For Border Patrol, it's 'all in day's work'

EDITOR'S NOTE: Charles Hensley's job is to find and apprehend illegal aliens, a job he performs with respect and dignity. This is the last of a six-part series.

By PATRICK DEAREN Staff Writer

To Charles Hensley, his job is just like the majority of jobs — "you either know it or you don't."

Hensley knows his. He is a United States Border Patrolman stationed in Big Spring, and like the veteran officer portrayed by Charles Bronson in "Borderline," he has learned through years of experience how to look at a Patrick Dearen brown-skinned person and ascertain whether it would be worthwhile to check for papers.

His stubby fingers fold themselves across the steering wheel as he drives a Border Patrol unit across a north Midland housing development with red dirt as choppy as an angry sea. A pair of silvery handcuffs dangles from the gear shift and bang against the steering column in staccato-like fashion, then cease to clatter as tires jump a curb to find pavement.

Hensley stops and nods at the wire and steel of a building form, and in the dark shades that veil his eyes from the late winter sun one worker becomes reflected. He is young, 18, maybe 20, with white-kneed jeans and red T-shirt barely concealing his ribcage. He stands half-leaned on a shovel with the thin layer of whiskers hugging his chin buried along with beads of sweat into the bend of his elbow. He looks up long enough to catch the green of la Verde and then casually lowers his eyes to the shovel tip.

"THAT ONE THERE looks like an alien," the 40-year-old Border Patrolman says in a deep drawl between slurps on the gum that leaves the sickly sweet odor of snuff in the air. "Don't know why the other unit didn't check 'im."

"What makes you think he's from Mexico?" he is asked.

He turns his palms over in a shrug. "Well, it's just one of those things you learn to tell in this bus'ness.... The people, they act diff'rent, they dress diff'rent, they just refuse to look at ya. You can pass a truckload on the street and you can tell they're illegals 'cause they won't be lookin' at ya — they'll look straight ahead, off to the side, any place but right at ya. This one sure looks like he's from Mex'co. Let's find out."

He keys the radio mike and contacts the unit concealed by the skeleton-like framework of upgoing homes. "Say, you check this'n in the red cap and red shirt?" he asks.

"Ten-four. He's got a one-five-one (legal resident alien card)."

HENSLEY PLACES the mike back in the clip and nods. "I figgered he was from Mex'co," he comments, feeling the edges of the brown handlebar mustache that droops at the corners of his mouth. "Got his work papers though."

Hensley knows his business, all right, and while he said he "kinda enjoyed" rough and tumble Charles Bronson in the 1980 movie thriller, he seems cast more in the Slim Pickens mold — replete with good ol' boy humor pouring forth from beneath the John L. Sullivan mustache in a nasal twang that leaves off the closing "Gs" and slurs syllables to create distinctly Texan words like "reg'lar" and "op'ration." And, too, there is something about the leathery face and broad shoulders which, while adding sinew to his 6-foot-2 frame even when sagging slightly at the USBP patch, arouse memories of the latter actor. But he's neither Bronson nor Pickens — to his fellow agents he's plain "Charlie," a nickname he doesn't like but one he "suffers with purty reg'lar." But like the "sayin'," he adds through a half grin, "I don't care what they call me, long as they call me at eatin' time."

As he engaged in a "normal day's work" in checking construction sites for illegal aliens in Midland recently, Hensley reflected on his career with the Border Patrol and offered his personal insight into the ever-increasing deluge of Mexican nationals into the Permian Basin.

AND WHEN IT'S brought down to humanistic terms, Hensley — not surprisingly for someone so enmeshed in the issue — is able to display a measure of empathy for those whom he pursues, as though he realizes most of them are not criminals, but rather poor persons seeking survival for themselves and for their families.

An intense irony, in fact, pervades Hensley's situation. For when he discusses his job and his own family it becomes obvious that while he and illegal aliens are diametrically opposed in "The Game," they are each ruled by much the same desires and dreams. "I love my job — it's the grea-test thing that ever happened to me," he says, but at the same time he makes it clear that the real importance of his career is that it "feeds my wife and puts my girl through school." And so the very cause which allows his family to survive is the same which, paradoxically, is depriving others of the same opportunity, or at least placing an added burden on them. He readily admits that had fate led his wife, his 19-yearold daughter and himself to be born Mexican nationals, he would be in the United States too "till they put me in jail - and not knowin' any more'n I do, I'd probably still come back even then.

He pauses to look across the seat at the reporter who is riding with him this day, and his brow becomes ridged in seriousness. "As long as there's a disparity between these two economies, these people'll be over here. Let's face it — if you were down there, you'd be over here, and if I was down there I'd be over here." And it is this aware-

Space shuttle story continues 'try, try again'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A wayward computer forced the space agency to scrub its long-awaited test flight of the space shuttle Columbia, yet another disappointing delay in a program that already is more than two years behind schedule.

The postponement — until Sunday, at least — came with the astronauts in the cockpit, waiting for their release to fly. A requirement to empty more than half a million gallons of volatile fuel

A requirement to empty more than half a million gallons of volatile fuel from Columbia's tanks and to purge them before refilling — a 48-hour process — makes a Saturday blast-off impossible.

The astronauts John Young and Robert Crippen were within 16 minutes of the planned 6:50 a.m. liftoff when they discovered a fuel cell problem. No sooner was it solved than the computer difficulty cropped up.

Launch director George Page announced the postponement when it became apparant that the computer problem could not be corrected today.

"We are stopping the clock," said National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman Hugh Harris at 9:59 a.m. — three hours after the scheduled launchtime. At one point the memory of the backup computer was dumped and a new software program fed into it. But Crippen reported, "the result is the same."

An old, abandoned house in the shadow of Midland's skyscrapers was destroyed by fire shortly after noon Thursday. Fireman Tommy Hogue, left, futilely attempts to douse the blaze, while an unidentified fireman, right, staff Photos by Chad Paerling takes a loftier perch in an attempt to control the fire. An estimated million viewers had arrived before dawn to see the launch and left disappointed when the computer went on the fritz.

A space agency computer expert, patched through to the spacecraft, told the astronauts: "the probability that it will clear up is not really that great. It might be that it will, but we're not overly confident."

For good reason. It couldn't be done.

Attempts to duplicate the problem in a shuttle simulator in Houston was unsuccessful.

While the astronauts sat horizontal in their cockpit, one launch control official told them, "You have to excuse the delay, gentlemen; all the ducks weren't in a straight line." The reply, from commander Young, "That's OK."

Two and a half hours after the crew should have been in space, Crippen joked, "I've got this fantatistc view out my window. I can watch the pelicans fly up and down the beach."

INSIDE TODAY-

House condemned to fiery death

By PATRICK DEAREN Staff Writer

It was where the outcasts and misfits of society — the winos, hoboes and runaways — gathered in search of warmth on many chilled winternights, and in its last explosive gasps at noon Thursday it finally succeeded in sharing that warmth with the educated and affluent of a reluctant city of steel and concrete.

The house long had stood sentineled by two elms near the railroad tracks at West Washington Avenue and South Colorado Street, a monument to a simpler era in full view of the towering pinnacles of a 1981 mountain range of girder and glass painted against the sky.

Today, only the elms remain, for the house met a viking's death, cremated along with the last vestiges of a multitude of transients' memories amid fire, smoke and cinders that belched skyward for almost an hour. Gerald Stautzenberger of Midland

Insulation Company, situated just across the dirt street, often had stood and watched society's rejected loiter in the grassy lawn, lounge beneath the shady elms, seek refuge from the elements within the warped beams and planks. Thursday he stood and watched the fire, as saturated in orange as a West Texas sunset, destroy those same unpainted pillars and rafters until there remained only charred wood.

"It was real strange," he reflected philosophically, standing framed in the warehouse doorway and watching the smoke spew into the maze of skyscrapers, shrouding them in black until they seemed but the masts of an armada cresting waves through an eerie fog. "We got back from lunch about 12 and everything was OK. We went in the office to eat a bite and when we looked out the window it was engulfed in flames. It just seemed to go up all at once."

The blaze so overwhelmed the structure that 10 firemen all but resigned themselves to spectators' positions, to wipe sweaty brows, squint stinging eyes, taste smoke in their mouths.

Two firemen in dark asbestos coats briefly manned a ladder alongside the nearby post office building, where they perched within the clouds of soot like angels in black to spray water uselessly down into hell itself. Then they flooded the cinder-block wall and roof of the warehouse until 2,000 gallons of water cascaded onto the dirt of S. Colorado, where it slashed a moat about the blaze which castled chesslike from one beam to another.

Fire from the house suddenly leaped through air, snagged itself in twisted limbs of the elm in front, left it shuddering in a crisp, sharp snapping of leaves and twigs. And the firemen turned their efforts toward it, as though realizing it alone might stand in future years in mute testimony to countless tales exchanged by long-since forgotten vagrants.

On recent Halloweens the structure had been used as a "spook house" for charity purposes by a Midland high school organization, and for a long while the rectangular window in front framed an unearthly orange glow within as though it were indeed a window into Gehenna. Then it too went, as the front section accordioned in on itself.

The chimney remained almost until last, rearing its red-bricked tower defiantly into the smoke as if determined to conquer that for which it was built to contain. Then the bubble of orange burst around it, squeezed and wrenched until it tilted, toppled,

Boardings defy trend

Boardings at Midland Regional Airport skipped upward during the first quarter of 1981, despite the decline nationwide, according to Col. Wilson Banks, director of aviation for the city.

During the first three months, 119,608 persons boarded planes at the city airport, compared to 101,516 reported for the same period in 1980. This translates into an average of 1,329 passengers per day or 39,869 passengers per month.

Banks added that the recent figure is a 17.8 percent increase over that of last year.

Reagan's release from hospital expected Saturday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will return to the White House Saturday, barring unforeseen complications, White House sources said today.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said this morning that a decision had been made on when the president would be discharged from the George Washington University Hospital, but he refused to disclose it.

Other sources said, however, that Reagan would return Saturday morning. The president entered the hospital March 30, when he received a chest wound in an assassination attempt. Doctors and aides said the president, itching to return to the fray over his economic program, "really can't wait to get home."

After a "very good, very restful" night, the president awoke at 6:35 a.m. EST today to watch the launching of the space shuttle on television, said David Prosperi, an assistant White House press secretary. Reagan read newspapers, the White House news summary and other briefing materials while awaiting the shuttle's liftoff, Prosperi said.

Reagan, making steady progress from the bullet that punctured his chest in an assassination attempt March 30, had his "best day yet" Thursday, said Dr. Dennis O'Leary, the hospital's dean of clinical affairs.

With his temperature normal for more than 36 hours, the president was taken off one of two antibiotics he had been receiving as a precaution against infection, O'Leary said Thursday.

The White House was being readied for him.

First lady Nancy Reagan had a roof-top solarium freshly bedecked with tulips and refurbished for the president's convalescence.

"Most of all what he misses is seeing the sky and trees and the lawn," said Helene von Damm, the president's personal secretary. "He's an outdoor person who thrives on all that beauty, so it's twice as hard on him."

Other Calls.....

The 70-year-old Reagan has lost some weight in the hospital, and it showed in a color picture taken Wednesday and released a day later by the White House. The president, dressed in a dark blue bathrobe, looked a little tired and drawn.

"You would, too, at this stage," O'Leary said.

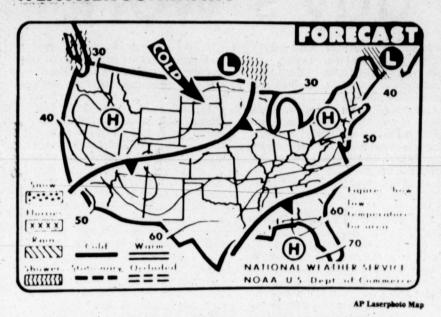

He said a patient who underwent the same experience as Reagan could be expected to lose 8 percent to 10 percent of his body weight. For Reagan, who normally weighs 184 pounds, that would be 15 to 18 pounds, but O'Leary said, "He's lost significantly less than that." He said he did not know the president's exact weight loss.

Meanwhile, there was bright news about White House press secretary James S. Brady, who was shot through the brain in the assassination attempt.

Deputy press secretary Speakes called Brady's recovery "really nothing short of a miracle" and quoted O'Leary as saying he was "extremely optimistic" that Brady eventually will be able to return to White House duties.

Chance of rain today, tonight

Those April showers in song-anddance numbers may turn into pitterpatter notes today if those moistureladen clouds release their cargo over Midland's domain.

The weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport has forecast a 20 percent chance for showers and thunderstorms today and tonight.

And if the 1-to-5 odds for rain-fall pays off, Midland's current 1.79inch rainfall for the year may be hiked by a few points.

Demos tax-cut plan said 'puny'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rea-gan administration, calling the Democrats' alternative tax-cut plan "puny" and "less than half a loaf," says it is too early to talk compromise.

The Democratic plan, proposed Thursday by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, would scrap President Reagan's proposed threeyear, across-the-board tax cut in favor of a one-year program tilted to low- and middle-income Americans.

After reading Rostenkowski's speech outlining the plan and conferring with the hospitalized president, Treasury Donald T. Regan said he wanted to buy the congressman tickets to Neil Simon's production, "They're Playing Our Song." He said the chairman's bill amounted to an endorsement of the chief objectives of Reagan's economic program.

"The president also believes, however, that this new plan is less than half a loaf," Regan said. "The chairman's tax plan simply will not be as effective as the president's program.'

Specifically, Regan said, Rostenkowski's proposed cuts in marginal tax rates were "puny" and were not applied across the board. He also said savings incentives proposed by Ros-tenkowski were "misguided and inadequate."

Rostenkowski called for about $40 billion in tax cuts during the 12 months beginning next Oct. 1. Reagan wants $54 billion.

"The collective effect of these cuts is focused most directly on people earning between $20,000 and $50,000," Rostenkowski said of his plan. "This segment of the workforce makes up 43 percent of all taxpayers — and pays 50 percent of all individual taxes."

FIFTY-TWO PERCENT of the individual tax relief in Reagan's bill would go to the $20,000-$50,000 brack-

However, because Rostenkowski presented only the broad outlines of his proposal, it is impossible to compare how a typical taxpayer would fare under the two tax reductions. Rostenkowski said a multiyear tax cut designed to give taxpayers something on which to base spending and savings decision is too risky, with inflation running at 12 percent.

He pleaded guilty to murder. The other co-defendants were found guilty in jury trials and were sentenced to far more severe prison terms - from 50 years to 99 years. Jennings, who, at 20, was the youngest of the defendants, had testified against his co-defendants, pleaded guilty to the offense following pleabargain agreements between District Attorney Vern Martin's staff and defense attorney Jim Eubank. that the deep budget cuts proposed by Reagan to pay for a tax cut will be passed, that the growing military budget won't bring more inflation, that unemployment will not soar or that the price of imported oil will stabilize

"Yet we are asked to go along with the new supply-side theories and commit hundreds of billions of dollars in tax cuts for the next three years with the promise that if we throw on the automatic pilot, that David Stockman (Reagan's budget director) will land the plane on a balanced budget in 1984," Rostenkowski said.

"That demands more trust that I can give," he added. "I want at least one hand on the wheel - and so would you.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, praised Rostenkowski's plan but said it is not enough to offset the tax burden added by inflation and higher Social Security tax increases. The nation needs more than a one-year "shot in the arm," Dole added.

SEN. BILL ROTH, R-Del., an original author of Reagan' plan, called a one-year tax reduction a smokescreen by liberals "to make sure that when budget-cutting fever subsides, they still will have all the public's money around to indulge their big spending habits."

Here is an outline of Rostenkowski proposal:

-Effective July 1, cut individual tax rates and or widen some tax brackets, especially for those with incomes between $20,000 and $50,000. -Starting next Jan. 1, reduce the marriage penalty, which causes some working couples to pay more tax than they would if they were single. -Effective July 1, increase by an unspecified amount the $2,300 standard deduction for single persons and the $3,400 deduction for couples.

-Starting July 1, raise the earnedincome credit, which now provides a tax saving of up to $500 a year for poor working families with children.

creases for the self-employed.

-Liberalize tax exemptions, starting next Jan. 1, for money invested in Individual Retirement Accounts. A worker not covered by a company pension plan already may defer until retirement the tax on up to $1,500 a year. Rostenkowski would raise that to $2,000 and provide similiar in-

Psychiatrist diagnosis histronic personality disorder in Vickie

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) - After listening to a lengthy series of hypothetical questions, Austin psychiatrist Richard Coons diagnosed Vickie Daniel as having a histrionic personality disorder that could be harmful to her children - if the hypothetical facts are true.

"I didn't render an opinion about Mrs. Daniel, I rendered an opinion on the hypothetical facts that were presented to me," Coons said Thursday after 11/2 days on the witness stand in a child custody suit involving Mrs. Daniel's two small children.

"If those facts are true, then she has a histrionic personality disorder," he said

Coons based his opinion on a report by Nassau Bay psychiatrist Kenneth Wetcher, who examined Mrs. Daniel for 11/2 hours and then said she suffered from a histrionic personality disorder characterized by over-dramatic behavior and problems with interpersonal relations

Mrs. Daniel is charged with murder in the Jan. 19 slaying of her husband, former Texas House Speaker Price Daniel Jr. Danilel's sister, Jean Daniel Murph, is seeking custody of the two children born during the couple's stormy four-year marriage.

Coons said he had never examined Mrs. Daniel personally and could not diagnose her specifically as being a hysteric.

"It's the same as if I rendered a diagnose about a person's vital signs in an examination," Coons said. Coons was called to testify by J.C. "Zeke" Zbranek, Mrs. Murph's attorney. The doctor did not testify, however, that Mrs. Daniel was an unfit mother or uncapable of caring for Franklin Baldwin, 3, and Marion Price Jr., 1.

Shanks and school mates in Abilene in the early 1970s.

Jennings, who appeared to be a hapless party to the killing, was offered the lighter sentence in exchange for his guilty plea.

The case against him was purely circumstantial, and no witnesses were available to testify against him. His wife, Tammy, 22, who was a witness to the stabbing, was granted immunity by the Midland County Grand Jury in exchange for her testimony against Shanks and Mrs. McPeters. By law, she cannot be compelled to testify against her husband.

And neither Shanks nor McPeters would testify against their co-defendant; both maintain their innocence while they are in the penitentiary. Their guilty verdicts are on appeal.

Jennings is to begin his sentence as soon at the Texas Department of Corrections' bus picks him up its West Texas rounds.

Jennings' conceivably could serve 21/2 years of his 15-year sentence in prison. Usual prison time is a third of the sentence. And in Jennings' case, he could earn "good time," which would lessen his time in the TDC. He may be allowed "good time" since evidence indicated that he did not use a weapon on McPeters. He also is being credited with 252 days he has spent in jail since his arrest last August.

Shanks may serve a full third - 33 years - of his 99-year sentence.

Police looking for suspect in attempted burglary

Police today were looking for a man who attempted to hold up the Colonial Food Store at Midland Drive and Andrews Highway late Thursday night.

Officers said the man entered the store about 11 p.m., indicated he had a gun under his shirt, demanded money, looked around, noticed there were several customers in the store, and fled on foot.

He was described as white, about 6 feet, 2 inches tall, with long blond hair, wearing blue jeans ripped up the side and a green shirt. He also had a mole under his right eye. Police also were looking for a man who entered a room at Midland Memorial Hospital shortly after 9 p.m. Thursday.

The man threatened a patient with a knife, then left. He later fired two or three shots into the patient's westside residence.

Police said the accident occurred as Gonzales was attempting to turn into a private driveway. She was eastbound and Montez was westbound on Wall at the time.

In the second accident, 49-year-old Billy Avance and 42-year-old Lynda Lee Avance, both of Rt. 4, Midland. were treated for minor injuires after their 1979 Olsmobile and a 1968 Chevrolet driven by Robert Baca of Truth or Consequences, N.M., collided at the intersection of Carter and Camp streets about 1:20 p.m.

The Avance vehicle was westbound on Carter and the Baca car was southbound on Camp at the time.

the furnace-like temperatures soared above 200 degrees, bringing nozzles turning from fire, dousing firemen rather than flames.

"Do you think it was arson?" a Fire Department official was asked. He shrugged.

"What else could've caused it?" he asked rhetorically.

After it was over, and the only skid-row derelicts on down the tracks where other flophouses would await them. They probably won't come to this lot seeking refuge from the wind and rain and cold anymore, unless it is to lie in the chill beneath the blackened elms and remember the sheltering walls and inviting fireplace.

If they do, the only warmth they'll find this time will be in the bottle.

Raising legal drinking age is back to drawing board

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - Raising the legal drinking age from 18 to 19 to curb drunkenness in high schools didn't seem complicated, but the House and Senate can't seem to get together on it.

Senators rejected the latest attempt at compromise on Thursday, and a third House-Senate conference committee was appointed to try to find the right combination.

Rep. Henry Allee, D-Houston, House sponsor, begged his colleagues to back off on their demand that the bill contain a tough provision forcing sellers of alcoholic beverages to check the identification cards of young customers.

"If we have to be flexible on the ID issue, let me have that flexibility," Allee said, suggesting that the question of enforcing the law against selling to minors should be dealt with in a separate bill.

'I just want a 19-year-old drinking bill," he added.

Senators rejected the latest effort at compromise, 28-1.

The House has insisted that grocers, bartenders and liquor store operators be required to verify a person is not a minor before selling him alcohol.

When the first conference committee gave a seller an out if a buyer 'looked 19," the House rejected that. The second conference committee drafted tougher language, saying a a

Odessa station hit by bandit

ODESSA - Police today were looking for an armed robber who took an undisclosed amount of money from a gas station here Thursday night.

Police said the man entered the Merit Service Station at 317 N. Dixie St. about 8:30 p.m., displayed a chrome-plated pistol and fled on foot after forcing the station's two employees to cut the phone cord.

The man was described as black, about six feet tall and wearing a toboggan hat and coveralls.

sale to a minor is done "knowingly" - and, therefore, illegally - if no ID is requested.

Senators said Thursday that was unfair.

We are not talking about night clubs and taverns, we are talking about neighborhood grocery stores and 7-11s,'' said Sen. Peyton McKnight, D-Tyler.

"Next time this goes to conference committee we will have to have an amendment that is not real strict but somewhere in the middle," said Sen. Bill Sarpalius, D-Hereford, the Senate sponsor.

Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, said the latest version of the bill would make it practically impossible for a dealer to defend himself.

Senators refused, 9-20, to instruct the new conferees to come back with a bill that merely raised the drinking age from 18 to 19, with no ID amendment.

Allee told the House he thought senators would accept an ID provision that "allows judgment on the part of the retailer whether to ask for an ID or not.

Rep. Ronald Coleman, D-El Paso, said a bill without an ID provision would "be a fraud" and not enforceable

"No more a fraud than the present law," replied Allee.

Britain faces dilemma over royal couple on T-shirts

NLAPS

LONDON (AP) - A royal ban is keeping the faces of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer off T-shirts made in Britain. Foreign manufacturers are threatening to corner the market.

Lover's knots, the names of Charles and Diana, a picture of St. Paul's Cathedral, where they will be mar-ried July 29, and the British flag, the Union Jack, are all on a list of acceptable commemorative designs sent to manufacturers Wednesday by the Office of the Lord Chamberlain, head of the royal household.

But the manufacturers were told the faces of the young couple should not be used on any articles of clothing except headscarves. Although the ban has no legal force, British manufacturers normally comply with the royal family's wishes. But plenty of foreign manufacturers do not.

Warren Hawkesley, a Conservative member of Parliament, reported the first imported T-shirts sporting the faces of Charles and Diana have appeared in a store in the Midlands town of Wolverhampton. He said they came from Pakistan.

Hawkesley asked Trade Secretary John Biffen "to impose an immediate

ban on all foreign imports or allow our own people to compete on equal footing

Seventy of the 635 members of the House of Commons introduced a motion urging that the ban be revoked. The National Union of Hosiery and Knitwear Workers asked Prince Charles to intervene personally. He is touring New Zealand, and there was no immediate response.

The souvenir industry expects to make more than $250 million on the royal wedding. As the royal family always does on such special occasions, the prince and Queen Elizabeth II approved a temporary relaxation of the strict guidelines on commercial use of royal portraits and insignia. However, the Lord Chamberlain,

Lord McLean, decreed that products carrying royal faces must be in good taste and of a "permanent kind." That made it all right for Charles and Diana to smile from mugs, plates, jewelry and tea towels but not from clothing

Commissioners under attack in Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The power of the long-time kings of local government in Oklahoma, the county commissioners who reign unchallenged because they control the purse strings, is under attack in a statewide FBI investigation of alleged tickbacks on nurchases of heavy equipment kickbacks on purchases of heavy equipment.

Sources close to the recently disclosed two-year investigation say that scores of commissioners will be indicted by a federal grand jury later this year on charges of taking kickbacks and artificially inflating prices paid for construction equipment, lumber and other goods

The investigation has already cracked the commissioners' power base. Oklahoma House Speaker-Dan Draper says the Legislature should look at the situation to see whether new purchasing laws with stricter controls are needed — and whether each of the 77 counties still needs three commissioners.

Such a statement, if made prior to the FBI investi-gation and resultant reports of widespread corrup-tion, would have produced a major outcry from commissioners and probably would have spelled big political trouble for Draper. The 231 commissioners have been perhaps the most potent lobby in the state because they approve the county budgets, appoint many county officials the county budgets, appoint many county officials and hire crews for county road work. In Oklahoma, where long distances separate most towns and mass transit is almost non-existent, roads and highways are big political issues.

Legislators have always been careful not to cross commissioners because of their spending and patronage powers.

The commissioners, elected for four-year terms, have salaries ranging from less than $10,000 in some lightly populated counties to as much as $31,000 in Oklahoma County. But they have almost $100 million in state taxes to spend each year on road construction, and, until the FBI investigation started, they had little supervision over how they spent it.

One source close to the investigation, who, like the others, insisted on anonymity, said it will produce "the biggest scandal in state history" because of the number of present and former commissioners who will be indicted — 50 or more, he predicted. Major state scandals in recent history were mild in comparison — a 1965 Supreme Court bribery case, in which two justices and one former justice were convicted, and the 1974 bribery-extortion trial of former Gov. David Hall, who was found guilty.

The Oklahoma investigation has spilled over into several northeastern Texas counties and sparked a grand jury investigation in Tyler, Texas.

"The investigation here started the one in Texas because of some individuals who were active in both states," one Oklahoma source said.

A key figure in both the Oklahoma and Texas investigations is Dorothy Griffin, a former equipment supplier from the tiny southern Oklahoma town of Farris. She reportedly is cooperating with federal officials and has tape-recorded several conversa tions with present and former commissioners in both states as part of the FBI investigation. U.S. Attorney Larry Patton is conducting the Oklahoma City grand jury investigation, U.S. Attor-ney John Hannah the grand jury probe in Tyler. Neither will confirm an investigation is in progress, but vendors and commissioners in both states says the investigations are underway. In addition, Oklahoma Auditor and Inspector Tom Daxon said earlier this month that he had given the FBI evidence of questionable purchases by county commissioners. "We have found several counties where county officials have paid in excess of the listed price for equipment," Daxon said. "We turned that information over to the FBI." Another source said some Oklahoma commissioners have used lease-purchase contracts to skirt a state law requiring them to take bids on major equipment purchases. "Then they buy the equipment in a month or two and pay twice what it's worth," he said. He said there also are cases where one commissioner pays an inflated price for a single piece of heavy equipment, such as a $50,000 road grader, then sells it to a vendor for a much lower price, and the vendor in turn sells the road grader to another commissioner in another county for another inflated price. This process is then repeated several times. "One piece of equipment changed hands like that about once a year for eight or nine years with the price going way up and way down each time," the source said. Fred Jordan of Skiatook, an Osage County commissioner and current president of the Oklahoma County Commissioners' Association, has complained about the investigation. "They're making it look like every county commissioner in the state is a crook," he said But he conceded that his talks with other county commissioners indicate the investigation involves all areas of the state. "If we've got some of these things happening that we've been reading about, then it has to be stopped," he said, "but I wish they would get on with it so the rest of us could get back to normal."

Border Patrol 'just doing its job

ness, more than any inherent compassionate tendencies, that brings him to treat the illegal aliens whom he apprehends with respect and dignity.

HENSLEY, WHO has worn the insignia of the Border Patrol and strapped its official weaponry — a .357 magnum — at his hip 15 years, started out in law enforcement as a Department of Public Safety trooper. He next moved on to duty as a city policeman in Littlefield, and then pursuit of financial stability for his wife and infant daughter led him to sign up with the Border Patrol.

"I turned 26 on a Dec. 31st and started in on Jan. 2nd," he recalls. "I was sent to the academy (in Port Isabel) in the winter, and I moved my wife into a little tourist court down there behind an orange grove." His family since has followed him to El Centro, Calif., Pecos, Big Spring, Eagle Pass and then back to Big Spring three years ago when he received a promotion to supervisor of the regional station.

At a north Midland construction site, Hensley stops the van beside stacks of lumber and watches through a chain-link fence as his fellow officers take an illegal alien into custody. The man, 35, perhaps 40, with blue cap and soiled hands, offers no resistance, only calm acceptance of his fate. As the agents escort him to the construction office to "clean him up" - Border Patrol slang for allowing him to collect his wages and belongings - Hensley is asked if it is uncommon for a wetback to go along so peaceably.

When Hensley begins talking in detail about his job and the exact procedure following apprehension of illegal aliens, the impression surfaces that it is all just a game, one without ultimate victors. He picks up wetbacks in the 10 counties patrolled by his Big Spring station, then within only hours, or days at the most, an INS bus transports them to Ojinaga, where directly across the Rio Grande they "get out and go their merry way.

THEIR "MERRY WAY," more often than not, is right back across the river into the United States, once they feel safely harbored by darkness against apprehension by la Migra. In a few days' time the very same illegal aliens may be working the identical construction or oil field sites, without losing as much as a week's pay.

"That's the way it's played," Hensley says, nodding. "When we put them in the back of the van they're us'lly singin' and whistlin' - they know they'll be back.

The most extreme example of what degree a game it has become, he says, occurred a few years ago when he picked up a wetback on a Friday afternoon in Dallas. The man was processed and flown to El Paso that night, then released across the international bridge in Juarez.

"Well," says Hensley, shaking his head, "he grabbed a freight train comin' outa Chihuahua and I caught him comin' through Big Spring on a boxcar Sunday mornin'. He said he didn't wanna miss a day of work.

Despite charges by some factions that his may be a useless job, Hensley has a different outlook. "I don't feel that way at all," he says. He nods to a two-story brick structure as the van again speeds down a Midland thoroughfare. "I feel like if we weren't out here, they'd (illegal aliens) be stacked up as high as that wall over there.

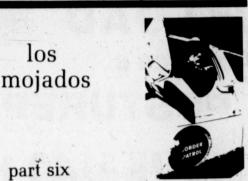

BUT EVEN SO, he says, he is aware that his station barely skims the surface. "We'd like to have a lot more efficient op'ration, but we come up here and have 10 counties and just index finger never has squeezed the trigger of his me'n those two men to work 'em,'' he says. .357 magnum in the line of duty, and when asked how "That's 2250 square miles per man, and we're one short right now." He takes a deep breath and readjusts his position behind the steering wheel. "Needless to say, we don't go down ever' little road.... We don't have enough men, and see that mileage on this truck? That 49,000 should have a 'one' before it.'

Congressmen agree SS action needed

He slings a gnarled hand toward the grillwork that separates the cab from the detention area behind. "We only got seven seats back there and us'lly just one unit workin'. The objective when you leave he office ever' mornin' is to fill that truck up."

The other van stops at a residential construction site, and Hensley watches as officer Jim Stone talks with a young man sitting atop the cab of a pickup. Upon returning to his unit Stone's voice crackles over the radio. "We were a little bit late on that one, Charlie - there's six pair of rubber boots (for concrete work) sittin' over there and nobody to wear 'em.

HENSLEY SHRUGS it off and drives onward, as though a feeling of complacency is commonplace in his vocation. "This is a very relaxed job, there's nothin' pressin' about it," he drawls. "Maybe one of our guilts is that we take the easy ones. It doesn't make sense to wear ourselves out one place when there's more right down the road. And those we miss here today, they'll still be here tomorrow.'

He nods toward a multi-storied skyscraper looming against the Midland horizon. "There's illegals all over that thing up there, but you never saw so much trouble in your life as you'd have once you tried gettin' 'em down One time we got after this illegal and he crawled out on the end of one of those cranes. You never saw anybody as scared as he was, or us either when we went out after 'im. We didn't enjoy it much, but we got 'im.

Danger, though, is a rarity in his profession, says Hensley, as long as "we don't get careless." His often he has drawn his weapon, he merely shakes his head.

However, occasions have arisen during his tenure as a Border Patrolman in which he has found himself in a potentially lethal situation.

A FEW YEARS ago while stationed along the border at Eagle Pass, he recalls, he and another unit got involved in high-speed pursuit of a supposed alien smuggler who kept crashing into la Verde's patrol cars and knocking them off the road. Hensley's vehicle reached speeds of 120 miles per hour during the chase, which ended when the smuggler's engine blew up and became engulfed in flames, shrouding the roadway in smoke.

"Me and the other Border Patrolman ran right through it and somehow we switched positions on the road." Hensley remembers with a grin. "I was leadin' him goin' in, and when we came outa there he was leadin' me.'

The smuggler, meanwhile, had abandoned his fiery vehicle and was apprehended, along with seven San Salvadoran women.

While the Border Patrol is his profession, it is not his life, and when he turns 50 in 10 years he plans on "checkin' it to 'em" and moving on to "bigger and better things, like fishin' and sleepin' late in the mornin's.

But for now, more building sites loom ahead. He stops and assists his officers in escorting another undocumented worker into the van. The foreman comes up. "Aren't you the one that stopped our truck last week and picked up the same man?" he asks of the Big Spring supervisor.

THE FOREMAN IS partially right. The Mexican national had told Hensley on that occasion that his wife was living in Midland, so the Border Patrolman had carried him home and filed papers allowing them three days to leave the country.

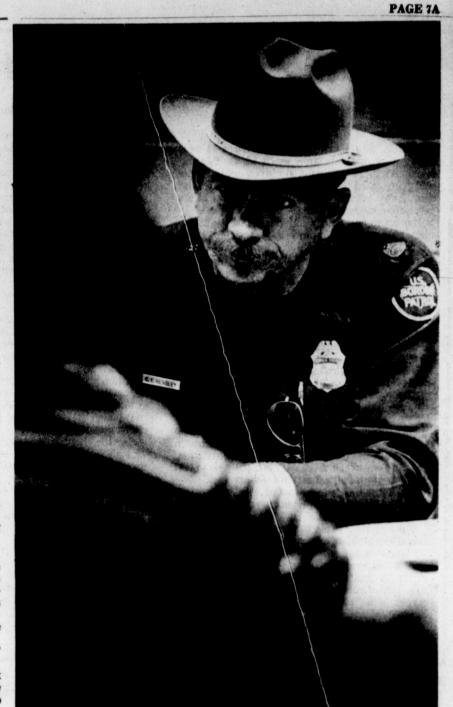

"He was back on the job in an hour," says the foreman.

Hensley nods. "We'll take 'im with us this time," he promises.

Inside the van the Mexican national eases back into the seat and stares through the window at the construction site. He knows he'll be bused back to Ojinaga, which likely will keep him off the job a week this time instead of an hour.

As for Hensley, well, he has more sites to check down the road" and more wetbacks to apprehend. He knows his job, all right - even if it is just part of game.

NOTE: Watch for editorial on illegal aliens on Page 6F of Sunday's Reporter-Telegram.

Border Patrolman Charles Hensley of Big Spring files papers on an illegal Mexican alien in a downtown Midland firm, allowing him one month to obtain legal resident alien status or face deportation. "I've been in the United States 10 years and don't know what I'll do if they send me back," says the mojado.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Congressman Ja Pickle said other members of his subcommittee ma not see eye to eye with his bill to shore up the shall Social Security retirement fund, but said all agree with him that something has to be done soon.

"Those who depend on this great social progra fear it will dwindle before their eyes. Those who c not yet receive benefits fear it will be gone whe their time comes," the Democrat from Austin sai Thursday in a speech on the House floor.

Pickle's bill includes all 23 proposals his Soci Security subcommittee had agreed upon as part of first-draft bill to be put before the House for i consideration. Among them is the recommendation that the full retirement age be moved from 65 to 68 b the year 2000.

But Pickle's proposal that the retirement fun balance be rescued by the transfer of $22 billion from the more stable Medicare fund is one of four propo als the subcommittee had not agreed upon.

"This is a Pickle bill, not a subcommittee bill. Th transfer of funds from Medicare is controversial, but I would ask members if they don't want to take fund from (Medicare), what is their alternative?" Pick asked at an afternoon news conference.

"We can pass a bandaid approach for next yea hope that all goes perfectly with the economy an hope that we will need to do nothing further. Or w can take more decisive action. Our answer here wi determine whether the people have a Social Securit program - or a social "insecurity" program - two three and four years from now.

Current projections show the large retirement fund will run out of reserves to pay benefits som time next year unless more money is siphone during this session of Congress.

"No more important challenge faces the govern ment today than restoring confidence in social secu rity," Pickle said.

Pickle said his bill is also an effort to comply wit President Reagan's budget recommendations that call for $2.4 billion in cuts in social security.

Corpus Christi witnesses disagree on redistricting

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) - Propose changes in state and congressional legislative di tricts have drawn mixed reactions from witnesse who testifieid before a state senate subcommittee.

Jimmie Lyles, executive vice president of th Corpus Christi Chamber of Commerce, told th redistricting committee Thursday the 14th Congre sional District "should reemain intact." He said th district, represented by Rep. Bill Patman, D-Gana do, "has served us well."

The 1980 census shows the district has 544,73 people, about 3 percent more than the the size th subcommittee would like to see.

In Senate District 20, represented by Sen. Carlo Truan of Corpus Christi, another 48,000 people an needed to bring the district up to size.

Tony Bonilla, national executive director of th League of United Latin American Citizens, told th committee that extra voters could be trimmed from Jim Wells and Brooks Counties.

The two counties are compatible with the rest the district because they share common interest Bonilla said.

The subcommittee also heard suggestions on po sible changes in the 20th Congressional District an Sente District 1.

Saudis changing customs

By ALY MAHMOUD Associated Press Writer

MECCA, Saudi Arabia (AP) - After 14 centuries of scrupulous adherence to an Islamic orthodoxy that keeps women hidden behind veils and segregated from males in school and on the job, Saudi Arabia has bent at least one of its restrictive customs.

The country's clergy ruled recently that society was unfair to impose the practice of blind marriage, which meant that men got their first glimpse of their future wives at "zaffah," the actual marriage ceremony.

A committee of learned interpreters of the Koran ruled that women may unveil their faces to prospective bridegrooms once the engagement formalities are firmed up. "Any man forbidding his daughter or sister from meeting her fiance face-to-face will be judged as sinning," the ruling said.

If popularly accepted, the new ruling will end an age-old practice of marrying blind. Because of the practice, men have depended on their mothers or sisters to look for prospective wives for them.

The mother of the would-be groom initiates the process with a visit to the family of the chosen girl. There the mother offers the girl hard nuts, insisting she crack them with her teeth - to test their strength and ascertain they are real.

If the mother is clever and glib, she might surreptitiously obtain a photograph of the girl and sneak it to her son.

If the mother's role proves difficult, a professional khatbeh, or matchmaker, takes over.

"Islam recognizes the legitimacy of proposers seeing their prospective wives," the Directorate of Fatwa and Guidance announced two weeks ago. It also ruled that forcing women into marriages is a "practice devoid of any religious basis.

Young Saudi men and women are rejoicing.

Their elders appeared reluctant to accept the new rulings.

"If the Koran says so then it must be correct," said Musayel Al-Hindi, a Meccan taxi driver and father of four teen-age girls. "But to tell you the truth, this all will go against the principles we inherited from our fathers and grandfathers."

Muteb Hussein, a 24-year-old merchant, said the new rules will "solve lots of problems. ... It often happens in our society that a groom is shocked with disappointment when he sees his bride for the first time at zaffah. He will either desert or neglect her." To Westerners, the content of the new rulings may make simple common sense, but they made front-page headlines in newspapers around the Persian Gulf.

"It is a step forward," said one Saudi banker. "Our religion is progressive, but we are backward. It is high time we rediscover our Islam, the most realistic religion ever imparted on mankind.

"Islam protects women because they are more important than men, not because they are inferior to men," the banker added.

Although the government of King Khaled officially accords top priority to the education of girls, they must be segregated from boys. Women work as primary school teachers, doctors, nurses and social workers, but only with members of their own sex.

Restricting women to their homes or to jobs that have no contact with men has forced the government to import large numbers of foreign workers to cope with growing economic development.

Saudi women who live in burgeoning urban centers, mainly in the oil centers in eastern Saudi Arabia, are said to be quietly campaigning to get permission to earn drivers' licenses.

Only men are allowed to drive in Saudi Arabia, and women in the developing areas complain that hired drivers are scarce and expensive.

Bradley

El Paso

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - Soldiers stood at rigid attention and an Army band played "Nearer My God To Thee" as a military honor guard brought the flag-draped coffin of Gen. Omar N. Bradley back to the fort that had become his home.

A 19-gun salute and brief ceremony was planned at Fort Bliss today to honor the country's last five-star general, whose body will lie at the post's adobe chapel until Monday morning. Burial is to be Tuesday at Arlington National Cemetery outside Washington.

The general's body was returned to Texas from New York aboard a presidential jet Thursday, with Bradley's widow, Kitty, accompanChinese foreign minister planning India visit NEW DELHI, India (AP) - The Indian government said today that Chinese Foreign Minister Huang Hua will visit here this summer. It would be the first visit to India by a Chinese foreign minister since the two countries fought a border war in 1962. "We hope the visit will take place in the next two months."

Indian spokesman J.N. Dixit told reporters. However, he did not announce any date

Dixit said that the two governments have been in touch about Hua's proposed visit, which was postponed last year following apparent Chinese displeasure over Indian recognition of the Vietnam-supported Heng Samrin regime in Cambodia. In 1976, India and China exchanged ambassadors after a 14-year-gap and in 1979, the then Indian external affairs minister, A.B. Vajpayee, toured China.

Brezhnev

priorities

PRAGUE, Czechoslo vakia (AP) - Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev says the most important problems facing the Soviet Union and its East bloc allies are economic, the Czechoslovak state news agency reported today.

"For all of us, the economic front is the main one at present," the Soviet president and party chief was officially quoted as telling Czechoslovak leaders.

In the account of Brezhnev's remarks provided by the Czechoslovak state news agency there was no direct mention of Poland, whose economy is the weakest in the bloc.

Brezhnev's comments followed the election of a new 123-member central committee of Czechoslovakia's Communist Party in a closed session Thursday. Foreign ministry officials said they would be his last public remarks at the Prague gathering, which ended today.

At today's closing session, Brezhnev was greeted with rythmic clapping and chants of "friendship, friendship. Czechoslovak leader Gustav Husak, 68, announced his re-election as general secretary of the Communist Party, a post he has held since

He said the Soviet bloc entered the 1980s "stronger in all respects."

Bradley, who was 88 died Wednesday night at St. Luke's-Roosevelt Hospital in New York after suffering a heart attack while attending a dinner Military leaders and Mrs. Bradley attended a brief private service here Thursday night.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - Trevor Berbick's name may not ring a bell in this country to any but the most ardent fans of boxing. But that situation will change drastically if he rings Larry Holmes' bell Saturday night.

Berbick, Canada's heavyweight boxing champion, gets what he acknowledges is "a great opportunity" when he challenges Holmes, the World Boxing Council titlist, at Caesars Palace Sports Pavilion. The bout will begin about 7:15 p.m. PST.

Berbick, a 27-year-old native of Jamaica who represented that country in the 1976 Olympic Games, brings an 18-1-1 pro record with 16 knockouts into the ring. The biggest triumph for the WBC's fifth-rated contender was a ninth-round knockout of former World Boxing Association champion John Tate last June.

Holmes, of Easton, Pa., is 36-0 with 27 knockouts. Since capturing the WBC crown with a 15-round decision over Ken Norton on June 9, 1978, Holmes has defended successfully eight times, all by knockout.

Holmes, 31, is a prohibitive favorite, but the well-muscled, soft-spoken challenger appeared calm and confident as he completed preparations for the biggest bout of his life

"I think ... no, make that I definitely know it's going to be a good fight," said Berbick, a resident of Halifax, Nova Scotia. "If I didn't think I had a good chance, I wouldn't get in there.

"I think I'm qualified for a title shot. I've proved myself. After Tate, I had three knockouts that lasted a total of six rounds. I deserve this, and I'm going for the top.

"I'm very confident. I'm not even thinking about Larry Holmes. I like Larry as a person and I think he likes me. But when we get in that ring, I'm going to try to win. It's going to be a war.

Holmes is scheduled to defend his title again on May 22 against former WBC champion Leon Spinks, presuming, of course, that he dispatches Berbick. The mention of Spinks clearly sent Berbick's blood pressure up a few notches.

"Larry's supposed to fight Leon Spinks; they're making a big thing of it," said Berbick. "If I fight Leon Spinks tomorrow, it wouldn't go 10 rounds.

"The whole thing is, I'm not an American citizen. All the American fighters have been built up.

States consider boosting taxes By LOUISE COOK Associated Press Writer

Don't count on extra dollars in your pocket because of tax cuts this year. Increases in state levies could eat up any reduction approved by Congress in the federal income tax.

A survey by the Tax Foundation Inc., a non-profit research group based in Washington, D.C., shows proposals that would boost taxes by $3.8 billion are pending in state legislatures. The foundation surveyed the 49 states holding regular legislative sessions this year. (Kentucky is the exception.) It found a wide range of tax plans under discussion, including proposals to increase sales and motor fuel taxes.

The Tax Foundation noted that tax decreases as well as increases are pending. The decreases, how-ever, add up to only $800 million.

The Census Bureau says state tax collections of all kinds in 1980 added up to $136.9 billion, an increase of 9.6 percent from 1979. Federal income tax collections alone are more than twice that amount.

It is impossible to balance President Reagan's plan for a federal tax cut and the proposals put forth at the state level to determine exactly who would win and who would lose.

In terms of sheer dollar volume, the potential decrease in the federal bite is much bigger than the potential increase in state collections. During the fiscal year that ends Sept. 30, the Reagan program would cut income taxes by $6.4 billion and business taxes by $2.5 billion. But individual categories of taxpayers - those hard hit by an increase in the sales tax, for example - could find that the smaller federal bill doesn't make up for a bigger state bill.

The Tax Foundation said its survey showed the states say they need the added money to balance operating budgets, provide more funds for high-way maintenance and help local governments with programs of property tax relief.

Adding up the pluses and minuses of the various proposals, the foundation found that tax decreases outweigh tax increases in only eight states: Arizona, Georgia, Hawaii, Massachusetts, Montana, New Mexico, New York and Oklahoma.

Even in those eight states, however, the picture is mixed. Some taxes would go down; others would go up. In Arizona, the governor has proposed a one-time, $25 million rebate in personal income taxes. But a hike in the gasoline tax is also under consideration. A similar situation prevails in Georgia: there is a plan for a three-year program of income tax relief, but a bill also was introduced to increase the state tax on gasoline immediately and regularly adjust it for inflation in the future.

Changes in taxes on gasoline and other motor fuels appear the most popular with lawmakers, according to the foundation survey. Possible raises in fuel levies also are pending in: Arkansas, California, Colorado, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Maryland, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nevada, New Hampshire, North Carolina, North Dakota, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Utah and Wisconsin. The survey did not mention a drive by Gov. Bob Graham of Florida to increase the state's gasoline tax when the legislative session begins this week.

The most frequent proposal is one to change the tax from a fixed amount to a percentage of the retail price. In Iowa, for example, the tax would be set at 10 percent of the sales price of the fuel involved. Iowa also is one of seven states considering an increase in the state sales tax. The Iowa rate would go from 3 percent to 4 percent; if passed, it would increase revenues by an estimated $150 million a year. Other states cited by the Tax Foundation where sales tax increases are possible are: Idaho, Kansas, Michigan, Missouri, Nevada and West Virginia.

The Tax Foundation said the Nevada sales tax proposals is an effort to shift a bigger portion of the state tax burden from homeowners to tourists, who now pay an estimate one-fourth of the sales taxes. les tax, the

Crane, Pecos list wildcat producers

The Gulf Oil Corp. of Midland announced the completion of a first well wildcat 5 miles northwest of Crane.

The No. 1128 W. N. Waddell et al is located 660 feet from the north and east lines of section 7, block B-21 of the PSL survey.

The well was potentialed for 128 barrels of 36.9 gravity oil, 218 gas and 128 barrels of water flowing through a 18/64 inch choke with the gas to oil ratio of 1703:1.

The top-of-pay depth was 5,830 feet, total depth 6,232 feet, plug-back depth 6.194 feet and the ground-level elevation of 2.651 feet.

Perforations were made from 5,911 to 5,928 feet with 1,500 gallons of 15% NeFe acid. A 5 1/2 inch casing was set at 6,231 feet and the casing pressure was 220.

The formations reached were: Rustler 465 feet, San Andres 2,981 feet, Tubb 4,670 feet, Wichita Albany 5,114 feet, Wolfcamp 5,830 feet. The drilling commenced on February 2, 1981 and the well was completed on March 5,

The No. 1 Bowman State is located 467 feet from the southwest and 100 feet from the southeast lines of section 8, block 3 of the H&TC Raiload Co. survey.

It was potentialed for 10 barrels of oil, 3,000 cubic feet of gas per day and 30 barrels of water with the gas to oil ratio of 300:1 but is presently pumping brine water and the potential is uncertain.

Perforations were made from 2,300 to 2,315 feet with 1,000 gallons of 15% NeHcl acid. The top-of-pay depth is 2,310 feet, plug-back depth 2,320 feet and the total depth 2,340 feet. A 7-inch casing was set at 2,340 feet.

Before the re-entry, the hole was originally drilled to 2,336 feet by Bruce Grammar and others. It was taken over by Hillin Drilling Co. and completed in 1970 through perforations from 2,303 to 2,315 feet.

The well was abandoned in 1970 and permission was received to convert it to a water well. This was not done and PDC Gas Co. ran tubing and rods, and placed on pump.

A.G. Hill and Associates. Abilene have announced completion of the No. 1 Brandenburg, a wildcat venture in Pecos County.

Located 1,320 feet from the north and 2,000 feet fom the east line of section 44, block 8, survey H&GN, the site is 8 miles notheast of Coyanosa. Total depth of the explorer is 18,117 feet with plugged back depth at 16,450 feet. Ground level evelvatin was 2,512 feet with 95/8 inch casing set at 11,157 feet. Perforations were 14,613 feet to 14,-891 acidized with 59,000 gallons.

Treatment was 102,000 pounds of sand.

The well was potentialed for a calculated absolute open flow of 250,000 cubic feet of gas per day.

Texas Oil & Gas has completed the No. 2 Cabeen, five-eights mile southwest of Wichita-Albany production, one mile southwest of Wolfcamp production and one-half mile east of Ellenburger production in the Putman multipay field of Pecos County.

Location is 467 feet from the north line and 467 feet from the west line of section 5, block F, TCRR survey seven miles southwest of Girvin.

Total depth of the location was 5,410 feet with plugged back depth to 4,925 feet and ground level elevation of 2,891 feet. Perforations were 4,548 feet to 4,696 feet acidized with 5,750 gallons.

Cast iron bridge plug was set at 4.925 feet.

The well was potentialed for a calculated absolute open flow of 1,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day.

States plan for welfare applications

By The Associated Press

While the nation's coal fields lay quiet, welfare officials began preparing for a deluge of food stamp applications from miners who rejected a proposed contract and walked off their jobs three weeks ago.

Members of the striking United Mine Workers' Bargaining Council, meanwhile, readied for a meeting Friday in Washington, D.C.

UMW district officers have said they feel the meeting of the 39-member council was called to decide what strategy was needed to get the union back to the bargaining table with the soft-coal operators and to get a contract that the union's 160,000 members would accept. There was some picketing in the coalfields Wednesday, but no violence was reported for the first time this

Officials in West Virginia and Illinois said Wednesday they were getting ready for an anticipated 40,000 applications within the next few days. Officials in other states also were expecting a sharp increase in food-weeks. The UMW has no strike fund. Burdette Crowe, president of Fairmont, W.Va.-based UMW District 31, said he had been swamped by calls from miners wanting to know about strike assistance and food-stamp ap-stamp applications over the coming plication procedures.

'The application process has already begun for miners to get food stamps," said Daniel Pittman, a state welfare official in Illinois, where 12,-000 miners are expected to apply for stamps.

"Render unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's," Matthew tells us in the New Testament. Today's declarer was reluctant to do so, so he learned the hard way that the sages had a point.

North-had an awkward rebid. We approve of his raise to three hearts with only two-card support-a better doubleton opposite a rebid suit does not exist. South's decision to go on to game was based on his distributional features rather than extra high cards.

West led a low spade, declarer played the nine from dummy and captured East's queen with the ace. After cashing dummy's high trumps, declarer returned to his hand with the ace of diamonds to draw the remaining trumps in one round. All that remained was to resolve the club position.

Declarer ran the jack of clubs, and was delighted with his acumen. Next came a low club. West rose to the occasion by rising with the ace and, in anticipation of bringing in the suit, declarer carelessly played low from dummy. When East showed

The ten of spades was covered by the jack and king, and the spade return was ruf fed in the closed hand. A club to the king left declarer on the table with no way to get back to his hand, unless he .ruffed with his last trump while West still had a club stopper. He ended up with only nine tricks. Once he discovered the friendly 3-3 heart division, declarer should have paused for reflection. He could afford to lose two club tricks and a spade. By giving up the chance for an overtrick, the contract could have been guaranteed.

Declarer can simply concede two club tricks.
