

Bradley, last five-star general, dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Gen. Omar Bradley, the last of the nation's great World War II commanders and the last of its five-star generals, has died at the age of 88.

Bradley, a lanky, bespectacled Missourian who commanded U.S. invasion forces on D-Day at Normandy and was the first to chair the Joint Chiefs of Staff, suffered a heart attack Wednesday while attending a dinner at the 21 Club here and was pronounced dead shortly afterward at a hospital.

President Reagan today paid tribute to Bradley as a soldier of "courage, integrity, professionalism and, above all, honor." He said his "conspicuously brilliant leadership... thrust him to the top of the U.S.

military command."

During his 69 years of active duty, the longest service of anyone in U.S. history, Bradley commanded the largest force in U.S. history — 1.3 million men in World War II — and never lost a fight.

But, he once told a congressional committee, "as far as I am concerned, war itself is immoral."

Secretary of the Army John O. Marsh Jr. called Bradley "a great patriot, a peerless military leader and an individual dedicated to the cause of peace in the world."

"With his passing, the army and our nation have lost one of the most devoted and selfless men to ever wear the military uniform," said Army Chief of Staff Gen. E.C. Meyer.

The body of the general was to be flown today aboard a plane from the presidential fleet from Kennedy airport to El Paso, Tex., and then taken to Fort Bliss where he had lived since 1977.

A Pentagon statement said the body would be flown to Washington on Monday and lie in repose at the National Cathedral. A funeral service will be held there at 1 p.m. Tuesday and to be followed by a cortege to Arlington National Cemetery for burial.

Gen. David Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, ordered flags flown at half staff at U.S. bases and on naval vessels in the United States and territorial waters.

The announcement of Bradley's death was made "with great sadness" by Marsh and Meyer.

Bradley, who had come to New York from his Fort Bliss, Texas, home for the dinner of the local chapter of the Association of the United States Army, collapsed in an elevator of the 21 Club, said Bruce Snyder, a club official. Accompanied by his wife, Kitty, and three aides, he was rushed in a private car to the emergency room of St. Luke's-Roosevelt Hospital Center, where doctors tried for 20 minutes to revive him. He was pronounced dead at 7:35 p.m.

A hospital spokesman said doctors listed the cause of death as "cardiac arrest." A Pentagon statement initially said Bradley died of a stroke, but officials later confirmed he had died of cardiac arrest.

Bradley was one of only five men to wear the five stars of a general of the army, a rank created during World War II and held by Gens. Dwight Eisenhower, H.H. Arnold, Douglas MacArthur and George C. Marshall. Eisenhower's death in 1969 left only Bradley still wearing the five stars.

The rank permitted the general to remain on active duty for life, but also to pursue outside interests. Bradley served for 15 years as chairman of the board of the Bulova Watch Co. after leaving the Joint Chiefs post in 1958.

First flight of space shuttle shaping up

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronauts John Young and Bob Crippen paid a pre-dawn visit to launch pad 39A today, inspected the shuttle Columbia and said they are eager to fly the revolutionary spaceship on Friday.

"The forecast is 100 percent good" for liftoff at 6:50 a.m. EST, according to a top space agency official.

The astronauts stopped by the pad at 5 a.m., shortly after a large service structure had been rolled away, leaving Columbia bathed in floodlights, perched on its historic launch site, glistening with promise.

Young and Crippen told the launch crew they are "ready to go" and then climbed aboard executive jets modified to handle like the Columbia to practice emergency landings at a nearby 15,000-foot runway. They would use the strip Friday only if their engines quit early and they can't get into orbit.

The countdown, on time, went into a planned 11 hour 50 minute hold at 4:30 a.m., providing rest time for the launch crews.

Weather conditions, which earlier in the week had been threatening, continued to improve. Today was sunny and calm, and U.S. Air Force weather officers predicted more of the same for Friday.

John Yardley, head of the space shuttle program for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, asked early today about the chances of an on-time Friday launch, said: "They're looking just super. The forecast is 100 percent good."

Young and Crippen were to review flight preparations with launch officials later in the day and then retire in late afternoon. They have a 2:05 a.m. wake-up call on Friday.

"We look forward to the flight," Young said on arrival here Thursday. He then joined Crippen for an hour's aerial acrobatics, flying loop-the-loop aerobatic maneuvers to improve their proficiency for the orbital mission.

On launch pad 39-A, from which Apollo 11 left Earth for man's first walk on the moon, work crews were preparing to load, starting late tonight, more than 500,000 gallons of volatile liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen fuels to drive the shuttle's three main engines.

This nation's future in space — scientifically, commercially and militarily — is riding on Friday's mission.

It is strictly a test flight, with Young and Crippen slated to exercise all of Columbia's complex parts — its flight controls, cargo doors, engines, computers, fuel and life support systems, and its ability to land back on a runway like an airliner.

They are to orbit the Earth 36 times in 54½ hours. But this is the first time a spaceship has been flown by men without first being launched unmanned. So the astronauts are prepared to bring the 80-ton Columbia back to Earth at any time.

With construction hands, it's in the cards

suspected mojados at a Midland construction site. Although the three laborers are Mexican nationals, they exhibit legal resident alien cards and are allowed to continue work.

For Hispanics, it's often a 'skin game'

EDITOR'S NOTE: Many Americans of Mexican descent feel discriminated against as they get caught in the pursuit game between the Border Patrol and illegal aliens. This is the fifth of a six-part series.

Oralia Corrales of the Midland Mexican-American Advisory Committee likes to tell a story.

A group of brown-skinned persons is working in a field in the United States. Many of them are illegal aliens, although one — a young man — is a legal citizen. The swollen sun suddenly reflects from the chrome of a green Border Patrol unit as it slides to a halt in a storm of dust, and dozens of terrified mojados begin to flee.

Seeing his fellow workers and friends stumbling madly across terraced rows and hearing their cries, the young man begins to run too. He runs until his brow is like water, until his heart slams into his ribcage like the thud of a horse's hooves and his side begins to ache. When he finally stops, lung heaving, to bend over with hands on knees, the others turn to him with strange expressions.

"What are you doing running?" they ask him. "We're mojados and have to flee la Migra, but you don't have to run from anybody — you're an American."

"IT'S A TRUE story," says Mrs. Corrales. "It took that to make him realize he was a United States citizen and didn't have to be afraid."

And like that young man, many Americans of Mexican descent feel caught up in the pursuit game between the U.S. Border Patrol and illegal aliens, for brown-skinned persons are not easily identified as citizens at first glance and sometimes feel discriminated against because of it. For example, if Border Patrolmen, under authority recently re-granted them, approach a downtown construction site, it is the person with brown skin — and not the Anglo-American — who is required to verify he is a legal worker.

"I just can't even realize the pressure these people are up against daily having to prove their citizenship," says Mrs. Corrales. "Our people are put in an embarrassing situation because they are constantly harassed to prove they're American citizens. There is no way to tell which place they are from, whether Mexico or the United States, just by looking."

THE SITUATION has made Mexican-American activist Ruben Sandoval of San Antonio red with anger. "I'm very concerned that a bunch of goons will swoop down on a residential area or a given business and make on-the-spot arrests of anyone whom they determine, again on-the-spot, to be quote 'alien-looking,'" he snaps. "And in that category they seldom differentiate between Americans of Mexican descent and Mexican nationals. And that's where the problem lies, because Americans of Mexican descent are entitled to protection under the Fourth Amendment." A Mexican-American man in Midland who wished to be known only as "Seeky" says he has experienced just that kind of harassment. While driving near the Texas-Mexico Border, he was pulled over at a routine Border Patrol checkpoint station. A young agent approached him, he recalls, and asked if he spoke English.

"Sure I do," he remembers saying.

"Where were you born?" he was asked.

"Arizona."

"When?"

"April 10, 1927."

"You got any papers?"

"I don't have to carry any papers — I'm an American. I might have some kind of identification in the car pocket though."

SEEKY SAYS he obtained his armed services honorable discharge and presented it to the agent.

"Where's your passport?" he was asked.

"I don't need a passport — there's my discharge from the United States Army right there."

Seeky says the Border Patrolman looked at him with narrowed eyes. "That's not any good," he recalls the agent as telling him. "I can shoot you for that."

Seeky says he thought he was going to be taken into custody, but fortunately a more experienced Border Patrolman walked up, calmly accepted the discharge papers as proof of citizenship and allowed him to drive away.

SOME MEXICAN-AMERICANS are not so lucky. If Border Patrol agents are unable to ascertain the validity of their citizenship claims, they may be detained until such time as they can.

"We don't talk to many people who aren't illegal aliens," claims Border Patrolman Charles Hensley of Big Spring. "I don't see it as infringing on anybody's rights...but there's always five or 10 or so that resent authority of any kind."

Roger Robles, who represented the Mexican-American Advisory Committee on Education, feels to single out brown-skinned persons in the search for illegal aliens is unjust.

"In this particular instance they're looking specifically for Mexican aliens, but are they going to do this here for...aliens from other countries, like Canada?" he asks rhetorically, noting that Anglo-Americans are not forced to prove their citizenship in this region. "(The Border Patrol) must search for all aliens, not just Mexican-Americans."

Robles says a very sensitive situation arises when "they just start coming in looking for Mexican-Americans."

DUE TO EDUCATIONAL limitations and monetary considerations, many Mexican-Americans take jobs in businesses that are liable to — and increasingly subjected to — re-imposed raids by the Border Patrol.

"I'd say 50 percent of our Mexican-American labor market is work-

Reagan's day called 'best yet'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, free from an evening fever for the first time in five days, is experiencing his "best day yet" in the hospital, his doctor said today.

Reagan, who has been working about two hours a day, is under doctors' orders to work no more than that when he returns to the White House.

His return now is expected between Friday and Monday.

The White House press office, which has cut its formal bulletins on the president's health to one a day, said this morning the president "had no fever last night when he went to bed or this morning" after he awoke about 6 a.m.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan's visitors today would include the minority leaders of the Senate and House, Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., and Rep. Robert Michel, R-Ill., as well as Treasury Secretary Donald Regan.

The president spent 20 minutes with his three top aides this morning, twice as long as usual, Speakes said, discussing foreign policy issues.

The three are presidential counsel — Edwin Meese III, chief of staff James A. Baker III and deputy chief of staff Michael K. Deaver.

Speakes also said the president had been given an advance copy of a speech Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, will deliver in Chicago later today outlining the Democrats' tax cut plan, which would be an alternative to the administration's.

Rostenkowski, D-Ill., is expected to call for a tax cut that is both more complex and about $11 billion smaller than the administration version.

Speakes, relaying word from Dr. Daniel Ruge that "this is the president's best day yet," said Reagan was receiving on a daily basis a report from the State Department, and well as reports on White House mail, policy recommendations from his cabinet councils and personnel recommendations.

In addition, Speakes said Reagan was being briefed "extensively" on the progress of his economic program in the House and Senate.

Asked about the president's appearance and whether he was looking drawn, Speakes said "there has been some weight loss."

Reagan's temperature was "essentially normal" during the day

Wednesday — an indication he was still running some fever.

The president's temperature first rose above normal last Friday and, though sometimes normal, had been above normal every evening. Until today, the White House bulletins never used the word "fever" and spokesmen declined to reveal the exact reading of the thermometer, using only such terms as a "moderately" above-normal temperature.

The president spent a "restful" night, the White House said.

There's more to this ring than the gold in it and the diamond on it. Peace Justice Robert H. "Bob" Pine, left, lost the Masonic ring 25 years ago in his backyard. And just recently, Max Edgar, right, uncovered it.

Man 'calls up' long lost ring

Former owner of house, ring pleased

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Twenty-five years ago, Robert H. "Bob" Pine lost a Masonic gold ring to the grave...or so he thought.

His wife had given him the gold band, adorned with a diamond solitaire, on his 41st birthday on June 27 back in 1956.

Not long afterward, he lost the ring and his pet dog and, naturally enough, pined.

"I buried a dog back there (in the backyard), and I was afraid I had lost it (the ring) in the grave," said Pine, who now is wearing the ring for the first time in 25 years. "But I wasn't going to dig the dog up."

The grave was never opened.

The dog, Gretchen, the street-brave dachshund, presumably is still at rest; her bones were not to be disturbed after her home-plot burial.

She was mortally injured in street traffic near the Pines' two-story English-style red brick house at 1406 W. Indiana Ave. in late summer or early fall of the year Pine received the gift. A veterinarian, Dr. Stephen Shannon, vainly tried to save the dying Gretchen.

The ring was loose on Pine's wedding finger when he first wore the golden band; it's still loose 25 years later.

"I thought he lost it on the golf course," speculated Mrs. Pine.

Now, however, she thinks her husband, the judge, might be right.

Just recently, the new owners of the old Pine house discovered a gold ring while leveling out a corner backyard area, which holds the root remains of an old tree and Gretchen's bones.

There, Max Edgar spied a shining ring amid his "shoveling and raking" to smooth over the area in landscaping the yard. He and his wife Virginia are the second owners of the old sturdy house since the Pines sold the residence in the late 1970s and moved into an apartment.

Man evaluated

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — A 21-year-old man was being evaluated at a medical center today after allegedly holding his estranged wife hostage for more than 10 hours — allegedly the second such incident involving the couple in three weeks, officials said.

No one was injured and no charges were filed in Wednesday's standoff at a shopping center health spa.

And the first person Edgar telephoned about the golden find was Pine, a former office-supply owner who now is a Midland County justice of the peace.

"He (Pine) described it right to a 'T' and almost fell over," said Edgar, who seemed about as delighted to turn the ring over to its rightful owner as Pine was to receive it. "It's a beautiful thing," Edgar, a petroleum engineer, said.

Pine was pleased.

"There's a few honest people in the world, aren't there?" allowed Pine.

Pine thanked Edgar more than once.

"I appreciate your finding my ring for me," said the judge.

"Well, I'm glad," said the finder who chose not to keep.

"I missed it," said the judge.

"It's a beautiful thing," said Edgar.

Pine again expressed his gratitude.

"He (Edgar) is a real nice man," Pine said in his typically low-key manner. "Of course, I got my ring back, but that wasn't the thing. He was a gentleman."

Pine said the ring was and is his prized piece of jewelry.

"I've got two or three rings, but that's the one I like the most. My wife gave it to me."

Over the years, Pine became increasingly certain that he had lost the ring while burying Gretchen.

"I was sure that's where (in or about the grave) the ring was lost."

But he hadn't the inclination to open the grave and look and feel around.

But his office secretary, Geraldine Bowers, speculated that were she in a similar situation, she would have dared to dig.

"Dog or no dog," Ms. Bowers said, "if I thought I had lost a beautiful ring, I'd do it (open the grave). I might have waited awhile."

Pine's wait was rewarded.

General Bradley's death mourned across Texas

By STEVE BREWER
Associated Press Writer

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Texas congressmen, local officials and Army officers who knew Gen. Omar Bradley mourned Wednesday after learning of the general's death in New York at the age of 88.

"The last of our great World War II commanders has crossed the river to join a distinguished company," said Sen. John Tower, R-Texas. "His countrymen and free men everywhere will reflect on his monumental service and mourn his passing."

Gen. Chester Ward, commanding general of the William Beaumont Army Medical Center in El Paso, described Bradley as "one of the most impressive individuals I've ever had the opportunity to know."

Ward, who has been one of Bradley's physicians since he took over at Beaumont eight months ago, said the general was generally in good health for a person his age despite the series of strokes that had wracked his body.

"Everything considered, he was in pretty good shape," Ward said. "He was a superb patient. He was cooperative and had an understanding of what's going on and was appreciative."

Ward said Bradley enjoyed entertaining listeners with tales of his war adventures.

"But he didn't tell what we call 'war stories,'" Ward said. "He was much more of a historian. There was no bravado, no exaggeration. He certainly had some interesting situations to recount."

"He had an ability to communicate with a wide range of people, particularly young people," he added. "You know, a lot of old people have trouble talking with people who are in their 20s. But we were at one function recently and there was a bunch of them gathered around him mesmerized."

"He was the epitome of a great soldier," Ward said. "He probably was one of the greatest logisticians in military history."

Tower, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and U.S. Rep. Richard White, D-El Paso, all issued statements praising Bradley and expressing their sympathy to his family.

White called Bradley "a friend to the foot soldier, and more parochially, a friend to El Paso."

Bradley and his wife Kitty moved to El Paso in November 1977 from their Beverly Hills, Calif., home. El Pasoans treated Bradley as a local celebrity, honoring him frequently for a career that spanned more than half a century.

El Paso Mayor Tom Westfall said the city had given Bradley "almost every honor the city has, but I am sure we will have a complete day of mourning. It has been a great, great honor for El Paso to have been the home for this great soldier."

For some, the memories of Bradley were from earlier years.

Paul Griego of nearby Las Cruces, N.M., was wounded and taken to a Paris hospital while a master sergeant in World War II. His memory of Bradley was of the general presenting him with a Silver Star and the Purple Heart, telling him, "You're a good soldier."

Brig. Gen. Willie Scott, adjutant general of the Texas National Guard, also met Bradley in Europe during World War II.

"He was a soldier's general," Scott said. "He was a great symbol ... the last of our great World War II generals."

For others, the memories were more recent and more personal.

Richard Knowles, former assistant chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said Bradley "was the type of person who would always remember your name."

Gen. Omar Bradley, who led a million U.S. soldiers in World War II, died Wednesday in a New York hospital. He was 88.

He was so comfortable to be with."

"He was very active not only in the military sense but throughout the community of El Paso and the world," said retired Lt. Gen. R.L. Shoemaker of El Paso. "He was crippled by a series of strokes, but he never gave up."

Bradley was an avid worker throughout his long career and spent several hours each day in his sand-colored office at nearby Fort Bliss.

Judge asked to rule on Iran suit

DALLAS (AP) — Attorneys for H. Ross Perot's Electronic Data Systems have asked a federal judge for a summary judgment on their contention that part of the agreement made with Iran to free 52 U.S. hostages early this year should be set aside.

U.S. District Judge Robert Porter is expected to make his decision Friday. Attorneys for EDS asked Porter for a ruling invalidating that part of the hostage agreement limiting damage suits against Iran.

In May of 1980 EDS won a $19 million judgment against the Social Security Organization of Iran, the Ministry of Health and Welfare of Iran and the Iranian government. A hearing on Iran's appeal of that decision is scheduled for April 20 before the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

After the hostages were freed in January, EDS asked the courts to let the $19 million judgement be finalized, despite a provision in the hostage agreement forbidding such suits.

That agreement further provided for transfer of all Iranian deposits in U.S. banks within six months. Half the funds will go to Iran and the other half — up to $1 billion — will be placed in a security account to pay claims decided by a proposed Iranian-U.S. tribunal.

The government contends the hostage agreement and the executive orders signed by then president Jimmy Carter which implemented it are valid. But EDS argues the agreement is unconstitutional and does not apply to its case against Iran because the judgment came before Nov. 14, 1979, when Carter froze Iranian assets in the U.S.

EDS also obtained an attachment against Iranian assets at a New York bank before that date, and the government has agreed that attachment is not affected by the freeze order.

Space shuttle

It'll be a blast that's soon to be routine

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — So what's the big deal? What's so different about the space shuttle? Well, for one thing, they won't stick it into a museum after its first flight. It will be used again and again. In fact, the idea is to make trips into space as routine as an airline flight from Milwaukee to Denver.

of Apollo, there were moon rocks too. But the only thing a capsule was good for was show. Its plumbing and electronics were shot by salt water. The space shuttle, on the other hand, has wings to let it glide to earth and wheels to ease it down. Astronaut Robert Crippen says that's a lot more dignified than being retrieved from the water like a piece of driftwood.

The space shuttle with orbiter is made a superstar by a special filter as it sits poised and ready on pad 39-A early today, waiting for its liftoff Friday morning for a 54-hour mission with two astronauts aboard.

TV coverage extensive

NEW YORK (AP) — Live television coverage of the first orbital flight of the space shuttle Columbia will begin as early as 5 a.m. CST Friday, with periodic reports planned through the landing at midday Sunday.

Weather still favorable

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The sky above Florida's space coast was sunny and calm today and weather conditions were expected to be favorable for Friday's dawn launch of the space shuttle Columbia.

Midland, area towns due more warm temperatures

Warm temperatures reigned over the Tall City Wednesday, and similar conditions are forecast for Friday, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

The high Wednesday surged to 84, which still fell far short of the record high of 95 set in 1963. This morning's low of 53 degrees didn't come near the record 20-degree mark set in 1973.

Friday's high temperature is expected to hit 90 degrees.

Conditions should continue to be windy through Friday, with gusts expected to surpass the steady 15-20 mph gale which will greet Permian Basin residents.

Spring rains have failed to arrive yet, and the yearly total remains fixed on 1.79 inches.

Showers and thunderstorms were forecast today for South Texas and portions of North Central Texas.

The remainder of the state was to have mostly clear skies with continued high humidity and warm temperatures. Highs were to be in the 80s except in Southwest Texas where highs were to reach into the 90s.

Mostly cloudy skies were reported over the eastern half of the state and mostly clear skies were noted over the western half. A few light showers fell during the night and into the early morning hours in South Central Texas and Southeast Texas, but the activity was light and scattered with no reports of significant rainfall.

Early morning temperatures covered a wide range, from the 40s and 50s in the western half of the state to the 60s and low 70s in the eastern half. Extremes ranged from 41 at Marfa to 73 at both McAllen and Houston.

Heavy thunderstorms rumbled across parts of the South early today, with scattered thunderstorms forecast from the central Appalachians and the middle Atlantic Coast to the lower Mississippi Valley.

Showers were expected to continue falling over the Northeast and the Great Lakes while rain spread from the Pacific Northwest to produce snow over the Northern Rockies.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 a.m. EST ranged from 27 in Dickinson, N.D. to 75 in Key West, Fla.

Here are reports from the National Weather Service for some key cities: East: Atlanta 65 cloudy, Boston 52 fair, Buffalo 57 fair, Charleston, S.C. 58 cloudy, Cincinnati 64 windy, Cleveland 64 windy, Detroit 62 windy, Miami 73 fair, Nashville 66 showers, New York 50 fair, Philadelphia 54 fair, Washington 67 windy.

West: Albuquerque 47 fair, Anchorage 36 fair, Los Angeles 57 hazy, Phoenix 71 fair, Salt Lake City 43 fair, San Diego 60 fair, San Francisco 50 fair.

Canada: Montreal 57 cloudy, Toronto 63 showers.

Sheriff unhappy about outcome of case

By ED TODD Staff Writer

Sheriff Dallas Smith was chagrined last Wednesday when the Midland County Grand Jury failed to return an indictment on a former secretary who admitted to "borrowing" $3,000 in bail money from the sheriff's safe.

She needed the money to pay household bills. The sheriff was not understanding or forgiving.

"All I'm doing is investigating it," said Smith, "and presenting it to the grand jury like I do any other case."

But the sheriff got more involved in this case than he does in others.

The case was against 23-year-old Evelyn Smith, whom the sheriff described as a "courthouse secretary" assigned to his office for the past 2 1/2 years. Her job entailed keeping track of cash bail money paid by defendants to ensure their appearance in court. Only the secretary and two others, including the sheriff, knew the combination to the safe in the basement of the Midland County Courthouse.

The 12-member grand jury considered the case last week and again Wednesday and "no billed" the Smith woman, who bears no relation to the sheriff.

Grand jury actions are held in secrecy, are sacrosanct and are not subject to redress by the sheriff, the district attorney or by the courts.

At least nine members of the 12-person jury must be in unanimous agreement before a "guilty" or "not guilty" verdict can be rendered. "We (the sheriff and Sgt. Tommy Jones) presented it to the grand jury," Smith said of the case. "I was saying there is...something wrong here."

"Understand it very clearly," the sheriff cautioned, "that I think she should be charged with a crime, because that's what our laws say (about embezzlement and theft)."

"However, I can only present the investigation to the grand jury," Smith lamented. "And the grand jury does decide whether to indict or not... but, I did my part."

The sheriff had assigned Jones, a criminal investigator, to the case after he had fired the secretary and given her a two-week notice. That was in mid-March. But the sheriff declined to reveal reasons for her termination for fear of violating the U.S. Privacy Act; her job termination had nothing to do with the missing bail money, which was not discovered

"I've done my part. Still, this girl worked for me, and we thought she ought to be subject to the law like anybody else." — Sheriff Dallas Smith

"shorted" until after the firing.

But after Ms. Smith was handed her pink slip, the sheriff launched an in-house audit, which he said, is a routine procedure invoked when a sheriff's employee who handled office funds is leaving the job.

The sheriff said that "roughly" $3,000 had been taken from the safe, but that Ms. Smith had made a desperate effort to replace the funds after she was made aware of the impending audit. The secretary had replaced $800 of the $3,000 which she told the sheriff she took from the safe to "pay bills."

Her job paid about $12,000 a year.

DEATHS Evans Dunn

Evans Dunn, 31, of 3001 Racquet Club, died Wednesday night.

Services will be at 4 p.m. Friday in the Newline W. Ellis Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. Derrick Manley of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity officiating. Burial will be in Fairview Cemetery.

Dunn was born June 5, 1949 in Midland, where he was raised. He graduated from Florida Central Academy in Orlando, Fla., in 1968 and served in the South Pacific during the Vietnam conflict.

Survivors include his mother, Frances Metcalfe of Midland; his father, Evans H. Dunn, Sr., of Tulsa, Okla.; two sisters, Gerri Dunn of Tulsa, Okla., and Kathy Nydegger of Anchorage, Alaska; and a brother, George Dunn of Midland.

The family requests memorials be directed to Palmer Drug Abuse Program of Midland-Odessa, 305 N. Baird, Midland 79701.

Big Spring man undergoes autopsy

BIG SPRING — An autopsy has been performed on the body of an 82-year-old Big Spring man who perished in an arson-related fire here Tuesday.

Charlie Beard died shortly before 10 a.m. when his home at 404 West Bell became engulfed in flames.

Fire Marshall Carl Dorton said results of the autopsy should be available within a day or so.

nal deed a crime and a betrayal of public fiduciary trust.

"I assigned it (the case) to an officer (Jones) just like I would any other case," the sheriff said.

But unlike any other case, the sheriff was more interested in this one "because an employee was involved."

The sheriff is assured that he has satisfied his duty in the case, which apparently is closed unless new evidence is introduced.

"I've done my part," the sheriff said. "Still, this girl worked for me, and we thought she ought to be subject to the law like anybody else."

"She returned the funds," Sheriff Smith admitted. "She said she had taken the funds. She had needed the funds (to pay bills)."

Reagan may still find tax cuts tough

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lyndon B. Johnson, that master tactician, worked wonders on Capitol Hill, riding herd on the House and Senate in the wake of John F. Kennedy's assassination to push through his "Great Society" legislation.

Will Ronald Reagan, whose lobbying skills are unproven, be able to garner a similar "sympathy vote" after an assassination attempt? Will he, like Johnson, ride to success on Capitol Hill with a program that could mean a sharp turnaround in the direction of the federal government?

"A wounded president sitting in a hospital is in the bulliest of all pulpits," said one Capitol Hill observer. "He can use that." In the days since Reagan was shot, there has been only one major test. On an 88-10 vote, the Senate approved $36.9 billion in cuts from the 1982 budget.

But that was hardly a demonstration of sympathy for the president. The cuts were destined, even before the shooting 10 days ago, to win overwhelming support in a Senate ruled by Reagan's own Republican Party.

"They had that going pretty well," said a lobbyist who has kept close tabs on the legislation. "Reagan was going to get everything he wanted," said one congressional aide.

Both agree the president faces a much tougher test in winning approval of his proposals to cut business and personal income taxes over the next three years. The Democrats are willing to commit themselves only to a one-year tax cut.

One well-informed member of the White House staff said the assassination attempt "clearly is a big plus for the president's program and for Reagan himself."

Speaking with the understanding that he would not be identified, this source said, "Before this, he was regarded as an amiable guy, the nation's grandfather. Now he's a national hero."

Indeed, a public opinion survey taken a day after the assassination attempt said the president's popularity had jumped 11 percent. In the lobbyist's view, that jump will not go unnoticed in the House and Senate.

"Those guys respond to the attitudes of their constituents," he said. "I don't think there's any question about sympathy."

But, referring to what he perceived as a reluctance to compromise on the part of the Reagan forces, he said: "I still think he's going to have one helluva hard time on the personal tax cut."

"They're doing an excellent job on the communication. They've got good operations," he said. "Their biggest problem is they're too darn rigid. They're stonewalling."

As evidence, he pointed to the problems House Budget Committee Chairman James Jones, D-Okla., ran into when he tried to get several leading House Republicans together in an informal session to work out a joint budget proposal.

The House members were willing to talk, but Reagan's budget director, David A. Stockman, headed off the session. He took to the White House press room and said "there's far less there than meets the eye."

Lyndon Johnson wouldn't have done that, said the lobbyist, a Democrat who worked in the Johnson administration.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. told reporters that "Jones had an idea he could put together a bipartisan budget. Stockman killed anything of that nature."

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes, who has become the administration's chief spokesman with press secretary James S. Brady recovering from wounds suffered in the March 30 attack, echoes periodically the White House line: "We think the program is clearly going to rise or fall on its merits, and the merits warrant passage."

But he conceded that with Reagan sidelined — and unlikely to play a major role until he makes a nationally televised speech for his tax-cut plan sometime after April 15 — the administration faces some kind of a setback.

"For the time being, we're without our best salesman of the package, but we know he'll be back soon and moving ahead on it," Speakes said. "I don't see any lost momentum, because in a matter of weeks, the president will be back in the saddle and operating at almost full speed."

Democrats in the House of Representatives now have submitted their long-awaited alternative to President Ronald Reagan's economic package. They're calling for overall spending cuts about $4 billion deeper than those recommended by the president. But, then, they're talking about a smaller tax cut and definitely not the three-year, across-the-board tax cut to total 30 percent that Reagan wants.

Furthermore, the Democrats say, their alternative will result in a balanced federal budget in the 1983 fiscal year — a full year prior to even the Reagan administration's target.

The Democrats are even turning Republican rhetoric back at the Republicans, calling on them to "put aside partisan urges in order to swiftly pass this budget." Well, we have heard that line before.

What the politicians apparently fail to realize is that, for the most part, voters really aren't interested in who will get the credit for bringing the nation's runaway economy back under control. Voters want action, not lip service.

The political philosophies at play in the economic recovery debate are just about as partisan and as clearly-defined as one would expect. Do we propose to get out of our current monetary woes by increasing taxes or by reducing spending? Where do we make spending cuts and how deeply can we go (at least without damaging constituencies or special interests)? Would a spending cut encourage savings or would it merely add fire to inflation through increased consumer spending?

Those are questions that hopefully can be answered as the economic recovery debate continues. Certainly a long-term recovery is much preferable to stop-gap measures that only offer minimal, short-term relief from the economic headaches of the day.

But at this point in the nation's economic slump, even some short-term relief undoubtedly would be appreciated.

Who's right? Which political party will win the Great Economic Debate of 1981 and serve up the magic formula for a resumption of the nation's prosperity?

That question remains to be answered. Most voters probably don't really care, as long as relief is forthcoming.

Lukewarm socialism

The claim by Britain's new Social Democratic Party to offer a middle-of-the-road alternative to extremists of the left and right is an attempt to revise recent history. In fact, the party advocates nothing more than lukewarm socialism.

This new political entity was formed by 12 former Labor members of Parliament who bolted when Marxist extremists captured formal control of the Labor Party earlier this year. The new Social Democrats advocate an old Laborite mix of private and state-run enterprises, redistribution of wealth, support of NATO and the European Common Market.

Indeed, until the Marxists took over, the Labor Party platform was practically identical with that of the new group. The Social Democrats argue that they didn't leave Labor but Labor left them. They are middle-of-the-roads only by comparison with some outright Communists who now dominate Labor. But their leftist tilt is all the more apparent since the political center of gravity moved distinctly rightward in 1979 when voters returned the Conservative Party to power by a large majority.

Despite the emptiness of their claim to the political center, however, the Social Democrats offer an attractive alternative to Laborite constituencies. With a new party to turn to, voters are even less likely on some future day to return to power the now Marxist-led Labor Party.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Oil overcharge collections threatened

WASHINGTON — President Reagan not only has deregulated the oil industry; in effect, he has also granted oil companies amnesty for their illegal price gouges. This will save the companies a staggering sum, estimated between $11 billion and $15 billion, on top of the enormous profits that already are overwhelming their corporate coffers.

Apparently, the president didn't intend to dump all this additional lucre, like manna from Washington, on the oil profiteers. But under price controls, the major oil companies overcharged consumers by billions of dollars. Now Reagan's budget cutters are about to let some of the biggest offenders off the hook.

The budget slashers have eviscerated the Energy Department's enforcement office, which has already identified billions in overcharges that should be repaid by the greedy oil producers.

The prospect of a toothless government watchdog nipping at its heels has already had a predictable effect on Big Oil. Texaco and Champlin have backed out of negotiations for settling their overcharges. Union, Shell and Farmland, which orally agreed to settle, are now holding back on signing agreements. There are still $7.5 billion in unsettled civil claims against Exxon, Gulf, Arco, Mobil, Texaco, Conoco and other major oil companies.

The budget people, apparently so obsessed with saving a few million dollars before their eyes that they are blind to the billions of dollars that will be lost, have cut the enforcement office's budget from $44 million to $6 million.

This doesn't make sense even if the only objective were to balance the government's books. For one of the major beneficiaries of the compliance program has been the U.S. government, itself a big oil user. According to an internal study, the enforcement section has already returned $300 million to the Treasury; another $325 million could be expected by 1982 — if the enforcement budget is kept intact.

Shouldn't it be obvious that it would pay to spend $44 million to retrieve $325 million for the government, let alone the billions that the defrauded consumers would collect? This was pointed out to budget boss David Stockman by lawyers for the transportation industry. Their clients are entitled to $5 billion to $8 billion in overcharges, which the enforcement office will now be powerless to collect.

But the frustrated lawyers came away convinced that Stockman is putting ideology above common sense. Sources told my reporter Sharon Geltner he stubbornly insisted that the goal of cutting the federal budget is paramount to any return that can be made from moneymaking compliance efforts.

So Stockman's ideologues are still clinging to their philosophical hard line. As one budget official wrote Energy Secretary James Edwards, keeping the compliance office at full budget "perpetuates (the) image of existing regulatory efforts," which are anathema to the budget ideologues.

This raises another multibillion-dollar question: How are the oil tycoons spending their fabulous profits? Remember their anguished testi-

ART BUCHWALD

Give 'em three squirts just to get their attention

Art Buchwald

Don't believe what you read about Hollywood. From the recent stories in the newspapers and magazines, everybody in show business is into cocaine. It's not true. They're into Mace. For those who don't follow self-defense, Mace is a gas that can paralyze an attacker for as long as three hours.

To hear people out in Los Angeles tell it, Southern California is now more dangerous than El Salvador, and no one knows when he or she is going to be assaulted.

On my visit there last week, all the table conversation had to do with burglar alarm systems, private police services, but mostly Mace.

There are hundreds of classes being held all over town in the use of the gas, and you have to go to school for 2½ hours before you can be licensed to carry a Mace can in your handbag or your pants pocket.

I didn't realize how nervous everyone was until I went to visit a producer friend of mine named Alain Bernheim at MGM Studios.

His secretary asked suspiciously, "Do you have an appointment?"

I said, "No," and she took a can out of her desk and gave me two squirts in the face. I hit the floor for an hour and a half. When Bernheim finally revived me, he apologized. "I'm sorry," he said. "She's new on the job. She is supposed to use a karate blow to your neck first."

He took me to lunch in the studio commissary.

The head waiter asked us if we had a reservation and Bernheim said, "No, I forgot to call."

The head waiter whistled twice, and two Doberman pinschers leaped out of the kitchen and went for our throats. Fortunately, Billy Wilder, the director, who speaks German, called them off and let us sit at his table.

"Things are really tough out here," I said.

"You have to be on your toes," Walter Matthau said. "Last week they let in a guy without a reservation and he mugged two stunt men right in front of the salad bar."

Jack Lemmon came over to the table and I got up to shake hands with him. Two private security guards jumped me from behind and wrestled me to the floor.

"It's OK, boys, he's a friend," Jack said. "But nice work anyway."

Bernheim excused himself to call his house to find out if everything was safe, and then came back to the table. "Marge Maced the grocery delivery boy by mistake and had to take him to the hospital."

"How many squirts?" Matthau asked.

"Two."

"We always give our grocery boy three," he said. "Everyone in the neighborhood squirts him when he comes to the back door, and now two shots from the can doesn't even faze him."

After lunch, I decided to go shopping in Beverly Hills. I went to a very fancy store on Rodeo Drive.

"Can I help you?" a salesman asked.

"I'm just looking," I said.

He took out his can of Mace and was about to let me have it.

"Wait," I cried, "I have a credit card."

He took the card and said, "It better be good or you're a dead duck."

I left the store as fast as I could and went back to the Beverly Wilshire Hotel. They were holding a Mace class in the ballroom and I signed up for the course. In 2½ hours I had my own Mace can. I went upstairs and waited patiently. At five the knock came on the door.

"Who is it?" I said.

"It's me, honey," my wife said.

I put the chain on the door and opened it two inches and went, "Squirt, Squirt, Squirt."

When she finally woke up and asked me why I did it, I told her, "In L.A., it's every man for himself."

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, April 9, the 99th day of 1981. There are 266 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On April 9, 1865, Confederate Gen. Robert E. Lee surrendered to Union Gen. Ulysses S. Grant to end the Civil War.

On this date: In 1940, German forces invaded Norway and Denmark in World War II.

In 1949, the International Court of Justice delivered its first decision, holding Albania responsible for incidents in Corfu Channel and awarding damages to Britain.

In 1970, the death toll was put at 73 in a gas explosion and fire at a subway construction site in Osaka, Japan.

Ten years ago: Members of the U.S. table-tennis team entered China from Hong Kong. They were the first Americans to visit mainland China as a group since the mid-1950s.

Five years ago: The United States and Soviet Union agreed on the proposed text of a treaty to limit the size of underground nuclear tests for peaceful purposes.

Thought for today: Courage is the first of human qualities because it is the quality which guarantees all the others. — Sir Winston Churchill, British statesman (1874-1965)

For the Holy Spirit shall teach you in that very hour what ye ought to say. Luke 12: 12

A CHANGING WORLD

John Glenn's political career might enter orbit in '84

In the spring of 1962, a joint session of Congress heard these words: "As our knowledge of this universe increases, may God grant us the wisdom and guidance to use it wisely."

They were the words of one John Herschel Glenn Jr., who on Feb. 20 of that year had become a national hero as the first American to orbit the earth. He became our first genuine peacetime hero since Charles A. Lindbergh thrilled the world with his May 1927 solo flight from New York to Paris.

Now Glenn, to become 60 this coming July 21, is a second-term U.S. senator and a member of the Foreign Relations Committee. A sense of his popularity, at least in his home state of Ohio, may be gained from the fact that in 1980 he was re-elected by 1,282,829 votes at the same time that his fellow Democrat, President Jimmy Carter, was losing to Ronald Reagan by 457,986 votes.

What does all this mean in 1981? It means a great deal in the context of what already is feverish Democratic Party activity aimed at 1982 congressional elections and particularly the 1984 run for president — times when the Democrats hope to recover from and reverse the shattering defeats they suffered last November.

While Lyn Nofziger, President Reagan's No. 1 political consultant, plus other GOP leaders deny it, the chances are good that Mr. Reagan will be a one-term president. He will be in his mid-70s at the end of his current term, and that may be too old for another run, both for himself and for an electorate that is becoming more volatile with each succeeding election.

The Democrats are considering these factors and they are busy planning, under the leadership of their new national chairman, Charles T. Manatt of California. While still reeling from the Reagan landslide, they see an opportunity for revival, at least by 1984.

Who do they have to run for president? They have Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and they have ex-Vice President Walter S. Mondale as the representatives of the fading old-school variety of almost decadent professional politicians.

The Democrats also understand that the old politics doesn't win as easily or as often as it once did. They know that two of the most successful non-political politicians of recent years have been Dwight D. Eisenhower and Ronald Reagan.

They know that Mondale represents the same old cliches and liberal rhetoric. They know that Kennedy's support is not necessarily on the ascendancy. His divorce, even in these permissive times, and his other rather reckless deviations from "presidential" conduct have not served him well.

On the other hand, even though the big shot Democrats have a tough time swallowing the idea, there is the matter of picking someone slightly "above" politics, someone with the enduring national popularity of a man like Glenn, someone who might capture the American imagination as Eisenhower and Mr. Reagan did.

Glenn is the 1981 version of "Mr. Clean" and that ain't all bad in these days of sordid congressional behavior. More than that, he is showing increasing evidence of being a man who might just like to make a run for the presidency. By election time in 1984 he will be 63 and Mr. Reagan certainly has provided a precedent for a "senior citizen" presidency.

Glenn is going far beyond the limits of the national capital and the state of Ohio in his speech-making. He also is getting far more active in Senate committee work than he was in his first term. Even as a sometime conservative and a man of restrained, almost Boy Scout, language, he couldn't resist the outcry "horsefeathers" when Secretary of State Alexander Haig made a rather ridiculous response to a Foreign Relations hearing question.

Glenn definitely fits the "winner" mold. Even Democratic Party professional leaders must know that the liberal of the Mondale and Kennedy persuasion is down the drain for at least the next few years.

It will be interesting to watch Glenn in the next year or two. Even though disarmingly friendly and relaxed in manner, the American public is likely to hear from him more profound words on national issues like those of his 1962 congressional "debut."

Whoever his opponent may be in primary, party convention or national election, he will be tough to beat in 1984. The country is sick of old-style politics and politicians and Glenn's national hero role, even though nearly 20 years old, has staying power and is his most valuable asset.

"Punk" rock singer Wendy O. Williams, left, nervously chews a pencil as she listens to testimony during the first day of her obscenity trial in Cleveland. The jury earlier saw a tape of her performance where she allegedly performed nude except for a covering of shaving cream. At her right is one of her attorneys, Tim Marshall.

Punk rock singer acquitted

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Wendy L. Williams, lead singer of the Plasmatics rock group, was found innocent today of an obscenity charge.

"Thank you so much, thank you," she told the five-man and three-woman jury that returned the verdict in Cleveland Municipal Court after three hours of deliberation.

Miss Williams had been charged with pandering obscenity as a result of a performance in Cleveland's Agora nightclub on Jan. 21.

She said after the verdict that she would consider coming back to Cleveland.

"We play our music all over the world. We've been doing the same show for three years and will continue to do it," she said.

Miss Williams, 31, was charged with pandering obscenity after appearing on stage with only shaving cream covering her breasts and simulating masturbation and other sexual activity, prosecutors alleged.

She said today that she's never appeared on stage nude.

The charge, a first-degree misdemeanor, was filed after eight undercover policemen watched The Plasmatics perform in the Agora night club Jan. 21. A videotape of the show made by a WKYC-TV cameraman was shown to jurors Wednesday.

Defense lawyer Patrick D'Angelo said the singer was exercising her rights of freedom of speech and expression and did nothing that can't be seen on TV or in commercial films.

"I really can't believe why we are here today," D'Angelo said. "Maybe the performance doesn't conform with your taste or my taste, but it's not a criminal act."

Patrolman Ron Bero of the city's vice squad testified he saw Miss Williams wearing only shaving cream above her waist and that the cream later evaporated. He said she simulated sex acts with a microphone.

TESCO details its incentives plan

Texas Electric Service Co. released details Wednesday of its program to provide financial incentives to customers who replace worn or obsolete air conditioning and water heating equipment with more energy-efficient equipment.

The plan, called the Residential Load Management Program, will become effective on April 15.

"Our main purpose with this program is to encourage the use of energy-efficient equipment which will help reduce the growth in demand for electricity. This helps us hold down the number of new plants we have to build to serve that growth," TESCO President Bill Marquardt said.

"And, in turn, it will help hold down increases in the cost of electricity for all customers," he added.

Among the equipment that qualifies under the plan are replacement central electric refrigerated air conditioning units with an 8.5 SEER (Seasonal Energy Efficiency Ratio) rating or higher; replacement central heat pump units with an 8.0 EER (Energy Efficiency Ratio) rating or higher; heat recovery or solar-assisted systems for use with electric water heaters, and high efficiency room air conditioners or room heat pumps.

The program also applies to energy-efficient equipment installed in new homes, apartments and mobile homes.

"This program is extremely cost effective for all customers because we can provide financial incentives to help reduce the growth in demand for electricity at much lower costs than if we had to spend money on new power plants to serve that growth," Marquardt said.

Because high-efficiency equipment uses less electricity, customers who install it will save money on their bills as long as the equipment is in use.

"But the initial cost of this equipment is higher than that of lower-efficiency units, so our program is designed to encourage customers to replace worn or outdated equipment with the higher-efficiency units," he said.

Under TESCO's plan, the incentive payment would be made to the participating financial institution from which the customers obtain a loan for the equipment. The TESCO payment would then be deducted from the principal loan amount, reducing the amount being financed.

The financial incentives are based on the amount of load reduction realized by installing the more efficient equipment.

For additional information, contact TESCO at 683-4651.

Japanese on deck in case of major league strike

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The happy, rejuvenating sights and sounds of baseball return to the airwaves this week. But for the second straight year, fans face the prospect of having the game pulled out from under them just as baseball is finding its summer rhythm.

If a Memorial Day war does erupt between the millionaires who own the game and the affluents who play it, NBC intends to implement a back-up plan devised for last season's threatened strike, offering amateur, minor league and Japanese baseball where "Game of the Week" is supposed to be.

"We'll give the people baseball," said NBC Sports spokesman Mike Cohen.

A commendable humanitarian gesture.

NBC already has contract rights to at least one game of the College World Series, which the network will broadcast on May 29 if there is a strike. On the next Saturday, June 6, NBC will broadcast a baseball special featuring segments of selected World Series. If the strike continues, NBC will seek to work deals with Japanese baseball and minor league baseball. Sponsors have told NBC they will go along with the plan for awhile, but they'll pull out if the ersatz baseball doesn't draw an audience.

In which case, NBC will quickly withdraw from the humanitarian business.

ESPN, the cable sports network, plans to feed the baseball addiction whether or not there is a major league strike. ESPN intends to broadcast several of the College World Series play-offs in late May, and then will televise amateur baseball on the Babe Ruth, American Legion and even Little League levels through the summer.

If avarice does not cancel big-league baseball, if the game's wealthy call off their war, NBC and ABC will get on with their holy mission as planned.

Dick Enberg, overshadowed only by Vin Scully at the art of voicing baseball, will call six-to-10 Saturday games for NBC this season. The network's two regular broadcast squads will be composed of Joe Garagiola and Tony Kubek in one booth, with the colorful, if not notably articulate, former umpire Ron Luciano teaming with Merle Harmon for the regional telecasts.

NBC will televise the All-Star game and two other prime time games this season. This is the year that NBC gets the post-season playoffs, with ABC broadcasting the World Series.

And there is wonderful news from ABC:

That network's "Monday Night Baseball," which was cut to a shameful five games last year, has been doubled this season. "Monday Night Baseball" was cut down last year largely because the other two networks, most notably CBS, had been using the night to beef up its weaker series during the summer.

ABC fulfilled its obligation to baseball — for which, in return, it gets the ratings-productive post season games — by televising Sunday afternoon games during the pennant stretch.

Either baseball wasn't satisfied with that arrangement or ABC has been seized by a fit of noblesse oblige, but the network intends to broadcast not only the Monday night games but eight Sunday afternoon pennant stretch games as well.

Don Drysdale, whose

ABC contract was not renewed, is calling games for the California Angels and he hasn't yet been replaced at ABC. His successor will work the main game with either Al Michaels or Keith Jackson, with Bob Uecker working the alternate game.

And this for last.

Howard Cosell, who seems neither interested in nor especially expert at baseball, may not set up his pontification concession at the ball parks for ABC this summer. It's not that ABC doesn't want him, the network insists, Howard just may be too busy with other things.

Denver oilman signs Fox merger

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Denver oilman Marvin Davis, who wasn't able to buy his way into the newspaper business or professional baseball, has purchased a major Hollywood film and television studio by signing an $800 million merger agreement with 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., the studio announced.

The agreement to merge Fox with a company controlled primarily by the Davis family, signed Monday in New York only 12 days after Davis abruptly withdrew the same offer, gives Davis, 55, a diversified entertainment conglomerate long considered a prime takeover target.

Part of the appeal of the film company, which had 1980 earnings of $54.6 million or $4.89 a share, down slightly from its 1979 results of $57.3 million or $5.19 a share, is that it derives one-third of its income from non-film-related enterprises.

Fox owns Coca-Cola Bottling Midwest, Aspen Skiing, the Pebble Beach Corp., which has extensive real estate holdings in northern California, and 102 movie houses in Australia and New Zealand. Fox lists its assets as $759 million, but some analysts say it is worth far more than that.

In the merger, Fox shareholders would receive $60 for each of Fox's 10.5 million common shares and $80 for each share of preferred stock — an estimated value of $680 million.

They also would get one share of Fox's United Television subsidiary, valued at about $10 a share, for each share of Fox common, and one and one-third shares of UTV for each share of Fox preferred — an additional $115 million.

"Everyone is pleased that this was signed today," said Fox spokesman Phil Myers on Monday. He noted that the agreement requires a two-thirds favorable vote by Fox shareholders at a scheduled June meeting. "I would expect that they will vote for this."

Fox's major stockholder, Chris-Craft Industries, had said it favored the merger.

The 6-foot-3, 300-pound Davis said he backed out last month due to "the inability of the parties to reach satisfactory agreement." Davis had failed in multimillion-dollar attempts to buy the Denver Post and the Oakland A's baseball club.

Davis had indicated previously that he would retain the present Fox management, headed by Chairman-Chief Executive Officer Dennis C. Stanfill. Myers said he foresaw no change in management.

Fox stock closed Monday at $62.75, up 1/2 on a volume of 127,000 shares.

Midlander to solo with TCU Concert Choral

FORT WORTH — Mary Katherine Warren of Midland will be a soprano soloist in the TCU Concert Choral recital Monday which will conclude the 40th annual Fine Arts Festival.

Miss Warren, a Midland High graduate, is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joe Warren. She is a senior religion major at TCU.

Miss Warren will be a soloist for a new composition, "Mass for Unaccompanied Voices, Op. 7," by Michael Bedford, a TCU graduate and former Fulbright Scholar who teaches part-time at TCU and is associate choirmaster at University Christian Church.

Piano competition set

FORT WORTH — Forty-two young, hopeful pianists will meet 12 internationally acclaimed jurors in Fort Worth May 17-31 at the 6th Van Cliburn International Piano Competition.

One will leave with an international concert career and $12,000.

The contestants range in age from 18 to 29 and are from 17 countries. After a solo preliminary phrase, 12 semi-finalists will be selected to play solo recitals and a piano quintet with the Tokyo String Quartet. The six finalists will perform concertos with the Texas Little Symphony and the Fort Worth Symphony Orchestra.

National public television will feature a 90-minute presentation at 6:30 p.m. May 31. Funded by IBM and co-produced by KERA-TV in Dallas and Fort Worth Productions, the program will be nationally produced by John Goberman, the Emmy Award-winning producer of "Live From Lincoln Center."

Series tickets are now on sale at the Scott Theater Box Office, 3505 W. Lancaster St., Fort Worth, Texas, 76107. For more information call 1-817-738-6509.

The works of Robert Summers of Glen Rose will be among the 40 artists' work exhibited this weekend at Chaparral Center at the fourth annual Boy Scout Art Round-Up and Sale. Hours are 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday and 1 to 6 p.m. Sunday. All proceeds from the event, sponsored by the Hanging Tree Gallery, go to the Boy Scouts.

Fiber sale planned

The Midland Fiber Guild is having a weaving exhibition and sale at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave., through April 19.

Many of the members represented in the show have had works exhibited in both regional and national exhibitions. Those artists include Patricia Aycock, Beth Buster, Janice Campbell, Herb Cooper, Marjorie Fleming, Sara Gilstrap, Dan Haller, Nancy Neeley, Mary Ann Phares, Marilyn Pritchett, Jean Posey, Nora Reeder, Julie Rogers, Cathy Slaydon and Marjorie Scull.

Pianist to perform with quartet

Guest pianist Karen Follingstad will perform with the Thouvenel String Quartet at 8 p.m. Saturday in Midland College's Allison Fine Arts Auditorium.

Miss Follingstad, a Curtis Institute of Philadelphia and Indiana School of Music graduate, will play the Brahms "Piano Quintet" with the Thouvenel String Quartet.

Her chamber music credits include performances at the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, as a member of the Seligenstadt Trio of Frankfurt, West Germany and radio tapings for the Hessische Rundfunk of Frankfurt. She was orchestra pianist for the Frankfurt Opera Orchestra, opera coach for the Frankfurt Ballet and ballet accompanist for both the Frankfurt Ballet and the Opera Forum Ballet companies.

Miss Follingstad's concertizing has taken her throughout the United States, West Germany, Switzerland and Holland and includes concerto appearances with the Minnesota Symphony Orchestra and the Indiana University Orchestra.

Instructor elected to art society

NEW YORK — Midland College art instructor Warren Taylor has been elected to active membership in the American Watercolor Society, the oldest and largest organization of watercolor artists in the United States.

Founded in 1866, the American Watercolor Society is an honor society in which active membership is offered only to outstanding watercolorists after nomination by a committee especially elected for this purpose. Candidates for election are usually drawn from the ranks of those who have participated several times as non-members in recent showings of the Society's annual exhibition held in New York during April.

Included in the membership roles are Winslow Homer, Edwin A. Abbey, George Bellows and Andrew Wyeth.

Importance of little black book's contents disputed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A little black book, apparently lost by a Secret Service agent in a phone booth, contained "totally confidential" telephone numbers, says the congressman whose aide found it.

But the Secret Service says information in the notebook was "innocuous" and "nothing that would compromise security at all."

"There was a phone number in there for the Secret Service at the hospital," Rep. Stanford E. Parris, R-Va., said Monday, referring to the agency's command post at George Washington University Hospital where President Reagan is recovering from a gunshot wound.

How does Parris know? He said his staff called the number and "that's how we determined it was Secret Service material." Parris said an aide found the book in a booth outside a bar in Fairfax County, Va., near Washington on Friday.

The book was turned over to a Secret Service messenger Monday afternoon, along with a letter from Parris to Secret Service Director H. Stuart Knight. The congressman told Knight he was dismayed that someone "could be so lax in his duties as to leave a book with sensitive and confidential phone numbers lying in a phone booth."

"It's my understanding they're looking for the gentlemen who belongs to the book or vice versa," Parris said.

Secret Service spokesman Jack Warner said Monday night that he hopes agents don't lose such books often.

But Warner added, "It has nothing that would compromise security at all. I think it was something that was left inadvertently by whoever left it."

We're not just leaving these books all over town."

The congressman said the book also contained "some references to very prominent people." He declined to be more specific, adding that he had not

The Washington Post reported today that the book contained notes apparently recorded at the Secret Service's command center at the hospital the day Reagan was shot, including a call from a man saying there was going to be another threat on Reagan's life, a call from a Senate aide looking for the Senate's chaplain who had gone to the hospital and a senator's private phone number.

Did you hear the one about...?

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, told his colleagues Monday he wanted to bring up his bill extending the life of the Texas Board of Examiners in the Fitting and Dispensing of Hearing Aids.

"What did you say?" asked Sen. W.E. "Pete" Snelson, D-Midland.

"I better speak up so I can be heard on this," said Sen. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville.

Earlier, Sen. Kent Caperton, D-Bryan, had called his bill to regulate animal shelters a bill "with teeth in it."

Both bills were approved on voice vote and sent to the House.

Mormons get to the point

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Mormon Church leaders, speaking with unusual frankness, have told members too many are getting church welfare and warned that homosexuality is "an acquired addiction."

They also instructed local leaders to ease financial demands on their congregations, spelled out the church's goals and counseled members to view criticism as Satan's effort to halt the Lord's work.

The 151st Annual General Conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, which concluded Sunday, also was the second conference in six months to attract placard-carrying critics of the church's stand against the Equal Rights Amendment.

Elder Hartman Rector Jr. of the church's First Quorum of the Seventy said Sunday that if children are favored with a happy family life, "they will not want to be homosexuals, which I am sure is an acquired addiction just as drugs, alcohol and pornography are."

Rector, a former Naval aviator, said he does not believe "promoters of homosexuality" who say "they were born that way."

"There are no female spirits trapped in male bodies and vice versa. He who made them made them male and female," Rector said.

A major theme of the conference was the Mormon belief in self-reliance, with several members of the all-male hierarchy expressing dismay at "alarming" demands on the church's welfare system by "active, participating members in good standing."

In all, the church assisted 160,000 members with cash or 35.4 million pounds in commodities in 1980. Mormons fast two meals each month, donating the money saved to the church welfare program.

Fast-offering assistance jumped 32.5 percent in 1979-80 and total commodity assistance rose "a disastrous 53.5 percent." The rare reference to specific welfare figures was evidence of the leadership's concern.

Church President Spencer W. Kimball once again urged members to plant gardens and store a year's supply of food as a hedge against economic or natural disaster.

Church officials also gave new guidelines to local leaders aimed at easing the financial strain on members. They call for cutbacks in additional costs to members of operating local congregations and of building and maintaining chapels.

The 86-year-old Kimball, considered a prophet by the world's 4.7 million Mormons, warned members of "more trials yet to come to us" but counseled them not to get discouraged.

"Always remember that if this were not the Lord's work, the adversary (Satan) would not pay any attention to us. If this church were merely a church of men and women... we would encounter little or no criticism or resistance."

"But because this is the church of him (Jesus Christ) whose name it bears, we must not be surprised when criticisms or difficulties arise. With faith and good works, the truth will prevail," Kimball said.

Environmentalists have hopes of saving lakes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sixteen years ago scientists in North America discovered that fish were dying in lakes that had turned almost as sour as vinegar.

Four more years passed before scientists suggested a possible explanation for the acidity. It was coming from on high, they said, in the form of rain and snow turned acid by pollution. They called it "acid rain."

In the years since, the body count of dead lakes among the 2,800 in New York's Adirondack Mountains has grown to 212. A dead lake supports no animal life. Scientists say another 256 Adirondack lakes are approaching a critical level of acidity.

In neighboring Canada, 140 lakes in Ontario are known dead and officials say 48,000 more are threatened. In Scandinavian countries, 20,000 lakes are already dead.

Armed with these statistics, along with new studies on the causes of acid rain and a strong outcry from Canada, environmentalists plan to do battle in Congress this year, hoping at last to goad the government to action.

The Clean Air Act is up for renewal and the National Commission on Air Quality has recommended it be significantly strengthened to deal with acid rain.

The Canadian government, concerned about President Reagan's degree of commitment to environmental matters, is lobbying to influence American policy.

Thousands of demonstrators greeted Reagan on his visit to Canada last month waving signs reading "Stop Acid Rain," and U.S. visitors to Canada are sent home carrying glossy pamphlets detailing the horrors of acid rain.

"Acid rain is the most serious pollution problem facing our two countries today," Canadian Environmental Minister John Roberts said. "The situation is already intolerable. Unless we take swift action, it's going to get worse instead of better in the years ahead."

Rain always has been slightly acidic but in the past 25 years, according to environmentalists, rainfall in the northeastern United States and eastern Canada has become 40 times more acidic.

Acidity is measured on a pH scale with each decline of one number representing a 10-fold increase in acidity. A pH of 4 is 100 times more acidic than one of 6.

Normal rainfall has a pH of 5.6, but rain in the Adirondacks now averages around 4.2. The most acid rain ever recorded was 1.5 — almost 10 times more acidic than vinegar — in a rainstorm last year in Wheeling, W.Va.

Acid rain occurs when sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxide, two gases formed during fuel combustion in coal furnaces and, to a lesser extent, oil furnaces and auto exhausts, react with water vapor and become sulfuric and nitric acids.

These dilute acids can be carried hundreds of miles by wind, thousands of miles in clouds.

When they fall to earth as rain, snow or dust, and accumulate in lakes which lack sufficient alkaline soils to act as a buffer, they kill fish and other organisms.

The acids also eat away at the surfaces of buildings, bridges and cars. Scientists are now studying the effects acid rain has on crops and forests. The effects on human health are not yet known.

While air currents in North America make the problem most severe in the Northeast and eastern Canada, acid rain has also been recorded in Minnesota, Southern California, Florida and Colorado.

Coal companies and electric utilities argue that pollution alone is not to blame. They say natural causes of acidity in the atmosphere — lightning, sea spray and decaying plant matter — may play a much greater role in forming acid rain than environmentalists are willing to admit.

Former congressman David Stockman, in a speech last year before his selection as Reagan's budget director, questioned whether industry should be forced to install expensive anti-pollution "scrubbers" on coal furnaces just because a few lakes have died.

"How much are the fish worth in these 170 lakes that account for 4 percent of the lake area of New York?" Stockman asked in a speech to the National Association of Manufacturers. "Does it make sense to spend billions of dollars controlling emissions from sources in Ohio and elsewhere if you're talking about a very marginal volume of dollar value, either in recreational terms or in commercial terms?"

Such statements worry the Canadians, despite Reagan's assurances to Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau that he would honor a Carter administration commitment to negotiate a treaty to try to reduce pollution crossing the border.

Canada estimates that half the 8 million tons of sulfur pollution that falls on Canada each year comes from Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois.

The problem, environmentalists say, is that while the Clean Air Act sets national standards for new factories, older plants are governed by looser, and varied, state standards. Ohio's standard, for example, is barely one-third as strict as New York's.

Environmentalists hope Canada's strong stand will change Reagan's mind on this part of the clean air debate in Congress.

"This is the first opportunity since acid rain hit the public conscience in this country to come to grips with the problem," said Ken Kamlet of the National Wildlife Association. "It's going to be an uphill effort, but we are hopeful."

Klansmen harassing city fire official, newspaper

ADA, Okla. (AP) — A harassment campaign with apparent racial overtones is being aimed at Fire Chief Bill Gray and this town's newspaper — and Gray says he fears for his family's safety.

Recently a cross was burned south of town and bumper stickers saying "The KKK is Watching You" were stuck on Gray's office door, the newspaper office and on many Ada Evening News vending boxes, he said Wednesday.

"My three boys don't play in our front yard anymore," said Gray, who is black.

Gray said he believes the acts are linked to efforts of his wife, Barbara, who headed a move to save a swimming pool in Ada's black community.

There also was speculation the harassment may stem from an employee complaint against Gray. Gray was suspended with pay from Feb. 23 to March 4 after a woman employee complained of sexual harassment and use of profanity. He was cleared in an administrative investigation and was reinstated.

Braniff's problems surprising

DALLAS (AP) — The man who jumped into the cockpit of Braniff International in January to pilot the financially-ailing airline back to prosperity says he had no idea at the time the depth of his company's economic woes.

"I was surprised by Braniff's financial picture," said company chairman John J. Casey. "I really didn't know the problems were that severe."

Casey summarized his first three months as the airlines chief executive officer at a Monday news conference, saying the "biggest thing" he had to do was to find out "just what the situation was at Braniff."

"It's true, I had been vice chairman but I was only into the technical side of the business. I knew nothing about the rest," Casey said.

When he took over, Casey said, Braniff was "totally strapped for cash" and could not make debt payments due last month. The airline's lenders have agreed to defer those payments until July 1.

The struggling airline was bogged down in an $18 million debt as of March 1, and will owe another $22 million before the July deadline.

Casey said he was not the only one in the dark about the dire situation at Braniff.

"Most employees had no inkling the company was in financial trouble," he said. "For me to stand up and say we were having major problems was upsetting to them."

At the first of the year, Casey said he took several major steps to turn the airline around. He trimmed the company organization down to three departments.

He convinced airline employees to take a 10 percent pay cut that would be applied to a profit-sharing plan when the company was back on its feet, while the Teamsters gave up a portion of their contracted cost of living increase for the remainder of the year.

Recently, Casey announced a 16 percent increase in Braniff's overall system, including a 10 percent increase at the Dallas-Fort Worth headquarters where competition from other airlines has become intense.

In addition, last week Casey fired Edson Beckwith, his executive vice president of finance, and replaced him with Howard Swanson.

Swanson is credited with developing a debt reorganization plan at Trans World Airways 10 years ago.

"On an operating basis we will do considerably better, but it will still be a loss," he said.

ing out in the building construction crews, in cafeterias and restaurants, and they're having to carry a little ID card with them from the Department of Public Safety," says Mrs. Corrales.

"I would resent this very much if every time I work somewhere I'm harassed in this manner, because I'm a citizen, and many of these are citizens. What do we do, put something across our foreheads that states 'I am an American — I just happen to be brown?'"

While the DPS does issue identification cards specifying a person's name, date of birth and address, Captain Julian Whitley of the Midland DPS office says possession of such a card does not guarantee that the holder is an American. He explains the DPS requires certain evidence of identification prior to the issuance of the card, usually a birth certificate, but that other papers also would be accepted, including certain insurance contracts and old family Bible records.

HOWEVER, FALSIFICATION of birth certificates doubtless occurs at times, Whitley indicates.

"I think anybody could do that," he states bluntly, adding that "illegal aliens don't give us half the problems other people do" in this regard. The most common practice, he explains, is for a person to go to a cemetery, pick out a name with a birthdate near his own, and then obtain a birth certificate based on that information.

The reason the practice is effective is that for years no law existed demanding that deaths be reported to the Bureau of Vital Statistics.

"Now this is required," Whitley sighs in relief. "This should help in years to come" in keeping falsified IDs from being issued.

Some feelings exist — and have substantial backing — that not only do the re-imposed raids discriminate unjustly against Mexican-American citizens but that they may be unconstitutional.

"I WOULD REACT negatively to the lifting of the ban because they do not conduct the raids discreetly," claims Sandoval, who is an attorney, "even though you have case laws Zepeda vs. Immigration and Naturalization Service, 1979, Los Angeles, and you also have Blackie's House of Beef vs. INS, Washington, Dec., 1979, that states, to wit:

"INS raids will be conducted when they have specific person or persons to look for. It will be done with discretion and not in violation of the Fourth Amendment right, to wit, the right to be secured against unreasonable search and seizure."

Sandoval claims the violation of Mexican-American civil liberties occurs during the apprehension, and that following unjust detainment "those who are...found out to be of Mexican-American descent are dispensed by someone saying, 'I'm sorry.' That's intolerable. The (Border Patrol) has no prohibition against raids, but if they're going to conduct raids they must be specific as to who they're going to look for."

However, Hugh Rushton, chief patrol agent of the U.S. Border Patrol Marfa Sector, does not believe the Blackie's case sets any kind of precedent that would affect Border Patrol operations in this area.

THE FEDERAL government's tete-a-tete with Blackie's House of Beef "goes back a long way," ac-part five

ording to Rushton, who says the Washington business had been "notorious for storing illegal aliens." He indicates that while a federal judge ruled that "we had to conduct a search there on the basis of a warrant," the decision is "not binding on us as an organization, but only to that particular case."

"It does not set a precedent throughout the country," he claims.

Rushton further notes that a recent Supreme Court reversal of a lower court's decision, U.S. vs. Cortez, "greatly expanded our authority."

The Ninth Circuit Court ruled initially that the Border Patrol could not engage in routine stops of vehicles in a search for illegal aliens. However, on Jan. 21, 1981, the high court overturned the decision, once again allowing the Border Patrol to stop vehicles when "we have probable cause," notes Rushton. "And probable cause is something that has to be defined in each court proceeding."

Rushton adds that the Supreme Court's ruling also stipulates that "at functional, equivalent checkpoints around the country, we must only have reasonable suspicion to check (vehicles)."

WHILE THE RE-IMPOSED "detail" work by the Border Patrol has brought rumors throughout the Permian Basin of indiscriminate collection of brown-skinned workers from private property without permission, the chief patrol agent says such is not the case.

"We either obtain consent or retain a warrant in order to conduct an immigration check on an industry," he explains. "However, if we have an obvious case (where) we approach a location and people start running off, then we might not be able to obtain consent...We just use common judgment in pursuing. If we're going to apprehend aliens, we're certainly going to have to pursue fleeing aliens."

Rushton further explains that whenever Border Patrolmen approach a place of employment, they seek out the "person in charge, the owner, contractor or sub-contractor. Of course, if there's more than one officer, the other may be surveying the area to see if someone's trying to hide or sneak off. We may prevent them from doing that."

Rushton stresses that "we certainly are not going to violate anybody's rights intentionally and we are well aware... (of) the legal restrictions... (as well as) the duties... that we are charged with performing."

Hensley, who as supervisor of the Big Spring BP Station engages in detail work in Midland several times a week, further notes it is untrue that illegal aliens are being solicited in residential areas of the Tall City.

"WE DON'T WORK homes at all without a routine caseworker or a court warrant," he claims. "In the past month and a half, I've heard the rumor that the Border Patrol was in Midland-Odessa...going around beating on doors, kicking in doors, but we just don't do it. I've read and heard about that forever, but I've been in the Border Patrol 15 years, and it just hasn't been going on."

"In the first place, if you start going door to door, there's not going to be anybody come to the door, and if you start kicking in doors it won't be long 'till you have every law enforcement agency in the country down there."

Regardless, some Mexican-American activists such as Sandoval are still angry at the approach the federal government is taking to the situation.

"Lifting the ban is not going to diminish the problem or even alleviate it," he says. "More INS people, more guns, more dogs — that's what I call the Neanderthal approach to the problem, the goon approach to the problem. If we begin to see the migration of undocumented

"What do we do, put something across our foreheads that states 'I am an American — I just happen to be brown?'" people from Mexico as a strong economic problem rather than a criminal problem, we might begin to find a solution to it."

—Oralia Corrales

"The practice (of raids) seems totally ineffective," agrees Mrs. Corrales. "They pick up the aliens in Midland-Odessa, take them back (to Mexico), and they're here again the next week. It just creates a job for the Border Patrol and it doesn't seem to be doing any good."

"If you look at it from the (viewpoint of) what citizens pay the Border Patrol and for transportation of aliens back to Mexico," (it has a counterproductive effect on everyone).

Problem. Controversy. Anger. But no real solutions — only opinions. And meanwhile, hundreds of illegal aliens continue to pour into the Permian Basin from Mexico each month, in the search for jobs, money, survival, despite the threat of apprehension that looms scythe-like over their heads every moment.

They are a people determined, and a people determined, says Sandoval, "will come any which way they can."

Friday: A normal day's work.

Fair funds raised

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — It went right down to the wire, but the people working to bring the 1984 World's Fair to New Orleans have raised the $26 million in guarantees required by the federal government, a project officials says.

"After very intensive work by a number of people since last Friday afternoon, we feel confident that we have reached our goal of raising a minimum of $26 million in guarantees — the interim goal which was set for us last Friday by Secretary of Commerce Malcolm Baldrige," said Floyd W. Lewis, chairman of the board of Louisiana World Exposition Inc.

Lewis said Petr Spurney, general manager for the project, flew to Washington with a briefcase full of pledges to show Baldrige, who said last week the promoters must raise $26 million in guarantees by Wednesday.

At the time, only $12 million had been pledged, officials said.

"We will be anxiously awaiting their decision as to whether we have satisfied all their requirements. We certainly believe that we have," Lewis said.

Reagan getting most of his cuts

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is getting nearly all the tax and spending cuts he wants from Republicans controlling the Senate Budget Committee, but at a higher cost than the administration counted on.

The committee agreed on a party-line vote Wednesday to make room in the 1982 budget for the $51.3 billion in tax cuts Reagan has proposed. But it said the result will be a $60 billion budget deficit in 1982 — $15 billion higher than the administration figured and $10 billion higher than House Democrats predicted.

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., the Budget Committee chairman, said Wednesday night that Reagan "may have to find administrative savings beyond anything we've imagined," but he expressed confidence the president can do it.

Domenici said he had no further cuts in mind to significantly slice the projected deficit, which was recalculated from the administration's own numbers.

"We have given the president everything he asked for," Domenici said.

That, argued Democrats on the panel, was a mistake.

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina, the ranking Democrat on the committee, said there is "no way to inflate the economy" with a large tax cut "and then, 'whoopie,' get a balanced budget."

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., said the committee was "rather blindly following" what he called the administration's "extraordinary experiment" in economics.

In the House, meanwhile, majority Democrats stepped up their counteroffensive against the Reagan program, calling it "the fiscal equivalent of faith in a free lunch."

An eight-page statement of "Democratic economic principles" issued after a closed-door caucus Wednesday echoed Reagan's general goals of less spending, lower taxes and a smaller government but assailed the specifics of his approach. It said House Democrats would reject a program "that puts the main burden of fighting inflation on the backs of the middle- and low-income workers while providing unprecedented benefits for the privileged few."

The House Democrats already have laid out their own budget blueprint, and their own tax-cut plan was to follow sometime today. The proposal, to be unveiled by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, was expected to be more complex and about $11 billion smaller than the administration version.

The Reagan plan for a three-year, 30 percent individual tax cut was used by the Senate Budget Committee staff in refiguring the administration's economic forecast. The staff also assumed the increased defense spending and a broad range of budget cuts the president has proposed.

The result was a 1982 deficit of $60 billion, not the $45 billion the president estimates.

The Budget Committee figure is a guideline, and it will be up to the congressional tax-writing committees to determine the specifics of any tax cut.

On Wednesday, the panel deviated from the president's proposals only to make room in the 1982 budget for an additional $500 million for loans for gasohol programs, $100 million for a variety of ocean-related research programs and $200 million for additional Coast Guard vessels and aircraft.

The House Budget Committee has been going in the opposite direction.

In general, the House committee has shown a willingness to support the Democratic alternative presented earlier in the week by its chairman, Rep. James R. Jones, D-Okla.

Jones lashed out at the administration Wednesday for adopting a "bunker mentality by insisting that its economic program of tax and spending cuts be approved without change."

The Democrats' proposed budget calls for slightly deeper overall cuts than the president proposed and a smaller deficit. It would earmark more spending for social programs and less for defense than the administration recommended and would leave no room for Reagan's multi-year tax cut.

On Wednesday, the House committee moved to restore more than $4 billion the administration is seeking to cut from a variety of social programs.

Judge to address members of university women's group

Barbara Culver, judge, 318th District Court in Midland County, will be the speaker at a luncheon meeting of the Midland branch of the American Association of University Women.

The meeting is set for Saturday at 10 a.m. at Ranchland Hills Country Club.

Drawing upon her wide judicial experience in family law, legislative involvement and interest in the legal rights of women, her presentation is called "Life in the Year 2000."

Judge Culver is a native Texan, born in Dallas. She received a bachelor of arts degree in journalism from Texas Tech University and her law degree is from Southern Methodist University.

She and her late husband, John Culver, practiced law in Midland from 1952 until 1963, when she was elected county judge, the first woman Republican elected judge in Texas. She was elected for three more terms.

She has served as a party delegate to the state convention, on numerous professional law committees and on several community boards of directors.

The Midland County Commissioners Court named the county detention home, Culver Youth Home, in her honor.

She is a member and past president of the AAUW, Altrusa Club, an honorary life member of PTA and a recipient of the Distinguished Alumni Award from SMU in 1978.

Any woman holding a degree from an accredited college or university is eligible for membership in AAUW. For information and reservations, call 694-4433 or 685-1005.

Fine antique porcelain dealer to be in Act IX antiques show

Alfred W. Rochelle Thomas, from the Rochelle Thomas fine antique porcelain firm in Palm Beach, Fla., recently addressed members of the Midland Country Club Ladies Association.

Thomas will be in Midland later this month for the Act IX Antiques Show to benefit Midland Community Theatre Inc.

The Antiques Show will begin with a preview party April 30 and will formally open May 1 in the Chaparral Center at Midland College.

Over 30 nationally known antique dealers will exhibit and offer for purchase their outstanding collections, with objects being displayed in decorated room settings. Antiques presented will range from large pieces of furniture and Oriental rugs to small collector pieces.

Thomas told the MCC Ladies Association that his family business was launched in 1849 in Europe. Forty years ago, the family moved the business to the United States.

He said that his family was founder of Christie's famed auction gallery in New York, but today specializes in fine antique porcelains.

"Quality firms such as Rochelle Thomas will be appearing at our show," explained Rhonda Durham, spokesman for Act IX.

She said that the club has several special features planned for the four day event.

The preview party, which offers one a chance to view the art and antiques early, will be a cocktail buffet from 8 p.m. to 10 p.m. April 30. Admission is $35 a person.

The show itself will be from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. May 1 and 2; and from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. May 3.

Tickets are $3 in advance and $4 at the door. Tickets are good for repeated admission.

Another feature of the show will be a tea room serving a light menu, beverages and other refreshments.

Gallery tours are available to groups who would like to tour the show with one of the exhibitors and view the highlights. Tour tickets may be purchased at the show entrance. For groups of 10-19, admission is $6 a person. For groups of 20 or more, admission is $5 a person.

At 11 a.m. May 1, Barry A. Greenlaw, former curator of the Bayou Bend Collection of the Museum of Fine Arts in Houston, will present a lecture on antiques. Admission is $3 for the lecture only.

The Bayou Bend Collection is housed in the mansion formerly owned by the late Miss Ima Hogg, daughter of a Texas governor, and is the largest collection in the Southwest devoted to the American decorative arts.

Greenlaw has also been associated with the National Trust School in England, the DuPont's Winterthur Museum and was curator of furniture at Williamsburg. His articles have appeared in Texas Homes Magazine.

Person who would like to order tickets in advance should make checks payable to Act IX Antiques Show (tax deductible), along with name, address, city, state, phone and zip code to Act IX Antiques Show, P.O. Box 7962, Midland, TX 79703. Include a self-addressed stamped envelope.

DEAR ABBY

Woman's dreams won't hold up in court

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 68 years old and have had terrible luck with husbands. Three of them died on me. Abby, I have a crush on my lawyer. He is 61 and a bachelor. I have had this crush on him for nearly eight years. I have never gone out with him but I see him in his office when I have legal work for him to do. Whenever I see him, he is very nice to me and calls me by my first name. I brought him some brownies once, and he said they were the best he ever had. I hinted that I was also a very good cook and would like to prove it to him sometime, but he just smiled and didn't say anything. I sent him a valentine but didn't have the nerve to sign it. Maybe I'm just a foolish old lady to even think this man would have any interest in me, but I get so much pleasure just thinking about him. Abby, is there any harm in dreaming? It took me 25 years to get over George Brent. — ELSIE DEAR ELSIE: There's no harm in dreaming. Dream castles are fun to build, as long as you don't try to live in them.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: April 19 is Easter. Please do not give a child who is too young to care for it properly a living gift. Every year a shocking number of baby chicks, rabbits, kittens and puppies have been mauled, handled, smothered and neglected to death by children who received them as Easter gifts and regarded them as "toys." Have a heart, and give small children stuffed animals instead. (Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (35 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.)

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Boxing stuff to mail

DEAR HELOISE: Very often I need a sturdy box for mailing a package but most corrugated cardboard boxes nowadays have so much printing all over them there is no room left for the address. Since most of the medium and smaller size boxes are held together by one glued flap down one corner, just open the top and bottom of the box, flatten it, then run a letter opener, or other such object, under the glued edge. Open the box up completely, and turn it inside out. Tape the joint (which was glued) with strong tape, likewise the bottom of the box, and you have a new box for mailing. Use strong cord to tie the box after packaging, if need be, to reinforce the tape. Of course, the printing, etc., is still on the box, but is inside where it doesn't matter. — Bob Moore

For a messy Easter menu, serve Twin Roast Chickens with Curry Stuffing and Chutney Gravy. An addition of a flavor enhancer makes a tastier chicken and blends the flavors of the ingredients into one heavenly harmonious dish.

Elegant chicken dresses up Easter dinner

When guests come in their new spring threads after Easter services or the parade, welcome them with your culinary best. A menu with easy-to-prepare and economical chicken as the main dish can be elegant and festive when you add a few special touches. And because chicken is so popular you'll have no hesitation about including it when children are among the guests.

Our succulent and golden Twin Roast Chickens are redolent of spices and seasonings when prepared with a Curry Stuffing made with raisins, almonds and ginger. Served with their own Chutney

Almond flavor adds interest to foods

By TOM HOGE

Having sung the praises of peanuts and chestnuts, it seems fitting to add the almond, which is beginning to appear more and more in dishes in finer restaurants.

Almonds are gratifying to cook with because their flavor is pervasive but too delicate to dominate the taste of other food.

Almonds have been cultivated since ancient times in Mediterranean countries and the Far East. They have long been especially popular in Spain, where cooks serve them fried or salted and stirred into paellas and other rice dishes. The Spaniards also pound almonds into a paste for sauces and desserts.

It is said the early Spanish missionaries brought the almond to California, where it is grown commercially today.

American cooks have for some years made a practice of garnishing fish and vegetable dishes with sliced almonds browned in butter.

The almond grows on a tree that is related to the peach tree and resembles it in its blossoms and unripe fruit. Actually, the nut is the seed or kernel of the almond fruit, which splits open when mature and exposes the nut in its shell.

Almonds are mentioned in the Bible. When Israel sent gifts to Joseph, we are told in Genesis, they consisted of "a little halm and a little honey, spices, myrrh, nuts and almonds."

Almonds are not a diet food. One ounce packs 170 calories, but they are highly nutritious and are usually limited to an ounce or less per person in most recipes. The versatile nut adds a lot to casseroles and salads and gives a flavor surprise to creamed soup, like this almond spinach bisque.

2 teaspoons vegetable oil
1/2 cup sliced almonds
1 can (10 1/2 ounces) cream of potato soup, condensed
2-3rds cup half and half
1 package (10 or 12 ounces) frozen spinach, thawed
Salt to taste
Orange slices

Heat oil in skillet over medium-high heat. Add almonds and toss till lightly browned; about 3 minutes. Set aside 2 tablespoons nuts for garnish. Combine in blender rest of almonds, soup, half and half and spinach. Blend till spinach is finely chopped. Pour into saucepan. Heat, stirring often. Add salt. Pour into soup bowls. Garnish each serving with an orange slice and some of the reserved almonds. Serves 4 to 6 persons.

THE BUTCHER

Confusion over a clod of beef

By MERLE ELLIS

Judging from the number of letters I have received on the subject in the past few weeks, there is, it seems, a bit of confusion about "what is a clod of beef?" One reader writes: "I have seen it advertised and it sounds like a good buy, but what is it? I have asked several butchers in my area, but I'm not satisfied with their answers. They say it's tender and tasty, but I would like to know more about the cut."

I can understand the confusion. More than almost any other cut of beef, the clod has suffered (and so have consumers) from being known by different names in different parts of the country. Until recently, the clod wasn't even known in the eastern part of the United States. And on the West Coast, where it did exist, it wasn't called the clod.

The clod is a solid boneless muscle from the shoulder of beef. It is, indeed, a flavorful cut, and more tender than some of the other cuts from the shoulder. To know more about the cut requires a bit of knowledge about the history of the retail meat business in this country.

The first butchers to ply their trade on the East Coast were, for the most part, of English and Scottish descent. They cut meat, as their fathers had before them, across the grain with the bones left in. In their tradition, the clod did not exist. The shoulder of beef (in the trade we call it the chuck) was cut into roasts with the bone left in. Some, with the small round arm bone, were called arm-cut chucks and others — with the shoulder blade bone — were called blade cut chucks. Those terms and those cuts still exist in many markets, particularly in the East; the clod until recently did not.

Things have traditionally been different in the West. The first retail butchers on the West Coast were from the Continent — from France and Italy.

And, the way they cut meat was considerably different from the way it was done in the East. They "muscle boned" their beef, just as their fathers had. When they cut up a chuck — or shoulder — of beef, they separated the solid boneless muscle of the shoulder from the rest of the chuck. They called that cut a cross-rib, a name that came about, I assume, because the cut lay on top of (across) the ribs in the shoulder of the beef animal.

Today, a large percentage of the beef in meat cases across the country is processed in packing plants in the Midwest and shipped, not in carcass form, but in boxes. In order to minimize freight costs, the western method of muscle boning has become standard. It is much less expensive to leave the bones at the packing plant than to ship them all the way across the country. In the West, we still call the clod a cross-rib, but the term that has become standard in most parts of the country is shoulder-clod.

The shoulder-clod is merchandised in a variety of ways. I have seen it cut into thick steaks and labeled "London broil." I have seen thinner cuts labeled "Texas steak," "Bar-B-Q steak" and "shoulder cutlets." Roasts from the shoulder clod often are labeled "Center Shoulder Roast," "Chuck Shoulder Roast," "Clod Roast" or, in the West, "Cross-rib Roast." The way cuts from the shoulder clod should be labeled, according to the National Livestock and Meat Board Uniform Retail Meat Identity Standards, is "Beef Chuck Shoulder (Pot Rst, or steak) Bnls." Those standards, however, are not used in all markets and the confusion over "what is a clod of beef" continues.

The best way to buy a clod at a bargain price is to buy the whole shoulder clod — still in its vacuum-sealed package as it comes from the packing plant. Many markets will sell you a whole shoulder clod at a price considerably lower than that of the individual component parts. The whole shoulder clod will weigh between 12 and 18 pounds, depending upon the size of the animal from which it came. Because it is a solid muscle and easy to carve across the grain, it makes a great oven roast for a crowd, if it is roasted long and slow at 300- to 325-degree oven temperatures.

Steaks cut from the shoulder clod are best used for Swiss steak or braising, since high broiler temperatures tend to toughen them. The shoulder clod can easily be cut up at home into roasts, Swiss steaks or stew in almost any combination to provide many good meals at a price far lower than for the same cuts if the butcher were to cut them for you.

Add spice to your life with home-baked bread

By MARJORIE RICE
Copley News Service

Bread, they say, is the staff of life. And what good is life without a little spice? Caraway, cardamom, clove, cinnamon — a bouquet of fragrance and flavor, and we've only touched one letter.

Herbs and spices are wonderful additions to home-baked loaves, filling the kitchen with their fragrance and the appetite with their subtle taste.

HERBED WHOLE-WHEAT SWIRL BREAD

- One-half cup butter
- 2 tbsps. chopped parsley
- One-half tsp. marjoram
- One-half tsp. oregano
- One-half tsp. thyme
- 3 tbsps. minced onion
- 4 cups all-purpose flour
- 2 cups whole-wheat flour
- 2 pkgs. dry yeast
- 2 tps. salt
- 2 cups milk
- 2 tbsps. molasses
- 3 eggs, divided

Melt the butter and add the parsley, marjoram, oregano, thyme (use herb leaves, crumbled) and onion. Set aside. Combine the unsifted flours, yeast and salt. Place 2 cups of the mixture in a large mixing bowl.

Scald the milk, molasses and one-fourth cup of the herb butter. Cool it to lukewarm, and add to the flour mixture. With mixer at low speed, blend the mixture well (1 minute). Then beat at high speed for 2 minutes. Gradually add 2 more cups of flour mixture, beating well after each addition. Beat in 2 eggs, 1 at a time.

Using a wooden spoon, blend in the remaining flour. Knead the dough on a lightly floured board until elastic (10 minutes). Place it in a well greased bowl, turn to grease the top and let it rise, covered, until doubled (1 hour).

Punch the dough down, divide it into 4 pieces and knead each until smooth. Let the dough rest on a floured board, covered, for 10 minutes.

Roll each part into a 4.5-by-10-inch rectangle. Spread each with 1 tablespoon of the herbed butter. Starting from the narrow end, roll up the dough jelly-roll fashion and place it, seam side down, in a greased 5.5-by-3.25-inch loaf pan.

Cover and let them rise until doubled (about 1 hour). Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Lightly beat the remaining egg with 1 teaspoon of water and brush it over the loaves. Bake the loaves 30 minutes, until they are golden and the loaves sound hollow when tapped. Cool them out of the pans on wire racks.

SPICED CRANBERRY NUT BREAD

- One and one-half cups chopped cranberries
- One and one-half cups sugar
- 3 cups flour
- Two and one-fourth tps. baking powder
- Two and one-fourth tps. cinnamon
- 2 tps. grated orange zest
- One and one-half tsp. salt
- Three-fourths tsp. baking soda
- One-fourth tsp. cloves
- One-third cup shortening
- 1 cup orange juice
- 2 eggs, beaten
- One and one-half cups chopped walnuts

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Grease a loaf pan. Combine the berries with one-fourth cup of the sugar and set them aside. Combine the remaining dry ingredients, including the sugar. Cut in the shortening. Add the juice and eggs, mixing well.

Stir the berries and walnuts into the batter and pour it into the prepared pan. Bake the loaf 1 hour and 10 minutes, until a tester inserted in the center comes out clean. Cool out of the pan on a wire rack.

MMH's Pink Ladies one of most outstanding auxiliaries in Texas

By SUE FAHLGREN
Staff Writer

The Pink Ladies may not be as conservative as you think.

Some Pink Ladies are in favor of the Equal Rights Amendment — and some don't even care about politics, Marabel Morgan, abortion or baking cookies.

The Pink Ladies at Midland Memorial Hospital chose their nickname long before the political "family savers" opposed to ERA and abortion started marching.

The Pink Ladies at MMH are the Women's Auxiliary — and they are even open to male membership. They've been wearing pink uniforms since before the hospital was built.

Organized in January 1950, the Auxiliary was supplying services for the hospital six months before it opened.

"It's one of the most outstanding auxiliaries in Texas," Dorothy Davis, president of the Auxiliary, said. The MMH Auxiliary has been so successful it has been used as a model for structuring other hospital auxiliaries, she said.

In recognition of their success, six of their current and past presidents have recently been named to the Texas Association of Hospital Auxiliaries. Included on the roster are Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Dub (Nada) Baulch, Mrs. W.C. (Jere) Hubbard, Mrs. Richard (Joan) Cramer, Mrs. W.W. (Joan) Henry and Mrs. Van (Doris) Howbert. Midland now has the majority of members on the state board.

Over the years, the Pink Ladies have donated time, equipment, money and services to the hospital and patients. Operating two continuing funds, the Auxiliary collects and distributes memorial donations as well as money from dues and other fund raising projects.

The Memorial Fund donations always go toward additional or revised equipment for the hospital, Mrs. Davis said. To date, equipment and monetary donations total $405,412.75 for the 31 years the Auxiliary has been in operation. The total will increase by $13,450 soon when additional equipment for the Allison Permian Basin Cancer Therapy Center arrives, Mrs. Davis said.

Comprised of 178 active members, 108 contributing members and six honorary members, the Pink Ladies work an annual average of 30,000 volunteer hours in 15 different service areas in the hospital. Multiplying the annual average by the years worked, the Auxiliary has produced some 930,000 volunteer hours for the hospital.

If MMH had to pay minimum wage for those hours, based on $3.35 an hour, Mrs. Davis said, it would cost about $6,968 per employee for 417 full-time workers — or a total $3,114,696 in salaries.

In addition, the Pink Ladies sponsor a Junior Auxiliary for girls at least 15 years old or who have completed the 9th grade.

The Pink Ladies also award scholarships to nursing students. Beginning in 1956 with Barbara Gerdis and Linda Merce, the Auxiliary has presented 46 scholarships in its 31 years. Offering $1,000 a year to students, the Auxiliary usually awards two or three a year to be presented in May.

Over the 31 years, some of the equipment the Auxiliary has provided includes: a sewing machine in 1950; an oxygen tent in 1953; an inter-communications system in 1956; traction frames for physical therapy and bedspreads and drapes in 1959; an auxiliary generator, intensive care equipment and laboratory equipment in 1963; an air conditioner in 1964; a waiting room and ICU unit in 1966; a cardiac monitor and a TV antenna in 1967; an operating table and an infant resuscitator and nebulizer in 1969.

Also, carpeting and an anesthesia machine in 1970; cardiac monitoring equipment in 1971; an operating microscope in 1973; a centrifuge machine in 1974; post partum rooms in 1975; a pulmo lab and a pulmo/norm digitizer in 1976; three resuscitation carts and equipment in 1977; three critical care unit scopes and seven food tray delivery carts in 1978; a pediatric oxygen analyzer and a crash cart in 1979; a plethysmograph (body box) for respiratory therapy; and a magnatherm diathermy unit for physical therapy in 1980.

Deputies can't budge fat murder defendant

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Seven deputies tried and tried but they could not budge a chubby murder defendant who refused to go to court.

Julian Dominguez, 25, would not budge. He weighs 300 pounds.

"He didn't fight the deputies. He just wouldn't move," said Assistant District Attorney Paul Canales.

It took seven deputies to lift Dominguez into a paddy wagon at the jail Tuesday and take him to the courthouse. They finally gave up and decided not to try to lug him into 144th District Judge Roy Barera's courtroom.

MC selected president school of junior college government

Midland College was selected as the 1981-82 president school for the Texas Junior College Student Government Association. Its election came at the close of the 1981 convention which was held Sunday through Tuesday in Midland.

"We are honored by this selection and feel it was at least partly a result of the excellent way in which our Midland College Senate put on the convention," said Alan Castor, president of the Midland College Student Senate.

Castor pointed out that schools, rather than individuals, are elected to leadership positions in the TJCSGA. This allows more than one person to work in the various officer roles. Midland College assumes the president's post from Wharton Junior College. Other new officers schools include: Southwest Texas Junior College, Uvalde, vice president; Amarillo College, secretary; Henderson County Community College, Athens, treasurer; South Plains College, Levelland, parliamentarian; Navarro Junior College, Corsicana, bulletin; and El Paso Community College, 1982 host school.

Jim Smith was re-elected as executive secretary of the association. He is student activities director at Northwest Campus, Tarrant County Community College.

More than 320 students from throughout the state attended the 1981 convention in Midland, reported Dr. David Caffey, Midland College student activities director.

HAVE YOU WRITTEN A BOOK?

A publisher's editorial representative will be interviewing local authors in a quest for finished manuscripts suitable for book publication by Carlton Press, Inc., well-known New York subsidiary publishing firm. All subjects will be considered including fiction and non-fiction, poetry, drama, religion, philosophy, etc.

He will be in Midland in late May. If you have completed a book-length manuscript (or nearly so) on any subject, and would like a professional appraisal (without cost or obligation), please write immediately describing your work. State which part of the day (a.m. or p.m.) you would prefer for an appointment and kindly mention your phone number. You will receive a confirmation by mail for a definite time and place.

Authors with completed manuscripts unable to appear may send them directly to the address below for a free reading and evaluation. Authors whose literary works are still in progress may also write.

Vets urged to sign up early at MC

All military service veterans who are interested in attending 1981 Summer classes at Midland College are encouraged to contact Maria Schmeltzer, campus Veterans Administration representative, as quickly as possible.

"Due to the time necessary to process educational benefits applications, it is particularly important for veterans attending college for the first time to visit our office immediately," Mrs. Schmeltzer said.

In order for those veterans who have never used their benefits or who are not currently enrolled to begin receiving their advance payments, processing needs to be started now.

The Veterans Administration representative is located in the Midland College Administration Building. Office hours are 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. to 2 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. Telephone number is 684-7851, ext. 135.

Pre-registration for the first summer session at Midland College begins May 11, but veterans should begin their processing prior to that date, if they have never used their benefits before, or are changing schools.

Many Cuban refugees held by Border Patrol

By STEVE BREWER
Associated Press Writer

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The U.S. Border Patrol's detention center here has become a "rotating holding center" for Cuban refugees who are found in the Miami area without the proper papers.

Refugees and their sympathizers insist that most of the ones being held have done little wrong.

Al Velarde Jr., head of the United States' Catholic Conference's refugee services here, says most of the refugees are the victims of breakdowns in sponsorship.

"Some of these guys don't belong in the El Paso detention center," Velarde said. "They just happened to be in the wrong place at the wrong time."

Border Patrol Agent Eddie Payan said, "All these guys knew Miami is a place where you could speak and be understood. They go down there and then they get picked up."

Silverio Torres' story is typical. Torres, 24, was relocated with a sponsor in McAllen after he arrived in Florida aboard the "Freedom Flotilla" last year. Unable to contact his relatives in Cuba, he went to Miami to seek help for them there.

"I was stopped on the street in Miami by police," he said through an interpreter. "They checked my papers and took me to court. There were no charges, but they still sent me to Immigration (and Naturalization Services officials)."

Torres then was shipped to El Paso, where he has been held for the past three months.

"I wasn't afraid (of the police) because I hadn't done anything wrong," he said. "Now I am here. This is an injustice."

Despite the contentions of the refugees, Miami police spokesman Angelo Bitsis said Cubans in Florida are picked up only if the break the law.

"When they break the law, they go to jail," Bitsis said. "We enforce the law. We're not a social agency."

Joe Howerton, district director of the INS at Miami, said the refugees that have been sent to El Paso and a similar facility in El Centro, Calif., have been arrested in Miami for serious misdemeanors or felonies.

"We interview these people after they get through the courts," he said. "If they do get convicted and they're going to be doing time, then they do that time."

The refugees are turned over to INS which then sends them to El Paso or El Centro. Howerton said the refugees are shipped out of the Miami area because of "limited holding space in this community."

But officials in El Paso say the arrests are a backlash against the number of refugees that flooded into the Miami area.

"I found out that it was political," Velarde said. "The heat was on in Florida to get these guys off the street."

Velarde and Payan said few of the refugees were convicted of serious crimes, and most of them were charged merely with public intoxication, loitering or vagrancy.

"I talked to one guy who had bought a six-pack of beer and was drinking one of them as he walked down the street, carrying the other five," Velarde said. "They picked him up for public drunk. You know that if you or I had been doing the same thing, we wouldn't have been arrested."

Msgr. Bryan Walsh of the Catholic Service Bureau in Miami agreed with Velarde's assessment.

"Apparently," he said, "if the...refugees can't show that they have a job and a place to live, they are being held for immigration. They are not being treated the same as anybody else that's arrested."

"Some of us are getting concerned about the human rights aspect of this," he added.

But Bitsis denied that the refugees are singled out for arrests.

"We treat them all the same," he said.

Meanwhile, the refugees who have been sent to the detention center are taught about American society by Payan and co-workers. They are destined to eventually be sponsored again, but the voluntary agencies charged with relocating the refugees have put them at the bottom of the list.

Velarde said he is under orders from his central office to make the relocation of the detainees a low priority. He said political pressure has caused his agency to concentrate its efforts on the more than 3,000 refugees still being held at the relocation center at Fort Chaffee, Ark. Most of the refugees at Fort Chaffee have never been sponsored.

"I'd much rather get these guys out," Velarde said. "All indications are that these guys aren't real hard-core types. But there's a lot of pressure to close Chaffee by June 1."

"The people in Washington said 'you don't touch any of that group,'" he said.

Velarde has managed to link about 15 of the refugees to family members in other parts of the country and he said they should be released within a couple of weeks. Family reunification remains the top priority for the agencies, he said, even higher than closing Fort Chaffee.

But the other detainees interviewed don't have relatives in the United States. The bulk of the refugees still have not been interviewed by Catholic Conference workers.

When he was told his group was at the bottom of the list, refugee Walter Leyva, 45, was surprised.

"I don't know why the Catholic Conference would say something like that," he said through an interpreter. "There are Cubans here who were working and had a place to live. The only reason that they're here is because they are Cuban."

DR. NEIL SOLOMON 'Chewing' unhealthy

Dear Dr. Solomon: One unfortunate thing that television has brought into our living rooms in living color is the sight of ballplayers constantly spitting. As might have been expected, that habit is being copied by youngsters, possibly out of some feeling that it is the masculine thing to do. In fact my son, who is a high school senior and is on the baseball team, tells me that several of his teammates now chew tobacco. Aside from the fact that I don't consider spitting to be socially acceptable behavior, is there any medical reason for discouraging the use of chewing tobacco? — Mrs. A.C.

Dear Mrs. C.: There is more reason to be concerned about the use of chewing tobacco than merely its esthetic effect. Dr. Arden Christen, of the Dentistry Department at the School of Aerospace Medicine in Texas, notes that the habit can cause oral leukoplakia (also known as smokers' tongue or smoker's patches). This eventually leads to a form of cancer (epidermoid carcinoma) in three percent to six percent of reported cases. Over the long run, tobacco chewing can also result in hypertension, low potassium levels, and retention of sodium.

This is quite a price to pay in a misguided effort to appear more masculine.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've just had my annual physical checkup and I came through it in good shape — I think. What I mean is that after a rectal examination, my doctor told me he had detected a polyp but that there was nothing for me to worry about. If I knew what a polyp was, maybe I wouldn't worry. Can you help? — Gerry

Dear Gerry: A polyp is simply a mass of tissue that protrudes outward from normal tissue into a cavity. Polyps in the small intestine generally do not become malignant; in most cases, an operation to remove them is recommended only if obstruction or bleeding occurs. Polyps along the inner lining of the large intestine are more likely to become malignant.

The cause of either type of polyp is not definitely known. If your doctor tells you there is no cause for concern, I would simply accept this assessment and relax. If unable to do this, I would get a second opinion.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Why all this emphasis on measles immunization? I had measles as a child, as did both my sisters, and I don't see where it did us any harm. Couldn't the money being spent on something so unimportant be put to better use? — Lester

Dear Lester: What you refer to as an "unimportant" disease is the most serious of the common childhood diseases. Apparently you and your sisters suffered nothing worse than the characteristic rash, fever and symptoms of a cold when you had measles. But measles can also cause pneumonia, ear infections, deafness, encephalitis, and other more serious problems. In fact, one in every 10,000 children who get measles will die from the disease.

Measles is a serious illness, and measles immunization is an important program.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Man leaves store chain to protest alcohol sales

By DAVID TOMLIN Associated Press Writer

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Harold Kelly has cast aside a corporate presidency and a six-figure income for the sake of his belief that it is wrong to sell beer and wine in the grocery store chain he ran.

"I loved my job, and I loved working with the people at BI-LO," he says. "They're good, loyal, dedicated people, the finest people."

But Kelly says he couldn't live with the knowledge that merchandise from BI-LO stores might be causing traffic accidents, destroying families or tempting young people into alcoholism.

"I couldn't have my inner peace," he says. "Without inner peace, I couldn't rest at night, and without rest I couldn't perform the job anyway."

So without much fuss, Kelly cleaned out his desk last month, made his farewells to certain colleagues at the Greenville-based BI-LO Inc. and left the company he had served for nearly 15 years, five of them as president.

The resignation came after Kelly was outvoted on the beer-wine issue by the company's executive committee, which concluded that the 120-store group — a $620 million-a-year operation — was losing business to other stores with alcoholic beverages on their shelves.

When BI-LO was sold in 1977 to a Dutch concern, Kelly stipulated in his contract with the new owners that he would resign as president if the stores were opened on Sunday or if beer and wine were introduced.

Baseball, track teams having good seasons

By KATHY WOOD, VICKI MADDEN and JULIE GUYTON

The MHS baseball team beat the Odessa High Broncos Tuesday. Their next game is Saturday, and all baseball fans are encouraged to attend and support the Bulldogs.

The boys' track team is having a good season. The team travels to Levelland this weekend and in two weeks will go to San Angelo for a district meet. Seniors on the team are Robert Crawford, Elston Montgomery, Billy Taylor, Hank McClung, Bruce Phillip and Bruce Fisher. Sophomore James Beverly is having an excellent season; he is still undefeated. David Storrie is also contributing to the team which his athletic abilities.

Juniors and seniors: Do not forget the prom, scheduled April 25. "Shadetree" will entertain. Admission is free.

Elections were held recently for Student Council offices, with Greg Spencer named president and Bruce Wilson vice president. Sophomores and Juniors seeking places on the President's Cabinet may pick up applications in the office. Deadline is Wednesday.

Rasco's News: There is a clean up at 7:15 a.m. Friday. Everyone needs to be there.

The Junior Lion of the week is Connie Caton. This year's fund-raising project for the youth center is a concert featuring Whispering Bill Anderson and Tom T. Hall. Tickets are on sale for $8 at the youth center and through members of the Junior Council and 100 Club.

Farm group lobbying to increase farm exports

By BOB FICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An agribusiness coalition is mounting a public relations campaign to convince non-farm Americans that money spent to expand agriculture exports benefits them as much as it does farmers.

Spokesmen for the group also say that once the general public is on their side, it will be less likely that embargoes, such as the one now in effect against the Soviet Union, will be imposed.

"The recognition of the consumer's benefit from farm exports would help the urban consumer understand that he, too, suffers from export embargoes," said Harold House of the Louis Dreyfus Corp., a multi-national grain company.

"The understanding that reduced export sales cost jobs, ultimately raise food prices and result in more inflation could make the use of embargoes as a foreign policy weapon less palatable to the average American," House told the Senate Agriculture subcommittee on foreign agricultural policy. "The farmer and the housewife both suffer when export sales are suspended."

The privately financed U.S. Farm Export Education Project will use radio and television advertising, a 28-minute movie and pamphlets to promote farm exports over the coming months.

House and others involved in the project urged the subcommittee Wednesday to make a major commitment to expanded farm exports when it considers the 1981 farm bill.

"For some producers — the growers of wheat, almonds, rice, cotton and soybeans — the export market is, in fact, their primary market," said Jerry O'Dowd, president of AGRI-Industries.

Expanding foreign markets, O'Dowd said, gives farmers the incentive to increase production, which keeps domestic food supplies adequate and consumer prices relatively low, while providing export sales to help make farming profitable.

"What exports do, over the long run, is keep food prices down, at or below the rate of general inflation and below increases in personal income," said Warren Lebeck, a consultant to the Chicago Board of Trade.

Among the recommendations made to the subcommittee was resumption of direct government loans for farm exports, possibly through a revolving fund. After being used for more than 20 years, direct credit was stopped last year in favor of government guarantees for loans obtained at market interest rates.

Jim Billington, president of the National Association of Wheat Growers, said the elimination of direct loans is threatening some markets initially opened up with food donations from the Food for Peace program.

Food policy won't slacken: Block

AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John R. Block and at least some key segments of the food industry are trying to assure consumers that federal standards will be maintained as government regulations are relaxed.

"Be certain that the administration's commitment to a sound food safety policy is strong," Block said Wednesday. "USDA's goal is to maintain public confidence in our food supply. But the real goal is to keep the food supply safe. Consumer confidence will follow."

Block made his comments in a speech to the National Food Policy Conference.

An Illinois farmer and former state director of agriculture, Block said he is proud that his home state has "one of the top state-run inspection programs in the country."

"And I want to go on record as continuing my advocacy for sound inspection now that I'm at the federal level," he said.

But Block, as he has before, plugged hard for

"Less regulation can be more effective regulation," Block said. "Less regulation can be more responsive regulation."

Block said federal officials are reviewing laws and regulations that prohibit the use of any food additive which is shown to cause cancer. He referred specifically to the "Delaney Clause" in a 1962 federal law that prohibits such additives. "I want to stress that the issue isn't a toss-up between cutting government regulatory costs and keeping our food supply safe," Block said. "We can have it both ways. And we will."

On Tuesday, a meat industry official told the conference — which was sponsored jointly by the Community Nutrition Institute and the Food Marketing Institute — that there is a growing consensus for changes in food safety laws.

More farm-raised fish expected on U.S. market

tain," says the Agriculture Department.

"Fish farmers' production costs will rise primarily because of higher fish feed and fingerling costs," the department said Wednesday in a summary of an "aquaculture" report to be released later this month.

"Tight food budgets and higher travel costs may mean less consumer fish purchases from restaurants and food services, which account for over two-thirds of retail fish and seafood sales," the report said.

"However, red meat and poultry prices this spring and summer should provide some support for catfish and trout sales."

Output of farm-grown catfish was a record 46.5 million pounds last year, measured on a live-weight basis, a 14 percent jump from 1979. Prices paid to producers averaged 67.6 cents a pound, up about 10 percent from 1979.

Demand for cigarettes is increasing in China

WASHINGTON (AP) — China experienced a "rapidly rising demand" for cigarettes last year, triggering some shortages and rationing, the Agriculture Department says.

Production in 1980 was about 750 billion cigarettes, a boost of 15 percent or about 100 billion cigarettes from 1979, the department said Wednesday. But production lags caused short supplies, officials said.

"While demand for cigarettes increased, tobacco acreage and yields declined," the department said. "To supplement the short crop, China purchased leaf tobacco from Zimbabwe, Malawi, India, Thailand and Brazil in 1980."

White bread may be culprit

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Troubled by gas or diarrhea? Such pantry staples as white bread and pasta may be the culprits if they're made with ordinary all-purpose flour, researchers say.

According to a study published in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine, government researchers have found that about 20 percent of the carbohydrates from flour are never absorbed in the intestines.

"What it means is that when the average person eats a slice of bread, a fair proportion of it is never absorbed in the small bowel and goes down into the large intestine and can be converted into gas or into stuff that conceivably causes diarrhea," Dr. Michael D. Levitt, one of the researchers, said in an interview.

The doctors speculate that gluten, the grain protein that gives dough its elastic quality, may be the ingredient that makes bread hard to absorb. The condition is similar to that experienced by some adults who have difficulty digesting milk.

"On the other hand," they wrote, "constipated patients might benefit from a diet high in wheat."

The study was conducted at the Veterans Administration Medical Center in Minneapolis. Using 18 healthy volunteers, the doctors watched the results when people ate ordinary white bread, macaroni, rice bread or bread made from wheat flour that is low in gluten.

When the intestines fail to absorb carbohydrates, the food is broken down into hydrogen. So once an hour, the doctors measured the amount of hydrogen on the volunteers' breath.

They found that 17 of the 18 people showed substantial increases in breath hydrogen a few hours after eating six slices of bread. The results were similar for macaroni that was made from all-purpose flour, but people who ate rice bread or low-gluten bread had little trouble absorbing the food.

Levitt said it is difficult to estimate how much diarrhea, flatulence and abdominal discomfort is caused by flour.

"I think there are a lot of gastrointestinal diseases in which people have diarrhea where a diet low in wheat flour and high in rice flour might be very beneficial to their problem," Levitt said.

Alleged threats against Reagan prompts arrests

By The Associated Press

A Pennsylvania school worker, a Los Angeles transient and a North Carolina man convicted of threatening to kill three presidents were being held in custody after allegedly making threats against President Reagan, officials said.

The arrests came one day after Secret Service agents in New York City arrested a 22-year-old armed man at a bus terminal and charged he had threatened to complete the attempted assassination that left Reagan and three other men wounded last week.

John W. Hinckley Jr., 25, of Colorado, was apprehended after the March 30 shooting incident in Washington, D.C.

The Secret Service said Wednesday that an extensive inquiry produced no indication Edward M. Richardson, arrested at the Port Authority Bus Terminal in New York City, knew Hinckley. Officials charged he had written a letter threatening to "bring to completion Hinckley's reality."

Richardson, of suburban Philadelphia, who allegedly was carrying a loaded gun when arrested, was being held in federal jail in Manhattan on $500,000 bail pending an April 17 extradition hearing or a bail reduction hearing. A psychiatric examination was planned.

Secret Service Director H. Stuart Knight told a House appropriations subcommittee there was no evidence of a conspiracy to assassinate the president.

"At this point we feel quite confident there is no connection between the man who was arrested and the events which went down March 30," he said Wednesday. "This is a comfort to us, and should be to the rest of the country as well."

Meanwhile, in Pennsylvania, U.S. Attorney Peter A. Vaira said Steven E. Seach, 58, a kitchen worker at Church Farms School in Paoli, was undergoing a 90-day mental examination at a federal facility in Springfield, Mo.

After Reagan was wounded, Seach allegedly told a co-worker "if he had been in Washington he would not have missed" and said he wanted time off to go "finish the job," Vaira said. The co-worker notified the Secret Service.

Search for missing continues in elevator debris

By The Associated Press

While teams searched the smoldering ruin of a Texas grain elevator for two men believed buried in its debris, police in Nebraska patrolled the silent streets of an evacuated town as firefighters moved explosive fuels away from a shifting, blast-riddled elevator.

Four people died in Corpus Christi, Texas, and one in Bellwood, Neb., in the grain elevator explosions Tuesday.

On Wednesday, while 20 of the 32 people injured in Texas remained hospitalized, the 360 residents of Bellwood waited anxiously while crews drained propane from two tanks near the teetering elevator.

The explosion and fire in Texas, triggered when volatile grain dust was ignited in the huge, 10-story elevator, caused $30 million in damage to the Corpus Christi Public Elevator, said Don Rodman, public information officer for the port of Corpus Christi.

Cranes and bulldozers were moved into the area Wednesday to help clear the rubble. A fourth body was found shortly after noon and identified as Pedro Delgado, 54, an elevator employee.

Three of the dead were found immediately after the explosion.

Israel Lopez, 24, an elevator employee, scrambled up a mound of crumpled concrete looking for one of the missing men. Huge chunks of concrete held in place only by twisted steel reinforcing rods, hung precariously above his head.

"The guy taught me all I know," Lopez said of the missing man. "He's in here somewhere."

The Port of Corpus Christi's engineering director, Nolan Rhodes, said investigators may never know what caused the dust to ignite or why the elevator's $50-million dust control system didn't work.

Officials said the elevator contained 2.9 million bushels of grain. T.D. Sexton, port commissioner, said the explosion would have a "substantial economic impact on the area. Obviously we are not going to be able to handle any grain for an extended period of time."

He estimated the economic loss to the area "in excess of $100 million."

Seven exporting companies use the elevator.

In Bellwood, fuel crews completed at midnight the dangerous task of draining 29,000 gallons of propane from tanks near the structure and hauling the fuel away in trucks.

Chief Fire Marshal Investigator Peter Sturmer and other authorities ordered the evacuation of the town shortly before 2 p.m. when the damaged elevator began shifting alarmingly, raising fears it might collapse and ignite the propane.

Deputy State Fire Marshal Ken Winters said Bellwood's 360 residents would likely be allowed to return to their homes today.

Meanwhile, Fire Chief Joe Romshek said the cause of Tuesday's explosion won't be known until it's safe for investigators to enter the elevator. A structural engineer warned against entry Wednesday, when the multi-story elevator began "tipping about a foot an hour," according to state Fire Marshal Wally Barnett.

He said the shifting was due to a giant hole blown in the side of the structure, which left little support for the heavy concrete grain storage tubes.

But as brisk afternoon winds died down, the leaning ceased.

Construction workers guide a section of a giant crane into position in front of the Corpus Christi Public Elevator in Corpus Christi. The crane was brought in to help with the search for three missing employees of the elevator that have been unaccounted for since an explosion and fire ripped through the plant silos Tuesday. Three people were killed and 32 injured in the blast.

Escapee prefers death

ENNIS, Texas (AP) — The wife of an escaped Dallas County prisoner who killed himself rather than surrender told investigators that she, too, would have committed suicide but her husband's pistol was empty.

Allen Larry Smith, who escaped from Dallas' Parkland Hospital by firing a smuggled pistol and stabbing his guard with an intravenous needle, ended his life by shooting himself in the head on a farm outside this East Texas town.

Smith, with his wife, had tried to steal a pickup truck from the farm of Steve Valek of Ennis when Valek opened fire on them with a rifle, said Dallas County Sheriff's Sgt. Larry Williams.

Valek was chasing the truck when Smith told his wife to stop, Williams said.

"He said he can't go on any longer, that he can't do any more time in the penitentiary," then put the pistol to his temple and pulled the trigger, Mrs. Smith told deputies, according to Williams.

He said she also told officers she tried to shoot herself, too, but all the pistol's chambers were empty. He said the Smiths had signed a suicide pact — "a letter to her son" — earlier.

Drifter convicted

DALLAS (AP) — Carroll Edward Cole, who says hatred of his mother made him kill at least 12 women, faced life imprisonment today after his convictions in the strangling deaths of three Dallas women.

Jurors deliberated 25 minutes Wednesday before rejecting Cole's plea of insanity and finding him guilty in the strangling deaths of the women, whom he picked up in local bars last November.

He was ordered back to court today for sentencing. Each count carries a maximum penalty of life imprisonment.

Reds beat Phils on McGraw walk

AP Wirephoto

Cincinnati's Johnny Bench gets a helping hand from a photographer as he swings from dugout roof after futile pursuit of Manny Trillo's pop foul in National League opener Wednesday.

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

California Angels Manager Jim Fregosi can't wait for his team to turn on the power.

"If we stay healthy, we're going to challenge the club record for runs scored," says Fregosi.

The Angels, who set that mark with 866 runs in 1979, start swinging for what Fregosi hopes will be a new high when they host the Seattle Mariners in their American League baseball opener tonight.

It is one of eight major league games on tap, following Wednesday's official Opening Day featuring Cincinnati's 3-2 National League victory over the World Champion Philadelphia Phillies.

THE REDS won Wednesday's game with the help of a bases-loaded walk to Dan Driessen in the bottom of the ninth. Tug McGraw, Philadelphia's ace reliever, went to a full count before forcing home the winning run.

Phillies Manager Dallas Green chose to walk power hitters George Foster and Johnny Bench to load the bases with one out before summoning McGraw into the game. Driessen patiently worked McGraw to a 3-2 count before watching Ball Four go by.

"It was just a matter of not jumping at the ball and being a little more selective," said Driessen, given 93 bases on balls last season. "You know they're going to try to make you hit their pitch."

The pitch broke low into the dirt, and Ken Griffey jogged home from third base.

"UNTIL THEY lower the strike zone six inches below the plate, I'm going to have to live with that one," McGraw said of his last pitch.

In today's other AL games, Texas visited New York, Oakland was at Minnesota and Toronto played at Detroit. In the National League, it was Montreal at Pittsburgh, New York at Chicago, Houston at Los Angeles and San Diego at San Francisco.

THE MAIN reason for Fregosi's optimism is a rebuilt lineup that includes new additions Fred Lynn, Butch Hobson and Rick Burleson, whom California acquired in trades with the Boston Red Sox. Among the returning Angels are Don Baylor, the AL's most valuable player in 1980 who hit .296, knocked in 120 runs and hit 36 homers last season, and evergreen Rod Carew, who hit .331 last year.

The Mariners, meanwhile, acquired some power of their own in Richie Zisk and Jeff Burroughs in trades with Texas and Atlanta. However, Seattle Manager Maury Wills isn't nearly as optimistic as Fregosi, considering that his team finished with the worst record in baseball in 1980.

Both he and club president Daniel O'Brien have said they'd be happy with a .500 season in 1981.

The Mariners, though, haven't exactly been the Good Ship Lollipop so far this spring. Wills himself created a good deal of disturbance among the Mariners when he left the team with no explanation in the middle of an exhibition game and went home. O'Brien has since made peace with his manager.

For the moment, Wills will have to deal with at least one disgruntled player, newly-acquired Dick Drago. The Mariners acquired the right-handed relief pitcher in a trade for reliever Manny Sarmiento, but Drago bitterly denounced the deal.

"It stinks," the 12-year veteran said of the deal. "I would have been better off if they released me so I could have made my own deal. I guess they (the Red Sox) don't think too much of my loyalty. When the manager called me this morning, I was thinking of New York or Milwaukee. Then he told me Seattle—I don't even know who plays for Seattle."

SMU, TCU fill cage voids

Tech inks MC All-America

By The Associated Press

Texas Christian and Southern Methodist, two teams that struggled through the 1980-81 basketball season, both signed players to fill big gaps in their lineups on national letter of intent day while Texas Tech landed Charles Johnson, 6-6 Western Junior College Conference All-America who led Midland College to a 30-3 record, and 6-5 Vince Taylor, New Mexico all-stater from Hobbs, among four prime prospects.

The Frogs and Mustangs each signed a highly sought big man to play center, a position where each team was vulnerable last season.

TCU coach Jim Killingsworth signed 6-10, 230-pound post man Brian Christensen from Southwest Oklahoma Junior College in Oklahoma City.

Meanwhile, SMU coach Dave Bliss got the signature of 6-9 center John Koncak of Center High School in Kansas City, Mo. Bliss also celebrated the signing of heavily recruited Reginald Pink, a 6-4 blue-chip forward from Dallas Kimball High School who may be moved to guard in college.

Pink averaged 24.6 points and 14.2 rebounds per game.

TECH'S Gerald Myers announced the signing of four players — Taylor, Johnson, 6-9 Quentin Anderson of Athens, Ala., and 6-9 All-Stater Dwight Phillips of Levelland.

Myers also received a verbal commitment from Herbert Johnson, a 6-9 guard who is Charles' brother. Johnson led Midland High to a bidistrict title last season.

Taylor averaged 24 points and 17 rebounds and was named the Player of the Year in New Mexico in leading Hobbs to a 26-0 mark and the state championship. His older brother Jeff has led the Red Raiders in scoring the last two years.

PHILLIPS averaged 16 points and 16 rebounds per game for Levelland.

Baylor landed 6-5 all-state Russ Capps, who averaged 18.6 points per game in leading Clear Lake High School to a 38-2 record.

Texas Coach Abe Lemons snared guard Jack Worthington who averaged 27 points, six assists and six steals per game for Spring High School.

The Houston Cougars collected a prize by signing 6-7 center-forward

Gary Orsak of Alvin High School, a two-year all-district player.

Baylor also went out of state to sign 6-7 forward David Glover of Chapel Hill, N.C. High School. Glover was a member of that school's state championship. He averaged 19 points and 12 rebounds on the 29-3 team.

BAYLOR Coach Jim Haller also signed Waxahachie High School's James Sterns, a 6-foot guard who averaged 26 points a game while earning first team all-state honors.

"These players are the kind you build a team with," he said. Arkansas and Texas A&M did not announce any signings Wednesday.

Weiskopf dreams of book

Tom watches Masters from sidelines

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Tom Weiskopf, who has turned from golf competitor to broadcaster for the Masters weekend, admits he sometimes has fantasies about authoring a book on the tour.

"I've got the title all picked out," said the gangling Ohio State alumnus, who has lived in the shadow of Jack Nicklaus.

"It would be 'From Alligator Shoes to Gucci.' For sub-titles, 'Alpacas to Pringle Cashmeres,' 'Timex watches to Rolex's,' 'Automobiles to Jet Airplanes.'"

"Then as the ultimate stroke, you have to have a golf tournament named after you."

THE 6-FOOT-3 Weiskopf, who has 13 tour victories plus the British Open, World Piccadilly Match Play, World Series of Golf, World Cup and South African PGA titles, got a chance to take a long-range view of his profession after failing for the first time in 14 years to qualify for the prestigious Masters.

Instead, he'll be wearing a microphone this weekend and doing commentary for CBS-TV.

His disappointment was great but he shrugged it off with the philosophical comment: "The important things in life I have achieved — a good marriage, two wonderful kids, lasting friendships."

"Who can ask for more than that?"

Weiskopf seemed to enjoy, in one of his blither moments, the chance to see himself and his contemporaries as others see them.

"WE ALL look like Knights of the Round Table out there — chess men moving over a giant chess board," he said.

"Don't get me wrong. I am not making fun of anybody. It's just the sameness that we have developed and I am one of the bunch."

Rather than casting ridicule on the tour, he added, he really looked upon the golfers as the aristocrats of professional sports — an analysis accepted generally.

You don't see anyone dressed slovenly. All are spit-and-polish neat, clean-cut and disgustingly circumspect.

"Most of them are college graduates — sophisticated, intelligent, courteous," Tom said.

"They pride themselves on their politeness and propriety in dealing with the spectators and the press. There are no animosities. I've never seen a fight. They don't get involved in drugs or scandals. They stick up for each other."

"THERE MAY be an argument once in a while but it's very spontaneous and brief — a reaction when a guy has had a double-bogey on a hole."

Of all the pro golfers, none except possibly the legendary Tommy (The Terrible) Bolt of another era, has a greater reputation for course pyrotechnics.

Weiskopf refuses to low-key his periodic explosions, sometimes marked by a march to the locker room with smoke coming out his ears and refusal to speak to the press.

Now tempestuous Tom wears a press badge, a second hat (not a Gucci) and the shoe (not a Foot-Joy) is on the other foot.

Relaxing in the press room with golf writers on the eve of the Masters opening, the notorious firebrand spoke quietly of his publicized flareups and insisted they did not affect his career.

"SOMETIMES I wish I had been as mean and nasty as people made me out to be," he said. "Maybe I would have been a better golfer."

There are many facets to Weiskopf's character that have become obscured — if not lost — in the natural tendency to exploit his temperament.

He is greatly admired by his peers not only for his remarkable ability but for his sensitivity and thoughtfulness. His devotion to family and close friends is well-known.

Cubs slate work out

Texas League season opens Friday

After a day of apartment hunting, the Midland Cubs will workout at Cubs Stadium today after a 4 p.m. picture-taking session.

For most of the Cubs, it won't be the first look at Cubs Stadium. Ten players on the 22-man roster saw action in the Tall City last season.

One look is all the Cubs get, however. The 1981 Texas League season will open at 7 p.m. Friday against the San Antonio Dodgers, last year's West Division champions, and the team to beat again this year.

The Cubs bused in Wednesday from Mesa, Ariz., where they underwent three weeks of spring training, but Manager Roy Hartsfield has had only one look at the team as it is now composed. Final roster shifts were made Monday night and the Cubs played their last exhibition Tuesday morning.

Hartsfield will have more experience in the outfield than any player else with Randy LaVigne and Tom Grant, both season-long regulars last year, and Mel Hall, who started the campaign in Midland before going to Quad Cities, back.

Mike Diaz joins veteran Mike Shepston behind the plate with third baseman J.W. Mitchell, who only became familiar with the tools last fall, available in an emergency.

Dave Owen, Corsicana and UT-Arlington, returns at shortstop and will be joined in the infield by Carmello Martinez at third, Craig Kornfeld at second and Jack Upton at first with Wayne Simmons in a utility role.

Lefthanders Norm Churchill, Randy Clark, Tom Spino are back from last year along with righthanders Mike Wright and relief ace Bob Blyth. Newcomers on the staff are Joe McClain, Carlos Gil, Tim Milner, Craig Lefferts and Phil Nasta.

The Cubs open with a five-game series against the Dodgers in a league that sees few changes from last year. Amarillo remains the farm club of San Diego and San Antonio continues to be affiliated with the Dodgers. However, El Paso has switched from the California Angels to the Milwaukee Brewers, who return to the Texas League after an exile of several seasons in the Eastern League.

Lee JV defeats

Odessa Permian, 8-5

Midland Lee JV defeated Odessa Permian, 8-5, as Karry Robertson posted the win against Joe Hollanders, suffering his first loss. Mike Mercurio led the Rebels with two hits in four trips with four runs batted in; Lane Marks went 3-for-4 with an RBI and Scott Carrell was 1-for-1 with 2 RBI.

The win raises Lee's record to 6-4 going into Friday's 4 p.m. game at Big Spring.

Lee, Midland girls run in district meet Friday

SAN ANGELO — The District 5-A girls track meet will be held here Friday, marking a departure from the practice of holding the 5-A meet as a joint meet with girls and boys.

The past three years the girls and boys have run their district meets on the same weekend as a two division field, but this year the girls will go it alone since the Region I meet for girls has been moved up a week.

The boys will not compete in the district meet until April 24, and that meet will also be in San Angelo.

Friday's girls meet will kickoff at noon with field event finals and running preliminaries will start at 2:30 p.m. Finals are set for 7 p.m.

Neither Midland High or Lee is expected to be in the running for a team title, but several local girls appear to have shots at earning a region berth.

The two best hopes may come in the distance races from Midland High. Trudy Arreguir recently won the Tall City Relays title in the 3200 meters with a 13:44.11 and teammate Sandy Rodriguez won the 1600 title with a 6:14.08.

Paula Simmons, younger sister of David Simmons who won both the state discus title last year, is a threat in both the discus and shot put for MHS.

Other Bulldog hopefuls include Penny Griffin in the triple jump and long jump and Cindy Besek in the 100 meter hurdles. Virgie Cooks and Shelia Christian also have long jump hopes.

The best bets for Lee may come from Lois Hall in the 400 meters after placing second in the Tall City Relays with a 1:04.92 and Ariene Butler in the 200 meters after her second place 27.0.

Meg Brennan and Pam Roberts are hopeful in the long jump.

Lee also has three relay teams that may be able of earning a region berth. Lee has competitive relay units in the 800 relay, 1600 relay and 400 relay. The 800 relay team may be the best bet.

The top two finishers in each event will earn a trip to the Region I meet in Lubbock at Texas Tech later this month.

When the boys stage their district meet April 24, there will be a special junior varsity division to keep it a two division meet.

Alamo, Goddard, MHS girls lead

The first day of the Junior High City Championship track meet got underway Wednesday at Memorial Stadium with the girls competing in the running events and the boys in the field events.

The meet resumes today at 3:30 p.m. with boys running events and girls field events. This is the last meet of the season for the girls, but the top two boys finishers will run in the Midland-Odessa meet April 23 in Odessa.

After the completion of the running events, two of the three girls team races are still up for grabs. Alamo leads the seventh grade division 107-95 over Goddard with San Jacinto at 74.

In the eighth grade, Goddard leads 114-108 over Alamo and San Jacinto has 54 with four events left. In the ninth grade, Midland Freshman appears to have a lock on the crown with a 79-31 lead over Lee Freshman.

The boys completed only four events Wednesday so nothing has really been decided. In the seventh grade, San Jacinto had 43 points, Goddard 42 and Alamo 26. In the eighth grade, Alamo leads with 54 followed by SJ at 41 and Goddard 26. Lee Freshmen led Midland 38-27.

Thursday's top two winners in each event from the Junior High City Championship track meet at Memorial Stadium.

Upsets rock NHL as playoffs begin

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

Upsets and overtime. And a dynamic performance by the defending champions. That was the story of the first night of the National Hockey League playoffs.

The biggest shocker of the night came from the hallowed Montreal Forum, where the Canadiens, hockey's most successful team, were humbled 6-3 by a trio of kids barely out of their teens.

The second biggest surprise came out of Boston Garden, another arena where visitors often fear to tread or skate. The Minnesota North Stars, who had never left the Garden with a victory in 35 trips there, broke their maiden with an exciting 5-4 overtime triumph.

Oilers 6, Canadiens 3

Wayne Gretzky, from whom you expect great things, Jari Kurri and Andy Moog — Jari Kurri and Andy Moog? — keyed the Oilers' startling upset of the Canadiens, who finished third in the overall standings to Edmonton's 14th.

Gretzky continued where he left off in the regular season, when he established NHL marks for points (164) and assists (109), by setting up five goals, another NHL record.

"I can pass the puck all night but someone has to put it in the net," said the 20-year-old whiz kid.

"We've got 16 other guys and they've got 16 other guys. One guy can't win the Stanley Cup or lose it."

The other guys helping Gretzky were, for the most part, rookies. Kurri, a 22-year-old native of Sweden, scored twice and Moog, 21, barely out of junior hockey and a starter in just five games this season, was steady in the nets.

Brett Callighen, a wizened veteran of 27, had two goals, including the game-winner, for the Oilers.

North Stars 5, Bruins 4, OT

Steve Payne had three goals, including the magic overtime tally that ended Minnesota's long record of futility — 0-28-7 — in Boston. "It went off the shaft of my stick," said Payne of Tim Young's shot.

"Statistically, it's been shown that a lot of these overtimes don't go over five minutes so we couldn't play too cautiously. We had to take it to them," said Minnesota defenseman Fred Barrett.

Rangers 3, Kings 1

The Rangers, who surrendered only five goals in their final five games of the regular season, kept the high-scoring Kings in check and Steve Baker was magnificent, making 31 saves.

Sabres 3, Canucks 2, OT

Buffalo's Andre Savard knotted the game with only 1:08 remaining on an unassisted goal, then

Islanders 9, Maple Leafs 2

Bryan Trottier had two goals and three assists, while Mike Bossy and Bob Bourne also scored twice apiece in routing Toronto.

"It wasn't a matter of making special plans for them," said Bossy, who led the NHL with 68 goals this season. "It was a matter of going out there and giving 100 per cent, then knowing we gave it."

Blues 4, Penguins 2

The victory, provided by Jorgen Pettersson's 40-foot slapshot late in the second period, snapped a five-year playoff drought for the Blues, who last won a postseason game on April 6, 1978 vs. Buffalo.

Flyers 6, Nordiques 4

Philadelphia fired 45 shots at Quebec goaltender Daniel Bouchard, with Bill Barber and Brian Propp connecting twice and Paul Holmgren scoring the game winner. Ken Linseman added three assists for the Flyers and the Quebec line of Michel Goulet and Czechoslovakian brothers Peter and Anton Stastny combined for nine points.

Flames 4, Black Hawks 3

The Flames won only their third playoff game ever as Kent Nilsson scored once and assisted on three goals. Rookie Darryl Sutter had two goals for Chicago.

Rangers' Anders Hegberg whips puck past Los Angeles Kings' Mario Lessard.

From R-T wire services

Dallas Cowboys quarterback Danny White testified that former Arizona State football Coach Frank Kush slapped him once on the helmet during his freshman season in 1970 "and told me that I'd never be a good quarterback." But White said the incident instead spurred him on to a pro career. "It accomplished two things," White told the court. "It flattered me to think that Coach Kush recognized potential in me and it also angered me and instilled an immediate desire to prove him wrong. I never wanted to be slapped on the helmet again." White testified in the second phase of a $2.2-million damage suit against Kush, the university and others by former Sun Devil punter-defensive back Kevin Rutledge, who claims Kush and ex-ASU assistant coach Bill Maskill harassed him into quitting the team and forfeiting his scholarship...

The NCAA, saying it had no objection to Illinois quarterback Dave Wilson playing football again next season, was dropped as a defendant in Wilson's complicated eligibility case. Kings trump Suns to even series

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — With guards Otis Birdsong and Phil Ford sidelined with injuries, Kansas City Kings Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said his team "had to play the cards dealt us" Wednesday night against the Phoenix Suns.

Subsequently, Kansas City relied on a "king" — forward Reggie King — to trump the Suns, 88-83.

in their National Basketball Association playoff and square the best-of-seven Western Conference semifinal series at one game apiece.

King paired with guard Scott Wedman for 21 points in a pivotal fourth period as Kansas City recorded its first post-season victory at the Arizona Veterans Memorial Coliseum in six games over a three-year span.

Wedman, who shifted from his accustomed forward position to fill in for Birdsong, was the Suns' main nemesis according to Phoenix Coach John MacLeod.

In the only other playoff game Wednesday night, the San Antonio Spurs got their running game going and beat the Houston Rockets 125-112 to tie their West semifinal at one victory apiece.

Mark Olberding, San Antonio's power forward, scored a career-high 34 points and teamed with Paul Griffin to hold Houston's Moses Malone to 21 points and 12 rebounds.

Calvin Murphy, Houston's explosive reserve guard, matched Olberding's 34 points

IRA

(INDIVIDUAL RETIREMENT ACCOUNT)

APRIL 15 IS DEPOSIT DEADLINE

If you haven't already made your 1980 contributions to your Individual Retirement Account — or even if you haven't opened one yet — you still can at First Savings and Loan in Midland through April 15.

To take advantage of your tax shelter for 1980, you must open or add to your IRA before you file your tax return. And remember, we pay the maximum interest permitted on all IRA tax sheltered accounts. If you are not now covered by any other retirement plan and invest 15% of your annual salary (up to a maximum $1500 each year) you will not have to pay any federal income taxes on your IRA, or the interest it builds, until you retire or begin withdrawing the funds.

Not only can you reduce your income tax, if you also happen to be under 35 years old now, you could, by the time you retire, be a quarter-millionaire! Social Security might not be so bad with a quarter of a million dollars to ease over the rough spots!

Stop by First Savings downtown at 500 W. Wall or in San Miguel Square and open or add to your IRA account before time runs out. The few minutes it takes now can make a world of difference when you retire.

85 wildcat projects scheduled for Permian Basin counties

Eighty-five proposed wildcat projects were among the 319 new oil and gas operations announced last week for the Permian Basin of West Texas and southeast New Mexico.

Thirty-eight of the wildcats were filed in the District 7B office of the Railroad commission headquartered in Abilene.

District 8, headquartered in Midland, reported 66 oil and gas projects, including 11 wildcats.

District 8A, with headquarters in Lubbock, processed applications requesting permission to drill eight wildcats and 59 projects.

Who is in charge of your Life?

The Texas Medical Association has before the legislature two of the most onerous bills ever to be proposed in this state of most others. These are House Bill 609 and Senate Bill 315. The essence of these bills would be to bring all therapeutic modalities under the control of the Texas State Board of Medical Examiners. (TSBME). This would include Oriental Health Care, acupressure, massage, nutritional counseling, biofeedback and even spiritually oriented healing ministers. These bills would also place additional restrictions on nurses, dentists, chiropractors and optometrists narrowly defining what their health functions are.

How can you help? Write both your State Senator and Representative encouraging them to defeat House Bill 609 and Senate Bill 315.

We must do our writing within the next week. You can write all State Senators through P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711, and all Representatives can be written through P.O. Box 2910, Austin 78769. Be sure to include your full name and address along with telephone number.

Crane, Pecos list wildcat producers

The Gulf Oil Corp. of Midland announced the completion of a first well wildcat 5 miles northwest of Crane.

The No. 1128 W. N. Waddell et al is located 660 feet from the north and east lines of section 7, block B-21 of the PSL survey.

The well was potentiated for 128 barrels of 36.9 gravity oil, 218 gas and 128 barrels of water flowing through a 18/64 inch choke with the gas to oil ratio of 1703:1.

The top-of-pay depth was 5,830 feet, total depth 6,232 feet, plug-back depth 6,194 feet and the ground-level elevation of 2,651 feet.

Perforations were made from 5,911 to 5,928 feet with 1,500 gallons of 15% NeFe acid. A 5 1/2 inch casing was set at 6,231 feet and the casing pressure was 220.

The formations reached were: Rustler 465 feet, San Andres 2,981 feet, Tubb 4,670 feet, Wichita Albany 5,114 feet, Wolfcamp 5,830 feet. The drilling commenced on February 2, 1981 and the well was completed on March 5, 1981.

PECOS COUNTY: The PDC Gas Co. of Midland has finished a wildcat re-entry in a depleted Permian oil discovery three miles southeast of Imperia.

The No. 1 Bowman State is located 467 feet from the southwest and 100 feet from the southeast lines of section 8, block 3 of the H&TC Railroad Co. survey.

It was potentiated for 10 barrels of oil, 3,000 cubic feet of gas per day and 30 barrels of water with the gas to oil ratio of 300:1 but is presently pumping brine water and the potential is uncertain.

Perforations were made from 2,300 to 2,315 feet with 1,000 gallons of 15% NeHCl acid. The top-of-pay depth is 2,310 feet, plug-back depth 2,320 feet and the total depth 2,340 feet. A 7-inch casing was set at 2,340 feet.

Before the re-entry, the hole was originally drilled to 2,336 feet by Bruce Grammar and others. It was taken over by Hillin Drilling Co. and completed in 1970 through perforations from 2,303 to 2,315 feet.

The well was abandoned in 1970 and permission was received to convert it to a water well. This was not done and PDC Gas Co. ran tubing and rods, and placed on pump.

A.G. Hill and Associates, Abilene have announced completion of the No. 1 Brandenburg, a wildcat venture in Pecos County.

Located 1,320 feet from the north and 2,000 feet from the east line of section 44, block 8, survey H&GN, the site is 8 miles northeast of Coynosa.

Total depth of the explorer is 18,117 feet with plugged back depth at 16,450 feet.

Ground level elevation was 2,512 feet with 9 5/8 inch casing set at 11,157 feet.

Perforations were 14,613 feet to 14,891 acidized with 59,000 gallons.

Treatment was 102,000 pounds of sand.

The well was potentiated for a calculated absolute open flow of 250,000 cubic feet of gas per day.

Texas Oil & Gas has completed the No. 2 Cabeen, five-eighths mile southwest of Wichita-Albany production, one mile southwest of Wolfcamp production and one-half mile east of Ellenburger production in the Putman multiphase field of Pecos County.

Location is 467 feet from the north line and 467 feet from the west line of section 5, block F, TCR survey seven miles southwest of Girvin.

Total depth of the location was 5,410 feet with plugged back depth to 4,925 feet and ground level elevation of 2,891 feet.

Perforations were 4,548 feet to 4,696 feet acidized with 5,750 gallons.

Cast iron bridge plug was set at 4,925 feet.

The well was potentiated for a calculated absolute open flow of 1,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day.

States plan for welfare applications

By The Associated Press

While the nation's coal fields lay quiet, welfare officials began preparing for a deluge of food stamp applications from miners who rejected a proposed contract and walked off their jobs three weeks ago.

Members of the striking United Mine Workers' Bargaining Council, meanwhile, readied for a meeting Friday in Washington, D.C.

UMW district officers have said they feel the meeting of the 39-member council was called to decide what strategy was needed to get the union back to the bargaining table with the soft-coal operators and to get a contract that the union's 160,000 members would accept.

There was some picketing in the coalfields Wednesday, but no violence was reported for the first time this

Officials in West Virginia and Illinois said Wednesday they were getting ready for an anticipated 40,000 applications within the next few days. Officials in other states also were expecting a sharp increase in food-stamp applications over the coming

Both the wells were drilled by Hilliard Oil & Gas Co. on December 30, 1980.

Kuwaiti oil minister doubts OPEC prices will rise in 1981

ROME (AP) — Kuwait's oil minister predicted today that weak world demand for oil will prevent the OPEC cartel from raising its base oil price of $36 a barrel this year.

But Sheikh Ali Khalifah Al Sabah told reporters that Saudi Arabia, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' largest exporter, may raise its price from $32 to $36 a barrel to put itself in line with the other OPEC members.

He predicted the Saudis increase might come at the May 25th meeting of OPEC oil ministers in Geneva.

Saudi Arabia, OPEC's leading price moderate, has kept its price low and its output at record levels in an apparent effort to restrain prices.

Al Sabah said the world oil market is too weak to support an OPEC-wide price increase at the Geneva meeting. He said he "much doubts" that the market would allow such an increase for the rest of the year.

The majority of OPEC members fixed the $36 oil price at a meeting last December in Bali, Indonesia.

Several other OPEC ministers have said recently that oil supplies exceed demand by 2 million barrels a day, but Al Sabah denied there is a glut. He said an oversupply might develop if warring Iran and Iraq raise their combined production from less than 2 million barrels a day at present to more than more than 3 million.

Al Sabah is in Rome to attend a conference on cooperation between Arab oil exporters and southern European countries.

He would not comment on the disagreements Kuwait reportedly is having with several of its customers over premiums to be charged above the $36 a barrel price.

He said Kuwait has "concluded agreements" for total production of more than 1 million barrels a day through March 1982. Kuwait expects to sign contracts with several other customers within two or three weeks, he added.

Discovery well completed in Runnels

Trojan Oil Production and Services Inc. of Abilene has announced completion of the No. 1 Hoelscher, formerly the Master Drilling Co. No. 1 Weldon Holther, as a Caddo oil discovery from perforations made from 4,228 to 4,232 feet.

The well pumped 42 barrels of 43 gravity oil and 21 barrels of water in

Wellsite is three miles west of Balingier in Runnels County, John Heill No. 419 survey and is one mile south of Gardner oil production in Big Ed field.

Ex-CIA agent blasts government report

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former CIA agent Philip Agee says the State Department's special report on alleged Soviet-bloc support for Salvadoran guerrillas is so filled with distortions and false claims that it is "little more than a blatant propaganda exercise."

In a 46-page critique released today, Agee said he believes many key documents purportedly captured from Salvadoran guerrillas were fabricated. And he added that even if authentic, they fail to prove the Reagan administration's charge of massive Cuban and Soviet-bloc arms shipments to El Salvador.

"There is no evidence in the documents presented in this 'white paper' to support the belief that the Soviet Union has given significant support to the Salvadoran guerrilla movement," Agee said.

Agee, who has been a prominent critic of the CIA's covert operations since resigning from the agency in 1968, lives in Hamburg, West Germany. His U.S. passport was revoked because of his anti-CIA activities.

Agee's review of the State Department report was made public here by editors of "Covert Action," a magazine that seeks to expose secret CIA operations.

In the critique, Agee said that based on his knowledge of the CIA's activities in Latin America, the agency "could have fabricated all 19 of these (captured guerrilla) documents, perhaps working with Salvadoran security officials. ... Such an operation would not be the first time the CIA has done it."

Agee worked for the CIA in Ecuador, where he claimed in his book "Inside the Company: CIA Diary" that the agency fomented social unrest and spread false information to undermine political factions that it considered opposed to U.S. interests.

Man still critical after oilfield fire

LUBBOCK — A 19-year-old Andrews man remained in critical condition in Lubbock General Hospital early today after sustaining burns over 60 percent of his body in a Tuesday oilfield accident.

Manuel Terreco sustained second and third degree burns when an oil tank in which he was working erupted in flames when he touched a grinder to the wall.

The accident occurred 25-30 miles southeast of Lamesa in Borden County.

Guns of Lebanon silenced, relief operations begin

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The guns fell silent in Lebanon today as the government and the International Red Cross mounted relief operations for the victims of eight days of fierce fighting between a Syrian peacekeeping army and Lebanon's right-wing Christian forces.

A police spokesman said combatants on both sides of Beirut's Moslem-Christian dividing line, and in the Christian city of Zahle were observing the 18th ceasefire of the war, which was ordered Wednesday by Lebanese President Elias Sarkis.

The spokesman said no truce violations were recorded during the night or early today as efforts got under way to take final stock of the losses in both cities where at least 265 civilians were killed and about a 1,000 wounded.

A 16-car medical convoy from the International Red Cross was in Zahle helping hundreds of wounded. A French military hospital plane was ready at Beirut airport to fly the seriously injured to France, the spokesman said.

Except for the Red Cross convoy, Syrian forces maintained their siege of Zahle, 30 miles east of Beirut and 20 miles from the Syrian border. Syrian tanks control the surrounding hills and every road leading to the city, most of whose 200,000 inhabitants spent the last eight days in cellars, basements and bomb shelters.

Just before the truce, Christian military commander Amin Gemayel vowed to drive the Syrians out of this half-Christian, half-Moslem country.

"The war of liberation is close. We shall accept no compromise and will not stop our struggle until the whole of Lebanon is liberated," said Gemayel, military commander of the Phalange Party, the largest Christian organization in this nation of three million.

Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat claimed, meanwhile, that the Christian's war of liberation was the beginning of a joint offensive by the Christians and their Israeli allies against his Palestinian forces.

Syria maintains a 22,000-man peacekeeping force in Lebanon to police a four-year-old armistice that halted a civil war between the Christians and an alliance of leftist Moslems and Palestinian guerrillas.

Lebanese government sources said the Syrians are demanding complete control of one-third of Lebanon as a security belt against Israel. The Syrians charged the Phalangists collaborate with Israel and that their presence in the region was intolerable.

But the Phalangists accused the Syrians of becoming an occupation army, rejected the demand and vowed to retain Zahle, 30 miles east of Beirut, as their main stronghold in eastern Bekaa province.

Map shows political divisions in Lebanon by numbered designations. The areas are as follows: (1) Christian Phalangists, (2) Syrian troops and Lebanese leftist troops, (3) Palestine Liberation Organization, (4) Israeli-backed Haddad militia and checkered area is the UN buffer zone. Syrian tanks fired into the Christian city of Zahle Wednesday.

Saudi fuel tanks may be in trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — Without "some concessions" by Saudi Arabia, the Reagan administration's proposed sale of sophisticated equipment for that country's F-15 fighter planes "could be in real trouble" in the Senate, a Republican leader says.

The administration had counted on the Republican-controlled Senate to put the deal through regardless of what the Democratic-controlled House does. Both houses together could block the sale.

The comment by the Senate Republican whip, Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska, appeared to support estimates by opponents, mostly Democrats, that 53 of the 100 senators oppose the sale with varying degrees of fervor.

The Reagan administration has decided not to sell Saudi Arabia bomb racks for the planes because of Israeli protests that the sale would increase the threat to Israel's security.

The administration, however, wants to grant the Saudi request for Sidewinder air-to-air missiles and long-range fuel tanks for the 63 F-15s the Saudis bought in 1978.

When it won approval to sell the planes in 1978, the Carter administration said it would not sell the extra equipment.

Nearly 100 House members registered opposition to the sale Tuesday because of the threat to Israel and because Saudi Arabia would give nothing in return.

Stevens said that is also why the sale is in trouble in the Senate.

"There must be some concessions by the Saudis," he said.

"It is not enough that they are our largest oil supplier and that we must sell or else. If, for example, there is not a regional defense commitment ... it would never even come to a vote."

Congress has 30 days to block a sale after it receives the administration's formal proposal, which is expected later this month or early next month.

Schmidt warns against intervention in Poland

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Schmidt today warned that intervention by force in Poland "would change the world" and might make West Germany re-examine its position on detente with the Soviet Union.

In a speech to Parliament, he denounced the Soviet Union for "darkening" the world scene with its "ever-increasing armament," the incursion in Afghanistan and its attempts "to interfere in the military and political affairs of the Third World."

Apparently referring to the recently-ended Warsaw Pact military maneuvers in and around Poland, Schmidt said, "Any attempt to violently interfere in Poland's internal affairs because of the reforms would change the world."

"We, therefore, would then be forced to reassess our position toward the relations in which we find ourselves," he said.

Schmidt said peace in Poland is "in the interests of all peoples of Europe" and that "any move to excite the situation — from East or from the West — is dangerous."

The chancellor said continuity and trustworthiness had been the basic elements of West German foreign policy, both towards the East and the West.

However, he emphasized that West Germany's alliance with the West insured his nation's freedom and security.

"West Germany belongs in the West," Schmidt said. "Without the alliance with the United States there is no security for Europe."

Addressing the residents of East Germany directly, Schmidt said he was forced to counter the "propaganda" expressed by the Communist leadership there.

No rain in sight for burning states

By The Associated Press

While North Carolina officials battled 45 blazes and warned "the crisis is not over," Florida officials said there was little chance that rain would help douse blazes that have charred nearly 100,000 acres in and near the Everglades.

A statewide ban on burning remained in effect in North Carolina, where 245 acres were lost to blazes Wednesday.

In Florida, fires ate away at brush land in southern Dade County, southwest Broward County and Everglades National Park, burning more than 30,000 acres Wednesday.

Haig to meet with King Juan Carlos

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. reaffirms America's support for Spanish democracy and gets a bill for more than $3 billion in meetings today with King Juan Carlos and centrist Premier Leopoldo Calvo Sotelo.

More than $3 billion in U.S. arms is Spain's asking price for renewal of the five-year treaty giving the United States naval and air bases in the country, reliable sources said.

Negotiations to renew the treaty, which expires Sept. 21, were to have begun six months ago but were delayed by the change in U.S. administrations. Foreign Minister Jose Pedro Perez Llorca told Parliament's Foreign Affairs Committee last week that he expects Haig's visit to open the way for the talks.

Under the present treaty, 11,000 U.S. Navy and Air Force personnel are stationed at four Spanish bases.

Unlike the last agreement, negotiated during the dying days of the Franco dictatorship five years ago, this one will be subject to approval by the Cortes, Spain's parliament. The Socialist-Communist opposition has indicated it will accept a new treaty if Spain gets a better deal than it did last time.

Under the old agreement, the United States provided more than $725 million in military aid, Export-Import Bank credits of $400 million and $35 million in scientific, cultural and educational aid.

Haig, who arrived Wednesday night after a Middle East tour of Egypt, Israel, Jordan and Saudi Arabia, was also expected to discuss the possibility of Spain's admission to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, a move opposed by the left.

In addition, he will try to smooth the political fevers ruffled by his apparent lack of concern for Spain's fledgling democracy during the attempted rightist military coup Feb. 23. Haig's comment that the rebellion was "an internal matter" caused widespread anger and dismay.

After King Juan Carlos mustered the army to crush the coup, the Reagan administration took pains to declare its support for Spanish democracy. But a newspaper editorial Wednesday showed Haig's remark has not been forgiven.

"The image of a Pontius Pilate washing his hands of the matter while the destiny of Spanish democracy was in danger clearly continues among many Spaniards," said the Madrid Catholic newspaper Ya. The secretary of state was flying on to London later today. He goes to Paris Saturday and then to Bonn before flying home.

Armed police guard voting

ENNISKILLEN, Northern Ireland (AP) — More than 1,000 British troops and armed police officers guarded polling stations today as voting started in a bizarre battle for a British Parliament seat sought by an imprisoned Roman Catholic guerrilla and a Protestant hardliner.

The 72,000 voters in the predominantly Roman Catholic district of Fermanagh and South Tyrone have to choose between imprisoned Irish Republican Army gunman Bobby Sands and Harry West, a tough-talking Protestant leader.

The two candidates symbolize the sectarian division in British-run Northern Ireland, a province torn by political and communal violence for more than 11 1/2 years. The two men are competing for a House of Commons seat left vacant by the death of Catholic Nationalist Frank Maguire last month.

Sands, 27, has been on a hunger strike "to the death" in Maze Prison near Belfast since March 1 demanding that jailed IRA members be treated as political prisoners rather than criminals.

West, 63, is a farmer and former leader of the Official Unionist Party, the provinces main Protestant party. He served briefly in 1974 as the district's member of Parliament.
