Punxsutawney Phil sees shadow

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (AP) — Punxsutawney Phil, the famous weather forecasting groundhog, today poked his head out of a burrow atop Gobbler's Knob, saw his shadow and predicted six more weeks of winter, according to his interpreter.

"So-co-colese. Eeny meeny miny mo," Phil reportedly told Charles Erhard, president of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club, and the only man who claims the ability to translate the groundhog's predictions.

"At 7:27 a.m., the king of all weather prognosticators seemed temporarily confused by the unpredictable nature of the winter thus far," said Erhard, after rapping on the door of Phil's heated burrow.

"But Phil definitely saw his shadow. There will be six more weeks of mild winter weather," said Erhard, wearing tails and a silk hat.

As Erhard made the prediction, a crowd of a few hundred who braved wet snow and chilly temperatures, boomed loudly. That means, so the legend goes, six more weeks of winter weather. No shadow would mean an early spring.

Charles Erhard and Phil

The groundhog, according to tradition rooted in Pennsylvania Dutch legend and the Christian feast of Candlemas, will scurry back into the burrow and hibernate for six more weeks if he spots his shadow.

"A mortal man can readily miss the shadow, but Phil never misses it," said Erhard, president of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club. "He'll whisper into my ear. He doesn't lie. He tells me the exact truth."

And Erhard says Phil has never been wrong.

The groundhog made his first official prediction in this town of 10,000 in 1886.

Last year, by Erhard's count, some 1,500 spectators braved cold winds to hear and film the animal's prediction. Foreign exchange students visit. High school students elect a groundhog king and queen and a man and woman of the year are named at an evening banquet.

Chun visit symbolizes return to normalcy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, meeting today with South Korean President Chun Doo-hwan, is expected to pledge to maintain U.S. troop levels in that country, officials said.

Chun's visit also is intended to symbolize a return to normalcy in Korean-American relations after four years of friction over human rights and other issues during former President Carter's tenure.

The South Korean leader arrived here Sunday and was greeted at Andrews Air Force Base by Secretary of State Alexander Haig and several hundred flag-waving Koreans residing locally.

Carter began a phased withdrawal of U.S. ground troops in 1977, but the process was suspended in 1979 after North Korea's military capability was found to be greater than had been believed.

The suspension was subject to review this year, but officials, asking not to be identified, said Chun was expected to receive assurances there will be no further troop reductions. There now are about 40,000 U.S. troops in South Korea.

Chun's visit here caps an unusually hectic period of political activity in South Korea. Over the past two weeks, Chun has invited North Korean leader Kim Il-sung to visit Seoul, commuted to life imprisonment the death sentence of opposition leader Kim Dae-jung and lifted some restrictions imposed on political activity after the 1979 assassination of President Park Chung-hee.

American officials said Chun's visit will enhance his prestige internationally and in South Korea, where he is expected to receive a mandate for a seven-year term in indirect presidential elections later this month.

Seven full-page advertisements heralding Chun's arrival appeared in the first 20 pages of today's editions of The Washington Post. The advertisements were placed by Korean Air Lines, the U.S.-Korea Economic Council, and several South Korea-based businesses.

The visit also was aimed at restoring international confidence in the South Korean economy, which declined in 1980 after several years of high growth.

Last year was one of the most difficult for South Korea since the Korean War ended 27 years ago. Aside from economic decline and political uncertainty, there were violent anti-government demonstrations during the spring. Relations with Washington were strained when Chun consolidated his power, ignoring repeated Carter administration appeals for a restoration of broad-based democratic rule.

Haig said last week he hopes that Chun's visit will "clarify the air" following the "static" of the Carter era.

Other technically is responsible for support under federal law and military regulations and, according to Thompson, his or her pay could be held up by the courts.

One soldier who went through such a "convenience" marriage said he knew of five other such GI couples at Fort Benning.

The private, who asked that he be identified only as Jack, said his marriage didn't last until his discharge. Divorce came within nine months, partly because of a dispute over fidelity.

Jack and his future wife became friends after both were assigned to a medical detachment at the Fort Benning reservation outside Columbus.

By tying the knot and moving into a $210-a-month apartment on the Chattahoochee River, the couple received about $400 monthly on top of the base military each drew.

They drew up a contract agreeing to end the marriage by the time of Jack's discharge in March 1982 and took it to a Columbus lawyer, who reminded them they were legally married regardless of the contract.

Jack said he and Linda lived as husband and wife, sharing household chores, but continued to date others. Within a few months, he was ready for a monogamous arrangement, "but she still wanted to date," Jack said.

Strike called off in Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Teams of government and trade union negotiators met today to try to resolve local wildcat strikes by farmers and workers in southern Poland after a national union-government compromise eased Poland's labor crisis.

A commission led by Deputy Agriculture Minister Andrzej Kacala met with representatives of farmers and workers who have been holding a sit-in for a month in a former trade union building in Rzeszow, demanding legalization of a union for the nation's private farmers.

Lech Walesa, the chief of Solidarity, Poland's big independent labor federation, went to Rzeszow to join the worker-farmer negotiating team led by his deputy, Bogdan Lis.

A Solidarity spokesman said Walesa would also go to the province of Bielsko Biala, where a general strike entered its seventh day today. The strike over local and national grievances has shut down 120 plants, municipal offices and transportation systems, the official PAP news agency said.

Solidarity's national coordinating commission on Sunday called off a nationwide one-hour strike scheduled for Tuesday after the government opened the negotiations in Rzeszow.

But Walesa warned that the strike would be rescheduled "if there is any attack on us or on the farmers. Solidarity will consider any attack on farmers' unions as being directed against us."

The coordinating commission also called for "supportive" action Tuesday on behalf of the farmers. Walesa said the local Solidarity chapters would determine what this would consist of, but it might include "the display of flags, the wearing of armbands or other manifestations."

The private farmers account for 75 percent of Poland's agricultural production. The deputy agriculture minister said the Supreme Court would review the application for registration of the farmers' union in the next 10 days. Labor leaders said the hearing would be held Feb. 10, and several members of Solidarity's presidium expressed doubt that the government would approve the application.

Meanwhile, Solidarity's national leaders were trying to mobilize the support of the federation's 10 million members for their agreement Saturday with the government on two of the other issues that have spawned a wave of wildcat strikes in recent weeks: the five-day work week and access for the labor movement to the government-controlled radio and television services.

The government agreed in principle to the 40-hour, five-day week, but the Solidarity leaders agreed to a 42-hour week and one working Saturday per month this year because of Poland's acute economic crisis.

Soviets escalating war of words

MOSCOW (AP) — In a new escalation of its war of words with the Reagan administration the Soviet leadership today publicly accused Washington of "deliberate political subversion" for charging that the Kremlin was responsible for acts of international terrorism.

At the same time, it was learned that Moscow had further expressed its anger in a new diplomatic statement to the U.S. Embassy here. Soviet and American officials confirmed that embassy officers were summoned "recently" to the Foreign Ministry, and U.S. sources said the session dealt with the terrorism issue.

If the session, which was believed to have taken place today, amounted to a formal protest, it would be the second in a week to the American mission here. Last Thursday, Jack F. Matlock, the ranking U.S. diplomat in Moscow, was called to the Foreign Ministry to hear a protest against U.S. statements that criticized Soviet press treatment of the Iranian hostage crisis.

Today, a special statement from the official news agency Tass — equivalent to an official government announcement — said "any allegations about the Soviet Union's involvement in terroristic activities represent a gross and malicious deception. They cannot but cause feelings of indignation and legitimate protest in the Soviet people."

The attack followed accusations Sunday by the Communist Party newspaper that the new U.S. administration was "playing a dangerous game" in making the allegations about terrorism. That commentary and two previous days' criticism in the official press, appeared to signal a substantially harsher stance toward the Reagan administration.

Today's harsh, 900-word statement was the most formal Soviet denial yet of charges made last Wednesday by U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. linking the Soviet Union with terrorists.

"Soviet leading circles have taken note of a new anti-Soviet hostile campaign being unfolded in the United States," the statement began — an indication the statement was approved at the highest Kremlin levels.

"Such inventions could be simply ignored as a new primitive trick by professional anti-Sovieters if not for the fact that this campaign was started by high-ranking officials of the American administration," including Haig, Tass said.

The official statement also repeated Soviet charges that the United States was guilty of terrorism by supporting conservative regimes in Asia and Latin America.

"The organizers of the present campaign in the United States resort to a dishonest device also when they equate terrorism and the legitimate struggle of the peoples for their national, economic and social emancipation," Tass said.

If the "newly fledged theoreticians of terrorism" followed their own reasoning, Tass said, "they should also list among terrorists George Washington and other Founding Fathers of the United States, who led the American struggle for independence."

Closing with a warning, Tass said that "Soviet ruling circles would like to hope that they in Washington will give serious thought to where the continuation of their hostile campaign to the Soviet Union can lead..." Tass did not elaborate on what the "campaign" might lead to.

At least 17 dead after snowstorm

By The Associated Press

A long-awaited snowstorm that blew out of the Rockies has left at least 17 people dead, including a skier who died under an avalanche the day after Utah's first major snowfall of the season.

The storm, carrying high winds and generous helpings of snow, moved over South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa and Missouri during the weekend, chilling the unseasonably warm air and bringing much-needed precipitation to an area worried about drought.

Meanwhile, light rain in the Northeast brought hope of relief from a drought that has prompted officials in New Jersey, New York, Connecticut and other states to encourage water conservation.

What forecasters called the season's first "bona fide" winter storm in the Midwest lost much of its punch as it moved eastward into Wisconsin and Illinois. But more snow was expected today in Michigan, where freezing rain and snow were blamed for two deaths. One man died after collapsing while shoveling snow, and another man was killed when the car he was in skidded and hit a light pole.

In Kansas, where rain and up to 6 inches of snow fell, the driver of a tanker truck carrying anhydrous ammonia was killed during the weekend when it overturned on a rain-slick highway. Parts of Missouri got 7 inches of snow and Wisconsin got up to 4 1/2 inches.

Six people died in Iowa, including five who died on highways and one man who died in the crash of a light aircraft in Pocahontas County. Up to 9 inches of snow fell on sections of the state.

The storm left at least four people dead after traffic accidents on slick roads in Nebraska, where winds gusted up to 45 mph on Sunday. Two traffic deaths were blamed on snow and ice conditions in Colorado, and the U.S. Forest Service issued an avalanche warning for mountain areas.

In Utah, a man was killed Saturday when hit by a pickup truck as he walked along a road during the snowstorm. On Sunday, a 20-year-old cross-country skier, Daniel Arthur LaFave of Salt Lake, died after being buried under 5 feet of snow in a small avalanche at Donut Falls in Big Cottonwood Canyon.

Two companions escaped and summoned help, authorities said.

The National Weather Service issued avalanche warnings for all back-country areas as the new snow slipped off the old, hard-packed base.

Alta, the ski resort in Little Cottonwood Canyon east of Salt Lake City, reported having 90 inches of snow on the ground, an increase of nearly five feet since Wednesday.

In Connecticut, where the 0.38 inches of rain that fell last month made it the driest January on record, officials were hoping that the light rain Sunday and rain expected today would alleviate the current parched conditions. A company with 500 employees in the affluent city of Greenwich has gone to a four-day work week to conserve water, officials say.

Grocery bills rose sharply last month

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Peanut butter prices are giving grocery shoppers some sticky moments. An Associated Press marketbasket survey shows that the cost of the popular sandwich filling rose sharply during January, for the second month in a row.

Despite the peanut butter price surge, the overall grocery bill measured by the AP went up only two-tenths of a percent last month, thanks to declines for items like coffee, meat and eggs.

The peanut butter problems are caused by last summer's drought, which cut into the peanut crop and boosted prices. In addition, some consumers, apparently afraid they might not be able to buy peanut butter at any price, hurried to stock up and several stores surveyed by the AP were sold out last week.

"People heard about a peanut shortage and started hoarding," said a clerk in a Providence, R.I., store who did not want his name used.

The store was sold out of most brands of peanut butter. The only one available was a local brand at $2.09 for a 16-ounce jar. A month earlier, the AP found plenty of peanut butter, with national brands at $1.09 for 12-ounce jars.

The AP marketbasket survey involves a random list of commonly purchased food and non-food items. Prices of all items were checked at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on Supermarket Day in January. The list originally included 15 items, but chocolate chip cookies were dropped from the survey after the manufacturer discontinued the package size that had been used for the price check.

The latest survey showed that the marketbasket bills rose last month at the checklist stores in seven of the cities surveyed, up an average of 2.6 percent. The marketbasket went down in six cities, dropping an average of 2.7 percent. The overall January increase of two-tenths of a percent compared with a boost of half a percent during December.

There were fairly widespread decreases in meat prices during January — frankfurters, for example, went down at the checklist store in seven cities; pork chops dropped in five cities. Eggs declined in seven cities. In all, almost 30 percent of the items checked by the AP went down last month.

Families who had turned to peanut butter as an inexpensive source of protein because of last year's high meat prices were out of luck, however. The price of peanut butter went up at the checklist stores in 10 of the cities surveyed by the AP, with increases ranging from a low of 3 percent in Boston to a high of 60 percent in Los Angeles. The price went down at the checklist store in one city — Atlanta, which reported a 1 percent drop. The checklist stores in three cities were sold out of the brand of peanut butter normally used in the survey. During December, the price of peanut butter went up in nine of the cities surveyed.

Other findings of the latest AP survey included:

- Marketbasket bills at the checklist stores at the end of January were an average of 11 percent higher than they were a year earlier.
- Milk prices went up at checklist stores in eight cities. Prices have been rising steadily because of higher government price supports. Another boost in the support level in April will mean more increases, despite an expected rise in production.
- Coffee prices are on the decline, down at the checklist store in eight of the cities surveyed by the AP.
- A look at the overall number of items in the AP survey showed fewer increases and more decreases during January than during December. Here are the percentages of increases and decreases:

Category	Dec. Jan.
Up	34.6 28.0
Down	18.7 29.1
Unchanged	40.7 37.4
Unavailable	6.0 5.5

No attempt was made to weight the AP survey results according to population density or in terms of what percent of a family's actual grocery outlay each item represents.

The day of the week on which the check was made varied depending on the month. Standard brands and sizes or comparable substitutes were used. Items temporarily out of stock on one of the survey dates being compared were not included in the overall total.

The AP did not try to compare prices from city to city — to say, for example, that eggs cost more in one area than another. The only comparisons were made in terms of percentages of increase or decrease — saying a particular item went up 10 percent in one city and 6 percent in another.

The USDA marketbasket issued each month is based on a complex set of statistics. It is used to keep track of changes in the proportion of the food dollar received by the farmer, wholesaler and retailer and does not correspond to actual family spending.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, paper towels, coffee, butter, Grade A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar.

The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I., Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Celebrations continue for some of the hostages

By ANDREW O'CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

Behind the microphones and beneath the welcome-home banners, some of the freed hostages who are used to quiet homecomings say they're beginning to feel embarrassed by crowds and speeches.

"I went to downtown Dallas the other day in civilian clothes and walked into a building," Marine Staff Sgt. Johnny McKeel Jr. of Balch Springs, Texas, said, "and before I could get to the elevator I was mobbed."

Some of the 52 ex-hostages have been through celebration after liberation since being released from Iran on Jan. 20 after 14 1/2 months of captivity, and the weekend brought another round of festivities.

Marine Sgt. Jimmy Lopez, who was at the Lopez Day festivities in Phoenix, Ariz., on Sunday, also was honored by a parade in his hometown of Globe, Ariz., last week. The former captive told a crowd estimated at 30,000 people at the state capitol in Phoenix that he found the celebration "slightly embarrassing."

When former hostage Robert Blucker, 53, got off the plane at the Little Rock, Ark., airport Sunday, he was met by reporters. Again.

"Nothing profound, please," he pleaded, and brushed off questions about his captivity before going to a private family gathering at the North Little Rock home of his mother, Hazel Albin.

"I just plan to relax for a while," he said. "There hasn't been a minute to collect my thoughts."

Eight of the hostages attended ceremonies during the weekend, and some got presents ranging from champagne to the city keys to, in the case of Lopez, a hunting and fishing license from the Arizona Game and Fish Department. Lopez said he planned to use it right away.

A crowd of 40,000 lined the parade route Sunday as Lopez, his eyes fixed straight ahead, rode by in a vintage roadster with his two sisters and his parents beside him.

In Waltham, Mass., a crowd estimated at 400,000 people, bearing yellow ribbons and balloons, jammed a 2 1/2-mile parade route Sunday to welcome William Keough, who said if his ordeal helped revive America's patriotic spirit, it was "worth it."

Marine Sgt. Paul Lewis of Homer, Ill., rode down the main street of Danville, Ill., on Sunday in an antique firetruck with his parents, two brothers and a sister. After the parade, he was presented with the key to Danville by Mayor David Palmer. On Saturday he got a bottle of champagne from Champaign, Ill., Mayor Joan Severns.

"If we were responsible for a rebirth of spirit and of patriotism, then our time over there was well-spent," Lewis said in his hometown on Saturday.

In Rensselaer, Ind., the yellow ribbons that greeted ex-hostage Rick Kupke had turned a bit soggy by the time of his official welcome-home party, but nobody seemed to mind. About 1,000 people showed up despite freezing rain and snow for a celebration Sunday in the local high-school auditorium. Entertaining children sang "Tie a Yellow Ribbon 'Round the Old Tree," and a bright red banner proclaimed "Welcome Home Rick."

Kupke said at a news conference (later that he was one of the last to surrender when the U.S. Embassy in Tehran was over-run Nov. 4, 1979.

"I really didn't want to surrender, but I was forced to. I was on the roof of the embassy. I didn't have any where to go."

He said he sympathized with Vietnam veterans who staged weekend demonstrations because they were not afforded the same homecoming hoopla as the hostages.

"I was in the service from 1966 to 1970," Kupke said. "When I got out nobody thanked me for that. I sympathize with them."

He also said: "I'm anxious for the quiet life now."

Tuesday will be fair and cold

It's going to be fair jogging weather Tuesday, with the help of thermal underwear.

Other than frigid overnight temperatures in the mid-20s, the National Weather Service is calling for a high Tuesday in the mid-50s. There should be few clouds floating in the sky. And winds should be variable at 5 to 10 mph.

High on Sunday was 50 degrees, a cool reading compared to the record of 80 degrees set on that date in 1963. Overnight low today was 16, not much above the record low of zero set in 1951.

No precipitation has been recorded this month, and only .56 of an inch for the year to date.

Texas area forecasts

West Texas: Generally fair through Tuesday. Not so cold tonight and Tuesday. Highs upper 20s Panhandle to mid 40s Big Bend. Lows upper teens mountains and Panhandle to near 30 south. Highs Tuesday mid 40s Panhandle to upper 50s south.

North Texas: Mostly fair and cold through tonight. Fair and a little warmer Tuesday. Highs 30 to 36. Lows 20s. Highs Tuesday 41 to 53.

South Texas: Mostly fair with cool days and cold nights through Tuesday. Highs 30s to mid 40s south. Lows near 10 immediate coastal, 20s and 30s elsewhere.

Border states forecasts

Oklahoma: Fair with a warming trend through Tuesday. Highs 31 to 37. Lows 11 to 17. Highs Tuesday 36.

New Mexico: Fair through Tuesday with increasing clouds Tuesday. Warmer north and west today with additional warming Tuesday. Highs 30s mountains and mid 40s south. Lows 3 below zero to 15 mountains and north, 15 to 20 elsewhere. Highs Tuesday 31 to 36.

Louisiana: Clear and much colder through tonight. Fair and cool Tuesday. Highs 30s. Lows near 20 north, 30s to near 30 southeast.

Authorities check fatal shooting

HAMMOND, Ind. (AP) — Two detectives have been assigned to investigate the fatal police shooting of a Vietnam veteran reportedly despondent over the outpouring of welcome to the freed American hostages, authorities say.

Further internal investigation of the Friday night incident also was likely, a police department spokesman said Sunday.

Midland firemen responded to a fire call Sunday evening and spent about 45 minutes fighting a fire that engulfed two fences and a dumpster.

The fire, in the 1500 block of Hemlock Street, apparently started in the dumpster and then spread to two nearby fences.

The fire damaged the fences at the C.D. Brackens residence at 1504 Hemlock and the Willy Wilson residence at 1506 Hemlock.

Emergency personnel also responded to a call to stand by the landing of a private airplane at Midland Regional Airport shortly after 6 p.m. Sunday.

According to fire department reports, a Beechcraft Bonanza piloted by Derral Henderson of Seminole was experiencing a malfunction with the indicator light on its nose gear.

The aircraft landed safely, however.

DEAR ABBY

Around the world, around the block, moving is a pain

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I LOVES TO MOVE were married to a petroleum engineer, as I am, she would soon lose her appetite for moving.

I recently completed my 72nd move! These moves have encompassed 17 foreign countries, three states and four Canadian provinces. To date, the record has been six moves in less than 11 months!

Each of our four offspring has attended over 30 different schools. Happily, none has suffered either academically or psychologically. I consider myself fortunate to have been able to spend TWO consecutive Christmases in the same house.

In the last 30 years, I have set up housekeeping in the bustling cities of the Far (and Near) East, in the steaming jungles of South America, and I've even pitched tents in the deserts of Saudi Arabia. I've braved native uprisings, revolutions, sandstorms, tropical floods and was left completely homeless twice through evacuations.

Small wonder my family and friends think I'm crazy, but were they to read of LOVES TO MOVE, they would consider her to be totally insane! Sign me...MOVIN' RIGHT ALONG.

DEAR ABBY: LOVES TO MOVE is sitting on a gold mine! She should help others (for a fee) who hate to go through the hassles of packing and moving.

I don't think she's any crazier than the men who buy a different car every other year...but I do think she's crazy if she doesn't use all that energy to earn money. If she doesn't live in a town large enough to make money helping people move, she can "move" to a bigger town. — ALSO LOVES TO MOVE.

DEAR ALSO: Move over for another reader who shares your view:

DEAR ABBY: Why do you think the woman who loves to move should have her head examined? Let her do her thing. And I think her husband deserves praise for understanding. I know people with sillier and more expensive hobbies. At least she is moving within the same city; that keeps the cost down.

We also moved a lot but always to another country — usually crossing an ocean. I'll bet lots of people thought we were nuts, but I enjoyed it tremendously. — LIESEL IN SEAL BEACH, CALIF.

'Fashion humorist' proves that fashion can be fun

By JOY STILLEY AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Judith Keith has a multifaceted career: public appearances as a "fashion humorist"; writer; editor; publisher, and literary agent.

And, still another activity — which she says, "maintains my mental equilibrium" — she's a ski-instructor at Camelback ski area in the Pocos, where she lives and works in what was formerly her weekend ski cabin.

"I'm at my desk by 7 and work till 1, then take a break and teach a ski class," the ebullient Miss Keith explained in an interview. "I come back, have dinner and work again from 8 to 10 at night."

That is, if she's not traveling, which she does a good deal of the time to put on her one-woman, one-outfit fashion show before conventions, trade associations and other audiences.

"I've done it for everyone from the wives of top corporate executives to people in correction institutions," she says, "from junior high-school groups to senior citizens. Every woman has the same interest in wanting to look good and to create a look of her own, no matter what her weight, income or age."

For the show, she designed a dress with three tiers that can be zipped off to make it different lengths. The shortest version is a tunic, which she wears with pants. With those pieces and a lot of accessories she presents her fashion philosophy, which she has elaborated on in a recent book, "I Haven't a Thing To Wear!"

The book was published by Tandem Press, which Miss Keith started about 10 years ago in Tannersville, Pa., and which she also runs as a one-woman show with the help of some freelancers. From there she's branched out into acting as a literary agent.

A youthful-looking woman in her 50s who was wearing a checked suit with a wine-color scarf and hat, Miss Keith believes in the five Cs of fashion: Comfort, Contour, Color, Classics and Coordination.

"Comfort is the most

DEAR ABBY: The letter from LOVES TO MOVE made my day. My husband and I also love to move, but this is the first time we ever heard of anyone else who did. We've been married for 26 years and have moved so many times we've actually lost count. (We even moved back into the same house three times!)

It's expensive and hard work. We're not young any more, and I hope our next move is to the cemetery. — CRAZY LADY.

DEAR ABBY: LOVES TO MOVE answered her own question: "I'm never satisfied." I know how her children must feel, because my mother was also a mover. No sooner did we get settled in a new house when Mother found one she liked better. It was hard on us kids having to make new friends in a strange neighborhood.

I had a friend who had the same problem, only worse. Her mother moved 33 times in 14 years, and they never left the neighborhood! This friend's father woke up in bed with a neighbor lady one morning. His wife had actually moved two doors down while he was out of town, and she never told him about it. He came home in the middle of the night, let himself in the darkened house and went directly to bed. The Widow Jensen never got over the shock.

Your advice was perfect. LOVES TO MOVE needs to have her head examined. — HAVEN'T MOVED IN 35 YEARS

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply, write to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Haig fires ambassador

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. has fired Robert E. White as United States ambassador to El Salvador "as a sign of a new policy in Central America," The New York Times reported today.

White was called to Washington last week and informed that the Reagan administration would soon name a new ambassador to signal a new United States policy, according to the Times report, which was based on State Department sources.

White, a career diplomat, has been strongly criticized by Republican conservatives. The Times said in its report from Washington that the sources indicated White had not been offered a new assignment.

White said any announcement about his future would have to come from the State Department, the Times said.

Haig has ordered an interdepartmental review of United States policy toward El Salvador, where three American Roman Catholic nuns and a lay missionary were killed in December, the Times said.

White had a major role in shaping policy toward the Central American nation in the last year, during which guerrillas have been trying to overthrow a military-backed civilian government.

Debt limit likely to go up this week

NEW YORK (AP) — At least two of the Americans taken hostage in Iran were linked to the Central Intelligence Agency by documents seized when Iranian militants took over the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, according to published reports.

The reports appeared Sunday in Time magazine and the London Observer. The Observer account was written by reporter Ian Mather, who said he saw the documents in Tehran in November, 1979.

Time magazine, in a report on the protection of intelligence materials at American embassies, said that among a "treasure trove" of documents found by the militants was one indicating that William Daugherty and Malcolm Kalp were CIA agents.

A margin note, "Show to Tom A.," led the militants to believe that Thomas Ahern, listed by the State Department as the embassy's narcotics control officer, also had CIA ties, according to Time.

Mather's report also listed Ahern, Kalp and Daugherty as those whose names appeared in seized documents. His story said the documents indicated that a fourth hostage, not identified, was a CIA agent.

"The documents suggest," Mather wrote, "that the CIA was about to launch a new initiative in Iran of which the charge d'affaires, Mr. Bruce Laingen, was aware and that requests for embassy help for former agents of SAVAK, the shah's secret police, had at least been considered."

He said, however, the documents he saw did not "demonstrate that the Americans were seeking to undermine the Iranian revolution. Neither do they justify the taking of the hostages or the subsequent maltreatment of them."

In Washington, State Department officials declined to comment on either report.

Time said Ahern, Kalp and Daugherty suffered harsher treatment than other hostages. Kalp was beaten and kept in solitary confinement for 374 of the 444 days the hostages were imprisoned.

The magazine said many documents and almost all the embassy's sensitive communications equipment were destroyed as the militants were storming the embassy compound on Nov. 4, 1979, but the contents of Laingen's safe and that of political officer Michael Metrinko were captured intact by the militants.

The seized documents, Time said, contained names of Iranians who had visited the embassy, some of whom were believed to have been arrested and executed.

Time said the Iranians also got sensitive documents from a helicopter abandoned after the rescue mission failed last April. The magazine said the documents gave locations of safe houses, procedures and codes for making contact with local agents and secret escape routes.

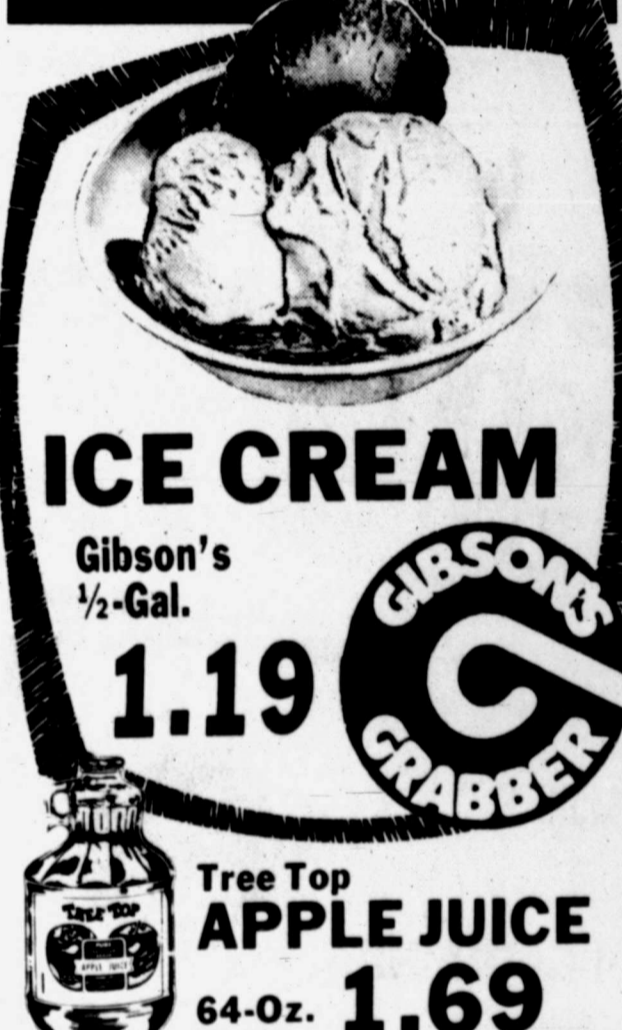

The seizure of these documents forced some United States agents in Iran to flee the country, Time said.

According to the Observer, one document, dated Aug. 9, 1979, was marked "secret" and spoke of the need for "cover" for Kalp and Daugherty.

Narrow plurality says deal compromised honor

NEW YORK (AP) — A narrow plurality of Americans believes the United States' deal with Iran to secure the release of the hostages "compromised our national honor," according to a Harris Survey published in today's Daily News.

Forty-seven percent of those polled feel "President Reagan should go back on those parts of the deal that still need to be implemented" while 46 percent feel it should be honored, according to Harris.

The survey of 1,250 adults was taken between Jan. 22 and 25. Respondents' opinions on the hostage deal apparently were tied to which presidential candidate they supported. Fifty-four percent of those who voted for Reagan believe the deal compromised national honor, while 58 percent of those who voted for Jimmy Carter thought it did "allow the U.S. to keep its honor."

Other poll results:
—Asked if it was right for the United States to pledge "not to interfere in the internal affairs of Iran," 80 percent said yes and 16 percent said no.

—By 74 percent to 22 percent, a majority supports sending Iran "$2.9 billion of its own money, which had been frozen for 14 months."
—A 75 percent to 19 percent majority agrees that Iran should repay "$3.7 billion in loans made by United States banks to Iran under the late shah."

Ella Grasso subconscious and in critical condition

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Former Gov. Ella T. Grasso, whose battle with liver and intestinal cancer forced her to leave office, was semi-comatose and in critical condition today, a hospital spokesman said. "Her vital signs are still stable, but her overall condition has deteriorated," James Battaglio said Sunday. "When she is awake, she is lucid. However... she has slipped in and out of a subconscious state." The 61-year-old Mrs. Grasso, who has been in Hartford Hospital since early December, began to worsen early Sunday. Battaglio said she awoke at 8 p.m. and recognized members of her family, then slipped back into a "comatose state." The former governor's husband, Thomas, and two children, James and Susane, were at her bedside most of the day. Before Mrs. Grasso's condition worsened, doctors had planned to conduct her fifth session of chemotherapy later this week. "There's so much uncertainty at this point," said Battaglio. "The disease has advanced to the point where her metabolism is off, and that's causing this, but her vital signs remain stable and strong." No artificial life support systems were being used by the former governor Sunday, Battaglio said, adding that she was not receiving oxygen. Intravenous feedings have been administered throughout her hospitalization because she cannot tolerate solid food. Mrs. Grasso, the daughter of Italian immigrants, was the first woman in U.S. history elected governor without succeeding her husband in office. She was elected in 1974. She announced her resignation on Dec. 4 after doctors discovered she had liver cancer, a disease generally considered incurable. Four days later, she was hospitalized for nausea and surgeons found malignant growths in her intestine. Last April, Mrs. Grasso underwent ovarian surgery and doctors found cancer at that time.

Gold below $500 again; Dollar fluctuates

LONDON (AP) — Gold prices slumped back below $500 an ounce in London Monday morning but stayed above that psychological barrier in Zurich, Europe's biggest bullion market. The dollar fell in early trading but by midmorning had pulled back up somewhat. London's five bullion houses fixed the morning gold price at $493.25 an ounce, $13.50 below the price late Friday of $506.75. In Zurich, gold traded at a median of $502.50, down from $504.50. Gold closed in Hong Kong unchanged at $503.33. It finished at $501.00 in New York Friday. Gold fell below $500 for the first time in nine months last Thursday, nearly $200 below its levels of a year ago. Dealers said trading was active Monday morning and was affected by the dollar's fluctuations. Silver was quoted in London at $12.98 an ounce, down from $13.33. On the foreign exchanges, weekend credit-tightening measures by the Italian government strengthened the lira, which had fallen to an all-time low of 1,000 to the dollar last Friday. At midmorning, the rate was 999 to the dollar. The government announced a reduction in the limit on credit expansion from 21 percent to 13 percent in the coming year.

Other European dollar rates were 2.1100 West German marks, down from 2.1155 at the close of trading Friday; 1.9175 Swiss francs, down from 1.9220; 4.8700 French francs, down from 4.8825, and 2.2830 guilders, down from 2.2960. The British pound sold for $2.3665, down from $2.3745. The dollar closed in Tokyo at 203.30 yen, nearly 2 yen below Friday's closing rate of 205.20. In later European trading, the dollar was quoted at 203.10 yen.

Cadmium could hurt children's IQ

BALTIMORE (AP) — Chronic exposure to lead and cadmium could reduce children's intelligence and may be a "contributing factor to the decline of academic performance" nationally over the last two decades, according to a University of Maryland neuroscientist. Cadmium is a toxic element found in pesticides, fertilizers and in the liver of the Maryland blue crab. Automobile exhaust is responsible for much of the exposure to lead. Dr. Robert W. Thatcher's study of 149 Eastern Shore children, plus the results of research conducted by Dr. H. N. Needleman of Harvard on the effects of lead exposure, underscore the potential dangers of the two elements to child development, according to the neuroscientist. Thatcher, director of the university's Applied Neuroscience Institute, said the Eastzof Study showed that "cadmium has a major impact on verbal intelligence, vocabulary, spelling and language skills, while lead has its greatest effect on performance IQ, the manipulation of symbols and images in the mind." He contends the study has produced the first evidence of a quantitative difference between the effects of lead and cadmium exposure on intelligence. "If our sample and the Needleman sample is representative of the nation as a whole, then the findings have national significance indicate a pervasive phenomenon," he said. "Exposure to low levels of cadmium and lead over a long time could be a contrib to the decline of academic performance that's been publicized since 1962 through dropping college entrance exams, student achievement and IQ scores." Needleman's study of 2,000 urban children indicates a negative impact on intelligence. "long the exposure is to be and at what level the adversely affect intellectual functioning is unknown," Thatcher said. Thatcher said his study indicates cadmium is more potent than lead in small doses. But exposure to both elements is worse than exposure to just one of them. The $1.25 million study is funded by the University of Maryland and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Thatcher said he plans to compare 600 Eastern Shore children with 600 children in Baltimore by 1983. "We hope to look at the quality of nutrition in children and to see if high quality nutrition can protect children from toxic effects of cadmium and lead," he said. "We are pursuing that now." Thatcher analyzed hair samples from the children, aged 6 to 16, and administered psychological and intelligence tests. Each child underwent brain wave testing and their parents completed questionnaires about family nutrition.

BOSTON (AP) — The state of Massachusetts has started nationwide distribution of a new drug, rejected by commercial manufacturers, designed to help children with cancer or other serious illnesses battle chicken pox infections. The state decided to produce the drug because commercial manufacturers were not interested, said laboratory director Dr. George F. Grady, director of the biological laboratories division of the state Department of Public Health. His staff developed the drug, Varicella Zoster Immune Globulin, or VZIG, in conjunction with the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute in Boston and the federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta. "There are certain products, like VZIG, that can only be used for a very special purpose," Grady said. "And, although the large commercial manufacturers do not find it financially in their interest to produce such a product, the need remains."

The drug became available nationwide Sunday. While chicken pox in healthy children often is not serious, the illness results in death 7 percent of the time and pneumonia 25 percent of the time when it hits children who have cancer or other medical problems that impair the body's natural ability to fight disease, department officials said. In three years of tests, VZIG reduced the severity of chicken pox infection by 75 percent in children under age 15 who are without natural immunity to disease, said the health department. The biological labs division will make the drug and distribute it with the help of the American Red Cross. Grady said revenues from the distribution of the product "will be returned to Massachusetts so that we can continue to produce not only VZIG, but also a variety of other blood products and vaccines that we use to combat disease in the commonwealth." Scientists said VZIG is most effective when administered within 96 hours of exposure to chicken pox. It can provide protection for up to six weeks. The drug also is reported effective in protecting newborn infants of mothers who develop chicken pox within five days of delivery or 48 hours after delivery. Grady said the supply of VZIG was limited, so it will not be prescribed for normal, healthy children who come down with chicken pox.

Man charged with arson in Victoria hotel fire

VICTORIA, British Columbia (AP) — A 26-year-old man was going to court today to face a hearing on arson charges in a $500,000 fire that forced the evacuation of 500 guests at the stately Empress Hotel. Michael Harold Clarke, 26, of nearby Sidney, remained in custody after being charged with arson Sunday before a justice of the peace. Police said Clarke was arrested in a van outside a nearby hotel minutes after firefighters arrived early Saturday to battle the Empress blaze. The arrest came after a man telephoned police to say he had set fire to the hotel, said Jim Blair, hotel assistant manager. Guests said quick action by firefighters prevented injuries in the first fire at the landmark Canadian Pacific hotel since it opened in 1908.

Man dies after setting self afire

SEATTLE (AP) — A man described by relatives as "terribly disturbed" died of burn injuries after drenching himself with gasoline at an Arlington filling station and setting himself afire, authorities say. Joseph James Kotnik, 38, died early Sunday of burns after being taken to Harborview Medical Center in Seattle from Cascade Hospital in Arlington, said George Rowley of the King County medical examiner's office. Rowley said Kotnik drove his car into Arlington Arco and drenched himself with gasoline from a pump. An attendant, Dean Higgins, 17, said he told Kotnik, "Don't do it. There's another way. He said, 'I'm going to do it... leave me alone.'"

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Hamburger won't replace Rorschach

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've often heard the expression "You are what you eat," and I've always assumed it referred to one's physical condition. For example, a person who eats excessive amounts of high-calorie foods full of sugar and fat will likely be obese and may suffer from conditions such as high blood pressure or diabetes. Now a friend tells me he read that the expression refers to personality traits, not physical health. Is there anything to this? — Jim

Dear Jim: Your friend may be referring to an article by Dr. Leo Wolman, a psychiatrist, in Omni Magazine. He wrote that people who eat hot dogs tend to be outgoing, aggressive, ambitious and extroverted. On the other hand, those who go for hamburgers are quieter, more conservative and introverted. With or without mustard, however, it seems highly unlikely that the hot dog or hamburger will ever replace the Rorschach.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Every so often the papers carry news about advances in the treatment of a variety of diseases. Last week in our Sunday school class, we got on the subject of leprosy, which is mentioned in the Bible. However, no one in the class knew how widespread the disease is today, and whether any progress is being made in treating it. Do you have any information on the subject? — Cindy

Dear Cindy: About 12 million people throughout the world suffer from leprosy, and about 160 new cases are reported in the United States each year.

As you suggest, leprosy has been around a very long time. According to the Center for Disease Control, a vaccine has now been developed that has proven effective in mice; the next step will be human tests. The vaccine is the result of efforts by an agency of the World Health Organization.

Dear Dr. Solomon: What first-aid measures are recommended for burns? If something serious happens, I know enough to call a doctor; but what can the average person do to help the victim before the doctor comes? — Mrs. D.U.

Dear Mrs. U.: Appropriate first-aid measures depend on circumstances. If a burn is caused by fire (rather than by a chemical, for example) and is minor, cold running water or an ice pack should be applied to ease the pain. This should be continued for about 20 or 30 minutes. If blisters form, medical assistance should be obtained.

If a chemical causes a burn, the area should be washed with cool, running water. If necessary, the person can even be placed under a cool shower and then wrapped in a clean, dry sheet until medical treatment can be obtained. In the event of an electrical burn, emergency medical care should be sought as soon as possible, particularly since the extent of the burn may not be immediately evident.

If the eye is involved, it should be flushed with large amounts of water and then covered with a clean, damp towel. And, of course, medical assistance should be summoned as soon as possible.

The Newspaper BIBLE

ANGELS, ANGELS, ANGELS--EVERYWHERE!

Suddenly, the angel was joined by a vast host of others--the armies of heaven--praising God:

"Glory to God in the highest heaven," they sang, "and peace on earth for all those pleasing Him."

When this great army of angels had returned again to heaven, the shepherds said to each other, "Come on! Let's go to Bethlehem! Let's see this wonderful thing that has happened, which the Lord has told us about."

They ran to the village and found their way to Mary and Joseph. And there was the baby, lying in a manger.

The shepherds told everyone what had happened and what the angel had said to them about this child.

All who heard the shepherds' story expressed astonishment, but Mary quietly treasured these things in her heart and often thought about them.

Then the shepherds went back again to their flocks, praising God for the visit of the angels, and because they had seen the child, just as the angel had told them.

Eight days later, at the baby's circumcision ceremony, He was named Jesus, the name given Him by the angel before he was even conceived.

When the time came for Mary's purification offering at the Temple, as required by the laws of Moses after the birth of a child, His parents took Him to Jerusalem to present Him to the Lord; for in these laws God had said, "If a woman's first child is a boy, he shall be dedicated to the Lord."

At that time Jesus' parents also offered their sacrifice for purification--"either a pair of turtledoves or two young pigeons" was the legal requirement.

General Foods seeks to buy Oscar Mayer

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — General Foods, the largest manufacturer of packaged foods, is negotiating to acquire Oscar Mayer & Co. in a $123.1 million deal, the companies announced Saturday.

General Foods is seeking to acquire "all outstanding shares of Oscar Mayer at a purchase price consisting of cash and preferred stock value at approximately $29 per share," the companies said in a brief statement released from GF's White Plains headquarters.

Stock in Oscar Mayer, a meat processing company headquartered in Madison, Wis., closed Friday on the New York Stock Exchange at $21 a share, its highest price in the last year and up $3.75 in the day's trading.

Oscar Mayer registered record sales in fiscal 1980 but posted its lowest net income in seven years and its first quarterly loss in decades. The dip was partly blamed on the purchase of two companies: Louis Rich Inc., a turkey lunch meat producer acquired in 1979, and Chef's Pantry, a food service firm bought last year. Oscar Mayer officials were not immediately available for comment and GF officials declined to provide further details on the acquisition.

Defense plays key role in NFC victory

HONOLULU (AP) — Detroit Lions' rookie Eddie Murray was the Pro Bowl Most Valuable Player by virtue of his four field goals, but members of the National Football Conference defensive unit made most of the difference in the game.

With Tampa Bay's Lee Roy Selmon, Dallas' Bob Breunig and Los Angeles' Jack Reynolds among the standouts, the NFC defense held the potentially explosive AFC offense in check in Sunday's 21-7 National Conference Pro Bowl victory.

"Our secondary did a great job and gave the defensive line time to get to the quarterback," said Selmon, who logged four tackles and had two of the NFC's four quarterback sacks.

The NFC held Houston running back Earl Campbell, the NFL's leading rusher the past three years to just 24 yards on eight carries. The entire AFC running game netted only 65 yards on 22 attempts and the American Conference passing attack was generally ineffective.

NFC Coach Leeman Bennett of Atlanta lauded the entire defense and added: "I was particularly pleased with the defensive play of Charlie Johnson, Randy White and Rod Perry.

"There was some outstanding play from both teams' defensive safeties."

The Eagles' Johnson was in on seven tackles. Dallas' White recovered a fumble that eventually led to one of Murray's field goals and Los Angeles' Perry figured in five tackles.

Murray hit field goals of 31, 31, 34 and 36 yards. He missed on pair of 37 yard attempts, the last hitting the crossbar with just 22 seconds left to play.

"I watched the Pro Bowl on television last year and at that time, I wondered if I could even make it in the NFL, much less the Pro Bowl," said Murray.

"This is the highlight of my rookie year, and it's a nice way to cap off the season. I just hope I'll be back again."

THE OTHER NFC scoring came on a 55-yard touchdown pass from Steve Bartkowski to Atlanta teammate Alfred Jenkins, and a safety when the AFC was called for holding in its own end zone.

"Playing well in the game meant a lot to me, particularly since I had gotten into the game when Tony Hill was hurt," said Jenkins, a replacement Pro Bowler who was the contest's leading receiver with three catches for 91 yards.

"I wanted to prove I belonged on the field it's a great way to end a great year."

Although it gave up 21 points the AFC defense turned in a good effort. Kansas City safety Steve Barbaro saved a touchdown when he recovered a fumble by Philadelphia quarterback Ron Jaworski in the AFC end zone, and also intercepted a Jaworski pass.

Eastern stars shine bright

Key assists by Nate Archibald earn MVP honors

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — It can be considered, possibly, a tribute to the unselfishness of the players, or to the defenses of both teams.

But the fact is that, in a game laden with stars, no one emerged as the clear-cut standout of Sunday's National Basketball Association All-Star Game, won by the East 123-120.

"We played team ball today," said East guard Michael Ray Richardson, representing the New York Knicks. "We had some one-on-one moves, but they were in a team concept."

NO ONE for either team could crack the 20-point barrier. Paul Westphal of Seattle and Dennis Johnson of Phoenix shared scoring honors for the West with 19 points apiece, while Julius Erving of Philadelphia had 18 to lead the East.

"These guys' attitudes are beautiful," said Philadelphia's Billy Cunningham, now undefeated in three All-Star coaching appearances. "They have the ability to adapt to any situation. I just thought the overall attitude was great."

Echoed West Coach John MacLeod of Phoenix: "Billy and I talked before the game about how it's a pleasure to watch these guys play — guys you usually coach against, and now you have them on your team."

About 200 media representatives voted veteran Boston guard Nate Archibald Most Valuable Player in the game — even though Archibald scored only nine points. His nine assists and his playmaking earned him the honor.

CELTIC TEAMMATE Robert Parish, who had 16 points and a game-high 10 rebounds, was runnerup in the MVP balloting.

But the favorite of the 20,239 fans — representing the second-largest crowd in the 31 years of NBA All-Star play — was Cleveland Cavalier forward Mike Mitchell, who scored 14 points.

"I thought Michael played exceptionally well for his first game, and being at home," said Cunningham. "He showed he belonged out there today."

Mitchell was added to the East team after Atlanta's Dan Roundfield had to drop out because of calcium deposits in his right leg.

"You just have to feel great when you hear cheers like I did," said Mitchell, who received a standing ovation when he entered the game in the second quarter. "It makes you excited, and it made me want to play great."

The West took a 27-23 lead after one quarter behind 10 points from Westphal. But Mitchell's eight second-period points helped the East jump on top 61-58 at the half.

Walter Davis of Phoenix and Los Angeles Laker Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, however, led a West surge that cut the deficit to 119-116 with just over three minutes to play.

Baskets by Archibald and Eddie Johnson maintained the East edge, and a last-second West three-point attempt by Seattle's Jack Sikma missed.

"There are always going to be spurts like that, where you're playing sloppy, because you're playing with new faces," said Cunningham. "First you're dead and out of it, but then you get a spurt and you're back in it."

"The key was what we did defensively, with (Philadelphia's) Bobby Jones making a steal and Michael Richardson making a big play."

MACLEOD HELD true to a pre-game vow to give all his players a fair amount of playing time. All performed between 20 and 25 minutes, except Kansas City's Otis Birdsong, who played only 12 minutes because he was battling the flu.

Playing time varied more for the East players, ranging from 15 minutes for Mitchell to 29 minutes for Erving. Boston's Larry Bird, nursing a badly bruised leg, played 18 minutes and scored just two points.

The victory was the fifth in the last seven games for the East, giving it a 20-11 margin in the series, and made Cunningham the second-winningest coach in NBA All-Star history behind Red Auerbach, who coached seven winners.

Sunday's All-Star Summary

East 22 30 28 28-123

Fouled out—None. Total fouls—West 28, East 23. A-20,239.

GUARD EDDIE Johnson of Atlanta then scored nine of his 16 points in the third quarter as the East expanded its margin to 88-97.

A Mitchell stuff on a fastbreak pass from Parish gave the East a 16-point edge, its largest of the game, with 10 minutes remaining.

Diminutive Nate Archibald of the East All-Star team (with ball) battled the giants in Sunday's NBA All-Star game and came away with the MVP award. He is guarded by Moses Malone, center, and Dennis Johnson. (AP Laserphoto)

MHS, Lee girls face must battle

When the Midland High and Midland Lee girls meet at 6 p.m. today at Chaparral Center as a warmup to the Midland College-South Plains contest, both teams will be fighting for their District 5-5A basketball lives.

Midland High is on the verge of extinction, already owning a second half loss. And Lee must keep pace with first half champion San Angelo to keep its title hopes alive.

Lee won a narrow decision over MHS in the first meeting between the two teams this year, but later lost to San Angelo in the first half title game.

Lee has won the district's playoff berth all three years of league play, but they are now being tested by the 22-1 Bobcats of San Angelo, who appear safe again tonight since they face Big Spring, winless in seven district outings.

MHS must win this one and hope San Angelo loses twice during the second half to keep in contention. Midland High will be out of the race for all practical purposes if the Bulldogs lose tonight.

Chaps hold rematch with SPC

Midland College returns home tonight to face South Plains College a half step out of first place in the Western Junior College Conference basketball race, and after a seige of the flu last week, Coach Jerry Stone has to feel pretty good about that position.

Not long ago, the Chaparrals were No. 1 in the nation and No. 3 in the WJCC, two games out of first.

MC defeated Clarendon College Thursday by a 75-61 margin to raise its record for the season to 20-2. In tonight's 8 p.m. tipoff, the Chaps will be facing a tall and talented SPC quint that brings a 14-9 record into the game and with a 6-4 WJCC record is running hard for a berth in the regional playoff at Brownwood in March.

In the first meeting, Midland won 62-52 at Levelland, a game decided in the final two minutes of play.

In addition to the Chap-SPC game, Midland High and Midland Lee girls will play a 6 p.m. preliminary. The Lee-MHS girls JV's play at 4 p.m. Amarillo College tightened up the WJCC race last Thursday by upsetting Howard College 98-71.

Halftime activities Monday will include a McDonald shooting contest the giveaway of Fan T-shirts and the South Plains College Tex-Anns, a precision cheerleader squad and dance team.

Looking back at a week in which MC won over Western Texas and Clarendon, Coach Stone observed, "We're pleased with the effort we got Thursday from Bobby Thompson. Several of our players had the flu and guards Scotty Tutwiler and Derrick Wilson made only brief appearances, so it was up to Bobby to direct the offense. Charles Johnson played well on offense and defense while Puntus Wilson came up with six of his nine field goal tries."

Thursday the Chaps go on the road to meet another playoff contender when they travel to Hobbs, N.M., to meet New Mexico Junior College.

CBS pulls up stakes admist Crosby confusion

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Golf Tournament, which usually leads the PGA Tour in spectacular scenery and coveting seals, is almost certain to top the season in confusion this time.

For example, there's John Cook. Only after he'd finished play late Sunday did he discover that he had but one more round to play. He thought there were 36 holes yet to go.

And there's CBS.

The confused finish — which will have players completing their rounds today on six different greens on three different golf courses — proved too much of a logistical problem for the network.

So, after providing national television coverage of the first two rain-delayed rounds of the famed tournament, they packed up and left it to the seals playing on the rocks in Carmel Bay, the soaring seagulls and the number of amateurs. There will be no national TV coverage of the final round.

There's also the question of who's leading going into the last round.

By the numbers, it's Tom Watson and Brad Bryant, with 36-hole totals of 136, eight shots under par.

Not so, said Watson.

"The real leader is (Jerry) Pate," Watson said.

Pate has a 137 total, but also an advantage. He will complete the tournament at Pebble Beach. Most of the other leaders have to play their third and final round at Spyglass Hill, which Ben Crenshaw says is "two shots harder than the others. It gives everybody the willies."

"Pate has that course behind him," Watson said. "If we get good weather, he certainly has the advantage."

Watson, the outstanding performer in the game and golf's Player of the Year for the past four seasons, got a share of the lead when he sank a 22-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole at Pebble Beach, an hour after the TV cameras had ended their coverage of the tournament late Sunday afternoon.

That finished off a 3-under-par 69 and tied Watson for the dual lead with longshot Brad Bryant, who is seeking his first title in three years of PGA Tour activity. Bryant birdied his last three holes at Pebble Beach.

With Pate were Crenshaw and Cook. Both played their second round at Pebble Beach. Crenshaw shot a 70 in sunny weather and gentle breezes. Cook, a former amateur champion and the first-round leader, took a 71.

"I thought we had two rounds to play," he said with a puzzled look on his face.

But there's only one.

A series of storms washed out the first two days, Thursday and Friday and officials decided to cut the tournament from 72 to 54 holes. The purse was reduced from an announced $300,000 to $225,000.

Bob Clampett and Greg Powers were two strokes off the pace at 138. Clampett shot 71 at Spyglass and Powers had the same figure at Pebble Beach.

Jack Nicklaus, a frequent winner here and current holder of the U.S. Open and PGA titles, moved into contention at 139 after shooting a 68 at Pebble Beach. Former President Gerald Ford was his amateur partner.

"It's just a long, hard, tough golf course," he said. "It's about time I played a good round there."

Tied with Nicklaus were Andy Bean, Barry Jaeckel, Hale Irwin and Larry Nelson. Jaeckel had a 68 at Pebble Beach. Bean, Irwin and Nelson all had second-round 69s — Bean at Spyglass, Irwin at Pebble Beach and Nelson at Cypress Point.

Palmer ends title drought

DEERFIELD BEACH, Fla. (AP) — With a seven-shot lead and eight holes to play for her first Ladies Professional Golf Association Championship since 1977, Sandra Palmer says she started "playing like I don't know where the clubhouse is."

She was only two strokes behind when she reached the 16th. Palmer was in trouble behind after losing four strokes on the 11th, 12th and 13th holes. And Alcott was surprised to be in the running at all.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You seek new ways to increase your income and acquire needed items for your home. Minor flirtation could prove embarrassing at a later date. Be careful not to make promises you cannot keep.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Laziness could get you in a peck of trouble. Give gossips a wide berth. Self-discipline, hard work will pay off in the near future. Higher-up is contemplating changes in assignments.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22):

Co-workers will turn to you for answers. Do not make any drastic changes in your routine. They could upset the apple cart! Romance may pose a slight problem where your social calendar is concerned.

GOREN BRIDGE

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A97652 ♥AQ6 ♦K52 ♣7
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♥ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Usually, we would unhesitatingly recommend rebidding your six-card major suit, but this hand is the exception. Your spades are hardly robust, but your support for partner's suit is excellent. In addition, a two spade rebid runs the risk that partner might pass when four hearts is laydown, or that you will be unable to convince partner of the quality of your heart support later in the auction. A raise to three hearts now seems to be the wisest choice.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AKQ3 ♥AQ107 ♦KQJ5 ♣6
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
Pass Pass ?

What is your opening bid?
A.—Normally, you would open the suit below the singleton—in this case, spades. Here, however, that might make it impossible for partner to respond with a weak hand containing a heart suit. To make it as easy as possible for partner to keep the auction alive, we would open one diamond. Take a demerit if you even thought about making a demand bid—that action is inconceivable with no five-card suit and only 21 HCPs.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AK65 ♥A92 ♦K6 ♣J72
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass

What action do you take?
A.—First, get rid of all thoughts of game. Even if partner has a super-maximum 10 points, it is by no means sure that your combined assets will stretch to game. Once you have reached that conclusion the answer is obvious. You have a balanced hand with useful cards in every suit. The fact that you have five spades is unimportant—pass.

Q.4—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQ1063 ♥7 ♦AK82 ♣J94
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♥ 2 ♠ ?

What action do you take?
A.—You are a strong favorite to make a game—unless, of course, the hand is a complete misfit. But you do not have to run that risk because you have an alternative action available that could be far more rewarding. On defense, your hand should produce four tricks, possibly more. If partner also has reasonable defensive values, you could destroy East. The penalty could be juicy indeed. Double.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AKJ4 ♥83 ♦95 ♣KJ762
Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?
A.—You have a hand that is strong enough for two forward-going bids, so there is no reason for you to distort your distribution. Start by responding in your longest suit and then bid your spades at the next turn, if it's convenient to do so. Anything but two clubs earns a demerit.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠10872 ♥AK963 ♦6 ♣AK9
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—A good hand has just become much better. You should flash the slam signal to partner as soon and as cheaply as possible—you can't be too aggressive because your trumps are weak. A jump shift to three clubs followed by a spade raise should get your message across to partner and still leave room to investigate without getting too high.
