Reagan takes own suite time in 'new office'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A high-spirited President Reagan, out of the intensive care unit, is walking around and conducting "business as usual" in a suite at George Washington University Hospital, his doctor and aides said today.

They said the president stayed up until 11 p.m. EST Tuesday with his wife Nancy to watch the first hour of the televised Academy Awards presentation, slept for four or five hours and began a busy morning tackling White House affairs.

"Although he is somewhat uncomfortable, the president slept quite well," said Dr. Daniel Ruge, Reagan's personal physician. "He has been out of bed and walked."

The move to the suite was accomplished Tuesday night, one day after the president and three other persons were wounded in a gunman's assassination attempt outside a Washington hotel.

White House chief of staff James A. Baker III said on the CBS-TV "Morning" show that Reagan signed some nomination papers Tuesday evening and an unspecified executive order this morning.

When Baker and other aides finished a meeting with Reagan this morning, he was eating breakfast sitting in a chair.

"It's really business as usual," said White House counselor Edwin Meese III, who said the president had set up a "full-time office" in his hospital suite.

"The president is fully capable of taking actions," Baker said. "We've had to cancel very few activities."

Meese indicated on NBC-TV's "Today" show that because of Reagan's "remarkable recovery," he might be discharged from the hospital early next week, sooner than originally expected.

The White House said Reagan is starting to eat solid foods and is "in good condition, but is experiencing some pain and fatigue in response to his injury." Ruge said the president's vital signs remained normal.

Doctors said White House press secretary James S. Brady was still in critical condition but improving dramatically at George Washington for treatment of a head wound. Secret Service agent Timothy McCarthy, in the same hospital, was reported in good condition and improving and may be moved today to a surgical ward. District of Columbia policeman Thomas Delaharty was in good condition at Washington Hospital Center.

Doctors said Brady, who earlier had been able to move only the right side of his body, can now move his left arm and leg. "Everybody is very encouraged by the progress Jim is making," Baker said.

Brady's doctors said he is able to see and speak and may be able to sit up in his hospital bed within a few days. They said he may recover without severe, permanent mental or physical impairment.

Ruge's report was relayed by a staff member of the White House press office, who said she received it from deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes.

Even before he was moved from the intensive care section, Reagan had turned his room into a temporary Oval Office.

He was described Tuesday as ready to take charge in any emergency while he recovered from an assassination attempt that sources said may have been planned to gain the attention of a young actress.

Various sources said John W. Hinckley Jr., 25, the man accused of shooting the president, described his plans in an unmailed letter to 18-year-old actress Jodie Foster and said, "I'm going to do it for you." Miss Foster starred in a movie about a plot to kill a political candidate, and congressional and Justice Department sources said the letter indicated Hinckley was "infatuated" with her.

At the White House, it was also business as usual. "The government did not skip a beat," deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said Tuesday.

"It's just as if the president were here in the Oval Office the way the White House is running," added Michael K. Deaver, the White House deputy chief of staff.

Texans recall John Hinckley Jr.

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — John Warnock Hinckley Jr., charged with trying to assassinate President Ronald Reagan, changed from an "average" high school student to a troubled, lonely young man by the time he enrolled in college, according to the memories of those who knew him then.

Classmates at Highland Park High School in Dallas, where Hinckley graduated in 1973, have recalled him as "average" and "part of the crowd."

But Calvin Wynne, a maintenance man at the Lubbock apartment where Hinckley, 25, lived while a student at Texas Tech University, said Hinckley told him political leaders should be eliminated.

"His attitude, his personality, was strained," Wynne said of Hinckley, currently tranquilized and held without bond at a U.S. Marine Corps base near Washington, D.C., where he awaits psychiatric evaluations.

One of Hinckley's former professors at Tech, Otto Nelson, said Hinckley wrote a book report on Hitler's "Mein Kampf" and one on the Nazi death camp at Auschwitz in Poland, where 2 million people were killed, as extra-credit projects in a 1978 German history class.

Nelson said he recalled Hinckley as a self-sufficient student who took no part in class discussions, and characterized him as "attentive, diligent, punctual."

During last year's presidential campaign Hinckley said if he had to choose he would support Libertarian Party candidate Ed Clark, "but as far as he was concerned, none of them knew what they were doing," Wynne said.

"The main gist of the conversation was about political leaders, and what he thought should be done was that they should all be eliminated," Wynne said.

"It seemed he wanted to find someone to tell whatever his problem was," Wynne added. "There was a nervousness about him."

In a strange side development, it was revealed Tuesday that Hinckley's older brother, Scott, was to have dined Tuesday night with the son of Vice President George Bush in Neil Bush's Denver home.

The Houston Post told of the en-agement in a copyright story Tuesday, but Neil Bush and his wife, Sharon, said Scott Hinckley was coming as the date of a girlfriend of hers and that the dinner party had since been cancelled.

There was a flurry of interest Tuesday in an April 9, 1980, videotape made by KAMC-TV that showed a young man who looked like Hinckley and called himself "John" shaking hands with Reagan, then a candidate for the presidency, at an airport rally here.

Later in the day, however, KAMC news director Cliff Avery said a West Texas couple identified the person in the tape as their son.

"They looked at the tape and identified the photo as their son. They produced a photo of their son. We are confident that it is not John Hinckley," Avery said.

Committee's vote favors expansion, construction

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

A Midland County blue-ribbon committee that's trying to use foresight in Midland's windfall boom on Tuesday night recommended that the county build a new courthouse annex and jail and acquire "additional land" for projected county-government expansion in downtown Midland.

The committee's vote was unanimous, although four of its nine members were absent.

Though intentionally general, the proposal was sketched in far more detail earlier in the night by committee member Charles Priddy, a Midland developer who intimated that the recommendation might avail nothing.

"The county's going to tell us to go to hell, anyway," he joked.

Priddy also suggested that the Midland County Historical Commission's two-story Brown-Dorsey Medallion Home at Weatherford Street and Illinois Avenue be uprooted and, replete with wine cellar, be moved to behind the Museum of the Southwest.

But Priddy predicted that suggestion likely would draw flak and fury from commission chairman Nancy McKinley.

The plot on which the historic frame house rests would adjoin the projected site for the county annex along Baird Street and flanked by Texas and Illinois avenues just 1 1/2 blocks east of the downtown courthouse.

"I WOULD HOPE that we try not to be shortsighted," Priddy told the committee, chaired by Midland lawyer John Hyde. "I hope we have foresight... Now, the county may tell us to go to hell."

But that doesn't seem likely.

A county spokesman, Commissioner Durward Wright who dropped in on the session in The First National Bank of Midland to "answer questions," noted that the county commissioners for several years have "been planning for the future." The Commissioners' Court recently appointed each member of the blue-ribbon committee.

However, Wright did say that the Commissioners' Court was about to take some formal action on a proposed annex when County Judge Bill Ahders and first-term Commissioner C. DeWayne Davis proposed the blue-ribbon ad hoc committee to make recommendations on how the county might best handle growth and expansion.

And Wright did note that the commissioners in the early 1970s planned for a "20 percent growth factor" in remodeling and expanding the 1929-built courthouse.

"We've been accused of being short-sighted," said Wright.

"This is not an easy problem to try to address," Hyde said of the expansion.

IN TRYING to formulate a plan, Hyde and Priddy proposed reshuffling courthouse departments. But, in Priddy's words, they recommended that the judiciary and "all the attending paraphernalia" remain in the Midland County Courthouse.

"After all," reasoned Hyde, "the Midland County Courthouse ought to be for the courts."

The panel is projecting space for five state district courtrooms instead of the three which currently serve Midland County.

Unlike Hyde, Priddy proposed that the County Jail, now on the fifth floor of the courthouse, and Sheriff Dallas Smith's office be moved out of the courthouse and to a new and separate jailhouse near the proposed Courthouse Annex. Priddy surmised that prisoners could be transferred from the jailhouse to the courthouse as securely by "paddy wagon" as they are now moved by elevator from jail to courtroom within the courthouse.

The blue-ribbon panel is to meet with the sheriff to plan the most practical and legal ways of effecting the move.

DISCUSSION ALSO focused on moving those county offices in the existing Courthouse Annex at 218 W. Illinois Ave. to the proposed annex. Non-court related offices in the courthouse would be relocated to the pro-

Ousted Thai prime minister tries to launch counter-coup

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Deposed Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanonda tried to launch a counter-coup today. He told the military commanders who ousted him in a bloodless revolt to lay down their weapons, and troops loyal to Prem were reported about 55 miles from Bangkok, the capital.

Prem, who fled to an army base at Korat, in northeast Thailand, after the early morning coup, spoke to the leaders of the revolt in an announcement on the regional radio station in Korat. Prem also claimed the support of King Bhumibol Adulyadej, Thailand's popular monarch.

Military sources said at least 10 trucks full of troops of the second army, based in Korat, 150 miles northeast of Bangkok, had reached Saraburi, about 55 miles northeast of Bangkok. There was no independent confirmation of the report.

In the capital, the revolutionary council set up by the coup leaders ordered the deputy commander of the second army, Gen. Athit Kamlang-ek, a close supporter of Prem, dismissed. The announcement, on Radio Thailand, said he had "interfered with the operation of the committee."

Athit was reported by military sources to be in charge of the troops approaching Bangkok.

The revolutionary council was headed by Gen. Sant Chitpatima, the deputy commander in chief of the army. He announced that Prem had resigned as prime minister and army commander in chief and retired from the army.

However, Prem announced he had established his "operational base" at the Suranare Army Base 150 miles northeast of Bangkok. He claimed the four regional army forces, the air force and the navy were still behind him.

School leaders fight for bond

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the 11th in a 14-part series studying the candidates and issues in Saturday's school, city and hospital election.

By LOREN BERGER
Staff Writer

Deteriorating, overcrowded conditions in Midland elementary schools have resulted in concentrated rallies among school administrators to push through a $6.6 million bond this week.

Backed by the districtwide Parent-Teacher Associations, school board members have directed media tours through the elementary schools and have made repeated appearances in the last several months before civic organizations in campaign efforts to gain approval of the bond issue.

"Midland is growing at the rate of about one elementary school a year," said Ed Runyan, president of the school board at a recent League of Women Voters forum.

The entire package designates $5.6 million for construction of two new elementary schools, one near the De Zavala site in east Midland and one in school bond

northwest Midland, south of FM 868, in addition to $1.05 for high school improvements. Voters will have a choice to vote separately on the items.

Proposed tax increase would be 5 1/2 cents per $100 of valuated property. Residents living in homes valued at $50,000 would pay about $20 more per year in taxes.

AFTER A FALTERING attempt to pass a $10 million school bond in 1979 which would have allowed for elementary school construction in northwest Midland, school officials have reintroduced the bond proposal, anticipating the public has realized the future impact of increased enrollments in light of worsening conditions.

"Yes, I'm optimistic and hopeful," said MISD Superintendent Dr. James Mailey. "I think a number of people in the community have recognized a real need in the elementary schools."

Both elementary schools, costing $2.8 million each, would have identical outlays which would provide for 20 classrooms in addition to areas for special education, learning disability and enrichment programs. Special programs mandated by the state or federal government have made a dent in the number of available classrooms in the elementary schools, according to Mailey.

Among some of the schools whose original designs contained space specifically designed as libraries, partitions have been erected to create classroom space. Such adaptations have taken place at Burnett, Henderson, Pease, Jones, Rusk and Fannin elementary schools.

"WE'VE HAD TO convert some hallways to provide additional classrooms," Mailey said, referring to West and South elementary schools which have overextended maximum classroom space. Predictions show these two schools should be five classrooms short by 1985.

In addition to these two schools, De Zavala, Jones, Burnett, Travis, Bowie and Henderson already are at capacity enrollment and are adapting stages, hallways and bookrooms for classroom space.

Mailey said the new school to be located in northwest Midland would alleviate crowding in all city schools by rescheduling all school bus routes. "This will affect busing in all areas," he said. "My intention is that we will move a number of buses." Schools most directly affected by changes in bus routes will be Jones, Burnett, Henderson and Bowie.

"We'll have to pull one bus from Bowie, for example," Mailey said. "That cluster is as full as it can be." Projections in classroom shortages for the 1981-82 school year are disparaging, according to figures released by the school district. Predictions indicate a shortage of 18 classrooms.

Body pulled from Atlanta river

By WILLIAM E. SCHULZ
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — The unidentified body of a young black man was pulled from the muddy Chattahoochee River early today, downstream from where Atlanta's 21st slain child was found Monday. But the latest case was not considered part of the series of child slayings.

The case was not turned over to the special task force investigating the child deaths because the body was that of an adult, police spokeswoman Marion Lee said today.

"The task force was originally called out, but they don't have any interest in it because it wasn't a child's body," she said. "I understand at this point it has been turned over to county authorities."

The body was not that of either of the two missing children whose cases are being handled by the task force, said Douglas County Sheriff Earl Lee. The victim probably weighed 150 to 175 pounds and probably was 20 to 25 years old, he said.

"It definitely is not Joseph Bell, which we had thought that it might be," Lee said. "So at this point in time, it looks like we'll have to look in a different direction."

Bell, 15, disappeared March 2. Daron Glass, 10, last seen Sept. 14, is the only other missing child whose case is assigned to the special task force investigating the deaths and disappearances of 23 black children since July 1979.

"I don't have any opinion," Lee said when asked if he thought the body was related to the child cases, "other than the coincidence that this body was recovered from the same river that the person was recovered from yesterday and not too great a distance apart."

Both bodies were found about 20 miles southwest of Atlanta. Several task force members joined Lee's deputies in attempting to identify the body found Tuesday evening and pulled from the water early today.

A canoeist found the body snagged on a tree limb, Lee said. It was clothed only in some type of vest.

The body had been in the water "for some period of time. You may be talking about days, you may be talking about weeks," Lee said.

An autopsy was ordered.

The discovery came just hours after the case of 13-year-old Timothy

Hill was added to the list of cases being probed by the special police task force.

Hill's body was found in the Chattahoochee on Monday afternoon.

Dr. John Feegel, associate Fulton County medical examiner, identified the body Tuesday and said Hill showed signs of "gentle asphyxiation" — the same cause of death for 10 of the 20 other children.

"It's one more of the same — black male, teen-age, no marks, no mutilation," said Feegel.

Hill, who had been reported missing March 13, apparently was suffocated at least a week before his body was found, Feegel said. It was "quite possible" the youth had been dead since the day he disappeared, he said.

There was no sign of injury on the body, he said.

"My working presumption is that he was probably asphyxiated in some way and put in the river," Feegel said.

Hill had been labeled a runaway by Atlanta police, who turned his case over to their missing persons bureau rather than the task force, despite his family's conviction that the youth had been "snatched."

Atlanta Public Safety Commissioner Lee P. Brown defended his department's handling of the case, saying Hill's file had been given to a member of the special task force for study on Monday even though the task force had not been assigned to the case.

Five uniformed officers in the missing persons unit had been searching for the youth, Brown said, and had received reports that Hill was sighted "as recently as a couple of days ago."

"If the case had been assigned to the task force there wouldn't have been much more that could have been done," he said.

Members of the Hill family declined to talk to reporters after their son's body was identified.

At a news conference Tuesday, Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson said top police investigators believe the killer of some of the children may "feed" on the "increasing publicity" about the crimes.

"In all honesty, we don't know whether increased media coverage encourages whomever is attacking our children," he said.

"There is a very strong theory, however — very strong — among a number of key people involved in the investigation that increasing publicity does feed ... a person who fits a potential psychological profile" of a child killer, he said.

Clayton promises assistance on pistol control legislation

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Paul Ragsdale, D-Dallas, can count on help from Speaker Bill Clayton if he wants to start moving with his bill requiring a two-day cooling-off period before Texans can buy pistols.

"If he wants to make a move with it, I'd be very happy to help him with it," Clayton told reporters on Tuesday.

"With the speaker's help, I'm sure I can get a hearing," Ragsdale said when told of Clayton's statement.

The "speaker's help" can work wonders because of his influence over House committees and the daily debate calendar.

Ragsdale first introduced a gun control bill in 1975 but it was buried after "the NRA (National Rifle Association) lined this Capitol up with pickup trucks and gun racks," he said. In each session after that, he introduced the bill but did not get a hearing.

"But with the recent developments, the tragedy involving the president and some of his bodyguards, that puts a new coloration on it," Ragsdale said.

Clayton, however, said the attempt on Reagan's life "didn't change anything" as far as the chances for sweeping handgun control are concerned.

Big Spring youth dies in wreck

BIG SPRING — A Big Spring youth was killed and another was injured in a one-car accident near here early this morning.

Pronounced dead on arrival at Malone-Hogan Hospital in Big Spring was 16-year-old Mark Easley. Listed in fair condition was Holston Banks Jr., 15, also of Big Spring. He suffered a broken collar bone and cuts and abrasions.

According to the Department of Public Safety, Easley died of a broken neck when an east-bound 1973 Buick driven by Banks went out of control near the intersection of Interstate 20 and Highway 80 shortly after 2:30 a.m. today.

The vehicle crossed the median strip of I-20, returned to the eastbound lane sideways, overturned and rolled up a 30-foot hill before coming to rest and bursting into flames. Both Easley and Banks were thrown from the car, and neither suffered burns.

Services for Easley are pending at Sheppard Funeral Home in Big Spring. An investigation into the wreck is continuing.

Solidarity backs Walesa

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The other leaders of the Solidarity labor federation reluctantly approved Lech Walesa's decision to call off a nationwide general strike but kept a 12-day-old strike alert in effect while they continued debate on Walesa's newest agreement with the government.

Warsaw Pact armies were reported still holding maneuvers in and around Poland. And a Soviet television commentator said Poland was "very tense" despite the suspension of the strike call in exchange for the government's promise to punish those responsible for the beating of union activists in Bydgoszcz March 19.

In Washington, the State Department said 18 divisions of Soviet and other Warsaw Pact forces remained in an increased state of readiness in Poland and neighboring countries.

"They don't seem to have stood down their preparations even though the Polish labor federation has called off the general strike," said one Pentagon analyst.

The general strike had been called for Tuesday but was suspended the day before after negotiations between Walesa and Deputy Premier Mieczyslaw Rakowski.

Solidarity's national coordinating commission met in Gdansk Tuesday to discuss the agreement and decide on cancellation of the strike.

The discussion was heated, informed sources said, and most commission members objected to the agreement because Walesa did not obtain the government's agreement to legalize the union private farmers want to form.

Walesa and his supporters reportedly argued a general strike now would be catastrophic. "The threat of strike is always better than a strike itself," said one. One source said the union had been told that a strike would bring "emergency steps" from the government.

Don't Be Misled

There are few things in life more important and of a more personal nature than providing life insurance for the protection of one's family. Because of the almost sacred nature that is usually associated with a family's life insurance program, it would only seem logical that a family would proceed very cautiously if anyone suggests that their insurance program be abandoned, in favor of something new. We have all learned that new is not necessarily better.

In recent weeks our local association has received notice that a sales force, mostly out-of-town people, is working in West Texas with a "new" way to provide a life insurance program. Whatever else their suggestions might be, the main thrust of their approach seems to be based on replacing policies that are already in force. Be very careful if someone approaches you with such a suggestion. In fact, the following guidelines might prove to be helpful:

- (1) Contact your local insurance agent and get his opinion. Closely compare the benefits of both your present policy or policies with those you are being offered. It may surprise you to find out what benefits you may lose if the change is made. A comparison of this type should either confirm that you ought to make a change or that you might be making a mistake.
- (2) If the salesperson represents himself as a Financial Planner, Consultant, etc., find out if he has a permanent license. Depending on individual circumstances, the person with a temporary license might not be around long enough to service what he sells. Since you are contemplating doing business with him, you owe it to yourself to find out.

Presented as a public service by the members of the Midland Association of Life Underwriters listed below.

Unmailed letter reveals infatuation with actress

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An infatuated John W. Hinckley Jr., accused of shooting Ronald Reagan, described his desperate plans and said "I'm going to do it for you" in a letter to a teen-age actress who starred in a movie about a plot to kill a political candidate, sources say.

The letter, written to 18-year-old actress Jodie Foster but never mailed, was quite specific about Hinckley's plans and reflected an "I-don't-care-what-happens-to-me" frame of mind, the sources said.

The letter was described by four congressional and Justice Department sources, who refused to be identified. Congressional leaders were briefed Tuesday about facts in the case by Attorney General William French Smith.

Miss Foster played a pre-teen prostitute in "Taxi Driver," a film about a New York cab driver who is fascinated by guns, revolved by rampant pornography in the city and plans to assassinate a Senate candidate.

Two sources said authorities were aware of a second Hinckley letter, and one source said that letter had been mailed but declined to say to whom.

NBC News, however, quoted federal agents in Connecticut as saying that Miss Foster told them she had received several love letters from Hinckley in recent months. The network also said pictures of the actress were found in Hinckley's wallet. Federal authorities in Connecticut and Washington declined to comment on the report.

The sources said Tuesday that investigators had found the letter Monday in Hinckley's quarters, apparently at the downtown Park Central Hotel where he stayed the night before Monday's attempted assassination.

They said Hinckley, a 25-year-old drifter, obviously was "infatuated" with Miss Foster and wanted to get her attention. One source described the unmailed letter as expressing his desire to "go out and do something to get himself killed."

Miss Foster is now a freshman at Yale University, and Hinckley, in an employment application filed with the Rocky Mountain News last October, said he was a student at the Ivy League school from September 1980 to October 1980.

Yale officials said they had no records of Hinckley ever having been enrolled there.

At Yale, Miss Foster said in a brief statement: "I have never met, spoken to, or associated with him (Hinckley)." She said the FBI and the U.S. attorney's office had asked her to say nothing about him.

Earlier Tuesday, Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., said he believed investigators had developed a theory about a motive in Monday's attack, which wounded White House press secretary James S. Brady and two law officers as well as Reagan. Laxalt, however, refused to divulge details, and there was no official word whether the letters were linked to any suspected motive.

Hinckley, meanwhile, retained the firm of millionaire Washington defense attorney Edward Bennett Williams, a former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee and owner of the Baltimore Orioles baseball team.

A member of the firm confirmed the two lawyers spent more than two hours Tuesday interviewing Hinckley in the prison at the U.S. Marine base at Quantico, Va.

The firm was first contacted by Hinckley's wealthy and conservative parents in Colorado. Hinckley's father, J.W. "Jack" Hinckley, is president of Vanderbilt Energy Corp., an oil and gas exploration company.

Two court-appointed attorneys were assigned to Hinckley's case Monday after he said he could not afford to pay a lawyer.

Meanwhile, Vice President George Bush's office said Hinckley's brother, Scott, was a casual acquaintance of Bush's son, Neil, and had planned to attend a dinner at the younger Bush's home in Denver on Tuesday night. The dinner was canceled following John Hinckley's arrest, said Bush spokeswoman Shirley Green.

Hinckley was placed under 24-hour watch at the Quantico, Va., base, where he was being held as a security precaution. He was prescribed a tranquilizer, Valium, by a prison doctor who examined him early Tuesday and pronounced him in good health.

"He's alert. Everything's normal, and there have been no problems this morning," said Bill Dempsey, a spokesman for the U.S. Marshals Service.

Hinckley, who is charged with attempted assassination of the president and assault on a Secret Service agent, is scheduled for a preliminary hearing Thursday, when the government must present enough evidence to convince the magistrate to send the case to a federal grand jury.

Hinckley profile resembles others

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Like Lynnette "Squeaky" Fromme, John W. Hinckley Jr. identified with a radical cause but didn't participate in the movement.

And like Lee Harvey Oswald, Hinckley apparently was unemployed before he was charged with attempting to assassinate a president.

In these and other respects, Hinckley is similar to the men and women who have tried to kill presidents, according to a study of assassination and political violence prepared just after the violence of the 1960s and profiles of the two women who tried to kill President Ford.

Chimpanzee's birth makes history

By PAUL McCLUNG
Lawton Constitution Writer

A 9-year-old chimpanzee named Tanya made history at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 10, in Conroe, Texas.

She is the first chimpanzee to have a baby after living with a human family and being isolated from other chimps from birth until she met her mate.

The little one, Uriah, is a healthy, 3-pound male, and doing nicely, thank you.

Tanya and Uriah are part of the unique experimental research of the University of Oklahoma primate institute.

Did you know a chimp is five times stronger than a human and can live into his 50s? And that young chimps removed from their human surrogate mothers have become dejected and died?

Dr. William Lemmon, director of the institute, and Dr. Mel Allen, research director, witnessed the delivery of Uriah and filmed the maternal behavior of Tanya.

At 1 p.m. Wednesday, a little less than 24 hours after the birth, they decided that Tanya should relinquish her maternal duties to June Cook, the surrogate human mother who also raised her.

"Tanya started out by doing all the right mothering things, but not for long enough," said Pat Crown, Allen's administrative assistant. "Her mothering instincts were not well enough formed to be continuous."

Mrs. Cook, of Conroe, has raised Tanya as though the chimp were a human child. Tanya, born 9½ years ago at the OU institute, is toilet trained, uses silverware to eat her food, and sleeps in a bed.

She had not seen another chimp until Mishac, also from the OU institute, was brought into the Cook home 1½ years ago.

It apparently was love at first sight.

"They hit it off right away," Pat Crown said.

Mothering may be a combination of learned and inbred characteristics, she said.

"What is really unique about Tanya is that after being in species isolation for so long she was able to get pregnant and deliver a baby. If she has another child, she may be able to improve her mothering skills. There is a theory that with increased number of births, the maternal behavior improves."

About 35 chimps are living at the OU institute at Norman, and data collected on the mothers and babies there will be compared with data collected on the mother, father and child at Conroe.

Mrs. Cook, the surrogate mother at Conroe, has seven children and 18 grandchildren. Only one child, about 20, lives at home.

Tanya and Mishac are being kept in a cage together. Allen says there is no mourning from the chimp mother when the baby is taken away.

But the OU research has shown that the chimp babies mourn and go into deep depression when their human mothers are taken away.

The young female chimpanzees have gone into deep depression and died, she said. The males go into deep depression, too, but finally come out of it.

Tanya is one of two chimps born at the primate institute that still is being raised in a human home. She and Abigail, a 6½-year-old female that lives in Wichita Falls, Texas, are the last of a research project started 10 years ago in which both male and female chimps are placed in homes to be raised as close to human as possible.

Most were returned to the institute by the families. A chimp reaches sexual maturity at about 7 or 8 and can produce a baby at 9. At sexual maturity, they become very aggressive.

They are also very strong, five times stronger than a human, Allen says. Their muscle cells are much more dense; this explains why they can't swim. They sink like lead. Their long arms also add to their great strength, and they have no cortical inhibition.

That means they don't know their own limits. A human weight lifter will tend to hold himself back, to keep from getting hurt, Allen says. But not a chimp. He will go all out every-time.

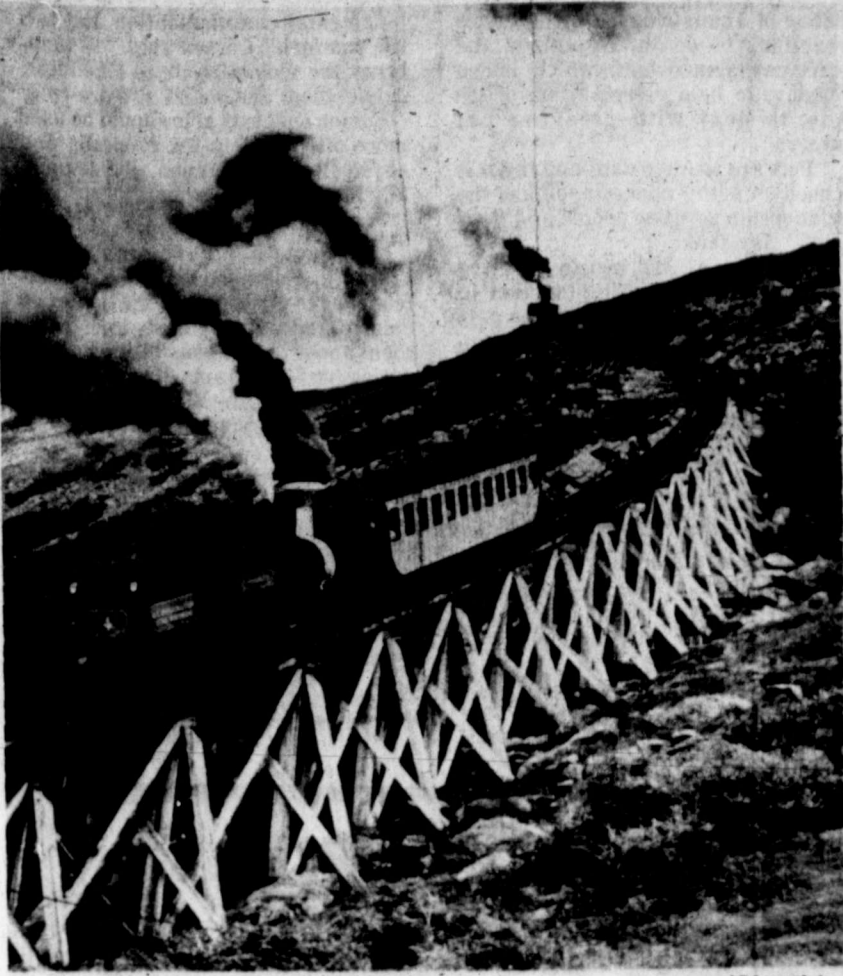

The institute has a chimp nursery. Pat Crown who has children of her own, is raising a baby chimp, Ishmael, now four months old. "He is very much like a human at this stage," she says. "He wears disposable diapers: He's cuddly; he hugs; he gives a kiss, and he laughs when he's tickled."

Chimps are smaller at birth than humans, but mature much faster. Ishmael is climbing on the furniture at 4 months, and walking very proficiently. Things a human baby wouldn't do until it was 9 months to a year old.

Pat and three others are sharing responsibility for Ishmael, giving him his bottle, passing him around in hopes that he won't become too attached to any one. He will be seeing other chimps and go into a nursery with others of his species when he's older.

Will Pat Crown be sad when Ishmael is taken away?
"Oh, I'll feel terrible," she said.

Doctors may one day prescribe puppies instead of prescriptions for all

NEW YORK (AP) — Pets are an effective — but largely untapped — form of psychotherapy and doctors may one day prescribe puppies instead of pills, say psychiatric and veterinary medicine researchers.

"The worst disease today is not cancer or heart disease, but ... loneliness. And animals can help," said Dr. Leo K. Bustad, dean of the College of Veterinary Medicine at Washington State University.

"I think we're going to see the day when doctors prescribe a pet for people. It's cheaper and better than pills," he said.

Bustad joined about 250 veterinarians, psychologists, pet owners and experts in animal behavior in New York over the weekend for an unusual symposium on "Pet Loss and Human Emotion." Speakers addressed dozens of animal care topics, ranging from the therapeutic effect of pets to consoling families after the loss of a pet.

"The saddest letters I get are from people who had to give up their pets to move into nursing homes where pets often aren't allowed," Bustad said in an interview. "Some of them grieve two and three years later."

One out of every two families in the United States owns a pet. And for many elderly and handicapped Americans, pets have become both companion and lifeline — sometimes even a replacement for human contact.

"Society is becoming less human and more technological, less caring and less concerned with the quality of human life," said Jacob Antelyes, a Middle Village, N.Y., veterinarian.

"So we have been forced to seek contact with things other than human beings. Animals fill this bill."

For many people, pets are the "only contact with a living thing," Antelyes said. "Dogs, and to a lesser degree cats, give unstiltedly. They reciprocate affection and that's extremely satisfying to people."

A pet is "one of the cheapest forms of psychotherapy and it makes people feel good," said Dr. William Kay, chief of staff at the Animal Medical Center, one of the largest animal hospitals in the country.

The animal hospital and the Foundation of Thanatology, which studies reactions to death, organized the three-day symposium, which ended Sunday, to help veterinarians learn how to deal with grieving pet owners.

"Pets are so important and there is a need for better understanding of the relationship between people and their pets," Kay said.

Veterinarians and health care experts already are getting together in some parts of the country to use pets as therapy for the elderly and mentally ill.

A "pet-facilitated therapy" program in Ohio placed trained dogs and cats in a nursing home and hospital psychiatric ward for patients who had failed to respond adequately to traditional forms of treatment.

Samuel Corson, professor of psychiatry at Ohio State University, said early results from the program indicate pet therapy "might help to decrease excessive reliance" on medication.

"Pet animals, and especially dogs, offer patients and nursing home residents a form of nonthreatening, non-judgmental communication and tactile comfort," Corson said. "It helps break the vicious cycle of loneliness, helplessness and social withdrawal."

Corson suggests pets should be used more often to help the mentally and physically handicapped, the terminally ill and even prisoners.

A "People-Pet Partnership Program" in Pullman, Wash., has been launched to place pets in the homes of elderly and ailing people and teach them about the responsibilities of pet ownership. Program directors also are trying to change laws which prohibit pets in nursing homes.

Cabrini-Green: The words mean trouble for Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Cabrini-Green. The words mean trouble.

For young children forced to join gangs for protection and security in the sprawling housing project and carry guns and ammunition when they're just 10 or 11 — sometimes to school.

For old folks unable to fight back when young robbers prey on their infirmity or demand protection money — sometimes setting fire to their apartment doors when no one answers.

For young mothers who have no man in the house. They can't fight either, and they can't afford to move out.

And for the unfortunate, like Ronald Carthen.

In the chilly darkness of a January night, Ronald and his mother returned to their apartment in the brick towers of Cabrini-Green. Minutes later, a shot rang out, three men fled the apartment and Ronald was dead. He was 9.

Ronald was the youngest victim in the latest wave of violence, gang warfare and terror to grip the public housing project and the 14,000 people who live there.

While shootings and other violent crimes are not new to Cabrini-Green or other large public housing projects in this city, the scope of the latest rash of shootings, rapes and extortion last week stirred Mayor Jane M. Byrne to announce that she will move into Cabrini-Green.

It was a gesture designed to demonstrate the city's determination to wipe out gang activity and violence in the project, where joblessness is pervasive and poverty is a partner in crime.

Ten people — all of them black and most of them young — were gunned down within nine weeks. At least 35 others were wounded. Some of the killings were acts of senseless violence, but police say others were part of a gang war for control of drug traffic.

The mayor said that simply by announcing her intention to move to Cabrini-Green she forced the gangs to evacuate.

"There's been a complete dropoff of criminality associated with gangs," said Lt. Robert Jones, head of a special police patrol at the 23 high-rise project. "There is a feeling of peace and security that was not here before."

The mayor has promised to push troublemakers out of the project with evictions if they're found with weapons or drugs or don't pay the rent.

Twenty-four families were evicted on Friday, three for antisocial behavior.

But Jones says the calm probably is only temporary.

"This has happened before," he said. "... It's going to be dead. And then there will be a resurgence. There always is ... The fire is smoldering. It's not out."

Renault Robinson, a member of the Chicago Housing Authority, agrees. The gangs will resurface, he says, when the police leave.

"These kids aren't crazy. They can't stand around and take care of their trade with the spotlight around them. What the gangs have done is shifted their trade to other places nearby."

"They're all laughing. As soon as the mayor leaves and the TV cameras leave, they'll go back."

In the last year, police say, two black street gangs — the Black Gangster Disciple Nation and the Cobra Stones — have wrested control of Cabrini-Green from its inhabitants and the city with operations as sophisticated as an army. There are generals, lieutenants and foot soldiers. There are chiefs and enforcers.

The Disciples control all but five of the project's 23 buildings, some of them 19 stories tall, says Phil Watzke, a tactical officer who has worked in the area for a decade.

But turf isn't the main concern. These gangs are fighting to control narcotics, said Robinson. "If you're able to be the main supplier of drugs, you have to be able to walk around without harassment from other gang members."

Police say there are about 600 gang members at Cabrini-Green and some 2,000 collaborators, who store weapons and allow members to snipe from their apartments.

Older gang members "use juveniles to do things," says John Gill, CHA chief of security at the project. "... Juveniles snatch purses, rob, shoot in windows. How much can (the law) do to a juvenile?"

More than 9,000 of the project's residents are under 21.

Of some 3,500 households, less than 300 are two-parent families, while 2,750 are headed by a single parent — most of them women.

Most cannot escape. The median income for a family of four at Cabrini-Green is $4,580 a year — about half the official poverty level. More than 3,000 households rely solely on public aid, Social Security or pensions.

Japan moves southward

The saw about building a better mousetrap so the world will beat a path to your door is old hat. Vastly better results are realized in the modern world by floating in oil.

That's what Mexico has done and the transformation is amazing. Only four years ago, that nation buffeted by instability, devaluation and inflation was frowned on by the rest of the world as an undesirable market.

Now that Mexico is sitting on 250 billion barrels of oil the rest of the world is breaking down her door to get in on the ground floor. For years before 1977, foreign investment had stagnated at about $275 million a year. In 1980 the figure skyrocketed to $1.62 billion and foreign assets in Mexico climbed to $8.4 billion. This year foreign investment is expected to set a record by exceeding $3 billion.

There are 2,800 U.S. firms doing business in Mexico. The fact that they were there long before the current invasion isn't keeping them safe from being trampled on by the newcomers. Traditionally, American businesses accounted for 80 percent of all foreign investment. The onslaught, primarily from Japan and Western Europe, has dropped the U.S. share below 70 percent.

Nor are the Japanese making a secret of their intentions. The Land of the Rising Sun says it intends to be second only to the United States with investments in Mexico. It plans to expand Datsun plants there and help Mexico City to finance oil pipelines.

Before 1977 Mexico City had fewer than a half-dozen brokerage houses. Now there are 35 employing more than 3,000 workers. The Mexico City Stock Exchange lists 345 firms, many of them reporting annual profits of 50 percent of sales.

The country is an attractive investment for foreign businesses. Mexico's economic growth continues at 7.5 percent, while the United States has slipped below 1 percent.

The Japanese are planning to stay. Their restaurants are popping up all over the capital. Businesses in the United States will have to improve their operations. Japanese competition is pushing too close for comfort.

The situation was tough when the United States battled at long range. American auto, steel and electronic industries have felt the bite. A glance south of the border shows that U.S. workers and employers will have to work together harder than ever to retain and expand their markets at home and abroad.

Keeping scores honest

The College Board, which sponsors the nationwide Scholastic Aptitude Tests for college-bound high school juniors and seniors, has decided to allow students to obtain copies of their tests and lists of correct answers.

The action was taken reluctantly, but it was a good decision.

Our society is fast becoming a meritocracy, in which ratings of scholastic aptitude play an increasingly important part in determining opportunities, not only educational but economic.

It is essential that the fairness and accuracy of the test measurements be universally acknowledged. Opening up the process will build public confidence and acceptance.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, April 1, the 91st day of 1981. There are 274 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On April 1, 1939, the United States recognized the Franco government in Spain after the end of the Spanish Civil War.

On this date: In 1789, the House of Representatives held its first full meeting when it convened in New York City. In 1918, Britain's Royal Air Force was founded.

In 1933, the persecution of Jews began in Germany.

In 1945, American forces launched the invasion of Okinawa during World War II.

In 1964, Francois Duvalier had himself installed as President of Haiti for life.

Ten years ago: President Richard Nixon ordered Lt. William Calley released from the stockade pending the appeal of Calley's conviction in the My Lai massacre.

Who's meeting with whom shouldn't ripple many ponds

WASHINGTON—Zounds, our United Nations Ambassador, Jeane Kirkpatrick, met secretly with a gang of South Africa's top military intelligence officials. So what? Sure, there's great howling from enemies of South Africa's apartheid regime, and the White House offers a limp excuse that Mrs. Kirkpatrick really didn't know who she was meeting with.

Forget all that. What's wrong with an American diplomat meeting with a representative of any other nation—friendly, unfriendly, saintly, or a pariah like South Africa? How else can people helping shape foreign policy learn the thinking of other governments, if there aren't a range of contacts?

There is this childish notion that a diplomat of a nation regarding itself as "good" should not meet representatives of those it deems devilish. A government official who violates this narrow-minded doctrine can catch hell.

Andy Young got fired as U.N. Ambassador for meeting a PLO official. Politicians and Prime Minister Menachem Begin's right-wing government are trying to make a traitor out of Labor Party leader Shimon Peres for meeting privately with royal family members of the Moroccan and Jordanian kingdoms. Alas, Mrs. Kirkpatrick is not yet a big enough personality to become that large an issue.

Still, the Congressional Black Caucus demands that she be fired, charging that her meeting with the five high-ranking intelligence stars violates a long-standing U.S. policy of banning official contact with South African military and police officials.

The State Department and the South African Foreign Office are currently quarreling over whether the officials were identified as military when they applied for their visas. Since one, Cmdr. Willem du Plessis, was expelled from the U.N. two years ago, and another, Lt. Gen. P.W. van der Westhuizen, is the well-known chief of South African intelligence, a U.S. alibi sounds weak.

Anyway, black congressmen and the 50-member African group at the U.N. are fit to be tied over what they see as a sharp turn in U.S. policy toward South Africa. The Kirkpatrick episode enriches their fears and their rhetoric. So the White House now repeats its opposition to South Africa's racial policies, and argues that Mrs. Kirkpatrick would have had second thoughts about the meeting had she known those fellows were military.

Erosion of the 'Garden' drove out Adam and Eve

Distributed by L.A. Times Syndicate

The battle being waged in the schools has pitted the Creationists (those who believe the Bible's version of how man appeared on Earth), and the Darwinists, who claim that man walked out of the sea millions and millions of years ago and eventually developed into the human being that we know today.

But there is a third theory which combines the two, and this one should also be taught in the schools.

Professor Heinrich Applebaum has been researching it for years and here is what he has come up with:

"I believe God did create Adam, and then made Eve from one of his ribs, but I can't buy the story of why they were driven out of the Garden of Eden."

"What do you think happened?" "Well, Adam and Eve were living happily in the Garden when some geologists came along and suspected there was oil under it. They recommended that some test wells be drilled. Adam protested that the Garden of Eden was a perfect paradise, and oil companies would destroy it if they started putting up rigs on the property. Adam pointed out that God had set aside Eden as a place where man and woman could commune with nature. He said he would take them to court if they tried to drill on it."

The oil companies took their case to the secretary of the Interior, who was charged with protecting public lands. He accused Adam of being an environmentalist and trying to stop the human race from developing its natural resources. "We can't just let the oil sit there under the ground to protect a Garden which only two people are using," he said to Meet the Press. "Our job is to see that we use our natural resources for the benefit of all mankind. Besides, I have no intention of giving permission to the oil companies to drill all over the Garden. I'm setting 20 percent of the land aside for drilling, and the rest will be kept in its present natural state."

Adam complained to God, who said, "The oil lobby is much more powerful than I am. There isn't anything I can do to stop them."

The Interior Department auctioned off the leases, and it turned out there was not only oil but gas on the land. The next people to apply for permission to dig were the coal companies. The secretary of Interior decided to let them go ahead, despite Adam and Eve's protests, because the coal had a low sulphur content. But he said he would permit them to mine on only 30 percent of the Garden, which still gave Adam and Eve plenty of room to enjoy the view.

Consolidated Edison decided to build a plant in the Garden, because it was cheaper than hauling the coal across the continent. Then the copper and nickel companies erected smelters to take advantage of the cheap energy.

Adam developed sinus trouble and Eve's eyes were tearing all the time. The final straw came when a snake gave Eve an apple covered with insecticide, and she got sick to her stomach.

"That does it," Adam said, packing his few belongings. "We're getting out of this hell hole, and moving to New Jersey."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Lefever bad choice for human rights post

WASHINGTON—If President Reagan sticks by his nomination of Ernest Lefever as Assistant Secretary of State for Human Rights, the confirmation hearing seems certain to ignite the first really explosive opposition on Capitol Hill.

In two past columns, I've dusted off Lefever's expressed views on human rights and laid them on the table. His own words are the best evidence that he is unfit for this position.

But apparently the president remains unpersuaded. So here is another serving of Lefever's philosophy, taken from the November 1970 issue of Worldview magazine.

Lefever wrote a virulent attack on the late Martin Luther King Jr., suggesting he was playing into the hands of the communists and accusing him implicitly of treason. Though Lefever conceded that the slain civil rights leader "cannot be held responsible for the orgy of black terror that followed his death," he wrote that "it would be fair to assume" that King contributed to the violence he deplored.

Lefever based his denunciation of King largely on a speech the black martyr made at New York's Riverside Church on April 4, 1967 — one year to the day before he was assassinated.

The slaughter in Vietnam had reached a new high that week, and King delivered an impassioned plea to end the carnage. He called for stopping all bombing, declaring a unilateral truce, setting a date for U.S. troop withdrawal and recognizing that the Viet Cong deserved a role in the government of South Vietnam.

Most of these proposals were adopted six years later by Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger, who finally withdrew U.S. forces from Vietnam. But King used some scathing language to make his point, calling the United States the "greatest purveyor of violence in the world."

Emotions had cooled down when Lefever wrote his article three-and-a-half years later. Still, he commented: "This remarkable speech — its blunt, lopsided, unfair and unfair attack upon the United States; its more subtle praise for the communist and revolutionary force of 'liberation' and its frequent use of communist cliches and slogans (in contrast to King's customary Biblical allusions) could have been drafted in Moscow, Peking, Hanoi or Havana ..."

King's speech, Lefever wrote, "was a disservice to the American people and a service to forces of revolutionary violence." At another point, Lefever coyly paraphrased the Constitution's definition of treason, saying: "Whatever his motives, King's Riverside speech gave aid and comfort to the enemies of peaceful change in Southeast Asia as well as to their allies in Moscow and Peking."

In typical Lefever style, he never came right out and accused Martin Luther King of being either a communist or a traitor; but the innuendo bubbled close to the surface.

In past conversations, Lefever insisted to my reporters that he is a staunch advocate of human rights. He has boasted that he was a civil rights marcher before Dr. King. Lefever also complained that it is unreasonable to hold someone to statements he made in the past.

I was unable to get his explanation of the statements I have quoted above. His secretary told my associate, Lucette Lagnado, that he would return her repeated calls "after his confirmation."

Lefever coupled his assault on King with a correspondingly enthusiastic expression of support for the white minority government of South Africa. At the University of Stellenbosch in the Cape province, Lefever delivered a paper in which he said South Africa should be "a close ally of the United States and ... a de facto member of NATO."

Certainly Ernest Lefever isn't the right man to speak for the United States on the subject of human rights.

Footnote: For the president's own good, he should withdraw Lefever's nomination. Private polls show that he has failed to win the support of the black community. Of the 24 percent of Americans who don't like Reagan, the unpublished polls show half are black. He will only alienate them worse by putting a Martin Luther King critic in charge of human rights.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE — The care and feeding of Fidel Castro is costing the Soviets up to $10 million per day. The sum is so staggering that it has caused some Reagan-style budget cutting inside the Kremlin. Castro is dependent upon the Soviets for everything from food to fuel. This "outpouring of goods" into Cuba, declares a secret intelligence report, "is keenly felt in the shortage-plagued USSR, where lines for foodstuffs and other goods are common."

In the murky world of international espionage, adversaries keep one another under constant surveillance. But America's overzealous James Bondsmen also keep an ear to the keyhole of friendly embassies. Bugging operations are directed against such nations as Canada, France, Great Britain, Jordan, Lebanon, Mexico and Saudi Arabia. Intelligence reports based on the monitored conversations are usually stamped "Epsilon," but may also carry other codes if certain specific listening techniques are used. (P.S. I haven't let any dead cats out of the bag; our allies are fully aware of the eavesdropping.)

Last Dec. 8, I revealed that South Africa, Israel and Taiwan were engaged in a joint, secret project to produce nuclear weapons. I reported that Israel "already has a stockpile of 200 or more nuclear bombs," that the three nations are building cruise missiles capable of delivering nuclear warheads great distances and that U.S. intelligence agencies withheld data from the White House team investigating a mysterious flash off the South African coast in September 1979. These facts have now been confirmed by the Economist of London, a respected international journal noted for its excellent intelligence sources.

MARK RUSSELL SAYS

In the interests of sensitivity, the cutback in the federal school lunch budget will be referred to as the pre-teen diet program.

There is certainly no truth to the rumor that when the coal miners were demonstrating in front of the White House against the proposed cuts in black lung benefits, David Stockman came outside and gave them each a cough drop.

The Republicans are spending big bucks on TV commercials boosting the Reagan economy program. The Democrats, on a slimmer budget, will counter with their most effective tool — Sen. Robert Byrd playing "Foggy Mountain Breakdown" on the fiddle.

The GOP should use Robert Young in one of its commercials. He would say something like, "Why so jumpy, Fred?" Fred answers, "Nerves, I guess. The doctor says it's bracket-creep."

Robert Young advises — "You need the Kemp-Roth plan. It's a 30 percent real tax cut. In three years, if you're still jumpy, quit drinking that coffee and switch to booze."

Mrs. Dorothy Brady, center, is escorted into the George Washington University Hospital in Washington Tuesday. She arrived to see her son, James Brady, White House press secretary who was injured in an attack of President Reagan Monday.

Brady still improving, now able to move his left foot

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House press secretary James S. Brady, once given little chance of surviving a bullet wound in his brain, is showing new signs of improvement and may recover without severe permanent mental or physical impairment, doctors say.

Sometime before dawn, Brady for the first time moved his left foot in response to a doctor's command, White House chief of staff James A. Baker said today.

On Tuesday, Brady had been able to move his right arm and leg and had regained his sight, but a hospital spokesman said doctors were concerned about Brady's left side.

"If he's going to have a level impairment," Dr. Dennis O'Leary told reporters, "it would probably affect the left side."

Baker, on the CBS-TV "Morning" show today, said Brady overnight showed "some movement on his left side."

On Tuesday, Baker told reporters Brady's progress had been "incredible." Today, he said the latest development left "everybody...very encouraged."

Brady was shot during Monday's assassination attempt on President Reagan.

He recalled that when Brady, 40, was brought to George Washington University Hospital doctors said "people just normally don't recover from this kind of wound... They said, 'We hold out very little hope.'"

By Tuesday afternoon, however, a White House statement quoted doctors as reporting Brady was in "critical but stable" condition.

The statement said Brady was being watched closely for possible complications but that he was able to "move the right side of his body in response to voice command, implying significant retention of brain function."

"Physicians are encouraged by Mr. Brady's progress thus far, but he remains in guarded condition," the White House said.

The bullet caused "some minimal amount of damage" to the left side of the brain, which controls Brady's mental processes, speech and motor movement on his right side, said O'Leary, chief of clinical affairs at the hospital.

"Fairly extensive damage" occurred on the right side of Brady's brain, but that is the non-dominant side, O'Leary said.

He said Brady was "clearly receptive to command," but is not able to speak.

Reagan, recovering from a gunshot wound in the chest, was told Tuesday that Brady and two lawmen also had been injured in Monday's assassination attempt. Baker said tears welled in Reagan's eyes when he was told Brady had received the most serious injuries.

Brady's 'mental capacity there'

By WARREN LEARY and KEVIN MCKEAN
AP Science Writers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The severe brain injury suffered by White House press secretary James S. Brady could leave him with some paralysis and speech problems, but "mental capacity will be there," doctors say.

Brady, critically wounded in an assassination attempt on President Reagan, was reported to be making "extraordinary" progress Tuesday.

Although prospects for his recovery still are uncertain, doctors said they were encouraged that Brady had regained consciousness a day after he was shot and underwent five hours of surgery.

Dr. Dennis O'Leary, spokesman for George Washington University Hospital, said Brady's eyes were open and reacting to light. And he responded to commands to move his right arm and leg.

A .22-caliber bullet entered Brady's head beside the left eye, passed through the brain and rested in the right rear portion of the skull. Doctors said the bullet was removed intact.

The bullet that tore through Brady's head caused "fairly extensive damage" to the right side of the brain, which controls function on the left side of the body, O'Leary said.

But the left half of his brain, the dominant side which controls extremities on the right and speech, suffered only minor damage to the frontal lobe, the physician said.

White House chief of staff James A. Baker III said Tuesday that doctors believe Brady will live and "that mental capacity will be there."

Brady's ability to speak cannot be tested until a breathing tube going through his mouth is removed.

Dr. Desmond O'Doherty, chairman of neurology at Georgetown University Medical School, said Brady's reported reactions are "very good signs for recovery" barring further problems.

"There can still be many complications, but the fact that he is moving and responding is encouraging," said O'Doherty, who is not involved in the case.

"The big questions are, first, will he survive? And second, what will the residuates be? There probably would be some weakness if not a degree of paralysis," O'Doherty said in an interview.

Dr. Julian T. Hoff, a neurosurgeon at the University of Michigan who saw television videotapes of the shooting, said the pictures actually were encouraging, indicating a good chance of survival.

"Just seeing him move on the videotape really gave me heart," Hoff said in a telephone interview.

The tapes showed Brady trying to lift his head from a sidewalk grate moments after the shooting.

"If it had been an injury that smashed through his brain stem, he would have been comatose," Hoff said.

Hoff and others said injury to the brain stem — apparently avoided in Brady's case — usually mean poor recovery and even death.

This crucial area connects the brain to the spinal cord and the rest of the body. The brain stem controls coordination, breathing, body temperature, heart rate, sleep, blood pressure and other vital functions.

Dr. George A. Ojemann, professor of neurosurgery at the University of Washington in Seattle, said the first 48 hours or so tend to be the worse.

"Gunshot wounds to the brain generally don't do that well," he said.

"The fact that he is doing better today than yesterday is a very encouraging sign," Ojemann said. "Normally, it is considered hopeful if a patient just stays the same without losing ground during that period."

Infections and accumulating fluid on the brain, which can cause damaging swelling, are two critical problems doctors must guard against, he said. Brady reportedly was receiving drugs to reduce tissue swelling.

Experts said patients with brain injury make their greatest improvement in the first month or so but may continue to improve for from six months to more than a year.

Sheet-metal workers request protection

Study links lung problems, asbestos exposure

BRAINTREE, Mass. (AP) — Backed by statistics indicating that more than 60 percent of Boston area sheet-metal workers examined for a study had lung abnormalities, a sheet-metal workers' union is asking Congress for legislative protection from asbestos exposure.

Members of Local 17 of the Sheet Metal Workers Union, from eastern Massachusetts, planned to meet in Washington today with two members of Massachusetts' congressional delegation to lobby for safeguards from asbestos. The union claims that buildings containing asbestos, which has been linked to lung disease and cancer, are widespread in the Boston area.

"We need some sort of law protecting a guy going into a building," Local 17 President Robert Spinney said by telephone from Washington. "We've just learned about a Canadian law requiring that notice of toxic materials be posted," he added. He said that asbestos was sprayed in many buildings before 1973 for fireproofing, but contended that building owners don't notify construction workers of the danger.

The meetings follow disclosure Monday of the preliminary results of a survey showing that lung abnormalities were found in more than 60 percent of Boston and South Shore sheet-metal workers examined for asbestos-related diseases at Norfolk County Hospital.

Sheet-metal workers are employed primarily in the heating and ventilating business. Their work frequently requires handling insulation materials.

Nancy Fox, the coordinator of the testing program, said Monday that the survey "means that 62 percent of the men tested have shown reaction to asbestos in their lungs. Some people can live through their lives with this kind of evidence of scarring of the lung, but it means they are much more susceptible to respiratory ailments and to lung cancer."

In January, 241 people were tested at the hospital — 147 male sheet-metal workers, 57 wives and 37 of their children.

Based on X-rays of 139 workers, 62.6 percent showed abnormalities "consistent with asbestos disease of the lung."

Dr. Edward Baker of the Harvard School of Public Health said that the prevalence of abnormal results increased with the length of employment.

Ms. Fox said two of the 57 wives tested showed signs of lung scarring related to asbestos exposure, but it had not been determined whether the damage was related to their husbands' work.

None of the children had any lung problems.

Mesquite provides powerful fuel

Soon, Texans may grow brush for that purpose

KINGSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Mesquite trees — those thorny, hardy plants that cover most of the open range in South and West Texas — might become a source of cheap energy instead of being considered a ranchers' nuisance, predicts a research scientist.

"I feel that mesquite can be produced 20 to 30 percent cheaper than alternative fuel sources, such as oil, coal and natural gas, with a projected harvest cost of $23 per dry ton," said Peter Felker of the Cesar Kleberg Wildlife Research Institute at Texas

A&I University.

Felker began researching mesquite three years ago at the University of California at Riverside.

Mesquite, often disdainfully referred to as "brush," grows so abundantly on the South Texas range that some ranch hands spend as much time trying to get rid of it as they do handling cattle.

The plant's woody mass can be burned for electricity or home heating fuel, Felker said. It also can be put through a gasification process to produce materials used in chemical plants.

Mesquite bean pods could be converted into alcohol or used as a supplemental livestock feed, he added.

"Pods range from 17 percent protein and 21 percent sugar to varieties of 10 percent protein and 44 percent sugar on dry weight loss," he explained. "The selection that is 44 percent sugar is easily fermentable to alcohol with the resulting residue sold as dry distillers grain."

Felker plans to plant 25 acres of mesquite trees, using 13 varieties. Some mesquite species grow up to 12 feet a year and supply their own nitrogen, making fertilization unnecessary. The plants tolerate high soil salinity better than sorghum and other plants mentioned as possible biomass energy sources.

"With mesquite we have a plant that can fit the system rather than vice versa," he said.

Felker has grown his plants from seed but says he wants to use cuttings.

"It's difficult but it can be done. Plants from seeds don't grow true to type due to cross-pollination," he said.

Brian Davis, 17, a senior at Midland High School, has been named Junior Jaycee of the Month by the Midland Jaycees. Davis, the son of George E. and Rodell Davis of 2503 Fannin, is band captain and a member of National Honor Society at MHS. He has received a $6,000 general academic scholarship to Southwestern University where he plans to study pre-law.

Carter says Secret Service responded well

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — Former President Jimmy Carter says it's the duty of the president to be in the public eye, and the assassination attempt against President Reagan should not make him withdraw.

"We have always faced prospects of deranged people making attempts on the lives of public figures," Carter said Tuesday outside his southwest Georgia home.

"It's part of your duty, and you always have Secret Service protection."

Carter said he had expressed regret and alarm over Monday's assassination attempt to Mrs. Reagan and to Secretary of State Alexander Haig. He said he was praying for the recovery of Reagan and the others injured in the attack.

The former president said he believes handguns of the type used in the assassination attempt — a .22-caliber "Saturday Night Special" — should be registered.

But he said he doubts that the shooting will lead to passage of gun control legislation because the assassinations of President John Kennedy, Sen. Robert Kennedy and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. were not enough to bring about such laws.

King's widow, Coretta Scott King, issued a statement Tuesday calling for gun control.

"This tragic episode clearly demonstrates that no one is safe in a nation where some 50 million handguns are allowed to circulate with little or no restrictions," she said. "The horrible tragedy in Washington underscores the urgent need for control of handguns."

Carter, assessing the response of the Secret Service and White House to the shooting, said, "The situation was handled well and the exchange of command was handled very well."

Carter said that in his judgment, it was appropriate for Haig to assert he was "in control" at the White House before Vice President George Bush returned to Washington.

Former president to visit historic LBJ ranch

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Former President Jimmy Carter headed for the historic LBJ Ranch today where he planned to spend the night before a Thursday tour of the Lyndon B. Johnson Library at the University of Texas.

Carter planned to fly directly to the ranch in Stonewall, 65 miles west of here. The sprawling ranch's landing strip was extended to accommodate jet aircraft while Johnson was president so he could fly directly to his home.

Lady Bird Johnson still maintains her home at the ranch, but also has an Austin apartment where she spends much of her time. The ranch features tours conducted by the National Park Service.

Man flees kidnap try

ROME (AP) — The son of a prominent businessman escaped a kidnap attempt by driving through a blockade and a hail of bullets on a residential street, police reported.

Five gunmen sprayed pistol fire Tuesday night into a car driven by Luca Anzalone, whose father is a leading Rome building contractor and the former president of the Roma soccer team.

Anzalone, 21, was taking his girlfriend home from a restaurant when the shooting broke out.

Police said the young man smashed his Toyota into a car the kidnapers had parked sideways across the street and then drove away to safety.

U.N.-office says Israeli troops killed peacekeeping soldier

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Explosives set off by Israeli troops in a raid on a village in southern Lebanon early today killed a Lebanese soldier of the U.N. peacekeeping force and wounded another one, the U.N. Information Office in Beirut reported.

U.N. spokesman Samir Sanbar said a Lebanese army sergeant was killed and another Lebanese soldier was wounded, and the raiders also exchanged small-arms fire with a patrol of Nigerian and Lebanese troops in Tulin, a village held by the Nigerian contingent of the 6,000-man U.N. Interim Force in Lebanon.

Western diplomats in Beirut said they believed it was the first shooting incident between U.N. and Israeli troops since the international force was deployed in southern Lebanon to act as a buffer between Palestinian guerrillas and Israel.

Four houses being used by Palestinian guerrillas were blown up during the raid, an Israeli military spokesman in Tel Aviv said.

He said one Israeli soldier was wounded "in the course of the action" and denied the U.N. report of shooting between the raiders and U.N. troops.

"There was no direct contact and no direct exchange of fire between our forces and UNIFIL troops," the Israeli spokesman said.

"The houses had been used by Palestinian Liberation Organization terrorists as organization sites" for attacks against Israel, an Israeli military communique said.

The two Lebanese soldiers were members of a 700-man Lebanese battalion serving with the U.N. force, Sanbar said.

"A mixed patrol of Nigerian and Lebanese troops came under small arms fire and returned fire during the attack," Sanbar said. But he stressed that the Lebanese casualties were caused by the explosions and not by the shootout.

The Israeli military spokesman said the residents of the houses in Tulin were removed from the buildings before the explosives were detonated.

No guerrillas were present in the village, the spokesman said, but he added that the raiders found a quantity of weapons and ammunition in the houses.

The incident sharpened tensions in southern Lebanon between UNIFIL and the Israeli army. Israeli military officials warned Friday that the two forces were on a collision course.

Israel objects to UNIFIL attempts to establish Lebanese government authority over the area. The Jewish state supports Lebanese Christian militiamen under the command of former Lebanese army Maj. and Haddad who occupy an enclave six miles deep along the border.

Haddad's "Free Lebanon" enclave serves as a buffer between Israel's 59-mile border and the Palestinian guerrilla bases to the north. Both Israel and Haddad charge UNIFIL has been unable to stop guerrilla infiltration.

Haddad's forces exchanged artillery and rocket fire during the night with guerrillas, the Israeli spokesman said.

DEAR ABBY

Sister has answers, but wants questions stopped

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
 DEAR ABBY: Peace and all good things! I am a nun writing in desperation, hoping that you have a charitable solution to a most annoying problem.
 I live in a small religious community with other sisters whom I dearly love. I seems that whenever I am trying to eat a quick lunch, a certain sister comes over with her crossword puzzle and asks, "What was the name of Seth's son?" Or, "What was Noah's boat called?"
 Dear Abby, have you any ideas? Deliver me from crossword puzzles, now and forever. Amen! — IMPATIENT SISTER
 DEAR SISTER: Practice the virtue of patience, pray for forbearance and utter ye not a cross word about the puzzle.

 DEAR ABBY: My son went steady with a wonderful girl for four months. (I'll call her Janie.) They broke up right after Christmas. While they were going together, I grew to love her like a daughter. Janie lived 45 miles away and spent many weekends at our home. She was so perfect for our son, I prayed that one day she would be my very own daughter-in-law.
 Well, for some reason unknown to me, they stopped dating. My son started dating another girl, and I understand that Janie is now going with another fellow. I miss her terribly and, of course, she doesn't call me anymore. Abby, believe me when I tell you that I loved that girl so much that this is simply killing me! I suppose I should be grateful that my son isn't grieving the way I am, but it's as though I actually lost a daughter. I am suffering a very deep depression. I cry about it until I'm weak. I can't stand it, Abby. I'm making myself sick over this. Please help me. — LOST A DAUGHTER

 DEAR LOST: I can understand your disappointment, but you apparently assumed that your son's romance with Janie was far more serious than it was. Be grateful that your son isn't grieving. If your depression persists, please seek professional help. Your suffering is gravely disproportionate to your loss.
 DEAR ABBY: I'm over 21 and so is he. We've been seeing each other for the last four weeks and have become very, very close. I wear braces on my teeth and have good dental hygiene. The problem is that although we've been intimate several times, he hasn't once kissed me on the mouth! This takes away from an otherwise great romantic relationship. This also makes me very angry with him. I asked him why he won't kiss me and he wouldn't answer. What do you think? — MISSING KISSING

 DEAR MISSING: Your braces are probably responsible for the kissless relationship. (Braces have been known to cut the lips if too much pressure is brought to bear.) Don't pressure him. After your braces come off, you'll have the answer.
 (Do you wish you had more friends? Get Abby's booklet, "How to Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old." Send $1 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (35 cents) envelope to: Abby, Popularity, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.)

Games people tote

By ELLEN APPEL
Copley News Service
A tote bag can also be two gameboards in disguise. The tote bag that is illustrated here, as a case in point, unzips to reveal a backgammon board and checkerboard.

The tote is one of the projects in "The Big Bag Book," (Charles Scribner's Sons), by Houck and Miller. The book includes scores of shopping bags, beach bags, purses, garment bags, and backpacks to make.

The game-board tote is an example of the book's creative projects. When zipped, it looks like an unassuming, yet attractive, tote that can handle all the usual supplies for a day at the park.

At the park, however, like Clark Kent turning into Superman, (and just as quickly I might add), the tote takes on a totally new identity. The sides unzip, flatten out, and become two regulation-size playing boards. Just set up the pieces, and you're ready to play.

Here are directions for the game-board tote:

MATERIALS: One-half yard each of canvas, Pellon, blue lightweight cotton, and white lightweight cotton, scraps of red cotton fabric, 1-inch-wide bias binding, three yards of webbing for handles, two 16 inch separating zippers, tailor's chalk, pencil, ruler, cardboard, scissors, sewing supplies.

CUTTING THE BASIC PIECES: 1. Cut one 17 x 35 inch rectangle from canvas. 2. Cut two 17 x 17.5 inch rectangles from Pellon. 3. Cut one 17 x 17.5 inch rectangle from blue fabric and white fabric.

CUTTING THE DETAILS: 1. Cut one 2 x 2 inch square from cardboard. 2. Cut a long, skinny triangle from cardboard, approximately 7 x 1.25 inch. 3. Using tailor's chalk and cardboard patterns, trace 32 squares on right side of red fabric, trace 12 triangles on blue fabric, trace 12 triangles on red fabric. Trace shapes at least one-half inch apart. 4. Cut shapes from fabric, leaving one-fourth inch margins around the chalk lines.

STITCHING: 1. Pin red squares to blue fabric to form a 16 x 16 inch checkerboard. Leave a 1 inch margin at left and one-half margin on remaining three sides. 2. Pin triangles to white fabric to form a 16 x 16 inch backgammon board. Alternate colors, starting with red at upper left. Leave 1 inch margin at right and one-half inch margins on remaining three sides. 3. Stitch each piece in place with a zigzag stitch. Trim each piece close to stitching with fine, sharp scissors before stitching the next piece. Leave all edges of pieces at one-half inch margins unstitched.

ASSEMBLY: 1. Press boards. 2. Pin each board to Pellon. Machine-quilt around each shape. 3. Sew wraparound handles to outside of canvas. 4. Seam boards together at 1 inch margins, taking up one-half inch seam. Press seam open. 5. With wrong sides together, stitch boards to canvas at seam. Tote will fold at this seam. 6. Bind all outer edges. 7. Stitch zippers along the binding at each side of tote.

Wall coverings add dual functions

By GARY MOORE
Copley News Service
One of the most exciting and challenging ways to beat inflation is to "double up."

Few modern homes and apartments provide enough space to set up a separate room for each activity that a family enjoys. But with a little ingenuity and some careful planning you can make almost any room of your home serve a dual function.

Easily the most attractive and least expensive decorating tool you can use to start this transformation is wall coverings. Fabric-backed vinyl wall coverings are the best choice for the job since they are washable (making them ideal for heavily trafficked areas and children's rooms) and long-lasting (saving the expense of a yearly paint job).

Collections that offer coordinated wall coverings allow you to exercise your own creativity, adding architectural interest in a starkly modern room, as well as defining and separating areas within rooms that serve more than one function.

Perhaps the most difficult room to make bright and cheery is the attic. Yet for all its flaws, your attic presents some of the most exciting possibilities for working double time.

The first priority is to choose a durable, lively wall covering. A vinyl covering can minimize the structural flaws and cracks so often found in attics. Vertical stripes can give an illusion of greater height to a low ceiling. Matching lightweight fabrics for curtains, tablecloth and bedspread add a feeling of warmth. The room can be used more often if it doubles as a sunny sewing area.

Since attics are usually removed from the everyday activities that take place in the rest of the house, they can also double as a study area or a quiet room in which to practice a musical instrument or work on crafts.

Basements present many of the same challenges as attics, with a few special problems such as cinder block walls, panelboard walls or old plaster walls which have cracked from age and moisture accumulation.

These walls can be covered with NuWall first, a special product that makes most plastering or spackling unnecessary. When NuWall is used to cover cinder block walls, it fills in 90 percent of the grooves between the blocks and acts as an insulator as well.

Next, select a wall covering to apply over the NuWall.

Once your wall coverings are in place, use your imagination to turn your basement into an all-purpose family room. Add drama and style by using fabrics from a designer collection which gives you endless possibilities for mixing, matching and coordinating.

The same idea can convert your old, unused garage into a creative craft room or workshop. Vinyl tiles will mask a cement floor and decorative textured wall coverings add brightness and a feeling of openness. Vinyl wall covering also provides the ideal surface on tables used for drawing, sculpting and painting, since it's smooth and easily washable.

Remember, you don't have to work double time when your rooms do it for you. With imagination, a modest decorating budget and a few rolls of wall covering, you can personalize your home with affordable rooms that are beautiful, practical and versatile.

Feminist groups puzzle over wrong number

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Leaders of two feminist organizations are trying to find out how their telephones were disconnected during the weekend and their calls referred to a number where women heard an emotional appeal against abortion.

Both organizations occasionally refer women who call them to abortion counselors. But their phones were disconnected over the weekend, apparently after someone called the phone company and asked that they be shut off.

Callers were advised to dial two other numbers, where they heard a recording that said in part:

"Early abortion inflicts great pain and suffering on your helpless baby. Don't put your baby on death row. Call us."

Bell Telephone spokesman Bob Bridgeo said he learned of CHOICE's problem Saturday, and he had their phone service reinstated that night. On Sunday, he found out that Women's Switchboard was having its calls referred to the same message, Bridgeo said.

He said the procedure for getting a phone "temporarily disconnected" involved calling Bell.

"If you can give enough information to convince the business office that everything is straightforward, they'll switch the number," he said. "We're not a police agency. We can get burned occasionally."

One of the phone numbers to which callers were referred is listed in the telephone directory as belonging to the Abortion, Birth Control and Pregnancy Testing Clinic, an anti-abortion organization.

"Oh dear," said Mary Alice Duffy, an attorney for the group, when asked about the telephone foul-up. "Somebody's got a funny sense of humor, and I assure you it wouldn't be our people. You know we wouldn't do anything like that."

CHOICE filed a complaint two years ago with the Public Utility Commission, contending that the telephone listing for the clinic was misleading, and that it deceived pregnant women into believing that the group might help them get an abortion.

VILLAGE SUBURBAN-MIDLAND PARK MALL

Small but cozy quarters are unique haven for dogs

By SUE MANNING
Associated Press Writer

NEWPORT, Wash. (AP) — Do Lilliputians live here?

That thought occurs as you pass the cluster of tiny houses alongside the highway a few miles south of Newport in northeastern Washington near the Idaho border.

The village is a little run down — though you eventually find out it's an extravagant improvement over the lifestyle most of its dwellers have been accustomed to.

Your fantasy is dispelled when the entire neighborhood begins to bark.

Bertha Renfro, director of the Pend Oreille Humane Society, is used to answering questions from puzzled travelers.

"The dogs just love their houses. None of the roofs leak; short-haired animals live in the best-insulated houses and the duplex is reserved for inseparable companions like the two basset hounds we got who had been together since they were born."

Add to this room service — "We bring their dinners right to their front doors" — and you know why some people refer to this canine community as "Hound Dog Haven" or "Pooches' Paradise."

Others, bothered by the dogs' barking, are less generous with their praise and dub the place "Mutt's Motel." But whatever the degree of sentiment, Mrs. Renfro thinks there is no other humane society in the country like it.

It's not only the unique conglomerate of dog houses that make it different — it's Mrs. Renfro's strong affinity for all creatures, homeless, hungry and lonely.

"I've always been interested in animals. When I was little, I made friends with squirrels and saved a wild canary with a broken wing and rescued a sparrow that fell in a well. I have such a good feeling remembering this."

When donations trickle in to the privately-run society too slowly to keep its 100 dogs fed properly, the 67-year-old Mrs. Renfro digs into her own Social Security money. "Right now they require 125 pounds of dry food a day."

She makes a stew each day that goes over the dry food to make it "more edible." The dogs have been feasting on bear meat in recent weeks — a donation from Mrs. Renfro's son in Montana.

Mrs. Renfro has been sparing the lives of distressed animals for eight years.

"I have an old softy for a vet and he won't put an animal down unless it's suffering and beyond recovery," she said. "You just don't give up until you've tried everything possible."

"People soon learn you're a pushover for strays. Folks seem to come from everywhere to dump their dogs — but they've come from Canada, Michigan, Texas and Montana to adopt them, too."

Ideally, those who drop off animals will also leave a donation, but most of the time the abandoned animals are left at night and there is no money — so funding is always a problem, as are volunteers. The society operates on donations and sometimes there is barely enough to pay the $50 payment due each month on the lease of the land.

Some dogs, like dobermans, shepherds and huskies, are quickly adopted. Cockapoos, poodles and spayed females are also popular.

Mrs. Renfro provides shelter for 100 dogs with only 30 doghouses. They are rotated from the houses to pens and the overflow winds up in her mobile home.

Mrs. Renfro's humane society got started in 1974 when she somehow acquired 12 strays — she just couldn't say no. "I put an ad in the paper and we formed a society. This land and abandoned gas station were just sitting here, doing nothing, so we found out who it belonged to from the assessor's office and signed a lease."

Her first problem was one of overcrowding. People started donating doghouses to ease the problem.

"I plan to make it look like an old town, a village with all the different storefronts. I was even going to have a little church with a steeple on top of a dog house. I just haven't gotten to that yet."

Save cigar bands

NEW YORK (AP) — Empty the nails, nuts and bolts from your cigar boxes and dust off those old makeshift storage bins. And, while you're at it, save your cigar bands.

Both cigar by-products are becoming collectibles — and they may be worth something some day.

They may even be worth something today although the value is difficult to establish, says the Cigar Association of America.

Part of the reason for this difficulty is that cigar-item collectors are what auctioneers call "esoteric." In the World Almanac's "Book of Buffs," cigar-band collector Myron Freedman is quoted as calling cigar-band enthusiasts, "secret collectors. They don't let other people know about what they collect."

Several collections are known to exceed 100,000 cigar bands. Cigar boxes, particularly those of the late 19th and early 20th centuries, are also found in collections around the country.

All about sandpaper

By AL CARRELL

Many furniture refinishing buffs, feel that it takes a lot of sandpaper and elbow grease to end up with a good job. Many other projects also require these same ingredients. Actually sandpaper is a misnomer. The proper term is "coated abrasives." The scratchy stuff isn't really sand, and in many cases the paper isn't really paper.

Choosing the proper abrasive for a particular job is often the difference between an OK job and a super result. In addition to the sandpaper type abrasives, there are powdered types and steel wool. For now, we'll be talking just about the coated abrasives — how to pick and use the right one.

There are actually four primary factors to consider in picking a coated abrasive. (From now on, I'm going to refer to it as sandpaper now that you know that I know that that's not the proper name.) These four are (1) the abrasive mineral, (2) the grade or grit, (3) the backing, and (4) the coating.

The abrasive mineral can be flint, garnet, aluminum oxide, silicon carbide, emery or crocus. There are others, but these are the ones you can most readily find. Flint is the cheapest and is used for removing paint or on sappy wood that would clog any type sandpaper. When it gets clogged, it's just tossed away. Garnet costs a bit more, but it will last a lot longer and can be used for hand sanding of wood or metal. Aluminum oxide is a manmade abrasive that can be used on wood, metal, plastic or fiber glass. It can be employed in either hand or power sanding. It's fairly fast and long lasting. Silicon carbide is used for about the same things as aluminum oxide, but is harder. It's the choice for lots of floor sanders. It can also be used on harder metals and on glass. Emery is used for light metal polishing, and crocus is for metal finishing.

The grade is the fineness or coarseness of the material. There are three popular ways to grade sandpaper. The "simplified marking system" is one that I like because there's never any doubt. Even I can understand this. It uses terms like "coarse", "fine" and "medium." It runs from extra coarse up to super fine. The grit method is the next most popular, and actually is a designation of the number of grains which if set end to end would cover 1 inch. The smaller the grit number, the coarser the sandpaper. Grit numbers start as low as 12 and go all the way up to 600.

The third system is called "O" symbols. The "0" is a zero. A single "0" is a medium, and the more zeros up to 10 (usually designated as 10-0) is the finest. Coarser starts at 1/2, and gets more coarse on up to 4 1/2. To compare the three, a 600 grit would be super fine, 10-0 would be the finest in that system, and would be 400 grit or extra fine. 3-0, which is also shown as 000, would be medium or 120 grit. Extra coarse would be 20 grit or 3 1/2 in the "O" symbols.

The backing is either paper or cloth. Paper comes in four common weights. "A" is the lightest, "C" and "D" are medium, while "E" is heavy duty. I don't know what happened to "B."

The coating is either "open-coat" or "closed-coat." Open means that there is space between the grains, and closed means that the abrasive covers all of the surface. Use open coated papers for sanding things that would clog up the abrasive, and closed for others.

In use, you start with coarse and work up to fine. That doesn't mean that you start at 12 and use each grit up through 600. Start with a grade that will smooth out the flaws without scratching the wood. In furniture work, that may be a fairly fine grade. As soon as the grade you're using cuts the flaws down, you're ready for a finer grade. You don't have to use all grades up the chain, but gradually move up. When you get to the point that the fine grit no longer removes any of the wood, that's as far as you need go. Often steel wool is used for the final finishing.

A sanding block will give you more uniform pressure. Merely wrap the sandpaper around the block and staple it on the back side. There are also tricky blocks you can buy that will clamp the paper in place. For round surfaces, you may wish to cut the paper into strips and pull like you would a shoeshine cloth.

When sanding edges, you get a uniform surface by clamping straight wood scraps along either side of the edge. Make your own small sanding sticks for getting into tight spots by gluing stripes of sandpaper to slats.

There's lots more to abrasives, but maybe these basics will get you over the "rough" spots.

Eclectic styles 'in' for table settings

Copley News Service

It was the table that turned eating into dining.

That was about 2,000 years ago, according to the American Craft Museum in New York City which recently put on an exhibit called "For The Tabletop."

It seems that the art of arranging what goes on the table has told historians about the customs of a particular period more accurately than anything else.

What will the table-tops of the '80s show about us?

Although we won't know what it all means until much later, there are some things that are definitely different from our parents and grandparents.

What we are leaving behind is the habit of setting a table from an approved assortment of traditional patterns in dinnerware, glassware and flatware. It was acceptable, but uninteresting.

What is influencing the way we are beginning to dress our tables is the way we dress ourselves.

Like our sportswear separates, our tableware is mix-and-match and less ornamental. It is casual in the sense of not being tied to strict rules.

Our individual choice, the basic ingredient of any style, is what will be most important. Manufacturers are helping us along with the so-called eclectic style by giving us products in dinnerware and glassware that can be put together in many different ways to suit individual tastes and color schemes.

Different decorative patterns in similar colors appear on a group of plates designed to be used at the same time, for instance. Or the same style dinnerware in contrasting solid colors.

Model predicts new ice age

NEW YORK (AP) — The great glaciers that once pushed as far south as Pennsylvania and Missouri may return for another 114,000 years, according to a new model of the Earth's climate based on astronomy.

The Belgian and American scientists who developed the model do not view it as cause for alarm. The next cold spell may not arrive for thousands of years.

But the model, published in the current issue of the British journal Nature, gives new support to the idea that the march of the glaciers is guided by conditions of the Earth's orbit around the sun.

Ice has been the rule rather than the exception for the last million years of Earth history. Glaciers up to several thousand feet thick have intermittently covered as much as a third of the land area.

Relief has come only from a few, brief warm spells. Studies of ancient pollen, sea-level changes and ocean sediments show there have been four of these in the last 350,000 years, lasting about 10,000 years each.

The most recent one, which began 11,000 years ago, has seen the flowering of human civilization.

The new climate model was developed by George Kukla, Ramona Lotti and Jeffrey Brown at Columbia University's Lamont-Doherty Geological Observatory, and by Belgian astronomer and mathematician Andre Berger of the Catholic University of Louvain. It is published in the current issue of the British science journal Nature.

The scientists discovered that the most recent warm periods — those beginning 11,000, 127,000, 220,000, and 330,000 years ago — shared two peculiarities of the Earth's orbit in common.

First, the perihelion — the time in its orbit when the Earth is closest to the sun — was occurring in June as each warm period began.

This meant the Earth was receiving maximum solar energy in June. The perihelion now comes in January. But its time advances as years go on, completing one circuit of the calendar every 13,000 to 25,000 years, depending on gravitational influence from the outer planets.

The second feature shared by recent warm periods was that the tilt of the Earth was always near maximum. The Earth's axis is tilted with respect to the plane of its orbit. The angle varies from about 22 to about 24.5 degrees. The tilt causes the seasons, since it allows sunshine to fall on more northerly or southerly latitudes at different times of the year.

The combination of maximum tilt plus June perihelion could have made summers particularly warm in the northern hemisphere, where the glaciers were concentrated. This could have affected the seasonal advance and melting of snow and pack ice and tipped the balance in favor of a warm period, the scientists said.

Although the effect of the extra sunlight in any given year would be negligible, its cumulative effect could be enormous.

Their model predicts a continuation of the cooling trend that began after the current warm period peaked about 6,000 years ago. The next cold peak is expected in about 4,000 years. Astronomical conditions do not favor a new warm period for another 114,000 years, the scientists said.

But Kukla stressed that the model was based only on natural causes of climate. "We know the atmosphere is being loaded with carbon dioxide and this could change the future climate completely," he said in a telephone interview. Many scientists believe the carbon dioxide from fossil fuels will cause a global warming trend.

Enrollment 'too high'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — University of Texas President Peter Flawn has decided his college of business administration is too popular and he has ordered a limit on new students in the program.

More than 25 percent of UT's 43,000 students are in the business program, causing overcrowded classes and overworked teachers, said Flawn.

"In terms of quality of programs, the college of business administration is ranked fifth in the nation," Flawn said Tuesday. "We do not want to see the quality of education diminished or jeopardized through our failure to maintain rational relationships among faculty, space and enrollments."

Canadian chief cites effects of U.S. acid rain

MEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — Canadians are becoming "increasingly impatient" with those who resist spending money to combat acid rain, which drifts into Canada from the United States, Canada's environment minister says.

"The United States should move ... quickly to prevent emissions of sulfur dioxide and oxides of nitrogen which produce acid rain in my country," John Roberts said Sunday at an environmental conference.

The acid rain pollutes Canada's water and kills wildlife, he said.

Roberts said about 8 million tons of sulfur dioxide and nearly 4 million tons of oxides of nitrogen fall on Canada every year. At least half of that amount drifts across the border from the United States, he charged.

Roberts, addressing the New England Environmental Conference at Tufts University, said Canada cannot address the problem without "massive cooperation" from the United States.

"The government of Canada and the provinces affected have become increasingly impatient with those who argue that we do not yet know enough about the effects of acid rain to spend money controlling it," Roberts said.

"The simple fact is that our lakes are being grossly overloaded with acid (rain) right now, and a major reduction in the emissions that cause that deposition is urgently needed."

Roberts said a large and growing number of lakes has reached levels of acidity rendering them incapable of supporting fish.

Cisneros barely leading in final days of San Antonio mayoral election

By MACK SISK
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — With an array of backers ranging from wealthy Anglos to Mexican-American laborers, Henry Cisneros stands an excellent chance of becoming the first Hispanic mayor of a major city in Saturday's municipal election.

Cisneros, one of five children of a civil service worker reared on the west side's "Little Mexico" area, and John Steen, a wealthy insurance man, already have spent a record amount of money as the two leading contenders to become mayor of the nation's ninth-largest city.

The professional-looking Cisneros, 33, has been planning this bid for mayor since he became a city councilman six years ago.

He was educated at Texas A&M, Harvard and MIT and has managed to assemble a diverse collection of political supporters previously unseen in this historic city.

His backers include such divergent personalities as Juan Suarez, head of the local AFL-CIO Central Labor Council, and B.J. "Red" McCombs, a wealthy automobile dealer.

His wide constituency prompted early forecasts that he would trounce Steen by at least 3-to-1 and might even avoid a runoff in becoming San Antonio's first Spanish-surnamed mayor since Juan Seguin, before the Texas Revolution.

But the 59-year-old, silver-haired Steen's pollsters contend his well-financed media blitz has cut so deeply into Cisneros' lead that the contest is on even terms in these final days of the campaign. Cisneros and Steen, also a city councilman, are far ahead of the other six candidates in the at-large mayor's race, although Dr. Jose San Martin III might gather enough votes to send Steen and Cisneros into a runoff.

Martin is the son of a city councilman and Cisneros aides contend his true intention is to siphon Hispanic votes from Cisneros and throw the election to Steen.

In the latest financial reports filed this week with the city clerk, Steen had outspent Cisneros by $225,517 to $182,908, and the total $397,517 was more than retiring Mayor Lila Cockrell and her chief opponent spent during the entire 1979 campaign. The Cisneros-Steen expenditures were expected to top $500,000 before the campaign ends.

Steen's heavy media campaign has portrayed him as "A leader you can count on! A man you can trust!" while presenting Cisneros as an unreliable person who flip-flops on issues as dictated by political expediency.

Cisneros has countered that Bailey, Dearfourff and Associates of Washington, D.C., the public relations firm doing Steen's publicity, was brought to town to do a "hatchet job" on Cisneros.

Steen admits he sought contributions from some of the wealthy men his advertising has termed "power brokers" after they decided to back Cisneros.

Steen argues that Cisneros' council votes contributed to an $18 million deficit facing the city while he (Steen) voted against tax increases.

Steen also has tried to capitalize on Cisneros' apparent fence-straddling between the city's Anglo establishment and the Hispanic population, which topped 50 percent for the first time in the 1980 census.

During his 1977-78 city council term, when single-member districts gave minorities control of the city council for the first time, Cisneros became the swing vote between interests of the south side of town and the more affluent north side. During that period he often was criticized by both sides. Four years ago, Cisneros revealed he had a detailed plan for his career which included serving three terms as mayor before moving on to higher office, possibly lieutenant governor or appointment to a high federal post.

But he has downplayed those ambitions during the current campaign, saying he wants nothing more than to help San Antonio become a great Sun Belt city by importing industry and jobs. "You can either look to the future or look at the short run," Cisneros said. "Steen's campaign is an appeal to doom and gloom, a crisis mentality. I try to be more positive. We have a city that has great potential."

Steen, native of tiny Yoakum who moved here at age eight, stumped for living within the city's means and scrapping non-essential programs that would add to the tax burden.

Steen boasts of his pet project, the Good Neighbor Program, in which block campaigns organize their neighbors to watch for suspicious persons. He said the program was designed to make "nosey, good neighbors."

Cisneros was the first Mexican-American to become sergeant-major of the cadet corps at Texas A&M in 1967, and later did graduate work in urban affairs at Harvard, George Washington University and MIT.

Sportsfest begins Friday

ODESSA — The 1981 Texas Intramural Festival Program, co-sponsored by Permian Distributing, Inc., and the Austin Natural Science Association, will begin Friday at 6 p.m. at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin Gym.

The festival, called a "Sportsfest" by its sponsors, is open to all college and university students from throughout West Texas. The itinerary includes a pizza dinner Friday night, a movie, a dance and an overnight sleep-in in the UTPB gym. The events continue Saturday with non-competitive, coed intramural contests in water polo, volleyball and softball.

Prizes will be awarded based on number of participants and sportsmanship. A $25 prize will be presented to the school with the most participants.

A coed athletic team from the Sportsfest will be selected to represent this area in the Regional Intramural Festival April 25 at North Texas State University in Denton. Coors will donate $200 in travel costs for that trip, as well as $500 for sports equipment.

This is the second year Adolph Coors Company has sponsored the Intramural Sports Festival. Austin Natural Science Association, the co-sponsor, was organized in 1960 to provide educational and recreational activities in the natural sciences through the operation and maintenance of a nature center.

Governor pledges money

CENTRALIA, Pa. (AP) — Gov. Dick Thornburgh has paid a long-awaited visit to this northeastern Pennsylvania coal town, bringing a pledge of federal money to pay for moving 25 to 30 families threatened by an underground mine fire.

Thornburgh traveled here by helicopter Tuesday to deliver the news that on Monday he had signed a pact with U.S. Interior Secretary James Watt to permanently relocate families living in a 16-acre area most seriously threatened by the 19-year mine fire.

Rebels bombard Cooper to create 5-5A baseball logjam

ABILENE—It was one of those early season showdowns. Abilene Cooper was 2-0 and Midland Lee was 1-1 in the District 5-5A baseball race. A Cooper win would put the Cougars up 3-0 and a game ahead of their nearest pursuers.

Angelo Saturday, Lee rapped out eight hits and scored 12 runs in a win for Randy Valarde. Tuesday Koonce struck out only five but his teammates backed his four-hit gem with a 19-run, 16-hit attack.

While Lee was knocking the cover off the ball, Koonce was keeping the Cougars completely off balance with an excellent mixture of fastballs and off speed stuff.

Pepper was throw out at third on Pepper's hit. Not satisfied with five runs, Lee struck for three more in the second. Corley singled but was out trying to steal.

burn let Barker's ground ball get past him. Dern reached on an infield hit, Wright sacrificed him to second and Cooper followed with a hit to left to score Dern and Parker crossed the plate on an error in the outfield.

Table with 2 columns: Player Name and Stats. Rows include Midland Lee and Cooper statistics.

Nolan Rives, Abilene High catcher, already has the throw from leftfielder Jay Tindall and waits to put the double play tag on a hard charging Joel Castaneda of Midland High at home plate during Tuesday District 5-5A baseball game at Memorial Stadium diamond.

Errors cost Midland High with a four-run outburst in the fifth inning. Sigala walked, Gravens sacrificed him to second, Hudson walked and Hall lashed a two-run triple to right.

Bulls, Sixers draw first blood

By The Associated Press. The streaking Chicago Bulls and the rebounding Philadelphia 76ers have drawn first blood in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

Greenwood teamed to lead a 17-5 spurt starting the third quarter that put the Bulls ahead to stay. Greenwood, who had just two points in the first half, scored 11 points in that surge and Gilmore blocked three shots.

"Philadelphia has tremendous depth," he said. "They have four forwards and they get the ball inside." Billy Knight led the Pacers with 25 points and Bantom had 19.

AS HAS been the Dogs' custom this year, MHS wasted another good pitching effort.

MHS had several golden opportunities to score but could never get the key hit. After loading the bases in the first inning with two out, Joel Castaneda grounded into a force out at second to end the threat.

Grim reaper has good news for Roy Hartsfield

MESA, Ariz. — Spring's grim reaper is beginning to take a toll, which may be bad news to some, but it's good news to Midland Cubs Manager Roy Hartsfield as he prepares his Bruins for the Texas League opener against San Antonio April 10.

However, the inevitable cut downs by the big club were beginning. Monday Chicago sent pitchers Bob Myrick, Jay Howell, Herman Segelke and Mark Parker back to the minors to Iowa along with outfielder Brian Rosinski and catcher Bill Hayes.

A change of schools gave Lee's Schooler a Rebel cause

There are so many things to look forward to Friday in the Tall City Relays that you had better take notes before heading to the 7 p.m. finals at Memorial Stadium.

There are so many things we want to see. Will it be a day of upsets, or will the strong prevail? The questions need answers, and in track those answers aren't always the ones you want.

improve on his 12-6 pole vault in a field of near 14-footers? Can Midland High sophomore James Beverley return to the 1:55.5 performance in the 800 meters that shocked the state the first weekend of the track season?

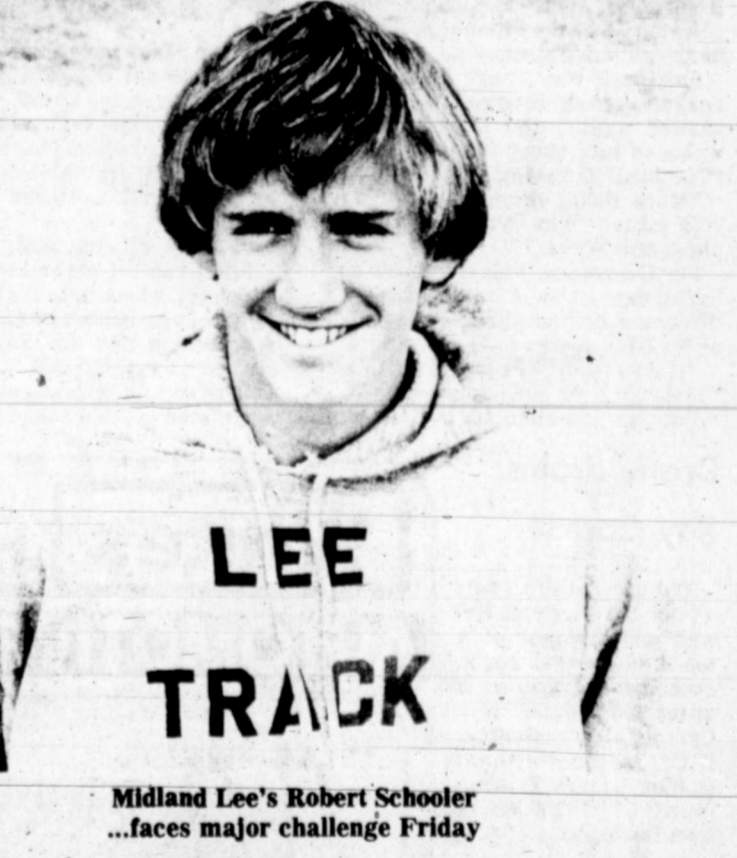

THE DOGS went down quickly in the sixth and seventh innings. Abilene was kept at bay by Feldt until the third inning. Stan Standard started the inning by reaching on an error by Portillo at short.

example of an over-achiever. Sometimes I thought he wanted to do more than he was capable of. "I remember seeing him after he moved to Midland and I jokingly told him, 'Robert, what are you doing here. You're going to get lost in that big school (Lee).'

And now Schooler is hailed as one of the state's finest 3200 meter and cross country runners in the state. No one knows how much he will improve from now until the end of the track season.

Midland Lee's Robert Schooler ...faces major challenge Friday

Houston Astros will face stronger NL Western Division

By The Associated Press

Know how close the Houston Astros came to winning the National League playoffs last year?

If Gary Woods hadn't left third base too soon, costing the Astros a vital run in the fourth game, Houston would have won the game in nine innings and the playoffs in four games instead of losing in 10 innings and five games, respectively, to the Philadelphia Phillies.

The Astros settled for the championship of the NL West despite losing J.R. Richard to a stroke and having to go without fellow right-hander Ken Forsch for a while. A 1981 return for Richard is still questionable.

Manager Bill Virdon isn't making any predictions but will say that the Astros "are a stronger club than we were a year ago," warning, however, "The entire Western Division is stronger."

To strengthen an already solid pitching staff, Houston traded third baseman Enos Cabell to San Francisco for Bob Knipper and signed Los Angeles' Don Sutton as a free agent. They join starters Joe Niekro, Nolan Ryan, Forsch and Vern Ruhle, backed by Joe Sambito, Dave Smith and Frank LaCorte in a deep bullpen.

The Astros are built for their spacious Astrodome, a pitcher's paradise. They have little power, featuring instead a bunch of contact hitters who will run you to death. The base stealers include outfielders Cesar Cedeño, Jose Cruz and Terry Puhl and second baseman Rafael Landestoy.

The rest of the revamped infield will have Danny Heep at first, Craig Reynolds at short and Art Howe at third but the Astros will miss the leadership of Joe Morgan. Alan Ashby will handle the bulk of the catching, although newcomer Alan Knicely provides much more power.

"We have given you many things, except for one thing — a world championship. You shall have it in 1981," Los Angeles second baseman Davey Lopes promised faithful Angelenos at a luncheon in January. The Dodgers tied for the NL West title a year ago, losing a one-game division playoff to Houston.

To accomplish their goal, the Dodgers must stay healthy, something they haven't been able to do the last two years. The keys are right fielder Reggie Smith (shoulder), shortstop Bill Russell (finger) and relievers Terry Forster (elbow) and Don Stanhouse (back and shoulder). For insurance, in case Smith hasn't recovered from surgery, the Dodgers traded for Minnesota's Ken Landreaux this week.

Russell, Lopes, first baseman Steve Garvey and third baseman Ron Cey will comprise the infield for the eighth year in a row.

Garvey, Cey and outfielders Dusty Baker and, hopefully, Smith will try to make Los Angeles the best home run team in the league for the fifth consecutive year. The Dodgers also hope for more punch from their troupe of catchers — Joe Ferguson, Steve Yeager and Mike Scioscia. Rudy Law should improve in center.

With Sutton gone, it will be up to Jerry Reuss, Bob Welch and Burt Hooton to pick up the slack, along with last year's sensational September rookie Fernando Valenzuela. With Rookie of the Year Steve Howe and Bob Castillo on hand, the bullpen will be loaded if Forster and Stanhouse return to their old form.

"Only one National League team had a better record than the Dodgers last season," Manager Tom Lasorda points out. "If we can stay healthy, we can pass them this season."

The Cincinnati Reds finished 3½ games out last year despite the assorted ailments of slugger left fielder George Foster, pitching ace Tom Seaver, shortstop Dave Concepcion and pitcher Paul Moskau, plus Johnny Bench's reduced work behind the plate. Bench has said he will now catch only two games a week.

Bench would like to unseat first baseman Dan Driessen, third baseman Ray Knight, Foster or Dave Collins, who moves from center to right with Ken Griffey going the other way. Second baseman Ron Oester, a coming star, rounds out the everyday lineup.

Seaver, Frank Pastore and Mario Soto give Manager John McNamara

a solid threesome on the mound, and Tom Hume is a top-notch reliever.

Bobby Cox gave up a job as first base coach for George Steinbrenner in New York to become manager for the equally unpredictable Ted Turner in Atlanta. Turner spent a fortune on free agent outfielder Claudell Washington, then refused to yield to Gary Matthews' salary demands and shipped him to Philadelphia, opening an outfield job for rookie Terry Harper.

Bob Walk, who came to Atlanta in return for Matthews, could be a big man on a pitching staff threatened by creeping senility with 42-year-old Phil Niekro and Gaylord Perry in the rotation. John Montefusco and Tommy Boggs are other key starters. Rick Camp is a solid reliever.

Center fielder Dale Murphy, third baseman Bob Horner, first baseman Chris Chambliss and Washington will break down a few fences and second baseman Glenn Hubbard and shortstop Rafael Ramirez are an up-and-coming keystone combination.

San Francisco has a new manager in Frank Robinson while huge Frank Howard will try to whip the Padres into line.

Joe Morgan has hooked on with the Giants, along with third baseman Enos Cabell, outfielder Jerry Martin and pitcher Doyle Alexander. Starters Vida Blue and Ed Whitson, plus a strong bullpen, will provide good pitching but the only Giant who really scares anyone at bat is right fielder Jack Clark.

The punchless Padres have even less with Dave Winfield gone. Howard will try to do it with speed and hungry youngsters like third baseman Luis Salazar, shortstop Ozzie Smith, catcher Terry Kennedy and outfielders Gene Richards, and Alan Wiggins, who stole a pro record 120 bases in the California League. Outfielders Ruppert Jones and Joe Lefebvre, acquired Tuesday from the Yankees in a six-player trade involving Jerry Mumphrey, also may help. Of the pitchers, only veteran John Curtis won as many as 10 games in the majors last year.

Mark Fidrych's ERA soars to 11.40

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Roger Craig looked tired sitting in front of his locker.

The Detroit pitching coach had just endured a long bus ride back from Bradenton, where the Tigers were defeated 6-5 by the Pittsburgh Pirates in an exhibition game.

But Craig was weary for another reason. Mark Fidrych had been shelled again, and nobody really wants to talk about the poor spring "The Bird" is having.

"Mark didn't throw good," Craig said softly. "Why don't you ask me about Milt Wilcox?"

For the record, Fidrych threw one inning against the Pirates, giving up three runs on four hits and two walks as his ERA soared to 11.40.

"It was lousy," Fidrych conceded. "It should have been a lot better."

Fidrych had almost a hurt look in his eyes, but he never wavered, never conceded that he might be finished.

"It's going to come," he said. "You're getting hit, you're getting hit. You know, it's got to come. It's got to go you're way one of these days."

When asked point-blank, Fidrych said there was no doubt in his mind that he'll be on the 25-man roster that heads for Detroit to start the regular season a week from Thursday.

Manager Sparky Anderson, however, could not confirm Fidrych's hope.

"I just won't comment," Anderson said. "I can't. I never have in these situations, where men are fighting for jobs. It just wouldn't be fair, now not, not heading into the final week of camp."

Fidrych said he was not concerned about starting. He said he'd be perfectly happy working out of the bullpen.

"The main thing is that I'm healthy," Fidrych said. "I feel good. I'm throwing strikes. I must be throwing strikes, because they're hitting me."

Griese's injury fails to respond

MIAMI (AP) — Miami Dolphins quarterback Bob Griese works out daily in a gym in his house, but doesn't know yet whether a shoulder injury he suffered last fall will heal in time for him to play in 1981.

"I have no reason to be confident that in the next three or four months this will turn around," Griese said this week. "If my shoulder doesn't get back to where I can throw, there's no decision to make."

Yankees keep on trading

By The Associated Press

The San Diego Padres shipped Jerry Mumphrey off Tuesday to become the New York Yankees' new center fielder ... and their pitching staff may have unintentionally made Joe Morgan the San Francisco Giants' new second baseman.

In a late night trade with the Yankees, the Padres acquired outfielders Ruppert Jones and Joe Lefebvre and young left-handed pitcher Tim Lollar and Chris Welsh in exchange for Mumphrey and right-handed pitcher John Pacella.

"We got very good reports on Mumphrey," Bill Bergesch, the Yankees' vice president for baseball operations, said of the 28-year-old switch hitter who batted .298 for the Padres last season, his first year with San Diego after four with the St. Louis Cardinals. He hit only four home runs and drove in 59 runs but stole 52 bases.

Meanwhile, the 37-year-old Morgan drove in three runs with a pair of homers as the Giants defeated the Padres 5-1.

"I've worked hard on my defense and I've hit with some power," Morgan said. "I've been experimenting with some things. That's what I like to do in spring training. I don't worry about running up stats. I'm down here to try and make myself a better player."

Asked if he had decided between Morgan and Rennie Stennett as his second baseman, Manager Frank Robinson replied, "Yes." He would not say which one, adding, "I'll take the better defensive player first."

Morgan was hitting .152 and Stennett .375 before Tuesday's game but Robinson said he had his own interpretation of Morgan's statistics.

"He has hit the ball fairly good this spring, although the average hasn't shown it," Robinson said. "Today he showed what he's capable of — instant offense."

Elsewhere, Cesar Cedeño's two-run homer and eight-hit pitching by Joe Niekro, Frank LaCorte and Dave Smith enabled the Houston Astros to blank the Atlanta Braves 4-0.

Roy Howell and Cecil Cooper homered but rookie Marshall Edwards' eighth-inning single drove in the run that gave the Milwaukee Brewers an 11-10 triumph over Oakland despite four home runs by the A's.

Bert Blyleven hurled seven innings of two-hit ball, fanning seven and walking two, as the Cleveland Indians whipped the California Angels 8-1 and Rusty Torres' sacrifice fly gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 6-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Newly acquired Ken Landreaux singled home a run in a four-run eighth-inning rally that lifted the Los Angeles Dodgers over the Cincinnati Reds 6-5 and Steve Rogers, Ray Burris and Elias Sosa blanked Baltimore on eight hits as the Montreal Expos nipped the Orioles 1-0.

Dan Norman's 10th-inning homer gave the New York Mets a 4-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Mike Torrez and Mark lear combined on a five-hitter as the Boston Red Sox downed the Minnesota Twins 3-1.

Lamar Johnson and Harold Baines had two-run singles in a five-run seventh inning that carried the Chicago White Sox past the Kansas City Royals 6-2.

Lloyd Moseby's home run capped an eight-run eighth inning that powered the Toronto Blue Jays over Philadelphia 11-7 despite a grand slam by the Phillies' Mike Schmidt.

Bruce Bochte's two-run homer helped the Seattle Mariners defeat the Chicago Cubs 5-4.

In another deal, the Padres sent relief pitcher Bob Lacey, obtained only last week from Oakland, to Cleveland for second baseman Juan Bonilla.

Drane drains Ray Carroll

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Derrich Drane of Hawaii got the best of a toe-to-toe second round exchange and went on to upset 156-pounder Ray Carroll of Washington, D.C., in the National Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions Tuesday night.

Drane won the decision over the second-ranked Carroll in the first-round match after the two evenly matched fighters exchanged punches in an intense 30-second center-of-the-ring flurry that brought the crowd to its feet.

From that point on, Drane remained elusive, constantly moving and jabbing.

In other upsets, Joe Gray of Florida knocked out Maurice Chinn of Columbus, Ohio, ranked eighth at 156 pounds by the USABCA; Doug Wilson of Kansas City outpointed second-ranked Kelvin Kelly of Pennsylvania at 178 pounds, and Kelvin Beatty of Knoxville, Tenn., decisioned No. 10 Alex DeLucia Jr. of Las Vegas, also at 178 pounds.

In the lighter weight classes, No. 2-ranked at 112 pounds but fighting at 112, J.L. Ivey of Detroit easily decisioned Joseph Peter Star of Springfield, Ill.

Will success spoil the Philadelphia Phillies in NL East?

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Will success spoil the Philadelphia Phillies?

After almost a century of failure, the Phillies won their first world championship in 1980, thanks mostly to brilliant seasons by Steve Carlton and Mike Schmidt.

At the age of 35, Carlton (24-9) led the National League with 24 victories and 286 strikeouts in 304 innings, ranked second in earned run average (2.34) and captured the Cy Young Award.

Meanwhile, MVP Schmidt led the majors with 48 home runs and topped the league with 121 RBIs, 342 total bases and a .624 slugging percentage.

THE MODERN-DAY Phillies are far removed from the 1950 Whiz Kids. Carlton and relief ace Tug McGraw are 36; catcher Bob Boone 33, first baseman Pete Rose 40, shortstop Larry Bowa 35, and left fielder Greg Luzinski is on the way out. Manager Dallas Green has said Luzinski and his 223 career homers do not figure in plans for 1981, especially in view of the recent acquisition of outfielder Gary Matthews from the Atlanta Braves.

Louie Smith, who replaced Luzinski more and more as the season progressed, is the only regular under 30, and that includes second baseman Manny Trillo, center fielder Garry Maddox and right fielder Bake McBride, along with Schmidt and Matthews. The speedy, aggressive Smith gave the Phillies a new dimension by stealing 33 bases in only 100 games.

Carlton and Dick Ruthven (17-10) are a solid lefty-right punch and Marty Bystrom (5-0) was an impressive rookie in September. Boone, a superb defensive catcher, hopes to rebound from an off-year with the bat and Rose, who failed to bat .300 for only the second time in the last 16 years, needs just 74 hits to break Stan Musial's NL record.

The key to Philadelphia's season probably will be how much injured pitchers Larry Christenson and Nino Espinosa can contribute.

"We can win again, and I think we will," says Green.

In 1979, the Montreal Expos wound up two games behind Pittsburgh in the NL East. Last year, they won five fewer games but came within one of the Phillies in another runner-up finish.

"The experience of consecutive pennant races going down to the last weekend of the season will definitely help this club in the late stages of 1981," says Manager Dick Williams.

He lists two problems. The first is the void in left field created when Ron LeFlore opted for free agency and jumped to the Chicago White Sox; the other, however, is no more serious than finding a backup for workhorse catcher Gary Carter.

Rookie Tim Raines, who stole 77 bases in 108 games as a second baseman in the American Association and five more in 15 games with the Expos, will get a shot at replacing LeFlore, who led the NL by swiping 97 in 139 games. If Raines flops, Warren Cromartie will return to left field after a year at first base and Willie Montanez will be the regular first baseman. Raines, second baseman Rodney Scott (63 steals) and center fielder Andre Dawson (34) give the Expos loads of speed in front of Carter and the rest of the power people — right fielder Ellis Valentine, third baseman Larry Parrish and Cromartie. Chris Speier will again be the shortstop.

The pitching staff is young and talented. Steve Rogers and Scott Sanderson were 16-game winners and Bill Gullickson is on the verge of stardom. He fanned 18 Chicago Cubs in a September game. A veteran bullpen includes Woodie Fryman, Stan Bahnsen and Elias Sosa.

"One thing for sure — 1980 wasn't nearly as much fun as 1979," says Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner. That's because the Pirates skidded from the world championship to a third-place finish.

MANY OF the Buccs' big guns played hurt or were sidelined — right fielder Dave Parker, first baseman Willie Stargell, center fielder Omar Moreno (96 steals), third baseman Bill Madlock, second baseman Phil Garner, first baseman-outfielder Bill Robinson, pitcher Don Robinson. Comebacks are essential from them, as well as left-hander John Candelaria and relief ace Kent Tekulve, who slumped. All the injuries gave left fielder Mike Easler (.338, 21 homers) a chance to reach stardom.

Veteran Jim Bibby (19-6) is the ace of the pitching staff but the 6-foot-5 fastballer is 36. Candelaria, Don Robinson and Rick Rhoden also will be in the rotation, with Grant Jackson, Enrique Romo and newcomer Victor Cruz joining Tekulve in a bullpen which Tanner considers "the best in the world."

Any similarity between the 1980 and 1981 St. Louis Cardinals is purely coincidental. Manager GM Whitey Herzog's housecleaning disposed of Ted Simmons, Pete Vuckovich, Rollie Fingers, Ken Reitz and Leon Durham.

The starting eight features plenty of hitting, speed and defense. It has free agent Darrell Porter behind the plate, an infield of Keith Hernandez, Tom Herr, Garry Templeton and Ken Oberkfell, with Sixto Lezcano, Tony Scott and George Hendrick in the outfield.

To cure the pitching shorts, Herzog traded for Bruce Sutter, baseball's premier reliever. Starters Bob Forsch, Lary Sorensen and Silvio

Martinez must produce big years.

OUTFIELDER Dave Kingman is back in New York to hit balls over buildings and first baseman Rusty Staub returned as a free agent. But except for center fielder Lee Mazzilli, the rest of the lineup is puncheon. Rookie outfielder Mookie Wilson adds speed.

The fine young Neil Allen-Jeff Reardon bullpen won't get a chance to save many games unless starters Craig Swan, Pat Zachry and Randy Jones are over their arm miseries. Rookie Tim Leary has been called "the next Tom Seaver." He'd better be.

Having finished last with Sutter and Kingman, the Chicago Cubs decided to try it without them. The new-look Cubs hope to bleed newcomers Steve Henderson and Leon Durham in the outfield and third baseman Ken Reitz with NL bat king Bill Buckner at first base, shortstop Ivan DeJesus and pitcher Rick Reuschel. Lefty Ken Kravec, acquired last week from the crosstown White Sox, should help.

PREDICTION: Montreal, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Pittsburgh, New York Chicago.

Cats finally score, but Bronchos win

San Angelo scored its first run of the year in District 5-5A play in the first inning against Odessa High but the lead quickly evaporated as the Bronchos took advantage of the Bobcats' anemic pitching to score an 8-1 victory Tuesday in San Angelo. Odessa High improves its district record to 2-1 while San Angelo is still looking for its first district win after three tries.

The Bobcats scored when Barney Castro reached second when Odessa's Hector Sanchez misplays his fly ball and Tal Jackson followed with a run-scoring double down the left field line.

Odessa bounced back with three runs in the top of the second to take the lead. Junior Cobos drew a walk from Gilbert Samaniego, Efrain Gallegos singled and Morris Morgan doubled to knot the score at 1-1. Johnny Subia then laid down a sacrifice bunt attempt that Central third base men Castro field, saw he had no play at home and went to first. Subia was out at first but the Bobcat infield went to sleep for a second and Morgan, never hesitating at third, sprinted in to score.

The Bronchos added four runs in the fourth inning and a single run in the fifth as they coasted to the win.

In Odessa Tuesday, Big Spring took advantage of five Permian miscues to down the Panthers 9-1. Mojo outhit the Steers 12 to nine but could not overcome the errors.

Big Spring struck for five runs in the third, added three in the fourth and one in the fifth before the Panthers could push a single run across the plate in the bottom of the sixth. The victory lifts the Steer's district mark to 2-1 and season ledger to 7-7. Permian falls to 1-2 in loop play and 4-9 overall.

So, after the smoke cleared Tuesday, the 5-5A baseball was seeing a five-way logjam for first place with Lee, Odessa High, Abilene Cooper, Big Spring and Abilene High.

Midland Cubs near opener

Normally, Midland, Iowa, Quad Cities and Geneva are left in Mesa for several days to a week after Chicago breaks camp and heads north to open the season, but this year, the normal order of things has been altered. Midland opens the same day as Chicago, so rosters will be pruned and shaped within the next week, hopefully,

MHS Bullpups rip Lee's JV, 11-5

The Midland High junior varsity baseball team rapped out 19 hits enroute to a 11-5 win over the Lee JVs Monday at the Lee field. The Bullpups are now 6-2 on the season.

Hipilito Zarate led the Bullpup hitting parade by going 5-for-5 including two home runs. One homer was an inside the park job. Mark Williams, 3-for-5 on the day, added another homer to the Bullpup attack. The homerun was Williams' fifth of the young season.

Jose Carrasco went 3-for-5, Judd Ryan 2-for-4, Billy Miles, 2-for-4, and Bruce Sears 2-for-3 for the victorious Bullpups.

The Bullpups scored five runs in the top of the first and added a run in the second. Lee scored one in the bottom of the first and added three in the bottom of the third to cut the deficit to 5-4. The Bullpups answered the challenge by pushing four runs across the plate in the top of the fourth and added a final run in the sixth inning. Lee scored its final run in the bottom of the fifth.

Carrasco, 4-0, was the winning pitcher. Carroll was the losing pitcher for the Brigade.

Carroll, Page and Robinson carried the big sticks for Lee. Lee blasted out 13 hits in the losing effort.

In a game played last Thursday, Midland High's JV defeated previously undefeated Big Spring 10-5. The Bullpups will carry a .487 team batting average when they face Odessa Permian today at 4 p.m. Friday the Bullpups entertain Snyder at 4 p.m. Both games will be contested at Memorial Stadium diamond.

NCAA game draws Lynette Woodard earns Wade Trophy heated controversy

By The Associated Press

Sport and its place in society is at the heart of the controversy over the NCAA's decision to play its basketball championship game just hours after President Reagan was shot by a would-be assassin.

Sports writers across the nation devoted columns Tuesday criticizing or defending the action.

"The ultimate decision to play, of course, was an affront to any person who doesn't have pompos for brains," wrote Ray Diddinger, a columnist for the Philadelphia Daily News.

"With the sound of gunfire still echoing on all three networks, should they have played the game?" said sports editor Joe Gilmartin in the Phoenix Gazette.

"It's a good question, and I think 'Yes' was a good answer."

College coaches generally said that there was no other choice than to let Indiana and North Carolina play as scheduled Monday night.

"The kids on both teams felt for the president, but the kids were here to play," said Indiana Coach Bobby Knight, whose Hoosiers downed the Tar Heels 63-50 for the championship.

"They isn't anything they could do to help him, so there made the adjustment and played."

And the television network that carried the game said fans had overwhelmingly supported the NCAA's choice.

Curt Block, director of press and publicity for NBC, said 1,307 calls were made to the network's switchboard in New York Monday afternoon and evening, asking if the game would go on.

By the time the game started at 8:30 p.m. EST, Reagan was reported in good condition after two hours of surgery at George Washington University Hospital in Washington.

Had the president's condition been poor or in doubt, Block said, the network would have stayed with the assassination-attempt story instead of carrying the game.

The fact that Reagan had been reported out of danger by gametime was cited by many of those defending the decision to play.

"I think when it was ascertained he was all right, it was OK to go ahead with the game," said Clemson Coach Bill Foster. "It might have eased some people's minds."

"Had the situation warranted minute-by-minute coverage of the shooting — as it did earlier in the day — then it would have been pretty callous of the NCAA to carry on with business-as-usual," wrote Merle Derrick in the Spokane Daily Chronicle.

"Since the urgency had passed by that time, there was logic in going on."

But others said that argument was flawed.

"The NCAA has set a real cute precedent," wrote the Washington Post's Dave Kindred. "If you've got a big game and the president is shot that afternoon, go ahead and play as long as he doesn't die. Some things are too important to put off for a day or two, while the nation looks for its soul ... Basketball is that important, the NCAA tells us. It makes me want to cry."

NEW YORK (AP) — Can Lynette Woodard, the best player in women's college basketball this season, be compared to Julius Erving, the smooth and skillful All-Star forward of the Philadelphia 76ers of the National Basketball Association?

Marian Washington, Woodard's coach at the University of Kansas, thinks so.

"She comes the closest of any woman's player to doing what Dr. J can do in the air," Washington said Tuesday, after Woodard was named winner of the Wade Trophy, presented to the nation's outstanding women's basketball player.

"She has exceptional body balance and coordina-

Actor Robert De Niro and actress Sissy Spacek hold their Oscars after being named best actor and actress in the 53rd annual Academy Awards in Los Angeles Tuesday. De Niro won for his role in "Raging Bull," and Miss Spacek for her portrayal of Loretta Lynn in "Coal Miner's Daughter."

Awards a day late, but short on nothing

By YARDENA ARAR
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Comedian Steve Martin embraced Hollywood writer Army Archerd in a deliberately effusive bear hug and proceeded to address Archerd's microphone in mime.

Brooke Shields exchanged her standing-room-only designer jeans for a demure peach taffeta. And actress Margot Kidder drew gasps with her gown's top of see-through black netting.

A day late but nonetheless glamorous, the pre-Oscar festivities outside the Los Angeles Music Center provided legions of starstruck fans with a close-up, if fleeting, look at celebrities arriving for the Academy Awards ceremony.

And though some observers might have agreed with the Los Angeles police officer who confided, "I'd rather be at home watching it on TV," most of the crowd seemed to feel like the out-of-town reporter who said, "This is the best part of all."

Trooping past emcee Archerd's microphone in the space of 15 minutes were John Hurt, Richard Chamberlain, Robert Redford, Brooke Shields, Sissy Spacek, Sally Field, Jack Lemmon, Nastassia Kinski and Lily Tomlin.

And spangle the stars did, with country music singer Dolly Parton in slinky black as a Mae West look-alike. Actress Mary Tyler Moore was regal in orchid organza, and other stars were equally elegant in swank evening gowns and tuxedos.

Miss Shields, the teen-age actress who models Calvin Klein jeans, was teased by Archerd about her unaccustomed attire. "You're not in your Calvins," the Daily Variety columnist noted. In reply, she lifted the hem of her dress and smiled. "They're hidden underneath."

The fans lapped it all up, from the early arrival of octogenarian directors King Vidor and George Cukor to Miss Tomlin's confession, moments before the ceremony began, that "I'm here for Dolly," — a reference to Miss Parton's nomination for best song, "Nine to Five."

four of Hollywood's Academy Awards. Robert De Niro and Sissy Spacek were named best actor and actress, for their performances in "Raging Bull" and "Coal Miner's Daughter."

Major awards also went to two novices in "Ordinary People": director Robert Redford, a film star himself, and supporting actor Timothy Hutton. "I will never act again," Redford joked backstage.

Hutton, who strongly resembles his father, the late actor Jim Hutton, said of his dad, "I wish he was here."

The movie's fourth award went to Alvin Sargent for screenplay adaptation.

Only one other movie, "Tess," took more than two awards. It won in three of the lesser-known craft categories: cinematography, art direction and costumes.

In years past, some films have garnered a fistful of awards. "Ben Hur" took 11 Oscars in 1951.

The 53rd Academy Awards presentation was not as electric as some past shows, probably due to the attack on President Reagan. The show was postponed from Monday after the assassination attempt, and it opened with a straight-faced Johnny Carson introducing a 2-week-old videotaped message from the president.

The Reagan assassination attempt came up again after the ceremony. De Niro, who won the best actor award for his portrayal of boxer Jake LaMotta, walked out of the interview room after repeatedly being asked about the possibility that a movie he starred in, "Taxi Driver," prompted the attempt on Reagan's life.

Quitman proud of its own 'best actress,' Sissy Spacek

QUITMAN, Texas (AP) — When Sissy Spacek accepted her Best Actress award Monday night at the 53rd annual Academy Awards, she rattled off a long list of people she wanted to thank for helping her win.

She stopped, the applause began and she started to move off-stage, then she leaned back toward the microphones and shouted, "And Mama and Daddy, I love you, too."

Mama and Daddy, Ed and Virginia Spacek, were sitting at home in this small East Texas town watching their daughter on television — the daughter they named Mary Elizabeth but who got nicknamed "Sissy" by two older brothers while she was growing up here.

The actress is proud of her East Texas roots and Quitman is just as proud of her, the parents said late Tuesday.

"We're real thrilled," said her father, "especially with Sissy coming from a small town that backs her like it does."

About 1,000 of the town's 1,500 residents turned out last May to honor the actress on Sissy Spacek Day and she signed autographs for hours.

"We're just proud of Quitman, really," Spacek said.

Mrs. Spacek described her emotions as "sheer joy."

"We're so proud of her and I just have to admit we think she deserved it," she added.

Miss Spacek won for her portrayal of country-western singer Loretta Lynn in the biographical movie, "Coal Miner's Daughter." Miss Spacek did all her own singing for the part.

"She did a lot of homework to get her music right and to talk like Loretta and all," said Mrs. Spacek.

Miss Spacek's first starring role, as a teen-ager with extra-sensory powers in the movie "Carrie," resulted in an Oscar nomination but she lost to Faye Dunaway that year.

Have her stardom and two Oscar nominations changed her?

"Not at all," said Mrs. Spacek.

"She's just the same Sissy."

"She has tickled us a lot of times by running this acting business parallel to a lot of other things. She always says, 'I want to be an actress but I want to do other things, too.' Her head's on straight," said Spacek.

Fonda attributes 46-year film career to 'good luck'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Walking with a cane but holding his head high, veteran actor Henry Fonda said he was "a very, very lucky man" as he accepted an honorary Academy Award Tuesday night for his "enduring accomplishments to the art of motion pictures."

"When I realize — and I really have to remind myself — that I've been working in films for 46 years, I feel I'm a very, very lucky man. Not just because I survived, but because over the years I have had the opportunity to work with some of the best producers, the best directors, the best writers, the best actors in motion pictures," said Fonda, 75.

"It's been a very rewarding 46 years for me. And this has got to be the climax. I'm very proud and grateful to the governors of the academy," Fonda said after receiving his award from Robert Redford.

Clips from some of his many films were presented before Fonda, using a cane to assist a slight limp, walked onstage to a prolonged standing ovation from the glittering assemblage of his peers at the 53rd Academy Awards at the Los Angeles Music Center.

MENTAL HEALTH UPDATE

Direct counselors more active with advice

By KENNETH H. WOLF, MSSW, SP

Question: Please explain the difference between directive and non-directive counseling. Is one style of counseling more effective than another?

Answer: The difference between directive and non-directive counseling lies in how active the counselor is in giving advice, explanations and directions to the counselee. Directive counselors are much more active in this way than non-directive counselors.

Non-directive counselors operate from the idea that if a person can be helped to develop or discover his own solutions to his problems, he will be more apt to act upon them and thereby achieve a therapeutic benefit.

Such counselors give much less direct advice. They usually reflect back to the client's thoughts or feelings which the client has in some way expressed. This reflection of thoughts or feelings usually is done in such a fashion as to help the client see his problem in a different way and to point the client to a possible solution.

In reality, all counselors are directive to some extent because it is not possible to be completely non-directive. Humans constantly communicate with one another on a variety of levels — verbal, tone of voice, facial expressions, body posture and hundreds of other non-verbal ways. Such communication with each other has the purpose of both reporting information and influencing a response in the other party. Even the most non-directive counselor is constantly influencing or attempting to influence the client to respond and behave in certain ways.

Therefore, it is not a real choice between directive and non-directive counseling. The choice is really between different degrees of directive counseling. As in all mental health problems, different persons with different problems may respond to one style of counseling better than another. The person who is considering counseling would do best to choose a counselor with whom he is comfortable rather than a particular style or theory of counseling.

Question: What kind of training do counselors or therapists receive?

Answer: Counseling and psychotherapy are provided by several different professions. Psychiatrists have a medical degree with a psychiatric specialty and are theonly mental health professional who is licensed to prescribe medication. Psychologists have a Ph.D. or a master's degree in the field of psychology.

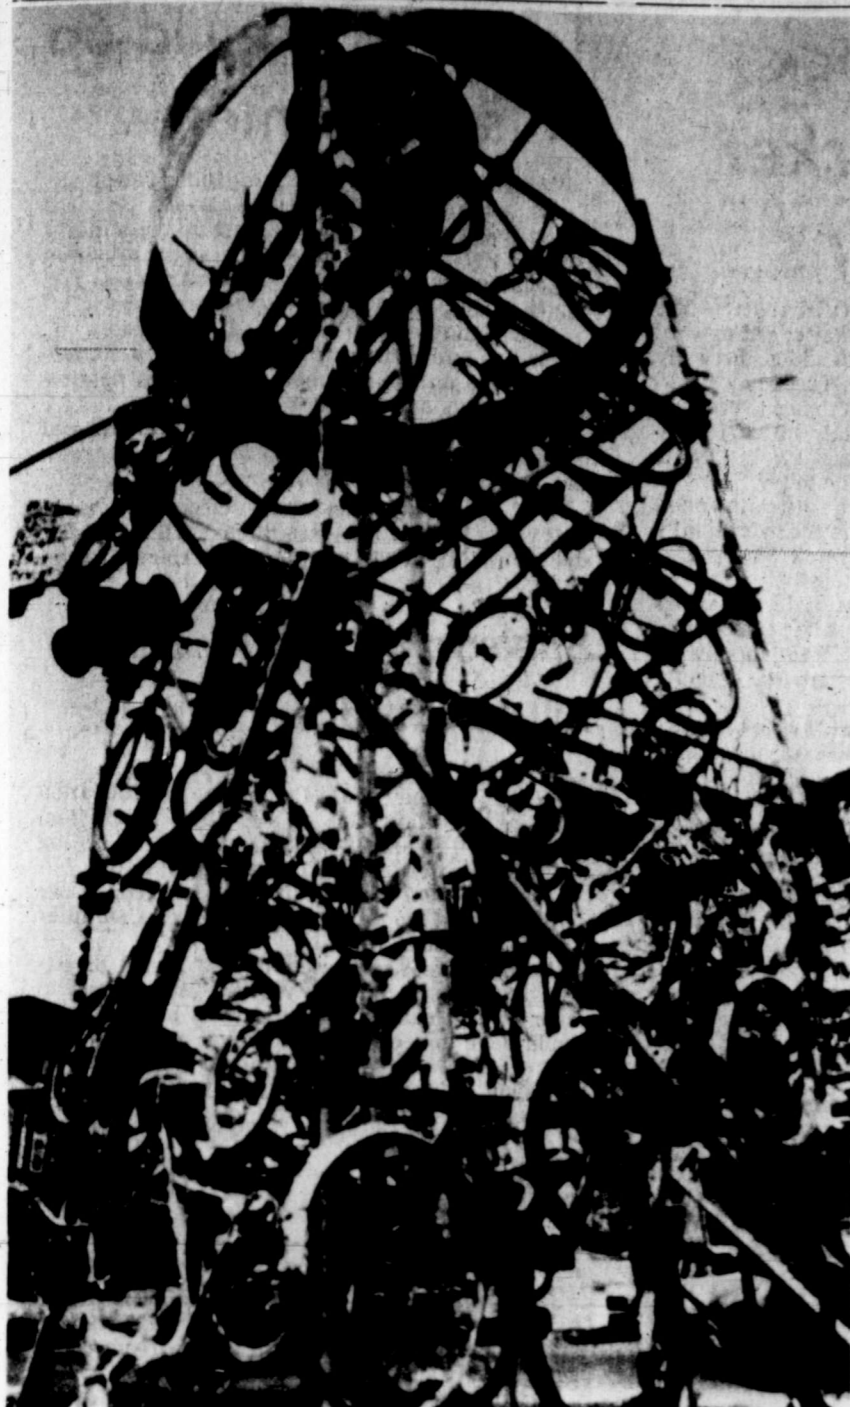

Clinical psychologists have received training in counseling, therapy and the use of psychological tests. Clinical social workers general have a master's or a doctorate in social work. They generally have been trained in counseling with individuals, marital pairs, families and groups. Statistics reveal that the majority of all counseling or psychotherapy sessions in this country are delivered by persons trained in social work.

Persons with other kinds of training also may deliver counseling services. Educational psychologists and ministers are two such examples. In choosing a counselor, the person should pay attention to the counselor's training and background since there are individuals who call themselves counselors or therapists who have had little if any applicable training in the field.

Faculty, staff launch new fund-raising

Sixty-five members of the faculty and staff of Midland Christian School met Monday night to launch a capital fund-raising campaign to help pay for a new multi-purpose facility now under construction.

The new structure will include 12 additional classrooms, a library, new offices and a large high school gymnasium.

Construction on the $1,300,000 addition began Dec. 12, 1980, and is scheduled to be completed in time for fall classes of this year.

According to a spokesman for the school, Midland Christian School's enrollment has grown to 475 students. The school's first senior class will graduate this spring.

Shuttle managers try for April launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Kennedy Space Center officials have set an April 10 blastoff for the space shuttle Columbia's maiden voyage and plan to begin the launch countdown Sunday, a spokesman says.

"Everybody basically agreed, and no one said they didn't support the 10th," spokesman Hugh Harris said after a meeting Monday of the managers in charge of the shuttle's various systems.

Top officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration were expected to meet here today to give formal approval to the date after a launch readiness review.

Pad workers loaded hydrazine aboard the Columbia Monday in preparation for the reusable craft's initial blastoff. The fuel powers hydraulic units used to steer the shuttle's rocket engines. The operation was running about 16 hours behind schedule, but officials expected it to be completed today.

If NASA gives the final go-ahead for April 10, the countdown leading to a launch 45 minutes before sunrise would begin at 11:30 p.m. EST Sunday.

"We are prepared to pick up the launch countdown this weekend," said Robert Gray, manager of the shuttle projects office. "We have identified some additional work, but it is presently scheduled and will be done in time to support the start of the countdown."

The actual countdown time is 73 hours, but several built-in "holds" are scheduled to make up for time lost in any of the procedures and for periods when no activities are planned, Kennedy Space Center spokesman Miles Waggoner said.

Today's readiness review entails "all participants getting together and going over what remains to be done before launch," Waggoner said.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, April 2, 1981
YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Danish storyteller Hans Christian Andersen was born on this day, and his birthday is still celebrated by children around the world. Actors Buddy Ebsen, Jack Webb and Alec Guinness also share this birthday with you. In the year ahead, there is new emphasis on writing, study and travel. Powerful ambitions could impede progress where work is concerned. Expect your greatest gains to come from cooperative ventures. Partnerships can have their ups and downs, but a romantic alliance will lead you in new interesting directions. Personal finances may get a boost from marriage. Do not devote so much time to business that family life suffers.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Tend to neglected tasks today and you may be able to get away for a long weekend. It sometimes seems that you are your own worst enemy. Try not to judge yourself too harshly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Business alliances grow stronger. Take the initiative and financial success will come more easily. This is not the right time to change jobs. You may have to smooth things over with mate.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Ambition is fine so long as you keep it in proper perspective. Do not act greedy or you may be the one who ends up shortchanged. A chance meeting tonight could spell romance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Leave nothing to chance today. Doublecheck all arrangements, details. Relatives may be difficult to understand. Feel free to ask direct questions. The answers may please you. Romantic partner shares you views.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Try to be more careful with your money. Accept invitations only if certain you are not footing the bill. Prominent person bestows a personal favor. Realize that there are probably strings attached.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Mix trends will challenge your ability to cope to day. Keep any unflattering opinions to yourself. Family member will be much easier to get along with. Complete routine chores as quickly as possible.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can boost your earning power by recycling an old idea. Mutual resources can be increased. Mail contains important news. Do not gamble or speculate. Romance will seem idyllic in a new setting.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Listen to wise individual's advice regarding career or business decision. Now is the time to set new goals and initiate a different course of action. Domestic scene will be harmonious.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Do not allow yourself to be provoked into losing your temper. Although tension may be building, it is important to stay calm. Relatives can be more helpful than you imagine.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What you know is more important than who you know. Act confident and a crisis will quickly pass. Dwelling on depressing thoughts could cause you to make mistakes. Maintain positive outlook.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A good day to sort out complicated financial matters. Refuse to be rushed into making decisions. You now hold the key to success. Handle it with care. Reserve evening hours for romance, relaxation.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Catch up paperwork, correspondence before starting new project. Member of opposite sex may stimulate your desire to move in new directions. Put romance on hold for a while.

knowledge that the trumps were on his left, Tommy displayed commendable technique.

He ruffed the opening heart lead in dummy, crossed to the ace of diamonds and ruffed another heart. Back to the king of diamonds for another heart ruff, and then the queen and jack of diamonds from dummy.

When East discarded a heart on the fourth diamond, Tommy smiled quietly—he had read the hand correctly!

Tommy had discarded two clubs from his hand on the diamonds. Now he cashed the ace of clubs and then led the queen of clubs from dummy. On this trick Tommy sluffed his king of hearts. West, down to nothing but trumps, was forced to ruff. He was helpless. No matter which spade he returned, he could not stop Tommy from scoring two of the last four trump tricks, which brought declarer's total to ten. Tommy had triumphed again. He lost only three trump tricks on the hand!

Lesser-sandhills cranes — cousins of the rare whoopers — take a moonlight flight over the North Platte River. The true sign of spring's arrival in a 20-mile stretch of the river between North Platte and Sutherland is the annual arrival of between 60,000 and 100,000 of the birds for a pause in their migration to Alaska after a 600-mile non-stop flight from wintering grounds in West Texas and New Mexico. Naturalists say fossils indicate the cranes have visited the river valley for the past 10 million years. The annual stopover — now at its height — ends after six weeks, in mid-April.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON
Obesity stems from small amount of exercise done

Dear Dr. Solomon: With all the emphasis on the importance of weight control, and all the warnings that obesity may lead to a variety of diseases, I'm beginning to wonder: Are we really stuffing ourselves so much more today than we did years ago? It doesn't seem that way to me. — Bertha.

Dear Bertha: According to one report, calorie consumption actually decreased between 1913 and 1967 in the United States; however, the decrease was only 180 calories, a relatively small amount. The reason obesity has become such a serious problem today is that our level of activity decreased to a much greater extent during this same period. In other words, while we are consuming about the same number of calories, we are expending many fewer. The results for many people are all too obvious.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I stopped smoking when there was definite proof that the use of cigarettes was linked to a number of diseases. I'm also prepared to change my eating habits when I can be shown that this, too, would be beneficial to my health. In this regard, I wonder if there is any evidence that reducing the amount of cholesterol in the diet will reduce the risk of a heart attack. — Gilbert.

Dear Gilbert: If you are looking for proof positive that the treatment of hypercholesterolemia (an excess of cholesterol in the blood) will delay or prevent atherosclerosis, I can tell you the evidence is not available; however, animal studies suggest that such is the case.

I would recommend that you not wait for conclusive evidence of a link between a high intake of dietary cholesterol and cardio-vascular disease. If your current intake of cholesterol is high, it would be prudent to lower it, even if the absence of definitive proof that is harmful to health.

Dear Dr. Solomon: In the various books and articles you have written, you have stressed the importance of a nutritious, well-balanced diet. Is there any evidence that your efforts, together with those of other health professionals who advocate sound nutrition, have had any effect? — Doris.

Dear Doris: One indirect piece of evidence is contained in an item in the magazine U.S. News & World Report. It indicates that the average American's diet has changed during the past 10 years. In general, more fruit, cheese, and fish are being consumed, and less beef, eggs and milk. I am not suggesting that beef, eggs and milk should be eliminated from the diet; rather, they should be used in moderation, particularly by those who have a high cholesterol level.

Mrs. Daniel's daughter testifies about fight

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — Kimberly Ann Moore's homework was interrupted Jan. 19 by a scream from her mother that brought the 12-year-old from her room to investigate.

She found her stepfather, Price Daniel Jr., and her mother, Vickie, on the floor fighting. Daniel was astride his wife, twisting her arms, when a frightened Kimberly shoved him away.

Daniel pushed the child back and told her to return to her room where she tried to comfort her crying stepbrothers, Franklin Baldwin Daniel, 3, and Marion Price Daniel IV, 1.

Moments later, Daniel — a former Texas House Speaker — lay dead from a gunshot wound in the stomach and in five days Mrs. Daniel was charged with murder. She has pleaded innocent, claiming Daniel beat and threatened her prior to his death.

Kimberly, apparently the only person to witness the fight, revealed what she had seen in a written deposition read into the court record Tuesday in a child custody suit in which Jean Daniel Murph is seeking custody of the two youngest boys.

Mrs. Daniel's daughter from a previous marriage, Kimberly said the Daniels were hitting each other with their fists earlier in the fight and at one point she heard glass breaking.

The girl remembered looking out her bedroom window to see an ambulance arrive and her mother going to meet it.

"Then I didn't want to look outside any more," Kimberly testified in the deposition, read in court by J.C. "Zeke" Zbranek, attorney for Mrs. Murph, Daniel's sister.

Kimberly, who has lived in Dayton with her father, Larry Moore, since the tragedy, also testified she witnessed two other fights between the Daniels.

She said the couple got into one fight because Daniel wanted both television sets on a program he was watching so he could move between two rooms and Mrs. Daniel changed one of the sets to a channel she and the children preferred.

On another occasion, the child said, she saw the adults fighting in their bedroom where Daniel had pinned Mrs. Daniel on a bed with his knee in her stomach.

Kimberly said when the couple stood up and continued fighting, she hit Daniel in the back.

Mrs. Daniel testified earlier that her husband did not provide enough food and clothing, abused the children, sexually fondled Franklin and disinclined to eat meals with the rest of the family.

Under questioning by Richard "Racehorse" Haynes, Mrs. Daniel's attorney, Kimberly testified she had enough food and clothing and knew nothing of her stepfather fondling Franklin.

The girl did recall, however, occasions when Daniel would have a steak dinner in the playroom while the rest of the family ate tuna sandwiches in the kitchen.

Midlanders appointed to UT commission

Three Midlanders were recently appointed to The University of Texas at Austin's Centennial Commission by the university's board of regents, along with 173 other appointees.

James L. Powell of Fort McKavett, chairman of the board of regents, called the commission "a group of outstanding individuals representing a cross-section of citizens of Texas and the university's alumni who have distinguished themselves in their business and professional lives and who have demonstrated a continuing interest in the university."

Appointed to the commission from Midland were Joan Ragsdale Baskin, Tom R. Sealy Jr. and Stanley M. Erskine.

The commission will undertake a serious assessment of the institution during the 1981-83 period which marks the university's first 100 years.

Wales H. Madden Jr. of Amarillo has been named to serve as chairman of the Centennial Commission. He is a former member of the board of regents, a former president of the Ex-Students' Association and has received the Distinguished Alumnus Award. Madden also served on the "Committee of 75," a group of individuals who undertook a similar assessment project for the university in 1958 during the institution's 75th year.

Legislation creating the university was signed in 1881. The cornerstone of the original Main Building was laid in 1882, and the university opened its doors to its first students in September 1883.

The Centennial Commission held its first meetings on the UT Austin campus this past weekend, coinciding with the March 30 commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the signing of legislation which established the University of Texas. Gov. William Clements addressed the group and the commission began its study of the issues and concerns which confront the university.

The commission will recommend priorities and directions for the institution's future in a final report which will be forwarded to the board of regents, the chancellor of The University of Texas System and the president of UT Austin.

An emphasis on planning for the future has been traditional in UT anniversary observances. The Centennial Commission is similar in structure and purpose to the Committee of 75. Members of that committee are honorary members of the Centennial Commission.

Mrs. Baskin graduated with high honors from The University of Texas Plan II Program and was the first recipient of the UT Dads' Association's "Outstanding Woman Student" award. While attending the university, she was active in several campus service organizations and continues her interest through the UT Ex-Students' Association.

She is currently a director of the Midland Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Midland County Library Board and the Midland ISD Advisory Committee for the Gifted and Talented. She has also been active in the Midland Community Theatre, the United Way and Midland Symphony Association, in addition to publishing a collection of mini-plays for primary students.

Sealy, an honorary member of the commission, is a former member and chairman of the board of regents (1951-1975). Having received a law degree from UT, he has practiced law in Midland since 1935.

He is a senior partner in the law firm of Stubbeman, McRae, Sealy, Laughlin & Browder with offices in both Midland and Austin. Sealy has served as a member and of the chairman of the Development Board and the Law School Foundation of the university. He has been presented with the Distinguished Alumnus Award and the Outstanding Alumnus Award of the UT Law School Association.

A director of the Midland National Bank, he is a former Midland City Council member and chairman of the Coordinating Board of Texas College and University Systems.

Erskine, also an honorary member, graduated from UT Austin as a journalism major. He has served as president of the Dad's Association and is an active member of the Ex-Students' Association. A former sports writer for the Austin American, he has been an automobile dealer in Big Lake and Midland for the past 50 years. He is a former member of the Midland City Council and has been president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce and the Midland Country Club. He is the former mayor of Big Lake.

Committee squabble holds up prison plan

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A plan to provide emergency housing for inmates of the state's over-crowded prison system was stalled by a joint legislative committee squabble over a work-release amendment to the measure.

The $35 million bill, pushed by Gov. Bill Clements and passed by both houses, was left in limbo Tuesday when Senate and House conferees adjourned without agreeing on a Senate amendment that would have provided $250,000 for the work-furlough program.

A federal judge has ruled the overcrowding violates of inmates' constitutional rights.

The House has approved Rep. Rodney Tow's bill which asks for the funds to be made available to build prefabricated metal structures that will provide 2,880 beds for the Texas Department of Corrections.

Senators also passed the bill, but added an amendment allowing TDC to spend up to $250,000 of the $35 million for a work-furlough program.

TDC Director W.J. Estelle proposed the program, which would allow 2,500 inmates to live and work outside prison walls.

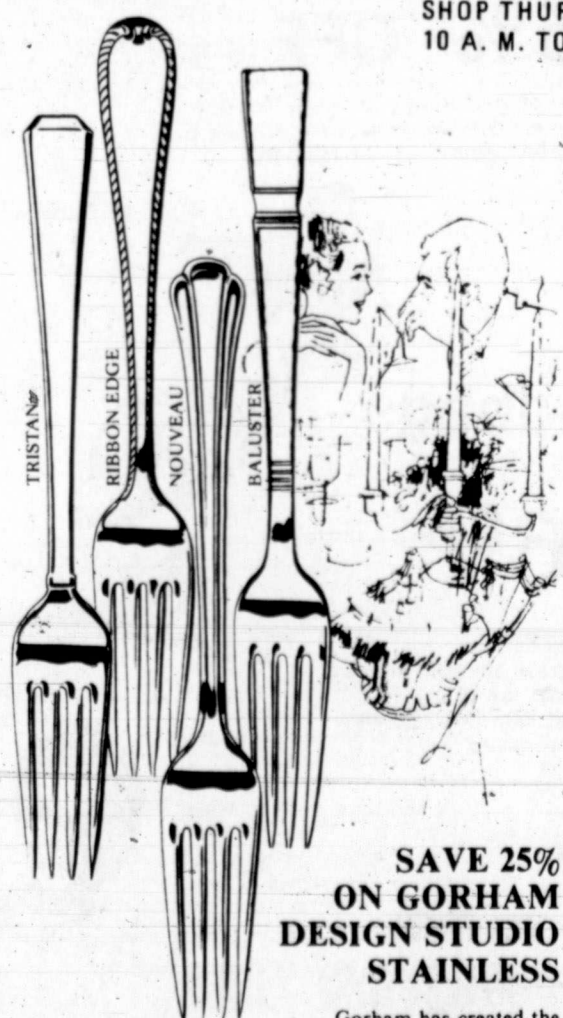

He told the conference committee the program would help relieve overcrowding in the 30,000-inmate system, where up to 3,000 prisoners sleep on the floor.

Clements said he does not like the work-furlough idea, especially since Estelle would be the one to decide who is released. Under the existing parole program, Clements has the final say.

After hearing Estelle's pitch, Rep. Bill Hollowell, D-Grand Saline, moved that the committee adopt the House bill, without the Senate amendment calling for the work-furlough program.

The motion failed when three senators — Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, and Ray Farabee, D-Wichita Falls — voted against it.

Tow, D-Woodlands, also voted against the motion. Reps. Jerry Benedict, D-Angelton; Bob Davis, R-Irving; Hollowell; and Bill Presnal, D-Bryan, voted for it.

Bill tentatively approved

AUSTIN — The House of Representatives Tuesday gave tentative approval to a bill by Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland, that would give regulatory jurisdiction over uranium mining exploration activities to the Surface Mining Division of the Railroad Commission.

House Bill 1413 passed by voice vote on second reading, and will go to a third and final reading today.

HB 1413 would consolidate authority over uranium mining operations in the RRC. Currently, the Texas Department of Water Resources is responsible for control of water pollution resulting from uranium exploration.

The Texas Department of Health would retain its authority to regulate radioactive materials associated with uranium activities.

HB 1413 was recommended by the House Committee on Energy Resources.

Court deals blow to Trudeau's plan

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's drive to bring the Canadian Constitution home from Britain by July 1 has been dealt a setback by a provincial court which ruled he was acting illegally.

The Newfoundland Supreme Court of Appeal said Tuesday that Trudeau must have the consent of Canada's provinces to take any step that would alter the relationship between the provinces and the federal government.

The British House of Commons has held ultimate control of Canada's constitution, the British North America Act, ever since it adopted it in 1867. Trudeau wants the British Parliament to surrender the constitution to Canada but first to amend it with two things on which the provincial governments have been unable to agree for 50 years — a Bill of Rights and a procedure for amendments.

After unsuccessful negotiations with provincial premier last year, Trudeau declared an impasse and announced he would petition Britain directly to amend the document and send it to Canada. But he was supported by only two of Canada's 10 provinces, and six have joined lawsuits to try to stop him.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has promised to endorse any proposal for "patriation," as sending the constitution to Canada is called, that clears the Canadian Parliament. But British legislators have indicated they would be reluctant to approve a proposal that is not backed by the provinces.

After the adverse court ruling Tuesday, Trudeau offered to have the Supreme Court of Canada rule on the issue if Parliament would first give his constitutional package its approval. Trudeau said it is important for the court to have a specific document, not a hypothetical case, on

Belgian price freeze announced

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The Belgian government today announced a one-month freeze on prices as King Baudouin began talks with business, labor and political leaders to try to end the new government crisis.

The price freeze was approved at a brief Cabinet meeting Tuesday at which Premier Wilfried Martens, a 44-year-old Flemish Christian Democrat, decided to tender his coalition government's resignation, Economic Affairs Minister Willy Claes said.

Baudouin is holding the resignation in abeyance while he tries to find a way out of Belgium's seventh government crisis in seven years.

Martens' coalition was shattered when the Socialists refused to back his proposal to freeze wages until Jan. 1 and end the linking of salaries to the cost of living index.

The king met today with the presidents of the Chamber of Representatives and the Senate. Nineteen other politicians, trade unionists and industrialists were on his schedule, and his talks were expected to continue through Thursday.

In a rare public appeal Tuesday, Baudouin urged unity in the face of the nation's worst — a combination of high inflation, rising interest rates, growing unemployment and large budget deficits.

"This is war — war for the maintenance of our economy," the king said to government and industry officials at the royal palace. "In seven years, seven governments have succeeded one another, and that in the most difficult of post-war periods when more than ever we need stability and continuity."

which to rule. Opposition leader Joe Clark, whose Progressive Conservatives are blocking parliamentary action with a filibuster, refused. He said the legislators "can't be asked to pass a matter that has been declared illegal by a supreme court of a province."

The Supreme Court already is to hear an appeal of a pro-Trudeau ruling on the constitution by the Manitoba Court of Appeal. Attorneys said the Manitoba and Newfoundland decisions and another one expected from the Quebec Court of Appeal, could be combined into a single case.

Newfoundland Attorney General Gerald Ottenheimer called on Trudeau Tuesday to give up on his "unconstitutional and illegal objectives and return to the bargaining table."
