Judy executed Blames himself for his fate

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (AP) — Joking with his guards and blaming himself for his fate, 24-year-old Steven T. Judy went willingly to his death in Indiana's black oak electric chair early today for murdering a mother and her three small children nearly two years ago.

"I don't hold no grudges. This is my doing, sorry it happened," were the last words of the blond, blue-eyed murderer before two powerful surges of electricity wracked his body and he was pronounced dead at 12:12 a.m. CST.

"He was very relaxed. I don't think it hurt," said his foster father, Robert R. Carr. "When it hit him, he flinched. Then you could see movement in his fingers."

Judy, who resisted appeals, saying he preferred death to life in prison, became the fourth person executed in this country since the U.S. Supreme Court revived the death penalty in 1976. His was the first execution in 20 years in Indiana's electric chair, made from wood that once served as a gallows.

Department of Corrections spokesman Tom Hanlon said Judy was "very calm" and walked the six paces from his holding cell to the chair "very quietly" and unassisted just after midnight.

Carr said that before Judy was taken to the chair, he had received a final phone call from a girl in Texas named "Jeanne." He then asked for "photos of his new haircut" where he had been shaved to make room for an electrode, which was soaked in salt brine to make it more conductive. "They sent for a photographer and took the pictures he wanted," Carr added.

Attorney Steven L. Harris, who witnessed the execution from behind a glass partition along with Carr and state officials, said that as Judy walked to the chair, he pointed to where his trousers had been cut so another electrode could be attached to his leg, and quipped: "I'm going to send the state of Indiana a bill for $15."

Just before he was strapped into the chair and blindfolded, Hanlon said, Judy took off his wristwatch and asked that it be given to a fellow death row inmate who was his closest friend.

Then Judy was strapped in, the guards backed away, "there was a pause for about 10 seconds, and he was electrocuted," Harris said.

Hanlon said two surges of electricity were set through Judy's body — first a charge of 2,300 volts for 10 seconds, then a charge of 500 volts for 20 seconds.

Duckworth to pull the switch that triggers the lethal current; but Hanlon refused to confirm who had done it. Reporters, in accordance with Indiana law, were kept far from the death scene in another part of the prison.

Hanlon said Judy's body was released to the county coroner. Judy's foster mother, Mary Carr, said Judy would be buried Thursday.

Judy was abandoned by his parents and, at the age of 13, was confined to Central State Hospital following sexual attacks on women. Within two years he was released on "convalescent leave" to the Carrs, who became his foster parents.

By 1979, Judy was well-known to Indiana authorities as a troublemaker and he was arrested one day after the bodies of the mother and her three children were found. Judy broke down and wept when the charges against him were read and later admitted his guilt on the witness stand.

Gov. Robert D. Orr, who had waited at his Indianapolis mansion by a special telephone line to the prison in case Judy asked for a stay, said in a statement after the execution, "I am at peace with myself because I know I have met my responsibilities under the law and because I believe justice has prevailed."

The governor and the state Clemency Commission had refused last week to delay the execution, because the request was made by the American Civil Liberties Union without Judy's endorsement. The U.S. Supreme Court on Friday had rejected the effort of another death row inmate to halt the execution.

As Judy went to his death, about 200 people opposed to capital punishment held a prayer vigil outside the gates of the century-old, fortress-like prison, its walls capped at strategic locations with guard towers. They carried candles, sang hymns and jeered Hanlon when he appeared to announce Judy's death.

Also waiting outside the gates were members of a pro-death-penalty group called "Protect the Innocent," whose members include Mark Chasteen, ex-husband of Terry Lee Chasteen, the woman Judy raped and strangled in April 1979, and father of the three small children Judy drowned.

Chasteen said that he felt "hate and bitterness" toward Judy and wished he could have witnessed the execution.

Judy had spent the early part of the day in an emotional visit with his foster parents and their four children.

"He broke down three or four times, especially when we left, but I tried everything I know to talk him out of it," Carr said.

"He really had a hard time saying goodbye to my kids," Mrs. Carr said. "He said, 'I thought I was ready for this, but I wasn't.'"

For dinner, Judy asked for and received prime ribs of beef, two lobster tails, two baked potatoes with sour cream and a dinner roll. But prison officials refused his request to wash the meal down with four cold beers.

Three other convicted murderers have been executed in the United States in the last four years — Gary Gilmore in Utah on Jan. 17, 1977, John Spink in Florida on May 25, 1979, and Jesse Bishop in Nevada on Oct. 22, 1979.

West Germans want U.S.-Soviet arms talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher opened high-level talks here today amid expectations he would make a strong appeal to the Reagan administration for a resumption of U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms limitation negotiations.

After a morning meeting and a luncheon with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr., Genscher was scheduled to meet this afternoon with President Reagan.

West Germany is the key military ally of the United States, and American officials said before Genscher's arrival Sunday night that they expected defense issues would dominate his talks here.

Of prime concern to the West German government is the Reagan administration's attitude toward NATO's December 1979 decision to modernize NATO's medium-range nuclear weapons in Europe.

The European countries of NATO approved the decision because it was coupled with a U.S. pledge to seek negotiations simultaneously with the Soviet Union aimed at limiting such nuclear weapons by both sides.

The two superpowers have had several rounds of discussions on the subject, but the negotiations were adjourned late last year.

During British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's visit here two weeks ago, Reagan reaffirmed the U.S. commitment to both aspects of the NATO decision — installing the nuclear weapons and negotiating limits on their numbers.

However, West Germany and other NATO countries privately have expressed doubts about the new administration's resolve to enter into serious talks with the Soviets on the issue.

Recently, there has been strong opposition to the missile deployment by leftist members of Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's Social Democratic party.

In an apparent attempt to strengthen the hand of this faction, Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev sent a message to Schmidt outlining Moscow's recent proposals for a moratorium on medium-range missile deployment. The message was sent on the eve of Genscher's departure for Washington.

Both the United States and West Germany have taken the position that a moratorium would only preserve the current nuclear superiority of the Soviets in Europe.

The Soviets are reported to have 200 SS20 missiles targeted at Western Europe, while the U.S. deployment in Europe of 108 Pershing II and 464 ground-launched cruise missiles is not scheduled to begin until 1983.

Schmidt said he does not believe the Soviet proposals for missile freeze go far enough. But in a recent broadcast interview, he said he believes deployment of the American warheads can still be avoided.

Genscher's visit also is taking place against a background of Saturday's announcement by the West German Defense Minister that the Bonn government intends to cancel or postpone several major defense projects.

The austerity measures reflect the country's new economic difficulties, and Genscher is expected to offer forceful assurances that they are not a sign of a weakened West German commitment to the NATO alliance.

Youth murdered at Disneyland

ANAHEIM (AP) — A man and a woman were booked for investigation of murder after what appeared to be the first slaying in the 25-year history of Disneyland, officials said.

Police Sgt. Ted Labahn said Mel C. Yorda, 18, of Riverside, was stabbed to death during a fight that erupted in the Tomorrowland section of the amusement park at 10 p.m. Saturday during a private party sponsored by Rohr Corp.

Taunting letters mailed by 'killer'

ATLANTA (AP) — Someone claiming to be the Atlanta child killer has written taunting letters sprinkled with police jargon, and a man making the same claim has been telephoning the minister of a church near the site where the 20th body was found.

The latest developments have fueled some existing theories about the case that has baffled investigators and terrorized the black community for 20 months.

The police jargon in the letter, written to reporters at The Atlanta Constitution, could spur speculation that the killer or killers pose as police to gain the trust of victims.

The minister said the body was found near the church soon after a man who said he was the killer contacted him on the church's 24-hour help line. There has been evidence that the murderer responds to publicity, and the minister had issued a well-publicized plea for the killer to contact him.

The letters purportedly written by the killer were disclosed Sunday by The Atlanta Constitution and The Atlanta Journal. The newspapers said two letters had been received last month but were not published at the request of police.

The newspapers said they decided to publish only part of one letter because it contained a veiled threat that another child may be killed Tuesday during a benefit concert for the investigation.

Television station WAGA, however, reported Sunday that one of the letters was signed "ghost killer" and included a phrase suggesting the writer was responsible for more deaths than have been attributed to him.

The letter contained police jargon and phrases taunting police, the newscast said.

It was not immediately known how Channel 5 got the letter.

Some here have speculated that the killer or killers may pose as police or authority figures to win the trust of their victims.

The CBS affiliate said the letter referred by initials to three Constitution reporters who have written about the cases, and that the newspapers responded by placing a classified ad in the personals section, addressed to "GK" for Ghost Killer.

The ad, WAGA said, read: "Attention GK, received your message, your information informed and challenged us. Send us another verse and chapter." It was signed with the initials of the three reporters.

The station said the one-page letter was neatly hand-written, entirely in verse.

Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown said Sunday he would have no comment on any aspect of the investigation of the 20 deaths and one disappearance, including "any letter that may have been received."

The Rev. Earl Paulk, pastor of Chapel Hill Harvester Church, said Sunday that the body of Curtis Walker, 13, which was found Friday, was "as near as you can come to the church without being on the property."

Paulk, who asked publicly for the killer to contact him through the church's 24-hour help line, said he thinks that whoever is responsible for the slaying responded to his plea by placing the body near the church.

"We made an appeal on Feb. 14," he said. "On the next Monday, I talked to a person several times who said he was responsible. He just seemed to be credible, to be the kind of person who had something to say and was looking for a public way to end it."

A fireman spotted Walker's body floating in the South River in DeKalb County on Friday. Medical examiners said the body had been in the river since around Feb. 19, the day he disappeared.

Paulk said his last contact with the man claiming to be the killer came Friday, after the discovery of Walker's body. "He called saying he wanted to see if my (telephone) lines were tapped," Paulk said. "I told him that to my knowledge they were not."

There has been other evidence that the killer or killers respond to publicity.

For example, soon after DeKalb County police officials criticized the progress of the Atlanta police task force investigation, the body of 11-year-old Patrick Baltazar was found behind an office parking lot in DeKalb.

Meanwhile, hundreds of people in at least four states attended services for the child victims after Georgia Gov. George Busbee declared Sunday a "statewide day of prayer for all children."

Federal loan cuts planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fewer federal loans would be available for home-buyers, farmers, students and small businesses under a Reagan administration proposal to curb the government's role as a low-interest lender.

President Reagan is proposing an 11 percent — or nearly $35 billion — reduction in new loans and loan guarantees through 1982 from the levels anticipated by former President Carter.

Budget director David Stockman acknowledged that the president's proposal would mean that some people would have to borrow money at higher interest rates or that they would not borrow at all.

But, he said, as loan demand falls and reduced federal lending makes more money available to private lenders, commercial interest rates will fall from their current high levels.

Among the programs that would be affected are the Federal Housing Administration, which insures home mortgages; student loan programs; the Rural Electrification Administration; Farmers Home Administration; farm commodity loans; Veterans Administration; Small Business Administration and the Export-Import Bank.

Cuts also would be made in lending for foreign military sales, energy development, rural housing, consumer cooperatives, housing rehabilitation, economic development, veterans of the District of Columbia, aircraft purchases, merchant shipbuilding and credit unions.

Most of the proposed cuts require congressional approval.

Stockman said Saturday that the administration was furthering the proposal to return greater control over allocation of credit to private markets.

He said the federal government accounts for about one-third of all lending activity in the country, its outstanding loans exceed $800 billion — compared with $200 billion in 1970 — and new credit is being extended at a rate of $150 billion a year.

"It's in that context of just explosive growth that we feel it is critically important to begin to reassess and wind down this enormous increase in federal credit activity," he said.

For fiscal year 1981, the Carter administration projected that the government would extend $154 billion in new credit, including $58 billion in direct subsidized loans and $96 billion in guarantees that the government will cover private-loan defaults. For 1982, the former administration projected new credit extensions would total $149 billion.

Reagan's proposals, most of which require congressional approval, would cut credit by $13.6 billion in 1981 and $21 billion in 1982.

Stockman predicted that planned reductions for the FHA and the Government National Insurance Association, which insures mortgage purchases, would have "absolutely no impact" on new housing starts.

"We're fooling ourselves by thinking we're solving our economic problems by giving someone a loan guarantee," he said. "You only knock someone else out (of a loan)."

The administration identified many of the proposed credit cutbacks last month, when it proposed reducing federal spending in 1982 by $41.4 billion, a figure recently revised to about $45 billion. Only $35 billion in proposed cuts has been detailed.

Some planned credit reductions — such as in the FHA, merchant shipbuilding and public housing — were revealed for the first time Saturday. They will be included in the revised budget Reagan plans to send Congress on Tuesday.

Reductions in direct federally subsidized loans can produce significant budget savings. Reagan's proposal to impose family income eligibility requirements on the student loan program, for example, is estimated to save $800 million in 1982.

However, reductions in loan guarantees provides relatively minor budget savings because of the low rate of default.

Israeli ship sinks

NEW YORK (AP) — Hampered by gale-force winds and violent seas, Coast Guard crews searched through the night for 21 crewmen of an Israeli cargo ship that sank off Bermuda. Three crewmen were killed. Eleven crewmen were pulled from the 55-degree seas after the bulk carrier Mezada went down Sunday 96 miles southeast of Bermuda with 35 people aboard, said Coast Guard Petty Officer Edward Girard in New York.

Eight to 10 people were reported seen "holding onto debris with their life jackets on." Petty Officer Greg Creedon said life rafts were dropped in the vicinity, but rough seas apparently were keeping the men from getting into them.

Neither the Coast Guard nor the Navy had sighted the remaining sailors after the rescues. Girard said he held out hope that the others were still alive, but cool temperatures stirred fears that more crew members would die of exposure before they could be rescued.

The ship, carrying a load of potash, began taking on water early Sunday and sent a distress call. The SOS was picked up at 6:36 a.m. EST by a Maryland Port Administration marine radio station in Baltimore. "(We're) taking on water very fast. Estimate one-half hour. Crew members taken to lifeboats," came the SOS, according to station spokesman Earl Johnson.

Crewmen reportedly jumped into two life rafts and two life boats as the ship sank at about 9:15 a.m.

Johnson said he spoke with the ship for some time and notified the Coast Guard. He said the Mezada gave its exact location in its first SOS and asked all ships in the area to come to its aid.

Waves 18 to 24 feet high and winds reaching 47 knots complicated the rescue attempt, Girard said. During the night, "flares and nightlites" were being used to illuminate the area," he said.

Johnson said he learned before the ship sank that the vessel had damaged a hatch cover in a storm several days ago and was trying to make it to Norfolk, Va., for repairs Tuesday.

Prayer vigil held outside prison gates

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (AP) — About 200 death penalty foes, many of them carrying candles and singing hymns, held a prayer vigil in sub-freezing temperatures Sunday night outside the gates of the Indiana State Prison.

Judy, 24, condemned to die for the slaying of Terry Lee Chasteen and her three children, refused to fight his execution. He was put to death in Indiana's aging electric chair early today.

Members of another pro-capital punishment group, Protect the Innocent, also gathered outside the prison gate. That group was formed in response to the killings by a long-time friend of Mark Chasteen, who was divorced from Mrs. Chasteen at the time of the slayings.

At the church prayer meeting, Mary Carr, tears streaming down her face, said, "Steve totally believes there is a better life for him. I know there are people out there who don't believe he deserves it."

"Forgive us for the words left unsaid and the things left undone which might have prevented tonight," Felton said. He also offered prayers for the Chasteen family.

Evans will give program on crater

ODESSA — Glen L. Evans, the geologist who supervised the original excavation of the Odessa Meteor Crater from 1939 to 1941, will give a program on the crater Thursday at 8 p.m. at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin Student Lounge.

Evans, a geological consultant for The University of Texas and several other institutions, has served as a vice president with the Louisiana Land and Exploration Company, both in the United States and in Canada.

His program will include slides and photographs of the original excavation of the Odessa crater, as well as a discussion of its significance in the study of meteorites.

The Meteor Crater Task force of the Odessa Chamber of Commerce has adopted a four-phase program to restore the crater's site. During Phase One activities at this time, including the recent removal of a deteriorated museum building from the area by the Ector County Parks Department, the building site will be used for a roadside-park-type table facility.

Other activities of Phase One include paving of the roadway to the crater, a paved pedestrian path through the crater, information signs and landscaping.

Bitterman's colleagues face same threat of execution

BOGOTA, Columbia (AP) — All 120 members of the Summer Institute of Linguistics here, many of them Americans, find themselves under threat of death following the execution of Lancaster, Pa., linguist Chester A. Bitterman 3rd by urban guerrillas.

The army has assigned soldiers to guard the institute's facilities in the capital of Bogota and its field headquarters at Loma Linda, 300 miles south-east of Bogota, a high ranking army officer told The Associated Press.

The institute said Sunday any of its staff who wish to leave the country are free to go.

At least 50 persons have been arrested in the search for the M-19 guerrillas who held Bitterman captive for 47 days, then shot him through the heart Saturday morning. The guerrillas said the institute was a CIA operation and that Bitterman was a spy. Bitterman's body, covered with a guerrilla flag, was left in a hijacked minibus.

Hours before he was shot, a guerrilla spokesman told an institute negotiator all of the institute's workers would face the same fate if the institute doesn't leave Colombia. The institute has insisted ever since Bitterman was abducted that it will stay on under a contract until 1995 unless the Colombian government says otherwise.

The institute does not have to leave Colombia, and specially "under pressure of an atrocious crime," said the Colombian minister of government, German Zea.

The Institute's 120 workers in Colombia include about 40 linguists who live with Indians in order to learn their language and to translate the Bible.

Bitterman had told friends that he wanted to be buried in Colombia should he die here. Saturday, just about nine hours after the guerrillas murdered him, Bitterman's body was buried at the institute's field headquarters on a lonely windswept plain at Loma Linda.

His widow, Brenda, and their two small girls, were at the funeral along with dozens of institute workers and representatives from the U.S. Embassy.

The embassy called the execution "savage and cowardly." Colombian President Julio Cesar Turbay said it was a "vile act."

President Reagan sent a letter to Bitterman's family in Lancaster offering his condolences and promising "to resist terrorist blackmail."

A communique delivered Sunday night to Bogota radio stations said the M-19 disavows any role in Bitterman's death.

"Our movement didn't execute Chester," said the communique slipped under the door of several radio stations throughout the country. "He was killed to make it appear that we are divided but we are more united than ever."

There was no way to determine whether the communique was authentic.

Bitterman's kidnappers claimed that they were dissident members of M-19 who broke away from the main body because the guerrilla leaders had strayed from the goal of overthrowing the Colombian government.

In a statement Sunday, the Summer Institute of Linguistics again denied any involvement with the CIA.

"The institute has no connection whatsoever with the CIA, the United States government, oil companies or any other commercial interests," the institute's statement said.

"We don't understand God's plan that permitted Bitterman's death at the hands of the group that seized him, and after seven weeks in captivity, but we do know that even this event will somehow serve God's glory."

Poland faces more labor unrest

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A meeting between independent union leader Lech Walesa and Premier Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski was set for today, a government spokesman said, as the threat of a new outbreak of labor unrest loomed over Poland.

Spokesmen for the 10 million-member union, Solidarity, formed during last summer's labor rebellion, would not confirm the report, but said Walesa was in Warsaw after leaving a farmers' meeting in Poznan.

The meeting would be the first between the two men since Jaruzelski took office last month in a government shakeup spurred by the unrest.

Jaruzelski appealed then for a 90-day moratorium on strikes to give the government a breathing spell to tackle the acute economic crisis. Solidarity leaders agreed informally to the three-month truce, but the chapter in Lodz, Poland's second largest city, is threatening a warning strike Tuesday as the spearhead of a possible province-wide shutdown. The local is demanding reinstatement for five fired hospital workers. It claims government officials have refused to discuss the firings, which it said were unexplained.

The labor movement is also disturbed about police summonses served last week on Jacek Kuron and Adam Michnik, two leading dissidents who are also advisers to Solidarity. Four other dissidents not affiliated with Solidarity were indicted on charges of endangering the state.

The government's new hard line followed a meeting in Moscow last week between Soviet and Polish Communist Party leaders at which the Soviets expressed confidence the Poles would "liquidate the perils" threatening their communist system.

Meanwhile, two demonstrations in Warsaw Sunday underlined the loosening of official restraints following last summer's labor revolt. Observers said neither the worker-student rally at the University of Warsaw nor the right-wing meeting at nearby Rozdroze Square would have been permitted a year ago.

About 2,000 students and workers assembled at the university to commemorate the month-long student riots there 13 years ago after the expulsion of two students. The student-worker alliance was in contrast to the 1968 outbreak when the police recruited workers to help quell the rioters.

"We, the workers, have to take under our protection the students and this campus. This is our duty," Zbigniew Bujk, the leader of Solidarity's Warsaw chapter, told the crowd.

The participants signed a document commemorating the riots and cemented it into the wall of the university's geographic institute.

The second demonstration, by about 2,000 people a dozen blocks away, had anti-Semitic and anti-Zionist overtones. It was organized by a new national group called Grunwald, an alliance of former soldiers, wartime underground fighters and others who said they were "victims of Stalinism."

They put up a memorial at the Justice Ministry headquarters which housed the security services during the early years of communist rule.

"In this place, in the years 1949-1953, in the cellars of this house Polish patriots and communists were tortured, persecuted and murdered — the victims of the Zionist clique of Jakub Berman and Roman Zambrowski," their plague said.

Berman and Zambrowski were Jews who headed the state security services that carried out the purges ordered by the Stalinist leadership.

Meet Kenneth Woods

Kenneth Woods is one of Medical Weight Control's most devoted clients. Wouldn't you be, if you lost 66 pounds in 75 days, were not hungry, and could continue eating most of your favorite foods in generous amounts? Medical Weight Control offers numerous food programs so that each client's individual needs may be met. The plan used by Kenneth Wood that worked so successfully was a low carbohydrate, low-cholesterol, food program. Says Kenneth, "I was amazed that I was never hungry and did not crave sweets as I had in the past."

The guidance of a professional medical staff is vital to safe, fast weight loss. Doctors and nurses screen clients with an EKG and blood tests.

The program itself acts as a natural appetite suppressant, as the body burns its own body fat for energy. No drugs or shots are ever used. The simple dietary program designed by physicians and nutritionists, allows the client to eat basically the same foods the rest of the family eats, or to go out to eat as often as desired. An extra bonus that Kenneth Wood discovered was the disappearance of 9 inches off his waist alone. Clients ordinarily lose in just the right places since the body metabolizes its own fat.

MEET OMEGA SHAW

If you wonder why Omega Shaw is wearing this mischievous grin, it's because she has a secret. But today she's allowing her secret to be told. What 73 year old wouldn't be proud to lose 25 lbs. and 25 1/2 inches and drop 2 1/2 dress sizes? Omega came to Medical Weight Control to lose weight for health reasons. She knew that illnesses such as high blood pressure and arthritis are aggravated by carrying extra weight. She was particularly concerned about avoiding unnecessary health problems.

Today she weighs a mere 136 1/2 lbs. On Medical Weight Control's maintenance program she has gradually added extra foods that contain more calories and carbohydrates into her diet, so that she can avoid gaining the weight back. Omega's food program removed inches in just the right places. She lost 7 inches in the abdomen and 6 inches in the hips.

"As long as Omega stays within five pounds of her desired weight goal, she may come to the clinic for help at any time. She will remain thin and just keep right on smiling."

Money market blues

A couple of bills now being considered in Austin deserve serious thought because of what they can prevent.

The bills, offered by Sen. Grant Jones of Abilene and Rep. Bill Messer of Belton, propose the establishment of floating interest ceilings for consumer or commercial loans.

Last session, the legislature was forced to increase mortgage rate ceilings when it became apparent that if the ceiling was not hiked, home loans in Texas would become a thing of the past. Fortunately, the step taken by the Legislature remedied that problem.

But now a similar situation exists in the consumer and commercial credit industry. Briefly, when businessmen and lenders are forced by arbitrary ceilings to charge less interest on their loans and credit than they are required to pay on the money they borrow to do business, the system becomes unprofitable. No business can operate for long under such an arrangement.

That's what has evolved in Texas, industry officials and others say, but the bills offered up by Sen. Jones and Rep. Messer offer a potential solution.

Under their proposal, interest rates would be floated in relation to the weekly auction rate on six-month U.S. Treasury bills. The rate proposed would be twice the treasury bill interest rate up to a maximum of 30 percent on all loan contracts.

That doesn't mean interest rates would automatically escalate to 30 percent. Rather, they would float with the demand for loan money — higher when the demand was greater, lower when demand was less.

Further, the floating interest ceiling is needed to free up more money for home loans in the state and to help keep the business climate favorable. In its most basic form the interest ceiling change will benefit the worker whose job will stay available because loan money was on hand — and lent — for essential items like homes, automobiles, appliances and so forth.

Of course no one likes to borrow money at high interest rates. Unfortunately the economic picture in the United States has reached the point that if something isn't done soon the well for automobile and other consumer loans is going to go dry. When that occurs, we will be in big trouble.

We're not happy that a floating interest ceiling has become necessary. But that doesn't keep us from recognizing the urgency of this bill.

It's essential that the Legislature ensure the continuation of consumer and commercial loans. At this point, at least, the bill looks as though it would accomplish that in a manner that would provide enough safeguards for borrowers and lenders.

"WHAT MAKES YOU THINK I'M HATCHING SOMETHING?"

CHARLEY REESE

Government can eliminate benefits of free enterprise

Charley Reese

The General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress, has reported that public subsidy of mass transit systems has gotten out of hand and is headed toward a crisis.

It's nice that the GAO has once more discovered the obvious. More important than the dollars and cents, however, is the principle involved — namely, that cowardly politicians with access to the public purse will invariably run a good thing into the ground.

In the case of mass transit, you rider believe he is getting a bargain. He may pay 50 cents when the actual cost is $7. The other $6.50 is paid by taxes.

The American people would not be so easy to con if they would just remember two things: (1) nothing is free in this world; and (2) ultimately, the working man and woman pay every cent of every tax levied at every level.

You see, businesses don't pay taxes; they merely collect them, and most of the time they mark them up so that their prices are partially a profit margin on the taxes which are considered a cost of doing business. In other words, there is no way to sock it to big business; the politicians only sock it to the customers of big business. Business people try to tell their customers this truth, but the public has been so brainwashed by left-wingers, they seldom listen.

Now to return to the example of mass transit. The politician has already conned the public twice; once on the initial outlay and secondly by subsidizing the fare. Now the politician commits a third sin. Since he is not guided by either integrity or the necessity of making a profit, he uses the public money to buy votes and pay off political cronies through mismanagement. Management fees, insurance, and supplies are more often than not handed out as political favors; employee unions are given pretty much what they want. After all, the taxpayer's pocket has no bottom.

Such consequences are not accidents or instances of just the wrong people being elected. No, they are inevitable. It's an ingrained part of human nature that people act in what they perceive to be their own selfish interest. This principle works in the public sector and in the private sector.

In one sense, politically operated institutions like mass transit are successful. The goal is to enhance the political fortune of the politicians. In this they succeed. Of course, it's the unsuspecting public which pays the price.

The private sector works more efficiently because it is so structured that efficiency becomes the selfish interest of the managers and owners. They are rewarded for efficiency in the form of profits and wage increases; they are penalized by inefficiency in the form of losses and ultimately unemployment.

That's why whenever government enters the picture, whether by granting a monopoly, setting rates, or subsidizing failure as in the case of Chrysler Corp., all the benefits of the free enterprise system are destroyed.

No one — not socialist, communist, fascist or capitalist — has ever succeeded in repealing the laws of human nature.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Is Pakistan becoming next Iran for U.S.?

WASHINGTON — The Iranian crisis could be repeated all over again in neighboring Pakistan where the State Department's policy makers have hitched their wagon to a potential falling star — the hated military dictator, Muhammad Zia ul-Haq.

U.S. military aid to Zia has put the United States in the same box it was in two years ago in Iran. Like the late shah of Iran, Zia has alienated many of his people by harsh retribution against opponents.

Already, the volatile, frustrated Pakistani masses have been taking out their hostility on American families. In two recent episodes, American women were physically attacked by militants on the streets of Pakistani cities.

Secret foreign intelligence cables reviewed by my associates Jack Mitchell and Indy Badhwar report that "American nationals, particularly ladies," have been told "not to be alone in the Rawalpindi bazaar or walk alone in Islamabad." Americans have been cautioned about wearing clothes that pinpoint their nationality. They have also been warned to take precautions to protect their children on the way to and from school.

A recent "Important Notice to All Americans from the American Consulate General," dated Feb. 12, 1981, describes "two recent attacks on American women, one in Karachi on February 2 and the other in Islamabad on February 10."

The incident in Karachi involved the wife of an officer at the consulate general. "Two Pakistani males grabbed her from the rear, threw her against a wall, and began scratching and hitting her," the advisory reported. "She is an ugly American, and we are going to make you uglier," the two men were quoted as saying. "In Islamabad, 'the wife of an American associated with the Embassy was attacked by 18-20 Pakistani men,'" the advisory said. "They grabbed her, threw her to the ground, hit her in the mouth and eye, tore her clothes and... one of the Pakistanis cut her leg with a knife. During the entire incident, cars were passing but none stopped."

Needless to say, the State Department would like to downplay these incidents. Anything that might suggest the United States is backing the wrong horse in Pakistan is not made public. But when Americans are being roughed up on the streets because of their perceived link to the dictatorship, it's clear that something is wrong with our policy in Pakistan.

This coverup is unfortunately nothing new. The same hush-hush treatment was given to the events of Nov. 21, 1979, when a howling mob sacked and burned the American Embassy in Islamabad, killed two Marine guards and assaulted several American women.

In the interests of our policy of hear-no-evil, see-no-evil, speak-no-evil of the Zia dictatorship, the details of that bloody day have been dropped down the Orwellian Memory Hole at Foggy Bottom. Overshadowed by the Iranian hostage crisis, the Islamabad attack has been all but forgotten — except by those who suffered through it.

"Many of us are still affected emotionally and mentally by the happenings of that day," wrote Sharon Jones, wife of an Air Force attaché, adding, "I still feel too few people know the true story."

Meanwhile, the strutting Zia is losing popular support by the hour. "Zia is sitting on a powder keg," said one top diplomat, "and it's only a question of time before it will explode."

EXECUTIVE MEMO: Making the rounds of his new satrapy, Labor Secretary Ray Donovan stopped in at the department's legislative affairs office and asked what its function was. Informed that the office prepared legislative proposals and testimony for the secretary to give before congressional committees, Donovan seemed genuinely surprised — and dismayed. "I thought after I got through the confirmation hearings I'd never have to go back there," he groaned, recalling the rough time he got from the Senate on charges of links to organized crime.

The Reagan administration's get-tough strategy toward the Soviet Union has sent State Department researchers rummaging through the dustbin of history for clues to Kremlin behavior. The No. 3 man at Foggy Bottom, Walter Stoessel, recently ordered the retrieval of some obscure quotes from V.I. Lenin for study and interpretation. The architect of the Bolshevik Revolution made the statements in 1902.

Attorney General William French Smith has already made one policy decision at the Justice Department — for a strong personal reason: Labor racketeering will get a thorough investigation. The reason? Smith was the top Reagan talent-hunter and was personally embarrassed by the protracted investigation into Labor Secretary Donovan's alleged ties to the Mob. "The Donovan experience," Smith has told associates, made labor-underworld connections "a No. 1 priority as far as I am concerned."

Darrell Trent, the new deputy secretary of transportation, will run afoul of Ronald Reagan's cost-cutters if he goes in for the kind of transportation he did in 1973, when he was Richard Nixon's emergency preparedness chief. A few days before his agency was to close down, Trent took a lame-duck junket to Turkey, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Iran — at government expense, of course.

Criminals should pay

Why didn't anyone think of it before? Supervisor Paul Eckert has been looking at what it costs to keep prisoners in the San Diego, Calif., county jail and figures it's high time they started paying to stay there.

Charging "user fees" for services otherwise paid for by taxes has been gaining some popularity in government circles since the passage of Proposition 13. Mr. Eckert has carried the idea to its logical — or illogical — conclusion.

Let's see now. Should all the accommodations go at the same rate, or should a higher fee command a cell with private bath, or even a suite? Will the jail accept Master Charge? What if a prisoner falls behind in his rent? Will he be evicted?

Mr. Eckert is bothered by the fact that some guests at the sheriff's hotel are affluent enough to pay for board and room. This includes the "weekenders" — offenders who work from Monday through Friday and are allowed to serve out jail sentences two days at a time on weekends.

If the county can figure out a way to fix room rates at the jail for those who are able to pay, and can actually collect the money, why not do it? The concept of requiring offenders to make financial restitution for their crimes is not foreign to our system of justice.

It's not the fault of the law-abiding taxpayers that San Diego County needs new jails. It's the fault of the people who land in jail. Sock it to 'em, Mr. Eckert.

INSIDE REPORT:

NSC power struggle spells trouble for Ronald Reagan

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The clear loser so far in the backstage power struggle over national security policy waged over the past month is not Secretary of State Alexander Haig or presidential assistant Richard V. Allen. It is Ronald Reagan himself.

Evans

Novak

In seeking to avoid conflict, President Reagan unwittingly has reaped confusion. How much confusion was reflected at a National Security Council (NSC) staff meeting when the new Soviet expert, Dr. Richard Pipes (formerly of Harvard), asked NSC staff director Allen: "What I want to know is, what am I supposed to be doing here?"

Amidst the confusion of more than 30 interagency committees dealing with national security that are chaired by the State Department, the president still has no plan for crisis management. The conscious downgrading of Allen to avoid the NSC-State Department hostility of the past and make Haig the self-styled "vicar" of foreign policy has left the president's interests unprotected and vulnerable.

The extent to which this has happened became clear in an NSC staff meeting when Allen was urged by his assistants to obtain "rough draft" cables, written in the State and Defense Departments, before they are dispatched to diplomatic posts abroad. Allen's reply stunned his staffers. Reading cable traffic was often boring and time-consuming, he replied.

In fact, Allen knows all too well that cable traffic is the lifeblood of policy. Under any of his predecessors, no cable of significance was allowed to leave the U.S. without first being cleared by NSC staffers.

Allen's problem is not ignorance but weakness. Haig, backed by the Reagan dictum of State Department precedence in policy-making, decided on his own not to clear his cables with Allen. Reagan and presidential counselor Edwin Meese, Allen's boss, almost certainly would support Haig in any showdown over cables. To challenge Haig on cables, Allen fears, would invite defeat.

Allen's separation from cable traffic is a symptom of the threat to President Reagan in a national security-staff system forced to cede its true function: protecting the interests of the president. Far worse, despite weeks of backbiting over Haig's control of day-to-day NSC staff work, the question of "crisis" management has still not been decided. That is shown by the fact Vice President George Bush has now become a possible candidate for that important role.

"Crisis" management is quick handling of unexpected trouble such as the Mayaguez affair during the Ford administration. Under every previous NSC arrangement, Allen would supervise the U.S. response, pulling together conflicting strategies of the departments, as Henry Kissinger and Zbigniew Brzezinski did in their day.

But Allen has been downgraded so far by Reagan's dictum that, as one national security specialist told us, it would be "unnatural" for him suddenly to seize the helm in a crisis. Since Haig is perceived as having a parochial interest to protect — his own department — Meese is known to be considering Bush as a compromise.

But Bush would be most improbable as a crisis manager, despite sometime experience in intelligence (CIA director) and diplomacy (ambassador to the U.N. and China). He lacks authority over the departments, is not a full partner in the NSC committee system and is charged with numerous political chores for the president incompatible with national security. The continuing inability of the White House staff to resolve this question is a time bomb for Ronald Reagan compounded by his own inexperience with national security.

At one Reagan meeting with a visiting foreign leader, Allen barely gained a seat at the table. By such downgrading of his national security assistant, Reagan has insensibly downgraded a system of self-protection 30 years in the making. This is the real source of trouble, not Allen's well-publicized opposition to Haig's selection of ex-Kissinger deputy Lawrence Eagleburger as an assistant secretary of state.

For the time being, Reagan must hope that no sudden crisis arises. But insiders predict that when the president realizes the consequences of what he has done, he will rehabilitate the NSC system. That means granting Allen the authority he needs to coordinate national security for Reagan while leaving Haig as the nation's chief diplomat.

FORGIVENESS, FAITH AND FIDELITY -- YOU NEED THEM ALL!

"There will always be temptations to sin," Jesus said one day to His disciples, "but woe to the man who does the tempting."

"If he were thrown into the sea with a huge rock tied to his neck, he would be far better off than facing the punishment in store for those who harm these little children's souls. I am warning you! Rebuke your brother if he sins, and forgive him if he is sorry. Even if he wrongs you seven times a day and each time turns again and asks forgiveness, forgive him."

One day the apostles said to the Lord, "We need more faith; tell us how to get it."

"If your faith were only the size of a mustard seed," Jesus answered, "it would be large enough to uproot that mulberry tree over there and send it hurtling into the sea! Your command would bring immediate results!"

"When a servant comes in from plowing or taking care of sheep, he doesn't just sit down and eat, but first prepares his master's meal and serves him his supper before he eats his own. And he is not even thanked, for he is merely doing what he is supposed to do."

"Just so, if you merely obey Me, you should not consider yourselves worthy of praise. For you have simply done your duty!" Luke 17:1-10

Chrysler lost much more, now on road to recovery

DETROIT (AP) — Despite a January loss that was nearly twice the $75 million expected, Chrysler Corp. remains within reach of its recovery schedule according to documents prepared for the Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board.

The federal loan board had expected Chrysler to lose about $75 million in January. However, the automaker posted a deficit of $140 million.

Chrysler lost the additional money in part because $30 million in wage concessions from the United Auto Workers union and price cuts from suppliers went into effect later than expected, the documents said.

The predicted January loss was based on the assumption that the lost reductions, which did not begin until March 1, already would be in place.

Another $22 million was lost because of an "unfavorable mix" of cars available for sale and another $7 million because of the automaker's rebate program, the documents stated.

The documents were drawn up as the loan board prepared to grant Chrysler $100 million in federal loan guarantees Feb. 27 and did not include February financial results.

The report, citing a sharp increase in vehicle production in January, said Chrysler was expected to show improvement in February.

Chrysler produced 21,000 more vehicles in January and February than expected. The increased revenue from these units will help offset the profit deterioration, the board said.

One out of four million gets polio from vaccine

Dear Dr. Solomon: What is the possibility that a child who received polio vaccine will get the disease? I know enough to make sure that all my children are protected from polio, but I wonder just how great the danger is from the vaccine itself. — Julia

Dear Julia: The oral form of polio vaccine, which is in almost universal use throughout the United States, causes some form of paralysis in approximately one of every four million people. While this is not a significant number, it certainly is a tragedy for those who are affected.

Soon, however, even these relatively few cases of paralysis may be a thing of the past. The Center for Disease Control in Atlanta is sponsoring a study of a new form of polio vaccine that has been used successfully in several European countries. It bears a close resemblance to the original Salk vaccine, but is more highly concentrated. In addition, the new vaccine is made with killed viruses rather than live ones as is the case with the oral version.

If the tests show the new vaccine to be both safe and effective, parents will no longer have to worry about the rare case of paralysis that now occurs.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I guess I'm one of those fortunate people who are not very sensitive to air pollution; even when the weather bureau says that the air quality is poor, it never bothers me. What I can't stand is noise. I agreed to a transfer to this city from a much smaller community because it meant a promotion for me. But I never counted on the noise from the traffic or blaring radios or construction crews constantly tearing up the streets. The newspapers carry lots of stories about air pollution. Doesn't anyone ever complain about noise pollution? — Max

Dear Max: You are correct in suggesting that the medical consequences of noise pollution have not received as much attention as the medical consequences of other environmental hazards; however, the subject has not gone completely unnoticed. In fact the Journal of the American Medical Association commented on the harmful effects of noise more than 40 years ago. More recently, an article in the Journal recommended banning ambulance sirens on the grounds that they contribute to a noisy environment without adding very much to the patient's well-being.

Street noise, however, is not the only offender. In the home, garbage disposal units, vacuum cleaners, and other appliances add to the din.

The dangers of exposure to loud noise include hearing loss, a rise in blood pressure, and increased emotional stress. Patients with heart trouble, asthma, and ulcers also may be harmed. Those of us who have attempted to carry on a conversation over loud noise know the kind of fatigue this can bring about. Once there is a greater awareness of the harm caused by excessive noise, possibly industry will apply its knowledge to designing machines that will operate at a lower decibel level.

Rather takes over at CBS

NEW YORK (AP) — Tonight's backdrop is blue-gray instead of beige, and Walter Cronkite's old chair has been adjusted for Dan Rather's long legs. But Rather says there won't be any radical changes in the CBS "Evening News" now that he's the anchorman.

"There won't be any conscious effort on my part to change my style or anything else," Rather said in an interview a few days before his debut tonight as CBS' first new full-time anchorman since Cronkite replaced Douglas Edwards on April 16, 1962.

"After all," Rather said, "I've been doing the show for 10 years now," including 30 years in the last year while Cronkite was on assignment or vacation.

CBS, marking the occasion, placed full-page ads in several newspapers today introducing Rather as a reporter of wide experience.

"After you've reported the fury of Hurricane Carla, the turbulence of Birmingham and Memphis. After you've kept the news flowing from Dallas through those four dark days," the ad began, listing other of Rather's most significant stories as a correspondent. "Then," it concluded, "you can be anchorman and managing editor of 'The CBS Evening News with Dan Rather.'"

The changes in the "Evening News" set were made over the weekend, after Cronkite's last broadcast as anchorman Friday night. The backdrop, chair, lighting and cameras were adjusted to suit Rather at a dress rehearsal Saturday.

"We're beefing up the staff in places," Rather said, pointing to some changes of a more substantive though perhaps less noticeable sort, "and changing some bureau assignments. And there are certain stories that interest me that I think we'll spend more time on — world hunger, for example. Those are not things people will notice right away as being different.

"I will be involved," said Rather, who for the past several years has been a member of the "60 Minutes" team. "I'd be very disappointed if someone said, 'He's just reading the news.'"

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠ 9764 ♦ AKJ42 ♣ AQ96

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1 ♦ 3 ♦ 4 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—What started off as perhaps only a fair hand has grown in stature. If North is good enough to introduce a new suit voluntarily at the four-level and you have four-card support, you must be safe at a five-level contract, even a grand slam could be in the cards. Start off with a cue bid of four spades to see what partner's reaction is.

Q.2—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠ A96 ♦ KQ ♦ AJ964 ♦ J104

The bidding has proceeded: East South West North 1 ♥ Dble. Pass 1 ♦ 2 ♥ ?

Dble. Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Your preemptive bid warned partner not to expect much from you in the way of defensive strength. Thus, he is doubling virtually on his own hand. Your king of spades is going to come as a pleasant surprise to him, and the penalty could be substantial. Pass—a bid of five hearts would be an unwarranted usurpation of authority.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠ AKQ742 ♥ Q97 ♦ 73 ♣ 94

What is your opening bid?

A.—Your hand is worth 13 points—11 in high cards and two in distribution. Therefore, you should open the bidding with one spade. Even if you play weak two-bids, this hand is too strong for even a vulnerable weak two in first or second seat. Partner will never expect that you have such a super maximum, so you might possibly miss a game.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠ K76 ♥ K82 ♦ A74 ♣ K1095

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1 ♠ Pass 1 ♦ Pass 1 NT Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—There is a temptation to tell partner about your spade support, but it should be curbed. You have a dead minimum opening bid and flat distribution, so game is out of the question. Besides, clubs must be your best partner contract. You are certainly playing in a 4-4 or better fit if you stay in clubs, while spades might be 4-3. Pass.

What action do you take?

A.—Face the facts. You have a minimum takeout double, so you have said all that you should for the moment. It would be poor tactics to raise to two spades, since that would give partner the impression that you have four spades and a stronger hand. If partner is not broke, he can act again.

Q.3—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠ Q10642 ♥ 92 ♦ A2 ♣ K752

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East Pass 1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ ♦ 2 ♥ 3 ♦ 4 ♥ ?

What do you bid now?

A.—You bid your limit when you made your overcall—any further action is up to partner. Since he knows that you have some defensive values, he is in a much better position to decide whether he wants to defend or sacrifice.

Q.4—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠ K4 ♥ AKQ98543 ♦ 8 ♣ 72

The bidding has proceeded: North East South West Pass Pass 4 ♥ — 4 ♦

Interior secretary filling opponents' nightmares

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary James G. Watt is doing what he was expected to do with 550 million acres of public land, and conservation groups say their worst nightmares are becoming cold reality.

But the country's oil and gas drillers, ranchers and developers say the Reagan administration is just fulfilling the mandate of the 1980 election — to unshackle private enterprise.

Since taking office, Watt has sped up government leasing of public lands for energy development and called a halt to expansion of the national park system.

To howls of protest, Watt reversed a Carter administration action and made it possible that some of Northern California's most famous coastal areas will be open to oil and gas exploration. Moreover, Watt wants to make other coastal areas available to oil companies on a faster schedule than the one set up by the Carter administration.

In the name of budget austerity, Watt wants to scrap former President Carter's plans to spend $627 million in 1982 on land for federal parks and help cities and states expand their parks.

He even halted this year's planned park purchases, asking Congress to take back $293 million already appropriated.

Saying the government has been too greedy, snatching up far more land than it could manage, Watt wants to give the National Park Service an additional $105 million to better manage existing parks.

Rep. Phillip Burton, D-Calif., calls Watt's plan an "unconditional war on our great natural areas and on urban recreational programs vital to millions of city residents."

If Watt succeeds, the Santa Monica Mountains National Recreation Area north of Los Angeles would lose $36 million next year. The Appalachian Trail would lose $20 million for land purchases in 14 states. South Carolina's colorful Congaree Swamp would lose $15 million.

All told, there would be 109 losers — national parks, battlefields and monument area in virtually every state — which were down for expansion under Carter's budget.

Left in the cold, too, would be states, which would have received $185 million in matching grants to purchase park land, and cities, which were scheduled to receive $85 million for urban recreation facilities.

"He's hitting the public with a double whammy," says Sierra Club associate director Brock Evans. "On the one hand, he is opening up existing public lands for a full-scale assault by the oil, mining and timber industries while on the other hand taking away money needed to save some of the country's most beautiful areas."

Environmentalists also are unhappy with the people Watt picked for top jobs, especially his choices for director of the Bureau of Land Management and the Office of Surface Mining.

For the land management job, Watt selected Colorado rancher Robert F. Burford, who as speaker of the Colorado House two years ago was a leader in a legislative effort to support the Sagebrush Rebellion, a push by Westerners to force the bureau to give millions of federal acres to the states.

Environmentalists, who for years have attacked BLM's land grazing policies, noted that Burford gave a BLM permit to graze stock on 33,614 acres. He has since assigned those grazing rights to his son.

At the Office of Surface Mining, Watt selected James R. Harris of Indiana, who as a state senator pushed a court challenge to the constitutionality of the strip-mining law he will now administer.

Watt says the department's enforcement of the 1977 law, which requires coal companies to return mined land to its original contours, will be substantially revised.

And he is not stopping there. Watt has asked for public recommendations on other "excessive, burdensome or counterproductive" government regulations that should be eliminated. A task force is reviewing nearly 200 responses.

NRC wants to limit emissions from submarine fuel producer

By JOE QUINLAN
Associated Press Writer

ERWIN, Tenn. (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission wants the nation's only producer of nuclear submarine fuel to cut its radiation emissions in this small Appalachian town by about three-fourths.

Federal regulators say, however, that current emissions from the plant owned by Nuclear Fuel Services Inc. of Rockville, Md., pose no threat to area residents.

NRC officials want to lower the emission level from 109 millirems to 25 millirems per year — a radiation level equivalent to that of a chest X-ray. The Environmental Protection Agency limits many lightwater nuclear reactors to that level.

"This is because of releases that occurred in the plant the past several years," said Gerry Page, NRC chief of uranium fuel licensing in Bethesda, Md., citing an Aug. 7, 1979 accidental release and two releases reported since last September.

"We believed some improvement is needed there," he said.

Federal officials want to impose the limit this year but are considering an extension request from Nuclear Fuel Services, a subsidiary of Getty Oil Co.

The owners of the facility, which was closed for a time in 1979 because it was unable to account for a supply of uranium large enough to make two nuclear bombs, say they can achieve the lower limit, but not until the end of 1982.

NRC radiologist Albert F. Gibson said Friday that "community unrest certainly has been a factor in our minds. But we do not believe the current release levels are cause for people in the community to be concerned about their health."

The accidental releases and the plant's waste ponds have alarmed many of Erwin's 4,700 residents, some fearing adverse health effects and others fearing economic woes.

The plant, with 500 workers on a $9 million payroll, plays a significant role in the economy of this Unicoi

County town nestled in mountains near the Tennessee-North Carolina state line, about 100 miles northeast of Knoxville.

NRC officials came to town in December and conducted a public hearing. In January, they met behind closed doors with area physicians.

Three years ago, the national Center for Disease Control in Atlanta found the cancer rate in Unicoi County was higher than in nearby counties. But Unicoi residents were also older, the study found, noting the incidence of cancer increases with age.

Cancer can develop about 20 years after someone is exposed to a large dose of radiation, experts say. Evidence is inconclusive as to how various radiation levels affect health.

Erwin residents are exposed each year to about 100 millirems of background radiation from nature. Emission from the fuel plant, under current limits, adds another 100 millirems. In Denver, Colo., however, background radiation alone averages almost 250 millirems a year.

Association urges utilization, development of gas supplies

DENVER, Colo. — Rapid development and utilization of the nation's natural gas supplies is a key factor to meeting the nation's goal of reducing costly oil imports, according to American Gas Association President George H. Lawrence.

Speaking here to a meeting of the Midwest Gas Association, Lawrence told the group that the natural gas industry is now in a better position to meet U.S. energy needs than ever before. He stressed that the gradual deregulation of natural gas wellhead prices, mandated by the Natural Gas Policy Act of 1978, has provided encouragement to increase exploration and development activities.

Lawrence noted that 1980 was a record year for drilling activity with more than 15,000 gas wells completed.

"We have a running start with this new administration in that it is supportive of expanded exploration and development of our natural gas resources, and for removal of regulatory restraints of its utilization," he continued.

"However, if we are to realize the abundant promise of gas energy for the benefit of our nation," Lawrence said, "some important steps must be taken right away to make the regulatory, legislative and economic climates more favorable to the gas industry."

Lawrence urged repeal of the Powerplant and Industrial Fuel Use Act ban on the use of natural gas in major fuel-burning installations. Lawrence said this prohibition was passed by Congress in 1978, following the interstate gas shortages of 1976-77, and that it is now unnecessary because of the brighter supply picture.

He also called for the repeal of the incremental pricing provisions of the NGPA which inhibit industrial gas use by placing an unfair economic burden on that group of users.

The Department of Energy's proposed rate design study, mandated by that same law, also unfairly prices gas to all users and must be eliminated, he added. The government must critically examine all federal requirements which place market constraints on the industry's ability to reduce imports of foreign oil, he said.

Mercury Exploration Co. of Fort Worth has announced three additions to their company.

C.F. "Fred" Smith was named manager of operations for the Fort Worth firm. He will be responsible for all of the company's domestic drilling and production operations.

For the past 18 months, Smith has supervised five offshore drilling rigs for Amoco International. Prior to that, he was in charge of drilling and production operations for the West Texas and Rocky Mountain regions of Petro Lewis Corp.

Glenn Darden will be responsible for planning and field supervision of exploration and development drilling programs as geologic coordinator for the firm.

Darden was previously employed in the geologic department of Mitchell Energy in Houston.

J. Kelly McColm was named manager of lands Mercury Exploration. He will be responsible for coordinating the lease acquisition and maintenance program for the company.

The firm's present offices are located at 410 W. Ohio Street, Suite 202.

Investment, management guidance offered by firm

A new concept in financial planning and management has been introduced to the Permian Basin by the Mitchell-Edwards investment guidance firm.

Len Mitchell and David Edwards will be offering a variety of investment management programs. Their services include investment counseling and financial estate planning for individuals.

For corporate clients, various other investment services such as pension fund management and financial resource guidance is offered. As Edwards explains, "We hope to provide Midland an investment concept which is specifically customized for each individual client."

Geological society to meet Tuesday

The West Texas Geological Society will meet Tuesday in the ballroom of the Midland Hilton, to hear Dr. Walter Youngquist of Eugene, Oregon deliver a talk entitled "Through Siberia, Mongolia and a Moscow Jail by Train." Dr. Youngquist has been a professor of geology at the University of Idaho, University of Kansas, and the University of Oregon. He has served as consultant to Exxon, Shell, Sun Energy Development Company and Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

Dr. Youngquist is author of 60 articles and five books including a collection of stories concerning the life of a geologist, entitled, "Over the Hill and Down the Creek."

The meeting will begin at 11:15 a.m. with lunch, followed by the presentation at noon. Reservations should be made before 5:00 p.m. Friday by contacting the West Texas Geological Society office.

Left in the cold, too, would be states, which would have received $185 million in matching grants to purchase park land, and cities, which were scheduled to receive $85 million for urban recreation facilities.

"He's hitting the public with a double whammy," says Sierra Club associate director Brock Evans. "On the one hand, he is opening up existing public lands for a full-scale assault by the oil, mining and timber industries while on the other hand taking away money needed to save some of the country's most beautiful areas."

Environmentalists also are unhappy with the people Watt picked for top jobs, especially his choices for director of the Bureau of Land Management and the Office of Surface Mining.

For the land management job, Watt selected Colorado rancher Robert F. Burford, who as speaker of the Colorado House two years ago was a leader in a legislative effort to support the Sagebrush Rebellion, a push by Westerners to force the bureau to give millions of federal acres to the states.

Environmentalists, who for years have attacked BLM's land grazing policies, noted that Burford gave a BLM permit to graze stock on 33,614 acres. He has since assigned those

Mitchell County projects planned in Dockery field

Max Walden, operating out of Post, has reported two projects for Mitchell County in the Dockery (Clear Fork) field. Both projects are planned to 3,300 feet, and are 2 1/2 miles southwest of Westbrook.

Perforation was through a 12/64 inch choke, from 8,231 to 8,235 feet, acidized with 2,800 gallons. The total depth of the project is 10,950 feet, plugged back to 8,320 feet with 5 1/2 inch casing sitting on the bottom.

The producer is the tenth completion in the Yucca Butte, West (Straun) field, and is located at 900 feet south and 1,994 feet east from the lines of section 63, block A-2, HC survey, 12 miles west-northwest of Sheffield.

DEAR ABBY

He feels out of step in dating parade

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
DEAR ABBY: I've been a divorced man for two years and have just started to date again. (I'm an officer in the U.S. Army.) My problem is that the women I date seem offended because I refuse to go to bed with them on the first date.

This comes as a shock to me because when I ask a lady out, all I expect is the pleasure of her company, and that is all I want. However, in these permissive times, all the women I have dated seem to regard sex as a repayment for an evening out.

When I turn down their invitations to go to bed, they act hurt and ask me what's "wrong" with them. Abby, nothing is wrong with them, but I don't want sex as a "thank-you" for a lovely evening.

Am I too slow? Or are they too fast?
— RICHARD

DEAR RICHARD: The "ladies" you have been dating are of a vastly different stripe than those who write to me. Most of them want to know where to find a man who doesn't want to frolic in the feathers on the first date.

Continue at your present pace, Richard. Somewhere, a lovely lady is marching to the same drummer.

DEAR ABBY: I just had to write after seeing the letter from MOTHER-IN-LAW. Wendy, her son's wife, had not written thank-you notes for wedding gifts received six months ago, and MOTHER-IN-LAW was so embarrassed when friends asked if her gifts had ever been received that she wrote thank-you notes and signed Wendy's name.

Abby, I agree, she had no business writing those notes, but what about her son? Is he illiterate? If not, why didn't HE write them?

I hope you will amend your answer to point out that her son is also negligent, procrastinating and ill-mannered. — SAMANTHA IN SANTA ANA

DEAR SAMANTHA: You are right. Shame on me for failing to mention that times have changed, and the responsibility for writing thank-you notes for wedding gifts should be shared by husband and wife.

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd be writing to you, but I need advice desperately. I'm 26 and the mother of three little girls, all under 6. Last summer I caught my husband (I will call him "Rex") sexually molesting our 4-year-old. I was shocked and sick to my stomach. I had no idea this was going on under my own roof! I took her to the hospital, and that's how the law became involved.

I filed for divorce immediately and made Rex move out. He rented a room just around the corner and now he's making my life miserable. He says, "All dads do this. I just got caught."

Rex wanted half-custody of the girls, but the judge ruled that he could see them only in my presence. Now Rex is giving me a hard time, harassing me and making all kinds of threats. I am scared. The courts ordered him to be examined by a psychiatrist, but what good does that do if he's still on the loose in my neighborhood, hanging around my little girls? I want my children to have a daddy, but I can't trust him. What should I do? — NOWHERE TO TURN

DEAR NOWHERE: See a lawyer and tell him what you've told me. Since Rex has been forbidden by law to see the girls alone, if he violates the law, call the police at once. You don't say whether Rex is being treated for his illness (and it is an illness), but in any case, it might relieve your mind to talk with the doctor (or doctors) who examined him. In the meantime, don't let the girls out of your sight.

This pepper takes the prize

By PATRICK DENTON
Copley News Service

I have been describing the All-America award-winning flowers for 1981 in recent columns. Both the Impatiens called Blitz and the dwarf plume Apricot Brandy are standout winners in their class. Each offers sturdy, compact growth habits and a season-long supply of glowing color both in garden beds and containers.

Now when it comes to choosing a vegetable for an award, All-America judges are looking first for taste and texture qualities. Of course crop yields are considered as well, since gardeners are always interested in what return they will have for their efforts.

Because of the current interest in intensive and container gardening, judges are especially looking for fine-tasting vegetables that will yield a heavy crop on compact plants. The vegetable has to be a practical one as well, almost guaranteed to produce abundantly under average home garden conditions.

Which leads me to the one award-winning vegetable for 1981 — a sweet yellow pepper called Gypsy. This pepper grows on a compact plant averaging 18 to 20 inches in height, with a spread of about 15 inches. It is an early producer, well adapted to container culture and extremely productive, one gardener averaging 12 to 18 fruits per plant in a preview garden last summer.

Most of us have grown the large, sweet green bell peppers, which turn red when very ripe. There are also large bell-type sweet peppers which are yellow, like yellow California Wonder. These large sweet peppers are multipurpose, great raw for salads and dips, and useful in many cooked dishes where the bright green or red adds an attractive color note to a meal. And of course they are great stuffed with your favorite meat-and-rice mixture and baked.

Then there are the hot peppers, like Jalapeño and Hungarian Wax. These grow best in hot areas and usually have taller, more spreading plants with smaller, narrower leaves. The fruits are mostly long and tapered and turn red when mature. There is a hot cherry pepper that is round.

Our award-winning pepper is in the class of sweet yellow Italian-type peppers with a tapered shape like Yellow Banana and Cubanelle. These are the varieties the 1981 award-winning Gypsy was tested against. In All-America trials, Gypsy averaged seven to 10 days earlier than check samples of other similar sweet yellow peppers, and performed especially well in short season areas. Gypsy was also found to bear heavily in cool as well as hot summer areas.

But best of all was its taste. The medium thick, crispy flesh tastes good and sweet, with no bitterness. Its fruit are attractively wedge-shaped, slightly curved and taper to a blunt end. They average three to four inches in length.

At early maturity, Gypsy peppers are greenish-yellow, tender, and crunchy. Left to ripen on the plants, the fruits turn orange-red and gain extra sweetness. So with a little judicious picking to keep new fruits coming, the home gardener can have both yellow and red "Gypsies" for added color in salads, dips and cooked dishes.

I try to hold off starting my pepper seed indoors until early spring, so that I won't be tempted to set the plants outdoors too early. Set out when the nights are still cold, pepper plants tend to express their protest by dropping their blossoms, so that in the end time is lost, not gained.

I plant pepper seeds about a quarter-inch deep. They like to be kept warm both while germinating and during their growth as seedlings. When they are ready to transplant, give them a nice sunny spot in a reasonably fertile soil that retains moisture well and they will reward you with a good supply of fruits all season.

Women achievers honored

NEW YORK (AP) — For the first time, women outside aviation have been honored by the Wings Club, an organization of top aviation executives. Since 1975, the group has been giving achievement awards to men such as Gen. James H. Doolittle and Neil Armstrong for their contributions to aviation. Several women have also been recognized for their pioneering efforts in the industry.

The club's president, John C. Emery Jr., chairman of Emery Air Freight, decided this year the organization should present awards "in keeping with the times, to a cross-section of women achievers in varying fields of endeavor." Thus honored were a dozen women who have "achieved" in fields other than aviation.

They included opera soprano Anna Moffo; TV personalities Jane Pauley and Betty Furness; Sylvia Porter, syndicated columnist; Joan Ganz Cooney, president of Children's Television Workshop; Carol Bellamy, New York City Council president; Muriel Siebert, New York State Superintendent of Banks; Lenore Hershey, editor of Ladies' Home Journal; Pamela Fiori, editor of Travel & Leisure; Charlotte Curtis, associate editor of the New York Times; Frances Koltun, travel writer and editor; and Hildy Parks, Broadway producer.

Ms. magazine publisher honored

NEW YORK (AP) — Pat Carbine, publisher and editor-in-chief of Ms. magazine, has been honored by the Advertising Women of New York for her contributions to the communications industry and to the women's rights movement.

The AWPY, a professional organization of executive women in the communications industry, also cited Ms. Carbine for her efforts as a teacher and college trustee in the fields of education, a foundation director for philanthropy and a business-community leader as director of numerous corporations.

In 1972, Ms. Carbine participated in the launching of Ms. magazine and soon after became its publisher and editor-in-chief. She is a founder and director of the Ms. Foundation for Women Inc., as well as the Ms. Foundation for Education and Communications Inc.

Ms. Carbine is vice chairwoman of the Magazine Publishers Association board of directors and holds the same position on the board of the Advertising Council. In 1975, she was appointed by President Ford to the National Commission on the Observance of International Women's Year.

Wild yarns woven during long Vermont winters

By KATHLEEN M. NORTON

Associated Press Writer
MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — Winters in Vermont haven't been the same since days gone by when the cabin-bound warmed themselves at the hearth by weaving wild yarns, like the one about the frozen folk of Farmer Morse.

It's the story of a dirt-poor family that lived 20 miles north of Montpelier. Concerned about the ability of their elders to survive another harsh winter, family members drugged the old people, placed them in wooden boxes, and froze them during the winter months.

They were thawed in the spring and, as one storyteller put it, were "rather refreshed by their long sleep of four months."

Leon Dean, founder of the 33-year-old Green Mountain Folklore Society, said Vermont folklore is different from other forms because it's a "people folklore."

He said the tales, verses, ceremonies and beliefs that have been etched into the state's history are the best accounts of the people who settled the rugged north country.

"These stories go hand-in-hand with local history. They tell what people did and why they did it," said Dean, 91, who taught the subject at the University of Vermont for 10 years.

While some stories can be verified with historical data, others are tall tales that seem a bit taller each time they are repeated.

Whether fact or fiction, the stories comprise the odds and ends that characterize the way of life in Vermont.

There is the story of Orson Clement, the tight-fisted farmer from West Corinth who milked his cow only when he needed a cup of milk.

Clement inherited his father's sheep farm in the late-1800s, but refused to sell any wool, filling his barn and several rooms in his house with the fleece.

The federal government seized the wool and the farmer was paid $30,000.

"Neighbors thought the hefty payments would change Clement's mind about selling his product. They were wrong. After his death, hundreds of pounds of wool he had hidden from the government were found locked in a granary basement."

Then there is the tale of Hannah Ward, a New-fane widow who set her mind on remarrying in 1789. Mrs. Ward's fiancé would have become liable for her late husband's long list of debts if she wed in clothes she received during her first marriage. A new set of clothes could not solve the legal dilemma.

So she wed Maj. Moses Joy in the nude — standing behind a door with a hole carved out so she could recite her vows and could hear her betrothed recite his.

Vermonters, by reputation, may have little tolerance for nonsense, but they are not immune to the stories of the supernatural that are found in all folklore.

Storytellers relate the tale of a Woodstock man whose heart was removed months after his death in the early 1800s. It was found undecayed and full of blood. Thinking the man was a vampire, the people in the prominent community burned the heart and buried it.

But several hours later, a roaring noise was heard, smoke spewed from the hole where the heart was buried and the ground shook violently at the spot for several days.

Dean said the stories lend insight into the religious and social beliefs of the times. And he said research has shown that Vermont folklore contains precious bits of historical information that aren't recorded elsewhere.

Dean, who has spent most of his life tracing Vermont folklore, took issue with the notion that some of the wildest tales are "pure imagination." But he hedged when asked if considers most based on actual people and events.

"They're definitely not imagination, but whether or not they're truth, I just can't say," he said with a chuckle.

Brown's art

CHICAGO (AP) — A survey of Roger Brown's paintings and three-dimensional constructions is being shown at the Museum of Contemporary Art through April 12.

The museum says Brown "is an integral figure in the group of artists that has become known as the 'Chicago Imagists.' Since his first exhibition in 1968, he has received international acclaim for his potent imagery and distinctive style."

AT WIT'S END

The family that eats together...

By ERMA BOMBECK

If the American Family is becoming an endangered species, you can bet one of things that killed it is the dinner hour.

When it was conceived, the dinner hour was to be a gathering of every member of the family who would sit around and exchange pleasantries and news of what each had done that day.

I know that's the way it's supposed to be because I saw it once on the Donna Reed Show.

We have never had a family dinner that did not sound like we were hosting a lynching. It was inevitable to touch upon who did what to whom, who did it first, and who would get a room to themselves after they were sentenced.

The criticism of "family meals" is that "this is not a fit topic to discuss at dinnertime." As I see it, no one seems to know what is a fit subject to talk about at the dinner table. There are few things that the entire family can get into.

Children tend to talk about things that take away your interest in food — and living. At one meal alone, I heard a description of the underside of the tongue, a rumor of what popular food contained rat's nostrils, what pureed peas remind you of when you look at them from a distance, and what happens to the dog's stool when he eats leftover chicken.

Men prefer to talk about money. Within minutes they can make you feel guilty for asking for seconds on the salt. They also take the opportunity to lay on the family their famous lectures: "An 'E' on the Gas Gauge Does Not Mean Evacuate," "Why Do We Heat the Front Porch by Gas in the Winter?" "Don't Reach Out and Touch Somebody Unless It's Collect," and the all-time favorite, "When I Go to the Poorhouse, I'll Have to Call a Cab to Get There."

Mothers use the togetherness of the meal to discuss their doormat status ("Why don't you just put a key under my tongue and stand on me?") and to tell their children that no one ever amounted to anything who smoothed a lumpy bed with a coat hanger.

I have come to the conclusion there are no "safe" topic areas at the family dinner table. No matter what you hit upon, every member of the family will react in character.

The other night, a guest said at our table,

"I read where the Snail Darter is still on the endangered species list."

There was a moment of silence before one child said, "Aren't they the ones that bleed through the eyes when they die?"

My husband said, "When they go up to $10 a pound, knowing our kids, they'll develop a Snail Darter deficiency."

I said, "They aren't the only ones who have become endangered. So are women who pick up towels after a 16-year-old."

The family that eats together... shouldn't.

WATER: OUR TROUBLED RESOURCE

Part I: An overview of nation's water supply problems

EDITOR'S NOTE — This first of five articles on problems with the nation's water supply presents an overview of those problems.

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The drought is over. The water shortage is just beginning. The seemingly contradictory statements point up an important fact about the state of the nation's water supply. "It's not just drought," says Wanda Phelan of the U.S. Water Resources Council. "We've got water problems."

Those problems include surface water supplies that are not big enough to meet the demands of population and industrial growth, underground water supplies that are being pumped dry, and pollution that threatens the quality of the water we do have.

Those problems include a maze of bureaucracy and a web of overlapping local, state and federal agencies that often seem to make water planning and management impossible.

And those problems include waste — by individuals, by businesses and by aging municipal systems that may leak as much water as they deliver. Waste that comes because people take cheap, clean water for granted until there is a drought.

Last month's storms, which dumped snow on parched Midwestern fields and poured rain into nearly empty reservoirs in the Northeast, eased the immediate problem. The arrival of the storms not only brought desperately needed moisture, it also showed that the weather pattern that caused the unusually dry December and January was changing.

"We're moving into an encouraging situation of more moisture and rain," said Dr. Richard E. Hallgren, director of the National Weather Service.

As the waters rose, the fears receded. Memories of last summer's shriveled crops began to fade. The water-conservation measures that seemed so important lost some of their urgency. "Water's just not a really sexy subject until you're out of it," says Ms. Phelan. "We have a problem with our priorities. We're not going to panic until we have a really bad situation."

The Water Resources Council, an independent agency which coordinates water development and planning programs, said in a 1978 report that there were "critical problems" with the nation's water supply. Among them:

—There are localized problems of inadequate supplies of surface water in streams, rivers and reservoirs in all 21 water resources regions of the United States. More than 10 percent of the subregions, mainly in the Midwest and Southwest, will have serious trouble by the year 2000.

—Ground water, in underground formations known as aquifers, is being used faster than it can be replenished, particularly in the High Plains area. Some 2 million people get their water from the Ogallala Aquifer, a 225,000-square-mile system from Texas to South Dakota. But so much water has been pumped from the system that the water table is falling by 3 feet a year in some places, and researchers at an eight-state water conference last week said the underground supply will be dried up in 40 years. In coastal areas, saltwater is being sucked into the space left by pumping, and drinking water is threatened with contamination. In California's Central Valley, overpumping from ground water supplies has caused the land surface to sink several feet.

—Surface water is being polluted, with the most serious problems in the Great Lakes area. There are two types of pollution: point-source pollution which is caused largely by the discharge of municipal and industrial waste into the water, and non-point-source pollution which stems from runoff from urban, agricultural, forested and mining areas.

—The quality of our drinking water is often poor. More than half of the nation's 3,700 largest cities have failed to meet the standards of the 1977 Clean Water Act, and more stringent standards are coming to deal with new pollutants like synthetic chemicals.

The council concluded that "a nationwide effort to coordinate (water) management and planning — is needed to avert a possible water crisis in (some) parts of the country by the turn of the century."

There are political and economic barriers to that kind of effort, however. A power struggle between Congress and the Carter administration, for example, resulted in no new water projects by either the Army Corps of Engineers or the Water and Power Resources Service of the Interior Department for three years. The new secretary of the interior, James G. Watt, says the Reagan administration is committed to developing the nation's resources, but cannot afford to propose any new projects because of the poor state of the economy.

Forecasters, farmers and municipal officials are keeping their fingers crossed about the future. The weather pattern that caused the winter dryness was unusually rare. Its impact was unusually severe because it fol-

Reagan not dismantling registration machinery

WASHINGTON (AP) — From what Ronald Reagan said last year as a candidate, the nation's draft registration machinery should be gathering dust now that he's president. Instead, there are indications the program is here to stay.

Thousands of teen-agers still sign up each day, and hundreds of others break the law by not registering.

Nearly two months into the Reagan presidency there is no sign of any move to dismantle the program that Reagan the candidate said was ineffective, ill-considered and morally unjustifiable except in "the most severe national emergency."

The $35 million program regularly ridiculed last fall as a paper tiger threat to the Soviet Union was spared any cutback in the president's budget-pruning drive.

Far from settling into obscurity, Selective Service just moved into a new building and a pilot program is getting underway to recruit and train draft board members in the event Congress decides to revive the draft itself.

Reagan's plan to build up America's military muscle and his tough talk about the Soviet Union and Cuba, as well as the threat of Soviet intervention in Poland, have prompted speculation that if anything, registration will be expanded. "Frankly, I'd bet a new hat — and I think I'd win — that registration is not going to be in any way diluted," said Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa, chairman of the Armed Services manpower subcommittee and booster of Reagan's candidacy.

Bitter that Reagan has not killed draft registration, leaders of the anti-draft movement worry that U.S. involvement in El Salvador foreshadows Americans fighting in another Vietnam-type war and the renewal of the draft.

A national march on Washington is being planned for this spring — probably in May — to demonstrate opposition to registration and the draft.

"The mood of the country is to go out in the streets again," said Barry Lynn, head of a coalition of anti-draft organizations that mobilized 30,000 demonstrators in Washington last March.

Within the administration, officials say the president opposes the draft, and Reagan has emphasized he sees no likelihood of sending fighting forces to El Salvador.

The question of whether to keep draft registration, revived by former President Carter, is being reviewed at the White House and no decision is expected for months.

"We have received instructions to continue on with business as usual. My estimate is the program will continue through the year," said Ken Stout, an Alaska businessman hired by the administration as a $192-a-day consultant-watchdog over Selective Service operations.

On Capitol Hill, Jepsen and other lawmakers who watch over military manpower issues see no chance of draft registration being scuttled.

If anything, Jepsen predicted, the program will be expanded to include some type of classification of young men as to their eligibility for service.

Abolishing registration is "contrary to everything that the Defense Department, (Secretary of Defense Caspar) Weinberger, the president and everybody else is doing," said Jepsen.

Sen. James Exon of Nebraska, ranking Democrat on the manpower subcommittee, agrees with Jepsen's assessment. He said Weinberger gave him a clue to the administration's thinking over breakfast last week.

The senator, concerned the administration might chance registration, asked Weinberger about its future.

lowed a summer heat wave that dried up water reserves. At the beginning of February, reservoirs in the Northeast held as little as 30 percent of capacity. At one point, Greenwich, Conn., was down to an 18-day supply of water.

Streamflow along the lower Mississippi River was at record low levels, only 25 percent to 40 percent of normal during January; millions of dollars were lost because barges carrying grain, coal and other goods couldn't move.

The drought was spotty, but widespread. Almost no part of the country was unaffected, according to Dr. Robert A. Clark, associate director of hydrology for the weather service.

Then came the storms. "There's no question the recent rain has made a difference," said Don Whitten of the weather service. "It's looking better."

The reservoirs in the Northeast generally are at 60 percent to 80 percent of capacity. Clark said it will take 10 inches to 15 inches of rain over the next three to six months to bring the water levels up to normal. He said the spring rains, in March, April and May, almost always bring at least six inches to the region. There is a 50-50 chance of 10 inches and one chance in 20 of 15 inches.

Whitten said the Mississippi is "still low, but it's not as low as it was." Eight inches of rain in the next two to three months will replenish the river, he said, adding that the chance of that kind of rainfall is "not bad."

The storms already have replenished much of the soil moisture in the Midwest, removing, at least temporarily, the threat to the winter wheat crop. Clark said the recent rains "probably broke the drought agriculturally," but he said that there are still some shortages.

Peter Barrett, director of public affairs for the New York City Department of Environmental Protection, also said the problem isn't solved. He urged residents to maintain conservation efforts. "We need to get and and keep the reservoir levels up before June 1 and then concentrate on holding down consumption this summer," he said.

The National Weather Service's 30-day forecast for March — which has a 60 percent probability of accuracy — calls for heavier than normal rainfall everywhere except Texas, southwest New Mexico and south-central Oklahoma. The 90-day forecast doesn't deal with precipitation; it's too hard to predict.

Hijackers in Syria, renew demands

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The hijackers of a Pakistani airliner, after a seven-day standoff in Afghanistan, took the plane and more than 100 hostages to Damascus during the night and renewed their demands for release of imprisoned foes of Pakistani President Mohammed Zia ul-Haq.

In four hours of negotiations by radio with Pakistani diplomats and Syrian security officers in the Damascus control tower, the hijackers demanded freedom for other members of their anti-Zia group and an end to government propaganda against their organization, airport sources reported.

Freedom was demanded specifically for Nasser Gamal and the family of Salamullah Khan, but no information about them was immediately available.

Pakistani Ambassador Sarfaraz Khan said he would relay the demands to his government. The three hijackers, who on Friday killed one of their hostages, a Pakistani diplomat, set no deadline.

Earlier while still in Afghanistan the hijackers demanded the release of 92 prisoners, and the Pakistani government offered to free 15. But on Sunday it rounded up more than 120 members of the late Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto's Pakistan People's Party including Bhutto's widow and daughter.

In Islamabad, a government spokesman said President Zia asked a number of heads of state to intervene in the crisis, citing "The plight of the hostages who have been suffering from physical exhaustion and mental torture now for the eighth day."

The hostages, who include three American men and two other residents of the United States, have not been allowed off the Boeing 720 jet since March 1, when they boarded a Pakistani domestic flight that the hijackers diverted to Kabul, the capital of Afghanistan.

After a week of negotiations and the release of 33 hostages including two American women, the hijackers on Sunday ordered the plane into the air and on to Damascus. The Afghan government radio said the hijackers demanded the release of 43 more political prisoners, and the Pakistani government responded by instructing its representatives to break off the negotiations.

There were conflicting reports on the number of hostages still aboard. Western officials in Islamabad, the Pakistani capital, said there were 111; Pakistani officials reported 112, and Syrian sources said there were 120.

The State Department said the Americans were Frederick Hubbell of Des Moines, Iowa, Craig Richard Clymoe of California and Lawrence Cliffton Mangum of New York City. The two other residents of the United States were Mian Manzoor Ahmed of Lewiston, Maine, and Muzaffar Qureshi of New Hyde Park, N.Y.

Hubbell's wife and Deborah Leighton Weisner, Ahmed's fiancée from Auburn, Maine, were freed Saturday in Kabul.

The three hijackers reportedly were armed with hand grenades, pistols, a submachine gun and at least two time bombs.

They referred to themselves as members of the Alam-e-Zulfikar, or Flag of Zulfikar, apparently named after Bhutto, who was deposed by Zia and hanged two years ago. The Pakistani government claimed they were part of an "armed wing" of Bhutto's party, which is banned, but the hijackers denied that.

The airliner landed in Damascus about 1:15 a.m. today and was parked about 500 yards from the airport control tower. Security police kept watch from a distance, and food and drink was put aboard. Mechanics repaired the plane's nose wheel, but the hijackers did not ask for fuel, and it was not known if they had any plans to take the plane elsewhere.

One of the airport employees who took supplies aboard said a pistol-wielding hijacker beckoned them onto the plane "with his finger on the trigger." The employee said the gunmen appeared "clean-shaven, healthy and sober."

Arsonist sets fire to two TCU buildings

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Authorities say a student center will have to be rebuilt after an arsonist set fires at two buildings on Texas Christian University campus.

The blazes, set within minutes of each other Sunday, heavily damaged the wood-frame Baptist Student Center and killed 54 trained rats in the nearby Winton-Scott Hall of Science.

No damage estimate was available, but officials say the rats that died in the blaze had been used in motivation and behavior projects by students. Some students had trained the rats for years to perform stunts such as high jumps and hurdles.

One firefighter was hospitalized for observation after breathing fumes from burning insulation, officials said.

Firefighters had just extinguished the blaze at the student center when two campus police officers discovered the fire in the science building across the street about 4 a.m.

"I would imagine both fires were set within 10 to 15 minutes of each other," said arson investigator H.B. Owens.

At the student center, someone had tried to break out a back window of the house, then gained entrance by prying open the back door, Owens said.

Most of the damage was in the kitchen, here at least three fires were set, he added.

"One of the fires was set inside the refrigerator," Owens said. "Whoever started the fire piled some books inside it ... I don't know what they were trying to do."

While the fire was being fought at the student center, campus police Sgt. E.M. Morton and officer Roger Stahl were investigating an attempted burglary at the administration building, when they saw fire coming from a window at the science building.

Officials said they had just finished fighting the student center fire when Ms. Morton ran up to report the second fire.

"All of us just moved over there," said Fire Capt. Ed Rowland.

The fire at the science building was primarily in the electronics laboratory, here plastic instruments were melted into globs.

Police said an accomplice entered a house Sunday morning by telling a woman he was selling Bibles for Faith Temple Church. After he pulled a pistol, however, the woman's daughter entered the room with a gun of her own, telling him to drop the weapon. The mother triggered a silent alarm and the man fled down an alley.

The suspect, who carried a small machine gun, began pounding on the front door but set off a siren alarm, police said.

Heavily armed man jailed

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Police arrested a heavily armed Forney man and were looking for an accomplice after a robbery went awry Sunday.

Franklin H. Payne, 41, was charged with attempted aggravated robbery, burglary of a habitation, attempted capital murder and unlawful possession of a firearm by a felon after his arrest Sunday. Peace Justice Wayne LeCroy denied bond for the former convict.

Sniper fires on motorists, then killed

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Police are trying to determine why a man described by friends as "a nice, quiet guy" drove wildly along an interstate highway sniping at motorists before being slain at his girlfriend's house.

The shooting spree ended Saturday afternoon when an officer killed James Bryant, 37, of Prichard, police said. Bryant didn't have a police record in Mobile County, detectives said. He was going to school to become a diesel mechanic but not much else was known.

The incident began at noon after Bryant pulled a gun on a friend, Henry Brown Jr., and robbed him of a pistol, Sgt. Obie Singletary said.

Brown said he had known Bryant for more than 10 years and they once worked together at Scott Paper Co. in Mobile. Brown said he had not seen Bryant for a year until they met at Mardi Gras on Tuesday and decided to get together again.

Brown described

Bryant as "a nice, quiet guy" and said he had no idea what might have prompted the incident.

Singletary, describing the shootout, said that after robbing Brown, Bryant fled in his car. A few minutes later, he allegedly shot into a vehicle at the intersection of Government Boulevard and Interstate 65 south and struck a vehicle with his car before speeding to Interstate 10.

While Bryant was driving west, he fired into two other vehicles traveling east, police said. A truck driver suffered minor facial cuts from flying glass, but no one was seriously injured.

Police began chasing Bryant on Dolphin Island Parkway, where he fired at officers several times, officials said.

Mayor Robert B. Doyle Jr., who serves as the city's police commissioner, said Bryant managed to reload two pistols during what he called a "wild chase."

The chase ended at his girlfriend's residence, where Bryant again fired at police. An officer, using his last bullet, shot back and hit Bryant, Doyle said.

Police declined to discuss the types of weapons used, except to say Bryant had three pistols, two of them automatic. Doyle said the name of the officer who shot Bryant would not be released, pending a routine department investigation.

Twins die simultaneously

DETROIT (AP) — The deaths of 9-month-old twins apparently were the result of a rare simultaneous occurrence of Sudden Infant Death Syndrome the Wayne County Medical Examiner's Office says.

The victims, Vincent Ware II and his brother, Vincent III, were found unconscious in their crib Sunday by their parents. Both infants were rushed to Saratoga General Hospital, where they were pronounced dead on arrival.

It was the second time in Detroit's history that twin crib deaths had occurred, according to medical examiner Dr. John Smialek. The previous case was reported in March 1976.

"It's very rare for two infants to die simultaneously under these conditions," Smialek noted.

Medical authorities believe SIDS is partially caused by a central nervous system disorder, a defect twins normally would not have, Smialek said.

"To my knowledge, there have only been three or four other reported cases (of twin crib deaths) in the country," Smialek said.

The medical examiner said he would perform an autopsy today and visit the scene of the deaths.

Pack faces Denton in Abilene

ABILENE—Herbert Johnson, Horace Brown and Midland High's renowned Wave carries its 31-4 record here today for the 8 p.m. 5A bi-district Moody Coliseum shootout with the 20-14 Denton Broncos.

The plum both teams are searching for is a trip to the Region I playoff tournament, which will be held in Midland Friday and Saturday at Chaparral Center. Tonight's winner will get that honor. And the honor of the Region winner is a trip to the state meet the following week in Austin. It's time to shoot for the gold.

However, both teams are entering this bi-district matchup while coming off losses. It's not the high water mark most expected. MHS had its 17-game winning streak snapped by No. 2 ranked Class 3A Dimmitt last Monday while Denton has lost three of its last four outings. The Broncos have lost to Dennison, Waxahachie and Arlington High in their last four games.

Denton's leading scorer this season is 6-2 senior guard Paul Berg, who is hitting at a 14-point per game clip. Matt Freeman, a 5-10 senior, is hitting at an 11-point clip while 6-5 senior postman Melvin Cole averages 10 points per outing. Willard Jackson, a 6-1 junior with eight points per outing, also starts in the three-guard offense and the other inside man is 6-3 senior Bill McCoy. Denton will also use 6-5 sophomore Doyle Franklin off the bench and he is hitting at nine points per outing.

Of course, MHS is led by 6-9 senior Herbert Johnson, who is averaging just under 24 points per outing and 6-5 senior Horace Brown, who is just under 15 points per game. Johnson is one of the state's blue chip prospects and is being highly recruited. The decision on how Denton will play Johnson could be the key to the game.

Midland High will probably go with guards Mike Velasco, Michael Feldt and forward Don Sharnowski in the starting role, but MHS coach Jack Stephenson will go to his bench early and often as "The Wave" rolls off the bench. Steve Miller, Booker Mackey, Preston Robertson, Justin Morrett and Raymond Parker are all expected to see a lot of action for the Bulldogs.

Tickets for the game are $3 for adults and $2 for students. Midland High has been tabbed as the visiting team for this contest.

They aren't 48 best

Tourney upsets ruin best laid plans

By DOUG TUCKER

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — If you feel the 48-team NCAA Tournament is leaving out a lot of good teams this year, you'll get no argument from the NCAA.

"We don't have the best 48 teams in the country," Wayne Duke, chairman of the nine-man Division I Basketball Committee, admitted Sunday when the bracket was announced.

The problem, Duke said, was the rash of upsets in conference post-season tournaments that saw regular-season league champions fall away while teams of lesser achievement captured their conference's automatic invitation.

"All of the upsets did cause consternation," Duke said. "This can mean certain teams will qualify sometimes at the expense of the conference champions."

TWENTY-TWO "at large" invitations were extended to go with 26 automatic qualifiers, mostly winners of post-season tournaments. Highly ranked teams that tumbled in post-season tournaments and forced the committee to use at-large invitations on them included Virginia, ranked No. 4 in the Associated Press Top (See Scoreboard 2B for pairings) Twenty-seventh-ranked Kentucky, and third-ranked Louisiana State.

Some notables on the outside looking in are Minnesota and Michigan, both 17-10, Tulsa, 21-7, San Jose State, 21-8; and Syracuse, 18-11. There are others.

"Whenever you have (postseason tournament) upsets it eliminates the possibilities open to the committee," Duke said. "We spent more time deliberating the final six or eight teams than anything else other than seeding."

As the bracket was worked out, the top four teams in the AP poll were made the top seeds in each of the four regionals. No. 1 Oregon State is seeded No. 1 in the West Regional, No. 2 DePaul is the top seed in the Midwest, No. 3 LSU is top seed in the Midwest and fourth-ranked Virginia is the No. 1 seed in the East.

The top four seeds in each regional receive byes into the second round.

Duke, commissioner of the Big 10, said the committee spent "an arduous 2½ days choosing and seeding the field."

"This is a wide-open field," he said. "That's the tag you should place on this tournament. I think it's a tremendous field in terms of matchups down the line."

Teams receiving at-large berths in the Midwest Regional were LSU, 28-3; Iowa, 21-6; Arizona State, 24-3; Wichita State, 23-6; Arkansas, 22-7; and Missouri, 22-9.

At-large teams placed in the Midwest are Boston College, 21-6; Maryland, 20-9; Alabama-Birmingham, 21-8; Kentucky, 22-5; Wake Forest, 22-6, and DePaul, 27-1.

Coach Ray Meyer...we don't want to be No. 1...yet.

Win over Irish may make DePaul No. 1

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

The DePaul Blue Demons have put an exclamation point on their season with a victory over Notre Dame — and now it's full speed ahead for the NCAA basketball tournament.

"I'm not saying we'll win it," says DePaul Coach Ray Meyer, "but we're capable. On any given night we can play with anyone."

On Sunday, they played well enough to beat a fine Notre Dame team, 71-64, and end the regular campaign with a 27-1 record. Coupled with top-ranked Oregon State's 87-67 upset by No. 5 Arizona State on Saturday, the Blue Demons could go into the Midwest regionals as the nation's No. 1 team. They're currently No. 2.

"I don't like it," said Meyer of that possibility. "I'd rather have Oregon State have the monkey on its back. I'd rather be No. 1 at the end of the season."

Boh DePaul and Notre Dame, ranked sixth in the country, were picked as at-large entries Sunday for the 48-team NCAA playoffs, which begin this Thursday.

Other teams had to make the field the hard way — by winning conference tournaments over the weekend. The most recent to do this was Howard University, which won the Mid Eastern Athletic Conference tournament with a 66-63 victory over North Carolina A&T Sunday.

Howard was among 11 first-timers in the NCAA's Division I playoffs. Others who made it for the first time as the result of tournament victories Saturday were: Long Island University, Mississippi, Tennessee-Chattanooga, Mercer, Southern University, Ball State, Fresno State, Idaho, Northeastern and James Madison.

LIU won the Metro Division finals of the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference playoffs with a 77-72 triumph over Iona behind Earl Fuller's nine second-half points. Mississippi took the Southeastern Conference playoffs with a 66-62 triumph over Georgia as Elston Turner scored 22. The Rebels' upset was apropos for a tournament studded with shockers, as Louisiana State, Kentucky and Tennessee — all Top 20 teams — went down in earlier games.

Mississippi had been picked to finish ninth in the SEC this season and Coach Bob Weltlich told reporters after the championship game: "You ought to be embarrassed. Nobody gave us a tinker's damn of a chance to win."

Rangers face Sterling City Tuesday

The Greenwood Rangers tangle with the Sterling City Eagles in a bi-district tussle Tuesday night at 7:30 p.m. in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum on the campus of Howard College in Big Spring.

The winner of Tuesday's bi-district clash will travel to Levelland to play the winner of the Motley County-Symer bi-district battle at 4 p.m. Friday in the first round of the Class A region tournament.

Sterling City comes into the contest with a season record of 27-7 and champions of District 13-A. The Eagles had to defeat Bronte in a playoff game to capture the district crown.

Greenwood coach Bill Jordan commented on the Eagles saying, "They are very competitive. They like to run and press. On paper, we (Greenwood) have them over matched size-wise and physically. But we must be able to handle their press and get back on defense if we expect to win the game."

Sterling City beat Bronte Thursday in a practice game.

Greenwood carries a 28-4 season mark into the game. The losses the Rangers suffered during the regular season were to Coleman (twice), Coahoma and Slaton. The Rangers went through District 14-A undefeated.

Seniors Rex Evans and Tommy Pyle are the leading guns for the Rangers. Pyle leads the Rangers in scoring by hitting 17.7 points per game. Evans is just a step behind at 17.6.

Evans and Pyle, both in the 6-5 range, are the Rangers' leading rebounds. Evans averages about 10 boards per game while Pyle has grabbed 119 offensive and 179 rebounds in 32 games for a 9.5 rebound average per outing.

Floor general Homer Lopez is called by Jordan, "One of the best guards in this area. He knows when to make the right pass to the right people at the right time."

Mickey Somers, the only other senior on the Greenwood roster, is a key outside shooter. Jordan says, "Somers is hitting 47 percent from the outside. His shooting is very important as it opens up the middle for us. Both our inside guys (Pyle and Evans) and hitting over 50 percent from the floor."

Greenwood warmed up for the bi-district meeting with a 51-48 win over Meridian Thursday

No icing, but enjoy it

So it was cake with no icing. It was still a season to be savored at liesure. After all, Midland College's Chaparrals influenced a few judges on their way to a 30-3 best-ever season and a first-ever Western Junior College Conference championship.

Along the way, MC won four tournaments, although they would happily have swapped all four for the one that got away. And while the chance to reclaim that No. 1 ranking in the land at Hutchinson, Kan., later this month, slipped away in the disappointment at Brownwood, the Chaps did glory in the No. 1 spot in the national poll for two months. That was long enough to cause a lot of folks in less fortunate parts of the country to scratch their heads and wonder "Wherein hell is Midland College? Is it a prank like Plainfield State? And what happened to them at the season's end? Did their star Chinese halfback get hurt?"

Only old-timers with good memories will recall Plainfield State, the fictional rage of small college football many, many years ago. For younger readers, we'll explain some time.

IN THE words of Coach Jerry Stone, who conceded after a couple of hours to adjust for the letdown of Saturday night's loss to Cooke County, "We had a great year, this bunch spread the name of Midland College better than anyone else has. And this was a great group to work with. We began practice way back in September and we never had a bad practice."

And the tournament wasn't that much of a bust. Losing to Cooke was no disgrace. The Lions were 29-4 going into Saturday's game and, like MC, champion of its conference.

"These guys are going places," Stone vowed. "College coaches mentioned every sophomore on the team in talking to me. I think they are all going to wind up with offers to four-year colleges. And it was in this tournament that Ernie (Tate) really blossomed."

The 6-6 Bad Man from the Bronx had one scholarship nibble (Indiana State) going into the three days at Brownwood. When it was over, he was sorting out the offers.

"IF YOU are a Player," said MC assistant Archie Myers, "When you leave the floor after the game, you should leave them looking at each other and asking, 'Who was that man?', you know, like the Lone Ranger." Well, Ernie had 'em asking in this tournament.

In Saturday's final, Cooke had the better team. Another night, MC might have been, but the Lions broke out of a 44-43 tug-o-war and sprinted to a 55-43 lead, five of the points coming on free throws late in the first half.

Outrebounded 34-27, plagued by turnovers that broke out like a rash in critical situations and haunted by that little extra pass under the rim that always seemed to be the one too many, the Chaps never again saw the lead. However, with Tate supplying a nine-point lick, MC made its bid midway through the final half, cutting Cooke's lead to a precarious 72-70 with 8:06. The outcome dangled enticingly just out of reach as MC forced the turnover that could have tied it and then gave it right back.

UNFORTUNATELY, the aggressive style of play necessary to cut into the eight point halftime breach took its toll in fouls. Cooke was shooting one-and-one soon after MC fumbled away the chance to tie.

Of Cooke's next 13 points in reestablishing command 85-78 with 2:01 left, nine came on free throws. MC on the other hand didn't come to the line for its first one-and-one until the clock had dwindled to 1:51.

"We never gave up," said Stone later, "And even in the timeout huddles on the sidelines, you could sense we thought we were still going to win."

STILL, if you were watching from the sidelines, it became apparent that when the Chaps were unable to get over the hump at 72-70, their cause was lost. They were in foul trouble and the team they were playing had the poise and know how to exploit their free throw advantage. It wasn't a team that would blow it, just as MC wouldn't have in the same situation. Cooke was a team that had survived adversity, too, Coach Jim Voight said.

"This team lost three players, two starters, in December, who were averaging a combined 20 points and 30 rebounds. Frankly, it's the worst team in talent I've ever brought to the Regional Tournament. But it's also the only team I've ever brought that thought it was going to win."

Pack hosts Snyder today

Midland High's Bulldogs return to baseball action at 4 p.m. today against the Snyder Tigers at Memorial Stadium Field. The game was originally scheduled for Snyder, but was switched to Midland when the Purple Pack and Tigers moved their first game from Midland to Snyder last Monday.

Midland won that one, 3-1, on the four-hit, 14-strikeout pitching of Mark Hewitt, but lost 9-0 and 18-2 to Snyder Saturday.

The Pack will be in action again Tuesday at the Stadium diamond against Lubbock Coronado.

Midland Lee, 1-3, opened with a win over Lubbock Coronado, but since has lost to Monterey, 7-4, and a double-header to Monahans by 7-3 and 12-4 scores. Coach Ernie Johnson's club travels to Lubbock Monterey Tuesday.

British civil servant's strike shuts down nation's airports

LONDON (AP) — Britain's half-million civil servants shut down the country's airports, shuttered its tourist attractions and brought its intricate bureaucracy to a halt today in a 24-hour strike over a pay dispute.

At the historic Tower of London, 38 Beefeater guards abandoned their traditional medieval red uniforms and formed a picket line in civilian clothes.

Leaders of nine unions representing 530,000 workers from $110-a-week janitors to pinstriped-suited permanent secretaries in Whitehall ministries earning $72,000 a year claimed that 90 percent of their members joined the walkout.

"It's a pretty robust response," said Kate Losinka, head of the Council of Civil Service Unions, overseeing the strike.

It was called on the eve of Budget Day, when Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Geoffrey Howe, Britain's treasury chief, was expected to announce a fresh round of tax increases and spending cuts which Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative government hopes will get Britain's faltering economy back on course.

For the first time since World War II, all of Britain's major airports, including London's Heathrow and Gatwick airports, shut down as air traffic controllers, customs and immigration officers joined the stoppage. Only a few small airports managed by local authorities were not affected.

Many state museums and art galleries were closed for the day. But Buckingham Palace and Windsor Castle were exempt because a strike there would inconvenience the royal family, not the government. Staff members said they would give their day's pay to union funds.

The unions are demanding a 15 percent pay increase. The government, which recently gave in to the demands of miners and water workers, has offered 7 percent, gambling that the public wouldn't support the civil servants.

Union sources said among the targets would be the government's communications headquarters in Cheltenham, west of London, and a tracking station in Cornwall.

The one-day nationwide strike is to be followed by selective strikes, including some aimed at the defense network. Security installations targeted included the Poaris nuclear submarine bases, Coulpport and Faslane, on the Clydeside estuary in west Scotland.

Coulpport, which arms and supplies Britain's nuclear deterrent, has been singled out for an indefinite stoppage by 40 key workers as part of the unions' drive to hit sensitive areas of the government machine rather than the public.

In strike-torn Northern Ireland police stepped in for striking civilians to carry out security checks in shopping centers. Customs officers crossed picket lines at the southeast port of Southend, but at most other ports travelers were greeted by "honesty boxes" for the declaration of dutiable goods. There was no sign of them attracting much interest.

Bills would remove ceiling on fees

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Midland Sen. Pete Snellson has introduced two bills which would remove the ceiling on examination fees that the Board of Architectural Examiners may charge.

Senate Bill 768 would remove the $100 limit on fees charged in connection with an application to become a certified landscape architect.

SB 769 would remove the $100 limit on applications for certification as an architect. The bill also raises the compensation each board member may receive while engaged in duties of the board from $25 per day to $50 per day.

A spokesman for Snellson said the executive director of the board requested the legislation to allow the board to set what it considers "reasonable" fees.

The bills have been referred to the Senate Committee on Economic Development.
