Springing out

Spring officially began at 11:03 a.m. today, but flowers and trees have been in bloom in Midland for several weeks now thanks to mild weather and showers throughout February. Paul Gilbert, photo editor of The Reporter-Telegram, spotted this colorful blossom on a crab apple tree on Ward Street.

Senate Republicans want budget vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans, moving to exploit their new majority swiftly, are pushing for a floor vote next week on a budget-cutting package containing most of President Reagan's recommendations and a few of their own.

The Senate Budget Committee capped a grueling, four-day budget review Thursday and approved a blueprint for $36.4 billion in spending reductions in 1982, $2.3 billion more than the president wants in the areas covered. The vast majority of cuts would come in social programs such as unemployment, welfare, education, nutrition and some Social Security benefits.

Even before the committee gave its approval on a 20-0 vote, Republican Leader Howard Baker announced the full Senate would begin debate on the proposal next Thursday. He said there was a "realistic prospect" for a final vote a week from today but added that he would schedule an unusual Saturday session if necessary to complete action by the end of next week.

Meanwhile, the House Agriculture Committee voted to back Reagan's proposal to scrap a scheduled April 1 increase in dairy price supports. The vote was 30-7 to approve the measure, which would save an estimated $147 million.

The full Senate is scheduled to vote on an identical bill next week.

Reagan is seeking $48.6 billion in cuts for fiscal 1982, which begins Oct. 1. Congressional aides said the committee's figure is lower because some additional money can be saved through other legislation and still more can be saved through administration actions that don't require congressional approval.

In all, the package adopted by the Senate Budget Committee calls for cutting planned spending $87 billion through 1983 — $2.8 billion this year, $36.4 billion in 1982 and $47.7 billion the following year.

Some of the additional cuts made by the committee might not last.

The panel's biggest departure from the president's program called for private financing of the Strategic Petroleum Reserve, at a savings of about $3 billion.

But Sen. Peter Domenici, R-N.M., who shepherded the bill through the budget committee as chairman, predicted a floor fight over the reserve proposal, since the Senate Energy Committee voted later in the day to reject the idea for the time being.

Domenici hailed the Budget Committee's work as "the most historic exercise in (spending) restraint that has ever been attempted by the Congress of the United States."

He predicted no significant changes when the full Senate debates the measure, but he conceded the proposed reductions face a hazardous passage in the House, where Democrats retain a majority.

Panel fighting for oil reserve

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arguing that national security interests are paramount, members of the Senate Energy Committee are refusing to accept federal spending cuts they say would jeopardize the nation's Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

The committee voted unanimously Thursday to stand by President Reagan's proposal to spend $3.8 billion buying crude oil for the reserve during the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

The money would allow about 230,000 barrels of oil a day to pour into storage caverns for emergency use in case of a major disruption of foreign supplies.

The 20-0 vote set up a possible confrontation on the Senate floor next week with the Senate Budget Committee, which voted earlier this week to cut $3 billion from the appropriation.

The Budget Committee also wants to fill the reserve, but it says alternative means can be used to get the oil without direct federal purchases.

"The committee is unwilling to anticipate that legislation (setting up an alternative method) until it's in place," Energy Committee Chairman Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho, told reporters after Thursday's session. "We don't choose to bind ourselves."

Under the Budget Committee proposal, contained in a special spending bill, major refiners would be required to contribute to the reserve. The government would pay the firms 10 percent a year for 11 years for the oil, as opposed to the current system under which the government buys the oil directly from producing nations.

But both Republicans and Democrats on the Energy Committee opposed the idea.

Tower announces funding approval

Midland County will be receiving a Community Development Block Grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development in the amount of $1,676,000 to be received over a three-year period.

The announcement that the county's application had been approved came Thursday from the Washington office of U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas.

The money is to be used for housing rehabilitation, sewer improvements, paving, drainage improvements, water improvements and a day care center.

Midland County Judge Bill Ahders confirmed this morning the county would be receiving the money. The county had to compete with other counties for the money.

Midland County's bid was one of six that received approval.

The breakdown on how the $1,676,000 will be spent is as follows:

- $570,000 for paving and drainage improvements in the target area of Griffin, Fisher, South K, Goode, Francis and Montgomery streets;
 - $135,000 for sanitary and sewer improvements;
 - $125,000 for water works improvements;
 - $250,000 for a day care center to serve 100-150 children;
 - $281,000 for housing rehabilitation;
 - $120,000 for replacement housing;
 - $30,000 for clearance and demolition;
 - $40,000 for planning and development of a plot and land-use plan for the target area;
 - $125,000 for general administration.
- Ahders said he did not know when Midland County would begin receiving the funds.

New season springing few surprises on statehouse

By LAURA RICHARDSON
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Spring is here — not that it matters much in the statehouse where legislators, lobbyists, journalists and other players in the indoor sport of politics are at work.

During the day the Capitol halls are often crowded and the meeting rooms full. At night the nearby bars are busy, and parking places are hard to find on Sixth Street, where chic restaurants offer one kind of comfort and prostitutes another.

But outside, all week, Austin has been gleaming, glittering, bursting into bloom and leaf. An ornamental peach tree laden with thick clusters of white flowers grows on the east side of the Capitol grounds, a reminder to denizens of smoky rooms that seasons have changed.

Spring arrived today, this year's vernal equinox. The start of the season is literally heavenly. Spring begins when the sun crosses the earth's celestial equator, making night and day of equal length all over the world.

But the blooming truth of the matter is that spring arrives when flowers open, tender green translucent leaves come out, and the air softens and warms. By this definition, spring hit town about a week ago here, and almost didn't show up at all last year.

"It was so crummy last year, there's really no comparison," said Kelly Prehn, a supervisor with the Austin Parks and Recreation Department's horticulture division. "We had a late freeze, just about this time of year, and it knocked everything back to nothing."

"That's why everything's so pretty this year. They didn't use much energy last time," he said Wednesday.

In the Austin Area Garden Center, a 16-acre garden that is the showpiece of the city's 8,173 acres of parkland, azaleas — pale pink, dark rose, white, clear red, fuchsia — produce masses of color under purple cascades from the flowers of mountain laurel trees. The scent is heavy and sweet.

Small Johnny-jump-ups, violet and yellow, grow among gold pansies and bright red dianthus. Cardinal peach trees with fat scarlet flowers are next to peppermint peaches, fruitless ornamentals that bloom white, pink and rose.

A huge, fragrant wisteria droops lavender blooms over one of the shallow ponds. Nearby a pussy willow has put out furry blooms that shine like highly polished silver.

"Jesus is back, and he's a vegetarian, and love," says a young woman who gave her name only as Elizabeth. She wore a long, loose, white dress covered with a kind of serape of khaki-colored wool, as did the other members of "Able Christ."

"We don't believe in killing, sex or materialism," she said, adding that they were "nomadic."

Another member of the group, who said his name was "Brother," leaned into the park's wishing well, scooping up coins.

Eventually the police stopped the quartet, took back the money and arrested Brother and another man called Clyde.

"When they make enough people uncomfortable, it's time to hassle 'em a little bit," said one officer.

Spring brings Austin a bumper crop of transients and "bums," according to officer Dave Smith, who works in the department's Crime Analysis Division.

"It picks up quite a bit this time of year," he said. "You get a lot more bums moving in, and they come from all over the country. This is the season for 'em."

"It's warm, it's nice. They know they can get away with a lot," he said.

So not everything spring brings is beautiful. Statistically it's not even Texas' most romantic season.

You can't 'stamp' out inflation

By SUE FAHLGREN
Staff Writer

A dollar might not buy much any more, as President Reagan said in his first address to the nation, and a dollar's worth of U.S. Postal stamps will be fewer as of 12:01 a.m. Sunday.

If you've finally got it straight that 90 cents will buy six 15-cent stamps or $1.05 buys seven stamps, get ready for some more math as the rates increase to an uneven 18 cents — five stamps for 90 cents or six stamps for $1.08.

"It's been three years since we had a rate increase," Midland Postmaster David Holster noted Thursday. "Everyone uses the mail — whether they are sending letters or getting bills. Individually, I don't think the increase will amount to more than $3 a year. I don't think inflation has hit the postal service as much as other places."

Letters and bills mailed tonight and all day Saturday will show the familiar 15-cent demarcation, while Sunday's mail should have a purple and white "B Series" stamp affixed to it. According to Holster, the "B Series" stamp with no denomination was devised for use during the switchover.

"The board of governors decided the date for the change," he said, adding they left postal workers with "about 10 days notice."

Holster said when the board convened to decide how much the new stamps should cost, "18 to 20 cents was anticipated." Since it takes the Bureau of Engraving and Printing some six months to prepare designs, produce plates, print and distrib-

The Newspaper BIBLE

"WHAT DO YOU THINK THE OWNER WILL DO?"

Jesus turned to the people again and told them this story: "A man planted a vineyard and rented it out to some farmers, and went away to a distant land to live for several years.
 "When harvest time came, he sent one of his men to the farm to collect his share of the crops. But the tenants beat him up and sent him back empty-handed.
 "Then he sent another, but the same thing happened; he was beaten up and insulted and sent away without collecting.
 "A third man was sent and the same thing happened. He, too, was wounded and chased away.
 "What shall I do?" the owner asked himself. "I know! I'll send my cherished son. Surely they will show respect for him."
 "But when the tenants saw his son, they said, 'This is our chance! This fellow will inherit all the land when his father dies. Come on. Let's kill him, and then it will be ours.' So they dragged him out of the vineyard and killed him. What do you think the owner will do?
 "I'll tell you—he will come and kill them and rent the vineyard to others." "But they would never do a thing like that," His listeners protested.
 Jesus looked at them and said, "Then what does the Scripture mean where it says, 'The Stone rejected by the builders was made the cornerstone?' And He added, "Whoever stumbles over that Stone shall be broken; and those on whom it falls will be crushed to dust." Luke 20:9-18

Acupuncturists don't want to be exempted

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Some slightly confused Chinese acupuncturists say they don't want the help a legislator offers with his bill to exempt the ancient oriental healing art from state regulation.
 Several of the acupuncturists registered with the House Health Services Committee to testify in favor of a bill by Rep. Sam Hudson, D-Dallas, but it soon became obvious that none who spoke had read the measure.
 When they found out Monday what it was, they didn't like it.
 Hudson's bill would exempt acupuncture from regulation by the State Board of Medical Examiners, claiming it is not the practice of medicine.
 It is not now regulated because a board ruling that it acupuncture is a medical practice and only a physician could manipulate the needles was declared unconstitutional by a Houston federal court in July.
 "Acupuncture has been a medical practice for 7,000 years," Paul Ling said Monday as he began speaking in favor of the bill. Informed by Committee Chairman Ron Wilson, D-Houston, that the proposal said exactly the opposite, Ling paused, then said:

 "This is the first time I see this law. But acupuncture is the practice of medicine. I think maybe Mr. Hudson didn't know that much, but wanted to do something else."
 After a second witness in support of the bill gave similar remarks and said the profession needs state regulation to set standards for Texas practitioners, Wilson halted testimony.
 "We seem to have a healthy misconception about what this bill is," he said.
 Hudson said his bill was needed so a doctor could employ a Chinese acupuncturist without endangering his license to practice medicine.
 Stone, who works for the Medical Examiners Board, said that physicians could hire acupuncturists without any such risk, just as they hire nurses or other therapists.
 "Well, the board may have taken a hands-off attitude, but still the problem is there," Hudson said.

Conviction upheld

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday affirmed the conviction of Jesse Martin Binnion, convicted in Ector County of delivery of marijuana.
 Binnion, who had been convicted of two prior felonies, was sentenced to life in prison.
 In his appeal, Binnion complained that the marijuana used in evidence should not have been admitted because the scientific tests used to establish that it was marijuana weren't shown to be reliable.
 He also alleged that he had not been granted a speedy trial as required, and attacked the constitutionality of the Texas Controlled Substance Act.
 The court rejected his appeal and affirmed the conviction.
 The same court overturned the burglary conviction and eight-year sentence assessed Hollis Moore in Howard County, saying that Moore had been indicted for burglary "by entering a habitation and committing theft," while the charge to the jury referred to "burglary by entering a habitation with intent to commit theft."
 The court said that the difference in the indictment and the jury charge was "fundamental error" and required reversal of the conviction.

By GARY R. PEDERSEN
Associated Press Writer

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Junta President Jose Napoleon Duarte said the Salvadoran government has all the arms it needs to battle the leftist guerrillas, and that it is up to them to end the fighting.

He told reporters Thursday the junta does not plan to ask for more than the $35 million in military aid pledged by the U.S. government. "We asked for what we needed and at this point we don't think we need any more," he said.

Asked how long he thought the fighting would last, Duarte said, "I don't know, but when you've got guerrillas out in the countryside who are ready to kill and willing to be killed it's obvious the fighting is going to continue."

He added, "It is up to them" to decide when El Salvador has had enough fighting.

Duarte also said he was unaware of a suggestion by Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. that the reason three American nuns and a lay social worker were killed here in December was that they ran a road block.

Duarte said the junta was pursuing its investigation of the killings but, "We're still not sure what happened."

Haig offered the theory in Washington Wednesday, and Bill Ford, brother of Ita Ford, one of the slain women, accused the Reagan administration of engaging in a "subtle smear campaign."

The nuns belonged to the Maryknoll order in Ossining, N.Y., and a spokeswoman, Sister

Martha Bourne, said, "I find it inconceivable that the women would have run a roadblock."

"The women were all familiar with the situation in El Salvador. I just don't think they would have taken such a chance."

A Salvadoran Roman Catholic Church group blamed right-wing terrorists and security forces for the killings of the four American women, 170 schoolteachers and at least 150 attacks on church property, clergymen and workers in the last 14 months, in some cases with the help of U.S. advisers.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman called the allegation of U.S. involvement "ridiculous" and a Salvadoran military official, who asked that his name be withheld, called the report "communist propaganda to discredit the government."

The report was issued by the Socorro Juridico, a legal aid group set up inside the San Salvador Archbishopric in 1975 to advise peasants of their rights, give legal assistance and keep track of human rights violations.

In a recent interview acting Archbishop Arturo Rivera y Damas accused the Socorro Juridico of "tendentiousness" in denouncing rightists, but not leftist terrorism, and threatened to close its office.

The legal aid group did not elaborate on the allegation of U.S. involvement.

The Socorro Juridico's report said that of more than 300 attacks on church officials and property since January 1980, more than half were carried out by rightists.

Satellite looks to Alamo City

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — In an historic chapter in space age journalism, The Associated Press has begun its first satellite delivery of data speed stocks and data speed features to the San Antonio Express-News.

The transmission from the AP in New York to the Express-News, by way of a satellite dish on the newspaper's roof, also marked the first satellite delivery of printed data to a Texas newspaper.

"It's absolutely made my day when I can throw the switch and put us out into the field of space communications," said Mayor Lila Cockrell, who threw a switch at a rooftop ceremony Thursday to officially begin the satellite transmissions.

"Now that really is exciting. We're going to be receiving signals from space and I hope one of these days we'll be able to send them, too. It is a wonderful first because it means the most advanced technology in this field is now available in San Antonio," the mayor said.

A white satellite dish on the Express-News roof was linked with the Westar III satellite orbiting the equator 22,300 miles out in space, according to David Bowen, AP vice president and director of communications.

Bowen explained that stock tables being accumulated at AP headquarters at 50 Rockefeller Plaza in New York City were transmitted 30 miles to an "up-link earth station" in Glenwood, N.J., then transmitted to the satellite circling the earth roughly Southeast of San Antonio.

"We're very pleased to be the first in the state to have this dish and to be the first in the United States to have the stock market tables," Express-News Publisher Charles Kilpatrick said.

"This is first time data speed stock tables have been received by satellite anywhere in the United States," Bowen said. "But you won't have that distinction very long because we have 160 other installations just like this at other newspapers across the country. We have an implementation plan that says by this time next year that the number will grow to 900."

Bowen, a San Antonio native, received an honorary mayor certificate from Mrs. Cockrell during the ceremony also attended by Dorman Cordell, Texas chief of bureau; Emmett Rerfrow, Texas communications chief; Fane Burt, managing editor of the Express; Bert Wise, managing editor of the News, and Jim Dolan, managing editor of the Express-News Sunday papers.

Poles strike to protest beatings

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Polish workers struck in at least four cities today to protest police beatings of some 25 labor activists, and independent union leader Lech Walesa vowed: "We shall respond by a similar attack, but calmly, with common sense and without fear. Our legs aren't shaking."

The two-hour strikes were held in the northwestern city of Bydgoszcz and surrounding small towns, in nearby Torun and Grudziadz and in Wroclaw, to the southeast, even as Soviet-led Warsaw Pact troops continued maneuvers in Poland and other East Bloc countries.

Some 200 policemen stormed the Bydgoszcz city hall Thursday and beat farm workers and their supporters, including union activists Jan Rulewski, Mariusz Labentowicz and Michael Bar-toszczke, Walesa's independent union, Solidarity, said.

Photos of the men lying on the ground and spattered with blood were posted on walls and fences around the city beneath red and white Polish flags and Solidarity banner.

A loudspeaker near the Solidarity headquarters blared out the union leaders' charge that the incident was "a direct provocation of local authorities against the government" of Poland's new premier, Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, who has called for a peaceful dialogue to settle labor strife.

A large banner outside the headquarters proclaimed, "90 Days of Calm Shattered," in reference to the premier's call for three months of labor peace.

Hospital employee to resign

Jane Hall, collections manager at Midland Memorial Hospital, resigned from that position effective today for what she said were health reasons.

"When you devote almost 11 years to a place, it is not easy to leave it," she said. "I have been in a position to deal with a great many Midlanders and will always be thankful for this opportunity. Hopefully, I have made their hospital experiences a little more pleasant."

Employed at MMH in July 1970, Mrs. Hall began her career in the collections department. In December 1971, she was promoted to credit manager and was given responsibility for the insurance area.

Mrs. Hall held that position until April 1978 when she became director of admitting, credit and insurance and assumed full responsibility for the indigent care program following the creation of Midland County Hospital District. In February 1981, she was transferred to the collections department as manager.

Prior to her career at Midland Memorial, Mrs. Hall was administrator of a hospital in Stanton after having begun her tenure there in 1960 as director of central supply, purchasing and surgery. She left the Stanton hospital in 1968.

Ford taking message to China

HONG KONG (AP) — Former President Gerald Ford, predicting improvement in Sino-American relations under the Reagan administration, said today he is carrying a message from President Reagan to China's leaders.

Ford, who described differences between the United States and China as "minimal," said he would deliver the Reagan note to Chinese Vice Chairman Deng Xiaoping on Sunday when he arrives in Peking.

Commenting on Reagan's campaign pledge to upgrade relations with the Nationalist Chinese government on Taiwan, Ford said he does not believe there should be a "significant shift" in ties between Taiwan and Washington.

The William Randolph Hearst Foundation today announced the names of the national college photographers who have been selected as finalists in the 1981 competition. The photojournalism competition is a division of the Foundation's Journalism Awards Program held annually under the auspices of the American Association of Schools and Departments of Journalism.

The ten finalists, in alphabetical order by school, are: Barbara Hansen, University of Florida; Michel du Cille and David Schreiber, Indiana University; Bo Rader, Kansas State University; Sandy Felsenthal, Memphis State University; Anthony Dugal, Michigan State University; Steven Zerby, University of Minnesota; Greg Greer, University of Missouri; Kurt Mutchler, Ohio State University; and Janet Sonnemair, University of Texas, Austin.

Selection of the finalists was made by Robert Gilka, Director of Photography, National Geographic Magazine; Brian Lanker, Director of Graphics, Eugene Register-Guard; and Richard Sroda, Director of Photography, Gannett Rochester Newspapers.

Judging was based on student portfolios containing six representative photographs in specific categories.

Next month the ten finalists will be asked to submit additional photographs to complete all portfolios. Following the second round of judging, the three highest scoring students will be flown to San Francisco for an on-the-spot photo assignment.

Ten scholarship awards, ranging from $2,000 to $500, will be presented to all the finalists, with matching grants awarded to their schools as well.

The Journalism Awards Program, now in its twenty-first year is also made up of six writing contests and a writing championship; and offers scholarships to undergraduate journalism majors with matching grants to their schools of journalism.

Vacation Certificates: Watch out!

Many businesses have been contacted by telephone during the last week to buy a package of ten or more "Vacation Certificates" at $39.50 apiece to be distributed to clients or customers as a goodwill promotion, according to a spokesman for the Better Business Bureau of the Permian Basin, Inc.

These companies use a "boiler room" operation where scores of telephone sales people contact businesses across the country. They usually are affiliated with a courier company that is immediately sent to the business to pick up the check if a sale is made. The certificate usually entitles the holder to free hotel/motel accommodations in Las Vegas, Reno or Miami for three days and two nights. Meals and transportation are not included.

Although not stated on the phone, the luxurious accommodations that are advertised may turn out to be a third-class motel located far off the beaten track. Or, the vacationer may be forced to sit through an extended high-pressure sales pitch for real estate, products or service before given his room keys.

The small print on the certificate will usually explain that the promoter has the right to reschedule if the vacationer desires to use his certificate on weekends, holidays or other peak periods, therefore making it virtually impossible to use the certificate.

If you have recently been contacted about buying a vacation certificate package, call your Better Business Bureau at 563-1882.

Panel says remedies for baldness don't work

Dear Dr. Solomon: Those advertisements for products that make hair grow are very appealing to me, especially since I'm only 35 years old and beginning to look like my father on the top of my head. My common sense tells me these claims are too good to be true, but I don't think a company would be able to advertise something unless it could back it up. Would there be any medical reason not to use a product that's advertised to prevent baldness or grow hair? — Alan

Dear Alan: I don't know which particular advertisement you have in mind, but an advisory panel to the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has reported that none of the products touted to grow hair or prevent baldness is effective. If the FDA has its way, these products will be taken off the market.

Most of the remedies advertised as preventing baldness contain such ingredients as lanolin, olive oil, wheat germ, and vitamins. However, for any product to stimulate the growth of hair, it must get into the root; merely rubbing it into the scalp serves no purpose. Sex hormones taken internally may cause hair to grow, but not necessarily where such growth is desired.

In any event, these hormones should not be used indiscriminately, and are not recommended for retarding baldness.

In most cases, baldness in men is the result of an inherited trait, and cannot be altered any more than can the natural color of the hair. Other causes of baldness include malnutrition resulting from rash dieting, iron deficiency, a hormonal imbalance, exposure to radiation, or a result of a toxic reaction after a severe infection. From what you write in your letter, it would appear that you are following your father's pattern of baldness.

If your loss of hair has been excessive and sudden, it would be advisable for you to see your doctor since it may be symptomatic of an underlying medical condition. On the other hand, investing in hair restoration or similar so-called remedies can only lighten your wallet without increasing the growth on your head.

Dear Dr. Solomon: At various times you have written about large-scale screening programs being effective for some diseases, like high blood pressure, but not being advisable for others. What about lung cancer? Is there any evidence that screening would be helpful? — Todd

Dear Todd: The Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center has been conducting a prospective screening program on 10,000 middle-aged men who smoke, and the results indicate that the program is proving worthwhile.

Sims acquitted on robbery charge

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The 32-year-old San Angelo honey-fry restaurateur who maintained he was framed in the Dec. 14 robbery of the Speedy Pak Grocery store in Midland was acquitted by a jury Thursday in 238th State District Court.

The jury had deliberated about three hours.

The defendant, Wallace Lee Sims, had maintained that co-defendant Tony Young, 22, had implicated him in the armed robbery by alleging that Sims was the driver of the getaway car.

Sims, a ex-convict whose San Angelo fish-and-chicken restaurant went bankrupt, claimed he was working in King's Sandwich Shop here at time of the robbery.

Sims had been held in the Midland County Jail for three months while he was awaiting trial.

"And there'll be no apologies (for the incarceration by the prosecution)," said court-appointed defense attorney David Lashford.

"I think the jury was good," he said.

"So do I," agreed Jacqueline Barnes, the defendant's 22-year-old girl friend who had represented herself as Sims' common-law wife. Judge Vann Culp, however, had ruled that Ms. Barnes did not qualify as Sims' common-law spouse; he was married to another woman even while in jail and was divorced March 13 — while still in jail — from his former wife.

Sims checked out of jail after the trial. He was to return to San Angelo, where he faces hot-check charges. Sims' previous convictions include those for robbery by assault, rape and assault to commit murder.

Lashford, however, indicated that he could not fault the state for Sims' being held in jail and under a $25,000 bond while awaiting trial; Sims said he was too poor to afford bail and to hire a lawyer.

"All the state had to go on was from the police," said Lashford. Police were convinced that Sims was party to robbery of the store at 1201 Garden City Highway.

"They (prosecutors) tend to believe police more so than anybody else."

Prosecutors David Joers and Jim Rex strenuously argued for a conviction.

"Wallace Lee Sims was in on the planning of this thing," Rex had maintained. "Wallace Lee Sims was the driver of the getaway car. He was the one who planned this thing."

Prosecutor Joers, who said Sims' friends were into gambling and drinking, couldn't be trusted and was a "snitch" for the Tom Green County sheriff's office in San Angelo.

Joers noted that Tom Green County Chief Deputy Loll Ballentine had paid Sims $200 and furnished him a car to do "informant work" and that Sims had notified the deputy of the impending robbery two days before it was pulled off in Midland.

"He (Sims) thought he had a lot of leverage with Officer Ballentine," the prosecutors said.

Joers also found less than credible Sims' so-called common-law wife, who initially signed a statement that Sims was the driver of the getaway car and that Sims had more than $800 about the time of the robbery. However, Ms. Barnes testified that she was coerced and pressured into making the false statement by Midland Police Detectives Ron Aaron and Roy Harrison.

Ms. Barnes said Sims had won the money in gambling — playing craps — with Young.

Young, who also is charged with robbery, reportedly has been promised a 10-year-probated sentence in exchange for his implicating Sims in the armed robbery.

Young said Sims drove the get-away car.

"The state is not trying to tell you that Tony Young is a wonderful person," Joers told the three-woman, nine-man jury. "Anybody who pulls off a robbery is not wonderful."

Defense attorney Lashford charged that the state was trying to convict Sims though a "lot of innuendo and a lot of implication."

"What facts do they have?" Lashford asked. "They don't have any eye-ball witnesses, no fingerprints" that would link Sims to the crime.

Lashford suggested that co-defendant Young was the culprit. He also said that a third co-defendant, Newsome Hudson, 32, was not the robber.

"He (Tony Young) works a deal to get probation," Lashford said. "Ten years probation for his testimony (against Sims). He's got his deal worked out. Why should he be worried about some 'snitch.'"

Tourists watch return of swallows

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (AP) — Busloads of tourists ignored the rain to watch the swallows' annual return to the ruins of the San Juan Capistrano mission, but at least one visitor was disappointed.

Visitors came from as far away as New Hampshire to observe the return of the famous cliff swallows, which have been nesting in the 205-year-old mission for almost 200 years.

The bells at the mission began ringing at 9:05 a.m. Thursday to signal their arrival. Ornithologist Henry Childs confirmed the sighting, saying that 257 of the long-winged fork-tailed birds were spotted in less than two hours after dawn.

But the arrival wasn't what Harvey McPhail had in mind. "Frankly I was expecting them to come in like a swarm of bats," said the 56-year-old retired engineer from Denver.

Area Where Workmen Were Felled

Diagram illustrates engine compartment of the space shuttle Columbia where an accident involving workers at the Kennedy Space Center in Cape Canaveral, Fla., occurred during a test of the space shuttle Thursday. One worker was killed, a second was critically hurt and four others were nearly asphyxiated when they blundered into the nitrogen-filled compartment, NASA officials said. The accident, involving the first launch pad fatality since a flash fire killed three Apollo I astronauts in Jan. 1967, was not the result of a flaw in the shuttle, according to space agency officials.

Voters get new tax plan

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Legislative leaders say they will stump the state to drum up support among skeptical Michigan voters for a proposed constitutional amendment to cut property taxes sharply while boosting the state sales tax to finance it.

Budget Director Gerald Miller says a special task force will be formed, with backing from major interest groups and private financing, to promote the plan, which will appear on a special May 19 ballot.

"I'm going to do everything I can — a lot," said Gov. William Milliken. He watched from the Senate gallery Thursday night as the program he hashed out with House and Senate leaders won final legislative approval.

The plan would cut residential property taxes in half, raise the sales tax from 4 to 5.5 percent, provide tax breaks for those paying city income taxes and limit future property tax growth.

Senate Majority Leader William Faust, D-Westland, proposed lawmakers take a two-week break from the Legislature to campaign for the proposal.

'All clear' sounded before fatal accident

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — An "all clear" announcement that it was safe to return to work sounded over Kennedy Space Center moments before one worker was killed and five others nearly asphyxiated in a nitrogen-filled compartment of the space shuttle Columbia, an official says.

The compartment, filled with nitrogen as a precaution against fire during a dress rehearsal Thursday for the shuttle's launch, should have been refilled with oxygen before workers were allowed back in the area, said Dick Barton, a spokesman for Rockwell International Co., the major shuttle contractor.

Five of the men, including the dead man, worked for Rockwell and the sixth was a security guard. "I just happened to be in the area, and I heard the announcement: 'Clear for return to normal work.' Regrettably, it was not," Barton said.

Asked if someone at the space center gave an all-clear announcement prematurely, Barton said: "That's the inference, but I can't go any further. I did hear the one statement; I can say that. But I didn't hear any other statements that were made after that."

The men would not have smelled anything peculiar or have had any other warning that they were entering a deadly area. All five reportedly passed out almost immediately, and soon after they were evacuated from the compartment.

The dead man was identified as John Bjornstad, 50, of Titusville, a senior mechanical technician for Rockwell.

Two of the workers were hospitalized. One was in critical condition early today at Shands Teaching Hospital in Gainesville, the other was in satisfactory condition. The other workers were treated and released.

Rockwell and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration convened boards of inquiry after the incident.

The accident marred a "super" dress rehearsal for the nation's first reusable spacecraft.

Space agency officials in Washington said the accident was not caused by any flaw in the shuttle and said the craft would be launched on schedule next month.

The workers were felled quickly by the lack of oxygen when they entered a "nitrogen purge" zone, said Rocky Raab, a Kennedy Space Center spokesman.

The workers removed an access panel and entered a compartment in the aft section of the orbiter, apparently unaware that it had not been refilled with oxygen, officials said.

Raab said compartments in the rear portion of orbiter normally are filled with nitrogen to prevent fires during tests.

"We inject nitrogen into that area to prevent anything explosive from seeping in there," he said.

It was the first launch pad fatality at the space center since a Jan. 27, 1967, flash fire killed three Apollo I astronauts — Virgil Grissom, Edward White II and Roger Chaffee — during a pre-launch test. In all, eight people have died here, some in accidents unrelated to launchings.

Painters brush aside feminine mystique

When Pam Dountas and stepsister Vicki Behl left Albuquerque, N.M., three years ago in a pickup, they were prepared for humble beginnings.

Rejecting "feminine mystique," the two women, who called themselves P.J.'s Painting Co., donned paint-splattered overalls and began to seek work in a traditionally male-dominated field.

Results were not surprising. Few Midland employers were convinced these women had made the transition from the hair brush to the paint brush.

After another sister, Janet Behl, and two more full-timers, Pat Brookshire and Cheryl Radtke, joined them, the five-member female company found contractors ready to adopt a more refined, aesthetic woman's touch in the hard-hat construction world.

"Contractors were dubious to hire at first," says Pam, a former school teacher who runs the business with a no-nonsense attitude, undermined by a casual sense of humor. "We asked only for one job to prove ourselves."

Three years later, lofty aspirations have materialized atop shaky ladders.

"They're trying harder than some of the men," says Chuck Romaine, Ramcon residential superintendent, who hires out the women to do four to five jobs a week. "They're having to go back and do touch-up work for other painters."

"We're stressing quality and it's hard to get good people," says Pam. "If I found a man who could paint as good as a woman, I'd hire him tomorrow. That's that. But, we have yet to run into one man who will work all day with only an hour for lunch."

While P.J.'s Painting Co. is offering formidable competition, their male counterparts are standing by bewildered. "In the summer, it's funny because most of the girls wear cut-offs and we've had some framers just about fall off the roof," says Pam.

Despite their no-coffee break philosophy, the women don't fail to set aside paint brushes and cans to repair bruised emotions.

"When Pat first came to us, she was having all kinds of emotional problems and didn't think she was worth anything," Pam says. "Even if you just putty, we try to take the time to tell you how great you're doing. It only takes a second."

A system of positive reinforcement has its compensations, according to Pam. "Sometimes they'll introduce me as their boss and sometimes that's the only reward I get."

The women, who do both interior and exterior painting, usually meet at the job site between 8 and 9 a.m., unload their trucks, set up electricity and are assigned different duties such as puttying, caulking and spraying. "However, we all jump when it's time to sand and everybody stops what they're doing," says Pam.

"It's relatively strenuous work, but we all work together," says 22-year-old Janet, who after "pirouetting" off a two-by-four and twisting her foot at a previous job site, is still limping.

"We always eat lunch together. The day, it just swishes by, because we're always talking and on Fridays at the end of the day, we'll go have a beer," Pam says.

The women have grown accustomed to raised eyebrows at restaurants when they are seated among secretaries, saleswomen and bank tellers. "I look like this day to day," says 26-year-old Vicki, the group's official sprayer, proudly showing off her paint-smudged baggy pants.

"It may not look pretty, but that's for later. I make my own living and I don't have to answer to anybody."

Pam agrees. "You realize what your potential is and you can use all of it and get the rewards. It's not like you're a super accountant and somebody is going to get all the money for the work you do."

Although the women have not met with the prejudice and harassment they had predicted, they have found the work has not been all glory.

"Sometimes we lose jobs," Pam says. "There are a lot of times I stay up at night and worry about the business, and some days I say, 'God, I hate it.'"

"The first year we worked incredibly hard from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.," she says. "There was a system for everything and now we've pretty much figured it out."

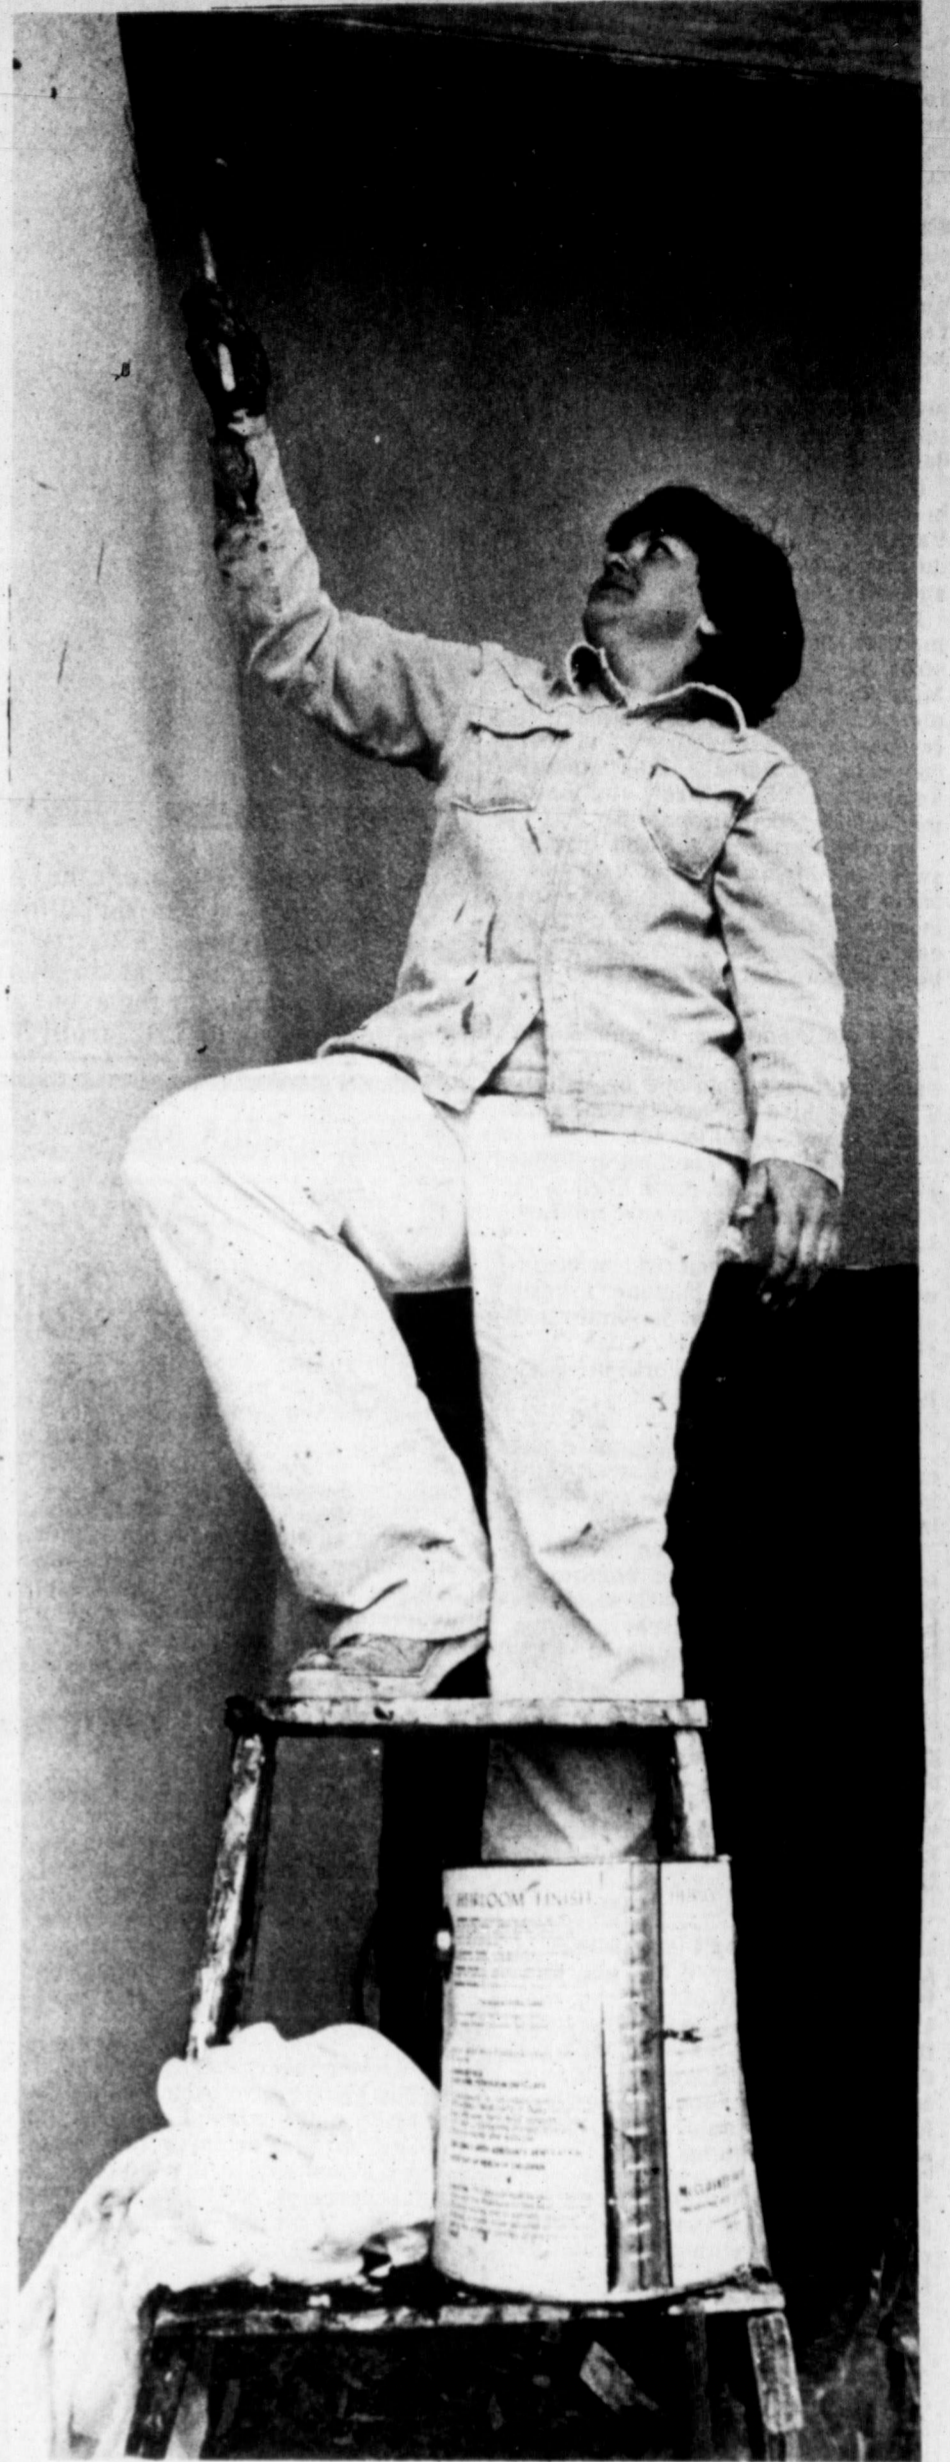

While the women are not dining on filet mignon by candlelight, they are no longer surviving on supermarket specials of corned beef hash and eggs. However, they haven't forgotten their modest beginnings.

"The second week we were here, we ran out of gas. We ran into this old painter named Lester who offered us money," Pam reminisces. "We've never forgotten that man. We still take him out to lunch and now we even get some of his jobs, too."

Pat Brookshire paints wooden beams with steady strokes.

"If I found a man who could paint as good as a woman, I'd hire him tomorrow. That's that. But we have yet to run into one man who will work all day with only an hour for lunch." — Pam Dountas, company manager.

Cheryl Radtke, above, completes the fine touch-ups on a ceiling beam with varnish. Janet and Vicki Behl, left, take a few minutes off to joke around with a paint spraying machine.

Manufacturer's claim — That this chimney cover is designed to keep out birds, squirrels, leaves, sparks, rain, birds and anything that might clog the chimney or be a hazard... That it also helps where certain downdraft conditions exist... That the cap is so designed that it can be used when the flue is of standard size and the liner extends one inch above the top of the chimney or when the flue is not of standard size and requires a mortar or adhesive installation... that it is made of 26-gauge galvanized, bonderized steel, with an 18-gauge expanded metal barrier screen and spark arrester... and that each flue cap adjusts to a full 2 1/2 inches to assure a perfect fit.

THE PRODUCT — A boiler that can be fed either wood or coal.
Manufacturer's claim — That this boiler is connected in tandem with the present oil burner... That the boiler will take either wood or coal, but if it goes out when you are not home, the oil burner will go on automatically... that its slanted door permits top loading of coal and side loading of wood... that the damper control provides bottom flow and top fresh-air input for secondary burning with wood... that the damper doubles as a gas exhaust during the shutdown when burning coal... and that the automatic gravity-controlled damper shuts down during a power failure.

DEAR ABBY

Advice needn't include his wife's

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine wrote to you last year, and you advised her to go to her minister for counseling. She went, and he helped her a lot, so I decided to go to my minister to talk over some marital problems I was having.

I made an appointment to see him at his office, which is in his home, and I found him to be very kind and understanding. I have never been able to discuss anything of an intimate nature with anyone. He sensed my shyness and suggested I go home and write down what I had trouble saying, and bring it back for him to read before our next session.

I did as he suggested and it worked out very well. We had three sessions and he helped me so much. Then, as I was leaving his home after my last session, his wife followed me to the door and said, "Please don't write my husband any more letters. I happened to see one on his desk, and it was disgusting!"

I was terribly embarrassed and felt so bad I never went back. I called the minister and made up an excuse for not getting back to him for two weeks. Abby, I really want to continue with the counseling, but I just can't face his wife. What should I do? — EM-BARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: Call the

Super weather

DETROIT (AP) — One thing the nation's top pro-football teams won't have to worry about at the 1982 Super Bowl game is the weather.

Although the Super Bowl is going north for the first time, it will be played under a 200-ton, 10-acre inflated fiberglass dome that maintains a comfortable 72-degree temperature year-round.

The Silverdome in suburban Pontiac is designed so that no spectator is more than 380 feet from the center of the playing field.

minister and make an appointment to see him. And while you're there, be sure to tell him why you nearly dropped out. (It's important for him to know the truth.) And should you see his wife, you need not feel embarrassed. She was clearly out of line.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I eat out a lot. Our problem is with tipping. When we go to a large, expensive restaurant, my husband tips between 15 percent to 20 percent of the bill — even if the service is terrible. But when we go to a small family-type place, or a diner where the prices are more reasonable and the service is really good, he leaves what I consider a very meager tip, even though it's between 15 and 20 percent of the bill.

Example: Breakfast for two in a small diner costs $4, so my husband leaves a 60-cent tip. Yet breakfast for two in a classier place cost $8, and my husband leaves a $1.60 tip!

I contend that the waitress in the diner works just as hard as the one who works in the more expensive place, and she should get at least $1 for serving two people. My husband says, regardless of what the bill is, he sticks to the accepted rule — 15 to 20 percent of the bill.

Maybe I should keep my mouth shut and let him handle it, but we are constantly arguing about this, so I hope you won't think this is too trivial to answer. — SHIRLEY IN WORCHESTER

DEAR SHIRLEY: Trivial? No way. One of the hardest jobs in the world is serving hungry (and sometimes disagreeable and demanding) people. The waitress who works in a less expensive place needs tips as much (and often more) than those who work where the prices are higher. Tell the old boy to loosen up.

DEAR ABBY: I recently married a man who is 50. I am 40. He has never been married. I have, but I'm now divorced. I am a mother and a grandmother. I can no longer have children because I had a hysterectomy.

My husband wants a baby in the worst way, but I can't give him one. He is very hurt and disappointed. Have you any suggestions? — SOUTH DAKOTA

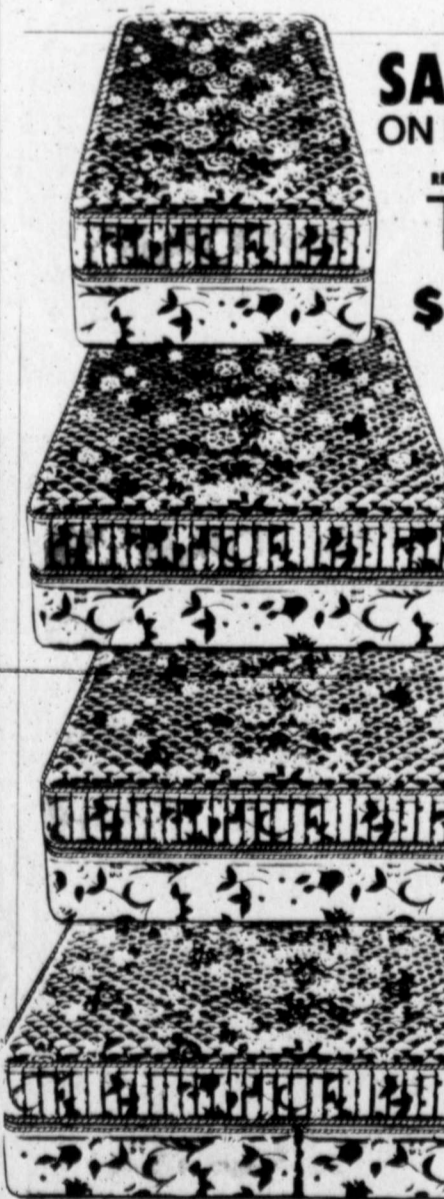

DEAR SOUTH: The obvious option. Adoption.

Moral Majority wants correct voting

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Moral Majority, conceding that a good public servant doesn't have to be a church-going teetotaler, says it will ignore the personal lives of Reagan administration officials as long as they are true believers in political issues the fundamentalist group considers important.

Denying what it called a rumor that it sought to block confirmation of President Reagan's choice to head the Environmental Protection Agency because of the nominee's private life, the group said it never judges nominees on those grounds.

For example, an official of the group said, the Moral Majority is making no judgment on the decision of Reagan and his wife, Nancy, to re-introduce hard liquor into the White House, even though some of its members have complained.

"We are not interested in whether people are drinking or not drinking, are teaching Sunday school or not going to church. We are interested in people who can run the country," said Cal Thomas, the group's vice president for communications.

"We have some Sunday school teachers who are not really good on the issues as we view them and we may have some other people who have an occasional highball who in our view would vote right," he said. "At some point you have to make a distinction on where the personal life leaves off and the political life begins."

In its statement, the Moral Majority, led by the Rev. Jerry Falwell of Lynchburg, Va., denied it had raised objections to the nomination of Anne Gorsuch as head of the EPA on the basis of her relationship with Bob Burford, nominated to head the Bureau of Land Management.

Both are from Denver and both are in the process of getting divorced. The Denver Post said March 12 that they developed a "close personal association" during the time they served in the Colorado House of Representatives.

Thomas said he issued the statement "to kill a rumor that seems to be floating around Washington" that the Moral Majority was working to block Mrs. Gorsuch's nomination out of displeasure with her personal life.

say, would be irrelevant to her ability to do the task."

"We are not opposing her," he said. "As far as her conservative credentials are concerned, it would seem she has them together. Her living arrangements, we would

Craddick's well bill approved

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland, won final approval Wednesday of his legislation for control of wells injected with hydrocarbons for storage purposes, after resolving a dispute with a colleague over the matter.

Rep. Jerry Benedict, D-Angleton, became upset Tuesday over passage of the bill before he had an opportunity to offer an amendment to the measure.

Benedict had told reporters he was absent from the House floor when the measure was passed, after having met with Craddick and persons concerned with the bill, apparently expecting the measure would not be taken up by the House during his absence.

Craddick said the situation resulted from a misunderstanding, which was later worked out with Benedict, who wanted to add an amendment to require notice to local governments on the location of such wells in their areas.

Such an amendment was accepted by Craddick to the measure Wednesday.

Craddick Wednesday also obtained approval by SB 51 by Sen. O.H. (Ike) Harris, R-Dallas, making an emergency appropriation to the Real Estate Commission.

Craddick acted as House sponsor for the bill, which provides $58,000 for staffing of a residential service company division through Aug. 31.

Craddick noted the legislature in 1979 called on the commission to regulate such companies, but provided no funds to do so.

and drug abuse and supporting Israel and a strong national defense.

He said those were ideals that the group supported, and when making political choices, "you opt for the best of what is available. The president has found that Mrs. Gorsuch will do the job he wants done and that's why he nominated her."

Mrs. Gorsuch, a corporate attorney for Mountain Bell Telephone Co since 1975, has drawn stiff opposition from environmental groups who have assailed what they term anti-environmental stands she took in the Colorado Legislature. They also have complained that she knows little about EPA's mission.

Thomas described its requirements as support for "pro-life, pro-family, pro-moral and pro-American" positions. He said that means, respectively, opposing abortion, honoring the husband-wife relationship, opposing pornography

Asked to describe his relationship with Mrs. Gorsuch, he said, "She and I are longtime acquaintances." He declined to elaborate.

In its statement, the Moral Majority said, "We have seen no evidence that would cause us to be concerned about (Mrs. Gorsuch's) personal morality, nor do we ever list personal morality as one of our four requirements for public service."

Thomas described its requirements as support for "pro-life, pro-family, pro-moral and pro-American" positions. He said that means, respectively, opposing abortion, honoring the husband-wife relationship, opposing pornography

Scouting skills go on display

A colorful array of Scouting skills and talents will unfold Saturday from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Midland County Exhibit Building in the Chaparral District Scout Exposition.

Doug Palmer, district executive, said Cub packs, Scout troops and Explorer posts will demonstrate a variety of Scouting skills.

Some 1,000 young people will be involved and the day's events are expected to attract 2,000 to 3,000 persons, Palmer said.

Cub skills center on home and family activities; Scout skills emphasize outdoor programs and the High Adventure program; and Explorers demonstrate career skills.

Cubs will do Indian crafts for the Exposition, as well as exhibiting projects related to aviation and space, family games and communications.

Scouts will emphasize camping, backpacking, forestry, astronomy and even a burro race, Palmer said.

A unique Explorer demonstration will involve laying out a newspaper. This post is sponsored by The Midland Reporter-Telegram.

Another Explorer activity will be Post 19's demonstration on Western Heritage.

Cubs, Scouts and Explorers are selling tickets to the event for $1 apiece, 40 percent of which goes back into the individual units' treasuries. The scouts earn prizes for the number of tickets they sell.

Some 36 groups will participate in the Exposition. Scouts from Midland and Martin counties will take part, Palmer said.

The Exposition is part of the 71st anniversary of the Scouting movement. The public is invited.

Few cities see Atlanta's problem

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — As if to emphasize the stark horror of Atlanta's child death tragedy, police in other major American cities say it remains rare for a missing child to be found dead — and for such a case to go unsolved.

Authorities in more than two dozen cities told The Associated Press that they have few cases comparable to those in Atlanta, where 20 black children between the ages of 7 and 16 have been found dead over the past 20 months. Two other children are missing.

"There's no pattern of killings, nothing like Atlanta," Philadelphia homicide Capt. Jerry Lane.

"Atlanta seems to be a phenomenon all by itself," Patrick Conway, homicide statistician for the Chicago police.

"We're not experiencing anything like that. Any homicide is alarming, but we have nothing in the pattern or the situation of Atlanta," Milwaukee police Capt. Albert Hentz.

POLICE IN BOSTON, Baltimore, Miami, Milwaukee, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City, Mo., Seattle, San Francisco and Oakland, Calif., and Tucson, Ariz., said that in the last year and a half they've had no similar unsolved cases of missing children being found murdered for no apparent motive.

In Philadelphia, Washington, D.C.,

Knoxville, Tenn., Birmingham, Ala., Columbus, Ohio, Oklahoma City, Topeka, Kan., Phoenix, Ariz., and San Diego, police said they have only one such case each.

In Newark, N.J., a case somewhat similar to the Atlanta mystery has been on the books for 2½ years. On Aug. 20, 1978, five black boys vanished. No trace of them has ever been found, police say, despite intensive investigation.

No evidence of foul play has been found.

Police Detective Richard Paraboschi of the Youth Aid Bureau said the case "is similar to what's happening in Atlanta, in the sense that the police have run out of leads and there's nowhere to go with the investigation."

IN A NUMBER of other cities, including New York, Los Angeles, Dallas, Houston and Minneapolis, authorities had no recent homicide statistics to offer but said they weren't aware of any increase in child murders.

The New York police said children under 15 have in the past accounted for fewer than 5 percent of the city's murders in a year.

In 1977, the last year for which a breakdown is available, there were 1,557 murders in the city. Of these victims, 72 were 15 or younger. Officials said only 16 were killed for unknown reasons.

Denver reported two unsolved child murders from a year ago: cousins, aged 7 and 10, were found dead of blows to the head several hours after they told their parents they were going to a corner ice cream stand.

Authorities said the Atlanta case appears to be making both police and parents more aware of violence against children.

LATE LAST YEAR, neighbors and police conducted an Atlanta-type search in Philadelphia when a 5-year-old black girl disappeared. Since her body was found in a vacant building a month later, citizens have been demanding more police protection near schools.

When a 6-year-old black girl disappeared the day after Christmas, 300 Knoxville, Tenn., citizens and officers joined in a search. The girl is still missing.

Police in Oakland County, Mich., a suburban area north of Detroit, were quick to contact Atlanta officials to see if any similarities existed between the Georgia cases and the kidnappings and murders of four white children, aged 10 to 12, during the winter of 1976-77. Authorities decided the cases were not linked.

After the still-unsolved death of an 8-year-old girl last summer in an affluent Columbus, Ohio, suburb, police began warning parents and children to be wary of strangers.

In Washington, where several child deaths in the last two years were solved with the arrests of relatives or relatives' friends, police routinely visit schools to warn children against "stranger danger."

IN ORLANDO, FLA., police said citizens were instantly concerned about an Atlanta-type homicide when a black girl was found shot to death. But two people were quickly arrested — a woman dating the dead girl's father and the woman's ex-husband.

In Miami, city and Dade County authorities said all the child deaths they have investigated in the last two years have stemmed from child abuse.

Tom Mundy of the Oklahoma City police department concurred: "Most of the dozen or so child deaths we've had in the past 18 months have been beatings involving the parents."

"Typically, that's what happens," said Lt. Frank Phillips, chief of the Columbus, Ohio, police homicide unit. "The murder is a result of a beating."

A 34-year-old white woman in San Francisco was recently sentenced to life in prison after a jury found her guilty of strangling a 5-year-old black boy because of "racial hatred," but none of the authorities contacted reported any unusual increase in the deaths of black children. Nationally, however, the rate of murder for black children is considerably higher than for white children.

The FBI said that in 1979, the last year for which complete homicide statistics are available, 880 of the nation's 21,456 murder victims were aged 15 or younger. Black children made up 38 percent of the victims — about three times the percentage of blacks in the U.S. population.

Caller claims to be killer

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAK
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — A man who called a minister and claimed responsibility for four of the 20 slayings of black children here said he was haunted by a voice and feels unloved, the pastor said.

"He told me, 'The voice tells me to kill,'" the Rev. Earl Paulk said at a news conference Thursday at his Chapel Hill Harvester Church in suburban Decatur.

He quoted the man as saying, "Once the voice begins controlling me, I have no control at all."

The minister said the man, who called on March 10, discussed four of the killings, referring to them as "the first three and the last one."

He mentioned only the name of the last victim, 13-year-old Curtis Walker, and said someone had assisted him in each case, according to Paulk.

When Walker's body was found March 6 in a nearby river, the minister said he feared the killer had reacted to Paulk's Feb. 14 televised plea for his surrender by placing a body so close to the church.

Atlanta Public Safety Commissioner Lee P.

Brown, who oversees the task force investigating the deaths of 20 children and the disappearances of two others in the past 20 months, had no comment on the pastor's report.

Paulk said the man gave knowledgeable answers to certain "verifying questions" that could have eliminated him as a suspect. But the minister said the man did not provide any information that would even tend to show he was the killer.

Meanwhile, residents of a low-income housing project said they would begin armed self-defense patrols today despite police objections.

Organizer Israel Green said he and other leaders would go to jail if police tried to stop their effort. Police said they would conduct "low-key" monitoring to insure there was no violence.

Paulk, who says he has received a call from another man claiming to be the killer, said the latest caller described himself as 28, married and the father of a 17-month-old.

The caller claimed he lured the victims into his blue van by posing as a painter and offering money for part-time work, according to Paulk.

Police have said several of the children slain in the past 20 months had been on the streets hustling odd jobs when they disappeared.

Paulk quoted the caller as saying "Nobody loves me. Nobody has ever loved me," and that his mother didn't care for him. The minister said he met Thursday for 45 minutes with representatives from the FBI and DeKalb County police department.

The caller agreed to meet with Paulk at his church about 30 minutes after the phone call, but never showed, the minister said.

Reagan on the brink of cutting off Nicaraguan aid

Former Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan talks with newsmen Thursday in Tel Aviv on his decision to run in Israel's June 30 parliamentary elections. Dayan is withholding formal announcement until he is sure his comrades are standing by him. Dayan will be running against Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Labour Party leader Shimon Peres.

Israel blasts Vatican

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israel expressed "astonishment" today that a senior Vatican official met with a PLO representative and called the session damaging to Mideast peace efforts.

A Foreign Ministry spokesman said the Palestine Liberation Organization advocates "the destruction of the Jewish state and takes pride in the brutal murder of innocent civilians."

He said the meeting Wednesday of PLO representative Farouk Kadoumi with Vatican Secretary of State Cardinal Agostino Casaroli was damaging to Mideast peace efforts.

Killings dencounced

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. Security Council condemned the killing of two Nigerian U.N. peacekeepers by Israeli-backed Christian militiamen in southern Lebanon.

Agreement on the condemnation was stalled for four hours Thursday night because of U.S. opposition to language critical of Israel in the resolution.

East German Ambassador Peter Florin, the council president for March, read the resolution and it was passed by the council just after midnight.

The statement capped four days of council wrangling over whether to blame Israel as well as the Christian militiamen for the tank barrage Monday that killed two Nigerian soldiers, a captain and a corporal, and wounded 11 others.

Reagan asks for aid block

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration has asked the European Economic Community to withhold financial aid from Grenada, the second time recently the administration has tried to block Common Market aid to a Third World nation, according to published reports.

The Washington Post, in Friday's editions, said some of the 10 Common Market nations were angered by week's try to influence the decision on the question of aid to Grenada, a Caribbean nation with close ties to Cuba.

No decision has been yet made on the Grenada question.

An unnamed U.S. official quoted by the Post said that the United States, although not a Common Market member, can outline its views to the group on "something which because of its implications (involves) more than just economic interests."

Earlier this week, some Common Market nations said they will resume providing aid to El Salvador after a month-long halt in the aid that followed a U.S. request to halt supplies that might fall into the hands of leftist guerrillas.

By GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration appears ready to conclude it has no choice but to cut off economic aid to the Nicaraguan government although such a move would risk further weakening of moderate anti-Marxist elements in that country's government, officials say.

At stake is $15 million approved but not disbursed for fiscal 1981 and an additional $20 million tentatively budgeted for fiscal 1982.

The decision, not yet final, is expected to be announced within a week. An aid cutoff surely would be controversial, although it would be applauded by conservatives such as Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who contend Nicaragua's Sandinista government is clearly Marxist.

A chief concern, one State Department official said Thursday, is that the aid to Nicaragua may be indirectly helping finance the leftist guerrilla movement in El Salvador.

The Reagan administration already has extended its informal deadline for reaching a decision an extra week. In the meantime, it has been setting the stage for terminating aid with a barrage of statements critical of Nicaragua.

In congressional testimony Wednesday, Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said the country was on a Soviet "hit list" and that the communists "have already completed the seizure of Nicaragua."

Haig qualified his response somewhat Thursday, saying he did "not mean to suggest that the situation in Nicaragua is hopeless with respect to the future. ... There are a number of very important democratic elements in Nicaragua who are seeking change."

It is those elements — including the Catholic church, a major opposition newspaper, political parties, labor groups and private businessmen — that are likely to be undercut if U.S. aid is discontinued.

Two State Department officials, who did not want to be identified, said the possibility of weakening the non-Marxist elements has been the chief consideration against cutting off aid.

State Department spokesman William Dyess acknowledged

Thursday that a loss of U.S. aid may have a weakening result for non-Marxist elements "in the long run" but not "in the immediate term."

"The question now is whether that aid is being used for the purposes intended," he said, referring to $60 million in U.S. aid already extended for 1981.

The two officials who assessed the situation on the condition they not be identified said they don't believe the administration has any other choice but to terminate aid. One suggested, however, that the administration may hold out the prospect of resumption at a later date if the Nicaraguan government took certain steps.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, March 21, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TO-DAY:

This was the birthday of the great German composer Johann Sebastian Bach. In the year ahead, there will be many happy surprises for you. Your star is on the rise and you are able to make useful new contacts in the business world. Be on your guard against those who are less than honest! Your independent nature could lead you to disregard a friend's timely warning. Lady Luck is your ally in romance. Someone you thought indifferent now shows an unmistakable interest in getting to know you better. Family member compliments your handling of a difficult domestic situation.

ARIES (March 21-April 19):

Do not let others tell you how to live your life. Be honest with romantic partner if he or she asks ticklish question. Put your foot down when it comes to running unnecessary errands.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20):

Set aside some time to gather the information you need to complete income tax return. A certain letter or receipt you want could prove elusive. Take a hard look at domestic expenditures.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20):

A fine day for visits with friends, relatives. Be firm with your children but not overly strict. Look for ways to bring greater beauty and comfort to your home.

CANCER (June 21-July 22):

Someone is unable to fulfill his or her promises. Look for other alternatives. A legal settlement is likely to be made in your favor. Show more sensitivity to the needs of others.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22):

Children and significant changes are part of the picture. Break the shackles of red tape and doubt. A new beginning is both possible and profitable. Financial pressure is relieved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22):

An old project needs to be given a new look. Accept mate or partner's offer of assistance. News from abroad sounds promising. Plan recreational activities that will include family members of all ages.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22):

Try to keep calm if faced with delays. Hobby or avocation could steer you in new career direction. Romance needs to be discussed with family members. A request for privacy should be respected.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21):

An old secret is brought out into the open. The action you decide to take will depend on family members' reaction. Keep spending within reasonable limits. Ask questions to clarify confusing message.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21):

Stand up for your rights at family conference! Money may be at the root of domestic differences. Children need more direction, fewer lectures. Entertaining at home has many advantages over going out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19):

Try not to incur unnecessary expenses. Dismiss the idea that you should "keep up with the Joneses". Romance is looking good! Shower your loved ones with affection and they will reciprocate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18):

Self-improvement projects will boost your ego and improve your image. Seek mate's cooperation if starting on a diet. Romance looks more promising than in the recent past. Choose confidants with care!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20):

Catch up on personal correspondence and get your financial affairs in order. A new hobby is a source of great satisfaction. Seek advice, assistance from someone who is older, more experienced.

high, West's ten would be promoted to a trick. Since declarer still had to lose a diamond, he ended up down one.

Declarer was on the right track when he crossed to dummy to lead the first trump toward his hand. Unfortunately, he didn't follow his plan through to the end. When the queen of spades wins, declarer should re-enter dummy with the ace of diamonds and lead another low spade toward his hand!

Note the difference that makes. East wins the ace of trumps and again continues with two rounds of hearts. But now declarer can ruff high—the jack of spades is still in dummy to draw West's ten. Declarer will lose a trick in each suit except clubs, and the contract sails home.

Private financing may be needed for legal services

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Local or private financing might be tapped for low-cost legal services to the poor if President Reagan scraps the Legal Services Corp., says a lawyer with Texas Rural Legal Aid.

"The feeling of the managers in the program is that we want legal services to continue somehow," said Jerry Garcia, manager of the Harlingen legal aid office.

"We could look to non-profit foundations," he said. "Right now it looks very bad in terms of federal funding. It will be a real disaster in terms of providing services for the poor."

Texas Rural Legal Aid, a non-profit corporation, receives $3 million annually from the Legal Services Corp. All but three of the 12 legal aid offices are in South Texas and five are in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. The organization operates a migrant workers project office in Hereford and others offices in Seguin and Kerrville.

There also is a voting rights project in San Antonio.

"That's the kind of thing Mr. Reagan doesn't like. If all we did was sit around and do evictions and divorces he's happy," he said.

The Valley, with an 80 percent Mexican-American population, averages one of the lowest per-capita incomes of any region in the country.

The McAllen-Pharr-Edinburg area averaged $4,323 in per capita income in the latest figures.

Many clients in legal aid offices are farmworkers or unskilled laborers with routine legal problems of which only 5 percent wind up in court, said Jerry Garcia, manager of the Harlingen office.

"We turn away low priority cases like divorce with no children," he said. "We take almost all 'administrative' cases that involve social security benefits, food stamps, unemployment benefits and housing. Those are survival issues."

A family of four can earn no more than $179 a week to qualify for legal aid services, he said. A single person applying for help can make only $91 a week.

"With that kind of money, they couldn't usually afford a private lawyer and they can't pay us," he said.

Legal aid lawyers can only act in civil cases, where there is no constitutional right to have an attorney present, he said.

At one time, cities and counties supported legal aid to the poor before the Legal Services Corporation was founded in 1965.

Growers in Hereford last year objected to legal aid attorneys taking sides in an onion strike staged by the Texas Farm Workers Union.

Grain embargo costing Reagan

By BOB FICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Continuation of the Soviet grain embargo is costing President Reagan more than it's costing American farmers, a representative of the nation's governors say.

Farmers are losing export markets, but Reagan is losing support for his budget-cutting program, said Kansas Gov. John Carlin, agriculture committee chairman for the National Governors' Association.

"It is our opinion that the embargo should be lifted unless it is broadened to the point where the burden is shared by all Americans," Carlin told the Senate Agriculture Committee on Thursday. "The embargo has without question hurt the American farmer, but more than that, today it is hurting the administration."

Claiming a budget reduction "on top of the continuation of the embargo is just not acceptable," Carlin warned that it would be "difficult if not impossible to gain the support of American agriculture for the fiscal surgery that is being undertaken on the farm program without a shift from what is a highly discriminatory policy."

"Most of us, and rightly so, believe we have already taken our cuts," Carlin said.

Shortly after Carlin testified, a bipartisan group of 51 senators offered a resolution stating that any embargo of farm products to the Soviet Union should be expanded to a full embargo of all trade with the Russians.

Carlin cited a 31 percent increase in Argentine grain production this year which he said "should enable Argentina to fill a large share of the U.S. portion of the Soviet market."

Although Reagan promised during the campaign to lift the embargo, he has said he is delaying that action because of tension in Poland.

"Every month we let that go by," Carlin said, "it's going to be more difficult for us to get back into those markets."

Man who reclaimed crop not indicted

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Farmer Wayne Cryts, who defied federal marshals to take his soybeans from a bankrupt grain elevator, says he's "tickled to death" that a federal grand jury refused to indict him for his action.

"He's finished in Missouri courts," said U.S. Attorney Robert Kingsland after the charges against the Puxico farmer were dismissed Thursday.

However, Kingsland said Cryts may still face contempt of court charges in Arkansas, where the owners of the elevators filed their bankruptcy case, as well as civil suits in connection with the Feb. 16 soybean raid.

On that rainy Monday morning, Cryts led a convoy of 74 trucks to the bankrupt Ristine Grain Elevator at New Madrid, told federal marshals to step aside and along with 300 supporters ripped open the storage bin. The farmers pumped out the 31,000 bushels of soybeans and took them to another elevator in nearby Bernie.

Cryts said he needed to sell his soybeans, valued at $225,000, so he could plant this spring. The soybeans still haven't been sold.

Cryts has been free on $1,000 bond since he was charged in a criminal complaint March 6 with conspiracy to prevent federal officials from carrying out their orders, a felony.

"All along I've had a lot of confidence in our judicial system," the 34-year-old Bootheel farmer said. "I'm tickled to death."

Kingsland said he felt "that the evidence showed a clear violation of the statute and sought an indictment. However, the grand jury did not concur."

The complaint was dismissed by U.S. Magistrate William S. Bahn on a motion by Kingsland. Kingsland said charges would not be sought against farmers who helped Cryts remove his beans from the Ristine Elevator.

"Cryts was our only target, frankly. And if they aren't going to indict Cryts, they aren't going to indict other farmers," Kingsland said.

Cryts and at least 50 other farmers say they have grain stored in Ristine and nine other bankrupt elevators in Missouri and Arkansas owned by the James Brothers of Corning, Ark.

House expected to back dairy pricing proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican leaders are predicting smooth sailing in the House for President Reagan's budget-cutting proposal to scrap an April 1 increase in dairy price supports after a key committee registered its backing.

The measure, the first of the president's economic recovery plans to face a test on the floor of the House or the Senate, was overwhelmingly endorsed Thursday by the House Agriculture Committee.

Afterward, House Minority Leader Bob Michel said the 30-7 vote indicated the measure should have no trouble when it comes up for a vote next Thursday in the House.

Senate Republicans, meanwhile, predicted they would have the necessary votes Tuesday to reverse a setback suffered earlier this week when they were unable to kill what they consider a crippling amendment.

If Congress approves the measure, a scheduled April 1 increase in dairy price supports will be eliminated. Such action, the administration says, would save the government $147 million this fiscal year. Consumers also would be spared an increase of as much as a dime in some dairy products, according to administration figures.

The House Agriculture Committee's action came just a day after a key subcommittee had pushed aside the Reagan plan in favor of its own proposal to revamp the dairy price-support program.

Rep. Dan Glickman, D-Kan., told the full committee that while he did not like "a lot of think (Reagan) is picking on" in his budget cuts, he supported the suspension because the president "ought to have his way on the first issue."

"I'm willing to make a symbol right now," he added.

BYU spills Irish on Ainge solo

By The Associated Press
 Top Ten teams Virginia and North Carolina managed to avoid the rash of upsets in the NCAA Basketball Tournament but the luck of the Irish finally ran out on Notre Dame.
 The seventh-ranked Fighting Irish, who thought they had come up with another miracle only seconds earlier, fell to No. 16 Brigham Young 51-50 Thursday night on All-American Danny Ainge's length-of-the-court drive with two seconds to play.
 In the opener of the East Regional semifinals in Atlanta, fifth-ranked Virginia overpowered No. 15 Tennessee in the second half and rolled to a 62-48 victory. Virginia and BYU will clash Saturday, with the winner going to the Final Four in Philadelphia March 28-30.

ranked North Carolina staved off No. 14 Utah's hometown favorites 61-56. Saturday, the Tar Heels will meet unheralded Kansas State, a 57-52 winner over No. 19 Illinois in the West nightcap.
 The other two regional semifinals will be played Friday night. In the Midwest at Bloomington, Ind., St. Joseph's, Pa., meets Boston College, followed by ninth-ranked Indiana against Alabama-Birmingham. In the Midwest at New Orleans, Wichita State faces Kansas and fourth-ranked Louisiana State, the highest-rated team still alive, goes against No. 20 Arkansas.

minute before Kelly Tripucka drilled an 18-footer from the right side with 10 seconds left to give the Irish a 50-49 lead.
 BYU got the ball into Ainge, who was having an off-night. Surrounded by three Notre Dame players, he dribbled behind his back as he crossed midcourt, headed for the goal and he laid it in over a defender. Ainge's 12 points led the Cougars and Fred Roberts added 11. Ten of Ainge's points and all of Roberts' came in the second half. Orlando Woolridge had 17 for Notre Dame.
 In the opener, Jeff Lamp scored six of Virginia's first eight points during a 13-0 second-half run that enabled the Cavaliers to destroy Tennessee. Virginia rallied just after Tennessee had taken a 36-31 lead with 13:20 remaining.

IN THE WEST Regional at Salt Lake City, sixth-

BYU, TRAILING by 14 points in the second half, fought back and finally took the lead for the first time at 49-48 when reserve guard Greg Ballif hit from the top of the key with 62 seconds remaining. Notre Dame then called two timeouts in the last

Lee, MHS to compete in area meets

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
 Sports Writer

The Midland High Bulldogs will learn their ABC's of track the hard way and the Midland Lee Rebels take its star studded field of winners against some new foes as the track season enters Week 3 Saturday.

Midland High travels to Big Spring Saturday for the ABC Relays for what looks like a very tough field and Lee takes its six-event streak to the Mustang Relays in Andrews where Notre Dame-bound Van Percy is the main attraction.

The Rebels, who have won 12 of 30 events over the course of the previous two track encounters, will face a five-team field of Hereford, Odessa Permian, Odessa High and the New Mexico schools of Carlsbad and Hobbs.

The Bulldogs face a tough slate in Big Spring where San Angelo is heavily favored to gain its second crown. Others are the Lubbock teams of Estacado, Monterey, Lubbock High; Amarillo schools of Caprock and Tascosa; along with Big Spring and Levelland.

The Mustang Relays also feature a fine 4A field of Andrews, Brownfield, Odessa Ector, Fort Stockton, Lamesa, Monahans, Pecos and Lake View while Amherst, Jal, Klondike and Plains will enter the 2A-3A division. The ABC Relays also features a 21-team girls field, including teams from Midland High and Lee.

The Rebels have been led this year by distance phenom Robert Schooler who is undefeated this year in both the 1600 and 3200 meter races. It's a day's work for Schooler, but he has been up to the task. He won the mile last week in the West Texas Relays with a come-from-behind sprint.

David Piccolo, Darrin Williams and Arthur Williams are also unbeaten in their specialties this season for the Rebelw. Piccolo, the defending 300-meter hurdle champion, has not lost in that race this season. Last week he turned in a 39.8, the best time he has ever had this early in the season.

The Williams boys continue to improve with every outing. Darrin turned in a career best of 10.8 in the 100 meters, a wind-aided time, but good never the less. Arthur had a 21.5 in the 200 at Odessa, another career best. Neither have lost this year.

Lee has also won a mile relay and a sprint relay title and would like to add to that total in Andrews.

 Lee's Clyde Smith also came to the front in the discus last week with a 161-6 second place toss. That throw ranks ninth in the state. Also Lee will have weightman Keith Brown back this week after suffering a pulled hamstring lifting weights. "Keith gives us some depth in the weights and that will really help us," Lee coach Sam Volpe said. "But we still need to come up with some points in the long jump, pole vault and high jump. It'll be hard to win a meet if we don't."

 The Bulldogs also have an undefeated runner on the team in sophomore James Beverley in the 800 meters. He won his second race at Amarillo last week with a 1:58.8, off his best of 1:55.5, but the weather was very cold in Amarillo last weekend. Beverley's 1:55.5 ranks fifth in the

Midland girls widen lead 38 strokes

Midland High, holding a whopping 28-stroke lead going into the second round of the District 5-5A girls golf tour Thursday, added to that total by winning the second stop on the tour by 38 strokes on the Hogan Park Golf Course. The Bulldogs turned in a 322 team total to Midland Lee's 358 to increase its overall margin to a 64-stroke lead going into the final stop of the tour April 2 in Big Spring.

Janice Littlefield, who recorded a second-place 82 total in the first meet at San Angelo, toured Horgan Park in 76 strokes to grab Thursday's first-place title and move one stroke ahead of Ann Coombes for overall medalist honors. Coombes registered a second-place 78 Thursday and has a 36-hole total of 159. Littlefield's two-stop total reads 158.

Third place in Thursday's competition went to MHS' Kelly Mobley, 82, while Lee's Penny Sutcliffe, 84, claimed fifth.

MHS' Teresa King turned in an 86 and Melissa Baldrige added a 102 Thursday. Scoring for Lee came from Kari Waton, 87, Gayla Strickland, 90, Leila Lockhart, 97, and Ellie Mee 99.

Big Spring finished the day in third place with a 399. Totals for the Steers were Laura Mexia, 94; Lisa Bumgarner, 95, Karen Woodall, 104; Rhonda Woodall, 106, and Patricia Jones, 118.

San Angelo brought up the rear of the pack Thursday with a team round of 433. Laurie Redfield paced the Bobcats with a 105, Cynthia Ybarra, 108, Tammie Franklin, 109, and Patricia Padilla, 111.

After the first two stops MHS is in front with a 667, Lee is second at 731, third is Big Spring, 807, and San Angelo rests in fourth at 856.

Mobley, MHS, is third in the overall medalist chase with a 166, Sutcliffe, Lee, and Watson, Lee, are fourth and fifth in the medalist race with 173 and 182 totals.

Snook defeats Rangers, 53-27

By KEN HERMAN

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—In Class A action, Snook, looking for a fourth straight state title, punished Midland Greenwood 53-27, and Henrietta Midway beat Avinger 61-50.

Snook is seeking its fourth straight state basketball championship and seventh overall, which would tie Buna's record.

Hezekiah Carter scored 22 points for Snook with all of his eight field goals coming from inside 12 feet. Walter Bell tallied 13.

Tommy Pyle was high for Greenwood with 15 points as Snook's clinging full-court defense held Rex Evans to seven. Pyle and Evans were averaging 18 points a game.

Perennial power Snook, 38-4, led outmanned Greenwood 16-1 after the first period. The Bluejays shot a poor 29 percent from the floor in the first half, but still led 20-9.

Midway will face Snook in Saturday's first game. Snook would tie Buna's record of four straight titles if the Bluejays beat Midway. Snook has taken one-point wins in the last three finals.

DEFENDING champion Beaumont Hebert used its 6-2 leapers to race past Waxahachie, and confident Canyon used a collection of weapons to demolish San Antonio South San West to join Hebert in the Class 4A schoolboy basketball finals.

Hebert, with no one taller than 6-2, got 31 points from Andre Boutee and 29 from Donald Mickens in an easy Thursday night 81-64 semifinal win over Waxahachie.

Canyon, with only one starter under 6-2, got 22 points from sharp-shooting guard Ken Walling to blister South San West 76-49.

In 3A semifinal play Thursday, Powderly North Lamar took a 65-62 overtime win over Van Vleck, and Altair Rice squeezed past Perryton 58-54. All finals are set for Saturday.

HEBERT, 34-2, put the game away late in the second period with a 19-4 spurt. Mickens and Boutee, both 6-2 seniors, scored 54 of Hebert's 61 points in the first three periods. Waxahachie, which narrowed the gap to eight in the third quarter, was led by James Stern's 24 points, most on long-range jumpers.

Canyon, 29-8, put South San West away early. The winning Eagles trailed 11-10 early in the second period but rode Walling's hot shooting to a 36-21 halftime lead. The 6-3 senior guard had 16 of his 22 points in the first half.

The final will pit Hebert's quick leapers against Canyon's height, including 6-9 postman Butch Bearden, who had only eight points and eight rebounds in the semifinal win.

North Lamar's win over Van Vleck was the day's tightest contest. Van Vleck held a 28-25 lead with 3:43 to go in the second quarter when team scoring leader Eric Martin went down with a knee injury. Martin, a 6-1 senior headed for Louisiana State on a football scholarship, did not return and the Leopards missed his 20 point per game scoring.

SENIOR Jimmy Smith came off the bench to lead Van Vleck with 26 points and 16 rebounds, and 6-7 forward Anthony Hudgins hit an inside shot after an offensive rebound to tie the game at 58 with 1:04 remaining in regulation play. Neither team scored in the final minute, sending the game into overtime.

TED BATTLES

Hey, Where did everybody go?

It's like the two pretty female ostriches who were walking along the beach. Coming the other way was a male chauvinist pig ostrich. He spotted the ladies and hastened his gait.

One female fluttered her feathers in panic and said, "Here comes Orville. I can't stand him. Let's hide," whereupon both stuck their heads in the sand. You can imagine Orville's consternation.

He just stood there completely befuddled and said to no one in particular, "Hey wait a minute. Where'd did everybody go?"

The NCAA hasn't even dwindled down to the Final Four, yet a glance around at the field that remains, prompts the puzzled, bewildered and deserted fan to beg Orville's question.

ANY TIME you line up 48 teams for a post-season tournament, there are bound to be some upsets. Some of the teams you would bet on to be in the finals get upset along the way. That's understandable. But this is ridiculous.

Inspecting the carnage of the first and second rounds of NCAA play is like a tour of the Little Big Horn after Custer ordered, "Remember, men, no prisoners."

It's enough to make you lose faith in the coaches' and writers' poll. It's as though the entire season was one big hoax.

Some say it's all a big mistake, but rest assured, the results are in, the deeds are done and it's for sure that this year there will be no Ball State-Mercer and Northeastern-Howard Final Four matchups. Hard as it may be to believe, all have gone the way of the 33.9 cent gallon of gas.

VICTIMS, they were, of first week-end stunners. But they aren't alone. They had plenty of company, just read the list of what-might-have-beens and shed a tear...Virginia Commonwealth, Southern U., Princeton, James Madison, Lamar, Fresno State, Tennessee-Chattanooga, Long Island U....all with noses pressed against the window, on the outside looking in.

How does one account for such an upheaval? Sure, some claim that if the tournament hadn't been expanded to 48 teams, some of these teams wouldn't even be in it and we could have been spared the heartbreak. Those are the cynics.

One coach, maybe he was from St. Joseph's or Princeton, rationalizes that "It's not the conference champions that worry you. It's conference dogs they let into the tournament that cause all the trouble."

An assistant from Northeastern said his team came through its first game with Fresno State, but then got busted by Utah. "The time change got us. In the first game, the jet lag hadn't caught up with us yet, but it's just too much for a team to come from Boston to El Paso and adjust, especially when Utah was playing in its own time zone."

A Mercer man said, it wasn't the jet lag that got the Georgia team. "We came to Austin by pullman and by the time we got to our game it was already halftime."

AN OFFICIAL from LIU said his team should have gotten a bye, "If we'd gotten one, we'd never have been beaten in the first round."

A fan who identified himself as being from Ball State, although he wouldn't reveal his name, waved a fistful of bits in the air and moaned after a first-round loss to Boston College, "I thought we had this one in the bag. You don't know who to trust anymore."

 Of course, all hasn't yet been lost...there's still Kansas State; that basketball factory, St. Joseph's, what else with 2,340 students and a tradition of winning a tournament game every 15 years; and Alabama-Birmingham, who could add a touch of sanity and dignity to the Final Four proceedings, but none have made it yet.

BUT WHAT of the future? Well, things probably will get worse before they get better. There's talk of expanding the tournament field to include all 257 Division I members and doing away with the regular season. In that way, a true national champion everyone could be proud of would emerge, after all, the winner would be the only unbeaten team in the land.
 Until then, we'll just have to look to the NIT for the real champion.

Tall City in final tuneups

Coach Ernie Johnson of Midland Lee and Coach Tim Whalen of Midland High may not be as ready as they'd like to be, but it makes no difference. The District 5-5A baseball race begins Tuesday and this weekend's games mark the final opportunity to make final decisions on players.

Johnson's Rebels seem to be reaching a peak as league play approaches. Lee started off a disturbing 1-4, but won the Tall City Tournament last weekend, twice victimizing Lubbock Monterey, the Rebs' chief tormentor in early games, and then adding a win Tuesday over Pecos to bring the record to 5-4.

Lee hosts Pecos today at 4 p.m. and then gets a final acid test Saturday with two games at Lubbock against red hot Coronado. Lee beat Coronado, 4-3, in the season's opener, but the Mustangs have been rolling ever since, reeling off seven straight wins after the Lee loss.

RANDY VELARDE, 2-1, probably will go today against Pecos. Johnson, saving Alan Koonce, 2-0, for Tuesday's opener against Odessa High at Lee Field, indicated he will go with his No. 3 and No. 4 pitchers Saturday.

Whalen, meanwhile, will be endeavoring to make determinations on six late-reporting basketballers, who once they get in shape should give the Purple Pack more dugout strength.

Midland has just one weekend game before journeying to Odessa Tuesday for its league opener against Permian, hosting Pecos at 2 p.m. Saturday at Memorial Stadium Field.
 Midland is 4-5. Mark Hewitt at 3-2 has been the Pack's most effective pitcher to date.

NFL, fearful of fair trial, seeking change of venue

By MELVIN DURSLAG
Hearst Special News Service

LOS ANGELES — It comes as a shock that the National Football League should seek so persistently a change of venue in its antitrust action with the Oakland Raiders and Los Angeles Coliseum.

Denied this request, and now appealing, the league contends it is worried about a fair trial "in the very jurisdiction whose citizens have the biggest stake in the outcome."

This is surprising in view of what the NFL has been telling folks. It has been telling them that everyone in Los Angeles is totally happy with the Rams' arrangement in Anaheim.

Anaheim is just an easy spin down the freeway, the league has been saying, and 80 percent of the old L.A. fans renewed their season ticket orders last year.

IN A predicament in which everyone is so ecstatic, why would people in Los Angeles feel they have anything at stake in a case in which another team is attempting to move to the city?

If anything, prospective jurors could be prejudiced in favor of the league, which has blessed the community with such a sweet setup.

Did the NFL not point out how the move to Anaheim has facilitated TV of more home games? Any juror has got to love 'em.

Another interesting facet of the quarrel has been disclosures by NFL owners to newspapers in San Francisco, Oakland, New York and Los Angeles that if Al Davis loses the case, he probably will be kicked out of the league.

THE OWNERS should be careful about setting expulsion precedents, just in the event charges that Davis has made on Super Bowl scalping activities should be sustained by IRS.

If IRS hangs a rap on some of the ownerships, which have talked about kicking out Davis for conduct detrimental to football, how can the aforementioned ownerships be protected?

The last thing the NFL should be doing, in the light of the problem it could be facing, is talk about kicking out anyone.

Davis and his attorney, Joe Alioto, are in the canine residence of the NFL, charged with smear tactics. And it is hard to understand why they would blow the whistle on rivals who have comforted themselves so admirably sporting through the case as the league owners and their commissioner.

All they tried to do was have the Oakland franchise taken away from Al and placed in eminent domain. They used every dirty trick known to the legal profession to foil him. And even now they manipulate and maneuver, stalling for time that could beat him out of any chance of operating in Los Angeles in 1981.

BEHIND THE scenes, they cut his throat in Oakland, trying to negotiate a contract there after making it plain any attempt to move would be blocked. Stripped of all leverage, what could he demand in Oakland if he wanted to stay?

To devastate his character, information was slipped to certain favorite sons in the press, reopening a hackneyed charge of a real estate link between Davis and a guy with mob connections in Las Vegas.

The commissioner called Davis an anarchist and an outlaw, and, in the week of the American Conference championship game, the San Diego owner raked him savagely, describing him as a liar and a rat and accusing him of conspiring through the press to influence officiating.

Davis and Alioto are hardly fugitives from the Vienna Boys Choir. When you cross guys that tough, dragging them through the dirt, do you expect a benign and lovable response?

THE COMMISSIONER and his owners got precisely what they were bidding for, and, when the case goes to court, they figure to get more.

But the most intriguing part of the whole matter is the posture of the commissioner amid charges so serious. Much of the damaging material contained in the brief filed by Alioto in behalf of the Raiders has been barred by the judge on the ground it isn't pertinent to antitrust.

But it certainly is pertinent to professional football. If one owner charges others with scalping and produces copies of letters raising hints of guilt, is this not a serious league matter, irrespective of whether it is germane to antitrust?

Instead of announcing, "Investigation of these charges will be given a very high priority by our office," the commissioner got mad at Davis and Alioto for rocking the boat.

He makes it abundantly clear that winning the case from Davis transcends in importance the integrity of pro football.

But at least the NFL needn't worry

if the antitrust case remains in Los Angeles. Moving the Rams to Anaheim, by its own account, was an act so benevolent that it can't help but tip the scale

No. Carolina eliminates Utah with 61-58 win

(From 1D)
The Vols went scoreless for the next 8:08 as Lamp, a third-team All American who had a game-high 18 points, hit an eight-foot shot, a jumper from the free throw line and a five-footer as the Cavs took a 39-36 lead and continued to pull away.

NORTH CAROLINA'S front line of James Worthy, Sam Perkins and Al Wood combined for 45 points to lead the Tar Heels over Utah. Worthy, Perkins and Wood each scored 15 points while Utah's vaunted front line of Danny Vranes, Tom Chambers and Karl Bankowski had only 26, almost 25 points below their combined season average.

Bankowski was especially ineffectual, scoreless in the first half and limited to two points in the second. Chambers, in foul trouble much of the game, had 11 and Vranes finished with 13 but didn't get a field goal until 2:03 remained in the first half.

An 11-2 spurt helped North Carolina to a 12-point lead but the Utes whittled it to 27-25 on Scott Martin's 49-footer at the halftime buzzer. The Tar Heels quickly pulled away in the second half.

Then, Tim Jankovich, Ed Nealy and Rolando Blackman hit crucial free throws in the final minutes as giant-killer Kansas State held on to slip past Illinois. The Wildcats spurred to a 11-2 lead and held a 30-27 advantage at halftime. The taller Illini cut the margin to one and two points several times but never pulled even.

Nealy and Blackman led the Wildcats with 12 points apiece and Nealy hit four free throws to blunt an Illinois bid near the end.

New York Mets' Lee Mazzilli slides home safely before Pittsburgh pitcher Rod Scurry can make tag in Grapefruit League exhibition at Bradenton, Fla.

Orioles' Weaver in mid-season form

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The pitchers may or may not be ahead of the hitters but Earl Weaver, as usual, is right up there with the umpires.

The feisty Baltimore manager may have outdone himself Thursday when he pulled his team off the field because he said the umpires wouldn't give him a list of Kansas City's batting order or substitutions.

The Orioles were losing 4-2 after six innings when Weaver and the Orioles flew the coop and the result was a forfeit ... although a spring training forfeit means about as much as a politician's campaign promise.

Kansas City Manager Jim Frey inserted five substitutes in the top of the seventh. Because of numerous changes in spring games, the managers reportedly had been told that substitutions would be announced over the public address system. Vic Voltaggio, the senior umpire, said both managers were made aware of that before the game.

"I'M STILL waiting for him to give me Kansas City's batting order," Weaver fumed, referring to home plate umpire Mark Johnson, one of several minor leaguers working some major league exhibitions. "I never heard of an umpire not having a lineup card. There's no way you can play if you don't know who's batting where. How can I manage if I don't know the substitutes?"

Weaver, who had two heated arguments earlier in the game on disputed calls, takes spring games seriously.

"This ain't no spring training for me," he said. "This means as much to me as any ballgame I'll manage all year. I ain't out here messing around. They're charging admission for these ballgames so they should be played as such."

HANK PETERS, the Orioles' general manager, said he "never heard of an umpire refusing to give you the batting lineup. The umpires in our league are unbending. They've always got to prove their decisions are more important than the game. The end result will be a bulletin will probably come out from the league president, but in the meantime a forfeiture has taken place."

Added Weaver, who forfeited a regular-season game in Toronto two years ago in a dispute over a tarpaulin in the bullpen:

"This kind of thing doesn't happen with the National League umpires. The other day, Ed Vargo came over to the dugout and gave me the changes. I never had to move. Today, the umpire never even told me the replacements were hitting straight up."

"The only thing he said was, 'I'm not giving them to you. Isn't that great?' It's finally reached a point where the umps have said, 'I don't care in spring training; I just don't care.' If this isn't cause for someone to lose his job I don't know what is. I'm hoping there will be a hearing."

Oh, yes, the Royals broke a 2-2 tie on Dave Chalk's bases-loaded double in the bottom of the sixth.

IF WEAVER was up to his old tricks, so were the New York Mets. They brought back memories of their hilarious early days by committing three errors on one play and six all-told in an 11-3 loss to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

In the third, third baseman Joel Youngblood missed a grounder and Mookie Wilson bobbled the ball in left field. When the ball finally got to the plate, catcher Ron Hodges heaved it into center field trying to nail a runner at second base.

Meanwhile, the Minnesota Twins turned in three double plays in the first three innings, pulled a triple play in the eighth and rallied to beat the Philadelphia Phillies 4-3 on RBI singles by Rick Softfield and Roy Smalley in the bottom of the ninth.

In the eighth, Philadelphia had Bob Dernier at third base and Len Matuszek at second. Orlando Isales grounded to third baseman Ron Washington, whose throw to catcher Sal Butera cut down Dernier. Isales was then run down between first and second and when Matuszek tried to score from third he was nailed by a throw from first baseman Ron Jackson to pitcher Doug Corbett covering the plate.

THE CALIFORNIA Angels won their sixth consecutive game, nipping the San Francisco Giants 4-3 behind the pitching of Steve Renko and Jesse Jefferson.

Graig Nettles' two-run homer helped the New York Yankees defeat the Atlanta Braves 6-3.

The Oakland A's pushed across four runs in the ninth inning on a bases-loaded walk to Rob Picciolo, Tony Armas' sacrifice fly, Jeff Newman's single and Dave McKay's squeeze bunt and downed the San Diego Padres 8-4.

Syracuse, WVU usher Big 10 out of NIT play

By The Associated Press

Suddenly the Big Ten is no longer the big force in the National Invitation Tournament.

Three teams from the Big Ten Conference got as far as the round of eight, but two were knocked off Thursday night as Syracuse defeated Michigan 91-76 and West Virginia upended Minnesota 80-69.

The quarterfinals continue tonight when Purdue, now the only surviving Big Ten team, plays host to Duke and South Alabama visits Tulsa. The semifinals and finals will be played at New York's Madison Square Garden March 23 and 25.

Syracuse, leading 46-42 at halftime, hit its first 16 shots of the second half to pull away from Michigan. The Orangemen did not miss a shot until Leo Rautins' layup attempt rolled off the rim with 6:05 to play. By that time, Syracuse had built a 79-64 advantage.

"They were just hot. There's not much you can do against a team like that," said Michigan's Mike McGee, the Big Ten's all-time leading scorer who had 20 points for the Wolverines.

19-11. "That Schayes, I don't think he missed at all."

Senior center Dan Schayes had 22 points on 10-for-14 shooting for Syracuse, 21-11, which will face West Virginia in the semifinals. Erich Santifer had 21, Tony Bruin 18 and Rautins 16.

It was Syracuse's sixth postseason victory on its home floor and came before a crowd of 20,695 at the Carrier Dome.

The home-court advantage was not enough to save Minnesota, which led 11-2 after 2½ minutes but was outplayed the remainder of the game.

West Virginia, 23-8, recovered from its slow start and went ahead for the first time at 23-22 after 12 minutes. Minnesota trailed by just one at 61-60 with 4:40 remaining before the Mountaineers pulled away with an 8-2 burst.

"Getting back and getting the lead was very important to us," said West Virginia Coach Gale Catlett. "It made the second half go very nicely."

Greg Jones scored 21 points for West Virginia, Diego McCoy had 17, Greg Nance 16 and Russell Todd 17

Center Randy Breuer led Minnesota, 19-11, with 17 points.

"We have no excuses," said Minnesota Coach Jim Dutcher. "If there was a difference, it was in team speed. They were a lot quicker than us. They beat us soundly in our own gym."

Purdue's 6-10 freshman center, Russell Cross, who sprained a foot in practice Monday, is expected to be ready to play against Duke, 17-12. Cross, the top rebounder for the 19-10 Boilermakers, missed one practice and has gone through light workouts the rest of the week.

Duke has a major injury of its own. Forward Gene Banks, the No. 2 scorer and No. 5 rebounder in school history, broke his left wrist in the first round of the NIT.

Tulsa, 23-7, is a team used to tournament pressure. Four of its players won the junior college title a year ago and followed Coach Nolan Richardson when he moved from Western Texas J.C. to Tulsa this year.

South Alabama, 25-5, is led by two 6-7 players, Ed Rains and Rory White.

What's a 'Bama quarterback doin' at 3rd

Los Angeles Times
PALM SPRINGS — It should come as no surprise to anyone that a former quarterback for Bear Bryant at Alabama should be playing pro ball. After all, Joe Namath and Snake Stabler and Jeff Rutledge did, too. It's not that big a step from Orange Bowl to Super Bowl.

What might surprise a few people is that the pro team he would be playing for would be the Boston Red Sox or California Angels. The Wishbone T at Alabama does not ordinarily fit a man for a major league infield, but Clell Lavern Hobson, of the Aliceville, Alabama, Hobsons made it. Throwing or catching a football which floats on the air at a leisurely five miles an hour is not to be compared to stopping a baseball coming at you 125 miles an hour or throwing same at any velocity to a small target like a glove.

Butch Hobson was the quarterback on Bear Bryant's 1972 Orange Bowl team and, when he turned to baseball, a lot of people were skeptical. Football players rarely negotiate the switch. The most famous of them enjoy only so-so big league careers.

AN ATHLETE is an athlete, to be sure, and hardly a major league baseball player lives who wasn't a three-star letterman, including football, in his hometown. But this usually says less about his skills than the level of competition. Some are in a genuine quandary as to which sport to accept. The late Fresno Thompson of the Dodgers used to try to help a boy along who was torn between a football scholarship to Notre Dame or a minor league contract to the Sally League. "What do you want — a career or a limp?" Fresno used to ask with curled lip. "Do you want to spend four years learning to weave a basket — or learning to hit a curve?"

Some genuine all-American great football stars made it to the big leagues. But only one of them made the Hall of Fame.

In 1939, a Rose Bowl star from Duke University, Eric "Red" Tipton, who could punt a ball 70 yards, couldn't really hit a ball 300 feet. He played parts of seven seasons with the Phillies and the Reds and batted .270 with only 22 home runs. "Sorry, you can't punt on third strike," the wags used to yell at him.

THE UNIVERSITY of California sent the best combination players to the big leagues. Sam Chapman, a bona fide All-American and Rose Bowl runner from Cal-Berkeley, played 11 years, mostly with the old Philadelphia Athletics, and batted .266 with 180 homers between '38 and '51 with time out for the war. Jackie Jensen, who once ran 80 yards in the Rose Bowl, also played 11 years with the Yankees, Red Sox, and Washington, and hit .279 with 199 homers and led the league in stolen bases one year.

But the greatest of all footballers-turned-major-leaguers, of course, was Jackie Robinson. Jackie had put UCLA on the map as a running back in football. In fact, his notoriety there was what put him in the history books in baseball. Branch Rickey wanted a highly visible black star to be his first to break the color line. The nagging doubt persists to this day that baseball was, at best, Jackie's third-best sport, well behind football and track, and maybe behind basketball. Nonetheless, he made the Hall of Fame in two sports. In baseball, he hit .311 and, when he retired, despite the fact he had played only 10 years, he was ninth in all-time stolen bases, eighth in doubles, eighth in walks and ninth in runs-scored.

HOBSON'S Choice (CQ) WAS LESS COMPLICATED. Butch was only backup quarterback in college. But, in those days, Butch preferred to take his chances with a limp. "Football was everything in the state of Alabama, then," he explains. For one thing, Dad was a high school football coach with close ties to Bear Bryant. Butch went into one of Bear's spring camps as No. 6 quarterback — and came out No. 2.

He was no threat at all to the memory of Joe Namath. "I was basically a running quarterback," he admits. "I rushed for 300 yards one year. I played the triple option, and the pass was my third option." He rushed for 50 yards in the Orange Bowl against Nebraska, even though playing only one quarter.

He gave up baseball one year to please Bryant and the "Roll, Tide, Roll!" rooters. The payoff was not a limp, but something worse — elbow chips. A third-base man is better off with the gout.

Butch opted for baseball the next spring and led the Southeastern Conference in batting average, .325, and set a conference record for home runs with 13.

IF THERE'S one thing Butch Hobson can do with a baseball, it's knock it out of the park. Sometimes, to be sure, he throws it out of the park, too. The fans in Boston were quick to note that. "Hey, Hobson," they would yell, "the first baseman can't run patterns." Or "Hey, Hobson, you throw that ball like you were afraid of an interception. You can't throw it out of bounds here." Or, "Hey, Hobson, what was that — the bomb?" Another countered, "Naw, Butch just throws to the open man — the right fielder."

Butch signed with the Red Sox, and hit 29 home runs in parts of two seasons in the deep minors. In half a season with Pawtucket, he hit 25 home runs, and they brought him to Boston where he hit 30 in his first full season.

Butch Hobson has hit 94 home runs in four seasons in the big leagues despite the fact he spent half of last season on the disabled list. On the Angels, who traded for him in the off-season, a 25-homer average gets you only ninth position in the batting order, but Butch is an offensive scourge of the first magnitude. Whether he will be a defensive scourge of that magnitude to the Angels depends on whether his injured arm lets him throw to the primary receiver. Either way, when they talk of a longball artist down in Tuscaloosa these days, they no longer necessarily mean Broadway Joe or the Snake. They may mean the old Butcher.

Baseball's famed Trader Lane dies

RICHARDSON, Texas (AP) — They called him "Trader," and once when a cab driver accused him of being willing to trade his own mother, Frank Lane replied yes, and he'd throw in his grandmother if the price was right.

The longtime baseball executive died Thursday at age 85 following a lengthy illness, said officials at the Apple Tree Nursing Home in this Dallas suburb. Funeral arrangements were pending.

LANE WAS in charge of four baseball front offices during his long career, including stints as general manager for the Chicago White Sox, St. Louis Cardinals and Kansas City A's, plus tenure as executive vice president for the Cleveland Indians.

His nickname in baseball circles became "Trader Lane," as he often used hotel telephones while his room-service meals cooled to work out deals that would — more often than not — send a hometown favorite packing.

Baseball experts guess he made more than 400 deals for the White Sox, Indians, Cardinals and A's. With the White Sox alone, Lane arranged 241 deals involving 353 players.

IN 1960, while running the Indians, Lane made trading history, swapping American League home run champion Rocky Colavito to Detroit for league batting champion Harvey Kuenn, then followed that blockbuster by trading his manager, Joe Gordon, to the Tigers for their manager, Jimmie Dykes.

When criticized for frequently trading away fan favorites, such as Colavito, Lane replied sarcastically, "Maybe I was wrong. Maybe I should have taken a vote of the fans before I made the deal."

Lane's often added to his troubles, causing him to leave the White Sox with five years left on his contract, the Cardinals with a year left, the Indians with two years remaining and to split with Kansas City owner Charles O. Finley while he still had seven years left on his agreement.

SITTING IN the stands while with the White Sox at one home game, Lane upset with an umpire's call and complained loudly and profanely to American League President Will Harridge, watching the game from a box seat.

Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick fined Lane $500 and ordered him to give Harridge a public apology.

The Buffalo Sabres set a record with nine goals in one period, while one goal was all Bobby Clarke needed to reach a career milestone.

'Lolita' finally takes the stage on Broadway

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP) — As I understand it, Humbert Humbert, 38, is a professor who lusts after an 11½-year-old sexpot named Lolita. Most unusual. Why, she doesn't even star in a TV ad for designer jeans.

Oh, well. Donald Sutherland now plays him and Blanche Baker plays her in "Lolita," adapted for the stage by Edward Albee. It finally bowed Thursday on Broadway after two delays and some advance uproar.

Most of the uproar is from a group called Women Against Pornography. They cite it as an example of "kiddie porn." Albee, a Pulitzer Prize winner, denies that it's obscene. He calls "Lolita" a moral play.

Well, it contains no nudity. And this latest work of his, based on Vladimir Nabokov's controversial novel, isn't entirely bad. It has flashes of brilliant wordplay, and director Frank Dunlop keeps it moving fairly briskly.

But it's mostly a night of winks, sniggers and lame efforts to shock whoever can be shocked nowadays. It's played broadly, for laughs, and usually fails. It may even give pedophilia a bad name.

Performed amid revolving black-and-white panels whence sets come and go, Humbert's wicked tale unfolds with the aid of a droll, sardonic narrator (Ian Richardson) who, we learn, created Humbert and his story.

Both he and Humbert tell the story, the author also advising, chiding and guiding his creation at various points in the show.

The first act concerns Humbert's life and how at 13 he develops a taste for young girls, thus launching his lifelong search for the perfect nymphet who'll light up his life, ignite his loins.

Enter teasing, taunting Lolita, with whom he helplessly falls in love and lust after recovering from his initial horror upon meeting her loud, fat, gross and lusty mother (Shirley Stoler).

He also briefly bumps into a jaunty writer, Clare Quilty (Clive Revil) whom we eventually discover was Lolita's first lover, an impotent one who'd like to see her cavort in a porn movie.

Moving right along, Humbert, plotting to deflower the nymphet, marries the mother. Also ponders killing her. Alas, she finds his diary, laced with lustful musings about Lolita. She tries to shoot him.

Alas again, she falls down a flight of stairs and dies, but manages somehow to rise from her coffin at her funeral and shout, "You child molester!" Whereupon Humbert and the author slam the lid on her.

Act Two contains the main events, Humbert's pursuit of the child, his seduction by her and so on, the so-on including two simulated oral sex acts that begin just as a white mini-curtain discreetly descends.

He's dismayed to find he's not her first man ("How dare they not list you as among the absurdists?" he growls at the author). But he presses on. They go bed-hopping in motels, for 500 miles, and fight some.

By golly, she starts complaining he loves only her body. This is bad. There's more bad. Quilty whisks her away. She marries a hard-of-hearing lad and dies in childbirth at 17. Quilty has trouble, too.

Humbert, maddened by the cad who stole his "treasure," tracks down his rival in Beverly Hills and repeatedly shoots him — once in the genitals — until he expires. It isn't shocking, though.

It's a black-humor slapstick scene, one more labored absurdity in a night loaded with sexual buffoonery that gets very old very fast.

Miss Baker is the sole bright spot in this groin tableau, effectively childish and erotic throughout. Sutherland, a fine film actor, is a puzzling disappointment in his Broadway debut.

His Humbert is no moody, tortured soul. Sure, he suffers. But usually he's broadly fey, full of sexual moans and groans, crazed with undisguised delight at just the thought of touching his little lady.

That's the general approach of this tearful "Lolita," which is billed as a play about love, honest. Believe that and you'll believe the sun rises in the West.

What other critics said:
Douglas Watt, Daily News — "Albee has reduced Nabokov's pulsatingly brilliant novel to a coarse, loveless, sexless and lifeless farce."
Frank Rich, The New York Times — "It's not just that "Lolita" is incompetent or boring or that it lays waste to a masterpiece of modern literature. ... What sets "Lolita" apart is its abject mean-spiritedness. For all this play's babbling about love, it is rank with indiscriminate — and decidedly unearned — hate."

Pair sparks Met performance

NEW YORK (AP) — Soprano Montserrat Caballe and tenor Jose Carreras, neither heard in opera at the Metropolitan Opera this season because of a fall strike and late opening, were the whole, vocally glorious show on Thursday night.

The Met, instead of presenting an opera, presented the two singers in a concert.

At Miss Caballe's bow after her last solo, a young man walked on stage with a bouquet and crashed to his knees in front of her, before handing her the flowers. She gave him her hand to help him up and he quickly stood and kissed her hand. The audience roared its approval.

The first half of the program consisted of bel canto rarities. Miss Caballe and Carreras each sang an aria from Bellini's "I Capuletti ed I Montecchi." They each sang a song by Rossini. They each sang two songs by Donizetti and then a Donizetti duet.

Both Miss Caballe and Carreras were born in Barcelona. So the second half of the program was Spanish songs, six solos and two duets. Then there was an encore by each singer and a beautiful "La Boheme" love duet, in which her voice was tender and his was warm.

Walter's absence lowers CBS

LOS ANGELES (AP) - When the A.C. Nielsen ratings came in on Dan Rather's first week as anchor of "The CBS Evening News," CBS didn't invite comparisons to their news program's performance the week before, when Walter Cronkite was anchor.

That suggests, of course, that Rather's ratings fell off compared to the numbers Cronkite earned in his final week. And they did.

For the week March 2-9, "The CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite" averaged a 16.6 rating and a 29 percent share of the television audience.

For the week March 9-13, "The CBS Evening News with Dan Rather" averaged a 15.1 rating and a 26 percent share of the audience.

Rather lost 9 percent of the audience that tuned to CBS for news during Cronkite's last week. ABC's "World News Tonight" picked up 4 percent and NBC's "Nightly News" added 2 percent.

CBS protests that Cronkite's five-day finale was an anomaly, that viewers tuned in to honor the departing Cronkite. This is certainly true, but it should follow that Rather's first week was also an anomaly, that Rather, too, benefited from viewer curiosity.

Indeed, Rather's first-week ratings should be higher than his average rating will be after things have settled down a bit.

Krofft succeeds with Mandrells

By PETER J. BOYER AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Marty Krofft, producer of NBC's "Barbara Mandrell Show," was considering the subject of variety shows, how they were the foundation of television and such. Still, a visitor wondered how Krofft and his brother Sid managed to sell the Mandrell show to NBC, considering the unhappy fate that has met so many variety shows lately.

"Variety is the thing we know best," says Krofft, adding with pride, "in 1975, we created and produced the last successful variety show - 'Donny and Marie.'"

Yeah, that's a point... "And don't forget," he adds, still beaming, "you're talking to the guy who produced 'Pink Lady.'"

It is observed that "Pink Lady," perhaps the goofiest television attempt in history, wasn't something you'd want to put on a resume.

"No," Krofft allows, "but give me credit. I'm the guy who sold two Japanese who didn't speak English to American television."

Point taken. "I'd been trying to get a country music variety show off the ground for years," Krofft says. "The networks wouldn't listen. So when a fellow came to me and asked about putting together a show with Barbara Mandrell, I told him I couldn't sell her. Not by herself, anyway.

"I asked if she had any relatives that played or sang. He showed me this picture." At which point, Krofft whips out a worn snapshot, featuring the lovely sisters Mandrell in a sort of "Charlie's Angels" pose. The photograph used to be stationed in Mama Mandrell's wallet. Krofft refuses to part with it. He sold a series on that photograph.

Still, the how is, all in all, the best regular variety series on television. And it's almost enough to forgive Marty Krofft for "Pink Lady."

Counseling center opened

ODESSA — Discussions between faculty and students led to the opening of the Counseling Center at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

Midland psychology senior Cheryl Smirell King organized the center as part of a psychology project. The center is located in the student lounge next to the student senate office.

"After transferring to UTPB, I realized there was less help for students with problems than at other colleges or universities," Ms. King stated. She added that although the Behavioral Analysis Center on campus is available for student counseling and many of the psychology professors are willing to counsel, the center hopes to provide an easily accessible and comfortable atmosphere for the students who have minor problems.

"Besides," she said, "sometimes students feel more comfortable talking with another student about his problem in an informal atmosphere."

King stated the counseling center deals with such problems as coping, stress, parenting and marital stress. "We deal only with those problems we are capable of dealing with, and will handle other problems by referral," she stated.

Everyone working on the project volunteers his or her time and efforts, King noted. "The center is open daily with a helper available for two hours each day," she said.

The center is open noon to 2 p.m. Mondays; 5 to 7 p.m. Tuesdays; 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesdays; 2 to 4 p.m. Thursdays and 10 a.m. to noon Fridays.

Besides offering individual counseling, plans are being made to offer group sessions on a number of subjects such as parenting, study skills, returning student group and a regular student group.

King stated there are sign-up sheets for those interested in joining a group near the student senate office in the student lounge. "Although we have selected a breakdown of groups, we want those who are in the group to mold the group themselves and share ideas," she said.

The center is sponsored by the Office of Student Life and the Psychology Club, with Larry V. Minter, assistant professor of psychology, as faculty adviser. The center respects confidentiality and is a free service.

New school top issue of bond election

By SUE FAHLGREN
Staff Writer

The need for a new De Zavala Elementary School is the primary issue in Midland Independent School District's April bond election, according to school officials and board members.

Dr. James Mailey, superintendent of MISD, and Trustee Parker Humes spoke to the Mexican-American Advisory Committee on Education Thursday about the $6 million school bond issue coming up on the April 4 ballot. They zeroed in on the proposal for a new De Zavala Elementary School.

At the second Advisory Committee meeting this month, Humes said, "We all agree we need a new De Zavala; there may be some disagreement as to where the development will be located."

Humes recalled that in a recent meeting with the Objectives for Midland in the 80s group, the school board had all but decided on "locating it north of the current site" and adjacent to Hidalgo Park.

Long known as a center for activities in the Mexican-American community, De Zavala Elementary is more than 50 years old and is overcrowded, school officials stressed. Humes said locating the new De Zavala next to the city park would allow citizens to return to the school for activities, creating a firmer community base as well as giving the school additional "playground space."

After the Objectives meeting, Humes said, "there is a strong corporate dedication of money to go into that area." Humes said residential development by private firms would coincide with the city's planned work on the park, streets and other area repairs. The school district's new building will combine so "we all work together in a joint effort" to upgrade the community.

That location — 40 square blocks around Hidalgo Park — was simultaneously selected by Mailey and the Urban Land Institute, which recently completed its study of the east and south sides of Midland, Humes said. ULI suggested "a community center" be placed next to Hidalgo Park; Mailey said the school should be located next to the park, but he did not know of the ULI recommendation.

The school district doesn't own the land adjacent to the park; it belongs to Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church.

"We still must acquire some additional lands in that area," Mailey said.

Both Mailey and Humes said the church's proprietorship was not an obstacle to the plan. Humes said the land purchase itself was not an issue with the bond package — the need for the new school was.

However, at least one member of the audience felt differently.

"I want to bring to record that this decision is not 100 percent," said Ciro Sanchez. "You're building almost a $3 million building in an area that is not growing. Let's build it somewhere where they've got a future. The site where De Zavala is has no future."

"What we really need in Midland, Texas, is housing for the poor," Sanchez continued. "People are not going to develop housing out there." He denied that there was a great attachment in the Mexican-American community to the De Zavala school. "I've been here since '42," he said, "and I don't have any fond memories of that school. Hell, to me the place is shot and blighted."

Vickie Hernandez, teacher at De Zavala, had other feelings. She remembered when students had to walk through a landfill area to get to school, but "I still regard it as our school — as being the school of the Mexicans."

Ms. Hernandez said if the new school was not located in the Mexican-American community because it was "blighted," the officials would be missing the point. "Instead of trying to make that (school) a better place, we're running away from it," she said.

Her statement brought applause from the 30 members of the audience.

Oralia Corrales agreed. Saying she had polled "50 percent of the people who live in that area" on the subject, she reported, "all of them wanted De Zavala here."

"The people who live in that area feel they are equally deserving of a new facility," Mrs. Corrales said. "I honestly feel that they want De Zavala here."

Reagan attends Elizabeth Taylor's debut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Actress Elizabeth Taylor joined Washington dignitaries and celebrities from Broadway and Hollywood at a party that lasted into the wee hours today after her triumphant stage debut at the Kennedy Center before a standing-room audience that included President and Mrs. Reagan.

Miss Taylor's performance Thursday night as Regina Giddens in Lillian Hellman's melodrama, "The Little Foxes," brought the Reagans and others in the Eisenhower Theater audience to their feet when the final curtain fell.

The president and his wife, Nancy, went backstage after the show and met the cast. At the end of the receiving line was Miss Taylor, whom Mrs. Reagan embraced and the president gave a kiss. On his way backstage, the president told a spectator he thought the production was "very good, very good."

Seated with the Reagans in the presidential box were Vice President and Mrs. George Bush and Miss Taylor's husband, Sen. John Warner, R-Va.

After 54 movies and two Oscars for best actress, "Little Foxes" is Miss Taylor's first stage role.
