Everyone brought the New Year in with great spirit, watching the old one pass out, and hoping to a prosperous year before us. All were a bit drowsy after the night before on New Year's. (You know, celebrating the New Year and everything). On the afternoon of the first day of the year, following a general assembly for the observance of the day of prayer, every class had a radio, to listen to the football game. That was very sweet of the teachers, and we really do appreciate it. Of course some students made their New Year's resolutions, and others said they had so many bad habits that it wouldn't do any good to make them, and they couldn't keep them anyway. Saturday morning it was a big surprise to see snow everywhere, but it didn't last long. Everyone of course wants to go sleigh riding. Then there was the Sunday merning, but that didnt' last long enough. We are still hoping that we will get to go sleigh riding soon.

Prayer Day Observed By Haskell High School

On the first day of the new year H. H. S. students and teachers met n a general assembly to observe prayer day set aside by the President, The program was under the direction of the Reverend Clifford Williams, and others who participated were Mr. Ramsey, Coach Horton, Snort Patterson, Dale Bartlett, Carolyn Williams and Sam Smith. Each gave impromptu talks which made the meeting very inspirational As suggested by Dale, the student body adopted the slogan, "Do the best you can, with what you have wherever wou are." Prayers were led by Rev. Williams, Coach Horton, and Mr. Ramsey and a period of silent prayer was observed by all, before the singing of "God Bless America," which concluded the program. Mr. Williams' and Ramsey's discussions of the sings of prayer, accompanied by the talks of Mr. Horton and the students, were typical of the beliefs and thoughts of all students, teachers, and pastors in this great nation of the United States.

Home Demonstration Work In Haskell County During 1941 Gym. 92 girls attended

Cathryn Sands, Home Demonstration Agent)

Home Demonstration work was rganized in Haskell County on September 1, 1927 under the sponsorship of the County Federation of Women's Clubs, the County Commissioner's Court, Haskell County Fair Assointion, the various publishers of the county and the many business some form of improvement in each men of Haskell.

The outstanding problemms at this time were all phases of food conservation, home improvement and lack of leadership. The development of the method of using velopment of the method of using to the District meeting of the demonstrators and demonstrations Texas Home Demonstration Assoas teachers has been one of the outstanding achievements in home demonstration work. It not only develops skill and leadership in the individual, but it also permits more ffreedom for the Agent to meet more clubs and contact more people.

The Extension Service and Agents instruct the people on chosen subjects. The people deide their needs and mke their own goals and outlines for county and community plans of work.

The 1941 plan of work for the Home Demonstration Club members included the Home Food Supply Plan featuring "Poultry for Home Use" and the Interior Home Improvement with the Kitchen" as the phase of work. The Home Food Supply goals stressed the importance of feeding the family by the Texas Food Standard and emphasized the importance of poultry in the diet of every member of the family at least once each week. This year we have stressed "Good Breeding, Good Brooding and Good Feeding" along the production line, "Good Cooking" in food preparation and 'Canning" in food preservation.

The Home Improvement phase included light and air in the kitchen, the quick meal shelf and using the kitchen to the best advantage. As a result of the work we had ten new kitchens and 105 improved kitchens.

We have completed our study of kitchen improvement so Landscape Improvement will be studied in its place in 1942. We will continue our work on poultry next year. The phases of production, preparation and pre-

"MOUNTAIN CLIMBING" TRUCKS

In a recent Defense exhibit at the General Motors Proving Ground near Milford, Michigan, magazine and newspaper editors from all parts of the country were amazed at the ease with which GMC six-wheel-drive Army trucks climbed a 65 per cent hill. Observers and photographers found it difficult to climb this grade even with rubber-soled footwear.

Commercial truck drivers, even on the toughest routes, seldom have to negotiate grades of more than 15 to 15.

cent. But the power displayed by this Army truck is typical of the pulling ability of all General Motors Trucks as the GMC engine powering this "six by six" is the same in basic design and construction as all of the GMC factory-built valve-in-head engines to be found throughout the GMC Truck line from the smallest 4-ton to the largest. In fact, General Motors Truck engines are claimed to be the strongest pullers in the motors of the largest. In fact, and size for size.

EVEN THE HORSES RIDE IN UNCLE SAM'S MECHANIZED ARMY TODAY!

In today's ultra-modern motorized army, even the cavalry horses get a ride. This 214-ton General Motors Truck, with six driving wheels, is fitted with a stock rack body for hauling the Army's mounts when a great distance is to be traversed. Still recognized by military tacticians as a vital unit of any fighting force, the horse cavalry is in demand for certain types of scouting duty, limited flank movements, etc. These GMC stake trucks are used to transport cavalry units over great distances to the point where they must go into action under their own power. The truck is but one of many unusual types being built for the Army today by General Motors Truck.

The Little Guy

What distinguishes this country from the other great nations of the world? There are many possible answers to that question. And here's one of the best: "The United States is the country where the little guy is boss-where the little guy can go as far as his energies and abilities allowwhere the little guy doesn't have to bow and scrape to anyone.

Little guys made this country. They came here from everywhere to establish freedom and escape tyranny. They landed in a wilderness. They were often cold and hungry. They seldom became rich. But they kept the faith. They built the homes and cleared the land and raised the children. They fought the wars of the past, just as they are fighting this war. The little guys were proud and strong and confident of the future, and the great land in which we live is their gift to us, the little guys of Little guys built the industries of this country. They saved a few dollars and put them into a store or a bank or a factory of some kind. They took chances. Much of the time they lost, but that didn't dismoy them. They saved a few more dollars and took new chances. They didn't laugh when some visionary came along with an idea the wiseacres said was obviously insance-the telephone, for instance or the automobile, or a plan for lighting homes with electricty. There might be something in it, they thought, and they played tee long shot. For the visionaries with the ideas were the same kind of people-little guys trying to get ahead, little guys trying to build and create. And some of them went from shacks to mansions in a year or two, and a year or two later were back in the shacks starting again. They always started again. It was in their blood, their bone, their character The little guys didn't give up.

All of this country is a monument to the little guy. All of our industries, our farms, our homes, our resources—the little guys did the work. They went into the oil fields and brought out the black gold. They dug in the earth and gave us our coal and metals. A few became famous, but the millions remained unknown. They worked and died in obscurity, but this country is an everlasting monument to their deathless spirit which lives on,

That is the ideal we Americans must always keep in mind-America must be a place where the little guy is king. Free enterprise is the little guy's kind of enterprise-he can go into any business he wants, invest his savings in whatever he wants, and lick the competitors to a frazzle if he is able to. The government belongs to him—he doesn't belong to the government. The little guy made America, and today he is prepetuating America. And tomorrow he must be the symbol

Food For All

War is producing shortages in many fields, but food isn't one of them. As the President recently said, "There is enough food for all of us and enough left over to send to those who are fighting on the same side with us."

The fact that an abundance of food exists in this country, however, isn't all there is to the question. The great majority of consumers live considerable distances away from the food producing areas. They are dependent upon the agencies of distribution to bring them food at the lowest possible price. And here is where we Americans are extremely lucky. This country's food retailing system is unequaled in the world.

American merchants are fully aware of the problems of the times. They are aware of the great responsibility that they must discharge if the consumer is to be protected. The principle food chains have adopted a four-point public pledge which is indicative of what food distributors are doing First they will maintain efficient, economical distribution. Second, they will avoid speculation and unjustified price increases. Third, they will maintain adequate stocks of food products at all times and recommend substitutes when shortages de velop. Fourth, they will cooperate fully with government producers and consumers.

A great many independent stores have subscribed to similar pledges of public service. And if work of this kind is to achieve full success, consumers themselves must do their part. Waste must be reduced to a minimum—the act that we have plenty of food is no excuse for(needlessly dissipating it. Excessively large buying makes for prices increases and consumer hysteria. Buy normally and get the most for your dollar.

Retailers in other fields, where serious shortages exist, are also doing their utmost for consumers. It is to the great credit of retailing that there have been practically no cases of profiteering. Your merchant is doing his full part to help ease the strains and dislocations that war inevitably

Tighten Both Belts

In these days, with the public gaze fastened on war outside our continental borders, it may seem prosaic and uninteresting to talk of taxation, debt and government fiscal policy.. But the hard fact is that we must talk and act on those matters if our kind of government, our kind of life, is to survive. Fiscal recklessness has been the ruin of many a government of the past.

A new tax bill is now being planned. Side Glances On Texas History

By Charles O. Hucker University of Texas Library NOAH SMITHWICK: CIVIL OFFICER DE LUXE

A considerable debt of long standing is acknowledged by Texas social historians to pubish old Noah Smithwick, whose famous volume of memoirs, "The Evolution of a State," is perhaps the best loved of all books that came out of its early days. Illuminated by his acute powers of observation and his great sense of humor, it is probably the best existing source book on the human side of Texas history.

Smithwick came to Texas several years before the outbreak of the Revolution and stayed on until after it became one of the United States, wandering on them however, that when it came his to California. And during his stay in the Southwest he seems to have burden like a good citizen. picked up and stored away in his memory most of the interesting bits of information and good stories available. Students in the University of Texas Library's unequaled Texas Collection have found few books there more delightful than his.

One of the aspects of life in old Texas which Smithwick illuminated in his memoirs is the everyday, commonplace workings of civil government in the Republic. one time and at the same time he was postmaster, lieutenant-

THE POSTAL PREDICAMENT

"When the mail route up Austin was opened," he wrote late n life, "we were allowed an office in Webber's Prairie. I was appointed postmaster, with a certain percentage of all the money took in to pay me for my trouble. That was long before the advent of postage stamps, and the charge for letters was twenty-five cents, payable at either end he line. Letters were consequently few and far between."

A man named Peter Carr was the first mail carrier to serve under Smithwick, and it so happened that Carr was too accomodating to think of collecting those postage fees on letters he delivered. It wasn't long before Smithwick began to suspect that something was wrong with the system and not much longer before he discovered what the trouble was. "I then straightway notified the postal department that unless they would furnish a locked pouch I would throw up my commis-sion," he wrote. "I served a year or more, using my dwelling house for an office, and never got a cent either for my services or office

"On the bench," he wrote, "I was a shining success, not one of my decisions ever being excepted That, it appears, is because he made none. The only case settled in court, apparently, concerned a Lipan Indian who proved that a white settler had stolen his horse and it was settled only when Smithwich, perplexed by a situation just the reverse of normal, asked the Indian what ought to be done. "Oh, turn him loose," the Indian replied, and he did. Otherwise his official acts consisted of four wedding ceremonies.

"When my time expired my onstituents were anxious to again invest me with the judicial ermine," he wrote; but he declined the honor, seeming content to retain only his commission in the militia.
