

Senate now 'house divided' on budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate erupted into fiery debate Friday as Democrats, outnumbered and frustrated, clashed with Republicans over allocation of the billions of dollars in budget cuts sought by President Reagan.

"I believe the poor of this country are being cruelly used in order to restore ... money for programs that have failed," Republican Leader Howard Baker said in an impassioned statement directed at Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Baker spoke after Kennedy, the Senate's most prominent liberal, said Republicans were proposing to rearrange the cuts in a way that would "pit the poorest starving children of the world, of Africa and Asia ... against American children and coming up with a pious answer that we're going to protect the budget."

"If that is what the cost of fighting inflation is, it's unacceptable," Kennedy shouted, banging a fist on his desk.

"I don't know anything in this amendment that says we're going to take food out of the mouths of children," Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kansas, shot back.

The exchanges occurred on the second day of debate over a bill to force cuts of $2.8 billion from the budget for 1981; $36.4 billion next year and $47.7 billion in 1983. Baker originally had hoped to complete work on the measure by the end of the week, but his target has slipped until the middle of next week.

At issue when the rhetorical fireworks went off was a relatively modest proposal in the context of a bill to cut spending by $87 billion. But it served to demonstrate Democratic frustration at their inability to stop a Republican majority determined to slash billions of dollars from social programs.

In a transfer later approved on votes of 87-9 and 70-26, Jesse Helms, R-N.C., proposed taking $200 million from the foreign aid budget and restore the money into programs for domestic nutrition programs.

Helms also said the Agriculture Committee, which he heads, would take $100 million from the "Food For Peace" program overseas and allot it to domestic nutrition programs over three years.

Helms, one of the Senate's most powerful conservative members, said he made the proposal to reassure anyone who believed Reagan wanted to "cut nutrition programs" too deeply.

But Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, another liberal, bitterly attacked Helms' move to transfer funds from foreign nutrition programs to American ones.

"What kind of concern, what kind of crass attitude is that?" he said. When Dole, a conservative who supports food stamps and other nutrition programs, complained about "tired liberal voices who got us into this (economic) mess," Kennedy retorted he was a "young Democrat who was proud to be associated" with the programs under discussion.

Polish leaders, Solidarity fail to avert strike

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity paralyzed Poland with a four-hour national walkout Friday, then government and union bargainers spent the same length of time unsuccessfully trying to find a way to avert an unlimited general strike next week.

Officials of the big independent union said a government commission probing the incident blamed for the current crisis — the beating of three unionists in Bydgoszcz last week — presented a 13-page report at the bargaining session.

"We shall be studying it all night," Solidarity leader Lech Walesa said as he emerged from the talks with Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski. Both sides agreed to reconvene the talks today.

The four-hour walkout infuriated the Soviet Union, which attacked the union's leaders as political rebels sowing "chaos and anarchy." In Washington the Reagan administration warned of possible NATO countermeasures if the Soviets intervene and said this weekend "could be critical."

As Warsaw pact land, air and naval drills continued in Poland and neighboring countries, the East German news agency reported that Soviet, Czechoslovak, East German and Polish commanders agreed at a meeting to "deepen their commitment for military cooperation and the uncovering of every enemy of socialism." The agency did not say where they met.

A 65-year-old man in Jaslo, a town of 29,000 in southeastern Poland, doused himself with gasoline and set himself afire, apparently in protest against the union action. The official news agency PAP said Zdzislaw Koziol was taken to a hospital with severe burns.

The agency said several letters were found on Koziol, including one addressed to Solidarity asking, "Who authorized you to decide the fate of the country? Are you so blind that you don't see that by your proceedings you are leading to national catastrophe?"

The warning strike began at 8 a.m. with the shriek of factory whistles. Transportation in Warsaw, the capital, immediately stopped. About 4,000 workers at the Huta Warszawa steel mill on the city's northern outskirts and 5,000 employees at the nearby Ursus tractor factory halted work.

A Solidarity spokesman said coal miners in Silesia, factory workers in Wroclaw, Jelenia Gora, Katowice and Lublin, and shipbuilders in Gdansk — the vanguard of last summer's labor protests — all joined the strike.

Polish television showed workers closing the gates of the V.I. Lenin shipyards in Gdansk, idle textile machines in the central city of Lodz, and unfinished tractors on assembly lines in Ursus.

PAP quoted Walesa as saying after the meeting that he was hopeful "some solutions which will be constructive" would be reached when the talks reconvene Saturday.

"We will have to make our stand precise," Walesa was quoted as saying. "That is why we cannot make a binding, final decision today. Naturally, tomorrow talks will be continued, for we must arrive at some solutions."

Rakowski was quoted by the agency as saying, "I too am convinced that we should do all we can to reach an agreement which will restore order in the country and eliminate this rather dangerous conflict."

Before going to the bargaining table, Walesa visited several factories to cheer on the strikers. At the Huta Warszawa mill the union leader appealed for support — but also for patience.

"We don't want to overthrow the party," Walesa told the steelworkers. He said the union hoped to give Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski "some time to restore order."

Solidarity declined to estimate how many of its estimated 10 million members participated in the four-hour warning strike at factories, coal mines and shipyards. Analysts called it the biggest coordinated workers' protest in the 35-year history of the communist East bloc.

"We strike to make clear to people there is no other way for Poland than through democratic reforms," a Solidarity bulletin said. "We strike to make clear to authorities that Solidarity is an irrevocable factor of Polish life."

"We struck four hours today to give the authorities a chance to settle things so we don't have the strike for four weeks," the possible duration of the open-ended general strike Solidarity has scheduled to begin Tuesday.

The bulletin quoted Polish Radio and TV chief Stanislaw Balicki as saying the government was ready to proclaim a "state of emergency" and had informed him the current Warsaw Pact maneuvers had been extended.

Abilene shows its stuff and makes new 'strike'

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Civic leaders wanted to do something dynamic to reflect the heritage of this West Texas city during its centennial celebration so they set up a working oil drilling rig on the county fairgrounds.

You can guess the rest. Yep, they struck oil.

Not a whole lot, maybe, but oil nonetheless. The drilling started Monday on the "Abilene Chamber of Commerce Foundation No. 1-100, City of Abilene-Taylor County." Since it was only a fun-type project, drilling was limited to normal work hours, and not around-the-clock as in serious drilling. They were going to go down to 2,000 feet and quit. Most producing wells in the area are from 3,000 to 5,000 feet.

But on Friday, at 1,800 feet, Bandera Drilling Co. had seen enough to convince it to take a core sample, a time-consuming task requiring that the entire 1,800 feet of pipe be pulled up and another special bit be inserted to take a sampling at that depth. Results of that sample will be analyzed to determine if sufficient oil is there to justify production.

The Chamber of Commerce, whose idea it was to drill the well, may laugh all the way to the bank since it's in line to get one-fourth of the profits on any oil production.

The contest for Place 3 on Midland City Council could be viewed as a fight between the oldtimer and two new kids on the block.

Carroll Thomas is seeking a fourth term to the chair he's sat in for six years. Putting up their dukes and ready for sparring are John Phipps and George Veloz.

The three men agree on some basic concepts, such as a need for more and cheaper housing, better traffic direction, increased downtown parking, improved maintenance of city streets, a balanced budget, the current study on the city's sewage treatment plant and moving Midland Air Park to a less congested location.

BUT THEY DIFFER on the logistics of how to accomplish those goals, and each has his own pet project.

Election '81 city council

Phipps, who served three years on the Planning and Zoning Commission, is concentrating on more and better parks in his campaign.

"I listen to the citizens and now they tell me we are very park-shy," he claims. "The few parks we have are small and not well-maintained."

He suggests "upgrading the parks we have and researching all sources for means of providing additional parks in the city and outlying areas." But he opposes a past policy of the city to acquire park land "where a buffalo wallow was. We need park land that isn't subject to flooding."

Thomas, however, maintains the city has increased its park budget in the past few years.

"When I first came on the council, the parks budget was minimal," he says. Since then, the city has approved $100,000 for sprinkler systems out of the current Revenue Sharing funds, added nine holes to the golf course at Hogan Park, purchased two new park sites and are developing three new parks. Those three are the Downtown Park next to Midland Center, Tumbleweed Neighborhood Park near Wadley Avenue and A Street and Kiwanis Park on Haynes Avenue.

Veloz, who has spent most of his life in Midland, is focusing his efforts on south and east Midland and promises to lead the campaign in improving those areas.

"OUR CITY GOVERNMENT has never had a person that grew up in the south and east sides of Midland represented on any chair of the council," he explains. "Visually, we can see the neglect that absence has caused."

While he no longer lives in that area, Veloz says he has "a deep feeling for those problems. The chair that I seek is a chair that has consistently denied the service, money and plan-

Pouring the concrete for Garfield bridge is a road crew in its last stages of work on Garfield Street. According to a city official, the street should be open in about two weeks. The major thoroughfare has been closed since early November for the city to widen the Northwest Drainage Channel at that point to handle unusually large rainfalls.

Candidates focus on same issues ning to those areas of town," he says in criticizing Thomas.

Housing, to Veloz, is the most important problem in the city, and the other two agree it's one of the top two priorities.

Veloz looks at the increasing diversification in Midland of turning toward industry other than petroleum to build up the city. "City government hasn't taken the leadership role in instigating methods for securing housing in Midland. The approaches are many to different levels of the housing problem."

He suggests the city government act as a catalyst with the private sector in "accepting and developing funds through state and federal government programs. This can accomplish more than taking a back seat and neglecting the issue."

Phipps, who has worked in the Lubbock and Odessa city planning departments, charges that housing costs in Midland are 25 percent higher than in any other city in Texas.

"IF WE CAN'T house the people, our problems will become greater," he says, relating it to the city's tax base, which forms the city's budget.

In his opinion, today there is no such thing as low-cost housing. Phipps foresees the standard housing subdivision of today fast becoming a thing of the past. Density will be increasing with six to seven housing units per acre, instead of three. And parks in these developments will become more of a necessity, he says.

Thomas contends the city already has taken steps for lower cost housing and to increase the density. One involves approval of zoning which would allow mobile home subdivisions within the city limits.

"There's nothing to stop these mobile home developments now," he says, remarking that few people seem to be taking advantage of the change. He has in mind the type of mobile home subdivisions seen in California, which resemble housing subdivisions.

Some areas on the east side have been changed to mobile home zoning, he explains, "and these people are in the most desperate need for housing. The streets and plumbing are already there."

The independent geologist also points to the council allowing construction of common wall, low-cost townhouses. "There's a demand for small, common wall developments, and we created a townhouse district."

THOMAS STANDS on the opposite side of the coin as Veloz when it comes to taking federal funds for housing, which would be used rent-subsidized units for low income residents. "I don't think we're doing them (low-income residents) any favor."

He also is opposed to apartment complexes involving rental subsidy units "being injected into a normal family neighborhood."

The men agree on one facet — the need for increased downtown parking. That priority ranks in importance with housing, they believe. Also tied to that are better traffic circulation and improved maintenance of streets.

Phipps sees "a drastic need for short-term parking downtown. We've got to find a means, such as a parking garage if it's in the proper location and not eight to 10 blocks from downtown."

Veloz believes zoning requirements should demand office developments to construct parking facilities along with the buildings.

Thomas proposes a municipal parking garage and one-way streets to eliminate the daily traffic snarl.

In addition, Phipps has eyed $20 to $30 million of construction work that needs to be done on city streets, many of them main thoroughfares. The difficulty is in finding the money, he admits.

MIDLAND'S GROWTH of 5 percent the past four years is "astronomical," Phipps declares, and "we need to prepare ourselves for the growth without raising taxes. It's important that we look at the city's potential income."

The city's income flows in from property taxes, retail sales tax and fees charged for services, such as sewer, sanitation and water.

Phipps explains he has worked on city budgets before when in Lubbock and Odessa. Although he doesn't "feel one dollar is wasted by the city, I feel some of our priorities are wrong. We should look for wastes, but not eliminate services."

Veloz, who owns and operates several local businesses, pushes for balanced budget financing. "I believe we should work within our means to achieve our goals. But we should not ignore the possibilities of getting state and federal monies which belong to us."

And Thomas keeps the scissors in his hand, ready to snip out what he believes are unnecessary expenses in the city budget. As a councilman, he believes "we can manage the city's resources so we won't have a tax rate increase in the next two years. Property values will go up and also sales tax revenues."

RELOCATING MIDLAND Air Park is a must for the future, the three candidates concede. Phipps doesn't see it as an important item today; Veloz thinks it should have been moved eastward 10 years ago; and Thomas says that even starting today on the planning would mean seven years for the move to be accomplished.

If Air Park had been moved 10 years ago, says Veloz, it would have served as a catalyst for more balanced growth of Midland; with the east side more populated than what it is today.

On the recent sizzling issue of the sewage treatment plant, the three agree on the current study being done. Veloz urges the city to make long-range plans concerning that plant with possibly a second plant being located southwest of the city to handle west Midland and the Air Terminal area.

Thomas says if water in Midland Draw is from the sewage treatment plant or from the holding lagoons, then the city will take action to correct it. But, he adds, if its water from the rising water table no one can do anything about it.

EACH MAN VOICES a different reason for wanting the job that involves long hours and little pay.

Phipps, a three-year member of the Planning and Zoning Commission, says he enjoys "being involved in municipal government. I believe I have something to contribute and that is knowledge, expertise and a desire to represent the citizens of Midland."

Volunteering time for others is a tradition the Veloz family brought with them from Mexico, says Veloz. "It's more than a feeling of patriotism; it's a duty of every citizen to be involved with things that influence our surroundings."

After serving three terms on the council, Thomas says he has become "more and more involved. I hate to let six years of experience go down the drain. I see a lot of problems not yet solved, and I want to work on those solutions."

Although Phipps views Thomas as a "fine man," he thinks it's time for "someone else with new ideas and new energies to come in and take over where he left off."

Veloz, too, says it's time for someone new. "I feel a change is needed to promote growth and development in a more balanced manner."

PHIPPS WORKS as manager of Billingsley Corporation's residential land developer program, and he contends his connection with John Billingsley would have no effect upon his actions on the City Council.

Whenever one of Billingsley's developments came before the council, Phipps says he would abstain from taking any action and would leave the Council Chamber during the discussions.

"I abstained while I was on the Planning and Zoning Commission," he explains. "I'm an extremely fair man and would not attempt to take advantage of a person or issue for the betterment of myself or my peers."

Veloz, too, has a connection to Billingsley. The developer is chairman of the board of Western State Bank while Veloz is a member of that board. But Veloz says he fails to see any influence coming from Billingsley.

"My involvement with John Billingsley is limited to the bank. I appreciate the opportunity to help form policy at the bank, but it's had nothing to do with me running for City Council," Veloz answers. "I've wanted to run for a long time. I'm not employed by Billingsley or by the bank."

He agreed to abstain on issues involving Billingsley developments.

Embassy attacked

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Gunmen fired at the U.S. Embassy from a speeding car Friday night in the second such attack this week, witnesses said.

Residents who live near the embassy in a predominantly Moslem section of west Beirut on the Mediterranean Sea said four shots were fired at about 10:15 p.m. No injuries were reported and there was no damage to the building.

At night the embassy is guarded by a special detachment of Lebanese police, the red-bereted "Squad 16."

Cooler temperatures, slower winds forecast

Temperatures may be a little cooler today than they have been this week, but the winds will slow ever so slightly to ease up on the dust, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Partly cloudy skies will prevail through Sunday, but there is no chance of rain.

The thermometer should reach a high in the low 70s today, dropping to the upper 30s tonight. The high Sunday will be in the upper 60s.

Winds today will remain gusty, coming from the southwest at 20-30 mph. Winds will become westerly to southwesterly late this afternoon and slow to 10-15 mph.

Friday's high reached 76 degrees, as Texas cities noted a sharp increase in high temperatures. The Permian Basin fell far short of a record high, however, as the high for the date was set at 92 degrees in 1963.

The low temperature Friday was 54 degrees — a tropical paradise compared with the all-time low of 18 degrees recorded on the date in 1944.

At least nine workers die in condominium collapse

COCOA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A five-story waterfront condominium collapsed "like a house of cards" Friday, killing nine workers and leaving five missing — and one trapped alive under a heavy pile of debris, authorities said. Dozens were injured.

"The earth shook and there was a big gust of dust," said Gary Whitaker, a reporter in WFTV-Orlando's office across the street from the Harbor Cay construction site in this Atlantic Coast resort town just south of Cape Canaveral. "It's all flat, except for about three stories of one elevator shaft."

"We also have located a person trapped in the debris who is known to be alive at this time because he has had voice contact with one of the rescue workers," said Cocoa Beach Fire Chief Robert Walker.

Thousands of spectators clustered around the site as Air Force bulldozers and Brevard County front-end loaders pushed away rubble so volunteers, using hands or small shovels, could search for the missing trapped under the chunks of cement, steel rods and crushed girders.

Walker said five bodies had been recovered and that the locations of four more bodies had been pinpointed under piles of rubble. The crowd grew hushed after officials announced that sound-detection devices were being used to locate victims.

Witnesses said 50 to 60 workers were on the project — about a dozen of them on the roof — when the accident occurred about 3 p.m.

Two bodies carried out at about 7 p.m. had been buried in some 20 feet of debris.

Utility trucks erected makeshift light poles as darkness neared.

"Five thousand tons of bricks fall on you and there's not much chance. It's horrible," said Dr. Richard Weber, treating injured at the scene.

"It's a complete disaster, five stories of cement, one stacked on top of another," said Hugh Flynn, desk manager at the Serv-Ur-Self Motel near the accident scene.

"I was watching it pour when the floor just gave out from under me," said Mike Hocko, a foreman on the concrete-pouring crew working at the top of the five-story building.

"I was overseeing several concrete finishers who went down with me," Hocko said. "I rode one of the (concrete) forms down all the way. Then I picked myself up and started helping the others."

Bill Straub, a city of Cocoa Beach building inspector, said the collapse was triggered when the crane dropped the bucket as workmen were pouring the last sections of the roof.

Straub explained that "wet concrete is twice as heavy as dry. If one bucket goes through, the whole thing can go like a house of cards."

The Harbor Cay building — owned by Univel of Cocoa Beach, which has built 10 major projects in Brevard County — was being erected overlooking the Banana River on the west side of Florida A1A, the busy highway that winds along the ocean. Police closed all major roads leading into the area, and said traffic was tied up for miles.

"They had just started putting the brick on for the outside walls," Flynn said. "No doors, no nothing, in other words it's the kind of building you can look straight through it."

Fran Biagi, a dispatcher for Brevard County emergency units, said at least four people were known dead in the accident.

"We're sending every possible unit we can get our hands on over there. Right now, it's a mass of confusion," she said.

Ms. Biagi said paramedics on the scene said the bodies of the victims were taken to Holmes Regional Medical Center in Melbourne.

Hospital officials said preliminary counts showed 12 people undergoing treatment at Cape Canaveral Hospital, seven at Wuesthoff Memorial Hospital in Rockledge and an undetermined number at the Holmes center and the Patrick Air Force Base Hospital.

Most of the injuries were described as fractures and severe lacerations.

A heliport was set up at Holmes so injury victims could be taken to hospitals quickly, and officials at Patrick AFB said they had dispatched medical personnel and equipment to the scene.

Spokeswoman Nancy Rock at Cape Canaveral Hospital said the facility was told to expect at least 50 casualties.

One of the victims was identified as Larry Hayes of Cocoa, a Brevard Correctional Institute inmate who had a construction job on a work-release program. Hayes' age was not immediately available.

Support shown for slain children

By SUE FAHLGREN Staff Writer

The United Coalition of Black Citizens decided Friday night to distribute green ribbons and set up prayer sessions as a sign of moral support for the missing and murdered black children of Atlanta.

Plans are also under way to increase the number of volunteers in the "helping hands" program on the south and east sides of Midland to prevent a similar hazard to Midland children.

"We felt a need to do something to commemorate the children slain in Atlanta," group leader Barbara Harris explained, "and to do something for our children in Midland." She said the group was not specifically aimed at black children, however. "What affects one child affects them all," she said, urging other families to get involved with the Coalition.

IN AN EFFORT to "bring about an awareness for the need here in Midland," Ms. Harris said, the group would begin distributing free green ribbons, symbolizing "life," at Midland Park Mall on April 4. Some group members also participated in an earlier ribbon-pinning in Dellwood Mall last week.

In addition, the group is starting a door-to-door campaign for volunteers to increase the number of "helping hands" in the south and east sides. A joint venture between the Midland Police Department and the Midland Parent-Teachers Association, the helping hands program is designed to allow children to go into a neighborhood home where an adult is available if the child fears for his safety.

Participants in the program are given orange hand-print signs to display in their windows to show children where they can stop.

"I don't know that I've seen any on the south or east side," said group member Bertha Starks. She stressed the need for such havens for children. However, she added a cautionary note.

"We don't want to go out and get people panicked and get some kook out there doing what they're doing in Atlanta," she said.

THE GROUP set April 10 for another meeting to include individuals interested in "helping hands" to show a police department film on the program, as well as to enlist additional volunteers in the Coalition.

"A lot of people will not volunteer services until they know exactly what they're going to do," Barbara Yarbrough pointed out.

"Parents need to be involved to know how to train their youngsters (about dealing with strangers)," Mrs. Starks said.

Rather than collect and send money to Atlanta to support its investigation there, the Coalition decided that if it solicited funds, the money would go to aid Midland children.

Mrs. Yarbrough said, "We need to ask, 'what can we do to help children right here in this town?'" She suggested if funds were collected they go to printing more helping hand signs.

"WE SHOULD START at home," Mrs. Yarbrough said. The organization could later "venture out into other things and monies could be used more to help out in Midland," she said.

Secretary of State Alexander Haig, right, meets with Nigeria's Minister of External Affairs, Ishaya Auda, as the State Department Friday in Washington. Earlier Haig told reporters present that there is "a very dangerous, very bad split" in Poland's communist party and that the coming weekend "could be critical."

Nigerian minister meets with Haig, foresees cooperation in South Africa

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nigerian External Affairs Minister Ishaya Auda said Friday after a 3½-hour meeting with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. that he is optimistic that Nigeria and the United States will join in efforts to promote racial change in South Africa.

The meeting followed expressions of growing concern in black Africa that the Reagan administration might seek a rapprochement with South Africa's white minority government.

Auda suggested that his meeting with Haig put to rest some of his government's concerns about American policy on South Africa.

Asked whether he foresees U.S.-Nigerian cooperation in ending or changing South Africa's policy of racial separatism, Auda replied, "Yes, we do look forward to working together in this particular field."

At another point, however, Auda indicated that future U.S. policy toward South Africa has not yet been defined.

Asked if he explained to Haig the concerns of African governments on the possibility of a U.S.-South African rapprochement, Auda replied, "We'll have to wait to see what happens in practice."

In recent weeks, there have been numerous indications the administration is intent on reducing pressure on South Africa for racial change while emphasizing that country's status as an anti-communist stronghold and an important mineral supplier. President Reagan cited those two points earlier this month in a statement suggesting the need for a friendlier U.S. attitude toward South Africa.

Haig said recently that U.S. policy toward South Africa and the southern African region is still under review. In seeing Auda as his first official visitor from Africa, Haig left the impression the administration will take black African sensitivities into account.

He called his meeting with Auda "cordial, productive and promising." Earlier, State Department spokesman William Dyess said the U.S. goal in South Africa is to "encourage evolutionary change away from apartheid," the official policy of racial separation.

Some officials believe one strong practical reason for the United States to continue pressuring South Africa to move toward racial equality is the need to maintain close ties with oil-rich Nigeria, Africa's most economically powerful and politically influential nation. Only Saudi Arabia exports more oil to the United States than Nigeria.

In the past, Nigeria has threatened to cut off oil shipments to countries that support South Africa. Auda gave no hint that Nigeria is about to take such action against the United States.

Just three days ago, Nigeria and 49 other African nations issued a statement at the United Nations expressing "deep concern" over signs of American support for South Africa. The statement said such a policy would serve to perpetuate South Africa's "illegal occupation of Namibia."

Reagan to nominate ambassador

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Friday he will nominate broadcasting executive John J. Louis Jr. to be ambassador to the Court of St. James's.

A White House statement describing Ursomarso's duties said he would coordinate the work of public affairs officers of government departments and agencies, do research for the White House and assist television networks in their coverage of the president.

Louis, 55, of Winnetka, Ill., would succeed Kingman Brewster Jr. in the diplomatic post in London.

Since 1968, Louis has been chairman of Combined Communications Corp., a division of Gannett Co. Inc. of Rochester, N.Y., one of the nation's largest media companies.

In 1972, Louis was the personal representative of President Richard M. Nixon and chief of the U.S. delegation at ceremonies commemorating the 12th anniversary of the independence of Gabon in West Africa.

The president also named Frank A. Ursomarso, who worked in Reagan's election campaign last year, to be director of the White House Office of Communications.

Ursomarso, 38, had worked as an advance representative for former Presidents Nixon and Gerald R. Ford, setting up arrangements for their public appearances. Last year he was Reagan's coordinator for the televised presidential candidate debates.

Arms talks could begin soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said Friday the United States will be ready for realistic strategic arms limitation talks with the Soviet Union once Congress has approved new U.S. weapons systems.

Haig indicated that could be accomplished before the end of the year, although he didn't specifically say the arms limitation talks could begin this year.

He said a number of questions are still to be decided, including whether to junk the unratified SALT II treaty completely or try to modify it.

"Are we looking at a discredited SALT II, would we seek to modify it, would we seek to scrap it and start all over again, should we seek something more comprehensive or nibble at it by functional categories?" Haig said. "These are the questions that are under consideration by our side."

Nevertheless, Haig provided the most detailed agenda yet, although still a vague one, for the administration's approach toward resumption of the talks.

The Reagan administration has already said it doesn't want Congress to ratify the SALT II treaty negotiated by the Carter administration with the Soviet Union.

However, Reagan said during the campaign that, if elected, he would immediately move to begin negotiations with the Soviets on a SALT III agreement that would be an improvement over SALT II. The administration hasn't yet started that process, however.

Haig told a small group of reporters Friday that it is too early to say when negotiations might begin.

Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger said separately Friday the United States would foreclose arms talks in the event of Soviet intervention in Poland. "It would be absolutely futile to sit down with a country that behaves that way," Weinberger said.

Regarding strategic arms limitation talks,

Haig said, "I think the basic approach to this thing is, yes, we are going to continue with it."

But he also said "we are going to be better able to enter into a renewed negotiating stance when approval has been received for the systems that we have to anticipate we will have in our arsenal in the period ahead; that is a decade ahead."

"No one has said we have to have all this buildup completed before we get into SALT, but we'll feel much more confident about our ability to conduct these things realistically when we know we have support for the programs we are talking about in the strategic area, the decisions and funding are in place."

The administration is going to resume narrowly defined discussions with the Soviet Union next week in Brussels aimed at controlling deployment of medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe, called the theater nuclear force talks.

Volcano passes quiet anniversary

By RICK GLADSTONE
Associated Press Writer

BRUSH PRAIRIE, Wash. (AP) — Mount St. Helens, which came alive with a monstrous "pop," a puff of steam and a plume of ash that carried across the continent, was relatively quiet Friday, one year after its first eruption since 1857.

U.S. Geological Survey scientists said the danger was as minimal as it was during that 123-year sleep.

"In the short term, it's not likely to erupt today or tomorrow," Chris Newhall, the agency's hazard coordinator in Vancouver, Wash., said Thursday.

That blast removed more than 1,300 feet from the summit and left 61 people dead or missing.

The mountain has become a tourist attraction and, government geologists say, a living textbook — the most studied volcano on the continent.

Observers in a Forest Service plane Friday saw a small steam plume rising from the crater left by last year's initial eruption, but there were no reports of even minor earthquakes, which can signal an eruption, said Daye Peckham, a University of Washington geophysics center spokesman in Seattle.

The red zone, a restricted area around the mountain, was open to observers, but bad weather forced a team of reporters to abandon plans to fly over the crater Thursday.

At a news conference in Brush Prairie, 25 miles southwest of the mountain, Newhall and other government researchers said the volcano's devastating May 18, 1980 eruption was unlikely to be repeated soon.

However, Forest Service officials warned that underground fires caused by the blast continued to smolder and could be fanned into flames this summer.

"Fire is going to be a big problem potentially," said Jerry Brown, agency coordinator on the mountain. "The fires are already there. We know that. Hopefully, none will surface, but some probably will."

This summer, tens of thousands of tourists are expected to visit the area, said Jim Unterwagner of the Gifford Pinchot National Forest.

Donald Peterson, chief of the USGS Cascade volcano monitoring program, said there had been a slow but steady decline in the amount of gases spewing from the mountain.

"They aren't down to zero, they're simply reduced," he said. "This tells us the volcano is likely to erupt again."

He said the amount of silica in molten rock pushing into the crater had decreased, indicating that more fluid magma might accompany future eruptions.

"Sooner or later, St. Helens will see some large explosive eruption," he said. "Down the road, many years from now, after the mountain has rebuilt itself, it's conceivable."

"Mount St. Helens is the key to understanding and anticipating similar hazards posed by more than a dozen still-active but seemingly quiet large volcanoes in the Cascade range," Peterson said. "The eruption was a reminder that these hazards must be taken seriously."

AP Laserphotos

Mount St. Helens, a volcano located in Washington 45 miles northeast of Portland, sprang to life a year ago Friday. The dome inside the volcano has grown to about the same size as the Seattle Kingdome, top photo. The volcano dome continues to emit steam as volcanic activity continues.

Authorities continue search; Family could face eviction

WEEKI WACHEE, Fla. (AP) — As crews searched for more graves Friday on Virginia Mansfield's homesite, she was ordered to fix her utilities — disrupted by searchers — or move from the property where police say they have found the remains of at least two children.

"I realize they've got a job to do," Mrs. Mansfield said of the men digging for more bodies, "but I think there are ways they could do it and not destroy my property."

In 10 days of digging on the rural five-acre homesite, two skeletons and a hipbone from a third body were found in the sandy soil. Hernando County authorities believe they are the remains of three girls.

Police Maj. Charles E. Crosby said that, based on confidential information, he believes as many as six bodies may be on the property, owned for the last eight years by William Mansfield, 56, a convicted sex-offender serving 30 years in prison.

Mrs. Mansfield, 49, a mother of six, said that in their two weeks of digging investigators disrupted her power supply and dug up the septic drain field. She was cited for building-code violations and told to repair both immediately or face an eviction hearing next week.

Without power, the water well pump was cut off and so was the refrigerator where Mrs. Mansfield keeps food for the four children still at home and insulin for her diabetic 62-year-old stepmother.

Crosby said the wiring, strung from a pole into the expanded trailer home, was "illegal and dangerous" and did not conform to codes. The deficiencies cited in the health department notice were the lack of running water, a damaged drainfield and the lack of power.

The family had the wiring restrung and was trying to get it reinspected Friday, Mrs. Mansfield said, but insisted that the problem with the septic system is the fault of investigators.

Quints are progressing

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — The Beach triplets continue making progress, but there are no immediate plans for the 10-day-old infants to leave Strong Memorial Hospital, a spokeswoman said Friday.

"We have no dates or benchmarks set as far as the quintes are concerned," said Dorothy Wardell, the hospital's assistant public relations director.

One of the quintes, Deborah Jean, remained on the guarded list because of a breathing problem that developed a week ago. But the hospital said she is responding to therapy.

Her three brothers and sister remained in satisfactory condition.

"They are gaining weight," said Ms. Wardell, although the hospital said it couldn't release the exact weights without permission of the parents. "We expect that their condition will be status quo for the week-end."

Dead girl finally identified

ELLCOTT CITY, Md. (AP) — A girl whose body was found hanging from a fence four months ago finally was identified Friday — a week after her burial — as the daughter of a Ghana man who federal officials said was an illegal alien.

Howard County Police Chief Paul Rappaport said the girl found dead last November was 13-year-old Vincentia Suzy Adu-Kwame. He said officials were seeking her parents, who had disappeared from their Hyattsville home.

"We are looking for them right now in furtherance of our investigation," he said. "The naturalization and immigration department are actively seeking them... they have advised us they are illegal aliens."

The girl's father was identified as Gabriel Vincent Adu-Kwame, 35, who has been a delivery truck driver in suburban Washington, D.C. His wife, the girl's stepmother, was identified as 35-year-old Ernestine Adu-Kwame, also known as Ernestine A. Kaye and Kathy Kaye.

Rappaport said the couple had been in the United States for about a year and Adu-Kwame worked for a time at the Ghanaian embassy.

Officials have questioned the two, Rappaport said, adding that police discovered Friday that the couple and their three other children had left home.

Rappaport would not comment on why the couple failed to come forward before or how the child's body came to be on the fence.

Police had been unable to identify the body. A Washington school teacher identified the girl from a photograph as a former pupil, Rappaport said.

Officials have said they were not sure why the girl died, but an autopsy indicated the cause of death may have been a blood-oxygen deficiency.

'60 Minutes' inspires Reagan order to fight for Wallenberg's freedom

By TOM EASTHAM
Hearst Special News Service

WASHINGTON — President Reagan has ordered Secretary of State Alexander Haig to take up the fight to free Raoul Wallenberg—the Swedish diplomat who became the hero of the Holocaust and is believed held in a Russian prison.

The president called Haig after watching "60 Minutes" on CBS television last Sunday—which included a segment on the movement to free Wallenberg—the secretary of state told California Congressman Tom Lantos yesterday.

"The president told Secretary Haig this was a good thing and to get behind it," said Lantos—who with his wife, Annette, was among 100,000 Hungarian Jews that Wallenberg is credited with saving.

The freshman House member said Haig revealed Reagan's support to him and others during a State Department reception he hosted for European parliamentarians.

"The secretary was bubbling with the good news that the president had seen the show and wanted to be on board," Lantos said, adding he was pleasantly surprised the president would act now when he has so many other international concerns.

Lantos earlier yesterday (Thursday) had introduced legislation to declare Wallenberg an honorary American and asking the president to help determine if he is alive and if so to seek his release.

A similar bill is reportedly ready for introduction by Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., ranking minority member of the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee.

Wallenberg was sent to Budapest in 1945 in response to a United States request to Sweden for a diplomat to spend full time saving Jews. In the months that followed, the young Wallenberg is credited with rescuing thousands from Nazi death trains and the Budapest ghetto by handing out Swedish passports.

But when the Russians entered the city, they arrested him—purportedly believing he was an American spy. Years later they reported he died of a heart attack in 1947 while in "protective custody."

However, former prisoners have reported seeing the Swede—who would now be 68—alive as recently as last January.

Lantos—who worked as a teen-aged messenger for Wallenberg in Budapest in the final days of World War II—believes he is alive and that honorary citizenship could give the State Department leverage in winning his release.

The only honorary American citizenship ever granted by Congress went to Winston Churchill, wartime prime minister of Great Britain.

Lantos was the congressman who asked Haig two weeks ago.

Study disproves assertions

BALTIMORE (AP) — Contrary to Reagan administration assertions, public service employment programs do indeed steer workers toward private jobs and better wages, according to a seven-year study by Johns Hopkins University.

The study of 1,700 workers in the Baltimore area, funded by the federal Department of Health and Human Services, was the first to follow the careers of people after they left the job programs, according to Laura L. Morlock, who conducted the study with David S. Salkever.

It found that three-quarters of the workers employed under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act had found "unsubsidized employment" three years after leaving their public service jobs. And the new jobs were not "low-paying, menial" work, the study found.

When President Reagan proposed abolishing the CETA program in February, he said only one-third of CETA workers found private employment when their public-service jobs ended.

Ms. Morlock contended Wednesday the Reagan administration has made its decision to cut CETA without first examining the long-term effectiveness of the jobs programs.

"We're worried," said Ms. Morlock, a public health researcher at Johns Hopkins' medical school.

"From a public health standpoint... the concern is for the social consequences," she said, adding that higher crime rates usually accompany rises in unemployment.

Salkever said that income levels, as well as rates of employment, gained significantly following CETA jobs.

The study followed 1,700 workers in public service programs between 1971 and 1978 and 1,100 who had left Emergency Employment Act and CETA program jobs.

Sixty percent were black, a third of them women and a third of them veterans — groups traditionally hard-hit by unemployment, Ms. Morlock said. About one-third had not worked for a year before public service employment.

Directors vote for expansion

HOUSTON (AP) — The Texas Medical Center board of directors has voted to expand the mammoth complex 130 acres and elected former Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski as its president.

The 45-member board approved a proposal Wednesday by the University of Texas to annex the additional land and increase the medical center area to 356 acres, said Dr. Jack K. Williams, executive vice president.

Jaworski, a senior partner at Fulbright and Jaworski law firm, is president of the Baylor Medical Foundation and past president of M.D. Anderson Foundation. He succeeds Herman P. Pressler, who has served as president for five years.

Other officers elected by the board include H. Mark Crosswell Jr., John T. Jones Jr., and Bernard L. Weingarten, vice presidents; Robert G. Greer, treasurer; and Carroll D. Simmons, assistant secretary-treasurer.

Atlanta to form guardian group

ATLANTA (AP) — A leader of the Guardian Angels said Friday the red-bettered volunteer group from New York City has been asked to start a chapter in Atlanta, where it first drew a chilly reception.

Lisa Evers said the invitation to form an Atlanta chapter came from the Citywide Advisory Council on Public Housing, "which represents a majority of public housing residents."

She noted that 11 Angels arrived in Atlanta two weeks ago on a mission aimed at showing the city's youths "how to take care of each other" because of 20 slayings of black children.

Meanwhile, FBI officials said Frankie Edmonds of New York City, arrested Sunday in New York state in the abduction of a 9-year-old black child, has been all but ruled out as a suspect in the Atlanta killings.

The truck Edmonds was driving had Georgia license plates but officials learned later it was not rented by Edmonds in Georgia.

And in Washington, the Rev. Ralph

David Abernathy, former president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, met for half an hour with Attorney General William French Smith to discuss the Atlanta slayings, among other topics.

Abernathy, one of the few black figures who endorsed President Reagan during his election campaign, said he was pleased with the federal government's efforts to help Atlanta and said Smith "seems to be sensitive to what's happening there."

Ms. Evers said the Guardian Angels also "feel a sense of urgency to get that chapter under way by the summer." City officials have privately expressed fears that the tensions could flare when children are released from school.

The Angels, a self-defense group that patrols the New York City subways, schools its young members in martial arts but for the sole purpose of "psychological deterrence" and self-defense, she said.

Ms. Evers, 23, said the Angels have learned that many Atlantans are as worried as New Yorkers about urban crime. "The message we've been trying to spread is, 'Hey, we come from New York. Everyone knows New York is full of criminals, that it's full of maniacs running around loose. But we have not locked ourselves in our closets and apartments,'" she said.

Six of the 11 Angels who came to Atlanta March 11 left Thursday and the rest will leave Monday, she said, but one or two members will return in a few weeks to begin organizing the new chapter.

The unit has been conducting patrols in Atlanta's southside neighborhoods, talking with children on playgrounds and at recreation centers and explaining their aims to Atlanta community leaders.

A man identified as James F. Putman surrenders to authorities in Schiller Park, Ill., Friday after holding a couple hostage for several hours. According to police reports, Putman holed up in the couples' house after allegedly shooting a suburban Chicago policeman who stopped his car in a burglary investigation.

Man's taste for beer leads to release of two hostages

CHICAGO (AP) — A powerful thirst proved to be the downfall of a gunman who held a suburban couple hostage for hours Friday. He released the woman after she fetched him a six-pack of beer and her husband escaped when he was sent for another round, police said.

The husband, Fred Sporleder, told reporters by telephone during the siege that the man took over their Schiller Park home at gunpoint some time after midnight. Police said they had been seeking the man for questioning in the shooting of a policeman Thursday night.

By morning, the gunman, identified as James Putnam of Lyons, apparently became parched from long negotiations and sent Maxim Sporleder out for a six-pack and some cigarettes at about 9 a.m. He released her afterward.

About an hour later, police said, Putnam wanted more beer. Officer threw some cans of beer near the house and Putnam apparently sent Sporleder out to retrieve them, and Sporleder broke for safety.

A short time later there was a brief exchange of gunfire and police then tossed tear gas into the house. Putnam came walking out with his hands up and surrendered, police said. Charges were pending.

The policeman, Greg Aschenbrenner, 29, was shot in the face as he was investigating a suspicious car. He was hospitalized in fair condition.

Harrelson's stepdaughter jailed on contempt charge

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A federal judge Friday held in contempt the stepdaughter of convicted hired killer Charles C. Harrelson and ordered her jailed until she testifies before the grand jury investigating the assassination of U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr.

U.S. Dist. Judge Adrian Spears found Theresa Starr Jasper, 23, in civil contempt after she refused for the second time to answer the grand jury's questions.

The judge refused a request from the woman's attorney, Don Ervin of Houston, to release Mrs. Jasper on bond pending his appeal to the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Spears ordered Mrs. Jasper remanded to the Uvalde County jail, 60 miles west of San Antonio.

"I understand facilities there are a little bit better for women," said Spears, who expressed apprehension about conditions at the overcrowded Bexar County jail.

In passing the contempt judgment, Spears told the stringy-haired blonde, "I suppose you know I don't want to put you in jail."

"Yes sir. But I don't want anyone I love to go to jail either, like my mother," Mrs. Jasper replied. She is the daughter of Joann Starr Harrelson, wife of the convicted killer, who has been a primary target of the grand jury investigation.

Mrs. Jasper continued to plead her rights under the Fifth Amendment after the government granted her immunity from prosecution for anything she might tell the grand jurors.

In asking for the contempt finding, Assistant U.S. Attorney Ray Jahns said, "The defiance is clearly on the record."

Ervin strongly criticized sentencing his client to jail, saying, "I think what we're seeing here is a situation where a daughter does not want to be part of a government and FBI or U.S. attorney's investigation against her mother, her father, and herself."

After the open court session, the grand jury recessed.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Louisiana Supreme Court and a federal judge refused Friday to block the execution of two convicted murderers scheduled to die before dawn Tuesday in the electric chair at Angola Prison.

In a unanimous ruling, the Louisiana Supreme Court denied a plea for a stay of execution for Timothy Baldwin, 43, who was convicted of beating an 85-year-old woman to death during a robbery in her home.

In Baton Rouge, U.S. District Judge Frank Polozola denied a plea to stay the execution of Robert Wayne Williams, a 29-year-old who was convicted of shooting a security guard in the face with a shotgun.

If executed, they would be the first to die in Louisiana's electric chair in 20 years.

Baldwin's request for a stay was carried to U.S. District Court in Alexandria.

Williams' next stop on the appeal route was the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Polozola's refusal to grant a stay came as a surprise.

"It is without precedent at this state of the appeal process for a federal judge to deny a stay," said John Vodika, head of the Louisiana Coalition on Jails and Prisons. "At least, I don't know of a single case."

In the 10-page ruling, Polozola said he made a careful review of the trial record, but found "no error of any kind" which should in any way cause postponement of execution.

Polozola also said it would serve no useful purpose to delay the proceedings for another hearing.

The state Supreme Court's brief ruling on Baldwin's plea said it disagreed with state District Judge John Joyce of Monroe, who said he lacked jurisdiction to rule on the plea for a stay, but added that since the Supreme Court had authority to act, "We deny the application."

Prison officials said the executions, to be carried out in the old rough-hewn electric chair, were scheduled between midnight and 3 a.m.

Baldwin, a father of five, grew up in Cleveland. He moved to Monroe, La., and was separated from his wife and was an itinerant traveling with Marilyn Hampton at the time of the crime.

The prosecution said Baldwin used to live next door to Mary James Peters, 85, in West Monroe and knew she had bonds and money in a safe in her home. Mrs. Peters was beaten with chair legs and an iron skillet during the robbery.

Miss Hampton and Baldwin were caught in El Dorado, Ark., on April 8, 1978, and tried together. Miss Hampton drew a life sentence.

Baldwin escaped from the jail in Monroe in March 1979 while his conviction was on appeal.

Church Calendar

Yesterday and TODAY

You'd probably love to have a car like this to fool around with. But suppose you had to drive it day in and day out?

We Americans are used to having the latest, and we don't like to live with what seems out-of-date to us. For that reason, a good many of us don't go to church. We tell ourselves that church was great for Grandpa and Grandpa, or maybe even for Mom and Dad, but it has no place for us in this jet age.

If we believe this . . . then it is we who are out-of-date! The Church today is a modern institution in touch with the world around it. It helps us cope with the problems of modern life, teaching us to change with a changing world. Let's catch up with the times. Let's attend church.

Choir to present 'God's Trombones' Sunday

The Sanctuary Choir of St. Luke's United Methodist Church, 3011 W. Kansas Ave., will present "God's Trombones" Sunday during the morning service.

"God's Trombones" is a series of sacred poems written by James Weldon Johnson and set to music by Roy Ringwald. Johnson, who died in 1938, was the son of a self-educated man and an artistic woman who taught at the Stanton Public School for Blacks. Born in Jacksonville, Fla., Johnson graduated from Atlanta University. He spent the major portion of his life in attempting to write, publish and produce operas and musical works with his brother John.

He was an active member of the NAACP movement in the United States. In 1930, he resigned as general secretary of the NAACP to accept the Adam K. Spence Chair of Creative Literature at Fisk University. The last years of his life were devoted to writing, teaching at Fisk and lecturing at New York University.

To Johnson the sonorous, powerful voice of the old-time Negro preacher was like a trombone. Hence, "God's Trombones" is his expressive designation of these ministers preaching God's word as they understood it.

In St. Luke's presentation, Susan Griffin will read the part of the prayer leader and James Buchanan, the drama teacher at Midland High, will read the part of the preacher. Jim Hartman and Don McCartney will sing incidental solos. The organist will be Mona Ruth Dickson and June Adcock will play the piano.

The public is invited to attend.

Church hosting Missionary Conference

St. Paul's United Methodist Church, 4501 Thomason Drive, is hosting the 17th annual Missionary Conference today and Sunday.

The conference, which began Friday, features special presentations by Gene Wittig and H.T. Maclin. Music will be provided by Wesley Putnam.

Wittig and his wife, Marj, have been missionaries since 1950. Both were in South America as missionaries when they met. Since then they have served in Columbia and Ecuador. Wittig is now serving as vice-president of OMS International Inc.

Maclin is the field representative for the Division of Education and Cultivation for the Board of Global Ministries assigned to the Southeastern Jurisdiction. He and his wife, Alice, formerly served as missionaries in Africa from 1953 to 1972.

A 6:30 p.m. covered dish dinner precedes Wittig's 7:30 talk today. Both will speak during the 10:50 a.m. worship service Sunday. New Wine will provide the music.

St. Ann's to host Lenten Mission

St. Ann's Catholic Church, Illinois Avenue and M Street, will host a Family Lenten Mission beginning Monday and running through Friday.

Meetings begin at 7:30 p.m. with the Rev. Roy Rihn, pastor of St. Mary's Church at Victoria, conducting the sessions. The Mission will consist of nightly talks and celebration of the Eucharist. Topics include, in order of presentation, "The Good News," "Why God Loves You," "Your Response: Christian Repentance," "The Home and Family, School of Love" and "Reconciliation in Sacrament and in Life."

Meetings will be conducted at the church Monday through Wednesday and at the St. Ann's Gym Thursday and Friday. The first three sessions are for the married, single and older persons with children below junior high level attending the last two nights only. Babysitting will be available for all sessions.

The public is invited to attend any or all of the sessions.

Federal judge orders cross removed from state park

ATLANTA (AP) — A federal judge has ordered the Rabun County Chamber of Commerce to remove a huge illuminated cross from Black Rock Mountain State Park, saying the cross violates the constitutional mandate of a separate church and state.

U.S. District Judge Horace T. Ward ruled Thursday that the cross must come down within 30 days.

Frank Sutton, a lawyer for the Chamber, said residents of the northeast Georgia county would be "saddened" to learn the 26-by-35-foot cross must be removed from atop Black Rock Mountain.

The cross, set at the top of an 85-foot utility pole, is visible for miles across the mountains of north Georgia and western North Carolina. It was erected in 1979 to replace another cross which had been placed on state property on the mountain in 1957.

The suit was brought on behalf of four Georgia clergymen by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Ward said the cross' presence violates Constitutional guidelines because it was erected for a religious purpose, it was meant to advance a religion and its presence on state property causes the state of Georgia to be excessively entangled with religion.

Chamber of Commerce lawyers argued Jan. 26 that the cross was erected for the secular purpose of promoting tourism and that there was no evidence to show it promoted any religion over others.

Gene Guerrero, director of the Georgia ACLU, said, "... We feel like it is very important to protect the separation of church and state which was established by our Founding Fathers."

Sutton said no decision had been made whether to appeal.

"I think the people around here are going to be very saddened by it. I was very saddened by it," he said. "It is a happening, a set of circumstances that is a part of Americana in 1981."

Methodist women to hold meeting

The United Methodist Women of the First United Methodist Church, 305 N. Baird St., will hold a general meeting Wednesday at 10 a.m. in the church's Boone Bible Class.

An executive meeting will be at 9:30 a.m. in the church parlor with all circle chairmen being urged to attend.

The Lenten luncheon will be at 11:45 a.m. with a continuation of the Bible study led by Dr. Charles Lutrick.

Crestview to feature Price, Nelson

Jimmie L. Nelson

Bryan Price

Bryan Price of Dallas will direct the music for the Crestview Baptist Church, 3300 Thomas St., in its "Alive in Christ" revival beginning Sunday.

Price is a soloist, whistler and choir director. He received a music degree from Dallas Baptist College and attended East Texas Baptist College. Price has been the music director at Casa View Baptist Church in Dallas for the last 11 years.

The meetings begin at 8:30 a.m., 10:50 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday with 7:30 p.m. meeting through Friday.

The preacher for the services will be the Rev. Jimmie L. Nelson of Fort Worth. Nelson, the director of the doctor of ministry program at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth, is a graduate of Baylor University and Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. He has also studied at Notre Dame.

The hosting pastor is the Rev. Kenneth Hall. The public is invited to attend.

Ramsey to speak at Westside Church

Johnny Ramsey will speak at the Westside Church of Christ, 4410 W. Illinois Ave., Sunday at 10 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Ramsey is from Rowlett. The public is invited to attend.

The Newspaper BIBLE

WHO IS GREATEST OF THEM ALL?

The disciples began to argue among themselves as to who would have the highest rank in the coming Kingdom.

Jesus told them, "In this world the kings and great men order their slaves around, and the slaves have no choice but to like it! But among you, the one who serves you best will be your leader."

"Out in the world the master sits at the table and is served by his servants. But not here! For I am your servant. Nevertheless, because you have stood true to Me in these terrible days, and because My Father has granted Me a Kingdom; I, here and now, grant you the right to eat and drink at My table in the Kingdom; and you will sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel."

"Simon, Simon, Satan has asked to have you, to sift you like wheat, but I have pleaded in prayer for you that your faith should not completely fail. So when you have repented and turned to Me again, strengthen and build up the faith of your brothers."

"Simon said, 'Lord, I am ready to go to jail with You, and even to die with You.'

But Jesus said, 'Peter, let Me tell you something. Between now and tomorrow morning when the rooster crows, you will deny Me three times, declaring that you don't even know Me.'

Santa Fe Festival Theatre to open

Actress Gina Lollobrigida, right, stands with Nabila Khashoggi, teen-age daughter of billionaire Adnan Khashoggi, Tuesday night during the opening of a New York disco called Starbucks.

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Arts Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — This isn't the best of economic times to start a new regional theater, concedes Thomas Kahn Gardner. But he'll start one this summer in Santa Fe, N.M., with some outside help.

Some help. It includes Gilda Radner, Christopher Reeve, Kevin Kline, Susan Sarandon, Hal Holbrook, Tammy Grimes, Dick Cavett and even Joseph Papp, head of the New York Shakespeare Festival.

They're all in the cast of "Santa Fe on Broadway," a one-night benefit playing here Sunday to raise, they hope, $40,000 for Gardner's new Santa Fe Festival Theatre.

Broadway heavies aren't the only ones participating in the entertainment, billed as kind of a "travelling medicine show."

The hosts include New Mexico Gov. Bruce King and the state's two U.S. senators, Pete V. Domenici and Harrison Schmitt, both Republicans.

Sunday's bash will be followed up with another fund-raiser April 27 in San Francisco, that one headlined Angela "Sweeney Todd" Lansbury, one of his company's artistic advisors.

Gardner says. In all, a fairly impressive start for a 30-year-old San Franciscan who, armed with a master's degree in drama from Yale, only began his career eight years ago with the San Francisco Opera Company.

But Gardner, who since has toiled as a production assistant, company manager and director in dramatic and operatic projects at Yale, in Santa Fe and here, tends to think big.

He hopes, with the new theater, to make Santa Fe a major cultural center in summertime, to attract major artists, to run sort of a desert version of South Carolina's famed Spoleto Festival.

There'll be no permanent troupe of actors — "We'll cast according to each play," he says. But he will use a mix of paid apprentices and professional, on stage and behind the scenes, for his shows.

The theater, he adds, will offer both new plays and the classics, plus dance and children's theater. He hopes that eventually he can run it year-around.

Yes, he laughed, some suspect he has a cog loose by planning to open a regional theater at a time President Reagan proposes massive cuts in federal aid to the arts, among other budget items.

"Absolutely," he says. "I've been hearing it all along. But we're doing it."

His budget for the first season's doings — three plays are on tape from June 20 through Aug. 9 — is $480,000. Of that figure, he says, $150,000 recently was appropriated by the New Mexico legislature to renovate the company's new home — an elderly but sturdy structure in downtown Santa Fe.

The rest, he says, will come from the two benefits, private and corporate sources, "and, of course, the artists."

He says Sen. Domenici, chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, tells him there's strong resistance on Capitol Hill to Reagan's proposal to cut federal aid to the arts by about 50 per cent.

But he's not worried about federal funding now anyway. He says his theater won't be eligible for National Endowment for the Arts grants until its third season.

TV book full of laughs

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Television is a triumph of equipment over people, and the minds that control it are so small that you could put them in a flea's navel and still have enough room for a network vice president's heart."

The discovery of that Fred Allen line at the front of a book, a book whose title is extracted from that wonderful line, suggests that a very agreeable read is just ahead.

Oh, yes. Don Freeman's "In a Flea's Navel: A Critic's Love Affair With Television" is most agreeable indeed. Freeman, a San Diego columnist-critic ("colic," you might call the breed), considers the creature TV with grace, humor, curiosity and unabashed affection.

That last quality, rare in colics, is refreshing and reassuring, for Freeman is a smart fellow and a clever writer. He admits to watching and liking TV — even some of the drivel. Example:

"If 'Gilligan's Island' were a person, it would have moved its lips when it read. Why did I watch it? Because my brain had already turned to mush, that's why. No further questions."

Well put, Freeman. That's precisely why I watch "F Troop" reruns. On the other hand, Freeman doesn't spare the barbs when it comes to such as "The Dukes of Hazard," which earns from Freeman the well-deserved assessment: "A flat-out dumb, sorry little show."

The book is composed of collected Freeman columns, ranging in subject from Frank Sinatra to Leonard Bernstein to, well, "Gilligan's Island." And there are some funny yarns here. Freeman tells of the time he was interviewing comic Henny Youngman in San Francisco.

"A woman approached the table. 'How do you like San Francisco, Henny?' she inquired.

"At my hotel," Henny said, "I opened the dresser drawer and what do you think I found? Tony Bennett's heart!"

In his introduction, Freeman explains without apology his fondness for TV: "I like television even while seeing all of its warts plain," he says. "I like the idea of an electronic gadget, whose inner workings I don't presume to comprehend, that you can switch on and at once see Walter Cronkite (Dan Rather now) reassuring us that the world's statesmen haven't yet blown up the globe.

Actress Valerie Harper and friend Tony Cacciotti enjoy each other's company during a recent National Association of Television Program Executives luncheon at a New York City hotel.

Oscars later this year

By YARDENA ARAR
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The ballots are in; the limousines are being polished and movie lovers are expecting the best as the night draws near for the biggest celebrity ritual of them all.

It's Oscar time again for the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

The show — the 53rd annual awards ceremony — begins at 9 p.m. CST Monday, an hour later than last year. Academy spokesman Art Sarno said the 1980 ceremony started early as an experiment to capture more of the East Coast audience, which tends to tune out by the time a 10 p.m. telecast ends about 1 a.m.

"What happened (last year) was that the ratings improved in the East but went down in the West, so there was no real gain," Sarno said.

It could be a vintage year for Oscar watching, whether viewers plan to get up at dawn to grab a seat on the bleachers outside the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion at the Music Center here or just sit in front of the family television for the ABC telecast.

An estimated 300 million viewers in the United States and 65 other nations are expected to watch the show.

More than 30 Hollywood personalities — from Alan Arkin to Franco Zeffirelli — are slated to present gold statuettes in 20 categories, one fewer than last year. (The best adapted film score category was canceled this year because of a lack of qualified candidates.)

Even President Reagan will make an appearance, in a taped segment.

In keeping with its theme, "Film Is Forever," the three hour-plus show will open with a special production number featuring Lucie Arnaz and a montage of great moments in film including Marlon Brando's anguished "I coulda been a contender" speech in "On the Waterfront" and Humphrey Bogart's farewell to Ingrid Bergman in "Casablanca."

Clips from a record 155 films are to be shown.

The Best Song award will be presented by tenor Luciano Pavarotti, who will sing "Torna a Surriento" ("Return to Sorrento"). And President Reagan, a former actor, will become the first U.S. president to participate in an Oscar. He will appear in a segment taped at the White House March 5.

Johnny Carson will be the master of ceremonies for the third straight year.

'Rose' wilts in Broadway debut

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a London hit, but maybe something got lost in translation. I have reference to "Rose," Glenda Jackson's first Broadway effort since she appeared in "Marat-Sade" in 1965.

Cast as a Midlands schoolteacher with a dead marriage and no end of personal and professional woe, this fine actress labors valiantly to bring some spark of life to this drama by Andrew Davies.

But it's in a lost cause. Davies' play, which bowed Thursday, trudges along, slowly, earnestly, with no startling insights and only a few funny moments. In general, it's a yawn festival.

Its schoolmarm, the mother of two kids and a teacher of young children, is approaching middle age, suffering from what seems a low-grade frustration both in her teaching career and at home.

At school, her imagination as a teacher is stifled by her superiors and colleagues. At home, she's stuck with a dullard husband, a white-collar type who, when she suggests a cozy evening with a bottle of wine, replies: "It's a bad night on the telly."

Her only relief comes from her gently dotty, loving mother (beautifully played by Jessica Tandy); a female friend who lives with a once-great pop composer she casually plans to evict, and a handsome young teaching inspector, a married man with whom our troubled teacher commits adultery in the back seat of his car.

She's trapped all right, and despite her crisp, acerbic wit she hasn't the courage to really break out. You keep waiting, though, for something startling to happen. But nothing much happens at all.

Oh, sure, the second act has two revelations that come without any advance warning, each a strained surprise. You learn that:

—She and her husband, previously portrayed as a conventional couple, have an open marriage of sorts, with no questions asked should either one depart for some vague "meeting" by dark of night.

—Her husband, fearful of losing his job as a personnel manager, has given up outside affairs and taken to drink — even though there are no early hints he's been unfaithful and now is en route to alcoholism.

But there's little else to sustain interest. The moral of this proceeding seems to be that nothing in life today is as clear-cut as in mother's time, be it in a nursery school, in a career or in the marriage bed. This, alas, isn't exactly news.

The proceeding, performed on John Gunter's huge, one-room, sliding-

Unfortunately, the play named "Rose" never blossoms. It only opens a little bit here and then promptly wilts.

Shells found in Hudson

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Several small World War I-era artillery shells discovered Friday during dredging of the Hudson River near Liberty Island State Park were removed and destroyed by munitions experts, officials said.

Cmdr. John Kennedy of the Naval Weapons Station at Earle said two 3-inch diameter shells about 12 inches long, two shorter 30mm shells and a handful of smaller rounds were found.

Eugene Scanlon, a spokesman for Mayor Thomas F.X. Smith, said officials believe the shells were part of the "Black Tom Munitions" barge which exploded in 1916.

panel set that serves as a wine bar, a classroom, two different bedrooms and a kitchen, depending on the moment, has a few other flaws.

The English accents of the husband (John Cunningham) and Miss Jackson's female pal (Jo Henderson) aren't convincing at all. You wish these players, both Americans, would take remedial British.

And Alan Dossor's direction, while busy, doesn't give much overall shape to this two-hour, 20-minute production.

As the teacher named Rose who alternately addresses the audience and her fellow actors (the latter in various one-on-one situations), Miss Jackson is solid and even inspiring — particularly when she's alone on stage.

Leo Sayer strikes gold

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Writer

Leo Sayer recorded his latest LP, "Living in a Fantasy," in England. It's still on the best-selling charts, after 21 weeks, and the second single released from it, the title song, was No. 23 on the best-selling chart of March 21. The first single released, "More Than I Can Say," is gold.

Sayer, visiting America, talking about the record and his career in general, says "The funny thing is, in going back to England to make this record, I felt I was returning to my roots and was going to come up with a very English sound and maybe have success in England. And if it happened in America, great good luck."

"I came up with such an American sound, more pop than rock. Everywhere else, the album sales have died off by now but it's still fresh as a daisy here."

"I thought we would come up with New Wave urgency. Believe me, the English rock scene and the American are so separate now. In England, Adams and the Ants are making it; I don't think they'll make it as big here. Here, Neil Diamond is in the top 10."

"I was bowled over with what we came up with, but it's nice to have a record that is so programmable on the radio."

Sayer wrote most of the songs on "Living in a Fantasy" with Alan Tarney. Tarney produced it, arranged it and played all the instruments except drums. They worked on one song, adding tracks, until they finished it. Then they went on to the next one. Sayer thinks that made each song more individual, more apt to be a possible single.

Usually, certain instrumental tracks are cut on all the songs, then all the strings, vocals, etc., are added later.

Sayer, Turner and the drummer in a small studio in "a grotty part of London" is a lot different from recording with the best session musicians in Los Angeles. Sayer enjoyed it, said it felt like "a home-grown product."

Sayer and his wife of seven years, Janice, took a house in Los Angeles while he was working on the 1976 album, "Endless Flight," with producer Richard Perry. He didn't like everybody constantly telling everybody they were great, didn't think it was good for the mind.

"The lifestyle of LA frightened me off," he says. "You have to sort of play Mr. Show Business all the time. It wasn't really us. We were the last scruffs in Los Angeles. We left before we were drummed out of town."

Sayer, who will be 33 in May, started as an artist. Then he found himself in front of a band, doing auditions, answering an ad for a lyricist by David Courtney, writing songs with him. Roger Daltry invited them to rehearse in the studio he'd built on his farm.

"He wanted someone to try out the studio. He was around all the time. It was quite an honor to have Roger Daltry saying he liked a song. One day he said he'd been thinking of doing a solo album and did we have any songs. We went through tapes and wrote new songs and gave him some we had planned for our second album."

"He did a whole album full of Sayer and Courtney songs, 'Daltry,' in 1972. We held up the release of our first one, 'Silverbird,' so people would hear his and might know who we were." Daltry released two singles, "Giving It All Away" and "One Man Band."

Overall, Sayer says, "I've had one of those seasaw careers. I've gone to rock bottom and up again."

Sayer is on the Warner Brothers' label in America, Chrysalis in England. "The Show Must Go On" from his first album was a hit everywhere but in America, he says, though Three Dog Night had a hit with it here.

"Just a Boy" was the album that broke for me in America. It had 'Long Tall Glasses,' 'Giving It All Away,' 'One Man Band.' The album title is a line in 'Giving It All Away.'"

"That's about the time I split with Dave Courtney," Sayer says. "I think we ran out of ideas together. We'd written about 100 songs, been very selective about what we put out."

"Another Year" was a hit in England, Australia and Europe, but did nothing here. It was the most oblique lyrically. One song was "Moonlighting." In England that means leaving an apartment without paying the rent."

The fourth album, "Endless Flight," is platinum and three singles from it. "You Make Me Feel Like Dancing," "When I Need You" and "Endless Flight," are gold. "I did two more with Richard Perry, 'Thunder in My Heart' and 'Leo Sayer,' that didn't do so well. Then 'Here' was an all-time low."

On that one, out in 1979, Sayer and Courtney reunited. "We had songs were really commercial, plus wonderful musicians. We haven't recouped the money it cost to make yet. When you split up for five years and try and grab that old feeling back, I guess you find out you aren't the two guys you used to be."

"But now 'Living in a Fantasy' is up to the sales of 'Just a Boy' and people aren't writing me off any more. And believe me, this is just the start."

"All the albums have been wildly different styles. That's a risky sort of attitude. But I'm a changeable person. And I don't worry about charts any more. You can only treat it with a relaxed attitude when you get over 30."

Sayer says he makes more touring in other countries than in America, but he is more popular in America than anywhere else and he feels most at home with the American music scene.

"Financially speaking over the past year my ship has come in," he says. "We bought a house two years ago. Put all our money in it. Before, we couldn't afford it. Nobody will lend you money when you're in this business."

"I've just sent my parents on their first holiday outside England."

Few favor stand on El Salvador

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's decision to send military aid to El Salvador — his first major foreign policy initiative — is finding slim popular support. The White House mailbag, for example, is running 10-1 against the program.

The tepid support for Reagan's Salvadoran policies is also reflected in recent polls showing less than one-third of those questioned backing the president's decision to send more military aid and American advisers to help the ruling Salvadoran junta.

Key congressional offices are reporting similar trends. Capitol Hill aides say the flow of letters on El Salvador is "very heavy" with 85 percent or more of the mail opposed to Reagan's policies and many letters expressing fear of "another Vietnam."

The public skepticism about Reagan's stand on El Salvador contrasts sharply with generally strong backing for his economic policies and with his favorable overall performance rating.

Harold Heilsnis, a State Department official who monitors White House mail on foreign policy issues, said 25,000 letters had been received on El Salvador — "a very large number." He said they were 10-1 opposed to Reagan's decision to send military aid.

In the first test of its get-tough foreign policy, the Reagan administration sought to portray the war in El Salvador as "a textbook case of indirect armed aggression by Communist powers."

Accusing Cuba and other Soviet-bloc nations of funneling "massive" supplies of arms to the rebels, the administration sent $25 million in additional military aid to the junta and dispatched 20 more U.S. military advisers, bringing the total to about 54.

But the president has repeatedly stated that he does not intend to send U.S. combat troops or to allow the United States to be drawn into a Vietnam-style conflict in the tiny Central American nation.

Despite those assurances, the Gallup poll this week reported that two out of three Americans who knew about the war in El Salvador said they feared the conflict might become "another Vietnam." The poll also said fewer than one in five favored military aid to El Salvador.

A Los Angeles Times poll found similar results, with 38 percent of those questioned favoring stopping all aid, 32 percent supporting aid to the junta, 29 percent without enough information to decide and 1 percent favoring help to the insurgents.

Nancy Clark of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., committee chairman, had received about 2,000 letters on El Salvador in March, with about 85 percent against U.S. military aid.

"We don't want another Vietnam," said one critical letter. "The citizens there should be allowed to settle their differences," read another.

Ms. Clark said some of the letters also accused the Salvadoran military of committing murder, rape and torture against its own citizens.

She said the bulk of the letters were individually written although some apparently were part of organized mailings. Members of Congress generally give more weight to letters composed by individuals than to those with identical wording that are part of organized mail-in campaigns.

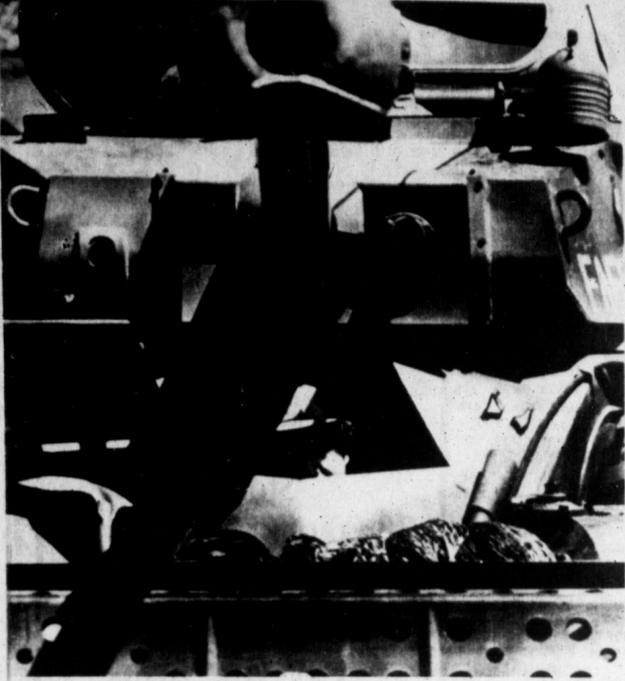

Polly Dredge, spokeswoman for Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., a prominent critic of aid to El Salvador, said that out of 886 letters he has received on the issue, 831 letters supported his opposition to Reagan's policies.

Concern over the direction of U.S. policy has also given birth to a fledgling anti-war movement, led primarily by Catholic and other religious officials. Some church leaders have denounced El Salvador's government as brutal and repressive.

Another complication for the Reagan policies has been U.S. anger over the murder last December of four American churchwomen in El Salvador. U.S. investigators have said evidence points to at least some complicity by Salvadoran security forces.

The anti-war movement held a series of vigils and protests last Tuesday to commemorate the first anniversary of the assassination of El Salvador's Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero, who had been a prominent critic of the Salvadoran government.

Former CIA officer says information may be false

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former CIA intelligence officer says in a magazine article that the spy agency likely fabricated information used by the Reagan administration to justify approval of military aid to El Salvador.

The author of the article, Ralph W. McGehee, said in a telephone interview he has no proof of any fabrication, but bases his accusation on his intimate knowledge of CIA and communist insurgent operations.

The article, written for the April 3 issue of The Nation magazine, was released as part of a court suit in which McGehee and the publisher are challenging CIA deletions in the story.

McGehee submitted the article to his former employer because of a February 1980 Supreme Court ruling that said the spy agency could require its former employees to clear articles and books before publication. McGehee's lawyer, Mark H. Lynch of the American Civil Liberties Union, said this was the first suit challenging CIA deletions by a former spy agency employee who submitted an article under the Supreme Court guidelines.

The suit was filed Friday in U.S. District Court.

A CIA spokeswoman, Kathy Pheron, said the agency would have no comment. But she confirmed the now retired McGehee worked for the agency.

According to the upcoming Nation article, the CIA likely had a role in fabricating news stories and other information about communist involvement in the civil war in the Latin American country.

"Early probable efforts by the CIA to alter the reality of El Salvador focused around (news) stories of massive arms shipments being sent to Salvadoran leftists by the Soviets."

Cubans-Bulgarians-Vietnamese-PLO-Ethiopians and Nicaraguans all combined in an international conspiracy against the United States," McGehee writes.

A second likely deception, he said, was publication of news reports about two guerrilla invasions of El Salvador. McGehee said he doubts either military action took place.

Thirdly, McGehee writes, the CIA likely was involved in the Salvadoran government's release to a U.S. official of purported captured documents that were supposed to show proof that the Cubans and Soviets supplied weapons to Salvadoran insurgents.

"This proof then supplied 70 percent of the material that Washington used to write its White Paper documenting Soviet and Cuban arms aid," McGehee says.

In the interview, McGehee said he saw the CIA use similar tactics in other instances when a U.S. administration wanted to use the excuse of communist insurgency to install a government favorable to the United States.

To emphasize his point, he provided in the article examples of CIA operations in Iran in the 1950s, Indonesia in the 1960s and Chile in the 1970s.

Speaking in the interview of the "captured" communist documents provided by the Salvadorans and released with the Reagan administration's recent white paper on El Salvador, McGehee says there are references to conversations among communist officials that bear no resemblance to the way such officials speak to one another.

McGehee said he has an intimate knowledge of communist habits through his anti-communist work as a covert CIA operative and his assignment, from 1973-1977, to the International Communism branch of the spy agency at its headquarters in Langley, Va.

Lutheran groups criticize Reagan

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Reagan administration has "internationalized the struggle" in El Salvador and "made it a battleground for its own political interests," three Lutheran church groups charge.

That view was given this week by Presidents David W. Preus, American Lutheran Church; James Crumley, Lutheran Church in America; and William Kohn, Association of Evangelical Lutheran Churches.

The LCA claims some 2.9 million members, the ALC 2.4 million, and the AELC, a breakaway branch from the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, 112,000.

FDA wants more data on artificial heart

WASHINGTON (AP) — A medical team associated with the University of Utah is being asked to submit more data on an artificial heart it has developed before approval is granted for the first artificial heart implant in a human.

The Food and Drug Administration notified the team Wednesday that its application is "not approvable in its present form" because:

- It does not assure that the device will be used only in subjects who have irreversible heart damage.
- It does not provide sufficient data showing patients would be made fully aware of the risks before signing consent forms.
- It contains too little data on how well the heart would work and its impact on other bodily organs, raising questions about whether the project would be scientifically sound.

In notifying Kolff and Associates Inc. of its decision, the FDA offered to have its staff members meet with the organization to resolve the difficulties.

Victor Zafra, acting director of the Bureau of Medical Devices said the agency "would be happy to review a revised application."

Kolff and Associates developed and produced the artificial heart, which was to be used for the first time at the University of Utah College of Medicine.

Dr. William Kolff, director of the University of Utah artificial organs division and the head of the 20-year research program, said, "We have no reaction until we see the letter, but it is routine that when they have additional questions they disappear."

The FDA decision, reached after consultation with scientists inside and outside the government, means there will be a delay of undetermined length in use of the artificial heart.

Air fares are cut on some routes

By The Associated Press

With the summer travel season approaching, two major airlines have announced special discount fares on some domestic routes and one carrier has cut prices on certain flights to Europe and the Middle East.

United Airlines said Thursday that it would reduce fares up to 56 percent on flights between Cleveland and four Northeastern cities, starting Monday.

Eastern Airlines said that effective today it would cut prices on flights from 134 cities to Florida and on certain transcontinental routes. And Trans World Airlines set new discount fares, effective April 27, on flights from Houston to 11 foreign cities.

The fare reductions reflect the carriers' efforts to stimulate passenger traffic in advance of the summer season, which usually is their best period. Last year, however, airlines' business lagged because of higher fares and uncertainty about the nation's economy.

United said it would cut fares on non-stop flights between Cleveland and Boston, New York, Washington and Philadelphia. One-way fares will be $79 between Cleveland and New York or Washington and $89 between Cleveland and Philadelphia or Boston.

During off-peak hours, the fares will drop still lower, $59 to New York or Washington and $69 to Boston and Philadelphia, representing savings of up to 56 percent on current fares.

United's present base fare on the four routes is $135 one way.

Earlier this week, New York Air, which serves New York, Washington and Boston, said it would begin direct service between Cleveland and New York with connecting service to Washington and Boston, starting April 12. One-way fares will be $59 on weekends and $79 on weekdays.

Eastern Airlines' new unrestricted coach fares apply to flights linking Miami and nine other Florida cities with Atlanta, New Orleans, Nashville and major cities in Texas, Alabama, West Virginia, Georgia, North Carolina and South Carolina.

Passengers will be able, for example, to fly between Miami and Atlanta for $99, a 29 percent reduction from the regular coach fare of $139. The new fare from Dallas to Daytona is $159, compared with the earlier coach price of $203.

Eastern also announced a new $298 adult round-trip excursion fare and a $98 children's fare on flights linking four Northeastern cities with Los Angeles and San Francisco. The fares, in effect through May 31, are available from Albany, N.Y., Boston, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I. All those flights are by way of New York.

The fares represent reductions of up to 35 percent for adults and 74 percent for children traveling to Los Angeles, the airline said.

TWA, meanwhile, said it is cutting fares 35 percent to 68 percent to seven major foreign cities from Houston. Between April 27 and May 31, TWA's round-trip fare from Houston to London or Frankfurt will be $549.

The special fare to Lisbon, Madrid, Barcelona, Paris, Rome and Milan will be $749 round-trip. To Athens, Tel Aviv or Cairo, TWA said it will charge $849.

Normal economy fares from Houston to London are $1,060 round-trip in the off-peak season and $1,218 in the peak period, which begins May 15. To Madrid, the normal fares are $1,144 and $1,376, while the prices to Cairo run $1,546 and $1,692.

Cigarettes with filter linked to heart disease

FRAMINGHAM, Mass. (AP) — Smokers who switch from non-filter cigarettes to filters do not reduce their chances of developing heart disease, according to a study that has monitored heart problems since the 1940s.

"Filters are not doing what they are reputed to be doing. You're still getting the poison," said study Director William Castelli, in an interview with the Middlesex News.

The findings of the ongoing Framingham Heart Study indicate that the rate of heart disease has not changed among smokers despite the introduction of filtered cigarettes in the mid-1960s.

Smokers are twice as likely to have a heart attack as non-smokers and five times as likely to die a sudden death from a heart attack as non-smokers. These statistics remain the same for both filtered and non-filtered cigarettes, according to the research.

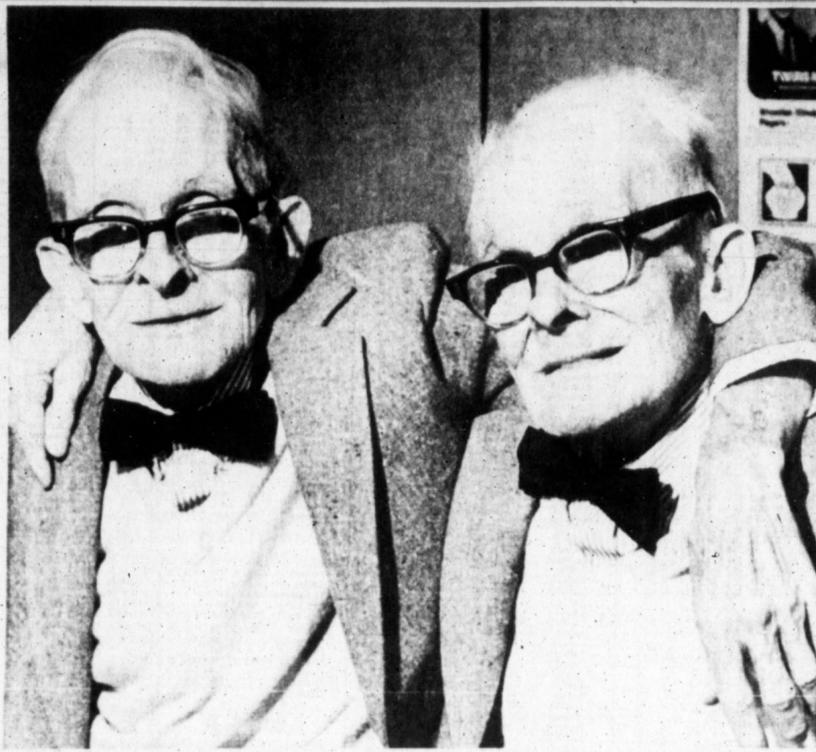

Telephone calls to tobacco industry groups for comment were not answered late Thursday and early today.

"In all our experience with filter cigarettes since the mid-1960s, we have found no lowering of the subsequent heart attack rate," Castelli said.

The Framingham Heart Study has monitored the cardiovascular health of several thousand Framingham residents since the 1940s.

The prospects for a safe cigarette are still quite far off, Castelli said. "Research in this area is still in its infancy. It's safer to quit than to switch brands."

Researchers monitored the health of about 1,400 men and 700 women — all of them smokers — from the mid-1960s to the late 1970s. More than 95 percent of those who smoke favor filtered cigarettes, but the heart attack rate has not declined.

Amos, left, and William Caulfield, 77-year-old identical twins, pose recently in Chicago after being voted "most identical twins" in an Illinois state lottery contest.

When asked what they would do with their $1,000 prize, William responded by saying he would get married. Amos said he would "take William's wife to dinner."

Union stands firmly opposed to hiring part-time workers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The leader of the city's 4,900 striking transit workers says the union remains firmly opposed to the Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority's proposal to hire part-time workers.

The issue is the major obstacle to settling a 12-day strike that has forced some 400,000 daily bus, trolley and subway riders to find alternate transportation.

"There's one crucial issue that goes with the package — no part-time workers," Dominic DiClerico, president of Local 234 of the Transport Workers Union, shouted to cheering union members at a rally Wednesday.

As contract talks continued Wednesday evening, there was no sign the stalemate had been broken.

SEPTA says it could save $1 million annually in labor costs if 5 percent of its work force was made up of part-timers.

Local 234, which represents operators, mechanics and cashiers, barred the employment of part-time workers in previous contracts, claiming part-time employees jeopardize job security and overtime.

Salary does not appear to be an issue in the dispute. The TWU had said it is satisfied with the 16 percent wage increase offered by SEPTA over the two-year contract.

Meanwhile, the city was gearing up for thousands of sports fans expected to begin arriving Friday for the National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball tournament.

Joseph Egan Jr., first deputy city commerce director, said a fleet of school buses and charter coaches has been assembled.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, March 29, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Wonderful Pearl Bailey shares this birthday with you. She was born in Newport News, Virginia. Also born on this day, former U.S. Senator and presidential candidate Eugene McCarthy. In the year ahead, your ability to work amicably with others is your key to success. Although a certain employment situation could be difficult, the next few weeks offer you special opportunities to advance your goals. You are likely to change your mind on a variety of subjects. Be extra patient with loved ones now. You may feel restricted at times, but persistence will enable you to overcome any barriers.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Creative ideas lead to a fun weekend. Try to include older relatives in some of your social activities. Too much independence could interfere with romance. Loved one may feel taken for granted.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): An upsurge in enthusiasm is indicated. Try to get outdoors today. Fresh air will help clear the cobwebs, leaving you with a new sense of purpose. Pursue romance and happiness will follow.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Allow children to set some of their own priorities. Romantic considerations are likely to figure in all of your plans this weekend. You will be greatly cheered by something someone tells you today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A great day for family get-togethers. Go ahead and express your sentimental side! Relationship with mate, partner becomes more rewarding than ever before.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): This is not the time to be thinking of business. Influential person could prove unreliable. Do not fret. Someone else will lend a helping hand at crucial moment.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your personal plans go according to schedule. Make sure others pay their fair share of expenses. You are moving in higher social circles. Family life will be happy. Devote more time to small fry.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Romance, marriage should be more satisfying than in the recent past. Meet mate halfway! Heart-to-heart talk helps smooth over differences. You can derive both pleasure and profit from a new creative project.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Hold tight to your money! Avoid unnecessary spending. If visiting someone confined to home or hospital, take along a small gift. Inexpensive surprise package will be well received.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Make this a happy day for those who are dear to you. You may see someone who has been out of your life for a while. Welcome this person and forget any past grievances.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A good day for entertaining on a grand scale. It is time to repay your social debts, and you ought to have fun doing it! Write any family members, friends who are overseas.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): This will be a very busy day! Enlist the help of others. Efforts to improve your property will pay off handsomely. Go all out to make a favorable impression at a social event.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Member of opposite sex influences your lifestyle. Keep your eyes and ears open! Travel is under favorable influences. You could get an opportunity to learn while you play. Romance is in the air.

Indictments lead to probe of prisons

BALTIMORE (AP) — Officials launched an investigation of Maryland's troubled prison system Friday and halted a furlough program after 26 inmates released to attend work or college classes were indicted on charges including drug selling, robbery, rape and murder.

Col. Thomas Smith, state police superintendent, said six investigators would probe all work-release programs and "any improprieties of officials."

Sixty-one sealed indictments were handed down Thursday against 26 of the state's 1,800 work-release prisoners. Eighteen were rounded up that night by Baltimore police, who were following prisoners being taken from the minimum-security Brockbridge Correctional Institution in Jessup.

Kamka immediately suspended all work-release programs from Jessup, where inmates were either transported to a work detail near the Maryland Penitentiary in Baltimore or were taking college courses in the metropolitan area.

"As of today, every inmate in Maryland will be in prison," Kamka said, although he did not mention suspending the programs in other areas of the state.

Smith hopes sixth time to well will be different story

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — You can't win for losing, Dean Smith seemed to be saying, when you try to stop Virginia center Ralph Sampson.

Smith, the North Carolina coach who has been to the well five times without drawing water, said Virginia had to be considered the favorite of the NCAA basketball finals.

"Nobody else has anyone 7-foot-3 or 7-4 who's that active, in the Jabbar or Walton group," Smith said Friday after he put his team through a final workout in preparation for his semifinal game against Virginia Saturday.

This is nothing new for Smith. Smith has taken his North Carolina teams to the Final Four five times, but he has yet to win it all. He sees Sampson, at 7-4 one of the tallest men in basketball, as a primary road block this time around.

"If you choose to play him, he gets open shots for his teammates," Smith said. "If you don't play him, he can kill you. And he holds you to one shot, and most good teams need those second shots."

The North Carolina-Virginia contest will follow the opening semifinal of this year's Final Four between Indiana and Louisiana State. The final, plus a third-place game, are set for Monday night.

"We didn't come here with the idea of losing," North Carolina forward Al Wood said. "They beat us twice (during the regular season), but we could have won either with just a few turnovers."

In both meetings between the two teams, both from the Atlantic Coast Conference, the Tar Heels took large second-half leads before finally succumbing to Virginia. North Carolina ended the season with a 28-7 record but won the ACC tournament. Virginia, 28-3, won the ACC's regular season crown.

"You don't want a team to beat you three times in one season," Wood said. "I don't think we could have played much better in that second game. When the buzzer sounded, I couldn't believe we lost. It took a while to sink in."

Virginia, ranked fifth in the final AP poll of the season, never has been to the Final Four. The sixth-ranked Tar Heels last made it to the finals in 1977, losing 67-59 to Marquette in the championship game.

The first semifinal game will pit what Coach Bobby Knight calls a "maturing" team against a more experienced LSU squad. Indiana is ranked ninth and LSU fourth.

"Our team has been in a year-long maturing process," Knight said at a news conference following his team's brief workout at the Spectrum. "They're not mature yet. That's down the road. We still make some mistakes, but it's been enjoyable to watch the team grow, not just stay in the same place."

Indiana, 24-9, go to the Final Four with three very impressive victories, including a 99-64 romp over 18th-ranked Maryland in the second round of the Midwest Regional. After the Hoosiers got off to a 7-5 start this season, including losses to Kentucky, Notre Dame, North Carolina, Clemson and Pan American, few would have suspected that Knight could build a title contender.

"When we got off to that 7-5 start, we were playing some pretty darned good teams," Knight said.

One of the keys to Indiana's improvement has been the improvement of sophomore guard Isiah Thomas.

"We've seen great growth in Thomas," Knight said. "He was a little reluctant last year and at the beginning of this year to assume control of the team. Some of the other kids were older than he was, but we wanted him to take the leadership role."

Thomas, an All-American, will matchup with LSU's Ethan Martin, who like Thomas is a fine ballhandler and a capable scorer. LSU's strength, however, is along the frontline, where 6-foot-7 senior forward Durand Macklin has excelled. Macklin led the team with 16.7 points per game and also was LSU's top rebounder, grabbing 10 a game.

"LSU is a very quick, very strong team," Knight said. "They have all the physical attributes a good basketball team has to have. They're good individually and as a team."

Asked to analyze the similarities between Thomas and Martin, Knight said: "They're both quick, and they're both team players. They both work very hard, and they're very good ballplayers."

Both LSU, 31-3, regular-season winner of the Southeastern Conference, and Indiana have had injuries. Macklin jammed the little finger on his right hand — he is a left-handed shooter — and Indiana guard Randy Wittman has a sore leg. Both are expected to play.

Knight is the only coach here who has ever won an NCAA title. Led by Quinn Buckner, Scott May and Kent Benson, the Hoosiers swept to the 1976 title in Philadelphia, trouncing Michigan 86-68 in the championship game.

"The team we had five years ago was an excellent team," Knight said. "There aren't many teams that were better than that one. The problem is, you keep looking at a team like that as an eventual goal, but each team has different players. Isiah and Ray (Tolbert) are not Buckner and Benson."

"My experience with that team will help us now," Knight said, "but if I'm not careful, I can be a little impatient with this team when I think about that team of '76."

San Angelo Lake View's Lori Hoelschen shows the pain of just missing a record high jump attempt at 5-feet, 3-inches Friday at Memorial Stadium during the first day of action in the Tall City Junior Relays. The boys compete today.

Midland girls rule relays

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

The Midland girls made it a clean sweep in the Tall City Junior Relays held Friday at Memorial Stadium as Goddard outscored Alamo and San Angelo Lee, 131-110, in the seventh grade competition and Goddard brushed by Alamo, 136-118, in the eighth grade while the Midland freshmen team nipped San Angelo Glenn, 163-159, to win the ninth grade title.

The boys go on at it today, beginning at 9:45 a.m. Running finals are set for a 1:30 p.m. start.

Mildred Henderson set the pace for the Midland freshmen as she collected five gold medals. She was on the winning 400 and 800-meter relays, and also won the long jump, triple jump and 100-meter dash.

MIDLAND'S FRESHMEN used first place finishes in the 400-meter, 51.74 seconds, (Rochelle Gill, Lydia Jackson, Arlene Griffen and Henderson) and 800-meter, 1:57.93, (Gill, Jackson, Griffen, Henderson) relays to wrestle the team title away from Glenn. Midland Lee's freshmen rolled up 112½ points and a third place finish.

Henderson also picked up a first in the long jump, triple jump and 100-meter dash. She won the triple jump with a leap of 34-11½ to easily outjump Connie Cain, Glenn, who went 33-2½. Henderson's jump of 16-8½ in the long jump was 20 inches longer than the second place finisher. Susan Revell, Glenn, turned in a 15-¼ effort for second. Henderson's clocking of 12.19 seconds in the 100-meter earned her a fifth gold medal for the day.

Vivian Piper was the only Midland Lee entry to take home a gold medal. Her winning effort came in the 75-meter hurdles. Piper was timed in 12.42 seconds as she breezed to the win over second place finisher Jerri Sims, Midland.

NEW RECORDS were set in all of the running events as this was the first year meters instead of yards was used. Those were the only new marks set on a windy, sandy afternoon.

In the eighth grade, Goddard's only first-place points in the field events were garnered by Diane White in the triple jump. White's effort of 34 feet was 11 inches better than Tina Knight's of Alamo. Alamo nipped at the heels of Goddard in this event as Cheryl Long finished fourth and Griffen of Alamo wound up fifth.

Goddard scored heavily in the relay events. Their 400 and 800-meter teams both won. The 400-meter team (Diane White, Nancy DeWitt, Nikki Henley, Carla Griffen) toured the course in 54.32 seconds to pick up the gold. Goddard's 800-meter team (White, DeWitt, Henley, Griffen) raced to first in a time of 1:51.07.

Pam McDonald nabbed a first for Alamo when she won the 300-meter run in 47.47. Terri Robles helped Alamo's point total with a sixth place finish.

Another first for Alamo came in the 75-meter hurdles when Long crossed the tape in 12.22 seconds.

Alamo scored heavily in the shot put where Katrina Jones won the event with a toss of 31-¼ and teammate Long heaved the steel ball 30-1 which was good for second. DeWitt picked up some vital points for Goddard when she finished third in the shot put competition with a throw of 29-5¾.

THE EIGHTH grade high jump was dominated by San Angelo athletes. Lee Ann Crowder finished second at 4-8 and Webb tied for third at 4-6 to break up the San Angelo stranglehold. Diane Amburn, Glenn, won the event with a leap of 4-8.

Knight picked up eight points for Alamo when she finished second to B. Green of Edison in the long jump. Green won the event with a jump of 15-2 while Knight went 14-4½. DeWitt, Goddard, picked up on team point for a sixth place finish.

In the seventh grade action, Goddard used team depth to win the title. Goddard took home only two first places. Melissa Whittington grabbed a first in the long jump on the strength of 14-2 leap. Additional points were recorded for Goddard by Kelle Ingram, fourth, and Leslie Wallace, fifth in the event.

The other first turned in by Goddard came in the 400-meter relay. The team of Chantelle Holloway, Meloney Burnett, Whittington and Tangi Carter, whipped around the track in a time of 55.81 seconds to claim first.

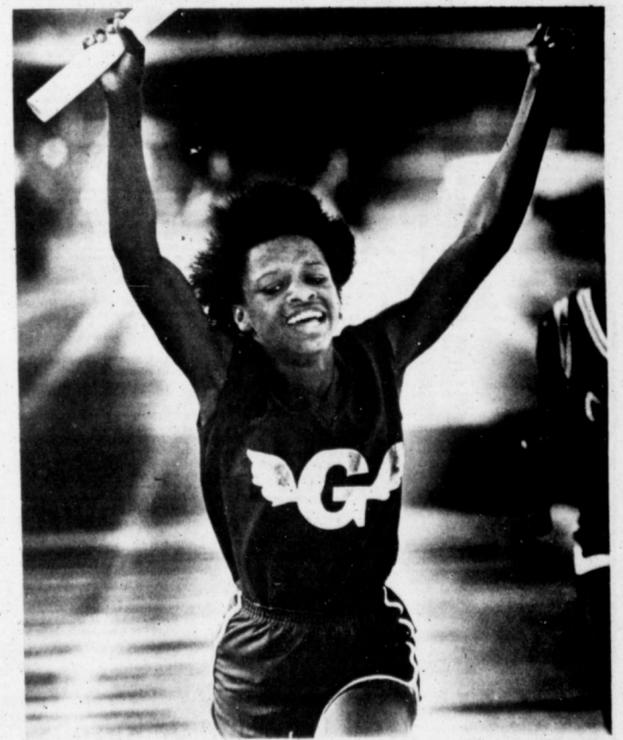

Alamo's team, Shelli Childers, Latisue Williams, Benita Harmon and Prentice Wright, toured the course in 57.77 seconds which was good enough for third.

THE DUO of Whittington and Wallace picked up some valuable points for Goddard with a fifth and sixth place finish in the triple jump. San Angelo Lee took first and second place honors in the event. Anita Allgood went 30-7½ for first and teammate Andrea Washington soared 30-1½ for second.

Allgood collected another first when she jumped 4-10 to win the high jump. Ingram, Goddard, cleared 4-8 and took second.

Nadine Hill, Alamo, set the pace in the shot put when she heaved the ball 30-2. Joan Wadley finished in fourth for Alamo while Holloway went 24-7½, good enough for third.

Three events are missing in each class as track officials misplaced the results.

Goddard's Carla Griffen brings her 400 meter relay team a victory with this anchor finish during the Tall City Junior Relays Friday at Memorial Stadium.

Cooper takes 5-5A golf lead

Early season favorite Abilene Cooper didn't disappoint anyone at the first stop on the District 5-5A boys' golf tour. The Cougars carded an 18-hole total 305 to win the first meet held Friday at the Ranchland Hills Country Club course.

San Angelo No. 1 was second, 10 strokes off the pace. Midland's High No. 1 team and Cooper's No. 2 turned in a 320 which was good for third, but 15 strokes off the pace.

In the battle for individual medalist honors after the first round, Cole Thompson, Cooper, carded a 73 and holds a one-stroke edge over Midland High's Reece Boudreaux, Jake Lomas, Abilene No. 1, and Ron English, Cooper No. 1. Ronnie Fletcher is alone third with a 75.

Other Midland High standouts were Jeff Howes, 80; Russel Owens, 82; Mark Bigbie, 84; and John Heard, 88. Midland High's Grant Word also turned in an 86 for the MHS No. 2 squad. MHS No. 2 has a 373 total.

Midland Lee was led by Emil Hale and Mike Smith, both with 81 rounds. Nick Hernandez had an 85 while Kevin Lundy and Britt Gardner both had rounds of 87. Lee owns a 334 for an eighth place standing.

The Lee No. 2 squad got an 85 from David Hicks and 87s from Kelly Cook and Kent Carpenter. Greg Kemp had an 89. That was good for a team score of 348.

The next round of the district golf tour will be Friday at the Odessa Country Club with a 9 a.m. tee off time. Cooper is off to the start they expected and they did it on the foreign course. However, San Angelo and Cooper still have the home course to look forward to. If Midland High stays in the race, they will have to do it on the road since the tour doesn't come back to Midland.

The top two teams and the top two medalists enter a Region I playoff berth in Lubbock later in April.

Spann, Britt set records

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Scott Spann and Clay Britt set American records in the 100-yard butterfly and 100-yard backstroke Friday night to give the University of Texas an almost insurmountable lead for the team title in the 58th NCAA Swimming and Diving Championships.

Texas compiled 181 points to 118 points for second-place Florida and 113 for third place UCLA. The Longhorns have never won an NCAA swimming and diving title.

Spann swam the butterfly 100 in 47.22 seconds to eclipse the record of 47.60 he set in the preliminaries. The Texas senior beat back a strong challenge from California's Par Arvidsson, a gold-medal winner for Sweden in the 1980 Olympics at Moscow. Spann also shattered Arvidsson's U.S. Open record of 47.36.

Britt, a sophomore, splashed the backstroke 100 in 49.08 seconds to break the standard of 49.11 established by him Thursday night in a relay event.

Rebels, Bulldogs need quick rebound

By MIKE CRUVER
Sport Writer

Midland Lee and Midland High will be looking for their first win in District 5-5A baseball action today. Lee (6-5, 0-1) hosts San Angelo (3-6, 0-1) in a 2 p.m. game at the Lee diamond. Meanwhile, the Purple Pack (5-7, 0-2) will be out to break a two-game losing streak when they tangle with Big Spring (3-4, 1-0) on the Steers' field.

Both Tall City clubs are coming off disappointing district openers. Lee's Alan Koonce twirled a 14-strikeout, five-hit game, only to get beat in the eighth inning on a homerun by Odessa High's Hector Sanchez. Over in Odessa, Midland High had a bad case of bobbles as the Bulldogs committed six errors that allowed Permian to score four unearned runs enroute to a 4-3 win.

Both clubs have problems as they head into the second game of district play. For Lee it's finding its offensive punch that has suddenly left them. The Rebs had it going in the Tournament of Champions, then had a week-long layoff before losing to Odessa High. Lee has been fielding the ball well and had been hitting the ball hard before running into OHS' Tommy Stahl. Of course, some questionable base running by the Rebs contributed somewhat to their loss Tuesday.

Across town, Tim Whalen has seen his charges come alive with the bat. In their last three games, the Purple Pack has rapped out 32 hits, including 11 against highly regarded Dallas Thomas Jefferson in a game the Bulldogs lost 10-9 Wednesday.

Jerry Zachery has led the Bulldog hitting parade all year but as of late Frank Garramone, Kyle Ford, Tim Davis and Michael Feldt have been adding a little more to the attack.

The problem facing the Bulldogs is a pitching staff that has suffered casualties. Mark Hewitt, the Pack's leading pitcher, is out with the chickenpox and Doug McLean re-injured a hamstring muscle and will be ineffective for some time. In Wednesday's game, Whalen saw some encouraging pitching prospects as Jim Gunnels and Joe Delagrazia came in and pitched reasonably well.

Still the injury situation leaves the Pack's pitching corps in a state of despair and the Bulldogs need desperately for someone to step forward and take charge of the pitching staff.

Another area that the Bulldogs need to see some improvement in is the infield. At times the infield has played well, at other times the infield has been pitiful. Errors have been a problem that has plagued the Dogs all season. The loss of all-district shortstop Eddie Portillo during the TOC has not helped the stability of the infield.

Defensive lineman Larry Cole announced Friday that he is retiring from pro football after 13 seasons with the Dallas Cowboys. He is the last member of the Domsday Defense.

Dallas Domsday dies as Cole exits

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Larry Cole, the last member of the vaunted "Domsday Defense" of the Dallas Cowboys, announced his retirement Friday after 13 years in the National Football League, most of them in the shadow of his more publicized teammates.

Cole, dressed smartly in a gray pinstripe suit, told a throng of writers at a Texas Stadium news conference he is quitting to devote more time to his family and his successful home building business in the Dallas area.

After Cole said his farewell, Dallas Head Coach Tom Landry paid his tribute to the player who had manned every position in the team's defensive front four over his long career.

"If I had 45 players like Larry Cole, I'd never retire," said Landry. "He had such great balance, the ability to ward off blockers and tacklers. He's probably the best we've ever had in passing situations," Landry added.

"Maybe he wasn't the greatest in speed from sideline to sideline, but he had all the other great qualities," Cole pointed out that in 23 years of football, "I never went under the knife. I've still got my health and I figured I'd get out while I'm ahead. I really don't want to risk getting injured."

THE WISCRACKING Cole showed up at 12:37 p.m., seven minutes after his own press conference was to have started, and asked: "I'm not going to get fined for this, am I?"

He was noted for arriving at the last possible moment for team meetings.

Then he added, after stepping to the microphone, "Well, I was hoping we would start out by playing 'Hail to the Chief' but I guess we'll have to pass on that."

He gave special thanks in a humorous aside to the Washington Redskins against whom he scored all four of his NFL touchdowns.

He called Texas football fans "undoubtedly the finest fans in all of America" and passed out lavish praise to Landry and other members of the Dallas organization.

The 6-5, 255-pound Cole began his career as the starting defensive left end on the original "Domsday Defense" that included linemen Bob Lilly, Jethro Pugh and George Andrie.

Cole, 34, ended it as the starting left tackle on the "Domsday Junior" line with Randy White, Harvey Martin and Ed "Too Tall" Jones.

He was so overshadowed alongside Lilly and Pugh for years that he, Pat

Toomay and Blaine Nye formed their own group, "The Zero Club," a fraternity dedicated to anonymity and the motto "Thou Shall Not Seek Publicity."

Cole never played a losing season with the Cowboys and only once in his career, in 1974, did Dallas fail to make the playoffs.

Drafted in only the 16th round from the University of Hawaii in 1968, Cole finished his career with an NFL-record 26 playoff game appearances. He also shares the league mark of five Super Bowl appearances.

Cole became a backup in 1977 after nine years as a starter, but the retirement of Pugh and Jones catapulted him back into the starting lineup in 1979.

"Larry has been such a consistent player for us through the years. Really, he's been kind of indispensable in that he's been able to play both defensive end and tackle," Landry said. Landry and his assistants always readily agreed that Cole lacked the speed and strength of other players around the league.

Bradley, Carner and Hansen deadlocked at four over par

COSTA MESA, Calif. (AP) — Successful veterans Pat Bradley and JoAnne Carner and virtual unknown Martha Hansen were deadlocked at 4-over-par 146 after Friday's second round of the $175,000 Women's Kemper Open.

Bradley, the first-round leader at even-par 71, carded a 75 Friday while Carner, the second-leading money winner in Ladies Professional Golf Association history, had a second-round score of 71.

Hansen, who has earned just $24,023 since joining the LPGA tour at the beginning of 1978, had a 70 over the demanding 6,134-yard, par-71 Mesa Verde Country Club course.

Four players were bunched at 147 and another four were grouped at 148 midway in the 72-hole tournament that offers a top prize of $26,250.

Texas nips Cougs in SWC baseball

Texas, Texas Tech, TCU and Arkansas came away winners Friday in Southwest Conference baseball action.

Shortstop Spike Owen drove in two runs with three hits and right-hander Tony Arnold survived a 12-hit attack as Texas beat Houston, 8-7.

The win kept the league-leading Longhorns with a perfect record, 4-0, while Houston falls to 3-4. Texas is 34-3-1 overall and the Cougars are 17-13.

Texas Tech pitcher Davis Carroll scattered 14 hits in eight innings and his teammates contributed 17 hits as the Red Raiders clubbed Baylor, 13-4.

Tech's season record now is 17-10 and 1-3 in the SWC, while Baylor drops to 12-12 on the year and 1-6 in the conference.

Rightfielder Pat Moore and first baseman John Grimes led the Tech hitting parade with three hits each. Grimes ended the day with three runs batted in, two of them on a home run in the seventh inning.

Designated hitter Gene Segrest had four RBIs, with three of them in a fourth-inning homer.

Tech's third homer was by catcher Kevin Rucker in the fifth inning.

Arkansas' Scott Tabor scattered eight hits Friday to lead the Razorbacks to a 3-2 victory over Rice.

Rice's pitcher Matt Williams struck out five batters to break an 18-strikeout tie with Tabor but dropped to 4-2 on the year and 2-1 in SWC play. Tabor, who struck out two, improved his record to 6-1 for the season and 3-0 in conference play.

Right-hander Greg Moore struck out six and held Texas A&M to just three hits as Texas Christian shut out the Aggies 4-0.

The victory boosted TCU's conference record to 3-1 and left the Frogs in sole possession of second place. The Frogs' overall mark is 14-7.

NBC turns Irish

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC-TV has signed a two-year agreement contract with Notre Dame to telecast nationally a minimum of four basketball games each year, the network said Friday.

A network spokesman said the UCLA-Notre Dame games would be shown, but the others have not yet been determined.

NBC announced Thursday it had signed a one-year agreement to telecast Atlantic Coast Conference regular-season basketball games next season. It was learned that NBC will telecast the ACC Tournament championship next season.

Earlier this month, CBS won the rights to telecast the NCAA basketball tournament starting next season in three-year, $48-million deal with the NCAA. NBC previously held the rights.

NBC's recent acquisitions have made it more difficult for CBS to put together a 14-game regular-season schedule as CBS promised when it gained the NCAA Tournament rights.

Abernathy wins pin title

Gay Abernathy, who bowled a 217, has been named as the top bowler of the annual Bowl-for-Millions fund raiser of the Big Brothers-Big Sisters of Midland.

Additional winners were Lester Anderson, Troy Etheredge, Holly Nobles and Debi Myers.

Prizes were also awarded to persons or groups who obtained the largest number of sponsors. Top winner was the Sheriff's Department with the help of Capt. Richard Sexton. Other sponsor prizes went to Dennis Holiely, Jimmy Phillips, Pat Hammit and Joyce Atwood.

Big Brothers-Big Sisters provides volunteer friends to children from single parent homes. The objective of the event was to raise money for the program and recruit new volunteers for the 20 children who are waiting for a Big Brother or Big Sister. Proceeds of the event will be used to continue the program in Midland.

Charles House served as general chairman of the event while Daryl Hunt of the Houston Oilers was an honorary chairman. The Isenberg family owners of Air Park and Dellwood Lanes and Clint Benefield, owner of Super Bowl Lanes, helped to make the event a success with the use of their facilities.

Tournament chairman Charles House, left, presents prizes to Capt. Richard Sexton, center, and Gay Abernathy following the annual Bowl-for-Millions tournament, which is sponsored by Big Brothers-Big Sisters. Sexton won the sponsor award while Abernathy took the bowling honors with a 217.

Twins explode against Dodgers

By The AP

The Minnesota Twins pounded out 20 hits, including three each by Greg Johnstone, Rick Sofield and John Castino, and beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 13-2 to highlight major league exhibition baseball action Friday.

Ken Landreaux added a triple and drove in three runs.

John Mayberry's two-run single and Barry Bonnell's home run paced the Toronto Blue Jays to a 5-2 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. Darrell Porter homered for the Cards.

RAY KNIGHT and Joe Nolan drove in two runs apiece, leading a 16-hit attack, as the Cincinnati Reds walloped the Kansas City Royals 10-3. Nolan hit a two-run homer and Dave Concepcion added a solo shot.

A ninth-inning single by rookie Rufino Linares gave the Atlanta Braves a 4-3 victory over the Texas Rangers. Linares, batting for pitcher Rick Miller, knocked in Glenn Hubbard with the winning run.

The Cleveland Indians beat the Oakland A's 9-4, as Juan Bonilla drove in three runs with a single and a double. Rick Waits pitched six innings of three-hit ball for the Indians.

Tim Raines had four hits and Rowland Office three to lead the Montreal Expos to a 4-2 victory over the Houston Astros. Montreal's Jerry White slammed a solo homer in the ninth.

KIM ALLEN scored the winning run on an eighth-inning wild pitch as the Seattle Mariners beat the Milwaukee Brewers 4-2. Richie Zisk singled with one out and was replaced by Allen, who stole second, moved to third on a fly ball and scored on the wild pitch by Balor Moore to break a 2-2 tie. Brad Gulden hit a solo home run for the Mariners in the ninth.

Tom Griffin pitched two-hit shutout ball for six innings and Charles Davis ripped a two-run homer to lead the San Francisco Giants to an 11-0 romp over the San Diego Padres. Griffin struck out three and walked three.

Also turning in a sparkling pitching performance was veteran righthander Rick Reuschel, who allowed just three hits in six innings in leading the Cubs to a 6-1 win over the California Angels. One of the hits Reuschel gave up was a solo home run by Jason Thompson.

THREE HITS apiece by Mike Squires and Rusty Kuntz led the Chicago White Sox past a Pittsburgh Pirates split squad 6-1. Francisco Berios pitched seven innings for Chicago, giving up only one hit.

Mike Schmidt had two singles and a double to lead the Philadelphia Phillies to a 7-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers' split squad. Greg Luzinski added a pair of doubles for the Phillies.

Dave Kingman is about to become the richest player ever in New York Mets pinstripes, and Bill Buckner will remain a Chicago Cub for at least a little while.

The Mets and Kingman agreed to terms Friday on a three-year extension of his contract which reportedly could earn the slugging outfielder $3.5 million in salary, bonuses and incentives. That would surpass the club's previous record, a five-year, $3.15-million package signed by pitcher Craig Swann last year.

THE CUBS appeared to be on the verge of dealing another disgruntled star Friday.

But General Manager Bob Kennedy said late in the day that a deal to send Buckner to Los Angeles had fallen through because relief pitcher Joe Beckwith, who would have moved to the Cubs with third baseman-outfielder Mickey Hatcher, had returned to Los Angeles from the Dodgers' Florida training camp because of an eye virus.

Gilbert soars as greater names falter

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Veteran Gibby Gilbert scrambled to a no-bogey, 5-under-par 66 and took the second round lead Friday while some of golf's greater names fired and fell back in the $300,000 Sea Pines-Heritage Classic.

Gilbert, a 40-year-old winner of three PGA Tour titles, put together a 36-hole total of 135.

That's seven shots under par for two trips over the 6,650-yard Harbour Town Golf Links, which Gilbert called "a thinking man's golf course. You can't just go out and hit it. You have to think your way around."

And while Gilbert's mental processes were gaining some help from his putter — he one-putted 10 times, once or an eagle — such outstanding performers as Tom Watson, Masters champ Seve Ballesteros and Ray Floyd fell victim to the subtle demands of the tree-lined little layout on this resort island.

Watson, the first-round leader with a 66, went nine shots higher to a 75 and was at 141. His problems were twofold: no birdies and a triple-bogey 7 on the 10th hole, where he first drove out of bounds to the right and then hit into the water on the left.

"Actually, I didn't play much different from yesterday," Watson said. "The difference was that yesterday I had 23 putts, today I had 31. "Just one of those things."

Floyd, winner of the last two tour titles, took three to get out of a bunker on the 14th and made triple bogey 6. He had a 74 that put him at 143.

Ballesteros lost a total of three shots to par on the 10th and 11th and finished with a 73 and a 141 total.

Jerry Pate, a playoff loser in this tournament a year ago, moved into second place at 137, two shots back. He had a second round 68.

Hale Irwin, twice a winner of the U.S. Open and twice a winner here, again had to fight his way back from a double bogey to remain in contention. He did it with birdies on the last two holes, giving him a round of 70 and a 138 total. That tied him with Fuzzy Zoeller, three shots back. Zoeller also had a 70 in the mild, breezy weather.

The group at 139 included defending champion Doug Tewell, Ron Streck, Mike Sullivan, Roger Maltbie and Gil Morgan. Morgan had a 72 despite a double bogey 6 on the final hole. Tewell closed up with a 67, while Maltbie, Sullivan and Streck had 68s.

Gilbert, a touring pro for 14 years, said he planned to leave the Tour at the first opportunity.

"All I need is a job," he said. "I can't afford to retire. I'm looking for a job, but not just any job. It would have to be in the south."

"I'm not thinking about quitting 'cause I'm playing bad. It's not that. I'm probably playing the best of my life. But my kids are starting to get older and I want to watch them grow up, help them in sports, things like that."

He said he "was very fortunate to shoot what I did. I got it up and down three or four times from impossible places."

He missed six of the tiny greens but saved par on all of them. Three of the saves came after he'd chipped it within inches of the cup, two were on putts of 4-6 feet and another save came from 10 feet.

He came out of a greenside bunker to within three feet for birdie-4 on the second, reached the green with a 3-wood second shot and dropped a 25-footer for eagle on the fifth, then scored a pair of deuces on the back on putts of two and six feet.

Bulldog netters gain semifinals

ABILENE — Three Midland High tennis players advanced to semifinals Friday in the Abilene Invitational tennis tournament and are still alive for championships when action concludes today.

Lance Armstrong and Richey Houdek both won semifinal advancement in the A Boys Singles division while Vee Ann Atnipp gained a semifinal berth in the A Girls Singles.

MHS results are as follows:

Borg, McEnroe gain WTC tennis victories

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Top-seeded Bjorn Borg easily defeated Stan Smith, while second-seeded John McEnroe struggled past Vijay Amritraj Friday to advance to the semifinals of the $200,000 WCT Cuore Tennis Tournament.

Borg, the Swede who holds the world's No. 1 ranking, will meet Italy's unseeded Gianni Oleoppo, and McEnroe will face fellow American Sandy Mayer, also unseeded, in Saturday's matches.

Borg trounced Smith 6-0, 6-2, forcing the 34-year-old American to the baseline with powerful forehands and two-handed backhand shots. Smith seldom reached the net and, when he succeeded, Borg pierced him mercilessly with precise passing shots.

Smith, a former Wimbledon champion, lost his serve three times in the first set.

In the second set, he played much better but only gained two games, losing his serve twice to the reigning Wimbledon champion.

McEnroe needed 2 1/2 hours to defeat Amritraj of India 6-3, 5-7, 6-2.

The 22-year-old left-hander unusually was erratic in serving. Seeking his third straight victory in the Milan tournament, the sixth leg of the WCT tour, McEnroe seemed headed for a quick victory after easily taking the first set and climbing to a 5-4 advantage in the second.

But he lost his serve in the 10th game, was angered by a quarrel with the referee about a controversial point and lost his serve again in the 12th game, costing him the set.

Hanika nips Mandlikova

NEW YORK (AP) — Sylvia Hanika of West Germany roared back from a first-set walloping to crush Czechoslovakia's Hana Mandlikova 1-6, 6-1, 6-0 Friday night and advance into the semifinals of the $300,000 Avon tennis championships at Madison Square Garden.

The second singles quarterfinal match Friday sent Leslie Allen against Ertina Bunge of West Germany. Already in the semifinals of the double-elimination tournament, with 2-0 records, were Martina Navratilova and Andrea Jaeger.

Mandlikova, who exited the tourney with a 1-2 record, started off by winning the first 14 points. Hanika, a 21-year-old left-hander, finally broke through in the fifth game, breaking the 19-year-old Czech's serve.

Brown will imitate Balboa

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Louisiana State University Coach Dale Brown said Friday that if his team wins the national college basketball championship he'll emulate the fictional Rocky Balboa and charge up the steps of the Philadelphia Art Museum.

Fame game teams set

WACO, Texas (AP) — Teams have been announced for one of two Texas High School Basketball Hall of Fame all-star games scheduled next month in Waco.

Teams announced are drawn from 4A and 5A division schools. They will play April 11 at McLennan Community College.

TEETIME

Hogan Park sets new schedule

By TERRY WILKS (Subbing for Rex Worrell)

Hogan Park Golf Course is now in the process of starting spring maintenance programs. Rick Haywood, golf course superintendent, and his crew will be aerifying the greens this week.

The schedule will be as follows for this week. Monday: Holes 1 through 9 will be closed. Tuesday: Holes 10 through 18 will be closed. Wednesday: Holes 19 through 27 will be closed. Thursday: The entire course will be open. The same schedule will remain in effect the following week except holes 19 through 27 will be closed on Fridays instead of Wednesday. This will continue throughout the summer to enable the crew to work on and water the golf course without interfering with play.

The Sun Country Golf Association is sending director Ona Olson and three ladies from their committee to rate Hogan Park for the ladies on Monday. Joining the foursome for the round will be Ella Heath, Dede Plank, Charlotte Marburger and Renee Beique from our Hogan Park Women's Golf Association.

This week was a good one for the Wilks family. Michelle, a member of the Midland College golf team, was in Temple last weekend for a college golf tournament and won medalist honors with scores of 78 and 76. Yours truly, Terry Wilks, who is writing this column this week for Rex Worrell, had a spectacular hole-in-one on hole No. 6 at Green Tree Country Club. I would describe the shot and the conditions, but Rex says we don't have enough space in this column. Playing with me was my partner Royce Woolard and opponents Tim Peden, Curt Raney and Gary Raney. There's no need talking about who won, right Wool?

Jay Tweed, a young left-handed golfer for the Midland Lee golf team, had an eagle three on the 475 yard, par 5 hole No. 20 at Hogan and went on to have a 44 on the rough new nine, which the high school teams have grown to love and enjoy.

The HPWGA held a member-guest scramble Thursday with Ella Heath and Golda Morgan winning the championship flight. Merla Ketner and Mary Robinson won the first flight while Renee Beique and Nancy Tschirgi took the second flight. Jo Ladaga and Marge Thompson won the third flight. Thursday's pairings for the HPWGA are as follows:

18 Hole Division: Naomi Colson, Wilma Cox, Renee Beique and Charlotte Marburger; Pat Walker, Gloria Dellenback, Charlie Culbertson and Chata Mee; Bernice Webb, Marilyn Walker, Ginny Plette and Lucha Haskins; Jerry Fennire, Marilyn Philip, Dorothy Metzler and Bernice Cox; Florence Matley, Jane Thomas, Polly Mackey and Lois Guthrie; Betty Mathis, Jo Ladaga, Ella Heath and Maurine Phillips; Jane Wagner, Maxine Buskirk, Margaret Stricker and Dede Plank; Jane Gill, Dottie Turk, Nell Kimball and Margaret Mills; Gene Vollen, Jeanne Allen and Merla Ketner.

9 Hole Division: Blythe Thomas, Peggy Mattina and Wilma Alienson; Dorothy Koons, Nancy Cox and Ruby Pennington; Barb Larsen, Kay Boyd and Margaret Moore; Jean Connor, Margaret Rhea, Ross Lee Cook and Rita Boe.

Ralph Sampson named player of year

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ralph Sampson, 7-foot-4 Virginia center, said he was thrilled to be named The Associated Press' 1980-81 college basketball Player of the Year, but there was something he wanted even more.

"I'd give it up in a minute to take home the national championship in a few days, and individual awards are secondary to team awards," said Sampson.

Sampson was not present at the ceremony to name him as recipient of the Adolph F. Rupp Trophy, an award sponsored by the Commonwealth Athletic Club of Kentucky, because it could not be worked into his schedule of preparation for the 1981 NCAA championship round.

Virginia, ranked fifth in the country, takes on sixth-ranked North Carolina Saturday in the semifinals. "Winning college Player of the Year is something I had set as a goal during my four years at Virginia," Sampson said in a prepared statement, "and the fact that I have been recognized this early in my career is great."

Sampson, who averaged 18.2 points and 11.5 rebounds a game, received 26 votes from the panel of 62 sports writers and broadcasters that cast ballots. Mark Aguirre of DePaul, last year's winner, was second with 19½ votes, followed by Danny Ainge of Brigham Young with six, Steve Johnson of Oregon State with 4½ and Isiah Thomas of Indiana with three. Three players — Kelly Tripucka of Notre Dame, Durand Macklin of Louisiana State and Rob Williams of Houston — received one vote apiece.

Sampson was the third sophomore to receive the trophy since its inception in 1961. Bill Walton of UCLA received the award twice, in 1972 as a sophomore and again in 1973. Aguirre was a sophomore last year.

At times this season, Sampson has been awesome. Already a standout by his sheer physical size, he has matured from a skinny freshman into a powerful center as a sophomore. His best remembered performance of the 1980-81 season was on national television against Ohio State when he scored 40 points and grabbed 16 rebounds in an 89-73 victory last Jan. 25.

"It has been a pleasure to see him progress as a basketball player," Virginia Coach Terry Holland said, "and believe it or not, he's going to become so much better."

"He has a great attitude and is an extremely coachable young man," Holland said. "The fact that he has been selected as The Associated Press' college Player of the Year means a great deal to our program at Virginia."

Doug Elgin, Virginia sports information director who accepted the award for Sampson, said the player had changed the attitude of many fans and alumni toward sports at Virginia.

"As you know, Virginia has not had a great history in sports," Elgin said, "and obviously it's become apparent through the media what our basketball program has meant to the city of Charlottesville and the University of Virginia."

In his statement, Sampson apologized for being unable to attend the ceremony at which it also was announced that Ralph Miller of Oregon State had been named the AP's Coach of the Year.

"I'd like to personally thank all the people who had a part in my selection, and I'm sorry we could not have arrived in time for me to attend the ceremony," he said.

Oregon's Miller named top coach

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ralph Miller of Oregon State University was named Associated Press college basketball Coach of the Year for the 1980-81 season today, and he accepted the award on behalf of those who had taught him what he has turned into a winning style of basketball.

"I'll always be grateful to the men at Kansas who made my life awfully simple," said Miller, a basketball and football star at the University of Kansas before launching his college basketball coaching career.

Miller said he learned both the defense and offense he coaches in college ball now at Kansas in the 1930s. "I created nothing new, and I haven't changed anything either," Miller said. "We use the same offense, the same attack. It's a system that's withstood the test of time."

Miller received 26 votes from a nationwide panel of 62 sports writers and broadcasters. Dale Brown of Louisiana State was second with 12 votes, and Ray Meyer of DePaul received six votes for third. Bobby Knight of Indiana had four votes, and Gene Bartow of Alabama-Birmingham and Tom Davis of Boston College had three each.

"Naturally, I'm very grateful and appreciative," Miller said at the presentation. "When a person receives an award like this, that has a personal connotation, though, you must consider the group of assistants I had and the team itself."

Miller said he felt fortunate to have attended Kansas and grown up in that part of the country, which was "responsible for producing the modern day game of basketball."

"Most of the ingredients — the offensive theories, the defensive theories — of playing basketball, and most of the methods for teaching ballplayers were invented before 1940," Miller said. "The game is very simple. Of course, it has changed because the players are better physically, they're better able to execute, but they're still learning to play basketball the same way as their fathers."

"I'm called a coach, but really I'm a teacher."

Mets sign Kingman

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Slugger Dave Kingman agreed to a three-year contract extension Friday which apparently will make him the highest paid player in New York Mets history.

Kingman, acquired from the Chicago Cubs last month in exchange for Steve Henderson, signed for a reported $2 million, topping the $3.15 million, five-year deal the Mets gave pitcher Craig Swan last spring.

Kingman had two years remaining on a $1.2 million five-year free agent deal which he signed with Chicago in 1978. His demands to renegotiate that contract led the Cubs to trade him this spring.

The outfielder batted .278 with 18 homers and 57 runs batted in last season in 81 games with Chicago after tagging 48 homers and driving in 115 runs in 1979. In two previous seasons with the Mets, 1975-76, he hit .36 and 37 home runs.

Deal is off for Buckner

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The rumored deal involving Bill Buckner of the Chicago Cubs going to the Los Angeles Dodgers definitely is off, Cub General Manager Bob Kennedy said Friday.

The Cubs were to receive relief pitcher Joe Beckwith and third baseman-outfielder Mickey Hatcher in exchange for Buckner, who won the National League batting championship last season with a .324 average.

"But the Dodgers had to send Beckwith back to Los Angeles again because he's still having problems with some kind of eye virus," said Kennedy. "So that's that. No deal. Our interest in the transaction has come to an end."

The Cubs, who originally received Buckner and shortstop Ivan DeJesus for outfielder Rick Monday from the Dodgers prior to the 1977 season, were in Palm Springs to play an exhibition game with the California Angels.

Wake Forest picks Al Groh

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Al Groh, former assistant coach at North Carolina and several other schools, was picked to succeed John Mackovic as head football coach at Wake Forest University Friday.

Groh, 36, joined the Wake Forest staff as defensive coordinator Jan. 19 after resigning from a similar position at Texas Tech.

Mackovic resigned Tuesday after three years at Wake Forest to become quarterback coach for the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League.

ALPINE — Entry deadline for the fifth annual American Cancer Society tennis tournament here May 9-10 is May 7.

Entry fee is $5 per person and the tournament is at Sul Ross State University courts. Tom Cross, 413 E. June, Alpine, is in charge of entries.

Spinks, Johnson slug at Boardwalk

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — It will be a light-heavyweight contest between an undefeated upstart who has yet to make it and a wise veteran who has been there and back — twice.

Michael Spinks, the top-ranked light-heavyweight contender, takes on Marvin Johnson, who has been champion twice, in a 10-round fight today at a Boardwalk casino hotel.

The winner will deserve a shot at one of the champion Muhammads — the World Boxing Council's Matthew Saad Muhammad or the World Boxing Association's Eddie Mustafa Muhammad.

"He's got a good left hand," says Spinks, who has 12 knockouts in 16 flawless professional outings, "but I know that Johnson is vulnerable. He can be hit."

For Spinks, 23, younger brother of former heavyweight champion Leon Spinks, fighting Johnson has its risks — a loss could knock him out of a title shot for now. But Spinks says a fight is a fight, and a paycheck.

"I sat around once before. That was no fun at all," said Spinks, the 1976 Olympic gold medalist who hurt his knee after fighting just once three years later.

"I like feeling scary and nervous with butterflies in my stomach," Spinks said. "You know something special is going to happen and you're sort of the man of the hour at that time."

The St. Louis native may feel especially jittery Saturday when he meets an experienced former champion, Johnson, whose 26-4 record includes 21 knockouts, held the WBC and WBA crowns separately in 1979.

Saad Muhammad knocked him out for the WBC crown in April 1979. Johnson then took the WBA portion seven months later from Victor Galindez. Then, a year ago, Mustafa Muhammad took it from Johnson.

So for Johnson, 26, it's been up-down-up-down in 16 months. The last defeat slowed Johnson's roller-coaster. The Indianapolis-based southpaw took a six-month vacation, reportedly to clear his head, although some say he mended broken ribs. Since September, he has scored three knockouts.

"I didn't want an immediate rematch with Eddie. I wasn't ready," he says. "I didn't want to work myself into getting ready."

"Even before I won my first title, I always wondered whether this was worth it. It is a lot of strenuous work to put your body through to get ready for a fight."

The nationally televised (ABC) fight between Spinks and Johnson will be held before about 1,500 high-rolling gamblers at Resorts International Hotel Casino.

Warriors get bad news after win over Clippers

OAKLAND (AP) — The Golden State Warriors have discovered that their last National Basketball Association victory wasn't quite as big as they thought at the time.

"We only have to win one more game to make the playoffs," the players noted after Wednesday night's 120-114 victory over San Diego.

That's what Coach Al Attles and team management told them.

But the NBA has sent word to the contrary. If the Warriors win only one of their two remaining games (Saturday night home against Denver, Sunday at Seattle) they could be left out of the playoff picture.

They would be eliminated in the case of a three-way tie, also involving the Kansas City Kings and Houston Rockets, which is possible. The Warriors thought that in any tie situations, they would be in because they won their season series against both teams.

"I was working from a playoff book in my office last year," said Joe Dearborn, the Warriors' media services director, admitting that he was responsible for the misinformation given to the team and local press over the past few weeks.

Under this season's formula for breaking three-way ties, the playoff berths go to the teams with the best conference records, and Kansas City and Houston get the nod in that department.

The Warriors, Kings and Rockets came out of Wednesday night's action with 39-41 records. The Kings and Rockets were scheduled to meet Friday night at Houston. On Sunday, Houston is at San Antonio and the Kings play at home against Dallas.

American Beardsley favored to win London Marathon

LONDON (AP) — Dick Beardsley, a 25-year-old American, heads a strong overseas entry in the inaugural London Marathon, to be raced through the city Sunday.

Beardsley, the second-fastest marathon runner in the United States, still is looking for his first major victory but is one of the favorites in a field of nearly 8,000.

Beardsley clocked 2 hours, 12 minutes, 49 seconds in finishing second to American Bill Rodgers in Houston earlier this year. His personal best for the standard 26 miles, 385 yards is 2:12:41.

Two Norwegians, Inge Simonsen and Knut Kvalheim, also are expected to make an impact. Simonsen was sixth in last year's New York Marathon, while Kvalheim is a proven track performer making his marathon debut.

Emmanuel Ndiemandoi of Tanzania, 15th in both the Moscow Olympics and the New York Marathon, and Australian John Stanley are the other top overseas entrants.
