producer Price Index for finished goods — down slightly from January's 0.9 percent — translates into about a 10 percent annual inflation rate. The 7.3 percent unemployment rate for February followed two months of 7.4 percent reports and ended a nine-month stretch in which the rate had hovered between 7.1 percent and 7.6 percent.

However, the decline of one-tenth of a percentage point is considered statistically insignificant by the Labor Department, which released both reports today. By far the biggest jump in producer prices, which usually precede cost-of-living increases at the consumer level, was in energy costs.

The 3.6 percent energy-cost rise, the fourth straight big monthly increase, included a 6.5 percent jump in fuel oil prices and a 4.7 percent increase in gasoline costs at the wholesale level. However, prices for natural gas remained even after rising steadily for 10 months.

The trend toward higher energy costs is expected to continue, particularly in light of President Reagan's recent action to decontrol most remaining U.S. oil prices.

The consumer foods index declined 0.6 percent in February after showing no change in January, but government and private economists expect food prices to rise substantially later this year. Prices for finished consumer goods other than food or energy rose 0.7 percent in February after rising 0.8 percent in January, the report said.

Increases occurred for a broad range of items, including alcoholic beverages, cosmetics, drugs, tires and tubes, health products and newspaper publishing.

Overall, the producer price index rose 1 percent, before adjustment for seasonal variations, to 262.4. That means that goods which cost $10 in 1967 would cost $26.24 today.

One day earlier, Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan told the U.S. Chamber of Commerce "we know that inflation will come down" if the administration's economic package is passed.

He asked the businessmen to write members of Congress to assure continued pressure when general public interest in the program diminishes in coming weeks and months.

Administration officials predict that if the president's program is approved by summer, results should show up late this year.

The administration argues that the package will spur investment, improve productivity and generally put Americans on firmer economic footing. If that happens, officials contend, there will be an easing of the "inflation psychology" which drives people to buy more and more goods because they believe prices will be much higher if they wait very long.

Administration officials predict that if the president's program is approved by summer, results should show up late this year.

'The American Way' proves disappointing

By SUE FAHLGREN
Staff Writer

Roger Stinson

Going through the channels of red tape and the details of bureaucracy doesn't always produce results.

Roger and Marcia Stinson had to learn that the hard way. A volunteer infantryman in the Vietnam Conflict, Roger had been a steadfast believer in "the American Way." However, "the American Way" after Vietnam hasn't been quite as credible.

After a story appeared in The Midland Reporter-Telegram on the Stinsons' plight with the Veteran's Administration over Roger's exposure to Agent Orange, missing medical records from the Houston VA hospital were reportedly found and being transferred to the VA hospital in Big Spring.

That was Feb. 10. Thursday was March 5 and the records still had not been sent to the Big Spring facility.

After nearly a month of letter-writing to congressmen and long-distance phone calls to Houston, Austin and Big Spring, the Stinsons seem to be no closer to getting the medical records on Roger's complications after exposure to the defoliant used in Vietnam between 1962 and 1971.

Spokespersons from the medical records department of the Big Spring hospital declined to comment on the situation. "I'm sorry I can't give you that information," a spokesperson said Thursday when asked about the records.

Stephen Hritz, chief of the medical administration service at the Houston VA hospital, did want to comment, however.

"We have the records!" Hritz stressed. "However, we are responding to some letters his (Stinson's) wife wrote to several congressmen. As soon as we respond to those letters, the records will be sent to Big Spring."

However, Hritz wrote Marcia Stinson a letter mailed Feb. 27 saying "the records will be in the mail today." And Hritz has told Mrs. Stinson and an aide from State Rep. Tom Craddick's office, on an almost daily basis since, that "the records will be in the mail today." In fact, that's what Hritz said Thursday.

Hritz explained, "There have been several problems with the records." He said the VA "has filed a claim for him (Stinson)" to receive increased disability payments because of his medical complications after his two

War on Drugs Committee, PTA join forces for statewide battle

By LOREN BERGER
Staff Writer

Ross Perot, chairman of the Texans' War on Drugs Committee and Connie Miller, president of Texas Parent-Teachers Association, stopped briefly in Midland Thursday to announce a newly-binded pact in the battle against drug abuse.

Declaring the PTA's anti-drug program as the largest project ever, Mrs. Miller stated in a press conference held before reporters and Midland and Odessa city and school officials, that more than 700,000 troops would be involved in increasing drug awareness among parents, teachers and students.

Perot, Texas' millionaire and founder of Electronic Data Systems, outlined a proposed program which would establish campus/community teams and resource centers in Texas' school districts-to-spir parental involvement in hindering drug abuse among students.

"We have to educate parents about this problem and educate parents about what they can do about it," Perot said. "The illegal drug business in the United States is a $50-60 billion annual business, ranking alongside General Motors, American Telephone and Telegraph and Exxon. The deals are so big, you don't count the money, you weigh it."

Despite a "very healthy and robust opposition" from the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, the War on Drugs Committee is pushing for "Triple Prescription" legislation which would reduce the illegal flow of drugs by requiring prescriptions to be documented in three copies.

"I regret that the major drug companies, whose names are household words in our state, are lobbying intensely to defeat this bill," Perot said. "The reasons are purely financial. In others states (New York, Illinois, California and Illinois) where bills of this type have been passed, the sales volumes of the drug companies have dropped as much as 40 percent."

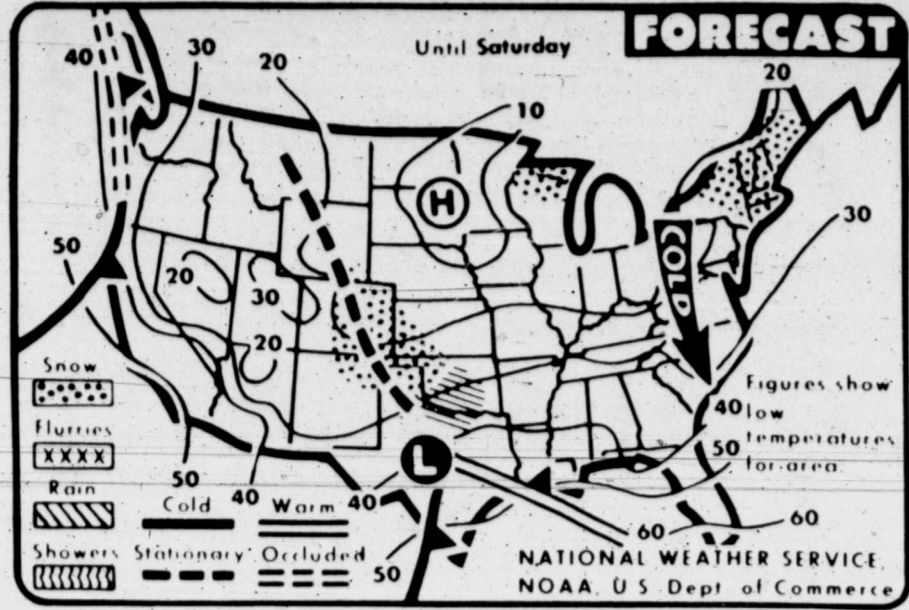

Perot, who was appointed chairman of the War on Drugs Committee in 1979 by Gov. Bill Clements, also outlined plans to implement a "Head Shop" statute which would outlaw the trade on drug paraphernalia.

"Our object is to get the drug industry out of the state at the retail level," Perot said. "You need to go to these head shops and meet these people who hide behind the constitution," Perot said, claiming they have started targeting their sales at the 9-10-year-old age group. "They're now making small power hitters for small hands."

Other bills announced by the Committee would require persons over 21 convicted of selling drugs to children 17 or younger to be imprisoned for mandatory minimum terms of five years, increasing fines and jail sentences for commercial trafficking in illegal drugs and revoking licenses of health care professionals who are convicted of drug-related felonies.

"There's no question the people of Texas want this plague removed," Perot said. "The state Legislature recently has received more letters on this issue than any other."

March winds to speed back

March may not have roared into Midland on the first of the month, but chances are the first week would definitely rate a loud yell in the Farmer's Almanac for 1981.

Winds will speed back to gusty tonight as they bring the chance of precipitation to a full 50 percent tonight, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Skies will be partly cloudy with a chance of showers and even a few thunderstorms tonight, but they should clear a bit on Saturday, when the chance of rain drops to 20 percent.

It'll be colder tonight, too, with an expected low in the mid-30s.

The high on Saturday won't set any records either as it hovers around the low 50s.

Winds will be southerly, 10-20 mph tonight, becoming westerly on Saturday.

This morning's low was 41 degrees — warmer than expected and much warmer than the record low for the date set in 1948 at 16 degrees.

Thursday's high wasn't as warm as you might have believed, reaching only 59 degrees. The record high for March 5 was set in 1956 at 85 degrees.

Parkview announces plans for new medical building

By SUE FAHLGREN
Staff Writer

Steve Wallach, administrator of Parkview Hospital, has announced the hospital's acquisition of land and plans to build a medical office building on Wadley Avenue, between Lamesa Road and Sage Street.

The purchase closed Monday, he said in a Thursday afternoon press conference. American Medical Center, owners of the hospital, "are initiating a plan to proceed with the development of a doctor's office building," Wallach said.

He said the hospital will "construct basically a shell" and allow a maximum of 12 offices to be developed in the interior of the new building.

Wallach said the hospital had "tentative verbal commitments from five physicians" and would plan groundbreaking ceremonies when written commitments from at least five physicians were in hand.

"We would hope to be able to achieve a minimum of five commitments within 60 days," he said. He added construction is slated, then, for late summer.

Wallach said the hospital was seeking "a cross-section of practitioners" in appealing to family physicians and some general specialists for room in the planned facility.

He continued to say AMC hoped "the addition of this complex will add to the growth of the north side of Midland and the residents' access to physicians and hospital care."

In addition, Wallach said Parkview "will be replacing some equipment."

Included in the hospital's renovation plans is the addition of new patient room furniture, a nurses' call system, a telephone system and laboratory equipment.

"We are in the process of renovating our two-bed critical care unit with updated monitor equipment similar to that at the other hospital," Wallach added.

He said Parkview did not have to obtain a certificate of need from the Texas Health Facilities Commission for the renovation plans because "we are replacing equipment at well under $50,000. We've checked with our attorneys and the Health Facilities Commission on that," he said.

The Parkview administrator said he felt the two announcements were "completely separate projects. I would hope that physicians would be receptive to our ownership" of the building. "We're not in the doctor's office business," he explained, "we're in the hospital business."

Wallach went on to say, "The new equipment will allow us to continue to offer good medical care in the community."

"We are extremely excited about the progress Parkview is making," he said.

Wallach said when AMC bought the hospital and he was installed as administrator, the average daily patient census was five. Currently, the daily patient load is about 30. He added he expected the census to climb to 42 in three to six months.

The hospital is licensed for 60 beds, however, Wallach said a maximum of 57 beds were currently available at Parkview.

Man jumps from bridge

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A 23-year-old man was in guarded condition today at Corpus Christi Memorial Medical Center after he jumped or fell 150 feet from the Harbor Bridge into the ship channel.

Witnesses said Ramiro Martinez, 23, of Corpus Christi, dangled from the bridge's superstructure for several minutes Thursday and was apparently trying to climb back onto the bridge's roadway when he either lost his grip or gave up and fell into the water.

Police said Martinez told his brother that he had been fired from his job with a Corpus Christi automobile dealership earlier in the week.

Martinez hit the chilly water feet first, went under briefly and was almost immediately pulled out of the water and into a Corpus Christi marina patrol boat. The patrol boat had been ordered to stand by when the man was first sighted hanging on the bridge.

The bridge spans Corpus Christi harbor and connects the city with an area known as North Beach.

About 6 p.m. Thursday a 23-year-old man jumped from the Corpus Christi Harbor Bridge plunging 150 feet to the ship channel below. The young man crawled out over the side of the bridge, dangled for a few minutes from the superstructure beneath the roadway and appeared to have tried to climb back up on the bridge before either losing his grip or just giving up and letting himself fall. He was pulled from the water alive by a marina patrol boat, which was standing by. He is in guarded condition in Memorial Medical Center in Corpus Christi. (AP Laserphoto)

Man jailed on several charges

A 20-year-old Midland man was in the city jail this morning on numerous charges following his arrest Thursday night on a traffic violation.

The man was stopped near the intersection of Neely and H Streets about 10:40 p.m. Thursday after police said he ran a stop sign and forced another vehicle off the road.

The man had been drinking, according to officers, became disorderly when placed in the squad car, and did an undetermined amount of damage to the police radio.

In addition to being booked on a criminal mischief charge, the man was charged with failure to yield the right of way, having no driver's license, public intoxication and possessing a controlled substance. Police declined to identify the substance, pending the outcome of laboratory tests.

In a burglary complaint during the past 24 hours, Rosario Moreno of 206 E. Pine told police his home was broken into and three guns worth a total of $600 were missing. Taken were a 30-06 rifle, a .22-caliber magnum pistol and a .22-caliber rifle.

Overheated food in an oven was blamed for a fire about 6:15 p.m. Thursday that caused heavy damage to the kitchen cabinets in a house owned by Joseph Rudmann, 2611 Noel. The house also sustained minor smoke damage.

Bones will be shipped out of state

A sheriff's department spokesman said today that human skeletal remains discovered by a county road crew near Industrial Boulevard and Holiday Hill Road Feb. 26 will be shipped to an out-of-state pathologist by Monday.

The remains — several bones and a skull — appeared to have been buried for some time, and investigators are reasonably certain they are not those of Kristy Booth, a 19-year-old Midland woman who disappeared just over a year ago.

"We're really not much further along now than we were when the bones were found," said the spokesman. "There are a couple of possibilities (as to whose remains the bones might be), but it would be premature to comment on that right now."

The bones will be sent to Dr. Carl Snow, a forensic pathologist in Oklahoma City, Okla., who said it may take some time to identify them — if identification can be made at all. Snow will attempt to determine the sex, age, cause of death and how long the person has been dead.

Initial observation leads investigators to believe the person died several years ago. Although homicide is not being ruled out, investigators note the bones were found near a railroad track and could be the remains of a transient run over by a train.

New minister named

PEKING (AP) — Vice Premier Geng Biao, a veteran soldier and diplomat, was named China's defense minister today in a move seen as boosting military modernization.

Geng was appointed as part of a reshuffle in which four senior ministers were made advisers, a third woman was appointed to the cabinet and a new state family planning commission was formed.

The appointments by the standing committee of the National People's Congress, winding up a 10-day meeting, were reported by the official Xinhua news agency.

Geng, 72, visited the United States last summer, when the U.S. government approved the sale to China of such military equipment as air defense radar, helicopters and communications gear, but not arms.

know where he was living," he explained, adding the hospital was sending the Stinsons further notices that apparently were not forwarded to their new address. "Essentially, we lost contact with the patient and his wife," Hritz said.

Hritz said the hospital scheduled Stinson for a 2507 Exam for March 4. "Apparently, he and his wife do not want to come here for the test," Hritz said, adding the hospital had to keep Stinson's medical records until after Wednesday — just in case Stinson changed his mind and decided to come to Houston after all.

Stinson denied any knowledge of the appointment.

"Why couldn't the test be done at the Big Spring facility? 'Well, it could,' Hritz started. "But, according to our regulation officer that does evaluations (of the disability claims), they recommended it be done here — done where the preliminary tests were done."

Hritz denied the trips to and from the Houston hospital were costing the Stinsons any money. "Each time he came down here he was reimbursed," Hritz said.

Stinson said he has received a total of $8.30 in reimbursements from the hospital.

"Oh, no," Hritz said. "He was reimbursed for everything. We pay for the veteran — not for his wife or family — but for the veteran. Maybe he took his wife along."

He didn't — not for five weeks.

Hritz said his records indicate Stinson was reimbursed for all his expenses. Check receipts? "No, we don't pay by check," Hritz explained. "We pay actual cash."

In addition, Hritz said the records were held to complete information requested by the congressmen in their letters to the hospital.

"We were trying to help Mr. Stinson," Hritz explained. "But, apparently, we didn't cut the mustard in getting him and his wife what they wanted."

Not by a long shot.

Mrs. Stinson said the couple has been told "it's in the mail" so many times, they try not to get their hopes up any more.

"He's tried doing what they've told us," she said of Roger, "and that didn't work."

One lawyer suggested they "approach (the VA) from 'my husband needs more disability payments'" and then if it didn't come through to take the case to federal court.

"We're really trying not to do that," Mrs. Stinson said. "All we want is our records."

Unemployment bill passes House

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Chairman Nolan Ward of the Texas Employment Commission says the Legislature, in its zeal to deny jobless pay to people who quit, has hampered the TEC's ability to find work for the unemployed.

The House passed a bill, 101-28, Thursday denying unemployment compensation — with some exceptions — to workers who quit their jobs, are fired for misconduct, or reject "suitable" jobs found for them by the TEC.

A worker's disqualification from benefits would continue until he or she found another job, earned wages equal to six weeks' benefits and then was laid off.

Maximum weekly benefit in Texas is $105 a week, about three-fourths of the minimum wage.

The bill next returns to the Senate for action on amendments added by the House, including one that Ward said could "gut" the bill by preserving the TEC's discretion to award jobless benefits if a worker had a good reason for quitting.

Sen. Roy Blake, D-Nacogdoches, the sponsor, said he would ask the Senate to accept the House changes and send the bill to Gov. Bill Clements for signature.

Ward said the bill would increase TEC responsibilities at a time when Secretary of Labor Raymond Donovan has recommended a $150 million federal budget cut for state employment services.

The TEC's operating budget comes entirely from a federal tax on employers.

Ward said Donovan's proposal would reduce the TEC's job-finding staff, and Blake's bill would impose a further reduction by forcing the agency to assign more people to handling disputed claims for benefits.

"We should be concentrating on getting people jobs instead of on how disqualifications are handled. ... The people who drafted the bill really didn't understand unemployment compensation," Ward said.

House amendments allow payment of benefits to people who quit because of illness or pregnancy and to military personnel who do not re-enlist.

The House also made jobless benefits available to workers who quit because a spouse's job requires them to move, but they would have to wait at least six weeks to collect.

Coastal tensions easing: Clements

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Tension between Vietnamese and American shrimpers has eased after a series of weekend meetings on the Texas coast, Gov. Bill Clements says.

"Hopefully, we have poured some oil on these troubled waters," Clements told his weekly news conference Thursday.

He said the meetings of the fishermen, his aide Allen Clark, and Sen. James E. "Buster" Brown showed that many of the embattled Southeast Asian refugees are ready to quit the shrimping business.

Recently, American fishermen have loudly complained the refugees are driving them out of business. Then the Ku Klux Klan entered the fray, charging the Vietnamese are Communists.

The KKK sponsored a demonstration at which a Vietnamese shrimp boat was burned in effigy.

Staff Sgt. Raul Sustaita, son of Mr. and Mrs. B.V. Sustaita of Lamesa, has graduated from the Air Force Noncommissioned Officer Leadership School at Norton Air Force Base, Calif.

The sergeant studied techniques of leadership, management and supervision, and is assigned at McClellan Air Force Base, Calif.

Air Force Sgt. Pedro Hernandez Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Pedro Hernandez Sr. of Big Lake; Airman 1st Class Jimmy M. James, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. James of Midland; Air Force Staff Sgt. Johnny N. Morta, son of Mike Morta of Lamesa; and Air Force 2nd Lt. Ann P. Niblock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Palmer of 1604 North I., Midland, have all participated in Global Shield 81, the Strategic Air Command's (SAC) response to a simulated attack on the United States.

The service members are among the more than 100,000 U.S. Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps and Canadian personnel taking part in SAC's largest, no-notice, 20-day training exercise.

During one portion of Global Shield, more than 500 B-52 and FB-111 bombers and KC-135 tankers took off from 70 different locations in the United States and Guam within minutes of notification. This exercise is not related in any way to real world situations, according to a SAC spokesman.

Global Shield 81 is designed to test the command's capability to carry out emergency war orders to support U.S. policy if deterrence fails. This exercise has been constructed to measure SAC's response to a set of preplanned events leading up to a simulated attack on the United States, the spokesman explained.

Navy Seaman Recruit Nigle E. Boone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve A. Boone Jr. of 3527 Gulf, Midland, has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week training cycle, trainees studied general military subjects designed to prepare them for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields.

Grieving twin close to death

EDISON, N.J. (AP) — A 20-year-old Rahway man was in critical condition today after dousing himself with gasoline and setting himself afire, six months after his identical twin committed suicide the same way.

Edison police said Michael Falcone suffered third-degree burns over his entire body and was not likely to survive because of the extent of the injuries.

He was reported in critical condition in the burn unit at St. Barnabas Hospital in Livingston.

A tenant in the Edison Senior Citizen Complex called police Tuesday night after hearing cries for help from the parking lot.

Police found Falcone in the lot, where he apparently had crawled from a wooded site nearby. An empty gas can was found nearby.

Falcone was able to tell police his first name and describe himself as a psychology student at Fairleigh Dickinson University. His identity was traced through license plates on a car in the parking lot, said Detective Capt. Richard McGinnis.

Rahway police said Falcone's twin brother Joseph used the same car to drive to an Amtrak rail yard where he poured gasoline on himself and ignited it Sept. 9.

"I guess I made a mistake," Joseph Falcone told Rahway police before lapsing into unconsciousness. He had suffered burns over more than 90 percent of his body and was taken to St. Barnabas, where he died 16 days later after developing pneumonia.

The reason for the suicide never was disclosed, but police said the young man had "emotional problems." Rahway police described the family as very quiet and close.

The twins' mother, Betty Falcone, told Edison police Wednesday that Joseph's death had depressed his twin so severely that Michael dropped out of college for a time after it happened.

Town divided on gifts to royal pair

BARNESLEY, England (AP) — Town councillors in this north of England industrial region have suggested that taxpayers money should not be spent to celebrate the July 29 wedding of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer. But some residents disagreed.

Some local residents told reporters today they disagreed.

The marriage of 32-year-old Charles to Lady Diana, 19, is expected to draw a generally warm outpouring of gifts and good will across the nation.

Peace isn't possible now in volatile Middle East

Very shortly, the Europeans will unveil their own plan to achieve peace in the Middle East. It is not a new plan and it will not achieve peace.

The European idea is nothing more than appeasement based on wishful thinking. It will call for Israeli withdrawal from all the territory captured in the 1967 War, the establishment of a Palestinian state on the West Bank, an internationalized Jerusalem, and probably a United Nations guarantee of Israel's 1948 borders which were never borders but merely cease fire lines.

It won't work because it is based on what the Europeans and oil companies think, not on what the Arabs and Israelis think. Furthermore, it is not really a European plan, but an American plan. Last year, the Trilateral Commission cooked up this scheme to let the Europeans recognize the PLO. European politicians don't have the pressure of an organized Jewish vote the way American politicians do. The idea of the trilateralists is that the Europeans will do it and then the U.S. can say, "Well, recognition of the PLO is already a fait accompli, so we might as well go along with our allies."

The perpetrators of this scheme are either dirty yellow rats or stupid. They are dirty yellow rats if they know what they are doing, which is sacrificing Israel for Arab oil and money, or they are stupid if they think a Palestinian state on the West Bank, controlled by the PLO, will bring peace.

Charley Reese

The Middle East is easy to understand if you understand the Arab position. To the Arabs, the existence of the state of Israel on land they consider part of the Islamic area is an act of aggression by Western imperialism. They will never accept it. Their goal remains what it was in 1948 — to drive the Jews into the sea. The only things which have changed are their propaganda and their strategy.

When the Arabs talk about Israeli withdrawal from the lands taken in 1967 and about a Palestinian state on the West Bank, they are talking tactics only. A Palestinian state under PLO control would be a Soviet satellite and an Israeli forced back to the 1948 cease fire lines would be an indefensible state. United Nations "guarantees" aren't worth a dead camel.

Such a situation would only be a prelude to a war. The Israelis, rather than be the victims of a second holocaust, would pull the temple down. Thus, the best result of the European peace plan would be three million dead Israelis, 35 to 40 million dead Arabs, and a lot of radioactive oil fields. The worst result would be World War III.

American diplomats and politicians had better quit listening to ARAMCO, Exxon and the Chase-Manhattan and wake up to the realities of the Middle East before they precipitate one of the greatest human tragedies in history.

There will be no peace because the conflict is irreconcilable. The Israelis will not leave; the Arabs will not accept their presence. The only thing the West does when it attempts to find a formula for peace is encourage the Arabs to pursue their goal of destroying Israel.

What is possible is a very long stalemate, one lasting perhaps a century or more. The only way to achieve that is convince the Arabs that, oil or no oil, Western support for Israel will remain intact. The Arabs know they cannot defeat Israel unless they sever their ties to the West and that, of course, is what they are working to do.

If they are convinced, however, that the ties cannot be severed, then the Arabs will back off and wait. They have a different concept of time than Westerners. Many Arabs have told me, "Well, it may take a hundred years or three hundred years, but we'll win in the end."

That should be the goal of Western diplomacy in the Middle East, not a final peace, but to buy time. Peace is not possible; a stalemate is. Worse, to promote peace is to push the parties into a war which will surely end the world as we know it.

Western diplomats and politicians often make the mistake of the mirror image, that is to imagine that they are dealing with people just like themselves. In the Middle East, this error can be disastrous. The people of the Middle East, both Israeli and Arab, are dangerously different, each in their own way. They are totally committed to their beliefs; not only will they gladly die for them, they will take the rest of the world with them before surrendering.

Five generations from now peace may be possible. Our task is to ensure that all of us — East, West, Arab and Jew — survive until that fifth generation is born.

MARK RUSSELL SAYS

Of course El Salvador differs completely from Vietnam. El Salvador has 10 letters and Vietnam has only seven.

But El Salvador is vital to our security. Unless we alert ourselves and send in the Marines, our beloved American conrflakes may one day be contaminated with Communist bananas.

On his recent trip, Pope John Paul II visited places where Catholicism was not the dominant religion, such as Guam, Japan — and Italy.

Standing at ground 0 in Hiroshima, the Pope cried out against the terror of nuclear war. Not mentioning the United States by name, he left no doubt that he was referring to the country which put Hiroshima on the map.

Fight brush fires first

There seems to be a difference of opinion between President Ronald Reagan and Secretary of State Al Haig over where Vice President George Bush should travel first.

Haig seems to feel that Bush should be sent to Europe on a goodwill tour during which he could reaffirm the United States' commitment to the Western Alliance. It's no secret that some U.S. allies in Europe have been feeling a little neglected of late, understandable with the Soviet rumbles being heard.

Some sources say, though, that President Reagan apparently feels Bush could be of greater benefit in Latin America, home of several potential "hotspots" — particularly El Salvador — for the Western Hemisphere.

What Reagan apparently wants the second-in-command to initiate in Latin America is a reversal of former President Jimmy Carter's policy of "benign neglect." That won't be easy and it will require care since the situation in some Latin American nations — like El Salvador — is extremely delicate currently.

President Reagan has said it is unlikely that he would elect to send combat troops to El Salvador, but that he will pursue diplomatic efforts so "we do not just sit passively by and let this hemisphere be invaded by outside forces."

The people of the United States do not want to become involved in another Vietnam. But we do not want another Iran on our hands either, particularly not one in our own backyard.

Unfortunately, we don't have to look far today to locate trouble; in fact, it seems to be cropping up all around us like little grassfires spreading quicker than we can stomp them out.

The events in El Salvador appear to be more pressing at the present time than those in Europe. Bush's diplomatic ways obviously would serve the United States well in that troubled nation at this time.

We're not saying the administration should forget our European allies. It shouldn't. In fact, a European tour would seem appropriate for the vice president's second outing. We should let our allies know we're still in the boat with them — and that we're still willing to row. That would also tell the Soviets that we haven't looked away for too long.

But first things come first. We have to put out small brush fires in our backyard before they reach the house.

Helping senior citizens

Midland's Jaycees started beating the streets Wednesday, informing Tall City merchants about Midland Gold, a new discount program for senior citizens started recently by the Rev. Steve Edwards, Pat Faulkner and Janet Hestwood.

The Jaycees, always strong supporters of Midland and Midlanders, will be contacting merchants through next Friday, offering them information and help in getting the program rolling. Jim Morris, director in charge of the project for the Jaycees, said the Jaycees will answer any questions merchants have about Midland Gold and will even help merchants formulate a discount program if they desire such assistance.

In all, the Jaycees will be contacting about 800 Midland merchants, Morris said, and they anticipate a good response from the business community. "Initial response has been excellent," he noted.

"The Jaycees are really fortunate to be able to participate in such a program," Morris said.

We agree. Midland Gold is a fabulous program for Midland's older citizens. We're proud the Jaycees are taking an active role in the program and that they also help our elderly by participating in Christmas in April, Midland's volunteer housing repair project, and by taking senior citizens to the polls on election day.

This type of involvement in helping our senior citizens makes us proud. We can't help our senior citizens too much.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Dairymen use 'gifts' to maintain their clout

WASHINGTON — It's safe to say most consumers don't understand exactly how the government's price-support system for the dairy industry works. All they know is that the price of milk, butter and cheese keeps going up and up at the supermarkets.

But the system is really quite simple: Congress authorizes twice-a-year increases in dairy prices. The dairy industry collects the increase no matter how much it produces or how little its production costs have risen. Then the industry's political action committees make fat campaign contributions to members of Congress who control dairy price-support legislation.

It's this mutual back-scratching that will make the Reagan administration's hopes of cutting back on dairy subsidies one of the toughest battles it faces this year. The next upward "adjustment" of dairy prices is due in April, and unless Congress agrees to stop the increase, the price of milk will go up 8 cents a gallon, butter 10 cents a pound and cheese 9 cents a pound.

The amount of money involved is substantial. An April subsidy slash will save the government about $138 million this year alone. Overall, the annual subsidies will have risen from $1.3 billion in 1979 to an estimated $2 billion this year if the automatic increases continue.

And this doesn't count the $1.5 billion a year in higher prices paid by consumers or the estimated $2 billion it will cost the government to store the huge surpluses the dairy industry has produced. The Commodity Credit Corporation will buy up and store an estimated 600 million pounds of dry milk this year, along with 275 million pounds of butter and 285 million pounds of cheese.

With money like that pouring into its coffers, the dairy industry can afford to spread some of it around among its friends and protectors on Capitol Hill. The industry's three biggest associations have contributed some $3.1 million to congressional campaigns between 1977 and 1980.

And don't think the dairymen don't know where their campaign contributions will do the most good. My associate Tony Capaccio checked the figures for the 1979-80 campaign period from the Associated Milk Producers PAC ($739,289), the Dairymen's Inc. PAC ($221,908) and the Mid-America Dairymen Inc. PAC ($270,650) against the roster of Senate and House Agriculture Committee members.

Senate committee members got a total of $54,200 from these groups; Robert Dole, R-Kan., led the list with $13,000, closely followed by Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., at $12,000, and Mark Andrews, R-N.D., at $10,000.

The dairy industry's Big Three buttered up members of the House committee with a total of $213,310 in 1979-80. Here are the top recipients: Floyd Fithian, D-Ind., $15,000; Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, $12,500; Tom Foley, D-Wash., $12,000; Ed Jones, D-Tenn., $9,500; Jim Jeffords, R-Vt., $9,700, and Arlene Stangeland, R-Minn., $8,000.

Harkin, the $12,500 man, is chairman of the key Agriculture subcommittee that will handle the administration's proposal to skip the April increase. He has already expressed doubt that his subcommittee will be able to act on the measure before the April 1 deadline.

Footnote: The dairy industry's clout was particularly strong last year. The April support increase was nominated for oblivion by Jimmy Carter's budget cutters, but survived to be announced just before the Wisconsin primary. And when Carter's domestic staff chief Stuart Eizenstat tried to tinker with the subsidy program, he ran into an influential Minnesotan — Vice President Walter Mondale.

WHITE HOUSE PIPELINE: Is there something about the Oval Office that literally gives its occupant a swelled head? When he was president, Gerald Ford was once presented with a football helmet that had presumably been checked for size. But it was too small; try as he would, Ford couldn't squeeze the helmet on. A few days ago, Rep. Clint Roberts, R-S.D., dropped by the White House and gave President Reagan a cowboy hat that had been handmade by one of his constituents. Reagan shaped it expertly with his hands and set it on his head — where it perched like Happy Hooligan's tin can. Roberts promised to have a bigger one made; the small hat will go to one of the president's sons — or possibly be put away until Reagan leaves the White House.

Unlike his predecessors, Jimmy Carter actually did bring Vice President Walter Mondale into the inner circle of decision making at the White House. Now his successor, George Bush, is benefiting from this precedent. He has been included in many of the high-level White House economic discussions and in most of President Reagan's Oval Office meetings with members of Congress.

WATCH ON WASTE: The Pentagon's budget for recruiting promotion has swollen from less than $7 million a few years ago to more than $140 million this year. Most of the increase, of course, can be traced to the end of the draft. But a substantial amount could be saved — more than $15 million a year — if the armed services advertised jointly instead of aiming their individual ads at the same potential recruits. And a Congressional Budget Office study concluded that joint-service ads bring in 50 percent more recruits.

INSIDE REPORT:

Tantalizing 'tax redeye' tempted OMB's David Stockman

WASHINGTON — Innocuous though it seemed, the suggestion by two Cabinet members for a two-penny-a-gallon hike in the federal gasoline tax was quickly rejected as no less lethal than the alcoholic's first sip out of the bottle.

"This is not policy," Dr. Martin Anderson, President Reagan's domestic policy assistant, told us. Nor, by his tone, will it ever be policy in this administration. So much for the two-cent gas tax put forth by two of the Cabinet's most energetic and competent members, budget director David Stockman and Transportation Secretary Dreyfus Lewis.

More than a trifling tax is at stake. Anderson has been called "the keeper of the sacred scrolls," in some derision for his stubborn insistence that the president stick to what he promised in the campaign. But beyond seeking consistency, Reagan wants to avoid the catastrophic recourse to the old tax bottle that has done so much damage to two other conservative heads of Western governments.

Joseph Clark's tenure in Canada was abbreviated when, breaking campaign pledges, he did not cut tax rates because of his quest for a balanced budget. In Britain, Margaret Thatcher's promised tax relief did not materialize when she overbalanced upper-level income tax reductions with increases in the value-added tax effecting mainly lower-income taxpayers; Prime Minister Thatcher's move produced accurate forecasts by leaders of the U.S. tax cut movement, Professor Arthur Laffer and Rep. Jack Kemp, that it would chill Britain's economic recovery.

Evans

Novak

Yet, any conservative is sorely tempted to balance the budget by drinking from the tax bottle. Even Stockman, sponsored by Kemp to be the first supply-side director in the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), seemed to succumb.

While other Cabinet members were still learning the way to the washroom, Stockman had been making a crash budget of unexcelled virtuosity. Yet, those last billions of dollars eluded him. The answer came from the OMB civil servants as the song of a temptress: Use "tax expenditures."

A "tax expenditure" is bureaucraticese for what portion of a citizen's own income the government does not tax because of a deduction — implying that all funds belong to Uncle Sam unless otherwise designated. OMB's final draft abounded in recommendations to capture a billion here and a billion there by halting "cash expenditures."

New York City businessman-scholar Lewis Lehrman, a militant supply-sider and lucid writer, arrived in Washington Feb. 11 to help Stockman draft the president's economic report.

In countering proposed higher revenue through reduction of "tax expenditures," Lehrman was appalled more by the language than the substance. At Lehrman's insistence, "It report was scrubbed of all references to "tax expenditures."

But when the economic program went before the Cabinet for final approval, the most highly-combustible tax-increasing proposal remained (though cleansed of the "tax expenditure" label); eliminating what remains of the oil depletion allowance. No Cabinet member disagreed, but Interior Secretary James Watt — a supplier-sider who has worked more closely with Stockman than any other Cabinet member — looked a little ill.

The man at the head of the long table then interrupted. "Wait a minute," said Reagan. "This is not the last administration" — a reference to President Carter's relish for taxing the oil industry. Without calling for a vote, Reagan removed the oil depletion allowance repeal from the program.

Even so, Stockman's final version of the budget scraped together an extra $2 billion in new "user fees," mostly on aviation, a hoary fiscal gimmick dating back to President Eisenhower's day. But there was nothing said about higher gasoline taxes until the nation's governors gathered in Washington Feb. 22. At the urging of governors, Stockman and Lewis suggested the $2-billion-a-year, two-cent gas tax to replenish highway maintenance funds to the states being cut under Reagan budget austerity.

Some ardent supply-siders, furious at the notion of repealing the oil depletion allowance, can-see some merit in increasing the gas tax, whose proceeds do not rise with inflation. But Reagan's advisers see otherwise. "It could be the first step towards Thatcherization," one senior aide told us. "Better not to touch it."

Nobody knows better than Stockman himself the inflationary impact of higher tax rates, as he declared on CBS's "Face the Nation" Feb. 22 in arguing that lower tax rates are conducive to saving: "The government doesn't save. When the government collects those (higher) taxes, those revenues will be turned immediately into expenditures. By lowering taxes across the board, we will change incentives for savings and we will increase... savings."

Stockman has the doctrine down. All he need remember is when looking for that spare billion, beware of grabbing the jug of tax redeye, even for a little sip.

Late snowfall blamed for two deaths

By The Associated Press

A snowball-makers' delight that broke a 79-year-old record in New York City left a white coating up to 10 inches deep in parts of the Northeast early today.

The wet, sticky snow led to two traffic deaths Thursday in New York, and driving became more hazardous today when dipping temperatures turned slush to ice.

Heavy rains in Florida, meanwhile, led to the death of a 44-year-old man who drowned when the car he was driving slid from a flooded street and dropped into a lake.

Connecticut was spared much of the brunt of Thursday's snowstorm, but state police in the southwestern part of the state, which received up to 4 inches, reported about 20 accidents on state-highways.

"Most were pileups, chain collisions, during rush hour," state Trooper James Pavelko said.

The 8-inch snowfall recorded in New York City's Central Park, by far the heaviest of the season, broke the previous record for March 5 of 6.5 inches in 1902.

One man was killed when a tractor-trailer truck on the Staten Island Expressway smashed into a disabled bus carrying sequestered jurors from a Staten Island motel to the state Supreme Court in Manhattan, officials said. The accident involved a second truck and a car and injured 12 people.

A telephone company worker died when he was unable to stop his van on a slippery road in Bethpage and slid onto Long Island Rail Road tracks in the path of a train, authorities said.

Nine inches of snow fell in southeastern Pennsylvania and up to 4 inches blanketed downtown Philadelphia. Scores of Pennsylvania schools were closed and numerous traffic accidents, including a four-car collision, were blamed on the snow.

Much of the nation had precipitation early today in one form or another:

Rain was scattered from southern California to the southwest deserts, and there was snow over the mountains of California and Arizona.

Light snow was scattered across the Great Lakes and the middle Atlantic coast states after the snow-laden storm moved over the Atlantic Ocean. A few showers moved across western Montana, with snow in colder spots.

Kremlin threat raises concern, fear in Warsaw, Washington

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Apparently heeding one of the strongest Kremlin threats yet to Poland, leaders of the independent labor movement in Warsaw warned another local against calling the nation's second strike alert. Meanwhile, the Reagan administration expressed renewed concern over the Moscow declaration.

A strike alert remained in effect in Lodz, Poland's second largest city, and local leaders of the Solidarity labor federation said they would decide Saturday whether to call a strike to protest the firing of five hospital workers, four of them Solidarity organizers.

But the Warsaw chapter of Solidarity warned the local in Plock, an oil and industrial center west of the capital, against posting a strike alert to protest censorship of a local union bulletin.

The Warsaw local said it "passed along the news from Moscow." It was not immediately known if the union in Plock would heed the warning.

Soviet leaders expressed confidence in a joint communique Wednesday with Polish Communist Party leaders that the Polish Communists would "reverse the course of events" and "liquidate the perils looming over Poland's socialist gains."

This was coupled with a warning that defense of the socialist community "is the cause not only of each state, but also of the entire socialist coalition." This appeared to be a reiteration of the Brezhnev Doctrine that intervention in another Soviet Bloc nation is justified if necessary to protect the communist system there.

Diplomatic sources in Warsaw said the communique represented a hardening of the Soviet position. One source said the reference to "reversing the course of events" was the sharpest Kremlin warning yet on Polish labor unrest.

In Washington, officials of the Reagan administration expressed renewed concern that the Soviet army might intervene in Poland.

"Poland should be free to solve its own problems without any outside interference," said State Department spokesman William Dyess. He repeated the administration's earlier warning of "grave consequences" for East-West relations if the Soviets invade Poland and said such intervention is not inevitable, imminent or justifiable on any grounds.

Dyess also said the administration would keep a close watch on the coming spring maneuvers of Warsaw Pact troops in and around Poland.

"If we had not had the concern about Poland, then these maneuvers would not have raised any eyebrows," he added.

Meanwhile, a Solidarity spokesman reported that the Warsaw police detained dissident Jacek Kuron for several hours and told him new charges of slandering the state would be brought against him. Charges of anti-state activities are already pending against Kuron, the founder and chief spokesman for the Committee for Social Self-Defense, or KOR, and an adviser to Solidarity.

Cormier, now of Conroe, was named in a sealed indictment and is free under a $10,000 bond.

If convicted on either count of the misdemeanor offense, Cormier could be confined in prison for a year and fined $10,000.

His defense attorney is Andrew Miller of Houston. Prosecuting the case will be Assistant U.S. Attorney Jim Bock of San Antonio.

Cormier's court hearing before U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Buntun in the federal court system's Midland-Odessa Division is pending.

The gunman who seized a Continental Boeing 727 jet at Los Angeles International Airport Thursday steps out of the back of the plane and bends down to lay flat on the runway as he surrenders to authorities Thursday night. The gunman surrendered peacefully after a 10-hour standoff in which he demanded $3 million and threatened to blow up the aircraft, authorities said. (AP Laserphoto)

Gunman surrenders after standoff

By DOLORES WOOD
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An armed man, apparently despondent after losing his job a day earlier, took over a jet at Los Angeles International Airport and demanded $3 million, but gave up after his last hostage bolted to freedom 11 hours later.

No one was injured during the incident, which ended at 8:20 p.m. PST Thursday when the burly man walked out of the Continental Airlines Boeing 727 with his hands raised high.

Minutes earlier, the last of his six hostages, 35-year-old flight attendant Barbara Sorenson, escaped when FBI agents told her, "if she could bolt out of first class, we could cover her."

After she got away, the gunman threatened to blow up the plane, saying he had "no reason to live," officials said. But he was talked into surrendering instead.

He had claimed there was a remote detonator device in a briefcase.

FBI Special Agent Edgar Best, in charge of the Los Angeles office, identified the man as 44-year-old Victor Malasauskas, a Marina del Rey resident and naturalized U.S. citizen.

Best said Malasauskas had told agents he had lost his job at the airport on Wednesday.

The incident began at 9:30 a.m. Thursday when the armed man apparently managed to foil airport metal detectors and boarded Flight 72, for Phoenix, Ariz., and San Antonio, Texas, with a first-class ticket.

The plane carried 83 other ticketed passengers and nine crew members and flight attendants.

One of the flight attendants spotted the concealed weapon and went to the back of the plane to call police, Lt. Dan Cooke said. The attendants then curtained off the first class section and quietly told passengers in second class to leave.

The pilot and two other crew members climbed out through cockpit windows on ropes.

Apparently realizing that people were disembarking, the gunman pulled on a ski mask, whipped out his 9mm automatic and took five passengers and two attendants hostage from among the people in first class, officials said.

FBI agents boarded the plane at the rear almost immediately and convinced the man to allow the plane to be towed to a more remote part of the airport. Then — appealing to "his moral nature and reasons why he should let them go" — the agents gradually talked him into releasing all the hostages except Mrs. Sorenson, Best said.

The passengers were not identified.

Mrs. Sorenson, a 13-year Continental employee based in Los Angeles and living in Chicago, was alone with the gunman for almost the entire standoff, relaying messages over a telephone to armed FBI negotiators in the back of the plane.

Over the phone, the agents advised her to make a run for it.

"We told her if she could bolt out of first class, we could cover her," Best said.

After the flight attendant left through a rear door, Best said, the agents convinced the man to turn himself in rather than blow up the plane.

Police bomb squad officers were investigating whether the briefcase actually contained a detonator or explosives.

Best said Continental officials had been trying in the meantime to gather the $3 million demanded by the gunman. However, talks had snagged on whether the money would be delivered before or after Mrs. Sorenson was released. The FBI, which had about half a dozen agents aboard the plane by nightfall, decided to chance an escape attempt.

Best described the gunman as "non-communicative" but said he expressed no particular irritation with Continental.

Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Al Garvis said the FAA intends to investigate the incident, particularly how the man's gun went undetected.

"We have a pretty good screening system but nothing's perfect," Garvis said. "We don't know how the man got on."

The incident was the first at Los Angeles International Airport since three hijackings in 1972, before passengers were required to be screened by a metal detector.

Pakistani diplomat killed by hijackers

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Hijackers aboard a Pakistani jetliner at the Kabul airport today shot and killed a Pakistani diplomat held with more than 100 other hostages since Monday, the Afghan radio said. At least four Americans are among the hostages.

The hostage, a Pakistani diplomat assigned to Tehran, Iran, was shot while the leader of three hijackers spoke by cockpit radio to a Pakistani negotiating team at the airport, the broadcast said. There was no indication what led up to the firing.

The victim was tentatively identified as Tariq Rahim, a former army officer who served as aide-de-camp to executed former Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto during his last months in power, informed sources in Islamabad said. Bhutto was hanged in 1979.

The Kabul broadcast said a hijacker calling himself Alam Gir used the cockpit radio to request airport officials to take a body off the Pakistan International Airlines Boeing 720. It said an ambulance rushed the victim to a hospital where he was pronounced dead.

Earlier, the radio said an unidentified American aboard reported some of the 116 persons aboard were becoming ill and urged a speedy solution of the crisis. A Nigerian aboard made a similar appeal, the broadcast said. The Afghan and Pakistani governments, long at odds over the presence of Soviet troops in Afghanistan, were obstructing negotiations.

The hijackers have been demanding the release of 90 jailed persons in Pakistan.

Pakistani President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq told a news conference early today that the hijackers claimed their previously unknown group, the "al Zulfikar" organization, was responsible for the Feb. 1 bomb blast in Karachi during the visit of Pope John Paul II. The homemade bomb went off prematurely, killing the person who carried it, authorities said.

Each of the hijackers had a pistol and one carried a plastic bag he claimed contained an explosive, some of the 29 people released earlier from the plane and flown to Pakistan said Thursday. They said the hijackers were in their 30s and fluent in English and Urdu, the Pakistani language.

"They were threatening all the time, saying, 'Be quiet or we will blow up the plane with a time bomb," 9-year-old Zulfikar Shah reported. But Bibi Khola, who had her four children with her, said: "They never really harmed us and they gave me medicine."

The evacuees included 10 children, 16 women and three men, but two American women offered their freedom refused to leave, a Pakistani official said. They were identified as Deborah Leighton Weisner of Auburn, Maine, and Charlotte Hubbell of Des Moines, Iowa.

The official said Miss Weisner insisted on staying until her fiancé, Mian Manzoor Ahmed, a naturalized American, was freed.

Finders — keepers of $490,000 case?

WACO, Texas (AP) — Two young men are not legally entitled to $490,000 police took from them four years ago, but they may be allowed to keep it anyway, a judge has ruled.

Jurors in a civil trial decided Thursday that the money had been stolen, eliminating the two as rightful possessors. However, U.S. District Judge Fred Shannon said the two, who maintain they dug up the money on a South Texas ranch, might be able to keep the cash if he decides police improperly seized it.

The six jurors deliberated about an hour before deciding that James Dean Bridges, 19, took the money from its rightful owner, thus passing to another court the question of who actually owned the cash.

Bridges and a friend, Percy Garcia, 20, were arrested and the money confiscated in 1977 as the pair, then 15 and 16, ran a red light while driving through Waco.

The money has been drawing interest in a bank as various government agencies filed claims against the sum.

But Shannon said if he decides the money was confiscated illegally, the cash should be returned to Garcia and Bridges.

Assistant Attorney General David Bragg argued that the state was entitled to the money because the proceeding was a civil matter.

However, Shannon said Bragg's argument would mean the government could confiscate something illegally, then keep it because it was a civil matter, which would be an "end run" around the U.S. Constitution.

George Schaffer, an attorney for Bridges, predicted the case would be appealed "all the way to the Supreme Court" regardless of Shannon's decision.

Between the time of his arrest and the time the trial began, Bridges told four different stories of how he and Garcia came to have the money.

Most MIA families bitter

By JOE FRISINO
Hearst Special News Service

The U.S. Defense Intelligence Agency is giving a "priority effort" to establishing the fate of American servicemen missing in Southeast Asia, but some critics say the government is continuing a policy of ignoring reported sightings of American prisoners.

Retired Air Force Col. V.J. Donahue, of Cocoa Beach, Fla., has made seven trips to Thailand and Laos seeking information about his son, Lt. Morgan Donahue, who was lost in a plane accident in 1968 over the Ho Chi Minh trail.

He is not convinced that anything has changed since the days of President Jimmy Carter, who, he said, "wouldn't see the families of MIAs, but welcomed entertainers and others to the White House. The MIAs were just an embarrassment to him. He wanted the whole issue out of the way."

His view is shared by Rosemary Conway of Chicago, a former school teacher, who was arrested by the Laotian government on political charges in June 1975 and held prisoner for three months.

CONWAY SAID SOME OF THE PEOPLE being held prisoner with her were Laotian pilots who told of seeing Americans in a POW camp near the town of Pakse, in southwest Laos.

She said three days before she was released she talked with another prisoner who said he had seen Americans playing volleyball in a camp in the north.

Conway said she told a member of the Joint Recovery Team for Missing in Action in Bangkok about the information given her, "but the man I talked with didn't do anything. They never bothered to follow through. I feel our government has done a poor job."

She also said that she was debriefed by a military colonel when freed, but the DIA later said there was no debriefing. And when Donahue wrote the DIA regarding the debriefing because his son had been mentioned, he was told that the debriefing documents were lost.

Nevertheless, at least one leader of a group concerned with the missing servicemen expressed confidence in the government's efforts.

"I have a real positive feeling for the first time in years," said Ann Griffiths, executive director of the National League of Families of Prisoners Missing in Southeast Asia.

Griffiths said she was optimistic because Lt. Gen. Eugene S. Tighe Jr., director of the DIA, in December told the U.S. House Subcommittee on Asian and Pacific Affairs, "There is an increasing number of reports that Americans may be held against their will in Indo-China, but the U.S. government has thus far been unable to substantiate this information, and priority efforts will continue to be assigned to investigating these reports."

The general added, "I have insured that all of the intelligence collection disciplines are brought to bear on this matter."

DONAHUE, HOWEVER, SAID THE "platitudinous statements" by Tighe are "purely rhetoric." He pointed out that the Joint Casualty Resolution Center liaison office in Bangkok is "charged with eliciting information about MIAs from he thousands of refugees from Vietnam and Laos" and in Thailand "where there are four major refugee camps with an aggregate of more than 20,000 refugees at any time."

"The absolutely unbelievable aspect of this situation is that there are only three people assigned to the Bangkok office, one Air Force lieutenant colonel, one Marine gunnery sergeant and one civil servant. If they worked 48 hours a day, they couldn't even put a small dent in the problem."

Donahue said bitterly that if a refugee "already safe in this country" comes forward with information the DIA's "stereotyped position is that 'the report is very interesting but unfortunately the agency does not have the intelligence capability anymore in Southeast Asia to verify it.'" He added that if a refugee overseas comes forward to report a live sighting, the DIA takes the position that the individual "is only interested in facilitating his admission into the U.S."

Mike Gelner of the Laos Desk of the State Department answers these complaints by saying the families of the missing men are "upset with the lack of progress and progress depends on the Vietnamese." They hold the key, Gelner said, and "there is no flexibility on their part."

GELNER ADDS TO THE CONFUSED picture by saying, "I see the same dedication I saw all along" (regarding the POW-MIA question). I can't perceive any change. The amount of time, effort and dedication devoted to this problem is staggering and would amaze people in any other country."

Gelner has been with the department 1 1/2 years. Army Lt. Col. Jerry Grobowski of the Defense Department voices the same theme, and said, "Unless there is a breakthrough in that country (Vietnam) and we can get people on the ground, there is no place for them (U.S. investigators) to go."

He said he has not heard "how the new administration will handle the problem."

He did say he had personally talked with Tighe's deputy who told him the general is very anxious to follow up on any refugee reports of sighting Americans in Southeast Asia.

David Fors of Puyallup, Wash., is carrying on the search for his brother, Marine Lt. Col. Gary Fors, who was shot down over Laos in 1967. Their father, Henry, who had spent thousands of hours and dollars both in looking for his son as well as fighting to have him officially declared missing in action rather than killed in action, died last November.

David Fors agrees with Griffiths, but with a note of pessimism as well. He said, "I feel real good about the situation, but I also know we're dealing with the U.S. government and there's a big sea out there and we're not very big fish."

HE ADDED ANGRILY, REMEMBERING the years of his father's battles with the government, "if the government is continuing at the same rate they were going, forget it."

He added, "I believe there are POWs in Vietnam, but where in hell are they?"

And he asked the question, "After being confined to a box for five years, starved, having people spit and urinate on you, if they offer you freedom and food, however strong-willed you are, what do you do?"

"After capture in 1963, 1967 or whatever, do you want to come home? Maybe you don't even know where you are."

And he added, "My brother could have teenage children of his own over there by now."

Welcome to the continuing.....

'Ants get trampled' in fighting

By ANNE YOUNG
Odessa American Staff Writer

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — There's a saying in Latin America: "When the elephants fight, the ants get trampled."

Jeff Adams doesn't consider himself an ant, but nevertheless he worries about getting stepped on.

Adams, a missionary with the National Salvadoran Church, his wife and two daughters have watched the civil war in El Salvador rage for the past five years. He said 80 people who live on the block where he makes his home have been killed.

The sounds of violence have become commonplace in El Salvador since the 1979 coup that toppled rightist President Carlos Humberto Romero, said Adams, who was in Odessa this week to visit friends.

"The violence has destroyed coffee fields, cottons fields, factories... a year ago fire destroyed several city blocks," he said.

"The economy is suffering greatly but the people refuse to be drawn into a political struggle they don't believe in. The one word to describe Salvadorans is tenacity." Adams said the Salvadorans are "extremely industrious and progressive. When buses are destroyed, cars, wagons and all sorts of vehicles are organized to take people to work. The people are saying 'let's get on with work.'"

War has become a way of life, Adams says. Large numbers of government soldiers roam the streets of San Salvador, the city is a battleground and "people are frustrated." Adams says he talks to his children about the war. "When my daughter says, 'Was that a bomb?' Yes, I say, and there's another one...and that's three."

He says the church, often accused of taking sides, "works hard for political neutrality. We are active in another sphere — changes accomplished through a man's heart."

But Adams contends Roman Catholic Church leaders are politically active and sharply divided as a result of a lack of national leadership. He said the murders of an archbishop and three nuns in El Salvador were the result of political activity.

U.S. defending Salvadoran investigation of four deaths

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department is defending the Salvadoran government's investigation into the slayings of four missionaries in the Central American country last Dec. 3.

John A. Bushnell, acting assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, said Thursday that the FBI sent several lab technicians to El Salvador in December to look at evidence in the shootings.

The FBI also sent expert criminal investigators to El Salvador three times to work "strictly as consultants with El Salvador investigators," Bushnell told the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on Latin America.

He said the FBI believes Salvadoran authorities are making a thorough investigation.

"Certainly our people have been following this very closely," Bushnell said.

Rep. Mary Rose Oaker, D-Ohio, who attacked the Reagan administration for not insisting that El Salvador push the investigation harder, was critical of Bushnell's responses, noting that he wasn't aware of a report that the bullets which killed the missionaries have been found.

"Imagine being in his position in the State Department and not even knowing that they found the bullets that killed the four," Ms. Oaker commented after the hearing. "It shows that the investigation into the slaying of American citizens has a very low priority in this administration."

Archbishop James A. Hickey testified that he, too, was concerned about the lack of progress in the investigation. Two of the slain missionaries went to El Salvador at his request when he was bishop of Cleveland, said Hickey, who now is archbishop of Washington.

"The church...will not forget what the missionaries have done," Hickey said. "We will not let this issue rest unresolved."

Rep. Dennis Eckart, D-Ohio, a member of the subcommittee, asked Hickey about a recent news release from a group called the Inter-American Security Council which alleges that one of the slain nuns had been active in a revolution in Nicaragua.

"The nuns were not nuns, they were political activists," Eckart quoted the release as saying. Hickey called the statements an "outright lie."

He said the missionaries' only concern was to help refugees whose homes were devastated in the fighting.

"When you become politically involved, you have to be prepared for the consequences," said Adams.

Chairman of joint chiefs defends use of advisers

CHICAGO (AP) — The United States must end "erosion in our hemisphere" and "get the Cubans not to play around in our backyard," Gen. David C. Jones says.

But while the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff defended the use of U.S. advisers in El Salvador for that purpose, he declined to say Thursday whether U.S. troops were being considered for action in the Central American country.

"I'm not going to discuss military action, whether it's contemplated or not," Jones said in a question-and-answer session with members of the Chicago Bar Association.

Jones didn't mention El Salvador directly in a short speech he made to the association, but attorneys later peppered him with questions about the strife-torn country.

He avoided saying how much money or manpower the United States would commit to supporting El Salvador's government against guerrillas the Reagan administration says are being armed by Cuba and the Soviets.

"I'm not going to address that question," he said when a reporter asked him whether he would recommend that U.S. troops be sent to El Salvador. "I do not think it's appropriate."

"We have a handful of people there...and I think that's preferable to U.S. intervention," he said. The State Department has announced that a six-man training team was being sent to help El Salvador's navy patrol its coastal waters. Officials said they would be the first of about 30 new non-combat advisers and technicians sent there.

The six increased the number of U.S. military advisers and trainers currently in El Salvador to 25.

El Salvador's civilian-military junta preparing to hold elections

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — President Jose Napoleon Duarte says El Salvador's ruling civilian-military junta has taken the first step toward all-civilian government by naming a three-man commission to draft a law providing for congressional elections next year.

Another government spokesman told reporters Thursday the National Assembly to be elected in 1982 would consider amending the constitution and would make arrangements for the election of a president.

The spokesman said the election commission members are Jorge Bustamante, 68, a physician; Ernesto Rodriguez Rivas, 35, a civil engineer, and Guillermo Antonio Guevara Lacayo, 40, a lawyer.

Guevara Lacayo is Duarte's personal secretary and is active in the president's Christian Democratic Party. Bustamante and Rodriguez Rivas have no political affiliation.

On the war front, the army said it repulsed a guerrilla attack on a national guard post in the northern town of Jutiapa, killing 10 of the attackers. Fighting also was reported near Jutiapa in Cinquera, where the government said leftists set fire to the city hall and kidnapped two people.

Police in San Salvador said three bombs exploded in the capital Thursday, and one did serious damage to a bank.

Officials also reported the slaying of Salvadoran journalist Mauricio Antonio Driotez near the capital but gave no indication whether he was the victim of the leftists or a right-wing death squad.

More than 14,000 people have been reported killed by the army, right-wing death squads and leftist guerrillas since the overthrow 17 months ago.

The Newspaper BIBLE

COULD I TRUST YOU WITH MY MONEY?

"If you are untrustworthy about worldly wealth, who will trust you with the true riches of heaven? And if you are not faithful with other people's money, why should you be entrusted with money of your own?"

"For neither you nor anyone else can serve two masters. You will hate one and show loyalty to the other, or else the other way around--you will be enthusiastic about one and despise the other. You cannot serve both God and money."

The Pharisees, who dearly loved their money, naturally scoffed at all this.

Then Jesus said to them, "You wear a noble, pious expression in public, but God knows your evil hearts. Your pretense brings you honor from the people, but it is an abomination in the sight of God."

"Until John the Baptist began to preach, the laws of Moses and the messages of the prophets were your guides. But John introduced the Good News that the Kingdom of God would come soon. And now eager multitudes are pressing in."

"But that doesn't mean that the Law has lost its force in even the smallest point. It is as strong and unshakable as heaven and earth."

"So anyone who divorces his wife and marries someone else commits adultery, and anyone who marries a divorced woman commits adultery."

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Survival rate is up for cancer patients

Dear Dr. Solomon: Newspapers and magazines occasionally carry stories about advances in the treatment of cancer. However, I've heard that these may not always be accurate, not because there is a deliberate attempt to distort the information, but because the reporters often don't understand the significance of the information they gather. Can you clarify this? With all the time and money being invested in cancer research, is any real progress being made? — Cathy

Dear Cathy: According to the Department of Health and Human Services during the 1970s survival rates for patients with some of the more common forms of cancer showed substantial improvement. In a report prepared by the National Cancer Institute, five-year survival rates for persons diagnosed and treated from 1960 to 1963 were compared with the rates for persons diagnosed and treated from 1970 to 1973.

Although both white and black adults had increased survival rates, those for blacks were lower than those for whites. For example, black men had significantly lower survival rates than white men for cancers of the lung and bronchus, rectum, colon, larynx, prostate, kidney, bladder, and Hodgkin's disease. Similarly, black women had significantly lower rates than white women for cancers of the breast, lung and bronchus, colon, rectum, cervix, body of the uterus, bladder, esophagus, and Hodgkin's disease.

In general, the percentage of white men living at least five years after their cancers were diagnosed for the first time showed a significant increase for 17 of the 35 cancer sites considered, while the percentage for white women increased in 17 of 37 sites. Since there was less information available for black patients, only 10 cancer sites were considered for men; of these, three showed significant increases in the five-year survival rates. Thirteen cancers were considered in black women, with significant increases in survival rates shown in four.

Survival rates reflect the effectiveness of treatment or cancer patients since they indicate whether there has been improvement in the detection, diagnosis, and treatment of patients with the disease.

Plan to stop cutlery theft

LONDON (AP) — An electronic spy system that triggers alarm bells has been installed in the House of Commons to stop guests from stealing the cutlery. Officials resorted to the system because 40,000 pieces of cutlery valued at $220,000 vanish from Parliament's dining halls each year.

'Best Little Fiddling Contest in Texas' scheduled at mall

By GEORGIA TEMPLE Staff Writer

The call left him confused. Some might term it the golden opportunity. It was what he wanted; it was just sooner than he wanted it.

As job offers go, if he turned it down, he would not do so lightly.

"I can't decide whether I want to go ahead and finish school, or go on the road for a year or two," said Ricky Boen, fiddle player and Odessa College marketing student.

Boen will be one of the participants in "The Best Little Fiddling Contest in Texas" at Midland Park Mall Saturday beginning at 1 p.m. Prize money for the contest, which is approved by the Texas Old Time Fiddlers' Association, totals $2,000.

"I got a job offer from Red Stegall to go on the road, but I don't know," Boen said, explaining that he had met and became friends with Stegall's band a "couple of years ago. His brother called me and said he would call me back in a couple of months."

It wasn't the first time Boen had been offered a job with Stegall. "I played a dance with them when they were in Odessa and the brother asked me then," Boen said.

That was several years back when Boen wasn't out of high school. His background includes seven years of playing the violin in an orchestra. He also plays the electric mandolin, guitar and drums.

He cut his first album at 15.

"The first one was an experiment and we cut it in Odessa. From then on we went to Dallas."

The 'we' refers to Boen's greatest fan and follower, his father. With his dad's support, Boen has cut three albums. They sell the records at the various fiddling contests in which Boen competes.

"We take them with us and sell them. You can't buy the quality of fiddling on these albums in the record stores," Boen said.

The TOTFA was formed in 1973 when "seven or eight fiddle players got together to do what could be done to improve old time fiddling and to keep fiddling going."

Boen was a part of that group. Today, "a lot of kids are now picking it up." The contest idea itself is "beginning to take off in various malls."

The event includes "fiddlers judging fiddlers. Three fiddlers out of another age group judge the competing group," Boen said, adding that a judge must be at least 18 years old.

The day's activities run "continuously." Even during the actual judging, there is some form of entertainment on stage.

And it's a good opportunity for those who love fiddling to get together and "make friends."

Thousands try for 100 jobs

MAUMEE, Ohio (AP) — His wool cap pulled down against the cold, Peter Cieply stood at the back of a quarter-mile-long line and waited. He was one of thousands hoping for one of 90 to 100 jobs.

The 30-year-old Rossford machine operator, laid off two years ago by Chrysler Corp., was among more than 3,500 people who filled out applications Tuesday for jobs with a new auto battery plant being opened near Toledo. Several thousand more are expected by Thursday.

"I've been laid off since January 1979," Cieply said. "I sure could use this job. But look at this line — I just don't know."

Throughout the day, applicants filed into the exhibition hall of the Lucas County Recreation Center, converted into a hiring hall for three days by the Globe Battery division of Johnson Controls Inc.

Marge Lawyer, one of six Ohio Employment Services Bureau officials helping the company, said 10,000 to 15,000 people might apply by Thursday night.

In an area with 10 percent unemployment, she said, "it's been quite a while" since so many jobs were offered at once.

To ease the crush, the company announced in advance that no one would be hired until all applications were taken. It advertised that applicants should come on one of the three days, depending on the last digit of their Social Security numbers.

But those hoping to land a job still showed up early.

Don Queen, 31, of Swanton, wore his long underwear, took a sleeping bag and spent Monday night on the recreation center sidewalk so he would be first in line.

Most were like Cieply, however. He arrived an hour before the doors opened, walked briskly to the end of the line, then stood quietly.

The Globe plant will manufacture automotive batteries for retail stores. To get started, it needs laborers, janitors, machine operators, battery stackers, truck loaders and order pickers.

Witness rebuts testimony

CLEVELAND (AP) — A native Ukrainian who guarded prisoners at a Nazi death camp and faces deportation himself will testify by deposition in the denaturalization trial of John Demjanjuk, an autoworker accused of helping execute Jews during World War II, officials say.

Feodor Fedorenko, 73, whose denaturalization was upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court last Jan. 21, is to be questioned in Philadelphia on Saturday, said Demjanjuk defense attorney John W. Martin.

Martin said he would meet with Fedorenko and his attorney to take a deposition, which will be presented to U.S. District Judge Frank J. Battisti, presiding over Demjanjuk's non-jury civil trial. Fedorenko was found to have served involuntarily as an armed guard at the Treblinka death camp in Poland.

The Displaced Persons Act, under which both Fedorenko and Demjanjuk entered the United States, disqualified anyone who helped the enemy.

The 60-year-old Demjanjuk, of suburban Seven Hills, is accused of covering up alleged war atrocities when he entered the United States, but maintains he was a Russian soldier held prisoner by the Germans during most of World War II.

Ford's modeling agency number one in country

By TIMOTHY HAWKINS
The Los Angeles Times

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Eileen Ford is feeling like Cheryl Tiegs — or one of the other stars in her Ford modeling agency — stable of fabulous faces.

The matriarch of the country's No. 1 face factory arrives for an interview in a chauffeured Rolls-Royce limousine. She is bunking at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel.

George Hamilton gives a party in her honor and invites all his Hollywood pals.

For a trip to San Diego, she is picked up in a limousine and is driven to a private helicopter.

"I don't know how I'm going to face my Volkswagen when I get back to New York," says Ford.

It is much easier to imagine Ford in a Rolls than in a Volkswagen. The success of her agency has afforded her some luxuries. For the interview she is dressed head to toe in Bill Blass. There is a string of large matched pearls at her neck, emeralds on her ears, and a diamond almost as big as the Ritz on one finger. She says that later in the afternoon she will have the chauffeur take her to the Farmer's Market to buy veggies and to a gallery on Rodeo Drive to exchange a painting "everybody hates."

But for all this high-toned talk, one gets the feeling Ford would rather be taken for someone's favorite aunt — the kind who tends American Beauty roses — than a hard-driving agency head who tends to real American beauties.

When asked for dollar figures on her agency's earnings, she coyly says she has no head for business and leaves that up to her husband and partner, Jerry Ford. She is careful to point out that he is the real genius behind the business and that, unfortunately, she gets all the publicity. (Later, at a reception at Chasen's, however, she seems stunned when she is introduced as a "partner" in the nation's No. 1 agency. "I keep wondering who is this partner he's talking about," she announces.)

As for how the recession has affected her business and what steps she might take to cope during the crunch, Ford replies demurely: "I'm such a non-economist. I keep thinking if I don't look, it'll go away." But later she comes on stronger: "I feel like Malcolm Forbes, who says he had to apologize to the Carter administration for saying it's so inept it couldn't cause a recession. I personally hope the election turns things around. If people cut back on advertising, how are they going to sell anything? That in itself causes a recession."

Ford says she doesn't plan to tell her models to tighten their belts if times get tougher. She doesn't have to. "Our models are the tightest people in the world."

A subject that Ford is not coy about is the recent rage for using Lolita-like models in their early teens for high-fashion photography. "I think the preoccupation with the 12- and 13-year-old look will pass quickly because of the revulsion that will be experienced by the American woman and the American man. It's an aberration that will end long before these girls see 16. People will write and say, 'What are you doing to our children?' To me it's a sick era in American magazine history. The fashion industry is a great conglomeration of me-too-ers. Nobody wants to get left at the post. If Helmut Newton photographs a girl in garters and black stockings — so does everybody else. The fads go quickly."

Ford says her agency does have a teen department with 15 models who work after school and during the summer for such clients as Sears, Montgomery Ward and Seventeen magazine. Brooke Shields, now 15, and probably the most famous teen model today, was handled by Ford, until her movie career got off the ground.

"Brooke is an exception," says Ford. "She has modeled since she was a baby and can handle things with great equanimity. But I don't think others can unless they are very professional children. I think the concept of a mother saying 'Fame at any price' is terrible. Looking 15 years down the road, the price is often too high to pay. I've often wondered what Shirley Temple's parents did to raise such a nice woman."

In fact, Ford says the model business is growing up with a trend toward more mature, sophisticated types. "In the year 2000, the buying power will be with people in their 50s and 60s. Right now the professional life span of a model is 10 years. I think it's extending to 15-16 years. Every major cosmetic contract except one is being held by a woman well past 28. We formed a Ford women's division a couple of years ago for models older than 35. Nothing happened for a long time and suddenly in January we did three times the business we did the entire previous year. It's created its own market."

When Cheryl Tiegs is mentioned, Ford gushes with enthusiasm and envy. "It isn't fair," she says. "I always say she's revolting she's so beautiful. She's probably one of the prettiest women ever born — really a creature of America. Why should I be 5 feet 5 and she be 5 feet 10? Why should I be round and she be thin? One person's got it all."

Ford attributes Tiegs' success (she estimates the model's yearly income at "a comfortable six figures") to a "certain twinkle in her eyes — she's an idealization of how American women want to look."

Though the all-American look is currently dominating the model market, Ford says she doesn't think that ethnic models are being unjustly edged out of jobs.

"I don't think blacks are any longer known as ethnic types. They're part of the mainstream now. I don't think of people as black or white. It's a question of 'are they photogenic or not?' I don't think the demand for black models has dropped nor do I think you'll see more black models used than makes sense in proportion to the population. Ethnic now means Iranian or Hawaiian. I don't think anyone says, 'Let's book her. She's black.' I think they say, 'Let's book her. She's good.' We've come that far."

Club of women, by women, for women

By MAGGIE BROWN
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It all started when two female executives found it increasingly difficult — and irritating — to find a first-class restaurant to entertain male clients without the maitre d' handing menu, wine list and check to the man.

What resulted is a private club designed with the professional woman in mind, and patterned after the all-male enclaves, a place where the "old girls" network can take root and grow.

Claiming to be the first private club for professional women in the nation, the Wilshire Club plans to open its doors first in Los Angeles this summer, then spread across the country to New York City, Houston, Seattle, Chicago and Atlanta, said founders Jennifer Armstrong, 27, and her mother, Joan McCarthy, 47.

"For centuries," said Ms. Armstrong, "the successful man has conducted business and spent his leisure time at the club" — an exclusive environment where his every need is met, professionally, socially, personally.

Now, she said, success-minded women will have their own posh club to rival the established Bohemian, California or Cosmos clubs; their own place to entertain clients, make business contacts and take advantage of educational opportunities — all the prerequisites offered by the male-only facilities.

For a $1,500 annual fee, club members can use a French continental restaurant, patio garden restaurant, cocktail lounge with live entertainment, conference and banquet rooms, dance studio, game room, study, beauty salon and a fully equipped health spa.

"There are some 40,000 women in the Los Angeles area alone who earn more than $20,000," Ms. Armstrong said. "Yes, there is a need for a facility like this. And yes, there is an interest."

Wilshire Club membership is limited to 4,000, including men, on a first-come basis. Within 10 days, Ms. Armstrong said, the club received nearly 300 applications.

"We're not anti-men," she stressed. "But I doubt they would see a plus in being a member since the facilities are geared toward women."

"I'm joining to further my business ventures," said Dina Franklin, an account executive with a Los Angeles paper firm. "I expect to double my business when this club gets going."

"We're not a bunch of rabid feminists trying to get away from men," Ms. Franklin added. "But I'm a sales executive, and it's so difficult when I take a client to lunch. It's the nature of our society. Men are preferred. The waiter gives the man the menu, the check. It's always a hassle, saying, 'No, no, give me the check.'"

"Now I will have the prestige of taking a client into my own club... where I will be preferred. When you're trying to control a situation, make a sale, you need the upper hand."

Feminist activist Gloria Allred, who is the Wilshire Club attorney, put it this way:

"There's a need for women to have an island of sanity in this otherwise extremely sexist and difficult world."

"Even when women have been able to go to primarily male clubs, women game, etc. — not disappearing until dawn! He is hurting you. Perhaps if he were more specific about where he is, or if he called you, it would put you at ease. A more equitable solution would be for you to take a "night out with the girls" and agree that both of you should be home at a certain time.

Master painter

ATLANTA (AP) — Auguste Renoir, the French Impressionist painter, was born Feb. 24, 1841, and this year marks the 140th anniversary of his birth.

Few people realize that Renoir executed some of his most important works with hands that were seriously crippled with arthritis. Today, as in Renoir's day, there is no cure for arthritis. The Arthritis Foundation reports, however, modern medication and treatment methods can prevent much of the pain and deformity caused by the disease, if it is diagnosed early enough.

In his later works, Renoir seemed to focus on dexterity and the use of the hands. "Jean Renoir, the Artist's Son," painted in 1900, shows a young boy doing needlework. The year before his death in 1919, Renoir painted "Woman Tying Her Shoe."

Gold digger gets nailed

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I used to get a manicure every other week. My manicurist charges $12, which is all profit because she works out of her home and is self-employed. Considering this, I never tipped her. However, I always gave her a gift on special occasions.

Last Christmas I gave her a pair of expensive costume earrings. The next time I went for my manicure she showed me the gifts all her other clients had given her, then she proceeded to return my earrings, saying, "Sorry, I wear only REAL gold."

Abby, I thought this was so rude I never went back to her. Later her neighbor told me that she returned my gift because I had never tipped her.

What do you think of her behavior in view of her self-employed status? — BETTY E.

DEAR BETTY: Her behavior was gross, and her profit was net.

DEAR ABBY: After 19 years of marriage, my husband decided he wanted a night out with the boys. I wrote to you, and you said it was good for a man to have a little diversion from his work and everyday routine, so I accepted your answer and have been trying to live with it.

The problem is that my husband has been coming home at 4 a.m. and 5 a.m. from his "nights out." By the time he gets home I am not only upset, I am worried sick, wondering what has happened to him. Do you think he is being fair to me? He says he is not hurting me, and I should go to sleep and not worry about him, but I can't go to sleep, and I can't help worrying about him.

I feel that if this continues it will put a strain on our marriage. Please tell me what to do. — READY TO CRACK

DOE plans project

PARACHUTE, Colo. (AP) — The Federal Department of Energy has announced plans to spend $20 million on a five-year project to develop technology that will free millions of gallons of natural gas trapped in sandstone at a 56,000-acre gas field here.

A nuclear blast was used unsuccessfully in an attempt to release gas trapped in so-called "tight" gas sand formations in the Rulison gas field during 1969. The technique, a 40-kiloton blast set off 8,400 feet below the ground, increased gas production rates but not enough to pay for the costs of recovery.

Officials at the DOE's energy center in Bartlesville, Okla., say the new experiment calls for drilling and massive hydraulic fracturing tests.

Three wells will be drilled to 8,600 feet below ground at the Rulison field. DOE spokesmen said. The wells will be spaced from 100 to 500 feet apart and interference and pulse tests will be conducted between them.

Massive hydraulic fracturing, which pumps liquids under extreme pressures down a well bore to crack open underground formations, will be used between the wells as part of the experiment, officials said.

Coffee maker draws customers to the bank

By BILL JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
CORDELL, Okla. (AP) — Raymond Ernst never made a million-dollar loan or opened a savings account for a newlywed couple.

But there are lots of folks 'round this southwestern Oklahoma town who figure he's just about the most important man at the Cordell National Bank.

He's the bank's official, full-time, coffee maker.

But what makes him extra special to those who stop in for a sip and a bit of talk about oil, wheat, cattle or the latest town gossip is that all his beverages are free.

"It's one of our biggest drawing cards," says Harlan R. Hinds, the bank's president. "We want to keep our customers, and keep them happy. It's about the cheapest advertising there is."

Ernst is at his accustomed place behind the coffee counter by 7:30 a.m. Monday through Friday.

"You'll have to go around to the back-door like everybody else," a first-time visitor is told by one of the regulars. "They don't open the front doors until 9."

"That's right," Hinds confirms. "We don't open for business until 9 a.m. Before that, you have to come in the back door where the coffee room is."

And quite a room it is, taking up — as Hinds explains — about one-sixth of the bank's entire space. Comfortable chairs nestle next to the round, plastic-topped tables while Ernst dispenses coffee, soft drinks and hot tea from behind the bar.

"I guess I probably give away 300 to 400 cups of coffee or soft drinks a day," Ernst says. "Some days it's more, some less."

Ernst is a rangy man who looks as though he'd be more at home riding the plains than the coffee bar. In fact, he admits, "I do a little farming on the side."

"I've got 80 acres and I run a few cattle — anywhere from 20 to 35 head."

Ernst, who has been the official coffee maker "six years this June," takes care of the farming after 3 p.m. and on weekends, with his wife and three children.

At any given time during the day, up to a dozen people are gathered in the coffee room, mainly men in jeans and cowboy boots, their broad-brimmed hats pushed back. An occasional lady customer stops by for a little tea, and youngsters pop in for a quick soft drink.

"It's free for everybody," Hinds says. "Some folks come in and have coffee and talk over the weather or the crops while they're waiting for the bank to open. Others will stop by for a cup before they leave."

The cups are unusual, too. Each bears the drawing of a dog standing by a fireplug-shaped coffee pot and the slogan, "Cordell National Bank Coffeehouse."

The bank was founded in 1903 and now is one of three national banks in the town of about 3,500 — meaning that competition is stiff. So although the past is honored, they're always looking to the future, Hinds says.

The coffee room is the latest outgrowth of a long-standing tradition.

"Years ago, when we were in the old building, we used to pitch coins at a line to see who would pay for the morning coffee," Hinds said. "Finally we bought a coffee pot and made coffee in one of the back rooms."

"Well, customers would come in and smell that coffee and want a cup.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Sprucing up stuffed animals

DEAR HELOISE:
My daughter has a large collection of stuffed animals.

Many of them are not washable and through the years have become quite dusty.

Do you have a solution as to how they might be cleaned? — Elizabeth Routh

If the toys are only dusty from being displayed, then a good brushing should do the trick. But if they're also soiled from being handled, more drastic measures will be needed.

If the pile itself is washable and there's no danger of glued-on pieces coming off, your best bet would be to remove the stitching on the underside for about two inches and pull out the stuffing. Wash the pile in a mild solution of detergent and cool water.

Dry the pile in the dryer. If applicable, restuff with the original stuffing or replace with a more durable stuffing that is washable, such as shored foam or old cut up pantyhose.

If possible, brush with a wire dog brush to fluff up the "fur" again.

If you can't clean the stuffed animal in this way, liberally sprinkle cornstarch or cornmeal all over the animal and let it stand for about three hours. The powder will absorb the oils and dirt that have adhered to the fur.

Then brush the cornstarch out of your daughter's stuffed toys and they should look brighter. — Heloise a rafter or the ceiling so that the Ping-Pong ball is just touching the windshield of the car, preferably on the driver's side.

Now, when you pull your car into the garage each time, you'll know right where to stop by the position of the Ping-Pong ball on your windshield.

Any object will work, as long as it doesn't scratch the windshield. — George Myrons

+++
You're absolutely right, sir! I've been using that method for quite some time. 'Cause when you've got more in your garage than just a car, you've got to know where you're going. — Heloise

MINI COAT HANGERS
Dear Heloise: Since manufacturers probably heed your advice, would you mention that there is a crying need to have clothes hangers in sizes both for children and adults.

What fits a size 3 child doesn't hold an adult size 8 coat, etc. — Jean O'Connor

"True! But did you know that some of the larger department stores will gladly give you their excess plastic hangers from their infant and toddler clothing?"

Might pay you to check with some of your local stores — it doesn't hurt to ask! The store I checked with was more than willing to give customers whatever they had on hand. — Heloise

MONEY-STRETCHER
Dear Heloise: Concerning your advice to buy a new bowl brush when scratches start to appear in the toilet bowl: After 30 years of marriage, I've found I can bend the brush so the worn bristles are inside the curve.

Nice, new bristles on the scrubbing side, so now the brush lasts twice as long. — Vi

Come up with a mini or maxi money-saver? Don't hoard it. Do send it to Heloise care of this newspaper. She can't answer your letter personally but she will use the best tips received in her column.

American style: Harry Lieberman's noble mission

By DEBORAH BELGUM
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — With his striking white goatee, black beret and cane, artist Harry Lieberman — who emphasizes he is 104 years mature, not old — looks more like an image out of 19th century Paris than a 20th century denizen who didn't start painting until he was 79.

"I was retired for six years. Those were the worst years of my life until I started painting. Now I live on top of the world," says the spry and philosophical Polish immigrant who came to the United States in 1906.

Lieberman, who calls himself the world's oldest working artist, considers painting as his reason for living. "I don't live for the meals," he explains in a slightly accented English. "I live to establish something for the public. I have a mission to do."

His mission, he says, is to give back to the world what he took. "What little education I have now is from life and the world, and I would like to give it back to the world."

Much of what he gives is based on memories of life in the small Polish village of Gnieveshev, where he was born on Nov. 15, 1876. There he studied to be a rabbi while working in his father's general store.

In 1906, he came to the United States and settled on Manhattan's Lower East Side, where he and his wife eventually began a successful candy distributing business.

Forty years later, in 1950, he retired and moved to Great Neck, Long Island, but found he was bored and miserable with retirement. "I didn't know when to wake up and when to go to sleep. I didn't know what to do with myself."

For six years, Lieberman spent much of his time playing chess at the Golden Age Club on Long Island. But after his partner failed to show up for several days, the recreation director persuaded him to sit in on a painting class. "I said, 'I have never had a brush in my hand. How could I do a painting?'"

"But after I finished my first painting she said, 'If I didn't know you, Mr. Lieberman, I'd say you're a liar.' She encouraged me so much I went out the next day and bought all the equipment."

The jaunty centenarian took one art class and from there, set out to paint incessantly. "The art that I know is my eyes. My eyes are my critics."

His style could be described as similar to that of Grandma Moses, the American primitive painter who lived to 101 and, like Lieberman, didn't start painting until she was in her late 70s.

They share a simple form that is brilliantly colored but flat, depicting realistic scenes of country life. Lieberman's emphasis is on Jewish tradition.

Estimating that he has painted 1,000 pictures in the last 24 years, Lieberman said without blinking: "I used to work three easels, 16 hours a day. Now, I know my age, and the doctor tells me not to sit in a chair for more than two hours. So I work for two hours, walk for 30 minutes and then come back to work."

He now spends the summer months living in Great Neck with one daughter and the winter months in Los Angeles with another daughter. During his sojourn to California each winter, he occupies part of his day as artist-in-residence at Fairfax High School in Los Angeles' westside Jewish district. There, students are free to gather round to ask questions or watch him paint.

In April, Brentano's bookstore in Manhattan will feature Lieberman's work in a one-man show to run two weeks. Lieberman said he wants the public to understand his paintings. "I want people to know what is what," he said.

Flu may have triggered meningitis

By SHARON HERBAUGH
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — A wave of influenza that swept across the state early this winter may have triggered an outbreak of meningococcal meningitis that left at least 12 people dead in Texas, an epidemiologist said.

Dr. Loreen Herwaldt, an epidemiologist from the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, said researchers are looking at flu as a possible contributor because the Texas outbreak has not exhibited the cluster characteristics of a meningitis epidemic.

State health officials said scattered regions of Texas, including most metropolitan areas, reported a heavy incidence of influenza late last fall and early this winter.

"We are now looking to see whether flu predisposed the development of meningococcal meningitis," said Ms. Herwaldt.

"That may explain why after a flu epidemic there would be a significant increase in the number of meningococcal meningitis cases," she said.

At least 12 people have died and 139 others in Texas have been struck by the contagious illness since Jan. 1, said Jan Simons, surveillance coordinator for the Texas Department of Health in Austin.

Only 30 cases of meningococcal meningitis, and no deaths, were reported during a similar period last year, Ms. Simons said.

The Texas outbreak hit hardest in Houston and Harris County, where health officials confirmed 43 cases of meningococcal meningitis and three deaths.

Meningitis is an inflammation of membranes covering the spinal cord and brain. The meningococcal strain, caused by bacteria, is the most serious variety.

Symptoms include sudden high fever, headaches, nausea, muscle aches, rash and mental confusion.

Except for a concentration at a downtown Houston elementary school last month, Ms. Herwaldt said the disease has appeared sporadically in Texas rather than in clusters.

She said meningitis clusters usually occur among families, on military bases, at day care centers and other places where there is continuous close contact.

Medical sleuths from the CDC and Baylor College of Medicine have not pinpointed the cause of the cluster in a Dodson Elementary School sixth-grade classroom, where five students were afflicted and one died.

More than 750 students, teachers and staff members at the school received gamma globulin injections to help fight the spread of the disease.

Ms. Herwaldt said researchers continue to examine the victims health records, blood samples and contact with others who may have contracted the disease. But she said results of the intense study probably will not be available for several weeks.

A CDC spokesman said the higher incidence of the disease in Texas is consistent with a nationwide increase in meningococcal meningitis cases. The spokesman said 648 cases have been reported in the United States between Jan. 1 and Feb. 27, compared with 390 during the same period last year.

Mrs. Herwaldt said the Texas outbreak is caused by the C-strain meningococcal bacteria.

She said a low level of immunity to the strain that had been uncommon in Texas may have contributed to the outbreak.

Dallas illness still mystery

DALLAS (AP) — It is not considered a "firefighting emergency," but an officer with the national Center for Disease Control is visiting here to see if he can pin down the mysterious illness that struck six college students last fall.

"After looking through a lot of statistics, we've found nothing statistically significant," said Edward Kilbourne of the Atlanta-based center.

"But we haven't exhausted all the things we want to look at," Kilbourne said the investigation is not on emergency status but said center directors are concerned the illness may emerge in other parts of the country.

"For example, it could be that there was some new compound involved that should be banned from the market or something along that line," he said.

common but enrollment in the Southern Methodist University art school, reported hair loss, numbness in their limbs, nerve damage and anxiety.

State and local experts first suspected they had been poisoned by thallium, a toxic element once used in rat poison. But no trace of thallium was found and air samples showed no signs of toxins.

"The people who got ill had peripheral nerve problems and hair loss and that is not a usual syndrome," Kilbourne said. "It's not easily prescribed to any known thing."

He said he is spending his time reviewing data collected over the last two months by a team of experts from the University of Texas Health Science Center and the Texas Health Department.

"The workup is very extensive and I'm not sure we'll be able to add that much, but people sat down and asked if we've left any stone unturned. That's what we're checking now," he said.

Atlanta receiving federal money

ATLANTA (AP) — Nearly $1 million in federal aid will be coming to Atlanta to help protect children, but that announcement by President Reagan made no mention of the $1.5 million the city still seeks to finance the hunt for the killer or killers of 19 young blacks.

The grants announced Thursday will be used for after-school care for 1,000 youngsters in six areas where most of the slayings occurred, officials said.

The money also will pay for a 24-hour counseling hotline, havens for homeless teen-agers and the coordination of offers of aid from corporations, citizens and government agencies.

The city had requested direct federal aid of $1.5 million to help finance a police task force investigation which is costing Atlanta about $200,000 a month.

Congress is considering such an appropriation.

Meanwhile, about 20 members of a group of minority psychologists were making arrangements to counsel Atlantans affected by the killings and two disappearances.

A psychiatry professor, Dr. Thomas S. Gunnings of Michigan State University, said, five members of the Association for Non-White Concerns met with city and school officials in Atlanta last weekend.

The national organization of black and minority psychologists and psychiatrists focuses on minority mental health needs.

Government officials said $650,000 of the federal grant would be funneled from the U.S. Justice Department's Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention program, with the remainder coming from other federal agencies.

Mayor Maynard Jackson applauded the allocation, saying it answered all of Atlanta's needs in the "prevention and mental health areas."

"We are all full of praise and appreciation," Jackson said. But he reiterated his call for federal cash for the police investigation of the slayings, which began in July 1979.

On Thursday, police located Orlando Robinson, 10, who ran away from school after being disciplined Wednesday, spokeswoman Beverly Harvard said. However, one teen-ager, whose case also had not been turned over to the task force, was still missing.

In a related development, CBS news reported that city police have used children as decoys with officers nearby in case anyone tried to pick up the youngsters.

Also Thursday, a report by a group which has organized volunteer searches for clues in the cases said more than 9,000 people have participated in the weekend hunts.

Toddler dies chasing puppy

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — A 21-month-old girl who went outside to play accidentally killed herself when her T-shirt got tangled in a barbed wire fence and strangled her to death, police reported.

"It was an accidental death by strangulation," said Peace Justice Ruth Nicholson, after investigating the death of Treena Lake.

Tom Green County Sheriff's investigator

Pete Skaines said the toddler "was apparently trying to climb the fence to get to a little dog" when she slipped and fell Thursday.

He said the girl's father, Clement Lake, tried to revive his daughter using cardio-pulmonary resuscitation, but she was pronounced dead at a local hospital.

"The father said the baby strayed away from the house to look at rabbits and other pets in a pen at a neighbor's home," Skaines said.

Link in aspirin use and Reye's Syndrome unclear

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although parents should be cautious about giving aspirin to children suffering from viral diseases, the association between the drug and sometimes-fatal Reye's Syndrome isn't strong enough to stop the practice, says a group of experts.

The National Institutes of Health panel said Wednesday that some studies indicate an apparent association between aspirin use and the disease, which can lead to death or brain damage.

But the data is not so clear as to preclude the use of this medication when there is a need to use it," said Dr. Philip R. Dodge, chairman of the panel.

Dodge, of the Washington University Medical School in St. Louis, said more research is needed to clarify the connection between aspirin and other drugs and the disease.

Aspirin is the traditional drug used to control fever and aches from influenza and other viral illnesses, and the group said there was no clear evidence that precludes its use. But it advised parents to use caution in giving children aspirin and other drugs for these diseases.

Dr. William Soller, scientific director for Sterling Drug Inc., makers of Bayer aspirin, said the panel presented a "balanced view" of the aspirin-Reye's question.

Soller said the public had been unduly alarmed about the link because of limited information, and he called for further studies to settle the issue.

The popular aspirin substitute, acetaminophen, has not yet been linked with the disease. But Dr. Stuart B. Brown of the University of Miami Medical School, a panel member, said there is no evidence that this drug is any safer than aspirin in this regard.

No one is sure what causes Reye's Syndrome. It mostly affects those under 18 years of age and primarily children between 5 and 15.

The condition follows outbreaks of influenza, chicken pox and other viral diseases. It results in liver dysfunction and pressure on the brain caused by fluid buildup.

The federal Center for Disease Control estimates that there are up to 1,500 cases each year in this country.

Death rates from the disease traditionally have been between 20 percent and 40 percent, but latest figures indicate this has dropped to about 10 percent in some cases because of early detection and treatment, experts say.

The NIH panel, charged with developing recommendations on what to do about the condition, said symptoms of the disease develop while a person is recovering from a viral illness.

These symptoms include repetitive vomiting, lethargy, irritability, delirium, difficulty in arousal from sleep, coma and changes in liver function.

In advanced cases, the key to survival and limiting brain damage is for parents to recognize symptoms and seek immediate medical help, the panel said. The condition can be confirmed with a series of laboratory tests.

Victim of swine flu shot gets largest settlement

HONOLULU (AP) — A 45-year-old meteorologist who was temporarily paralyzed after receiving a swine flu shot has settled a suit against the government for $2 million, the highest award of damages to come from the controversial 1976 inoculation program, lawyers say.

Kenneth Hazemoto and his wife, Mildred, will receive an immediate $315,000 in cash as well as $30,000 a year tax-free for as long as he lives, with 3 percent increases compounded annually, according to terms of the out-of-court settlement reached Monday night.

The approval of Attorney General William French Smith is needed before payments can begin.

If Hazemoto lives to be 77, his normal life expectancy, he will receive $2.07 million. If he dies before 2001, his heirs will receive annual payments totaling up to more than $1 million.

Leslie Ohta, one of the two trial attorneys for the U.S. Justice Department who handled the case, said the size of the settlement stemmed from the severity of Hazemoto's illness and its after-effects.

"This is by far the worst case in the country," she said. "The pain and suffering aspect is tremendous. We've never seen anything so severe."

Hazemoto was a victim of Guillain-Barre syndrome, a creeping paralysis. Studies by the Centers for Disease Control found the incidence of the disease increased 11-fold after the swine flu inoculation program.

About 46 million people were immunized from October to December 1976, but a feared flu epidemic never materialized. Some 1,480 claims against the government are pending by victims or their survivors who claim the vaccine caused physical or mental disorders.

Because of questions about the safety of the vaccine on the part of drug companies and insurance agents, Congress passed a law in October 1976 making the government liable for any damages that resulted.

Ms. Ohta said the government Friday "stipulated liability," or accepted blame for Hazemoto's condition.

The father of two, who returned to his $41,000-a-year job with the National Weather Service after eight months of hospitalization, still has difficulty walking and speaking and fatigues easily, Ms. Ohta said.

Revived infant dies

CHARLESTON, Miss. (AP) — A newborn boy who appeared dead at birth revived at a funeral home only to die hours later of respiratory failure and apparent brain damage, officials say.

The boy, born Tuesday at Tallahatchie General Hospital, was found crying Wednesday at the funeral home where he had been left overnight, medical authorities said.

The baby was rushed back to the hospital, but died of respiratory failure and apparent brain damage that occurred before birth, a doctor said.

Memphis, Tenn., television station WMC reported the incident in a copyright story.

"Even if it had survived the first five or ten minutes, it would have been a brain-damaged infant at the time of delivery," said Dr. Theodore Lewis.

Lewis said consultants agreed Wednesday that no "heroic effort" was made to save the infant because it was brain-damaged.

Perry Newsom, of Newsom's Funeral Home, where the child was taken Tuesday night, said he heard the baby crying when he opened up Wednesday morning.

"I called the hospital and asked for a doctor," said Newsom. "I put it in my car and took it back... I was just glad the baby was living."

The baby died at 1:30 p.m., said Bill Ergle, hospital administrator.

The child was born to Mr. and Mrs. Otis Sherman Jr., authorities said. Sherman is a vice president of the Bank of Charleston.

hand with the jack of diamonds and cashed the king of clubs. Then came a diamond to the ace, reducing the hand to this position:

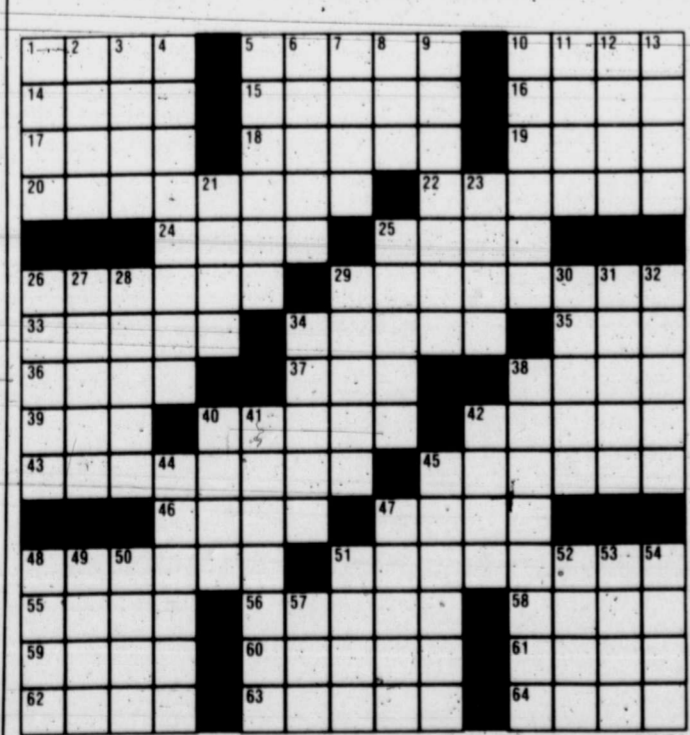

Declarer ruffed a diamond with the five of trumps and led a club. To stop dummy from scoring a ruff with the eight of trumps, West was forced to ruff with the nine. The last diamond was discarded from the board, and West was left in an unpleasant position. Whichever trump he returned, declarer was bound to score the last three tricks. Tommy had triumphed again!

Over the course of a year, Trump Coup Tommy was one of the club's big losers, as might be expected. His bidding and play were appalling, except in one circumstance—when trumps broke badly, Tommy was suddenly transformed into a genius.

North's jump to four diamonds at his second turn was an expert action, showing six good diamonds and four-card support for partner's major. With no heart control to cue-bid, Tommy wisely decided to bid no more than four spades. West's failure to double was mute testimony to the awe in which Tommy was held by any player who had a trump stack.

The defenders started off with three rounds of hearts, Tommy winning the last with the queen while discarding a diamond from the table. He cashed the king of spades. Lesser mortals might have been devastated by the bad break—Tommy just smiled and went to work.

Scientists refute cancer theory

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Tissue cloned from cancer cells can turn out cancer-free, indicating the growth of cancer may not be caused by irreversible changes, scientists at Tulane University say.

Researchers removed nuclei — containing genetic material which tells a cell how to develop — from cancer cells in frog embryos and transplanted them into fertilized eggs.

A high percentage of the cells with the new genetic material developed normally, although only three lived to become tadpoles and none lived to become frogs, said Dr. Merle Mizell, head of Tulane's tumor cell biology laboratory.

"These nuclei have the capacity to produce normal cells and tissues. The whole variety of cells — muscle, nerve, spinal cord, gut tissues — all of these emanated from a single tumor nucleus," said Mizell, who presented the findings Thursday at a conference in Dallas.

The key is combining the tumor cell nucleus with the cytoplasm — the area surrounding the nucleus — of a normal cell, he said.

Something in the cytoplasm can make the cell "do the right things" despite the tumor cell nucleus, he said in an interview after returning from the Dallas meeting of the American Society for Microbiology, but "we don't know what the cues are."

Mizell, who worked with Dr. Marie Deberardino of the Medical College of Pennsylvania, said the research counters the widespread theory that most cancer is caused by an irreversible change in the genes.

"Since normal cells and tissue were obtained from cloned tumor nuclei, our study indicates that cancer is an alteration in gene expression rather than a change in gene structure, and is therefore reversible," Mizell said.

He said scientists took eggs one week after they were fertilized and inoculated them with a strain of herpes virus that causes a naturally occurring cancer in frogs.

The resultant tumors were removed, broken down into separate cells, and grown in test tubes for several days. Cell nuclei were transplanted to fertilized eggs from which the original nuclei had been removed.

Of 72 such nuclei, 34 developed normally and two lived to be tadpoles, he said.

From one of those 34 embryos, which had divided into thousands of cells, Mizell made an additional 39 nuclear transplants.

Army regulations prevent burial

DUBLIN, Texas (AP) — The body of Staff Sgt. Steve Daugherty has lain in an Army morgue for a week, kept from burial by red tape and the elusive search for his estranged wife.

Daugherty, 32, can't be buried until "exhaustive efforts" are made to find his legal next-of-kin — a Korean wife, Sun Hwa, who stole his money and abandoned him two years ago, relatives claim.

The Army says Daugherty, a tuba player in the 5th Army Band, committed suicide Feb. 26 in his barracks at Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio, where the body still lies.

His parents, Tim and Alpha Daugherty, have sought help from congressmen and military officials, all to no avail. Daugherty met and married Sun Hwa in 1975, in Korea. While stationed there again in 1979, his mother said, Sun Hwa took $1,100 from his savings account, sold his clothes and left.

"They were still married, but just last month

Steve was working on a divorce," Mrs. Daugherty said. "He talked to a lawyer who said it would cost $1,000. Steve was trying to get the money, but you know how long it takes to save up now-a-days."

John Fuschich, casualty officer at Fort Sam Houston, said the Army is "doing everything that's humanly possible. But there's no time limit that the search can go on, as long as the people in charge think there's a reasonable chance of finding her."

"I hate for the family to hear this, but the remains could actually be held as much as a month."

The Daughertys last saw their son Feb. 15 when he returned to this North Central Texas town for his birthday. The last time they heard from Sun Hwa was the day after Christmas, when she called from Honolulu to say she was working at a cafe there.

Fuschich said service authorities could not find her.

"Apparently this lady doesn't wish to be found," Fuschich said. "She has made quite a bit of effort to cover her tracks, but it also appears that she doesn't know he is dead."

Mrs. Daugherty says she is not angry, just frustrated.

"I'm a little bit disgusted. If I got mad, that just wouldn't do. I'd go all to pieces. So I try to keep myself calm and wait," she said.

"This is getting damned frustrating for us, too," Fuschich said. "The fact is, that woman is still his wife and she has legal rights that can't be set aside for the sake of sentiment. If we gave the body and insurance benefits to his parents and she showed up, she could sue us and rightfully so."

The Daughertys say they are not concerned about the benefits.

"We just want the body," Mrs. Daugherty said. "We want to bury our boy with a military funeral."

Police kill robbery suspect

NEW YORK (AP) — Police fired from behind parking meters and pedestrians dove for cover as a gunfight between officials and a bank robbery suspect erupted on Manhattan's fashionable Fifth Avenue.

The suspect was killed, an officer critically wounded and one bystander was hit in the leg during the shootout Thursday, in which more than 30 shots were fired.

The man wielded twin .38-caliber revolvers, which he reloaded during the gunfight amid swirling snow.

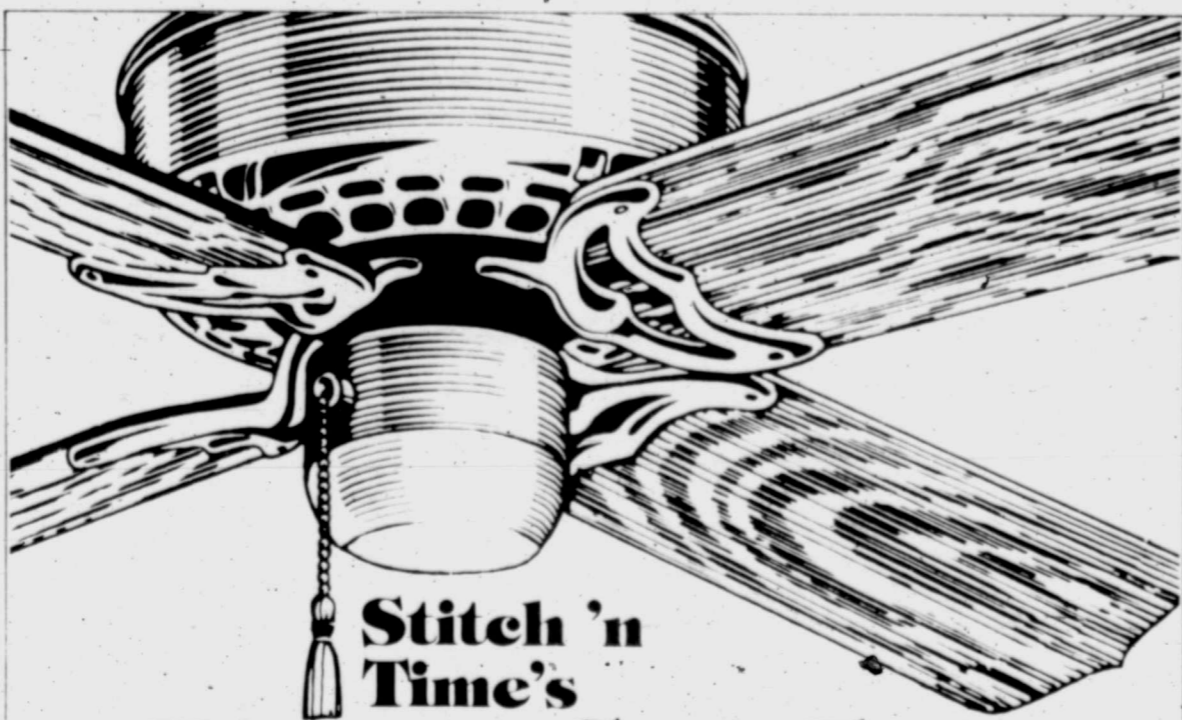

"It looked like a cowboy scene," said one witness. "They were shooting from behind flower pots and parking meters."

"It's extraordinary that no one else was injured," Police Commissioner Robert McGuire said soon after the shootout Thursday.

McGuire said John Lasco, 27, of Brooklyn, allegedly robbed the Bowery Savings Bank at 47th Street and Avenue of the Americas of $3,900. As he fled the bank shortly after 11:30 a.m., Lasco allegedly commandeered a taxicab whose license number was noted by a witness.

Two police officers in a radio car caught up with the cab around 38th Street and Fifth Avenue. The suspect began firing, McGuire said, shattering windows of a nearby Schrafft's restaurant.

As other police cars arrived, the gunman opened fire on them, jumped back into the cab, reloaded and tried to get the car going, police said.

Congress asked to abandon protections

By JUDITH BENDER
(c) 1981, Newsday

WASHINGTON — Despite finding that the nation's Clean Air Act has not slowed industrial growth or energy development, a blue-ribbon, bipartisan commission recommended Monday that Congress abandon some protections in areas of the country where the air is meeting public health standards.

The present system divides the nation into clean air areas and dirty air areas, depending on whether they meet a national standard.

The commission wants to eliminate parts of a complex pollution quota system in clean air areas, leaving the protection only for national parks and wilderness areas. In the rest of the country, the present "dirty air" controls would apply, allowing development using the best available control technology.

This proposal and others by the National Commission on Air Quality elicited immediate, sharp criticism from environmentalists.

DAVID HAWKINS, a former Environmental Protection Agency official and spokesman for the National Clean Air Coalition, said that the changes represented a "serious weakening of the Clean Air Act" that would cut the heart out of the law. Environmentalists pledged to fight these changes but conceded privately that the fight "will be a close one."

The commission, whose report is certain to have a significant role in shaping Congress's deliberations this year, also recommended scrapping the present deadlines for meeting health standards in areas where the air is dirty. Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., the panel's chairman, said that the system permitted states to make optimistic projections about when they could meet the deadlines, making it impossible for EPA to require stricter control measures before then. However, commission member Richard Ayres of the Natural Resources Defense Council said that "without deadlines, standards become laudable goals, too easily deferred."

While these proposals made the environmentalists angry, many of the other recommendations provided scant comfort to industrial groups. The commission recommended no change in air standards now set at the level needed to protect the health of the most susceptible — children, asthmatics and the elderly — against "unreasonable risk." Industry, meanwhile, wants to eliminate that criterion and write in new criteria for assessing air standards that could, among other things, require federal officials to weigh the costs of technology to meet standards against the benefits of those standards.

Industry groups have been vigorously seeking such changes and plan a major campaign to convince Congress that the law is too costly, burdensome and restricts economic development at a time that the nation's economy is stagnating.

Albert Fry, director of the Business Round Table's clean air project, said the present air standards were based on determining "minuscule" changes among the most sensitive populations. "That ultimately drives you to a zero risk approach and clearly is an absurdity unless you want to put everyone in time capsule," he said.

THE REPORT WAS called for by the 1977 amendments to the Clean Air Act of 1970, which also asked the National Academy of Sciences to study the clean air program.

The academy said last Friday that problems with the program were caused by too rigid interpretations of the regulations, and it recommended more flexibility.

Of the commission's recommendations to change the so-called "prevention of significant deterioration" program in areas of clean air, Blake Early, executive director of the Sierra Club, said that the panel had overreacted to industry objections about the program's complexity. And Rafe Pomerance, legislative director of the Friends of the Earth, said the commission should have focused on trying to simplify the regulations rather than "tossing the whole thing out."

"It's particularly scary because it comes at a time just when the nation is poised to go into massive energy development," he said. "We would be giving up significant protections."

Other major recommendations include:

—Requiring significant reductions in the amount of sulfur dioxide emissions from coal-fired utility plants to reduce the acid rain problem in the Northeast.

—Letting a state's air quality implementation plans go into effect after 90 days if the EPA had not acted on them.

—Increasing the carbon monoxide standard for automobiles to 7 grams a mile, from 3.4 grams, until 1986.

—Elimination of the requirement that new sources of pollution install technology that produces the lowest achievable emission rate in areas of dirty air.

In handing up the report, Hart said that the nation's air was "measurably better." While the capital cost of air pollution control was about $2 billion to $7.5 billion in 1978 and operation costs were an additional $8 billion, Hart said the economic value of the improvements in air quality range from $5 billion to $50 billion.

The huge range in economic benefits, Hart conceded, reflected the difficulties of identifying the benefits of pollution control. It has been one of the problems environmentalists have faced in convincing politicians not to cut back on environmental protection.

Company wants to double production

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas Utilities Generating Co. wants to double its current production of 2 million tons of coal in Freestone County, the Texas Railroad Commission said Thursday.

The commission said TUGCO, had applied to expand its Big Brown surface coal mining operation by about 5,700 acres. Average excavation depth will range from 35 to 100 feet.

The new area is about seven miles north-northeast of Fairfield. The commission said TUGCO also applied for a permit to continue its surface coal mining operations in Titus and Hopkins counties.

Controls keep costs down

FORT ERIE, Ontario (AP) — Americans by the thousands are filling up their gas tanks in Canada, saying they can save as much as $15 a tankful by taking advantage of government controls that have kept this country's prices under $1 a gallon.

More than 21,000 Americans each day are driving up to pumps here. With the recent spate of price increases that followed U.S. decontrol of oil prices, traffic on the Peace Bridge that connects this community of 10,000 and downtown Buffalo, N.Y., has risen more than 300 percent from the same period of 1979. There is a 35 cent toll each way.

On Thursday, the average price of a gallon of unleaded fuel was about $1.48 in Buffalo and 94 cents in American money in Fort Erie.

It is a bonanza for Canadian gas station owners, some of whom reportedly sell close to 30,000 gallons a day. Last summer, Fort Erie had 27 pumps; now there are 127.

The boom has added jobs to the Fort Erie economy, including some for directing the long lines of traffic that snake out from the gas stations along Canadian Route 3. Other businessmen say many Americans drop in to shop after filling their tanks.

But in Buffalo, officials and businessmen bemoan the impact of cheap Canadian gas on their economy. Gas station owners threaten a Peace Bridge boycott.

"We've lost 35 percent of our stations here in the last 15 months," said Norman Grapes, executive director of the United Gasoline Retailers of Western New York. "This summer, when our customers go over to the (Fort Erie thoroughbred) racetrack and to their cabins on the other side of the bridge, could be catastrophic."

Politicians have suggested declaring the Buffalo area an economic disaster area, lifting gasoline taxes within 10 miles of the border and imposing a duty on gasoline bought in Canada. But mostly, the Buffalo area's 1.2 million residents seem to enjoy their geographic good fortune. They point out that 13 Fort Erie gas stations closed between 1970 and 1978 because Canadians crossed the border to take advantage of lower gas prices in the United States.

"I'm on a pension, and the money doesn't stretch as far as it used to," said Louis Garcia of Lackawanna, N.Y. "You've got to save every way you can."

"I feel bad for the station owners," said Michael Croom of Buffalo as he filled his tank. "But the gas companies have been ripping us off for years."

"Why give your money to OPEC?" ask Buffalo radio commercials for Sam Utvich, who opened a Fort Erie station in October. Utvich maintains that the Buffalo economy benefits because it gives Americans more to spend when they get back home.

Getty files suit to obtain drilling permit

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Shocked by the Florida Cabinet's refusal to allow Getty Oil Co. to drill for natural gas in an estuary, the giant firm will sue the state to seek a drilling permit.

The Tallahassee firm of Hopping, Boyd, Green & Sams is preparing to file suit in Florida's 1st District Court of Appeal, Getty spokeswoman Michelle Beale said Thursday afternoon.

"We feel our chances in court are excellent," she said from the company's exploration office in Houston.

Getty wants to explore for natural gas more than 17,000 feet beneath Santa Rosa County's East Bay, near Pensacola in the Florida Panhandle. State officials disagree on Getty's chances to prevail in court. Henry Dean, attorney for the state's Department of Natural Resources, acknowledges that Getty will be on strong legal grounds.

Last week, Dean told Cabinet aides he was 90 percent certain that Getty could win in court by claiming impairment of contract. Getty acquired a state drilling lease in 1970, long before the Florida Legislature restricted drilling in bays.

But Attorney General Jim Smith says he's more confident than Dean about the upcoming court battle.

Getty, a multi-billion-dollar conglomerate based in Los Angeles, has been seeking the state's blessing for 10 years to drill in East Bay. Environmentalists and shoreline property owners oppose the project because they claim drilling would be too risky in the shallow estuary.

During its latest campaign for a permit, Getty spent more than $800,000 on lawyers, scientific consultants and promotion, Ms. Beale said.

In a sternly-worded statement from Houston, Getty executives said it was ironic that Florida leaders travel around the world to attract new industry and then prohibit Getty from exploring for natural gas.

"We're puzzled how the State of Florida does business," Ms. Beale said. "We've done everything the state asked and still we're denied a permit."

"Getty and the other energy companies are doing everything they can to produce more domestic energy to reduce our dependence on foreign sources, but we wonder if Florida wants to do its part."

If Getty discovers natural gas under the bay, it could collect before-tax revenue of $500,000,000 from the venture, the state estimates.

Dr. Elton Gissendanner, Florida's Director of Natural Resources, reversed his earlier stand and recommended denial of the Getty permit. Several Cabinet officers are miffed that Gissendanner changed his mind just before Tuesday's lengthy public hearing on the case.

"I changed my mind because I think the question of impairment of contract should be settled by the courts," he said Thursday.

Gissendanner apologized for his last-minute switch, saying he was sorry if he embarrassed members of the Cabinet.

Gloomy outlook predicted for Western economies

NEW YORK (AP) — Many economists are predicting the United States will slip into a new recession this year, but analysts say 1981 also is likely to be a gloomy one for other major Western economies.

Here are some questions and answers about the foreign economic outlook:

Q. What's the broad forecast?
A. Citibank's "Monthly Economic Letter" says that "what looked like a mild downswing in (West) Germany is now turning into a recession — a shallow one, perhaps," while several other European countries "are teetering close to recession" and Britain "has plunged into the abyss."

The International Bank Credit Analyst, a Montreal-based economics publication, says a high inflation rate and a growing list of government "controls and regulations restricting competition" will pose problems for Canada. But the publication says Japan's economy "should continue to perform well" and keep its reputation as "by far the best managed" of those in the industrialized world.

Q. Why are many foreign countries facing new economic woes?

A. Analysts say the economies of the United States and other industrial countries — much as they did in 1973-1975 — appear to be reacting together to foreign oil-price increases and domestic attempts to slow monetary growth during 1979 and 1980.

"The main volatile element over the past year has come from the United States, and that economy has now started to weaken again," the International Bank Credit Analyst says.

Because the U.S. economy is so large in relation to those of other countries, what happens here can have worldwide consequences. According to Citibank, the 150 percent rise in Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries oil prices since the end of 1978 "drove up price levels in all the oil-importing countries, cutting into their buying power and acting as a drag on their economic activity. That started the downturn rolling."

Arab fund started by Persian states

KUWAIT (AP) — Saudi Arabia and five other Persian Gulf states plan to put billions of surplus petrodollars into a fund that will invest in the Arab world, Europe and the United States, the newspaper Al-Hadaf said today.

Quoting informed government sources, the paper said that at the request of other Arab states in the gulf, the Kuwait government devised a plan for the "huge economic investment project."

It said the fund will be managed in Kuwait under the chairmanship of Abdul Rahman Al-Atiqi, who served as Kuwait's finance minister for 15 years until last month.

The venture will include Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates, Bahrain, Oman and Qatar, the six states which recently founded the Gulf Council for Gulf Cooperation.

The project will take its final form after its endorsement by the Gulf Council, the paper said.

'Red Guards' purge 59

ROME (AP) - Col. Moammar Khadafy's version of Mao Tse-tung's Red Guards has purged 59 more officials at home and are being urged to eliminate more enemies abroad.

Khadafy's revolutionary committees - shock troops for a revolution of the masses that has remade the political face of his oil-rich North African nation - created a special court that convicted 59 top military and civilian officials of "bribery and favoritism."

"All 59 were discharged from their jobs and barred from holding public jobs in the future," the report said.

Last year the committees carried out televised corruption trials of 500 high-ranking members of the government and the military.

According to Khadafy, the committees were responsible for murdering seven of his exiled opponents in Western Europe last year.

Anti-Khadafy Libyans living in Britain and Morocco fear Khadafy's forces may strike again soon, according to press reports from London and Rabat.

The mercurial Libyan leader, appeared to fuel those fears in speeches to a four-day convention of the revolutionary committees this week.

government," and said: "it is an honor for us to eliminate and liquidate such persons, insofar as we are a free people that has the right to eliminate the enemies of its power."

Khadafy also told the committees that "martyrs among you will fall here and abroad for liberty, for the power of the people and for definitive liberation."

At the same time, Khadafy appeared concerned that some of the young militants are going too far, like the militant Chinese students Mao unleashed near away with his Cultural Revolution in 1966-76.

Khadafy repeatedly urged the revolutionary committees "to eliminate anarchistic practices," saying it was "childish" to break into people's homes and seize their belongings in Robin Hood raids to redistribute wealth.

At least 200 foreigners in Tripoli, the Libyan capital, have lost their homes in the past three years when Libyans broke in and took them over. Reports have been circulating in Tripoli that the committees plan to break into homes of wealthy Libyans to seize their belongings and give them to the poor, according to Western businessmen who recently visited Libya.

According to the Libyan Information Ministry, the revolutionary committees are composed mainly of youths in their 20s, "children of the revolution" who have grown up since Khadafy overthrew the monarchy in a bloodless coup in 1969.

Khadafy set up the committees to promote his dream of a society that is not based on hierarchies. They are supposed to encourage Libyans at every stage of government and business to create a "direct democracy" in which the people run things themselves.

10 ejected from shrine

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - Israeli troops today ejected 10 Israelis from the Tomb of the Patriarch in the occupied West Bank city of Hebron after they tried to pray there during hours set aside for Moslem religious services, the Israeli military command said.

Israel Radio said the troops used force to oust the Israelis and there was jostling on both sides but no casualties.

The Israelis came from Kiryat Arba, a Jewish settlement near Hebron on the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River.

The Hebron shrine is the burial place of Abraham, the patriarch revered as the forefather of Jews and Moslems. Israeli occupation authorities have imposed a strict schedule for Jewish and Moslem religious worship inside the cramped tomb to prevent clashes between the two groups.

Meanwhile, the leader of a renegade Christian rightist army in southern Lebanon confirmed today that he has threatened "to take measures" against the Lebanese government if it fails to pay the salaries of its soldiers.

Maj. Saad Haddad did not elaborate on his threat, but in an interview with Israel's Army Radio he strongly denied he had threatened to shell the southern Lebanese city of Sidon.

The State Department said Thursday that it had learned Haddad and his Christian militiamen were threatening to shell Sidon unless the government pays him $5 million in ransom. A spokesman said the department was "deeply concerned and appalled by the threat," and called it "a form of extortion."

Haddad told Israeli army radio that the $5 million represents back pay he claims the Lebanese government owes his men, who still consider themselves Lebanese army soldiers. He said he has been negotiating with the government for four years to settle the salary dispute.

Haddad created his renegade army when the regular Lebanese army fell apart during the 1976-76 Lebanese civil war between rightist Christians and an alliance of Lebanese Moslems and Palestinian guerrillas.

Today the militia force is armed and trained by Israel and serves as a buffer, protecting against Palestinian guerrilla attacks along the Israeli-Lebanese border.

Witness says he was offered $500 to make extortion call

WACO, Texas (AP) - Defense attorneys prepared arguments today on behalf of three Central Texas men charged with trying to extort $60,000 from three local grocery stores by making poison threats.

Prosecutors wrapped up their case Thursday against Daniel Glenn, Stephen Howard and David Howard, all of Elm Mott. They are being tried in federal court on charges they demanded money Dec. 4 and 5 from officials at three H-E-B Food Stores, claiming they had laced strychnine throughout the stores.

No poison was found and attempts to deliver the extortion money were unsuccessful, but store officials decided to destroy and replace their existing stock, estimated at seven tons of food and merchandise, rather than gamble that the threats were a hoax.

Chaps survive battle against NMJC, 91-86

BROWNWOOD — Midland College survived a rash of fouls and a fired up New Mexico Junior College opponent to advance to the semifinals of the Region V Junior College basketball tournament, 91-86, here Thursday night, but they also discovered that in post-season jousting, it's a whole new season and nothing, not even a league champion, is sacred.

The Chaparrals emerged as the sole remaining Western Junior College Conference team in the tournament after McLennan beat Frank Phillips College, 72-70, and Ranger upset Howard College, 82-70, in games earlier in the day.

MC meets McLennan at 8 p.m. tonight with the other semifinal scheduled for 6 p.m. Tournament finals are 7:30 p.m. Saturday, following the Northern vs. Western conference All-Star game at 4 p.m. Saturday.

THE CHAPS trailed 48-40 at half and didn't forge in front until 6-6 Charles Johnson converted a three-point play with nine minutes left in the game. But even then the Chaps never really took an easy breath until they led 87-80 with 57 seconds left. MC jumped in front 20-10 six minutes into the game, but got into foul trouble in a hurry and with 8:04 left in the half, NMJC, twice previously a Chaparral victim this season, forged in front 28-26. The T-birds added a final insult when Ken Patrick stole a Midland inbounds pass and scored with a second left in the half for the eight-point intermission margin.

BIG ERNIE Tate, who led the 29-2 Chaps with 20 points, jammed in a couple of rebounds to open the second half and cut the NMJC lead to four, but the Thunderbirds upped it to nine at the 15:37 mark and Midland already had picked up its seventh foul of the half to none for NMJC and that came on a fourth personal against Johnson who walked on eggs the entire second half.

Trailing 69-61 with nine minutes left, the Chaps rallied as Kevin Willingham converted a free throw, and Virgil Slay, Willingham and Derrick Wilson followed with goals before Johnson's three-pointer gave MC the lead.

NMJC hung close, trailing by two three times, but Tate hit four baskets down the stretch. Slay two free throws and a field goal and Derrick Wilson four free throws and a field goal to keep NMJC from catching up.

Slay and Johnson both wound up with 17 points while Derrick Wilson also crashed double figures with 11. Jeff Roberson's 21 led NMJC while Ken Patrick had 14 and Mike Smith and Ricky Green 10 each.

Four of NMJC's starters fouled out and three Chaps—Puntus Wilson, Willingham and Slay, fouled out, but neither team exactly burned up the cords from the line. MC made only 19 of 35 attempts while NMJC was 20 of 31.

New Mexico Junior College (86): Black 2-0-5; Smith 4-2-10; Welch 3-2-8; Floyd 2-2-3-6; Roberson 7-7-21; Johnson 8-1-17; D. Wilson 2-7-2-11; Willingham 2-5-5-9; Tate 10-0-1-20. Totals 36-19-30-91.
Midland College (91): P. Wilson 3-0-5-6; McCain 1-1-4-3; Tutwiler 4-0-2-8; Slay 6-5-17; Freeman 0-0-2-0; Johnson 8-1-17; D. Wilson 2-7-2-11; Willingham 2-5-5-9; Tate 10-0-1-20. Totals 36-19-30-91.
Halftime: NMJC 18, Midland 40. Fouled out: P. Wilson, Slay, D. Wilson, Black, Smith, Roberson, Green.

TCU eliminates Baylor Bears

Texas Longhorns rally to defeat Texas Tech, 66-58

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — The late-blooming Texas Longhorns take on the regular season champion Arkansas Razorbacks and the Cinderella TCU Horned Frogs tonight in the semifinal round of the Southwest Conference Basketball Tournament.

The Longhorns, spurred by 21 points and 13 rebounds from towering LaSalle Thompson, rallied in the second half to down Texas Tech, 66-58, and TCU's Jeff Baker came off the bench to score 18 points to lift the Frogs to a 56-47 triumph over Baylor in tournament play Thursday night.

TCU MEETS Houston at 7:05 p.m. and the Texas-Arkansas tilt will begin 30 minutes after the first game is completed. SWC officials announced 2,500 tickets were still available for the two games and the 8:05 p.m. finals Saturday in the 16,000-seat HemisFair Arena.

Tonight's action matches teams that split during the regular season. Texas downed Arkansas 62-60 in Fayetteville and the Razorbacks won 54-48 in Austin, while the Cougars beat TCU 68-59 in Houston and the Horned Frogs won 78-77 in four overtimes at Fort Worth.

Underdog TCU's victory in the first game Thursday upped its record to 11-17, the most wins for the Frogs since 1972, in the wackiest SWC basketball race in memory.

The surprise Frogs knocked the pre-season favorite Texas Aggies out of the playoffs Monday night, 62-60, on a 38-foot shot by Darrell Browder at the final buzzer.

The tenacious Horned Frogs smothered Baylor with a zone defense behind the scoring of Baker, who got 11 of his 18 points in the second half despite a 3-inch gash in his head, and 16 points from Browder.

TCU. SHOOTING 56 percent from the field, ran up a 28-23 halftime lead over the cold-shooting Bears, who tied Houston for second place in the regular SWC season standings. Baylor ended the season with a 15-12 record. "Houston is really tough," TCU coach Jim Killingsworth said of tonight's contest. "We split with them and played to four overtimes at our place. If we have four overtimes this time, I told (Houston coach) Guy Lewis instead of shooting free throws we ought to have a spelling bee."

Texas coach Abe Lemmons was relieved that his team came back on Tech, because the Red Raiders led 48-41 midway through the second half until Thompson went to work and scored 8 straight points.

"I got to go home and unpack," Lemmons said. "It looked like we were winning. Then we were losing and might not get back. It could have gone either way," Lemmons said.

The Longhorns, now 14-14 for the year, outshot the Raiders from the field 54 percent to 50 percent and outrebounded them 27-24. Texas turnovers helped keep Tech in the game as the Longhorns miscued nine times to five for the Raiders, who ended the season at 15-13.

"We picked up where we left against the Aggies Monday night," Killingsworth said. "We played very intelligently and we kept our patience... We did a good job defensive ly."

DESPITE TCU'S late-season heroics, Baker said he was not surprised at his team's success.

"I'm not surprised. Everybody says it's a miracle, but I don't think it's a miracle," said the 6-4 guard who comes off the bench to spark his team. "I was on a small team in high school and we won. I just think the team that wants it the most is going to get it. If we go out and play team ball and work the defense together, our chances are good (against Houston)."

"We've got to come out and play harder than we did tonight," added Browder.

The 6-10, barrel-chested Thompson said he had a tough time with Tech's Clarence Swannegan until late in the game.

"In the second half Swannegan started getting tired. Instead of playing behind me, he started fronting me and we were able to get the ball inside."

Thompson said the Longhorns could beat Arkansas, which captured the regular season trophy with a 22-6 record, "if we're able to limit Scott Hastings and U.S. Reed." The Razorbacks' center and guard combined for an average 29 points during the regular season.

Baylor coach Jim Haller said the bye to Thursday night may have hurt his Bears because of the inactivity.

"We had an open date at the end of the year and then we got the bye and it was too long for us to go without playing a game," said Haller who also criticized the officiating.

A disappointed Texas Tech coach Gerald Myers said, "We had to go to the man-to-man (defense) when we got behind and it hurt us. We had our ups and downs this year, but it was a good bunch."

Poor SEC relatives get rich as favorites take nose dive

By The Associated Press

Some of the poor relatives in the Southeastern Conference are finally getting rich, thanks to inspired play in the post-season basketball playoffs.

Such teams as Vanderbilt, Mississippi and Georgia, who spent the season idling at the middle or bottom of the standings, won quarterfinal games Thursday night in one of the most upset-studded SEC playoffs in history.

Vanderbilt pulled off the biggest surprise, beating seventh-ranked Kentucky 60-55 in the tournament at Birmingham, Ala., as freshman Al McKinney hit seven straight free throws in the final 2½ minutes. Mississippi knocked off No. 10 Tennessee 81-71 as Cecil Dowell scored 22 points, and Georgia, which had lost twice by big margins to Alabama during the regular season, upset the Crimson Tide 88-80 behind Dominique Wilkins' 31 points.

"WE HAD the poorest mental discipline that we've had in a game this year," said Kentucky Coach Joe Hall. "A coach hates to see this, but we jumped ahead 10-0 and at that point we got complacent and got out of our good offensive discipline."

Mississippi turned the trick against Tennessee without the services of star forward Elston Turner down the stretch. He fouled out with four minutes to play.

"We struggled but we finally got there because we were patient," said Ole Miss Coach Bob Weltlich.

In both of Georgia's prior games with Alabama, the Bulldogs gave up more than 90 points.

"We didn't do anything differently from the first two times we played them," said Georgia Coach Hugh Durham. "We just started keeping them from getting those easy baskets."

Only third-ranked Louisiana State among the favorites got away unscathed, beating Florida 85-73 as Leonard Mitchell came up with 27 points in the other quarterfinal.

REGULAR-SEASON champion Boston College was beaten 67-65 by last-place Providence in the first round of the Big East playoffs as Ricky Turner delivered a final-second shot for the Friars.

In other matches Thursday night, Eric Floyd scored 19 points to lead Georgetown to a 58-52 decision over Seton Hall; Aaron Howard scored all of his 15 points in the second half to lead Villanova past Connecticut 65-64, and Erich Santifer and Leo Rautins each scored 18 points to lead Syracuse past St. John's 71-66.

All of the favorites won in the opening round of the Atlantic Coast Conference playoffs, and No. 4 Virginia led the way with a 76-47 romp over Georgia Tech. Ralph Sampson scored 20 points for the Cavaliers, despite drawing two technical fouls. The contest was a virtual shoving match that has become a hallmark of Virginia-Georgia Tech games.

"It's always physical when we play Tech," said Virginia Coach Terry Holland. "I guess we bring out the worst in them and they bring out the

State tourney turns into family affair

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — It's a family affair at the girls' state high school basketball tournament as many of the teams — winners and losers — count on twins, sisters or cousins.

In Class 4A semifinal play Thursday, Bay City rode the Smith sisters 43 points to a 71-51 over Dallas Madison. The Lady Cats will face Canyon, a 64-39 winner over Magnolia, in Saturday's final.

IN CLASS A competition, Nazareth, a Panhandle basketball machine churning towards an unprecedented fifth straight title, used 38 points from the Gerber cousins and 26 from the Birkenfeld cousins to double Larue La Poyner, 70-35.

Nazareth will meet Colmesneil in Saturday's Class A final. Colmesneil, led by 25 points from the three McNeal sisters, beat Weatherford Brock, 55-51. Brock's Phillips twins combined for 33 in the loss.

The 3A final will feature Abernathy, a 56-52 overtime winner over Brownsboro, against Sweeny, a 47-45 victor over Kountze.

Dallas Madison was keyed by Annette and Audrey Smith. Annette, a smooth-moving senior 5-11 post, popped for 27 points and gathered 12 rebounds. Sister Audrey, a 5-7 junior guard, added 16 points and some effective ball-handling.

MADISON WAS led by Danielle Wright's 24 points.

Canyon, a tournament rarity with no two players with the same last name, used a well-drilled offense to put Magnolia away early. Canyon rann off 14 points after Magnolia, from Southeast Texas, hit the opening bucket. The victorious Eagles were led by senior post Teri Mayfield's 20 points and 18 rebounds.

The Nazareth machine ran over the overmatched Flyerettes from Larue La Poyner. Cousins Lori and Sharon Gerber combined for 38, backed by 26 from cousins Roxanne, Sharon and Karen Birkenfeld.

The powerful Swiftettes, 34-2 on the year, also have four Hoelting cousins on the squad.

Colmesneil's win over Weatherford Brock prevented Brock from getting team exactly burned up the cords from the line. MC made only 19 of 35 attempts while NMJC was 20 of 31.

Oklahoma City beat Loyola of Chicago 73-71 behind Eric Watkins' 21 points and Xavier of Cincinnati stopped Evansville 72-69 as Anthony Hicks had 26 in the semifinals of the Midwestern City Conference tourney. Grambling whipped Texas Southern 68-66. Alcorn stopped Prairie View 90-79 and Jackson State beat Mississippi Valley 83-70 in the Southwestern Athletic Conference playoffs. North-east Louisiana stopped Northwestern Louisiana 79-73 and Centenary defeated Samford 76-69 in the quarterfinals of the Trans America Conference playoffs.

SMU takes swim lead

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Heavily-favored Texas found itself in second place Thursday night as the Southern Methodist University swimmers splashed their way into first place in the Southwest Conference championships on the strength of a strong finish in the 500-yard freestyle.

Brock's Phillips twins — Patti and Paula — combined for 33 in the loss.

IN THE first 3A semifinal, Abernathy's Lady Lopes erased a seven-point Brownsboro lead in the last 1½ minutes to send the game into overtime. The Lady Lopes, paced by Ramona Irlbeck's 24 points, outscored Brownsboro 8-4 in the extra period to take the 56-52 win.

Brownsboro's Cofers — Danita, Paulette and Ann — combined for 22 points.

Sweeny used a late basket by Jill Burttschell to take the 47-45 win over Kountze. Burttschell, who had only four points, muscled in an inside shot with 1:50 remaining. Sweeny used a spread offense to kill the clock after Kountze missed a shot.

Nancy Jones, a 5-6 senior guard, led the winners with 20. Sophomore post Tracy Turner led Kountze with 15.

Lopez-Melton holds thin lead in LPGA's Copper Classic

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Nancy Lopez-Melton fired a 3-under-par 70 Thursday to grab a one-stroke lead over Cindy Hill after the first round of the rain-plagued $125,000 Arizona Copper Classic Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament.

Lopez-Melton birdied holes four, five and eight, and parred the back nine on the 6,303-yard Randolph North Municipal course.

She said afterward that "this is my first round in 1981 without a bogey." Hill had a pair of birdies on the day and attributed her 1-under-par round "to a more open swing and good driving."

Fat Bradlev and Patsuko Ohsaka are tied for third place at 72 strokes. Eight women were tied for fourth — including Amy Alcott — while 11 golfers are knotted for fifth and sixth positions on the leader board.

Sally Little, who won the Olympic Gold Classic last week in California, made eight bogies to finish with 6-over 79. Another pre-tourney favorite, JoAnne Carner, posted a 1-over 74.

Most of the participants finished their rounds in a late afternoon rainstorm accompanied with high winds.

The tournament marks the first time the LPGA and the men's Professional Golfers Association tours have competed on the same course. The Joe Garagiola Tucson Open was held here in early January.

Rebs, 'Dogs eye very long baseball run

The Midland Lee Rebels open up an extensive week of baseball activity today at 4 p.m. when they host West Texas power Lubbock Monterey at the Lee diamond.

Midland High will join the Rebels on Saturday for a pair of double-headers. The Bulldogs travel to Monterey for two games, beginning at 1 p.m. while Lee travels to Monahan for another 1 p.m. twinbill.

Midland High will make its home debut at 4 p.m. Monday when they host Snyder. The Bulldogs defeated Snyder, 3-1, to open the season last Monday in Snyder. That game was originally scheduled for the Memorial Stadium diamond, but was switched to Snyder because of a wet field in Midland. Monday's game with the Tigers was scheduled for Snyder, but now has been switched as Midland High's home debut.

Lee will be back in action Tuesday against Monterey in Lubbock at 4 p.m. Lee is also 1-0 on the year after a 4-3 win over Lubbock Coronado Tuesday at the Lee diamond.

Lee and MHS will host the Tournament of Champions Friday and Saturday at Cub Stadium.

Both Lee and Midland High got route going performances from the pitching staffs in the openers. Midland High's Mark Hewitt had 14 strikeouts and a four-hitter against Snyder while Randy Velarde went the distance for Lee against Coronado, allowing only four hits.

Nicklaus now putting up the numbers

LAUDERHILL, Fla. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus came into the start of his Florida swing with the idea, as he put it, "the time has come to start putting some numbers on the board."

The game's greatest player did so at the earliest opportunity.

He shot a 7-under-par 65 in gusty winds Thursday to grab a share of the first round lead in the $300,000 American Motors Inverrary Golf Classic, a 15-year veteran who scored the last of his three PGA Tour victories five years ago.

"Obviously, I played very well," said Nicklaus, who was opening a string of three consecutive tournament appearances as the final preparations for his annual assault on the Masters in Augusta.

Nicklaus, holder of a record 17 major professional titles, broke the only real slump of his legendary career with record-setting victories last year in the U.S. Open and the PGA. He took a long break from competition and was not overly concerned that he'd failed to score a finish in the top 10 in any West Coast tournament this year.

"When you take five months off, it takes a little time to get it back,"

Nicklaus said. "But now it's time for me to start getting tournament-sharp."

And he very obviously felt the 65 was a major step toward that goal.

"My best round since the PGA (last fall)," he said. "For the conditions, it was a very good round."

The conditions were difficult. The winds were announced as gusting to 30 miles per hour, but they may have been higher. They were strong enough to blow down a tree on the fourth hole at the 7,129-yard Inverrary Golf Club course.

"It was not an easy day to play," Nicklaus said. "I'm kind of surprised the scores were as low as they are."

But, generally, they weren't all that low. Charles Coody, with a 67, and Curtis Strange, with a 68, were the only men in the field within 1 stroke of the co-leaders.

Andy Bean, a runaway winner last week in the Bay Hill Classic, topped a big group at 69 that also included Tom Kite, Gobby Gilbert, Morris Hatafsky, Jim Chaney, Dan Frickey and Barney Thompson.

Johnny Miller, who won this event last year when it was known as the Jackie Gleason-Inverrary Classic, managed a 70. Gleason no longer is associated with the tournament.

Nicklaus, a three-time winner on this golf course, played his frontside in 34, two under. It was, he said, "about as high as I could have shot. It was kind of frustrating. I kept hitting it close to the hole and missing the putts."

But things turned around dramatically on his back nine, the tougher side and playing into the winds.

He shot 31 — with a bogey — "and that was about the best I could have gotten out of it," he said.

He bounced a tee shot off a tree back into the fairway, dropped a 40-footer for birdie, once chipped in front 60 feet and used only 10 putts over his back nine.

"An interesting round," he said.

He started that backside flurry with a couple of shots close to the flags that were bent almost double by the winds. Those produced birdies. He also birdied the next one, from about 15 feet.

The 40-footer came on the next hole and made it four birdies in a row.

Red Sox are still after Carlton Fisk

By The Associated Press

Don't count out Boston in the Carlton Fisk sweepstakes.

The Red Sox have been vigorously pursuing Fisk in an effort to re-sign the veteran catcher, who was declared a free agent in an arbitration decision last month.

General Manager Haywood Sullivan said Thursday night that the Red Sox would offer Fisk a four-year, guaranteed contract. He said the proposed contract includes several incentive clauses, such as playing in 140 games and making the All-Star team, that could make it worth up to $3 million.

The Toronto Blue Jays and the Chicago White Sox also have expressed strong interest in signing Fisk, who has been with Boston for nine years.

Jim Essian, a catcher who already has signed with the White Sox as a free agent, was one Chicago player not enthused about the prospect of Fisk joining the team.

"I hope he signs somewhere else so he doesn't come here and catch all the games," Essian said Thursday. "It's not going to break my heart if he comes here, but if he does, I'd expect to be traded."

Fisk reportedly was in San Diego, Calif., with his agent, Jerry Kapstein, today and was expected to make a decision on which team to sign with by this weekend.

Another Kapstein client, pitcher Dennis Leonard of the Kansas City Royals, said his 75 victories in the past four years should make him worth more than the $180,000 a year he has been getting.

Leonard, 20-11 for the Royals in 1980, said he probably will become a free agent this year unless the Royals sign him before the end of spring training.

"I read where so-and-so is making $600,000 a year. I look at what he's done and what I've done and I say, 'Geez, if he's worth that, I'm probably worth more,'" Leonard said.

The Royals have not offered a new contract to Leonard, but say they will make a "legitimate offer" based on how much money other pitchers are making.

At other spring training sites, much of the attention was focused on how previously injured players are faring in their comeback attempts.

Reggie Smith of the Los Angeles Dodgers, coming back from a shoulder operation, was not expected to participate in an intrasquad game, but he cracked two singles as his team won 2-1.

John Stearns of the New York Mets, recovering from two operations on his fractured right index finger, took 50 swings in batting practice and declared afterwards that he would continue to do so daily. Ten days ago, he had to quit after only two swings.

Bake McBride arrived at the Philadelphia Phillies camp after receiving permission to report late because of the opening of his liquor business in St. Louis. He was unable to test his recovery from a broken thumb, however, because of rain in Clearwater, Fla.

Hamilton upsets Santee for world skate crown

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Scott Hamilton didn't ask for much, just "5.9s and a standing ovation," after his free-skate program at the World Figure Skating Championship.

He got both the high marks, out of a possible score of 6, and a jubilant response from the crowd Thursday night while winning the world title.

Hamilton exuberantly skating his way past his friend, companion and rival, David Santee, who placed second, Igor Bobrin, of the Soviet Union, was third, Robert Wagenhoffer, of Fontainebleau, Calif., was 10th.

"The crowd was excellent," said Hamilton, 22, of Bowling Green, Ohio, who loves to play to the audience and always draws tremendous applause.

"When I hit the last bit of the program, they were already coming up. And that's what they did at the Olympics last year. It's the only two times that's happened to me," he said.

Winning the world championship was "like a dream," and was a prize he intended to savor — especially since the joy of his national victory over Santee last month in San Diego was cut short when his father suffered a stroke during that competition.

Although Santee, who was first overall before the five-minute free-skate, said he was disappointed at not winning the gold medal, the Civic Center crowd was none the wiser.

"If I was going to lose, I'm glad to lose to Scotty, because not only is he a great skater, he is also a great person," Santee said later.

Peden copped a birdie putt on 18 Thursday to clinch his 1-up semifinal win over Bill Buchanan of Irving in the annual match play tournament.

Fisher's win was only slightly easier, as he beat Henry Richards of Jacksboro 2 and 1.

Playing along with the championship contenders will be Blake West of Albuquerque, N.M., and Bill St. Clair of Muleshoe, the finalists for the consolation prize.

Roy Peden gains finals by defeating Buchanan

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Defending champion Roy Peden of Kermit and Lee Fisher meet for the title today in the championship match of the Life Begins at 40 golf tournament.

Peden copped a birdie putt on 18 Thursday to clinch his 1-up semifinal win over Bill Buchanan of Irving in the annual match play tournament.

Fisher's win was only slightly easier, as he beat Henry Richards of Jacksboro 2 and 1.

Playing along with the championship contenders will be Blake West of Albuquerque, N.M., and Bill St. Clair of Muleshoe, the finalists for the consolation prize.

The course will run out and back along Farm Road 868 on asphalt surface. Volunteers are needed to help with scoring and aid station.

The two-mile run features five divisions of competition from 12 and under to 40 and over. The 10-K run has divisions from 19 and under to 40 and over.

Runners will also be able to pre-register on race day, beginning at 6:30 a.m. at Cub Stadium.

The race course begins and ends at Cub Stadium.

Volunteers needed, JA group told

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the federal government looking for ways to reduce spending, volunteers from business and industry will have to step forward as never before to take up the slack in caring for people in need, says Xerox chairman Peter McCollough.

McCollough was keynote speaker Thursday at the National Business Leadership Conference, sponsored by Junior Achievement Inc. and attended by some 1,800 business persons and junior achievers from across the country.

Seven new members of the Business Hall of Fame were announced at the meeting, which also featured a pair of panel discussions on the comparative roles of government and business in the free enterprise system.

McCollough discussed the development of the volunteer spirit in America, beginning with the earliest settlers whose government was an ocean away and couldn't be expected to step in and help when problems arose.

As a result, the people learned to depend on one another and to volunteer their efforts to help one another when need arose.

"Through ingenuity and hard work they carved out a new society," said McCollough. "Volunteerism took roots in American soil out of social necessity and human need."

Today the volunteer is an important part of the American way of life, as shown by the many who volunteer for such causes as Junior Achievement, United Way and others, he said.

"Many of us don't realize that a large share of social responsibility in America rests with agencies supported primarily by voluntary contributions by private citizens. And I believe that that large share is going to have to get larger," McCollough said.

And at the same time, inflation is forcing more wives to work, thinning the ranks of volunteers, he said.

Local government cannot bear the burden alone and federal government is cutting back, he noted.

"What that means, then, is that someone has to pick up the slack... more people from the business community, from large corporations all the way down to the thriving small businesses that are the keystone of the economy," he said.

And McCollough quoted David Kearns, Xerox president, as stating, "We cannot walk away from our economic problems and assign them to the government for fixing... The government isn't them. It's us, and we all must share the burden."

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., pollster Lou Harris and J. Richard Munro, president of Time, Inc., were featured at a morning panel discussion. A second group scheduled Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla.; John J. O'Connell, president of the Air Line Pilots Association; former Ambassador Robert S. Strauss; Robert P. Straetz, head of Textron, and David M. Roderick, chief executive of U.S. Steel.

Newly selected for inclusion in the six-year-old business hall of fame were Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan; Edwin H. Land, inventor of self-processing film; land developer James W. Rouse; Pierre S. du Pont, builder of du Pont Chemical; Andrew W. Mellon, founder of Gulf Oil and other firms; Owen D. Young, former head of General Electric and organizer of Radio Corp. of America, and Willis H. Carrier, founder of the air conditioning firm that bears his name.

A junior achievement group from Louisville, Ky., was selected as the nation's most successful.

Dan Herp, production manager of the group, explained that it had produced and sold clocks made from model railroad cars, turning a good profit and allowing it to make a substantial donation to Junior Achievement.

Legal aid opposition renewed

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The Reagan administration's proposal to abolish federal funds for free legal aid for the poor reopens a fight that Reagan fought and lost a decade ago as governor of California.

A spokesman for Reagan's Office of Management and Budget said Thursday that the president will propose eliminating all federal funds for the Legal Services Corp., an independent agency which has a $321 million budget for 1981 and a request for a $399 million budget for the 1982 fiscal year.

The Legal Services Corp. is an independent agency which provides free legal aid for more than a million poor Americans annually through hundreds of legal aid organizations across the country.

One of the organizations dependent on the Legal Services Corp. for funds is California Rural Legal Assistance, the largest of 28 legal aid groups in California supported by the federal program.

California Rural Legal Assistance was a thorn in Reagan's side during most of his tenure as governor.

It won injunctions which blocked Reagan's attempts to trim $400 million in Medi-Cal benefits for the poor, and it led or joined in a dozen lawsuits which ultimately succeeded in invalidating or easing the impact on major provisions of Reagan's welfare reform program such as stringent residency requirements.

In December 1971, Reagan struck back, using the authority then granted governors to veto federal grants to legal service agencies in their states.

Reagan vetoed a $1.88 million grant to CRLA, and followed that action with a series of accusations that CRLA attorneys had engaged in an "illegal relationship" with Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers' Organizing Committee.

Among other things, Reagan accused the CRLA of "nefarious schemes" such as coaching witnesses to give misleading testimony, "encouraging falsehoods," and funneling federal funds illegally into Chavez' battles for recognition of his union by resistant California growers.

But Reagan's veto was in effect overturned by a federal official who now holds a key post in the Reagan administration, Deputy Secretary of Defense Frank Carlucci.

In 1971, Carlucci was director of President Nixon's

Office of Economic Opportunity, which funded the legal services agencies. After Reagan vetoed CRLA funds, Carlucci issued a second short-term grant to CRLA to keep the agency operating temporarily and convened a special commission of three state Supreme Court judges from other states to investigate Reagan's charges against CRLA.

The commission reported that Reagan's charges against CRLA "were unfounded and without merit" and had "unfairly and irresponsibly" misrepresented CRLA activities.

Reagan withdrew his veto of the funds for CRLA, under pressure from Carlucci, and never again challenged it. However, CRLA has continued its battle against Reagan and his successor, Democratic Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

Although an estimated 90 percent of CRLA's 10,000 cases annually are individual suits for the indigent, particularly landlord-tenant and wage cases, it has continued its class action suits.

Currently CRLA has one class action suit against the Brown administration before the California Supreme Court.

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Cronkite is retiring as the nation's most beloved anchorman tonight, leaving his familiar seat at "CBS Evening News" to Dan Rather after 19 years of assuring Americans that "that's the way it is."

Cronkite, recognized in a poll taken in the mid-1970s as the most trusted man in America, leaves as the pre-eminent figure in television journalism.

"He has been an absolute giant, and all of us in the business owe him a great deal," said Roone Arledge, president of ABC News and Sports, whose "World News Tonight" stands to gain from Cronkite's departure.

The competition for Cronkite's faithful began several days ago, though neither Arledge nor William J. Small, NBC News' president, expects any sudden shift in viewer preference.

"I think a lot of people underestimate Dan Rather's ability and popularity," said Small, a former CBS News executive. "I don't see any immediate change. If one does come, it will be a matter of months."

Rather takes over as "Evening News" anchorman Monday night. His new contract was originally reported to be for $8 million over five years, but a recent report put the pact at $20 million over 10 years.

Cronkite, at 64, will continue as a CBS news correspondent and sometime commentator, and will anchor "Universe," the network's new science magazine.

In a full-page advertisement in some newspapers today, CBS presented a picture of Cronkite above the phrase "Introducing Our Newest Correspondent."

The decision to give up the "Evening News" assignment he took April 16, 1962, was his own, Cronkite said, and "I don't doubt that I am going to miss this a great, great deal."

The selection of Rather to replace Cronkite touched off a chain reaction that elevated Ed Bradley to "60 Minutes," where Rather had been co-editor since 1975, and sent Roger Mudd — once considered Cronkite's heir-apparent — to NBC.

Ironically, Rather and Mudd may someday compete as rival anchor-men.

"At the time," said William Leonard, CBS News' president and the man who made the choice, "the only other serious alternative was to team Dan and Roger. I just wasn't able to put that package together."

Cronkite, a former foreign correspondent for United Press, joined CBS News in July 1950, and replaced Douglas Edwards as "Evening News" anchorman when the program was still 15 minutes long.

He developed a reputation for a calmness that became tinged with emotion only in the strongest circumstances, as in the death of President John F. Kennedy.

Frank Reynolds, anchorman for ABC's "World News Tonight," called Cronkite a "symbol of authority and responsibility." And John Chancellor, the NBC "Nightly News" anchorman, credited his long-time adversary with guiding television news toward "serious journalism without a lot of hokum."

Rather, tall and dark-haired at 49, will bring a new style to the "Evening News" flavored so long by Cronkite's avuncular personality.

Rather "will be different from Walter, and that will probably lead to a churning effect for a while," predicted ABC's Arledge.

"I think in time, Dan could be as formidable a competitor as Walter," said Arledge, whose own efforts to attract Rather to ABC helped make the new CBS anchorman perhaps TV's highest-paid newsmen.

Painters were to replace Cronkite's beige "Evening News" background with a blue-gray set tailored more to Rather.

Meanwhile, CBS was stressing Rather's experience — he was in Dallas when Kennedy was assassinated in 1963, he covered the Nixon White House, he was with "60 Minutes" when the program became the most popular in prime-time.

"I suppose I am apprehensive," said Leonard, "because others in the news organization are apprehensive, which is natural."

"But I'll look at the upside; it has the potential for that, too," Rather's boss added. "CBS News has been No. 1, and I guess it will be that after Dan takes over."
