Former County Judge Asks For Army Induction

Former County Judge J. C. Davis, Jr., who retired January 1 after serving two terms in that office and who recently was placed in Class IIA by the Selective Service Board, Throckmorton county this week filed a waiver of the deferred classification with the request that he be placed in Class IA subject to immediate call for military service.

Classification of the Haskell attorney was made by the Throckmorton board because of the fact that Judge Davis is a member of the local Advisory Board for registrants. However, he is listed as a Haskell county registrant, and subject to call by this board if placed in IA.

The former county official, who is married and has a son, withdrew as a candidate for District Attorney last year with the intention of volunteering in some branch of the armed services at the end of his term as County Judge. He has applied for enlistment in the U. S. Navy, and in the Air Force and other branches of service, but failed to pass the rigid eyesight tests in these branches and now hopes to be able to serve during the war in some branch of the Army.

An Old Saying for the New Year....

The old saying, "Proof of the pudding is in the eating," still holds good, and where you can save the most by actual test of comparing the cost of food items, of the same quality, is where you'll want to trade during the new year. You will find our prices are low, not only on week-ends, but every day in the week. You'll save on your total weekly bill—not on just an item or two. Price is important, but it's not the whole story—quality and price should go together. Both of these you'll find at this store.

E. L. Class Meets In Bathhouse Home Tuesday Afternoon

Mrs. S. A. Roberts with members of her group was hostess to the E. L. class of the First Baptist Church in her home on Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock. The meeting was opened by singing the class song, "My Faith Looks Up To Thee" followed by a prayer by Mrs. E. P. Green. The program was for reports from officers and group reports. Reports for December were fairly good despite three Saturdays of disagreeable weather. Mrs. Winkler discussed the class Standard of Excellence.

Mrs. Corita Brooks brought a beautiful devotional quoting passages of scripture from Psalm, John, Hebrews, etc. The thought was along the line of preparation for the new year in the way of insurance. Mrs. Brooks said, "It is possible that you have no commercial insurance but there is one policy you all take—your soul is insured." The security of such insurance should engender the practice of faith, courage, humility and repentance. Prayer followed and all joined in singing "I Love to Give." Mrs. Marie Edwards Hyde gave two readings, both of them versions of our loved poems by T. S. Eliot, "A Hymn to Living in a Church to Make It Go," and "I."

The women assisted by Mrs. Hugh Watson, Mrs. W. J. Lane and Mrs. George Hester, served small sandwiches and cakes with a cup of hot tea to the following members: Misses J. E. Walling, Sr., Jack Merchant, R. P. Green, Corita Brooks, J. W. Martin, D. J. Peters, J. Stone, George Gilliam, Mary Carter, Emma Yarns, E. J. Purdon, Mrs. Louis Cunningham, B. M. Whitener, J. A. Mrs. Kimball and Mrs. Worthington, dressed soberly and wearing their best black gloves, walked along the stony country road back toward Sophia Hardy's farm, to pay their visit of condolence.

"How do you reckon she'll be bearing up?" Mrs. Kimball asked Mrs. Worthington. Both ladies were their most solemn, funeral expressions.

"A mighty severe blow," Mrs. Worthington said. "Mighty severe. To lose your only son, the mainstay of your declining years. And such a dreadful death, too—to go down with a ship—Mercy!"

"The first of our boys from Hand County to go, too," Mrs. Kimball said, mournfully.

"I wouldn't blame Sophia Hardy for feeling right bitter," Mrs. Kimball said. "They stood on the simple stone doorstep, with downcast eyes, getting themselves into the proper commiserative mood."

"Come in!"

The voice was brisk and cordial. They looked up in surprise. Sophia herself had come to the door. As they followed her into the parlor they exchanged glances, with eyebrows lifted. Sophia was not even in mourning. The parlor shades were not even drawn.

"It's nice of you to come," Sophia said. "Do sit down."

"We came," Mrs. Kimball said almost reprovingly, "to tell you that our hearts are bleeding for you in your great loss."

"We know how lonely you must be out here," Mrs. Worthington said. "With nothing to take your mind off . . . off . . ." She sniffed and reached in her purse for a handkerchief.

"Oh, I keep busy," Sophia said. "I've just finished applying for the Government insurance on Tom's life."

The visiting ladies could not resist a stockinged glance at one another.

The Food Picture for 1943

CATHRYN SANDS
Home Demonstration Agent

The food ration that civilians are assured this year will depend largely on the weather, on the farmers' ability to get labor and machinery, and on transportation. For that reason, homemakers in war-looked-up, homemakers in town will be resolving along with the rural women to grow as much of the family's food supply as possible. There is a possibility of a shortage of citrus fruits this year due to transportation facilities. These fruits are one of our best sources of Vitamin C, but all homemakers can plan to raise tomatoes as a substitute for this fruit. They are rich in Vitamin C. The supply of cereals—flour and grain foods—will be ample. For civilians, the supply of fat and oils will be shorter, so meals in 1943 will include less fried foods, gravies and oily dressings. Sugar supplies likely will be shorter, too, because of transportation. The total milk supply will probably be as large as last year, but war needs may mean less milk for civilians. More poultry for meat is in prospect, but eggs may be less plentiful on the home front. Meat is almost certain to be less plentiful, and it will be one of the next foods to be rationed. The amount that we will be allowed will be as much as the majority of us ever used. Let's remember that dried peas and beans are good substitutes for meat.

Fruits and vegetables are the big question mark in this year's food production, so homemakers will be smart not only to grow their own, if possible, but to waste none, plan to can any excess, learn about their food values and overcome dislikes and whims about certain foods.

It's common sense to buy War Bonds
to save and help America. Buy your ten percent every pay day.

Board Advised To Use Extreme Care In Granting Tires

S. N. Reed, Chairman of the Haskell County War Price and Rationing Board reported today that the Board will have to use extreme care in dispensing tires under the county's January quota for passenger cars and trucks.

"We have been cautioned by the Office of Price Administration that it is better to err on the side of giving too little rubber than too much," he said. "Granting too little rubber can be corrected but a certificate for too much rubber means that this rubber is gone forever.

"We are being reminded frequently by officials in Washington that the only hope of making our meager rubber supply last is by reducing average driving to the points recommended in the Baruch report to the President. We are told that if the mileage and speed requirements are not met strictly further restrictions may be necessary. It seems evident from this that only if the Board does its job with the greatest efficiency can we expect to see further restrictions, and very hard restrictions, avoided."

"There has been no change in the status of tire eligibility for most people under the new regulation," Mr. Reed pointed out. "The Board will continue to give rubber first to those whose use of it will do most for the war effort and the safety and well being of the country."

Ten per cent of your income in War Bonds will help to build the planes and tanks that will insure defeat of Hitler and his Axis partners.

Stamps should be affixed to Mail Deposited in Rural Boxes. Instruction in the Postal Guide encourage patrons of the rural delivery service to affix postage stamps to mail of the first and third classes which they deposit in rural mail boxes.

In order to assist patrons in complying with the request that postage be affixed to their mail it is important that rural carriers endeavor to have with them at all times when serving their routes a stock of stamp supplies sufficient to enable them to supply the needs of patrons.

It is advisable for patrons so far as practicable to affix postage stamps because expediting handling of their mail is gained as the time required of a carrier to affix postage stamps to mail after he returns to the post office sometimes prevents prompt dispatch of mail and delays it until the following day.

Freedom Packs A Punch

Arms production records set by American manufacturers in the past year are: 49,000 planes, 32,000 tanks, 17,000 anti-aircraft guns, 8,000,000 tons of merchant ships. These figures are spectacular. They prove that initiative inspired by freedom packs a punch.

The performance of the industries that stand back of such production—namely, the natural resource industries, should not be overlooked. Secretary of the Interior Ickes recently pointed out that: "For every ton of steel that goes into a tank or an airplane or a bomb or a bayonet, more than a ton of soft coal must be dug, transported, processed and consumed." The nations mines produced more than 825,000,000 tons of coal in 1942, a new all-time record for the coal industry.

Coal is typical of other natural resource industries. Censorship regulations prohibit the release of figures relating to metal mine production. Suffice to say that informed observers do not fear serious shortages. The oil and electric industries have turned in equally amazing performances. Oil managements have tackled a synthetic rubber program designed to build in two years a whole new industry that would ordinarily require a decade of construction work. The entire future of the war effort depends on the success of synthetic rubber. The oil industry is carrying forward its rubber program while at the same time producing billions of gallons of gas fuel and lubricants for everything from motorcycles to ships and bombers. The power industry, in the face of constant punitive political attack, has continued to keep ahead of all power requirements.

Here, in brief are the accomplishments of industry operated by private citizens, after a brief twelve months of war. They are based on a century and a half of progress, progress that was possible solely because this has been a land where individual effort was encouraged.

U. S. Casualties Outnumber Those In Our Armed Forces

The natural guess of most persons not statistically minded probably would be that there are more people killed in the conflict than in traffic. But mothers, wives, sisters, sweethearts can all ease their minds if they have sons, husbands, brothers or fiancées in the armed services, for figures just compiled by the National Safety Council shows that, up to November 15th, after almost a year of war, American casualties in battle, including the first five days of fighting in North Africa were 6,054 killed, 4,485 wounded and 40,327 missing and prisoners of the enemy, while 89,000 in the United States met by death by accident and 8,800,000 were injured in accidents. The casualties at home included the death of 44,500 working men and 3,800,000 who were injured.

The average parents probably will find it difficult to believe that when their 18 or 19 year old son is inducted into the army he is no more danger, if as much, as when he uses the family car to keep a date. These figures would indicate that our nation still has quite a distance to travel before we solve the problem of traffic hazards.

Serious Undertaking

As the new year opens, statisticians, experts and housewives agree on one fact. The cost of living is rising ominously. Cries for inflation control grow louder. The "easy" way of paying for war by painless borrowing is beginning to hurt. The best possible inflation control is taxation. This control has not been applied effectively.

An additional inflation control is direct sale of war bonds to the people. The banks should receive much of the credit for successfully putting tens of billions of dollars worth of these bonds into the hands of the public. Their efforts have helped immeasurably to stem the trend toward forced saving and resultant restrictions which the treasury has been reluctant to impose. The Treasury hopes to raise the present figure of 23 million workers now investing an average of 8 percent of their pay in savings bonds, to a figure of at least 30 million workers setting aside an average of at least 10 percent of their earnings every pay day. This means, in the words of a spokesman for the National City Bank of New York, that: "The banker, by virtue of his position in the community, has a special responsibility for taking off his coat and getting down to work to make the financing a success."

However, no voluntary war bond program can possibly be a success unless the American people evidence a willingness to turn from a scramble for disappearing luxuries and put their money into a serious undertaking. That undertaking is winning the war, and at the same time saving the economic system by which we all live.

Do Your Part

The individual citizen can help relieve the wartime medical problem. Here are suggestions: Choose your physician carefully and stick to him. Make appointments for visits as early as possible. Whenever advisable visit the physician's office instead of expecting him to call at your home. Write down all important facts you want to tell him. Tell him all symptoms which have any bearing on your physical welfare. Have confidence in him. Write down his orders and make sure you understand them. Public cooperation can go far toward eliminating the "doctor shortage."

Bessie
"All right, Bessie," said the boss of the little factory which was making jackets for soldiers. "Did you want to see me about something?"

"The thin middle-aged woman stood up from the chair in the outer office and looked earnestly at the boss with her huge, grave gray eyes. "It's about this ten percent pledge," she began.

"Oh, that's all right, Bessie," the boss said. "I'd been meaning to speak to you about that. We don't expect you to pledge ten percent of your pay for War Bonds like the others are doing. We know you have a hard time making ends meet since Jake died. Eleven kids, isn't it? That's quite a lot of mouths to feed. Let's see, you make $25.50 a week including overtime, don't you?"

"Yes, sir, but..."
The boss smiled. "Don't give it another thought, Bessie. You've got your hands full now. Uncle Sam knows you haven't got a penny to spare. Don't let it worry you. We understand."

"But what I wanted to say was..." Bessie raised her voice and the boss looked around. "I wanted to say, would a dollar a week be too little? You see, after we get the living expenses paid, there's just about a dollar a week left. Would they be willing to accept a dollar a week?"

"They'd be more than willing," the boss said quietly. "They'd be proud."

Bessie looked relieved. "All we have to do is scripp a little," she said. "I'd feel just terrible if we couldn't give something."

"Back in the boss' office a representative of the Treasury Department was waiting. The boss shut the door and sat down. "I've just seen the greatest single sacrifice I know of," the boss said. "Listen, if you want to hear what American women are made of..."

Weekly Health Letter

By Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer

Austin, Texas — The Seventh National Social Hygiene Day will be observed in Texas on Wednesday February 3, 1943. Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer and Chairman on Health and Emergency Medical Service announced in Austin today.

"With the mass movement of men into Army camps, with war industries doubling and redoubling their production, 'boom town' conditions frequently prevail," Dr. Cox said. "Broken family ties crowded housing, unappreciated demands on medical facilities, lack of knowledge, and prostitution, favor the spread of venereal diseases, which in turn cost millions of dollars in medical care, lost time, inefficiency, labor replacement and accidents. "Physical fitness not only of our soldiers, marines and sailors but also our civilian population will determine the effectiveness of our war effort," Dr. Cox stated. "We must realize that the nation's defense depends on a healthy civilian population, able to produce needed materials."

Social Hygiene Day, nationally sponsored by the American Social Hygiene Association will be observed throughout the country on February 3, 1943. Army and navy officers, industry, management, labor unions, health and welfare agencies participate in this nationwide campaign and collaborate on legal, medical, educational and protective measures to fight venereal disease among industrial workers.

"Physical fitness is the foundation of a sound national defense—the prerequisite for victory," asserted Dr. Cox. "More and more Americans are coming to realize that among the first enemies to be conquered in its present mighty effort are the venereal diseases. There came to be no strong nation where bodies are unfit; most assuredly there can be no military victory where disease acts as an insidious 'fifth column' within the rank.

"BILL JONES IS DEAD . . ."

The following story by Roe Fulkerson, Hollywood, editorial writer for the Kiwanis International Magazine, was cited in Congress recently as a most significant straw in the breeze of public opinion and as such was read in the Congressional Record. It has been printed in hundreds of newspapers, and is well worth taking time to read:

Bill Jones is dead.

Bill Jones had just graduated from agricultural college. He was ambitious to put into action all he had learned about conservation of soil, better breeding of cattle, rotating crops, because his dad's farm was in pretty bad shape. When war came, Bill enlisted in the Army.

Bill went to the Philippines and the little town where he was billeted was overrun by a horde of Japs. Bill fought as long as he could and then, under orders, surrendered. They tied his hands behind him and a Jap soldier started to rape a white woman. He had torn her blouse off when Bill kicked him in the belly, and three Japs waiting their turn rammed their bayonets into Bill's guts.

This happened about the time you were telling the folks at your house that it was all darned nonsense to ration sugar because cake and candy were certainly no diet for soldiers.

Bill Jones is dead.

He was a soda jerker in a small town, and when the bands blared and the flags fluttered, he signed up for the Navy. They put him on a torpedo boat. He learned to wear his hat on the corner of his head, and to roll when he walked. Then his boat got into a scrap around the blanket where they were shooting craps, and he wasn't so hot at the beer drinking contests in the jukes, but he earned his sergeant's stripes before they sent his gang ashore in one of those new boats which landed through the surf.

Bill Jones is dead.

Bill was a football player who scuppers where his dismembered arm lay. Its extended thumb touched the tip of his nose, so that in death as in life, Bill was thumbing his nose at the Jap ship that got him.

This was just the same day you were raising hell because they were rationing gasoline, and for fear you couldn't drive up to the lake to go fishing every weekend this summer, you hid four cans of gasoline in your garage.

Bill Jones is dead.

Bill's dad had a lot of money, and when Bill wanted his own plane, dad bought it for him. Bill was a wild devil, driving a car out of all reason and flying a plane the same way, and getting drunk too often. But he was the first man in his town to respond to the Air Corps' call for fliers.

Bill got into a dog fight over the English Channel. There were six German planes, but with a "Tallyho!" Bill dove into the bunch of them. He got two before a third one sent a burst of bullets into his back that almost cut him in half, but he held on to the stick until he rammed the fourth plane and went down with it locked in the flaming embrace of death.

This happened about the time you were bellyaching and feeling abused because of the outrageous treatment given you by the tire rationing board which would not allow you recaps for your pleasure car.

Bill Jones is dead.

Bill was a boy who had inclinations for the ministry, but when the call came, Bill laid aside his Bible and joined the Marine Corps. Bill wasn't much fun around the blanket where they were shooting craps, and he wasn't so hot at the beer drinking contests in the jukes, but he earned his sergeant's stripes before they sent his gang ashore in one of those new boats which landed through the surf.

Bill Jones is dead.

Bill was a football player who

A Few Tank Guns Rommel Left Behind

British officers inspect a line of 75-mm. tank gun barrels which Marshal Erwin Rommel's battered Afrika Korps left behind in their wild flight towards Tripoli, with Gen. Bernard Montgomery's Eighth army in hot pursuit.

Bill had just taken careful aim and let go with a hand grenade when another machine gun caught him. Four bullets hit his head, but a Marine has four speeds forward and no reverse, and Bill fell toward the enemy.

That was the afternoon when you were sitting at the golf club with a high ball in your hand, telling the other three fellows in your foresome that if income taxes were not reduced, they were going to kill initiative in this country.

Bill Jones is dead.

Bill was a football player who had good prospects as a professional coach at a good small college. Then came Pearl Harbor. Bill used some football language and headed for two sign up with the parachute troops. He did all right.

Bill got action in an air raid in enemy country. He hit the ground with a dozen of his pals and raced to where their machine guns and grenades had landed near them. Fully equipped, they made for a nearby farm house from which bullets were spraying like water out of a garden hose.

Six of those machine gun bullets fairly cut Bill's legs off, but he lay on his belly in the mud and got two Heinies. Bill's last words were, "Of all the damn fool luck!"

That was the time you were telling the boys in the poker game that the union racketeers and the munition manufacturers were making fortunes out of this war, when he had no business getting into it in the first place.

Bill Jones is dead.

Bill was an uneducated clam digger on the New England coast, but he knew about boats. He had only one eye and the uniformed ranks wouldn't take him, so he shipped on a tanker. His ship was bringing oil up the coast when a German pig boat came up out of the slime and sent a torpedo into the hull amidships. The freighter burst into flames and Bill went over the side into the burning oil.

When he came to the surface, a machine gun was practicing on the bobbing heads. When the bullets hit Bill's head it burst open like a dropped egg. His charred bullet riddled body sank beneath the surface.

That was the night you were telling the folks at your party that this war was being run by a lot of old women in Washington, the most mismanaged mess you ever heard of.

Bill Jones is dead. When God in His infinite kindness meets Bill Jones at Heaven's gate, He is going to say "Well done, thou good and faithful servant!"

What He is going to say to you, God alone knows.

Sagerton Girl Completes N.Y.A. Training Course

Pauline Neimast of Sagerton, has recently finished training at the N.Y.A. center at Ranger and has gone to work as a sheet metal riveter at Consolidated Aircraft Corporation near Fort Worth. Sheet metal workers, welders, spray painters, radio maintenance workers, machine tool operators and riveters are needed by war plants now.

N.Y.A. centers such as the one at Ranger offer training in these fields to girls or boys between the ages of 18 and 24 who have good health and either an eighth grade education or previous work experience. During training periods of 6 to 12 weeks youths receive board and room plus $10.80 per month and work clothing for shop wear. Those interested in entering war work training should write to the N.Y.A. office, 411 Insurance Building, Fort Worth.

WOMEN AT WAR

Mom: "Sausages for breakfast! I can smell 'em!" Small Joe came tumbling downstairs fastening the belt of his shorts as he came. He made a bee-line for the kitchen. Pop was already sitting at the table, reading the paper, while Mom held the handle of the frying-pan over the stove. Small Joe came close and sniffed the delicious smoke, wriggling all over with early-morning joy.

"Better be thankful for them while you can still get them." One glance at Mom's face told small Joe this was one of her tight-lipped days. "Not a drop of coffee in the house, and no sugar left to put in it if there was. Some war!" Small Joe kept still.

"Letter for you son?" Pop said in his quiet voice. Small Joe made a leap for his place at table. There it was, a private personal letter for him alone, propped against his milk glass.

"Hey, Pop! It's from brother!" Small Joe was pulling the envelope apart and diving into the contents.

"Hey, look what he sent me." He passed over an oblong of thick, crinkly paper while he leaned over the sheet of writing-paper.

"A twenty-five dollar War Bond." Pop said slowly. Mom turned and looked at it over Pop's shoulder, with the frying-pan in her hand.

"Listen what he says. 'How are you doing, kid? Hurry and grow up so you can help me slap the Japs. Aren't you most big enough to get into the Army? Here's something for you in your name. Let's the whole family gang up and help to win this war.'"

Pop and Mom were silent. But small Joe didn't notice that. He was full of his letter and his War Bond.

"Gee, Pop, in six years I could get into the Army, couldn't I, Pop?" "Gee, Pop, I want to be a soldier like brother and fight in this war. Gee, isn't that bond nifty? Look, it was issued in Honolulu. It's mine!"

But Pop was looking at Mom and Mom was looking at Pop. There were tears in Mom's eyes. She shook her head sharply. Pop reached out and patted her hand gently.

"Well, can't let our soldier boy beat us to buying War Bonds, can we, old lady?" was all he said.

She shook her head again. "I guess he can give up his job and go off to war. I can do some fighting back at home," she said in a queer voice. Small Joe looked up at her in surprise. She saw him looking at her and spoke sharply.

"Well, Joe, we're about ready to eat. Say grace."

Small Joe folded his hands and bent his head as he had been taught. "Oh Lord, we thank thee for this food and all thy bountiful gifts..."

"Amen," Pop said. "Now eat your good sausages."
