Reagan ready to rein in budget plan

...And it looks like Congress is ready to let him

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, capitalizing on rising popularity since last month's assassination attempt, reassumes public command of his budget battle tonight with an appeal to Congress to stop talking and start acting.

Aides said Reagan will tell a joint session in the nationally televised, 9 p.m. EDT speech that Congress must shed the "old and comfortable way" because "a day of decision is near" for his tax and spending cut proposals.

"High taxes and excess spending growth created our economic mess," one source said Reagan will say. "To fail to act will delay — even longer and more painfully — the cure that must come."

The speech, expected to last about 15 minutes, comes as the administration program is picking up speed with Congress nearing key votes this week. Conservative Republicans on the Senate Budget Committee neared agreement on a revised budget blueprint, and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said enough Democrats may cross over to give the president a victory in the House.

The address is Reagan's third on the economy but his first public appearance since he was shot March 30.

It comes on the eve of his 100th day in office, and the selection of the well of the House is intended to focus the drama of Reagan's re-emergence on the forefront of the fight for his economic program.

One White House official, who asked not to be identified, said the president's attitude is: "Look, we've talked about the economy. We've analyzed it. Now is the time to do something. Now it's time to take the courageous measures to get the economy back on the path."

The president, who is not yet working full time in the Oval Office again, was putting the final touches on the speech today.

He worked on the message at his Camp David, Md., retreat over the weekend and met with his speechwriter, his congressional lobbyist and the deputy chief of staff when he returned to the White House on Monday.

The speechwriter, Ken Khachigian, took the notes Reagan had made on a draft and was preparing a clean copy for the president's final approval today, according to deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes.

Speakes said the president also planned to make a personal reference to the assassination attempt, although that will be "something he writes out himself... straight from his own hand."

The full House is likely to take up the budget by the end of the week. The House Budget Committee approved a $714.5 billion budget, and Rep. Delbert L. Latta, R-Ohio, and Rep. Phil Gramm, a conservative Texas Democrat, have proposed a $689 billion alternative that Reagan is expected to formally endorse in tonight's speech.

Speakes said Reagan, who outlined his economic program in an address to the nation on Feb. 5 and also delivered a state of the economy address to Congress on Feb. 18, feels "it is important to go again to emphasize" his views on the economic legislation.

The administration seems to have regained momentum lost when Reagan was sidelined with a gunshot wound in the lung a month ago, and tonight's speech might be just icing.

"The president feels the day of decision is near and it is appropriate that Congress act as quickly as possible," Speakes said.

"The thrust is that we were elected in November to do something about the economy," he said. "As of yet, nothing has been done."

The spokesman predicted the vote on the Gramm-Latta proposal will be "very, very close...tough, but doable."

O'Neill said numerous Democrats were defecting to the president's side and the momentum would be difficult to stop. He attributed it to Reagan's increase in popularity after the shooting, saying members of Congress "go with the will of the people and the will of the people today is to go with the president."

"I've been in politics an awful long time and I know when you fight and when you don't fight," O'Neill said.

The president's program also appears back on track among Senate Republicans after being stalled 2½ weeks when three GOP conservatives on the Budget Committee voted against the budget plan to protest its projected $44.7 billion deficit in fiscal year 1984.

Midland detectives load recovered burglary items found in an east side house after police arrested two men who were allegedly attempting to burglarize a home at 3713 W.

Michigan Ave. about 1:40 p.m. Monday. A van and two pickup trucks were needed to carry the goods to the police station, where it took 14 pages to catalog them. Police say the arrests may clear numerous recent burglaries and estimate the value of the recovered loot in excess of $40,000. Related photos on Page 2A.

Arrests could clear many burglaries

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

An alert neighbor, fast work on the part of off-duty police officers, luck and "an excellent job" by a woman officer filling in as a dispatcher culminated in the arrest of two men Monday and the recovery of stolen goods worth in excess of $40,000.

As reconstructed this morning by Detective Lt. Earl Lucky, the incident began about 1:40 p.m. Monday when police received a "burglary in progress" call from a resident in the 3700 block of West Michigan Avenue.

Off-duty patrolman Terry Lowe, who happened to be in his patrol car nearby, was the first officer to arrive on the scene. Lowe saw two men running from a house at 3713 W. Michigan and a foot chase resulted in the capture of a 20-year-old man.

Meanwhile, off-duty officers John Urby and Dusty Land spotted the second suspect walking in the 500 block of Sprayberry Drive. The 40-year-old man gave police permission to search his east side house, and, in Lucky's words, "a bunch" of goods that took several hours and 14 pages to catalog were recovered.

Included in the recovery were Persian rugs valued at more than $20,000, stereos, TV sets and camera equipment worth in excess of $10,000, and scores of jewelry items — the value of which has yet to be determined. The goods had been taken in numerous local burglaries over the past few months.

"We won't really know how much everything's worth until people come in and identify their belongings," said Lucky. "Anyone whose house has been burglarized in the past three months is welcome to come down to the detective division and see if their belongings are here."

Also recovered were a TV set, stereo and jewelry worth some $2,200 that had been stacked near a back gate of the Michigan Avenue address.

In addition to the neighbor who called police and the off-duty officers who responded so quickly, Lucky said credit for the arrests and recovery went to officer Ofelia Lowe, Terry Lowe's wife, who dispatched police units to the scene and coordinated their efforts.

"She's not a regular dispatcher," said Lucky. "But she did an excellent job in keeping other (non-emergency radio) traffic off the air."

The 40-year-old Midland suspect was identified as Billy Wayne Matthews of 204 E. Spruce. The 20-year-old man is James Edward Allen who, police said, had been staying with Matthews.

Both men were returned to the city jail after being arraigned before Justice of the Peace Robert Pine at mid-morning. Judge Pine set bonds of $15,000 on each of them.

Not mayor's Brand of politics?

By SUSAN STOLER
Associated Press Writer

MCALLEN, Texas (AP) — Mayor Othal Brand, faced with a tough May 9 election runoff, says he can fight only one political battle at a time and has taken himself out of consideration for an appointed spot on the state prison board.

Allegations of an official cover-up of police brutality have become an issue in Brand's re-election campaign and were expected to come up in his Senate confirmation hearings in Austin.

"As soon as information became available to us about police brutality, we took action," the mayor said in his defense at a news conference Monday. "None of this has been reported by CBS or local television stations."

Civil rights lawyers had protested Brand's nomination to the Texas Board of Corrections and the controversy grew after national telecast of videotapes showing officers beating prisoners before the station booking desk.

The mayor said he would ask for equal time from the networks and local stations to present what he called the city's side on the entire police brutality matter.

In Austin, the Senate returned Brand's appointment to Gov. Bill Clements. A hearing on the nomination had been scheduled for today.

Brand said he had repeatedly requested a delay until after his election and that unless the hearing were put off, he would withdraw his name.

Peyton McKnight, chairman of the Senate Nominations Subcommittee, said he had told Brand by phone he could put on witnesses and have as much time as needed. McKnight, D-Tyler, said he did not think the election was a valid reason to postpone the hearing.

The police brutality issue began in 1976 when Jim Harrington, an American Civil Liberties Union lawyer, filed a federal suit on behalf of eventually 17 plaintiffs against individual policemen. The city of McAllen was later added as a defendant.

The suit was settled in March when the city agreed to pay a $250,000 damage award. U.S. District Judge James DeAnda also issued an injunction against future police brutality.

Harrington has accused city officials of knowing about problems on the force but doing nothing to correct them.

A federal grand jury currently is investigating possible criminal civil rights violations.

Lupe Salinas of Houston, assistant U.S. attorney in charge of the grand jury, said Monday that some of the same individuals who filed civil suits had made complaints to the FBI.

"These matters have been known to the FBI for several years. When the civil trial came into the news, it made it (the FBI investigation) a present matter, a current matter," Salinas said in a telephone interview.

In a seven-page document summarizing his action in the police brutality matter, Brand said he called the U.S. Justice Department in June 1980 and requested an immediate investigation of the brutality allegations.

The mayor said he contacted both federal and state officials after watching "for the first time" videotapes that showed officers abusing prisoners.

"It became evident that we had a serious problem in our police department," the mayor said.

Like road, paving issue 'rutted'

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Midland County commissioners were sympathetic with irked oilfield workers traveling a muddy, rutty county road.

But they couldn't immediately smooth over the road problem, which was recognized by 123 workers who signed a petition requesting that the county pave the mile-long strip that gets muddy and rutty and which is an inconvenience to the drivers of oilfield trucks in far west Midland County.

Commissioners offered hope but no immediate relief for truckers on the strip, County Road 129-West and commonly known as Permian Road.

"We're going to go ahead and try to caliche it...and do the very best we can engineering-wise," Commissioner Durward Wright told Gary Ellison and Eugene Miller, spokesmen for the petitioners.

"We'll try to get you some caliche down, hopefully in the next couple of months," Wright said in Monday's Commissioners' Court meeting.

Ellison and Miller offered the petition to the court in hopes of effecting the paving of the dirt road which serves oil-field related businesses on the industrial strip, which is far closer to Odessa than Midland.

But Midland County's road-and-bridge funds preclude paving there within the next year or so. "Our funds are diminishing," said Wright. Commissioner Win Brown has been aware of the dilemma.

"That has been quite a problem out there for sometime," he said.

Wright, like Brown, was aware of the solution, but the means — money — wasn't at hand.

"Nothing would make me happier than to go out there right now and pave it," Wright said.

Commissioner Wright and the Ellison-Miller team talked about a developer providing the caliche, which costs $2-plus a cubic yard, and of the county spreading and compacting the road material. They also mentioned businesses along the mile strip furnishing asphalt and other material needed for hard-top paving, and the county's road crew would lay the road.

"At any rate, it's not an insurmountable problem," said Wright. "I'm not mad at them (Permian Road area people)."

"Tell them," he told Ellison and Miller, "I'm not slighting them. I understand their problem. I really do."

Outside the Commissioners' Courtroom, the two men again discussed the dirt road.

"It gets pretty raunchy when it rains," Miller said.

"It's terrible," said Ellison, who held out hope for relief.

"It'll be a great help if we get caliche," he said.

And, after Ellison and Miller had left, Wright said everything possible would be done to try to repair the road.

"Every time it rains, it (ruts and mud) gets up to their hubs," the commissioner said of the truck-drivers' rigs. "I'm going to do it (road repair) if it hair-lips the governor."

IN OTHER ACTION, the commissioners:

—Waited in vain for Robert Hopper to show up to make a special use-request for the Midland County Exhibit Building. County Judge Bill Ahlers, looking into the courtroom's almost bare gallery, jokingly asked County Attorney Robert Rendall:

Space shuttle to continue piggy-back ride to Florida

By TIM BOVEE
Associated Press Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — No big reception was planned at Kennedy Space Center in Florida today to mark the space shuttle's return home, but Oklahomans turned out by the thousands to get a glimpse of the historic spacecraft during its overnight stop here.

A crowd estimated by military officials at 200,000 backed up traffic for two miles Monday to see the Columbia during its refueling stop at Tinker Air Force Base here.

It was to resume its piggy-back trip aboard a jetliner today. The final leg of the shuttle's trip was over Little Rock, Ark., Higbee, Miss., Montgomery, Ala., and Tallahassee and Orlando, Fla., to Cape Canaveral, said Capt. Bev Garrett, of the base's public affairs office.

The shuttle rocketed into space on April 12 and made a perfect landing on a dry lake bed in California two days later.

Its takeoff from Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., was delayed some three hours, to 1:15 p.m. EDT, while technicians installed a strut to secure a 17-piece aluminum tail cone to the shuttle. The white cone fits over the shuttle's rocket engines and reduces drag.

The departure from Edwards had been delayed six days as ground crews encountered minor but time-consuming problems with the complex servicing procedure. Before the Columbia could leave, its fuel lines and bays had to be cleansed of explosive fuels, its systems shut down and the entire 100-ton ship rechecked.

"Everything that could happen to us happened, but we're glad it happened on the ground, not on the flight," said Donald K. "Deke" Slayton, a former astronaut and shuttle test flight program manager.

Once back at Kennedy Space Center, the spacecraft will be outfitted for the second of perhaps 100 missions. NASA says the next Columbia mission may be within six months.

The ferry plane, its structure reinforced, engines souped up and metal mounts attached to its back, has carried both the Columbia and the prototype shuttle Enterprise.

The Boeing 747 jetliner and the shuttle arrived here accompanied by two blue and white NASA T-38 chase planes, one of them flown by Slayton.

Oklahoma Gov. George Nigh was among the approximately 100 people who watched from a VIP area at Tinker as the 747 and its precious cargo drifted in to a landing nearly as smooth as the first of the shuttle itself.

More CIA help needed

Christmas in April, Midland's renowned volunteer housing repair project, officially has ended for another year. And once again it was spectacularly successful.

About 2,000 volunteers worked this year repairing 102 homes for elderly or handicapped Midlanders. The work brought smiles to a lot of faces; a lot of Midlanders are happier today.

But the story doesn't end here. The work isn't finished.

Volunteers on Saturday worked repairing homes, worked in the Christmas in April warehouse, performed errands, fixed lunch for the other volunteers, sprayed houses with insecticide and babysat. The sad fact, though, is that they couldn't get done all that needed to be done.

There are still about 30 homes on the CIA waiting list. Volunteers are needed to help repair those homes. Christmas in April will provide all the materials for the repairs, according to Human Relations Council officials. But workers are needed.

Eight composition shingle roofs need to be installed and several minor plumbing jobs need to be performed. Houses need to be painted and windows and doors need to be repaired, caulked and weatherstripped. Yards need to be cleaned and holes in walls and ceilings and floors need to be covered.

Howls about lasers

It will be illuminating to note the sources of criticism of President Ronald Reagan's proposal to spend $300 million in the next fiscal year on space laser technology.

The lasers, installed on satellites, would be able to destroy incoming enemy missiles, staving off a massive nuclear attack.

A Pentagon report says that 100 such weapons "could cope with a simultaneous launch of 1,000 ICBMs."

If Soviet-aligned propaganda mills are true to form, U.S. moves to carry out this purely defensive program will be attacked as "imperialistic," "aggressive" and "warlike," and it will be charged that the funds would be better spent on more grandiose giveaways for "social needs."

But the Congress should not allow such howls to stop approval of this important program, which dollar for dollar is one of the potentially most effective uses of defense monies.

Christmas in April works because of the many fine Midlanders who take time from their busy lives to get involved in making the lives of others a little more bearable and enjoyable. It works because Midlanders think enough about the elderly and handicapped people around them to make a financial contribution to the project.

It works because of each of us, and our commitment to it. With a little more effort, 1981 will be a Christmas in April we'll all remember for years to come.

INSIDE REPORT:

Haig hinges appointment hopes on lunch date with Helms

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A hush-hush luncheon for two in the State Department's elegant dining room was quietly arranged for April 25 with Secretary of State Alexander Haig the host and Sen. Jesse Helms, his conservative watchdog, the only guest.

Haig has frequently talked on the phone with the Senate conservative leader, and occasionally in person. But the Saturday luncheon was the first chance Haig has had for an extended massaging of Helms to persuade him to accept the half-dozen appointments he has been opposing for almost three months.

Helms stresses repeatedly he is a strong Haig supporter, but his efforts to delay Senate confirmation of Haig's choices for top diplomatic jobs have converted that support into a declining asset. The luncheon was set up by Haig's congressional liaison chief, Richard Fairbank, in hopes that Haig might charm Helms into being more cooperative.

VICE PRESIDENT'S BROTHER

Vice President George Bush's older brother, Prescott Jr., shows signs of succumbing to pleas from Connecticut Republican leaders that he run against maverick liberal Republican Sen. Lowell Weicker in 1982, despite the desires of the vice president that he not make his first run for public office.

"I have neither discouraged him nor encouraged him," George, 56, said when we asked his opinion about 58-year-old Prescott's budding ambitions. But one of the vice president's key political agents has been passing the word that a run by Prescott would be embarrassing. Their father, the late Prescott Bush Sr., was a U.S. senator from Connecticut. Prescott Jr., a New York-based insurance executive, has lately become active in Connecticut Republican politics and is now the party's state finance chairman.

Connecticut Republican leaders fear that swashbuckling adventurer-journalist Robin Moore, author of "The Green Berets" and "The French Connection," will overwhelm the unpopular Weicker in the Republican primary but then lose in the general election. Consequently, they seek a credible conservative to take regular Republican votes from Moore. Their first choice: Pressie Bush.

MONDALE SUITS UP

Further strong indications that former Vice President Walter F. Mondale has started his 1984 campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination came on April 17 when Mondale hosted a very private breakfast in his office to lay out what his positions on the economy and foreign policy ought to be.

Although no great decisions were reached, the consensus of the former Carter administration officials was that liberal-activist Fritz Mondale must move quickly from left to center. President Reagan's strong early leadership is clearly moving the country toward the right, Mondale's advisers told him, and there is no chance of returning to the old days when liberal Democrats ran on platforms proclaiming that bigger government is better government.

Among those present were former Treasury Assistant Secretary C. Fred Bergsten, former National Security Council economist Henry Owen, former White House aide Al Moses, former Mideast negotiator (and big businessman) Sol Linowitz and former Assistant Secretary of Commerce Frank Weil. All will play roles if, as expected, a Mondale campaign becomes a reality.

NOT SEN. STOCKMAN

Despite rumors circulating to the contrary, there is almost zero chance that budget director David Stockman will leave the Reagan administration next year to run against liberal Democratic Sen. Donald Riegle in Michigan.

Ex-Republican Riegle is considered highly vulnerable for re-election to a second term, and Michigan Republican leaders view Stockman as the strongest possible challenger. Accordingly, some have been spreading word that Stockman might run. In fact, however, he has no such intention (barring some wholly unexpected blowup inside the administration).

That sets the scene for a Republican primary struggle between conservative ex-Rep. Philip Ruppe and liberal William Ballenger, former state director of licensing and regulation. But insiders don't entirely discount a Senate race by the state's champion vote-getter: liberal Republican Gov. William Milliken.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Memo alleges consumers were 'robbed'

WASHINGTON — The paladins of justice are relentless in their pursuit of street criminals and small-time embezzlers. But when it comes to really big-time crime, the giant corporations with their high-priced attorneys seem to be able to flout the law with impunity.

Here's the latest sorry example: American consumers were robbed of an estimated $526 million in 1978 — not at gunpoint, but at the gas pump. It was a complex paper-shuffling exercise involving three major oil refiners and several crude-oil middlemen.

Here's the rub, though: A 27-page "referral," or memorandum, laying out the scam was prepared last August, but Department of Energy officials sat on it. Now they are belatedly trying to get the case ready for the Justice Department. Because of the Reagan administration's proposed drastic slash in DOE's enforcement budget, the effort may be too late. The whole investigation may go down the drain.

The still-secret referral alleges that Carbonit Houston Inc., Aramada Petroleum and other crude oil resellers changed certification labels on oil from "domestic" to "foreign." This not only earned them a bigger commission, but allowed three refiners — Mobil, American Petroleum and Tesoro Petroleum — to sell the refined products at much higher prices, the document explains.

"In a series of apparently sham transactions," the referral charges, Mobil converted 750,000 barrels of West Texas Sour Crude Oil from domestic to foreign with the help of

Jack Anderson

Carbonit and Aramada. "By refining the West Texas Sour Crude Oil falsely labeled as foreign, Mobil made $4,272,315," the document says.

The domestic oil actually went — on paper — from Mobil to one middleman, then to the second middleman, where it was certified as foreign and resold to Mobil, the DOE investigators determined. "In the steps which led from Mobil's sale to its repurchase, Carbonit appears to have had knowledge of each step," the memorandum states. "Carbonit personnel arranged to purchase the crude oil from Mobil and sell it to Aramada."

Interestingly, Carbonit's president, Richard Johnson, worked for Mobil from 1959 to 1974. Company officials confirmed that at least five other Mobil employees were hired by Johnson.

"The Carbonit group made illegal profits of $757,000," the referral charges, adding: "All told, these activities resulted in an approximate overcharge of $43 million for September 1978. However, the activities were continuous for the period of January through November 1978 ... or approximately $526 million for 1978."

The DOE document states that "al-

CHARLEY REESE

Reality of defense needs should be addressed soon

If you have any question about the need for extra money for defense, ask yourself a few questions. For example, ask yourself if we need any defense at all.

I'm serious. Would you be willing to dismantle all of our nuclear missiles and B-52s and bring all our troops home? Shut down the Pentagon and retain just a small militia to keep order?

If the answer is NO, then ask yourself why? Well, obviously you think that without some kind of defense force, then some foreign power, perhaps the Soviet Union since it has invested so many billions in armaments, might use its military power to impose its will on us.

I think that would happen. Well, if you agree that we do need defense against foreign powers, then let me tell you that from a layman's point of view, there are only two kinds of defense systems: those that work and those that don't.

Deterrence is like pregnancy, it's an either/or proposition. Either what you have in hand will deter a potential aggressor or it won't. If it won't, then every penny you've spent on it is 100 percent wasted. It's like jumping over a crevasse; getting three-quarters of the way across is no good.

The point is that if our military professionals say we need a new bomber or an MX missile to deter a Soviet nuclear strike, then the safest course is to give it to them and hope to God they know what they're doing. I certainly have more confidence in them than I do in some little leftwing snoot or pompous civilian politician who's never been shot at by anybody but irate husbands.

Defense is one area where excess is not a vice. You can't have too strong a defense posture; you can have too weak a defense posture.

It's important that you communicate this to your Congressmen and Senators. There is large and vocal segment of America which is vigorously opposed to defense. These people know they can't get away with a no-defense posture, so they try to insure that we have an inadequate defense posture which, by the way, has the same fatal consequences.

You have to realize, too, that a lot of the people in the Congress and the Senate are either nincompoops or plain irresponsible. It is a sickness of democracies that the politicians always tend to put their own immediate welfare ahead of the long-range interest of their constituents.

Fifty-five million people died in the 1940s because politicians in the 1930s refused to face reality. If you want to give yourself a good scare, go to the library and read the newspapers of the 1930s. You'll see identically the same excuses being offered by appeasers that you hear today.

We are a free people. It's our lives that are at stake. We will be the ones who will die if politicians fail to do what is necessary to prevent war. If we have to grab the politicians by the throat and shake them to get their attention, then I say that's better than watching your children die from radiation burns.

I'll say this, too. The danger of war is so immediate that we had better get our priorities in order fast. You can survive inflation, budget cuts, and unemployment one heck of a lot longer than you can a one-megaton airburst.

We have led a sheltered life in this country and there is a tendency among many Americans to think that if something is horrible it's also impossible. Nothing horrible is impossible. The history of the 20th Century proves that beyond all reasonable doubt.

John Roosevelt

John Roosevelt dies at 65

NEW YORK (AP) — John A. Roosevelt, investment banker and youngest of four sons of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, has died of heart failure at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center at age 65.

Roosevelt, whose only encounter with politics was when he ran unsuccessfully in the 1957 New York City mayoral race, died Monday.

He was the only Republican in a staunchly Democratic family. The list of noted Republicans he supported included President Ronald Reagan, former Presidents Richard M. Nixon and Dwight D. Eisenhower, the late New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, and former Sens. Jacob K. Javits of New York and Clifford P. Case of New Jersey.

Born in Washington, March 13, 1916,

Roosevelt graduated from Harvard in 1938 and was briefly employed by William Filene's Sons Co., a department store in Boston, before joining the Navy in 1941.

During his five years in the Navy he attained the rank of lieutenant commander and serving aboard the aircraft carriers Wasp and Hornet. He was the holder of the Bronze Star.

For several years after leaving the navy he was with Grayson-Robinson Stores in Los Angeles. After stints as president and director of the Regency Fund investment company and president of Universal Products Inc., Roosevelt joined Bache Halsey Stuart Shields Inc. in 1957. He retired as senior vice president and board member at Bache last December.

Roosevelt had served as a trustee of the State University of New York, Marist College and the Eisenhower Exchange Fellowship Foundation, and had been director of the American Foundation for the Overseas Blind.

Roosevelt raised funds for many philanthropies, including the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis — founded by his father — and served on the executive committee of the Greater New York Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

At the time of his death Monday, Roosevelt had homes in New York City and in Tuxedo, N.Y.

He is survived by his widow, the former Irene Boyd, whom he married in 1965, and two daughters by a previous marriage, Anne Roosevelt Luke and Joan Roosevelt Schoonmaker.

Also surviving are three brothers, James, Elliot and Franklin D. Jr.

Japan's Suzuki criticizes lifting of grain embargo

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki complained today that his government was not consulted before President Reagan decided to lift the American grain embargo against the Soviet Union.

In unusually blunt language for a top Japanese official, Suzuki made it clear that Japan was caught flat-footed by the U.S. decision. He said Japan will now reassess its own position on sanctions.

The 69-year-old prime minister and the 70-year-old president will meet for the first time in Washington on May 7. Suzuki said defense topics would be discussed, but he predicted that the question of Japanese auto exports to the United States will be resolved beforehand.

On the embargo, he said Japan was aware of Reagan's campaign promise to remove the partial ban on grain sales imposed by former President Carter and expected the embargo to be lifted eventually.

"But coming as it did, when there were still uncertainties in Poland, the lifting came to me as somewhat unexpected," Suzuki said, speaking through interpreters at his official residence. "Frankly speaking, I was perplexed by the timing."

Japan was told about the decision after it was made and before it was publicly announced, the prime minister said.

"We were informed but not sufficiently, nor were we asked for our views in regard to the timing nor (given) any explanation or reason for such action," he said. "There was no move to coordinate the action with whatever move Japan might want to make vis a vis the sanctions."

Suzuki said Japan has an important international role to play in offering economic and technical assistance, although its post-World War II constitution limits its military posture to a strictly defensive one.

The prime minister said that the auto export issue could probably be resolved without a specific proposal of his own.

"By the time of my visit, I think you will have seen the happy end mark," he said.

Japan's Ministry of International Trade and Industry reportedly has called on auto makers to voluntarily set 1981 exports to the United States at about 1.7 million vehicles, 7 percent below last year's levels.

U.S. auto companies have proposed a 1.5 million vehicle limit, while the Japanese makers want to hold exports at 1980 levels.

Pentagon proposes selling jet fighters to South Korea

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon has sent Congress a proposal to sell South Korea 36 advanced F-16 jet fighters to replace aging aircraft and help offset the roughly 2-1 numerical advantage in warplanes held by North Korea.

The action was taken Monday, two days before opening of talks in San Francisco between Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and South Korean Defense Minister Choo Young Bock.

The sale of the aircraft for about $900 million can be blocked by a vote of both houses of Congress within 30 days.

The San Francisco meeting of the U.S.-Korean "security consultative" group has special significance this year because the Carter administration cancelled the 1980 meeting over reported concerns about human rights policies of the South Korean government.

The Carter administration had agreed in principle to supply F-16s to the South Koreans but never followed through.

J.R. says Davis death end of era for show

INVERNESS, Scotland (AP) — Larry Hagman, the actor who plays J.R. Ewing on the television series "Dallas," was "deeply shocked" when he learned of the death of his screen father, Jim Davis, an Inverness newspaper reported today.

Hagman, on vacation in the Scottish highlands with his wife, heard the news Monday morning from the manager of a hotel where they were staying at Fort William, on the west coast of Scotland, 55 miles south of Inverness.

Hotel manager Michael Leonard, who told his famous guest after hearing the news on the radio, said: "He was very shocked. He said, 'It's the end of an era as far as the series is concerned.'" hotel to continue a tour of the Highlands by auto.

During a stopover at the east coast village of Nairn, 15 miles north of Inverness, Hagman told a reporter from the Inverness Daily Record he planned to return home to attend the funeral Friday. Davis played Ewing family patriarch Jock Ewing on the series.

"Jim was a fine man," Hagman was quoted as saying.

"He had been seriously ill for six months and grievously ill for the past three. I suppose they could have kept him going for another two to three weeks, but there would have been no dignity in that."

It was not clear when Hagman planned to return to the United States.

Politician hit on head

SWANLEY, England (AP) — Roy Hattersley, the Labor Party's immigration spokesman, said today he felt "bruised, battered, but okay" after a brawl at a political meeting where he was hit over the head by a steel chair.

During a party meeting here Monday night, Hattersley, 51, plunged from the platform into the melee that erupted when a youth at the back began a racist speech.

"I said something uncomplimentary about him, as did someone else in the audience," Hattersley told reporters.

"This chap was immediately clouted by someone in the next row, then everyone started fighting, including the women. ... All hell was let loose.

"I jumped off the platform to go to the aid of this chap and was myself hit on the head by a steel chair. While I was on the ground a woman bashed me with another steel chair."

Hattersley is leading the Labor attack on the Conservative government's British Nationality Bill, which critics contend discriminates against non-white immigrants and their descendants and is a device to curb immigration.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, April 29, 1981

Your down-to-earth ways win you respect from friends and competitors alike. Count on making considerable financial progress in the year ahead. Various business patterns will change, and you will be the beneficiary of favorable new trends. Romance begins to play a more prominent role in your life. Close relationships become even closer. Do not be surprised if family responsibilities increase. Although you have friends from many walks of life, you are most attracted to people with artistic tendencies.

2 ♣ Dbble 6 ♣ 7 ♣
Dbble Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: King of ♣.
If you want to extract the maximum penalty when the opponents sacrifice, you must have complete confidence in partner. This hand is from a recent team tournament in Bridgeport, Conn.

West's opening bid of two diamonds was the Flannery Convention. It showed a minimum opening bid and a hand that contains specifically four spades and five hearts—a hand that is notoriously difficult to bid in any system. North's double promised diamonds, and East showed faith in the reliability of his partner's opening bid by leaping to six spades—despite the minimum point count, the hands rated to fit very well and the queen of hearts was a very important card. South chose to trust his opponents' bidding and opted for a sacrifice of seven clubs.

West led the king of hearts and East followed with the seven to encourage his partner. Now West shifted to his singleton diamond. East won the ace and returned the two of diamonds—a suit preference signal to show an entry in the lower-ranking suit, hearts. West ruffed with the five of trumps and returned a low heart away from his ace to East's queen. Now East returned the jack of diamonds, this time showing an entry in the higher-ranking side suit—spades.

West ruffed with the four, to complete a trump echo to tell his partner that he had started with three trumps. Then he dutifully underled the ace of spades. East won the king and played a fourth round of diamonds, allowing his partner to ruff with the queen while declarer helplessly underduffed. Thus, the defense had extracted the maximum penalty—1300 points.

Note that, as the cards lie, six spades is laydown. Indeed, a grand slam can be made if declarer guesses to play North for a twice-guarded queen of trumps.

At the other table, East-West did not venture beyond four spades, which netted them 680 points. As a result, the fine defense shown earned a substantial gain for the East-West team.

Women, as well as men, can be classified Type A

Dear Dr. Solomon: You have mentioned the "Type A" man — the person who is aggressive and competitive. What about the Type A woman? I've known several women who were as aggressive and competitive as men. — Kris

Dear Kris: According to Dr. William C. Harlan, of the University of Michigan Medical School, Type A behavior occurs in women as well as in men, and with the same cardiovascular results. Incidentally, among all women over 40 years of age, heart attack is the leading cause of death.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My husband and I have been married for 23 years, and I can honestly say that we have a good marriage. While there have been occasional disagreements over the years, we have always been able to work them out in a framework of mutual respect.

Recently, however, we have encountered a problem that, to put it mildly, is not doing our marriage any good. To be brief, my husband has been having difficulty performing sexually although he is still in his forties. While I sympathize with him, I want him to go for psychiatric counseling so that whatever emotional problems are affecting him can be resolved. He insists he has no emotional problems other than those brought about by concern over his condition. We finally agreed to write to you to see what you would suggest. — Mrs. P.R.

Dear Mrs. R.: While some sexual problems undoubtedly have a psychological basis, others just as certainly do not. In fact, there is increasing evidence that some sexual disorders that previously were considered to stem from emotional problems actually have a physical basis.

The difficulty is that some of the organic causes of sexual dysfunction are so subtle that they are not detected on routine physical examinations. However, in the absence of any information other than what is contained in your letter, I believe any conclusion that your husband's sexual difficulty is related to a psychological or emotional problem is premature. When one of my patients reveals the existence of a sexual disorder, I do not automatically assume that there is a need for psychotherapy.

I don't know if your husband has attempted to discuss the subject with his doctor, or even whether he would feel comfortable in doing so; for that matter, his doctor may not feel comfortable in discussing the subject with him. I also can't know whether his physician feels knowledgeable enough to perform the kinds of procedures that are needed to distinguish between a sexual problem that has a psychological basis, and one with an organic basis. If not, possibly your husband can be referred to a physician better equipped to handle disorders of this kind.

I would agree with you that the problem should not be neglected; problems usually don't just go away because they are ignored. But in the absence of evidence of some emotional problem that might account for his sexual difficulty, I would suggest that a complete medical evaluation is the first order of business.

UTPB honors Dr. Kurtz as outstanding teacher

ODESSA — Dr. Edwin B. Kurtz, chairman of life science at The University of Texas at the Permian Basin, was honored as the university's most outstanding teacher at UTPB's recent honors convocation ceremony. Top incoming graduates also received awards.

Recipient of the $1,000 Amoco Foundation Award for excellence in teaching, Kurtz has been a faculty member at UTPB since 1972. Even before the university opened its doors to students, Kurtz was involved in planning and in recruitment of faculty.

He received his bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Arizona and his Ph.D. from the California Institute of Technology. He teaches courses in cell biology, plant morphology, organic biology and contemporary natural science, in addition to conducting seminars and speaking regularly for the UTPB speakers bureau.

Other professors nominated for the prestigious Amoco Award were Dr. Yonina Cooper, assistant professor of computer science, and Dr. Sean Kelleher, assistant professor of government.

Nominations for the award came from students, faculty and administration. UTPB President V.R. Cardozer said nominees were judged on their knowledge of teaching fields, enthusiasm and enjoyment of teaching and organization and presentation of material.

The Distinguished Service Award was presented to J. Conrad Dunagan of Monahans, who spoke to the honor students at the convocation. Dunagan, a long-time supporter of UTPB, founded the Permian Honor Scholarship Foundation, which each year awards dozens of scholarships to top students in the Permian Basin who wish to attend area community colleges and UTPB. He is a member of the UTPB Development Board and was the donor of UTPB's first endowed professorship.

Dunagan is the second person to receive the university's highest award for service. The first award went to Odessa community leader John Ben Shepperd.

Life insurance regulation blocked

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A Senate committee has blocked the State Insurance Board's attempt to regulate the "volatile" credit life insurance industry.

Several witnesses agreed Monday setting limits on credit life insurance commissions would be unprecedented.

State District Judge Jim Dear of Austin ruled last year the board did not have such authority. The board is appealing Dear's decision. The judge said, despite his legal ruling, he thought the board needed authority to limit commissions.

Dear's ruling blocked a 14 percent reduction in credit life insurance rates, worth between $20 million and $40 million to Texas consumers.

In credit life, "the borrower-insured is at the mercy of the lender and the insurance company. You don't get the loan if you don't get the insurance," said Austin lawyer Will Davis, representing the Texas Legal Reserve Officials Association.

Lyndon Olson of the Insurance Board testified "there has been a great deal of abuse" in credit life insurance. He said the Guaranty Fund was concerned about "possible insolvencies and rampant abuse."

Commissions on credit life insurance, he said, run as high as 50 percent. The insurance pays a debt, such as an automobile loan, if the borrower dies. "This is very volatile" and involves "probably billions of dollars," said Olson. "It is an extremely delicate body of insurance."

He described the board's proposed regulation as

"very stringent" but "fair and reasonable." The regulation imposed a 30 percent limit on commissions.

"I think this piece of legislation will be among the most important pieces of legislation as far as protection of the general public in the marketplace," said Olson.

In addition to Davis and Olson, witnesses who favored the proposal were W.C. Hazard, senior vice president of Industrial Life Insurance Co., Dallas; and Gary Tolman, vice president of American National Life Insurance Co., Galveston.

Only the Texas Automobile Dealers Association opposed the bill, which was sent to an Economic Development subcommittee on a 7-2 vote. With the legislative session ending in 35 days, this had the probable effect of killing the bill.

Hazard said 24 other states had laws regulating commissions and a congressional committee had suggested credit life commissions as low as 3 percent. He said he preferred state regulation, because "That represents a camel's nose in the tent on federal regulation."

Davis said credit life insurance "is not like any other line of insurance" in that companies "compete for the favor of the lender, not the insured."

Another Austin lawyer, Hector DeLeon, representing the Automobile Dealers Association, told the committee it was being asked to protect some insurance companies "from themselves. They're saying they don't have the tenacity or good enough management techniques to tell agents the commission is exorbitant and they're not going to pay it."

'Frontier mentality' attacked

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The "frontier mentality" that made cowboys strap on pistols to shoot "varmits or cattle rustlers" is making Texas a "breeding ground for presidential assassins," says a state lawmaker.

Clements 'no help' on economic plan

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements is no help to President Reagan in trying to sell the administration's economic program to Congress, says U.S. Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Houston.

"Mr. Clements has absolutely no effect on the Texas delegation (in Washington)," Leland told a Capitol news conference Monday, "except maybe the four Republicans and I doubt even that."

"It is ludicrous for him (Clements) to open his mouth. He's just a big joke," said Leland, who spoke Monday to both houses of the Legislature in opposition to Reagan's economic program.

"I think maybe a number of the Texas delegation will support Reagan's budget plan but it will not be because of Mr. Clements," he said.

Leland told the Senate his feelings were hurt because he had been left off the political "hit list" of a national right wing lobby.

"I want them to know that I oppose President Reagan's economic program and I want on their hit list," he said.

Rep. Paul Ragsdale, D-Dallas, waited six years to get a hearing on his handgun control bill. A Texas' shot at President Reagan on March 30 helped Ragsdale get his long-awaited hearing on Monday. He offered an updated bill with tighter controls on handguns.

"Too many handguns are turned loose on the Texas public for my well-being," said Ragsdale. "I'm not saying this bill is going to stop all killings."

Ragsdale wants a 72-hour "cooling off" period between when a gun is bought and when it can be taken home. He also wants to bar sale of pistols to people under 21, and restrict manufacture and sale of cheap pistols — Saturday night specials. The bill was sent to subcommittee.

Bill Blythe, R-Houston, serving as chairman of the House Committee on State Affairs, rejected Ragsdale's claim that Texas breeds assassins. He reeled off a list of assassinations with no Texas connection.

Ragsdale pointed out that Lee Harvey Oswald and John Hinckley had Texas connections. Hinckley, accused in the Reagan shooting, bought his cheap pistol at a Dallas pawn shop.

His bill, which failed to get a hearing in 1975, 1977 and 1979, sparked spirited debate between Blythe and a Houston lawyer whose brother was murdered with a pistol.

David Berg, who has written magazine essays favoring control of handguns, said Texans are viewed as "gun-toting rednecks." The Houston lawyer said laws should prevent people such as Hinckley and Mark Chapman — accused killer of John Lennon — from buying pistols "like so many groceries from a grocery store."

$12 million sought for UTPB

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The University of Texas at the Permian Basin would receive funding of $12.43 million for the 1982-83 biennium under an appropriations bill drafted by the House Appropriations Committee.

If the Legislature approves the bill, which was sent this week to the House floor for debate, UTPB would be budgeted $5.93 million for fiscal 1982 and $6.49 million for fiscal 1983.

The largest single budget item is faculty salaries, which would be appropriated $1.65 million in 1982 and $1.8 million in 1983.

Other large budget items include general administration, $465,918 for 1982, $473,361 for 1983; departmental operating expense, $358,545 for 1982, $389,737 for 1983; library, $341,204 for each year of the biennium; and purchased utilities, $1.59 million for 1982, $1.9 million for 1983.

The Legislative Budget Board originally had proposed a budget of $13.24 million, but the Appropriations Committee cut funding from most of the larger budget items. Those cuts include more than $470,000 from faculty salaries.

The proposed appropriations bill still must be approved by the House. The Senate Finance Committee is expected to complete work on the Senate version of the bill next week.

The House bill also proposes a $13.3 million budget for Sul Ross State University for the 1982-83 biennium.

That budget includes $5.1 million for faculty salaries, $1.1 million for general administration, $1.67 million for departmental operating expense and $1.8 million for library.

Sewer system damaged by California quake

WESTMORLAND, Calif. (AP) — Public utility workers have been assessing newly discovered damage to this agricultural community's sewer system as swarms of minor tremors followed a weekend earthquake.

"We are now discovering that the quake apparently damaged our sewer plant," City Clerk Nadine Hale said Monday. "Our waste water treatment plant has problems."

A quake measuring 5.6 on the Richter scale struck this Imperial Valley town early Sunday, damaging a number of structures.

Dr. Richard Simons of the University of California at San Diego's Institute of Geophysics and Planetary Physics said aftershocks in the quake area continued "light and variable" on Monday.

"The swarm sequence is tapering off gradually but we are still recording aftershocks between magnitude 2 and 3 on the average of once every half hour," Simons said.

Mayor Ron Rodriguez said the nature and extent of damage to the sewer system was unknown. Rodriguez said toilets were still functioning and that sanitation crews reported no health threat.

Imperial Irrigation District Supervisor Robert Wilson said repairs were continuing on the concrete-lined Vail Canal and that service should resume by Wednesday.

City officials said leaks in the city's 50,000-gallon water tank were being fixed today. However, water heavily laced with chlorine to fight bacteria was still being delivered to customers.

Rodriguez said the quake caused minor to moderate damage to 600 of the city's 900 homes and led to plans to raze five homes and four businesses. Four other homes and nine other commercial buildings were heavily damaged, he said.

Workers demolish an old commercial building that sustained severe damage in Sunday's 5.6 magnitude earthquake centered near Westmorland, Calif. Damage to many buildings, which fronted along state Highway 86, resulted in temporary detouring of traffic because officials feared aftershocks could collapse the structures into traffic lanes.

American missing in El Salvador

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — An American Roman Catholic priest has been missing since he left his hotel to buy medicine two days ago, the U.S. Embassy reports.

An embassy spokesman said the Rev. Roy Bourgeois, 42, a native of Lutcher, La., arrived in El Salvador last Thursday to work as an interpreter for a CBS television crew from Chicago. His visit apparently was not related to church work, the spokesman said.

Local security forces are checking hospitals and pharmacies that were open Sunday when Bourgeois disappeared, the spokesman said.

Bourgeois, a member of the Maryknoll Order, worked in a Maryknoll mission in Bolivia from 1972 to 1976, when he moved to Chicago.

Two nuns of the Maryknoll Order were among four American women missionaries killed in El Salvador last December. The U.S. government is investigating allegations that government troops killed them.

In another development, two bombs exploded Monday in San Salvador. One person was injured in one of the explosions, at the Commerce Building in downtown San Salvador, the Red Cross said. An explosion Monday night outside a movie theater in a residential neighborhood caused some damage but no injuries, authorities said.

Deputy kills wife, self

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — When Deputy Sheriff James Burke reported for work as usual in the morning, there didn't seem to be anything troubling him. But by afternoon, still wearing his uniform, he had shot his wife to death in a crowded suburban department store and killed himself with his service revolver.

Onondaga County Sheriff's Department spokesman Robert Burns said he knew of no reason for Burke's action.

Burke, 49, a 12-year veteran and former fire chief in the town of Onondaga, was still on duty Monday afternoon when he drove in a sheriff's patrol car to the J.C. Penney Co. store at a mall in De Witt. At about 4 p.m. he went in and met his 46-year-old wife, Janet, in the home-furnishings section where she was working.

Police sources said the couple talked quietly for a few moments, then quarreled. Burke drew his revolver and fired four shots, three into his wife's upper torso and one into his chest.

"There were three or four pops," one unidentified store employee said. "It sounded as if a television exploded."

"People surged into the area to see what was happening," another store worker said.

Sheriff's deputies arrived and quickly cordoned off the area, but just 30 yards away shopping went on as usual until J.C. Penney managers ordered the store closed early at 5:12 p.m.

The Newspaper BIBLE

"JESUS, REMEMBER ME WHEN YOU COME"

The crowd watched, And the Jewish leaders laughed and scoffed. "He was so good at helping others," they said, "let's see him save himself if he is really God's Chosen One, the Messiah."

The soldiers mocked Him, too, by offering Him a drink--of sour wine. And they called to Him, "If you are the King of the Jews, save yourself!"

A signboard was nailed to the cross above Him with these words: "THIS IS THE KING OF THE JEWS."

One of the criminals hanging beside Him scoffed, "So you're the Messiah, are you? Prove it by saving yourself--and us, too, while you're at it!"

But the other criminal protested. "Don't you even fear God when you are dying? We deserve to die for our evil deeds, but this man hasn't done one thing wrong." Then he said, "Jesus, remember me when You come into Your Kingdom." And Jesus replied, "Today you will be with Me in Paradise. This is a solemn promise."

By now it was noon, and darkness fell across the whole land for three hours, until 3 o'clock. The light from the sun was gone--and suddenly the thick veil hanging in the Temple split apart.

Then Jesus shouted, "Father, I commit My spirit to You," and with those words He died.

When the captain of the Roman military unit handling the executions saw what had happened, he was stricken with awe before God and said, "Surely this man was innocent."

No criminal charges expected against former vice president

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) Maryland officials say they're not likely to file criminal charges against former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, who has been ordered by the judge in a civil case to repay $147,000 in kickbacks he allegedly received while governor, plus interest.

Agnew, who served as governor from 1967-68, did not appear in court and was unavailable for comment after Monday's decision. His lawyer, Thomas R. Harrison, had said Agnew would not testify in the trial because his comments could be used against him if the state decided to press criminal charges.

However, Attorney General Stephen Sachs said it was highly unlikely such charges would be filed.

"This was the civil windup of the criminal prosecution. The criminal crack was taken by the feds," Sachs said, referring to the federal investigation that led to Agnew's no-contest plea to a tax evasion charge and his resignation in October 1973 as Richard Nixon's vice president.

Attorneys for Agnew said they would appeal the decision by Judge Bruce Williams, who ruled Agnew must pay $248,735 to the state because he accepted kickbacks from engineers seeking state contracts.

The decision was hailed by prosecutors as the first declaration by a court that Agnew did accept the money he has consistently denied taking.

But Harrison insisted it was not a finding that Agnew had accepted kickbacks. He did not elaborate.

Williams ordered Agnew to pay

$147,500 in kickbacks after $101,235 in interest, ruling there was uncontroverted evidence that Agnew and two associates, I.H. "Bud" Hammerman and Jerome Wolff, were engaged in an unlawful relationship in 1967 and 1968 to solicit kickbacks from consulting engineers.

He said evidence also proved that Agnew accepted money directly from two engineers, Lester Matz and Allen Green.

"There is no question that Mr. Agnew violated his public trust," the judge said.

Testimony indicated that Hammerman, a close friend and adviser to Agnew, solicited kickbacks from engineers who received contracts from Wolff, chairman of the State Roads Commission.

Hammerman and Wolff split half of the money and Agnew got the rest, according to statements that Williams admitted as evidence in the civil case filed by three taxpayers and joined by the state.

The judge did not say if the payments continued when Agnew became vice president. Wolff testified he once met Green outside the Executive Office Building in Washington and that Green told him he had just delivered money to Agnew.

Wolff was dismissed from the case at the request of the state after he testified last week. Prosecutors had asked that Agnew be required to repay the $30,000 that Wolff said he got in kickbacks, but Williams said it would be unfair to the former vice president to ask him to pay back money which he never had.

Panel drafts legislation funding junior colleges

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The state's junior colleges would receive $700.39 million in funding for the 1982-83 biennium under the appropriations bill drafted by the House Appropriations Committee.

If the bill is approved by the Legislature, the $700 million would be divided among nearly 50 junior or community colleges across the state. The monies would be used to fund academic education programs, vocational/technical education programs and insurance at each of the institutions.

Totals for the colleges in the Midland area include:

—Midland College, $6.81 million, including $3.99 million for academic education, $2.58 million for vocational/technical education and $233,280 for insurance.

—Odessa College, $10.82 million, including $4.89 million for academic education, $5.55 for vocational/technical education and $304,320 for insurance.

—Howard County Junior College, $3.82 million, including $1.58 million for academic education, $1.98 million for vocational/technical education and $250,560 for insurance.

The bill still must be approved by the House before going to the Senate for consideration. The Senate Finance Committee is expected to complete work on the Senate version of the bill next week.

Man tricked into confessing, attorney says

NEW YORK (AP) — Craig Crimmins, a "pliable" young man of low intelligence, was tricked by police into falsely confessing that he tried to rape and then killed violinist Helen Hagnes Mintiks at the Metropolitan Opera House last summer, according to the defendant's lawyer.

Mrs. Mintiks, 31, was thrown, tied up and nude, to her death down an air shaft in the opera house the night of July 23. Crimmins, a husky 22-year-old opera house stagehand and high school dropout, is on trial in a Manhattan court for the murder.

Death of fourth adult studied

ATLANTA (AP) — Just as police were deciding not to add Jimmy Ray Payne's name to a list of 25 slain and missing young blacks, the body of the 21-year-old was found floating in a river — the fifth body to be dumped in an area river in less than a month, police say.

A few hours later, Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown said that the death of the 5-foot-7, 130-pound man will be investigated by the task force probing the 25 deaths and disappearances, which began 21 months ago.

The cause of Payne's death was not determined immediately and medical officials said his body, found Monday, bore no obvious injuries. An autopsy was to be performed today, Brown said at a news conference.

Police are worried about a change in pattern, Brown said, because "we now have four adult victims of homicides. Previous to that, all the victims were under 16, the youngest being 7."

All the adult cases have similarities, including the fact that the bodies were found in rivers, he said.

"Our people have been meeting all evening to determine what this means," he said late Monday.

Payne was last seen April 22 as he headed for the Omni sporting and entertainment complex in hopes of selling some old coins, according to his sister, Evelyn.

He lived about a block from the home of Patrick Baltazar, 11, who was last seen alive at the Omni. Baltazar's body was found Feb. 13 in a DeKalb County office park.

Like 13 of the other victims, Baltazar had been asphyxiated. Six of the last seven victims were asphyxiated or probably asphyxiated, authorities said. The cause of one victim's death was unknown.

Payne's body was found in the Chattahoochee River, just north of Bankhead Highway, which runs northwest out of Atlanta. Four of the other victims lived or were staying in residential areas north of that highway, in an area a mile or two closer to the inner city.

They were Milton Harvey, found Nov. 5, 1979; Curtis Walker, March 6; Clifford Jones, August 21, 1980; and Terry Pae, Jan. 13.

Payne's body, tangled face-down in a fallen tree, was spotted by two fishermen, about the time police were deciding not to put his name on the list of cases being investigated by the special task force.

Brown said police had been given information that Payne had been seen alive.

The sighting reports on Payne were similar to those that trickled into the Missing Persons Bureau after Timothy Hill disappeared March 13. Hill's case was not added to the task force list until after his body was pulled from the Chattahoochee on March 30, about 15 miles downstream from where Payne's body was spotted.

Brown refused to comment on how Payne's body was clothed, but Dr. Robert Stivers, Fulton County medical examiner, said Payne was wearing only red undershorts when his body was brought to the morgue. Brown said body had been in the water about five days.

Four of the five bodies found in rivers in the past 28 days were discovered in the Chattahoochee, authorities said.

Michael Cameron McIntosh, 23, the oldest of the 26 victims, who was found dead April 20, was buried Monday. He had not been reported missing when his body was found.

McIntosh and Hill, both probable victims of asphyxiation, according to authorities, and Eddie Duncan, who died of unknown causes, were found within two miles of each other about 15 miles downstream from the spot where Payne's body was found.

One other victim, Patrick Rogers, 16, killed by a blow to the head, was found in the Chattahoochee River on December 8, about five miles upstream from where Payne's body was found. His case was not added to the task force list until 10 weeks after his body was found.

Two other victims, Walker, and Joseph Bell, were found in the South River, in southeast suburban DeKalb County, March 6 and April 19.

Six of the last seven victims were found clad only in undershorts. McIntosh was nude.

Most of the previous victims were found dumped in wooded areas near sparsely traveled rural roads. Meanwhile, city and Fulton and DeKalb county authorities asked state and federal officials for another $1.46 million to provide local children with summer recreation programs.

The federal government already has given the city about $2.7 million for the homicide investigation and for psychological help for children suffering problems stemming from the killings. The state has allocated about $200,000 for the city's investigation and $20,000 for a reward fund.

Detectives return for surprise meeting with Army private

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Two detectives rebuffed last week when they tried to question a white Army private about the killings of seven Buffalo-area blacks were at Fort Benning, Ga., today after the soldier unexpectedly requested a meeting.

to answer their questions. It was unknown why Christopher wanted to meet with the officers.

Police in Buffalo, New York City and Rochester had said they were interested in questioning the soldier. Besides the seven blacks slain in Buffalo last year, three blacks and another dark-skinned man were stabbed to death in New York on Dec. 22 and one black was knifed to death in Rochester Dec. 30.

The investigators' visit to Georgia comes after progress appeared to stall on what Buffalo Police Commissioner James B. Cunningham last week called "the hottest lead we've had yet" in the killings.

The Courier-Express and the Buffalo Evening News reported that photographs and preliminary ballistics tests had failed to establish a link between Christopher and the slayings last fall and early winter. Witnesses to some of the killings, as well as Albert Meneff, who survived a stabbing attack on New Year's Eve, failed to identify photos of Christopher that were brought back by Rash and Lobbett last week, the newspapers said.

DEAR ABBY

Weight-conscious man acts like fathead

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: A month ago I met a gentleman in a nightclub. I gave him my phone number and the next day he called me for a date. We went out and had a wonderful time just talking and getting to know each other. I told him I had recently lost 40 pounds and planned to shed another 25.

I didn't hear from him for a month. Then I received this letter: "Hi. You are probably wondering why I haven't called you, so I might as well tell you the truth. First let me say I think you are a nice, cute girl and a wonderful person to talk to or I wouldn't have taken you out. I like you and I think you like me, but before I take you out again you must lose 25 pounds!"

"I am very picky about girls. They have to be TRIM! When you've slimmed down, call me. Take care."

Since receiving this letter I have lost more weight — for myself, not for him. Abby, please tell me, do you think this gentleman was trying to do a fat girl a favor? Or was he just showing himself for what he is — a conceited creep? What should I do? — FAT CHANCE

DEAR CHANCE: Revenge is sweet (and zero calories), so indulge yourself. Slim down, but don't call him. Arrange to run into him "accidentally," and if he asks why you haven't called, tell him you are "picky" about men. You prefer men who judge a woman by her character and personality, not her weight.

DEAR ABBY: We have a big problem at work. We are two women who manage a women's retail store. The dressing room is next door to our boss's office. We have found small holes in the walls in his office, which enable him to look into the ladies' dressing room. (The holes are covered by pictures.)

Do you have any ideas, Abby? We can't come right out and confront the boss or we might get fired. — NO NAMES, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAMES: A confrontation is not necessary. Every morning, check the dressing room wall for "holes," then cover them with adhesive paper. Do this routinely and your boss will soon realize that you are on to his dirty little peeping game.

DEAR ABBY: Should we be thankful for having more "choices" today? When I was in high school 30 years ago, my English teacher would stress, "You have a choice — you can go to the movies or you can stay home."

Never would she say, "You have two choices, you can go to the movies or stay home."

Was my teacher right? Everything you read today has "two choices."

— STYMIED READER DEAR STYMIED: According to my word maven, William Safire, "You can have a choice or two choices. Both are correct. But you cannot correctly say, 'You have two alternatives.' An alternative is the other choice."

So, take your choice. (Do you have questions about sex, love, drugs and the pain of growing up? Get Abby's new booklet: "What Every Teen-Ager Ought to Know." Send $2 and a long, stamped (35 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.)

Tonsillectomy not so popular anymore

By DAVID ZINMAN Newsday

Ten years ago tonsillectomies (usually accompanied by an operation to remove the adenoids) were the common major surgical procedure for children.

Today the tonsillectomy has fallen out of favor in some medical quarters. Statistics show that otolaryngologists (head and neck specialists) performed 344,000 so-called T-and-A's in 1978, half as many as they did in 1970. In fact, otolaryngologists now have the lowest net income of all surgical specialists and keep shorter hours than most — a situation attributable not only to fewer tonsillectomies but also to the lower birthrate.

"Tonsillectomies became a ritual in the days before antibiotics," said Dr. David N.F. Fairbank, chief of otolaryngology at George Washington Hospital in Washington, D.C. "When antibiotics came along, it no longer became necessary to take out tonsils in every child. And doctors began to resist parents who came in and asked that their child's tonsils come out."

Even so, tonsillectomies remain the most frequent major operation for children under 15. And some doctors feel its controversial reputation has not always been helpful in selecting patients for surgery.

"The operation has gotten a bad name in certain pediatric circles because of the long history of excesses," said Dr. Jack L. Paradise of the University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine.

"Though many otolaryngologists are thoughtful and conservative physicians, there are some to whom a referral is tantamount to a decision for surgery. But the fact that there was abuse doesn't mean it is an operation without great value in certain highly selected children. Yet, the prejudice against the operation is such that there are children who need the operation who are not getting it."

As a result, Paradise says, a paradox exists. While tonsillectomy may have been unnecessary in some cases where it was performed, there are other cases where it may be called for, but avoided, because of a reputation based on past excesses. "Both things are going on at the same time. It is not a simple matter."

the sides of the throat. They lie just behind and above the back of the tongue.

(The adenoids, which are about half the size of the tonsils, consist of the same type of glandular tissue.

Toxic shock victim sues

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas woman has filed a $10 million lawsuit against the manufacturer of tampons she believes is responsible for sending her to the hospital with toxic shock syndrome.

Cleta Michelle Hamer of Dallas filed the lawsuit Monday in federal court here, seeking $5 million in actual damages and $5 million in punitive damages from International Playtex Inc., and its parent firm Esmark Inc.

In the suit, she contends she was not warned of the "dangerous and defective characteristics" of Playtex Deodorant Tampons. Mrs. Hamer was hospitalized twice in January of this year and her illness was diagnosed as toxic shock syndrome, said her attorney, Keith Marshall.

Lauren designs 'illustrated clothes'

By DOLORES BARCLAY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Ralph Lauren, that rough and tough hero of Seventh Avenue, brightened a dull gray New York day with his American Indian-inspired fall collection, while Koos van den Akker concentrated on somber tones and graphic silhouettes.

"My scope is broader now, but modern and always attuned to contemporary living," van den Akker said.

He emphasized what he called "illustrated clothes" — designs composed of various fabric forms, lines and shapes in a show Thursday.

Utilizing Native American geometric shapes, Lauren blended a variety of textures and colors for bulky sweaters as well as shimmering evening jackets.

The heavy sweaters with comfortable sloping lines were worn over long suede skirts with uneven hemlines. Indian jewelry from the private collections of Lauren and his friends accented the designs.

A multi-colored striped Indian blanket formed the basis for a wrap coat with border stitches.

And developing the Old West look even more, Lauren showed long wool plaid skirts with a touch of lace petticoats and bloomers. They were worn with suspenders and ruffled suede shirts.

The rest of the Lauren collection was quiet elegance. His designs do not intrude upon the senses; rather they please them.

For example, the classic pinstripe, long a mainstay in men's fashions, was used by Lauren for women. A double-breasted gray pinstripe was belted as a dress. It also was shown in navy.

Lauren's trousers are tailored and precise with definite creases and cuffs, giving the pants a finished look.

Coats were clean and full with accents again on menswear. Belted trench coats in tan and navy had big seal fur collars. Shooting jackets were fitted at the waist and had the appropriate splotches of suede at shoulder, pockets and elbows.

Wide rust colored culottes were worn with short herringbone jackets.

For evening, Lauren dazzled the runway at the Pierre Hotel with saucy satin gowns that hinted of Jean Harlow remembrances. In gunmetal gray and a muted burgundy, the backless gowns had halter tops.

Van den Akker did subtle things with layering. By merely adding an extra panel of fabric to a skirt, he transported the design from ordinary to exciting.

AT WIT'S END

Son makes garbage trucks endangered species

By ERMA BOMBECK

It's funny what a difference a few years will make in your attitude toward children.

There was a time when I took a piece of cardboard from my husband's shirts, ran a string through it, and hung it around my son's neck. It read, "PLEASE DO NOT FEED."

He was like a disposer in Keds . . . going up and down the street with his mouth open. He made garbage trucks an endangered species in our neighborhood.

What I wouldn't give to have anyone feed him today . . . cookies, candies, ice cream . . . anything to take the edge off his appetite and ruin his meals.

And remember "Talk to me?" I couldn't wait until the kid began to talk. I'd sit in front of him and be so anxious to have anything come out of his mouth, I was interpreting the bubbles.

Through adolescence and the teenage years I was always pleading, "Talk to me. I'm your mother." You know when he began to talk. When he moved to LA and the daytime rates were 48 cents for the first minute and 33 cents for each additional minute plus tax. We spent $4.53 last week just to hear him relate how his white sweater shrunk in the soak cycle.

I could bite my tongue when I think back on it, but there actually was a period in my life when I told my daughter, "Get out of those good clothes before you ruin them and get into something grubby to play."

What I wouldn't give today to see if she still has legs.

It's painful to remember, but there was a period of years when I lived by the slogan, "You can drive a child to water . . . but you can't make him wash." I wish I had a nickel for every time I personally turned on the shower, filled the tub, measured out the shampoo and physically threatened to do harm to their bodies if they did not avail themselves of soap and water.

That was before the Herbal Connection. Today, bathing among teenagers is a religion.

The hot water tank is a shrine and fat hair is the ultimate.

Possibly the greatest discrepancy you note is the attitude of grandparents. When the children are babies they stand in line to sit with them. This tapers off at about 18 months when it is discovered they have openings in every part of their body that need attention.

I heard a grandmother say the other day, "I wouldn't supervise my teenage grandchildren for anything in the world. Who am I kidding? The National Guard wouldn't sit with them."

I guess the moral of the story is, "Enjoy it . . . before you know what you're doing."

Swit is creative designer

By ELLEN APPEL
COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

Loretta Swit, this year's Emmy award winner for TV's Best Supporting Actress, is as creative a decorator as she is an actress.

Loretta's home testifies to her interior design skills. She did all her own decorating, right down to the needlepoint pillows that she stitched herself. The result: Creative indeed.

"I live in a country French house with English furniture and Chinese accessories," bubbles an enthusiastic Loretta, also known as "Hot Lips" Houlihan of the popular TV series "M-A-S-H."

Her walls feature floral paintings, her collections, Chinese porcelains, jade, and Pre-World War I figurines. The mixture is by Loretta's definition, "lively."

"It's a blend of many different feelings," she asserts. "You wouldn't walk into my house and say, 'It's very -----.' It's not very anything."

If anything, however, the effect is exactly as Loretta intended it to be. "I like to think the overall feeling is homey, comfortable, and easy," she explains. "Other people must think so, too. They put their feet up on the furniture. They relax. They like to stay a long time. My house is comfortable — like a big, overstuffed chair."

The chairs themselves, overstuffed or otherwise, are blanketed in the needlepoint pillows Loretta is always making. She began needlepointing years ago at the suggestion of actress Madeleine Rhue, and is still going strong. Loretta now stitches canvases between scenes on the "M-A-S-H" set.

Her love of the craft is so well-known that last Christmas Harry Morgan, her colonel in "M-A-S-H," and his wife presented Loretta with enough yarn and canvas to make a new rug. She's working on the ambitious project now.

Nearly all of Loretta's needlepoint designs are original. Her design techniques are even more original. She plunged into her "Chinese" pillow in the following manner:

"I drew what looked like a Chinese letter in the middle, and stitched it with 2-ply wool. Then, I filled the entire canvas with plain stitches. The flowers, I made up as I went along. The rest, I ad-libbed."

Loretta is passionate about so many things, even the materials she uses.

"I love working with wool," she declares. "I don't much care for other fibers. They don't have the 'give' that wool has."

She also admires the design skills of her fellow needlepointers. One friend with like-minded tastes is currently adapting a Chinese plate design to canvas.

"I'd like to steal that piece," confesses Loretta. "I'd like to sneak right into her house and steal it."

Skull may be an important piece in evolution puzzle

By MICHAEL PARKS
The Los Angeles Times
PEKING — Two important pieces in the puzzle of man's evolution have been found by Chinese researchers, but they may raise as many questions as they answer.

The first full skull of a Ramapithecus, a forerunner of man believed to have lived 8 million to 14 million years ago, was discovered recently in the southern Chinese province of Yunnan.

The skull, which has been reconstructed from several fragments found in a coal mine, is described as a major find in the effort to establish the time of the origin of man and to place the Ramapithecus pre-man in the history of evolution. Chinese scientists have tentatively estimated its age at 8 million years.

Wu Rukang, the paleoanthropologist who led the Yunnan team, said that initial studies indicate that Ramapithecus walked on two legs, making him a likely predecessor of man rather than ape, and moving man's origins back from 5 million or 6 million years ago to as much as 14 million.

Other experts, including Prof. Elwin Simon of Duke University, believe that posture cannot be inferred from skull configuration alone.

However, if the Chinese finding is verified, it would upset the working hypothesis of paleoanthropologists over the past two decades — that man evolved primarily in eastern and southern Africa, that Ramapithecus was decidedly more ape than man and that man's earliest known predecessor was a pre-man of 4 million years ago, known as the Afar species, found in southern Ethiopia.

Not only is Ramapithecus closer to early man than had been presumed from jawbones and teeth found earlier in many parts of Asia, according to Chinese scientists, but also he differs significantly from the fossils found in southern Ethiopia.

"We expect to be able to answer a number of outstanding questions on Ramapithecus, but this will probably raise even more questions about the origins of man and his evolution in the period 5 to 10 million years ago," said Jia Lanpo, a professor who is an associate of Wu at the Institute of Vertebrate Paleontology and Paleoanthropology at the Chinese Academy of Sciences here.

"This is a discovery of tremendous importance for tracing the origin of man, but where it will lead us is not clear. It certainly confirms, however, that man's evolution was extremely complex and not restricted to a more or less straight line of descent in one region."

This is also the implication of the second Chinese discovery, late last year — another skull, this of an ape-man, or Homo erectus, who lived about 400,000 years ago in the central East China province of Anhui, about 20 miles north of the Yangtze River.

Initial study shows the skull, found intact, to be significantly different from the famous "Peking Man," a contemporary whose fossils were discovered outside Peking in 1929 but which disappeared mysteriously during World War II. Not only is the shape of the skull different, but also are the tools found with it, according to Chinese scientists.

Does this mean that there were several kinds of Homo erectus living at the same time in China and, if so, which is the ancestor of modern man?

"Again, we know more but have more questions," Jia remarked in an interview. "Frankly, we are puzzled by some of the implications of this discovery at Longtan (Dragon Pool) Cave in Anhui. The working assumption had been for more than half a century that there was just one species of Homo erectus or ape-man by this time, yet this discovery indicates there were at least two and probably three in China."

Both sets of fossils are now being cleaned and studied intensively at the Paleontology Institute, and initial reports are being prepared for publication in Chinese and foreign journals.

"We realize that there are questions of worldwide interest and that we are not going to answer them by ourselves," Jia said. "We are anxious to collaborate with our colleagues and hope that a number will come here to examine these discoveries."

Although Chinese paleontologists have made several major discoveries in the past three decades, including another ape-man found in 1964 at Lantian, in Shaanxi province in northern China, these two finds are ranked as the most important since that of Peking man.

"Many scholars abroad believe that man developed from the Afar species found in southern Ethiopia," Wu said, "so there is a question of whether Ramapithecus, who lived 4 to 8 million years earlier, is his ancestor. If so, the Afar species should have inherited some characteristics, but in fact he differs a lot and resembles the contemporary African chimpanzee."

"So does Ramapithecus belong to man's lineage or was he purely ape? Until now, we lacked material for such a conclusion — we had only bits of jaws and teeth. But there are many indications (from the Yunnan fossils) that Ramapithecus was the earliest kind of ape walking on his legs. If this is sustained by further investigation, then we can say ape developed into man 14 million years ago, and that is much earlier than the 5 to 6 million years ago presumed until now.

"If we can show Ramapithecus walked on his two legs, rather than on all four, then we also have more reason to say that man developed in Asia, where different fossils of Ramapithecus have been found earlier, rather than in Africa, where none have been found."

The Chinese scientists acknowledge that such conclusions are likely to prove controversial, but they also welcome the chance to return after many years of absence to the front ranks of paleontology.

"This is a field, like so many others, where we have to catch up," Jia said. "Work was not stopped entirely during the Cultural Revolution — I wrote several books, more than a million words altogether, while staying at home — but not much progress was made and it was affected by some of the craziness of that period."

Jia, 73, is concentrating on the study of Homo erectus, the ape-man, investigating and attempting to explain the differences among Peking man, Lantian man and the newly found fossil skull in Anhui.

"It seems fairly certain now that as recently as 100,000 years ago we had different kinds, different species of ape-men," Jia said. "Their skulls are different, they appear to have moved differently, they used different tools."

Field research will be stepped up, Jia said, to search for more fossils from this period. The Longtan cave site is also being studied thoroughly little about in China," Jia said. "What was the pattern of evolution here? How does it compare to that in eastern and southern Africa, where hominoid fossils 1 to 3 million years old have been found? These are major quesfor clues to the culture of the apeman found there.

Wu, 65, deputy director of the Paleontology Institute, is planning new expeditions to Yunnan to search for further Ramapithecus fossils as well as for indications of what happened in between Ramapithecus and Homo erectus.

"Much of our new work will be concentrated in filling in the gap between Ramapithecus and Peking man, a period we know very, very tions for us."

Chinese scientists are eyeing the slopes of the Himalaya mountains as a principal research site. The know that they were not always snow-covered, that they were probably inhabited during at least parts of the period between Ramapithecus and Peking man and that the climate has probably protected fossils. An Academy of Sciences team has included some preliminary work in its current general survey of Tibet.

Haig to testify on sale of planes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional subcommittee summoned Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. today for the opening round of what promises to be a summer-long fight over the Reagan administration's proposed sale of sophisticated radar planes to Saudi Arabia.

Haig was appearing before the House Appropriations subcommittee on foreign operations, whose chairman, Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., is a leading opponent of the Saudi deal.

The proposed sale already has been delayed by the White House because of strong criticism in Congress, but Long nevertheless is sponsoring a resolution to veto it. "This sale is a threat to the security of Israel," Long said in a letter seeking House support for his resolution.

The subcommittee also wanted to question Haig on developments in El Salvador before voting on Reagan's request for an additional $63.5 million in U.S. economic aid to that country this year.

And Haig, who earlier this year chose a congressional committee to voice rare criticism of the White House crisis management structure, also faced possible questioning over whether he and the president are at odds about what to do if Soviet troops move into Poland.

Haig said Saturday that "there's no question" a total trade embargo would follow Red Army intervention; deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Monday that the president retains "a full range of options."

Haig reportedly argued for delaying the Saudi arms deal, but the White House announced last week that it intended to go ahead with the sale of five planes called AWACS — Airborne Warning and Control Systems — plus gear to enhance 62 Saudi F-15 fighters already have on order.

Since then, Senate Republican leader Howard Baker has said the White House will wait at least until midsummer before submitting the proposed sale to Congress to give lawmakers time to help shape the final package. Baker said it would be fall at the earliest before Congress acts.

The F-15 gear includes Sidewinder air-to-air missiles and long-range fuel tanks.

Critics of the deal say that the AWACS and F-15 gear will increase the overall Arab threat to Israel and that the AWACS sale will compromise secret equipment, particularly if the Saudi kingdom falls.

Congress has 30 days after such sales are formally proposed to veto them. A veto requires rejection by both the House and the Senate.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, says he plans full hearings on the deal, particularly on the effect it will have on Israel's defenses, but has set no schedule.

Baylor glad to hit hard

The way April has been going for Don Baylor, he'll take any kind of a hard-hit ball — even if it does result in a triple play.

Of course, he felt much better after hitting a home run as well Monday night to lead his California Angels to a 3-2 victory over the Oakland A's.

One of Baylor's four hard-hit balls was turned into a triple play in the sixth inning by the A's. But earlier, Baylor — who went into the game batting a paltry .058 — also had a sacrifice fly for his first RBI of the season and a tie-breaking home run.

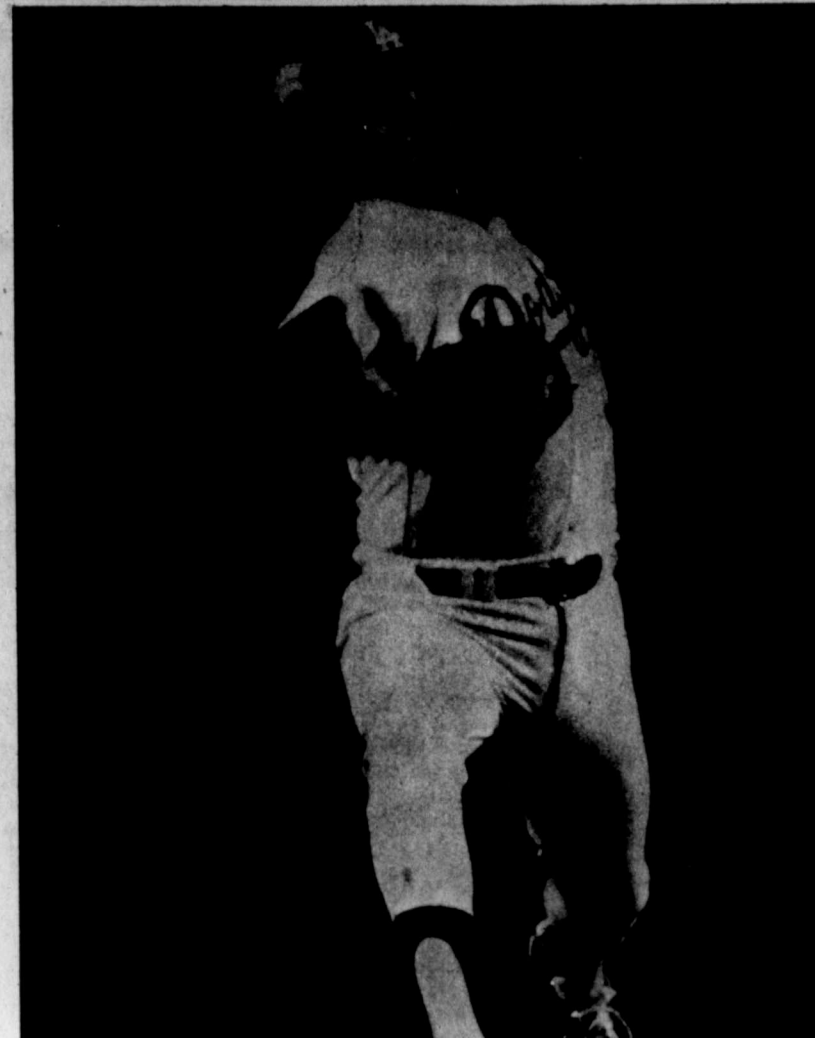

Right-hander Ken Forsch, 3-0, pitched a three-hitter to stop a six-game Oakland winning streak. Steve McCatty, 3-1, was the loser, but pitched his fourth complete game.

Orioles 5, White Sox 2
Red-dhot Ken Singleton rapped four hits and drove in the winning run as Baltimore beat Chicago and snapped a six-game winning streak for the White Sox.

Scott McGregor, 1-1, scattered 11 hits, struck out six and walked two before needing relief help from Tippy Martin in the ninth.

Singleton's four hits gave him eight hits in eight consecutive at-bats over two games. He raised his batting average to .512 with 21 hits in 41 at-bats.

Los Angeles Dodger pitching sensation Fernando Valenzuela powers back to deliver a pitcher against the San Francisco Giants Monday night. The 20-year-old rookie shutout the Giants for his fifth win of the season against no losses.

Fernando taking over LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was a World Series atmosphere that gripped Dodger Stadium. Fans were arriving as early as three hours before the game to witness the latest performance of the remarkable Fernando Valenzuela.

So where was Valenzuela, the rookie Los Angeles left-hander, while all this was going on Monday night?

“He's getting up for the game, all right,” said Dodger shortstop Bill Russell. “He's in there on the trainer's table, sound asleep.”

The 20-year-old Valenzuela was wide awake a little later as he continued his incredible performance on the mound and at the plate. Valenzuela shut out the San Francisco Giants 5-0, allowing seven hits.

Valenzuela has started five games in his brief major league career and won them all, four via shutout, and in 45 innings this year, he has allowed only one earned run.

Monday night's performance lowered his earned run average to 0.20. With his third straight shutout, he has a string of 28 1-3 scoreless innings.

On his hitting (he's batting .438 for the season with seven hits in 16 at-bats), Valenzuela laughed and said, “No, I've never been a good hitter. But I like to hit, and I try to hit well.”

Series is not over says Cunningham

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "If people think this series is over, they're kidding themselves," said Philadelphia 76ers' Coach Billy Cunningham.

The 76ers lead the Boston Celtics 3-1 in their best-of-seven National Basketball Association Eastern Conference final playoff matchup. The fifth game will be played at Boston Wednesday night.

"This series isn't over by any means," Cunningham insisted after his team blew a 19-point lead, then rallied to win 107-105 Sunday and assumed what appeared to be a commanding lead in the series.

"I know, I've been through this before," said Cunningham, who recalled that in 1968, when he was a Philadelphia player, the 76ers led Boston 3-1 in their series and wound up losing. Cunningham had to sit on the bench with a broken ankle.

"The Celtics have some confidence after the way they played in the third and fourth periods (Sunday)," Cunningham said.

Boston outscored Philadelphia 31-17 in the third period, and played the 76ers virtually even in the final quarter. The Celtics shot 60.4 percent in the second half.

Boston outshot Philadelphia 46-39 from the field, but the 76ers hit 29 of 39 free throw attempts to only 13 of 19 for the Celtics, and that proved the difference.

Boston Coach Bill Fitch agreed with Cunningham that the series was far from over.

"We'll win Wednesday's game in Boston," said Fitch. "This team still is capable of winning the series. We still believe that the 76ers have to come to us. We want to come back (Friday for a sixth game) here to this house of jinxes."

Fitch referred to the fact that Boston hasn't won in Philadelphia this season, losing three during the regular season and two playoff games.

"Not too many teams do what we did in the second half," said Fitch, looking for a ray of hope. "We lost the game in the first half with miserable, horrible play."

Cunningham couldn't understand his team's poor second half.

"You go in at halftime and tell them how well they played in the first half, go over things and tell them what we have to do to maintain it, and ..."

Cunningham said the 76ers didn't execute offensively in the second half and allowed Boston to pick up intensity.

Boston star Larry Bird said, "We've just to beat them in our building ... play the game we're capable of like we did in the third period."

Bird scored 18 points, grabbed 17 rebounds and handed out six assists. Cedric Maxwell's 20 points were high for the Celtics, while Tiny Archibald also scored 18 and had 14 assists.

The assist on which Archibald didn't succeed hurt the most. He threw a long pass to Bird in the closing seconds, but it was intercepted by Bobby Jones, who held on until the final buzzer.

Philadelphia's Julius Erving, who scored 20, including his team's last six points, said it felt good to be up 3-1.

Houston Rockets' Moses Malone (24), show here making a move against the Kansas City Kings' Sam Lacy during Friday night's NBA Western Conference finals, has led the Rockets to a 3-1 lead. The Rockets hope to wrap up the series with a win Wednesday.

KC Kings' glass slipper breaking

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Cinderella teams of the National Basketball Association meet Wednesday night for Game 5 of the Western Conference playoffs, and chances of the Kansas City Kings taking the glass slipper from the Houston Rockets are growing dim.

The Rockets lead the best-of-seven series 3-1, thanks to a 42-point, 22-rebound performance by Moses Malone in Sunday's 100-89 victory at The Summit.

HOUSTON'S BILLY Paultz says now is no time to let the faltering Kings off the floor, but Kansas City Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons says his club will be back in Houston for Game 6 Friday night.

"Can we win three straight? Can we?" Fitzsimmons asked. "That's the question I'm asking myself. I think we can. This thing is going to be interesting before it's over with, though. I can assure you of that."

Only three teams have ever rebounded from a 3-1 deficit to win an NBA playoff series.

HOUSTON'S ROBERT Reid, who scored 14 of his 16 points in the second half Sunday, expressed confidence that "we won't have to come back here Friday."

"At first during the playoffs we were surprising people (with series victories over Los Angeles and San Antonio)," Reid said. "But now we're playing well and it shouldn't be a surprise any more. We're playing with a lot of confidence."

PAULTZ SAID that during the final two weeks of the regular season Houston had to play its best in a series of "must-win" situations.

"That brought our defense together," he said. "It brought our offense together, our overall game together. That's why we're as good as we are now."

Paultz said the fact Houston does not have to win Wednesday night could be either a positive or a negative factor.

"It'll be easier mentally," he said. "When you're not under extreme pressure, your shots should fall. But we can't go over there and relax. We have to make sure we give the same hard effort. You don't want to let a team off the floor when you've got them down like this."

BOTH KANSAS City and Houston finished with 40-42 regular-season records and were expected to be post-season spectators.

But the Kings patched together a lineup to beat Portland and Phoenix, with star Phil Ford out for both series and Otis Birdsong lost at Phoenix. Fitzsimmons went to a slowdown offense with the Kings dominating both teams defensively. Now, the Rockets have turned the tables.

"We play a man's game," Houston Coach Del Harris said. "It's like knowing karate, having these guys with you. When you play defense the way these guys do, nobody's going to laugh or thumb their noses at you."

Pittsburgh files lawsuit

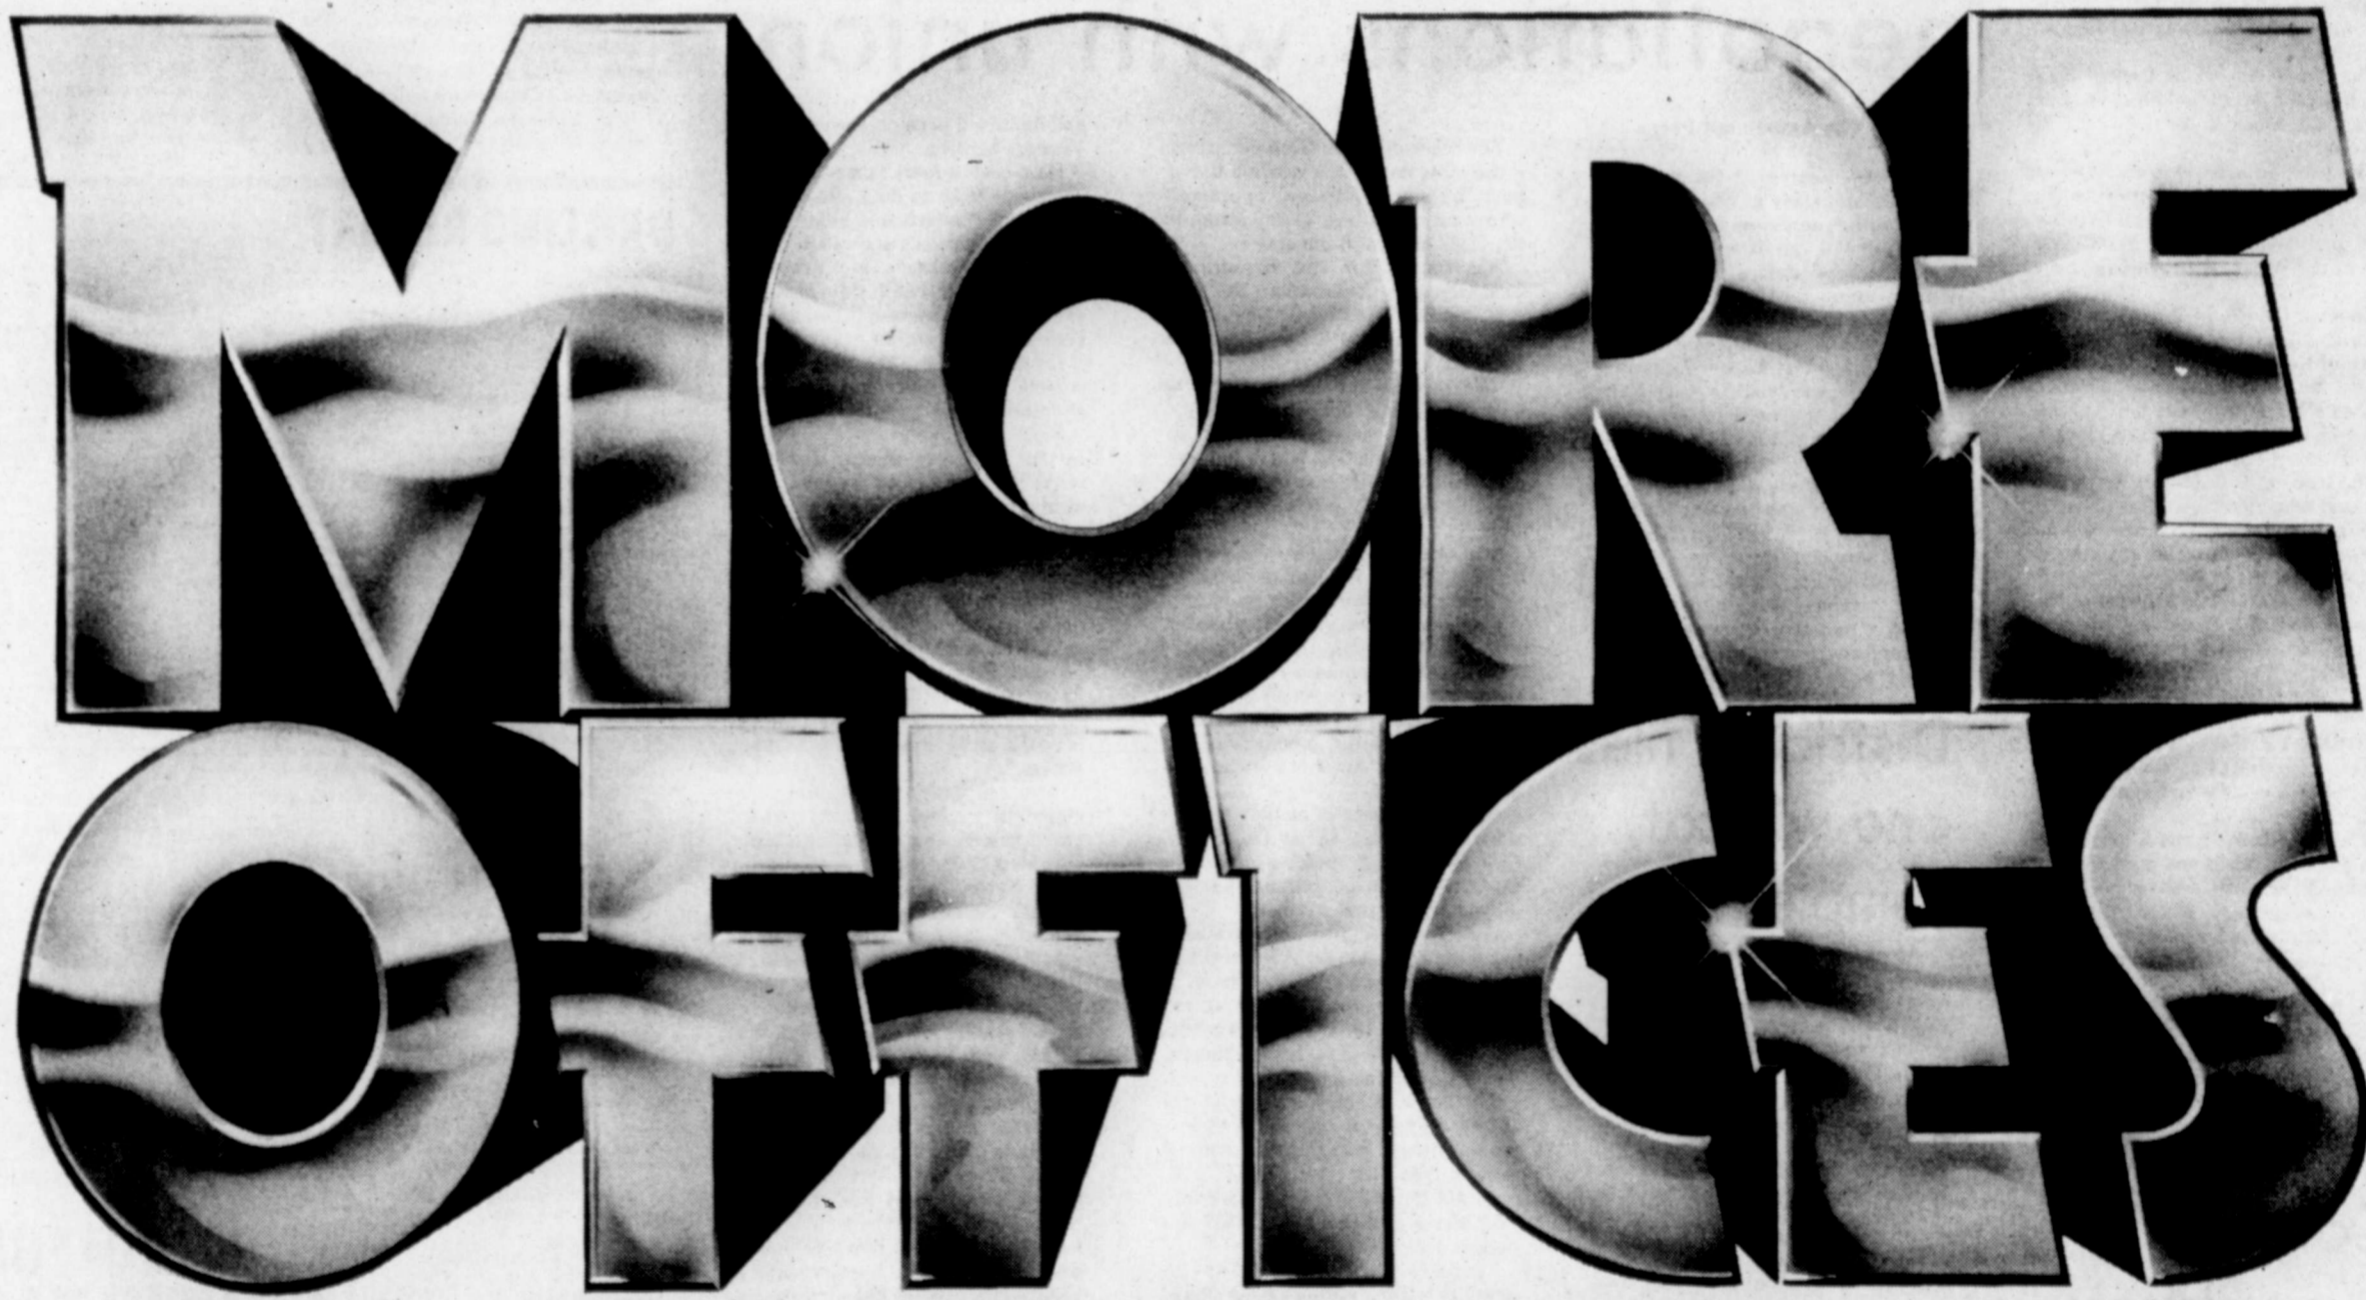

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The city of Pittsburgh today filed a federal lawsuit seeking to restrain the city of New Orleans and the management of the Superdome from trying to lure the Pittsburgh Pirates away.

Mayor Richard Caliguri said the suit is being filed to serve notice on New Orleans to "butt out" of Pittsburgh's contractual dispute with Pirate management.

The Pirates have sued the city to nullify their lease.

Caliguri's action came one day after the Pirate management and the general manager of the Superdome met in Pittsburgh to discuss a possible franchise move.

"To put it very bluntly this suit is being filed to serve notice on the city of New Orleans and the management of its Superdome to butt out of this city's present contractual dispute with the Pirate management," Caliguri said in a news statement.
