Prominent Young Farmer Is Fataally Beaten In Brutal Attack

Jewell Tankersly, 28, prominent young farmer of the O'Brien section, died in the Knox City hospital at 8:25 last Thursday evening from injuries suffered when he was attacked and brutally beaten by a 24-year-old employee on the Tankersly farm, Max C. Westerman, an Army deserter who had been working for Mr. Tankersly under an assumed name.

Funeral rites for Mr. Tankersly were held at the First Baptist Church in Knox City Friday afternoon with Rev. Floyd Bailey, pastor of the Four Square Gospel church officiating. Burial was in the Knox City cemetery.

In addition to his wife, Mr. Tankersly is survived by his father, E. H. Tankersly, Sr., and three brothers.

The attack occurred about 2:30 Thursday afternoon in a garage on the Tankersly farm, where Westerman and his employer were making adjustments on farm machinery. There were no witnesses to the slaying, and Mrs. Tankersly discovered her husband, fatally injured, after hearing groans in the garage.

She carried Mr. Tankersly to the hospital in Knox City, where he died without regaining consciousness.

Westerman allegedly attempted to commit suicide after the brutal attack on his employer, officers learned when they investigated the slaying. Haskell county officers, Acting Sheriff Jim Isbell and Deputy Bud Thompson took custody of Westerman, who also had been carried to Knox City and returned him to the Haskell county jail.

Following death of Mr. Tankersly, a charge of murder with malice was filed against Westerman, and in a preliminary hearing.

TOTALS GIVEN ON ATTENDANCE AT LOCAL CHURCHES

Sunday School and Church Service Attendance Are Totaled

In connection with the designation of June as "Go-to-Church Month" in a movement sponsored by the Haskell Lions Club, tabulation of attendance records for last Sunday, first Sabbath in the month, indicated that 1,623 persons attended Sunday School, morning and evening worship services in all Haskell churches but one, which did not report attendance at the various services held Sunday.

Tabulation of the attendance records for the churches reporting reveals a small attendance at evening services Sunday, when the weather was threatening and services at some churches were dismissed for the evening.

Combined attendance at Sunday School in the churches reporting was listed at 701, and for the morning worship and preaching service, 767. Attendance at the Sunday evening service in these churches was 155.

Comparative records are not available, but church leaders and sponsors of the "Go-to-Church Month" believe that attendance on the first Sunday in June is on a par, or above, attendance on previous Sundays after taking into account the unfavorable weather prevailing last Sunday.

RAIN, WINDSTORM BRINGS 1.25 INCH OF MOISTURE HERE

Heaviest Rain in Months Drenches This Section Sunday Night

The heaviest downpour received in this section in several months drenched Haskell and surrounding vicinity Sunday night with one and one-fourth inch of rainfall accompanied by strong winds and electrical disturbance.

The downpour here was reported general over the county, with estimates of precipitation ranging from an inch to two inches or more in spots. Lightest rainfall was in the extreme south-east portion of the county, according to reports.

In general, Sunday night's rain was welcomed in filling surface tanks and providing needed moisture in sections of the county where moisture was needed to bring on cotton and feed which had barely reached an early stand.

Hard winds accompanying the rain Sunday night caused some property damage, principally in the area northwest of Haskell. At Rochester the large cotton warehouse at the Shaver Gia was wrecked by the wind, small farm buildings and barns in that section were damaged. Damage from the high winds was reported extending into the Foster community and several barns and out-buildings suffered damage.

Hoppers Making Appearance in Parts of County

Grasshoppers are beginning to make their appearance in large numbers in the east and southeast sections of the county, according to reports being made to the County Agent's office.

The insects present a threat of damage to field crops in that section if prompt measures to control the infestation are not taken in the near future.

Taking note of the threatened crop damage, the County USDA War Board has made arrangement for shipments of bran to local dealers that may be used in mixing poison for the insects, and local dry stores will have a supply of white arsenic available for farmers wanting to mix the poison. Most commonly used mixture effective against grasshoppers consists of 100 pounds of bran, 5 pounds white arsenic, and 2 gallons of cheap molasses syrup.

Pressure Cooker Output Increased

COLLEGE STATION. — Additional pressure cookers plus specific dollars and cents ceiling prices on this year's models have been announced by the Texas USDA war board.

The new quota of 125,000 pressure cookers brings this year's projected production to 275,000, which exceeds the output of any previous year.

Ceiling prices from retailers to consumers on cookers made by the National Pressure Company, Wisconsin Aluminum Company and Burpee Can Sealer Company are $13.90, $14.90, and $15.90, respectively, except the counties which have been designated in the Far Western Zone, B. F. Vance, chairman of the board, said.

Texas counties in the Far Western Zone, which has been granted higher ceilings because of higher transportation costs, are El Paso, Hudspeth, Culberson, Jeff Davis, Presidio, Brewster, Terrell, Pecos and Reeves. Ceiling prices in these counties are $14.50, $15.50 and $16.50, respectively, for the National, Wisconsin and Burpee cookers.

Each cooker sold under the dollars and cents ceiling will carry a 90-day guarantee, Vance said, and added that application should be made to OPA for a specific maximum price for canners not carrying the guarantee.

On the basis of reports from manufacturers, approximately 31,000 of the original 150,000 pressure cookers were distributed to retailers by June 1. With additional manufacturing capacity coming into operation, the production for June will be about 55,000 and in July about 60,000, with the remainder ready for the fall canning season.

The rationing of pressure cookers, which was delegated to county farm rationing committees several weeks ago, aims at placing the cookers where they will be used to maximum capacity in preserving foods this year.

Applications for purchase pressure cookers must be filed with county rationing committees. The eligibility of applicants to purchase new cookers is based on probable output of canned food from the cooker this year.

Explaining the plan of distribution, Vance said "After applications are filed with county rationing committees, the applicant will be notified that he has been placed on the eligible list. When

It's A People's War

We are paying more in taxes than ever before... and likely will pay more. But we cannot rely on taxes to finance the war. It would not be fair to have a tax on the average single family income when many families have more than one income. We could borrow all the money from the banks, but for both economic and social reasons this is undesirable. The government would then sacrifice its greatest dam against inflation. This is a People's War and the people should finance it. The people WANT to finance it. Sale of War Bonds has mounted consistently since Pearl Harbor. They give their lives... You lend your money.

Canada's Guns are Heard 'Round the World

THE roar of Canada's guns is being heard today all around the world, on land, on sea and in the air. Foreign to Canadian industry before the war, gun manufacture is now being carried out in scores of plants from coast to coast. Heaviest land gun built in the Dominion is the mighty 3.7 inch ack-ack gun. Many of these are defending England's coasts and cities from Axis air attacks. Canada is now manufacturing more than 1,000,000 shells every month, together with great quantities of aerial bombs, trench mortar bombs, and anti-tank mines. Production of shells comprises 28 different calibres. A great variety and quantity of shell components are also made. In production are 500-lb. aerial bombs, practice bombs, depth charges, anti-tank mines, grenades, pyrotechnics, etc. National factories turned out their 2,000,000,000th round of small arms ammunition during February. Small arms ammunition now produced is of 22 types of nine calibres. This ammunition is made for every type of small arms being produced in the Dominion. Both go to more than 50 different destinations in every part of the world for the many battlefields of this global war. The energy and productive facilities engaged in the production of small arms ammunition may be gauged from the fact that one of these calibres alone — the .303 — takes more than 50 separate operations to complete. Before the war 500 persons were employed making small arms ammunition in one plant. There are now 30,000 workers in two government arsenals and plants being operated for the government by private industry.

Side Glances On Texas History

Tall Tales and 'Would Be' Aristocrats Then, as now Texans had little use for the poseur, the pretender, the man who 'put on airs.' Then as now, they had simple but effective methods for deflating the braggart.

One of the poses for which the early Texas colonists felt most contempt was that of some newcomer who persisted in trying to impress 'us' rough, ragged old settlers, who have worn out our clothes and our constitutions in the service of the country, that they have great deal of wealth in the States which they are going on after as soon as they find a situation to suit them.

Dewees' letters to an unnamed friend back in the States, dating from 1815 to 1850, were compiled and published by Clara Cardelle in 1853. A copy of this little volume, which traces the entire course of Texas colonization, the war for independence, and annexation, is in the 30,000-volume Teras Collection of the University of Texas Library.

Dewees' recollections in a letter dated Colorado River, November 6, 1831, an episode that occurred in a San Felipe tavern: 'One day there were quite a number of these aristocrats who seem to think themselves better than those who are worn out by toil and hardships, seated at the dinner table in a sort of tavern kept by a man named William Pettis, or Buck Pettis, as he was always called, at San Felipe; these persons were boasting largely of their wealth, their land, their negroes, the ships they had at sea, &c. There was at the table an old man by the name of Macfarland, a don't care sort of a fellow, who had married a Mexican wife, and was living on the Brazos when we first came to the country. He listened to them quietly for a while; at length he could restrain himself no longer. Well, gentlemen, he said, I too once commenced telling that I had left a large property in the States, and, in fact, gentlemen, I told the story so often, that at length I really believed it true, and eventually started to go for it. Well, I traveled on very happily till I reached the Sabine river, which separates this country from the States. On its bank I paused, and now for the first time began to ask myself seriously, what am I doing? Why am I here! I have no property in the States, and if I had if I crossed the river 'tis at the risk of my life, for I was obliged to flee to this country to escape the punishment of the laws. I had better return and live in safety as I have done. I did so, gentlemen, and since then have been contented without telling of the wealth I left in the States. The relation of this story so expiated those for whose benefit it was told, that they fell upon the old gentleman and would have done him injury had it not been for the interference of his friends. This, however, put a stop to long yarns.'

MORALS OF HOUSTON — It must be a subject of peculiar gratification to those interested in the welfare of Houston, to learn that the morals of this city will now bear a comparison with those of the best regulated cities of the United States. For several months, not a single serious quarrel or brawl has disgraced our streets, and drunkards are as rare as snow-birds. The most delicate ladies can now promenade in all the principal streets and public squares, without the danger and mortification of hearing angry and coarse wrangling, or seeing miserable fools with bloody noses beating each other's faces, or howling each other with bowie knives. The milder influences of good breeding and true politeness have assumed their way, and our citizens now meet each other with their countenances not darkened with the forbidding frowns of hatred and suspicion, but illumined with the cheerful smiles of friendship and confidence. — TELEGRAPH and TEXAS REGISTER (Houston), April 13, 1842 (University of Texas Library facilities are available to all Texas citizens upon request).

STEPHENVILLE.—The second successive war time summer semester was officially opened at John Tarleton Agricultural College Monday, May 31. Many high school graduates of this section of the state are taking advantage of the opportunity afforded them at Tarleton to enter immediately in their college training. Also many high school students are availing themselves of the chance to do a semester of high school work during the summer vacation period of their local high schools. All courses of study, including military science and tactics, are being offered during the summer semester. Among the students enrolled for the summer semester are James Morton Breedlove, Ana Mae Brooks, Jerry Cahill, of Haskell and Frances Kupatt, of Sagerton.

Righting her was one of the most spectacular jobs of salvage done in the harbor. The battleship had capsized at an angle of 151 1/2 degrees—leaving her practically upside down. New Texas Almanac Lists Many Economic and Social Changes

Great economic and social changes are revealed in data presented by the 1943-1944 edition of the Texas Almanac, which has just been published by The Dallas Morning News. Approximately 400,000 rural Texans have shifted to urban residence and vocation since the census of 1940. For the first time in the history of the state, the majority of population is now urban, according to information in the new volume. More remarkable, relatively, has been the industrial expansion due to the founding of munitions, rubber, ship-building, aviation and other war industries. Texas' manufacturing output has expanded as much during the last three years as in all preceding history.

Mineral production has also been greatly stimulated. Last official figure on value of all minerals produced was $954,211,150 in 1941, placing Texas far ahead of any other state. On basis of partial reports, the Texas Almanac estimates total value of minerals produced in 1942 was more than one billion dollars. While petroleum, natural gas and natural gasolene counted for most of the production, Texas would rank high among the states without the oil group. During the last two years, there has been rapid increase in the number of minerals produced in Texas, and in 1942 there was commercial output of more than sixty different kinds.

Next to the greatly increased manufacturing and mining production, military activity has had most notable effect on recent Texas developments. While reasons of military secrecy prevent release of some information, the new Texas Almanac lists twenty-two major Army camps, in addition to which there are more than fifty Army aviation fields. At San Antonio and Corpus Christi, the Army and Navy have, respectively, their greatest air training centers.

While the chapters on military activities and industrial exansion are the principal means of current interest, the new Texas Almanac is essentially the all-round reference book that it has been, ranging through the whole field of Texas' historical, civic and economic data. The date of the battle of the Alamo, the cotton production of Jones County, the name of the State Comptroller, the number of deer killed in Texas in 1942 and thousands of other classes of information in as widely diversified fields can be found on its pages. The Texas Almanac is a biennial publication, and the new volume is for the two years, 1943 and 1944. It is bound in paper at 60c on newsstands, 75c by mail; also in cloth at $1 on newsstands and $1.15 by mail.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Down in the Solomons and on the African coasts the Crocodile Boat or tank lighter played a most important role in landing our invasion armies. These self-propelled, light fast boats haul tanks, artillery and other equipment from the big ships off-shore to the beach heads.

We need more and more of them, for they are essential to the successful operation of the war. They are made in several sizes from small fifty-footers, costing about $2,400 to the big 500-tonners costing around $37,000. Your purchase of War Bonds every payday will help pay for them. U. S. "By pushing a button, She's good as a MAN!"

She: And what do you mean, Reddy Kilowatt—"Good as a man"? Reddy: No offense, lady! Just this: 5 feet 1 from your 4A slippers to your spun-gold hair. You love flower-hats, veils, smooth orchestras—and, maybe, being kissed by a boy now in North Africa. But, man, oh man, how you can handle that big and heavy press! She: What's strange about that? Reddy: How can 110 pounds of beauty boss 147,000 pounds of steel? Is it magic? She: Oh, no, dummy! It's simple. Electricity does the heavy work. Push a button... or flick a switch... or pull a lever. I learned to do that at home... long before the war. Electricity makes it possible for women to do men's work— Reddy: Then the secret of our great war production is electric power plus woman-power— She: Certainly. Women are able to work beside men, or replace them, on America's roaring production lines because they learned to use electric service in the home. Call it magic if you like. But to me it's just good old common horse-sense!

The West Texas Utilities is helping make America power-full... helping provide this country with the world's greatest supply of electric power... power that enables women to do a man's work just as it has eliminated household drudgery and hard labor from the average West Texas home. And more and more women are helping us give you the same good, dependable service you got before the war... and at the same low cost and without rationing. Sixty-seven per cent more women were on our payroll June 1 than in 1940. The continued efficiency and dependability of Electric Service is in no small measure a tribute to woman-power.

Army Engineers Rescue Flood Victims

When the White river in Arkansas broke its banks and flooded the adjacent country, United States Army engineers came to the rescue. This photo shows an amphibious jeep driving up to a front porch to rescue a family of flooded out residents. The top of a partially submerged automobile may be seen over the edge of the jeep.

Before It Met the Allies

A Nazi Mark VI tank is shown plowing through a house in this photo from a German propaganda magazine. This is one of the very few good pictures of this tank to reach America. Most of the other pictures show the tank after it has tangled with Allied equipment, been knocked out of action, damaged, and captured. Note here that its long high velocity gun is turned back over its tail to avoid injury.

Notes From the Red Cross Work Room

The Surgical Dressing Room

So far this month only 27 Haskell women have worked in the surgical dressing room. Knowing that the invasion of Europe is expected at any time, and that thousands of our boys will be wounded and will need surgical dressings, surely the women do not realize what their help means in this work. If twenty women would work each day the June quota could be finished on time.

Another shipment of material for 37,200 dressings is expected early in July.

The workroom is open Tuesday evenings, 7:30 to 10:00 and Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons.

Those who worked last week were: Mesdms. R. C. Lowe, Jno. W. Pace, J. V. Hudson, Lanham Williams, Henry Dobbins, J. M. Waggoner, C. L. Lewis, B. N. Orr, J. T. Ellis, H. J. Hambleton, Edid Cass, McNeely, Joe Jones, Wiley Quattlebaum, Theron Cahill, W. P. Railiff, F. T. Sanders, S. A. Norris, C. G. Stark, O. L. Darden, H. M. Bledsoe, J. E. Banks, Lynn Pace Sr., G. W. Gholson Geo. Neely, Henry Atkeison and Miss Wynell Hellums.

HINTS ON PRESERVING FOOD

One slice of bread molds, one carrot shrivels — multiply that by the Nation's 34 million homes. Fight food waste on the home front.

Store to save. Find out how each food keeps best, and store each article in the right, and correctly cared for, cupboard, cooler, can, or jar.

Keep bread and cake in ventilated containers, scalded, sunned, and aired once a week.

Cover fresh meat loosely. Wipe with damp cloth just before cooking. If ground, store in extra cool place and cook soon.

Fish and other sea foods spoil in a few hours at room temperature. Cool at once, or wrap in wax paper to keep odor from other food, and store very cold.

Don't wash eggs before storing. Water destroys the protective film that keeps out air and odors. Wipe eggs off with dry, rough cloth. Store eggs in open bowl or wire basket in a cool place.

The fresher a vegetable when it is used, the better the taste, the less the waste, and the more vitamins retained.

To hold the sweet in corn, peas, and lima beans and to keep snap beans fresh, keep them cold. Let them stay in the pod or husk unless you can store them tightly covered in refrigerator.

Cauliflower, brussels sprouts and broccoli lose freshness faster than cabbage. Leave them uncut; keep cold and not too long.

To keep berries, cherries, grapes tip/bp, store in a tray in a cold place. Wash before using.

The natural sugar in fruits keeps them from spoiling. Store them in a tin or jar in a cool place. Warm weather for worms of vils.

Crisp cookies and crackers kept with bread and cake, them in airtight tins or boxes of their own.

Go To Church, Anyway?

With a Biblical character, "I AM A DOG" has many good points. Who is it that has the faithfulness of the dog? The dog takes his country. The dog is with the heroic and faithful dog. Indeed, the dog is fighting for his country. He is not a dog—I will make in the image of an immortal soul. The dog is established to preserve the spirit of the church was established by Christ and commissioned to carry it out. The dog is immortal, and is worth saving. The dog is on the work of individuals compose the church that has the storm of time and the posterity to live by. It is that has been the spark of the church that has the social fabric and the virtues of man- the churches and we would soon be severed from each other; the governments of the past. Deeds never survive and among heathens. GO TO CHURCH? The church is composed of the best of society because of society is associating with the church and the church was ever made worse to the church. The church is morally, what the food is, physically. Our church is cooperating with the First Christian Church and the First Presbyterian Church in the Union Cottage Prayer Service to be conducted next week, prior to the Union Revival. Prayer services will be conducted Tuesday night at the home of Miss May Fields; Wednesday night at the home of Mrs. R. E. Sherrill; Thursday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Harrison.

Christian Scientists Place Prayer at Top Weapon List

The Christian Science board of directors Monday placed "prayer" at the top of the list of defensive and offensive weapons that free-thinking peoples are counting upon to win the global war against oppression and suppression. Because of the gasoline and transportation shortages, the attendance was more localized than it has been for many years. But the reports heard from the broad field of Christian Science activities indicated that demands for spiritual enlightenment were as universal as ever, only growing more and more pronounced under the stress of world conditions. From the armed services and along the home front, the reports revealed unusual demands for church literature, hinging upon an increasing effort to bring prayer to bear upon the crucial tests of the times.

LOOKING AHEAD

Farm Income

Farmers in the United States never have been able to collect fair pay for their work. When I say "fair pay" I mean as much reward for honest, effective effort as other men of similar skill get for what they do. The nearest they ever came getting equitable return for what they did was back in 1917 when the average farm worker earned 84 per cent as much as the average industrial employee. Many famous ups and downs have occurred since 1919 but the earnings of farm workers experienced the roughest ride of all. In 1932 farm wages were only 23 per cent of industrial wages, on the average, and in 1942 farm pay averaged 60 per cent of industrial pay. In other words, farm workers are in a better relative position now than they were ten years ago but their pay still does not approximate factory pay and there is no justification for the difference. As this column has said before, farming is a skilled occupation and a hard one.

A Ray of Hope

It was a long stride in the right direction when the President of the United States began last March 30 to call leaders of the four principal farm organizations into conference. Many farmers think agricultural problems have been pretty badly muddled. They think farm experts should have been called much earlier to help set up a better farm program, and they hope now that a series of regular discussions has begun and will not end until the most serious tangles in the nation's food problem have been straightened out. Albert S. Goss, Grange; Edward A. O'Neal, Farm Bureau; James G. Patton, Farmers Union, and Ezra T. Benson, Cooperatives, all attended the first conference and the second on April 7, expressing themselves freely to Mr. Roosevelt. Interested listeners included the food czar, Chester C. Davis and Claude R. Wickard. It is my impression that until then, men with practical farming knowledge had been consulted far too little in forming national farm policies.

The First Fruits

America's big food problem can not be set right in a few hours by any set of conferees, but these very first meetings accomplished much toward building moral courage. The farmers I know need a great many things, such as help, machinery and fertilizer, but the stuff they needed most, early in the year, was hope. Now, to say the least, they are more encouraged. Although the spokesmen for agriculture were not in complete agreement on methods their objectives were the same and they took a rational attitude toward the question of farm prices. One of them, Ezra Benson, emphasized that "parity" is no longer an issue; even price (as an end in itself) is not an issue. "The big objective," he said, "is to get food production, and price is only a means to this end." These words bespeak real patriotism.

AAA Penalty Is Lifted In Most Texas Counties

COLLEGE STATION. — Texas farmers were given additional encouragement to plan for maximum production when the $15 per acre penalty for failure to meet 90 percent of their war-crop goals was lifted this week. The penalty no longer will apply in the majority of Texas counties, but it will remain in effect in 19 Panhandle counties where hay and pasture goals have been established. E. F. Vance, administrative officer of the AAA, explained. In these counties, he continued, the $15 per acre deduction will apply only to those farmers on which the county AAA committee decide that abnormal weather conditions have not interfered with achieving the farm's war-crop goal. Counties included are Dallam, Deaf Smith, Hansford, Hartley, Moore, Oldham, Sherman, Carson and Castro. Others in the same area are: Gray, Hemphill, Hutchinson, Lipscomb, Ochiltree, Parmer, Potter, Randall, Roberts and Wheeler. Announced by the War Food Administration lifting of the penalty is designed to help offset recent unfavorable weather conditions throughout the nation. Elimination of the deduction provision gives farmers opportunity to make such adjustments as are necessary to plant the needed crops adapted to changed conditions and still qualify for such payments as are available. "Since incentive payments have been withdrawn from several warcrops, many Texas farmers felt that the penalty also should be withdrawn," Vance declared. He said that in his opinion farmers still would meet the war-crop goals they had pledged on individual farm plan sheets. Principal warcrops on which $15 deduction formerly applied are grain sorghums, soybeans for beans, peanuts for all purposes, flax, Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, and dry edible beans.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

Repentance must be something more than mere remorse for sins; it comprehends a change of nature befitting heaven.—Lew Wallace.

On the Home Front

Casualty lists are an inescapable part of war, but there is one casualty list to which no little attention is paid either in peace or war. It is the toll of the lives lost in accidents in the homes, the factories, the mines, the steel plants, and on the farms of the United States. In 1942, according to the statistics of the National Safety Council, 93,000 persons were killed and 350,000 others were permanently disabled in accidents. Aside from the innumerable personal tragedies involved, this is a staggering loss of manpower at a time when our armed forces, our war plants and our farms are crying for men.

The American Red Cross is playing an important part in the nation-wide effort to reduce this drain. Twelve hundred Red Cross chapters, scattered throughout the United States, are now giving farm and home accident prevention courses to teach people to avoid hazards. The Red Cross has organized 1,200 First Aid Detachments with 23,000 trained members. In homes, stores, apartment houses, office buildings, along the nation's highways it has established 2,800 emergency first aid stations, while 10,000 mobile first aid units, adequately equipped and operated by drivers trained in first aid, are kept in readiness to speed wherever they may be needed. And the enormous number of 5,500,000 persons received Red Cross certificates in first aid last year. Although most of these volunteers doubtless had in mind the danger of air raids, the knowledge they acquired will be helpful in coping with a great many accidental injuries.

Much has been done by industry in recent years to safeguard its workers from the dangers inherent in its machines. Last year the number of fatal accidents in homes and on the highways was far greater than the total in the nation's workshops. The Red Cross program is of special value in combating these perils, because it reaches vast numbers of persons who never enter factory gates.—The New York Times.

Save Puerto Rico

There is a bill before Congress to grant independence to the island of Puerto Rico. Anything that suggests independence for any country today has an appeal, and therein lies one of the dangers of this proposal. The people of the United States are totally unfamiliar with Puerto Rico and what it means to this nation. They do not realize it is a territory of the United States and can be the 49th state. It is therefore of the utmost importance that the widest possible understanding of this issue be gained immediately.

Puerto Rico is one of our most important island bases. It guards the Panama Canal and provides a point from which we could intercept an enemy attacking our eastern coast.

There are foreign powers that would like to see Puerto Rico given so-called independence on the chance they could gobble it up.

Talk about "freeing" our fellow citizens in Puerto Rico, 99 per cent of whom are citizens of the United States, and 50 per cent of whom are natural born citizens of this country, is fantastic.

The representative of Puerto Rico in our Congress recommends statehood for the island.

It would be costly folly to cast our island possessions adrift. They are a fortified ring around our nation. They have real freedom and protection under our government.

Instead of throwing Puerto Rico away under a false banner of independence, we would better give it statehood, as advocated in both the Republican and Democratic national platforms of 1940, and add a new star to our flag.

The danger of allowing any island outpost of the American continent to fall into the hands of another power is illustrated by our loss of Kiska and Attu.

Invisible Bombing

Industrial fire losses are mounting steadily. Typical examples are a grain elevator in California and one in Texas. Enough grain was lost to take care of the cereal requirements of an army of 600,000 men for a year. A Wisconsin plant making veneer for aircraft suffered a fire loss of half a million dollars. A Maryland concern manufacturing rubber and canvas footwear for jungle troops had a $560,000 fire. And so on, throughout the country. If the enemy bombers were doing a fraction of the damage that fire does every day, a good many people would think we were taking the beating of our lives.

Fortunately, there are agencies which are keenly aware of the industrial fire menace. Among them is the fire insurance industry, which continuously carries on the battle of fire prevention. Since September, 1940, the National Board of Fire Underwriters, in addition to its manifold activities in civilian fire prevention, has maintained in the War Department in Washington, an Advisory Bureau on Fire Protection to which engineers have been assigned on a full-time basis. Augmented by nearly 100 engineers from other insurance organizations, they form a corps of highly qualified fire inspection specialists immediately available for government projects. These engineers have made a total of 2,000 inspections of approximately 600 Army and affiliated projects. They have collaborated in development of the best possible fire protection standards in cantonments, training centers, hospitals, ordnance plants and depots, chemical warfare plants and storage depots. Without their tireless efforts the fire damage could be easily disastrous in hard-pressed war establishments where fire hazards have increased due to the very nature of war products and emergency methods of production.

WAACs DRIVE 'EM... WAMs REPAIR 'EM

All over the country, patriotic women are leaving homes and offices to take up important war duties. Above, WAAC members of the Army's Motor Transport Section learn to drive trucks in preparation for the time they'll be operating big 2 1/2 ton GMC "six by sixes" in actual field service. Right, new members of the Women's Automotive Maintenance Staff gain practical experience in truck maintenance and repair at the General Motors Truck and Coach Kansas City branch, while taking the mechanic's training course in a nearby vocational school. The WAM organization is sponsored by the National Automobile Dealers Association.

Bureaucratic Blight

Early in December 1942 this column offered a pointed protest to a federal law calling for the renegotiation of war contracts. What I wrote at that time aroused a deal of criticism. My article was frankly a forecast, saying what was likely to result from trying to enforce the Renegotiation Law. I am no prophet. I only wish I had been able to foresee the worst. The law is a year old now and a Senate committee has learned and told part of the sad story.

Discussing the needlessly rapid growth of government bureaus, I wrote: "The law governing the renegotiation of war contracts will (by itself) create four boards, many branch offices and possibly 200,000 jobs for auditors, investigators, etc."

In this same connection I mentioned that an estimated 100,000 married men had been needed to fill the November draft quota; i.e., every man of draft age who took a soft government job exposed one more husband and father to military service.

Figures Disputed
After the article was published, an administration man whom I admire, a man of unquestioned competence and patriotism, assured me with emphasis that only a small fraction of the 200,000 jobs I had suggested would actually be created by the Renegotiation law. I do not know how many men finally were assigned to this job of fighting windmills but the pace set during the first ten months indicates that between 300 and 400 years will be required for its completion. This is true if the report of the Senate committee headed by Harry S. Truman of Missouri can be trusted, and I think it can.

Hearing that an unnecessary government bureau (composed of fewer men than was first feared) is hopelessly swamped with details, would be too small a matter to worry anybody, except for the fact that the very existence of the law hinders the war effort. It keeps contractors in a quandary that slows down production of military necessities; postpones victory.

The Actual Figures
The Renegotiation Law authorizes and directs the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy, the Secretary of the Treasury and the Chairman of the Maritime Commission, whenever in his opinion excessive profits have been realized, or are likely to be realized, from any war contract, to recover such excess profits and revise the contract price.

Ignoring what, to one who is not a lawyer, looks like an unconstitutional assignment of judicial authority to executive officers, the law made some 85,000 separate contractors subject to its provisions. At last count, 203 of these had been obliged to do-over their government contracts; too many, but less than 1/4 of 1% of the 85,000. Progressing at this rate they will get through some time before the middle of the next millennium unless, as I suggested in December, they build up an enormous bureaucracy.

Not Worth Doing
Careful study of this renegotiation work proves the law worthless as a revenue measure. Take the War

Messrs. S. W. Scott and G. R. Couch with their families and Misses Letta Simmons, Zora Sanders and Ola Fitzgerald spent several days this week on Paint Creek fishing. They report having caught lots of fish.

Department as an example: 4. auditors have refigured contracts totaling 8.6 billion dollars and claim to have recovered for Uncle Sam 300 million dollars. This looks big on the deceiving face of it, but actually 80% to 90% of this revenue would have come in quite automatically through the excess profits tax that was working satisfactorily when the federal "Renig Law" was passed. Net recovery therefore has been 60 million dollars or 7/10 of 1% of the amounts involved.

The worst feature of the ill-conceived affair is that manufacturers have to turn their attentions from production of military essentials and let our fighting men wait while they palaver with government auditors. One manufacturer of five-inch gun mounts for steamships said recently, addressing the American Legion convention, "We shut down our plants two weeks to take a fiscal inventory essential to a formal audit. The historic display prepared for the Price Adjusting Board blacked out our drafting room for more than ten days."

A Tragic Ending
He went on: "The time wasted by management in renegotiating has resulted in a loss of at least 100 five-inch Merchant mounts which Secretary Knox says are the finest anti-aircraft weapon in the world. These 100 gun mounts which were not produced because of renegotiation would have adequately protected 100 Merchant Ships from enemy airplanes and submarines. And, I guess, that at least forty more of these cargo ships would have reached Murmansk instead of being sunk if they had been protected by these five-inch guns."

A loss of 40 merchant ships which the speaker said cost at least one billion dollars with their cargoes, would certainly dwarf the contemporary effort of bullet-proof bureaucrats to glean 60 million dollars the tedious way from builders of war materials. A small increase in the corporation tax rate would have raised the money without putting a monkey-wrench in the works.

And now there are 846,000 men of draft age on the government payroll in civilian clothes, the Costello Congressional Committee has revealed.

Weekly Health Letter

By Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer

AUSTIN.—The common disease, popularly known as athlete's foot is said to be the third most common disease seen by skin specialists during the summer, and the fifth most common disorder in winter. It is due to a little mold-like growth or fungus which thrives best where there is moisture and warm h. Therefore the feet make an ideal place for the growth of this germ.

"To have athlete's foot, the infection must be gotten either directly or indirectly from someone else," states Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer. "The most common places to contract the infection are around shower rooms, bath or bath houses, locker rooms, and other public places where persons go barefoot. And it is probable that at least one-half of all adults suffer from the infection at some time."

Dr. Cox suggested the following as some measures for preventing and avoiding recurrent attacks of athlete's foot:

1. Dry carefully and thoroughly the spaces between the toes.
2. Use a mild alcoholic solution on these areas after drying.
3. Liberally apply a plain, un-scented talcum to those areas and sprinkle it freely in socks, stockings, and shoes.
4. Wear socks that are absorbent but not too coarse. Shoes should be well fitting but not too tight; sufficiently roomy but not enough to chafe and rub.

Don't try to store much flour and cereal over the hot months—buy less and oftener.

Save fruit juices for cold drinks.

OVEN CANNING

1. Be sure that the oven heat can be accurately controlled.
2. Preheat and maintain oven temperature at 250 degrees, making sure that temperature does not build up during the processing time.
3. Use only tempered jars and check them to see that none are cracked or nicked around the rim.
4. Count processing time from the time oven door is closed. In filling jar, have at least one-half inch headroom at top.
5. In removing from the oven, be careful that cold air does not strike the hot jars. Place them on several thicknesses of towel out of drafts until they have cooled to prevent breakage.
6. Complete seal immediately upon removing jars from oven if necessary.

Sgt. Robert Reeves Transferred To Barksdale Field

Sgt. Robert C. Reeves, son of Mrs. R. E. Reeves of this city, was recently transferred to Barksdale Field, La., where he is attached to a squadron of the Army Air force which is under the command of General Doolittle. In the following interesting letter, Sgt. Reeves tells of his thrill over being sent to Barksdale Field:

Dear Mother:
Well, I finally got here and am settled for a few days. We expect to move over to our squadron in a few days but will still be at Barksdale Field.

I was really surprised when I found out where I was coming to as I figured I would go to some replacement center and then be sent to a squadron.

It's common sense to be thrifty. If you save you are thrifty. War Bonds help you to save and help to save America. Buy your ten percent every pay day.

This is a swell place. Everything was built before the war started and everything is so nice. There is a swimming pool and all the amusement that a fellow wants. And another thing, I am not so far from home. I don't think that it is more than 400 miles from here to Haskell and it is only twenty miles to the Texas border from here.

I will be here at least three months and maybe longer. It all depends how long the squadron stays here after we get the crew and everything together. Most of the three months will be school work in refresher courses in the morning and Aerial Gunnery and also I get advanced Gunnery here, too. By the way, here is something that might interest you. This squadron is under the command of General Doolittle so I expect to see something of him along the line. The planes are Martin B-26's which are honeys. In my estimation they are the best medium bombers in the world today. They are twin engine jobs that have plenty of speed and power. I have thought all along that I had rather be on one of them than anything else, and it seems that I will get my wish. I have my silver wings and expert gunner's medal to wear now so I am beginning a collection of stripes and jewelry now. My score at Apalatchicola was better than anything at Tyndall, so I have second highest score in the entire class.

I went sightseeing in New Orleans yesterday. Visited the old French Colony, and there are certainly some sights to be seen there. . . . Also crossed the Mississippi river on a ferry boat just to be able to say I had done that.

Slaying—

ing held Saturday, the accused man was denied bond and remanded to jail to await action of the Grand Jury.

Admits Slaying
Westerman said in a statement made Friday to District Attorney Fred Stockdale that he was an Army deserter, that he tried to commit suicide after his act by jumping in a well and then throwing himself under a moving tractor.

"I am not sorry, I had nothing to lose; the Army was looking for me anyway. I don't want to go back," Westerman was quoted as saying. His statement also recited that both his parents and his parents-in-law had sought to get him to surrender to Army authorities.

Westerman's statement recited that he was on a maneuver post with the 931st signal battalion, A.F.C. near Leesville, La. April 6 when he got a pass to go to Leesville. There, he said, he bought a bus ticket to Ardmore, where his 15-year-old wife was residing with her parents, and then took her to Fort Worth and thence to Graham, where his own parents reside. On April 13 he reached Knox City and got a job as a farm hand for Tankersley and he and his wife moved into a tenant house on Tankersley's farm.

Westerman said that when he went to Haskell to get his ration book he gave the name Melvin Ernest Westbrook and had been going under that name.

His wife left him, he said, and he blamed Tankersley. Officers said Tankersley apparently had paid no attention to his charges in this respect.

Westerman said he walked up behind Tankersley Thursday afternoon in the garage at the latter's house and hit him on the head with a wrench from behind. "I caught him by the shoulder and hit him again and he fell," said the statement, "but he did not lose consciousness. I hit him a third time and he lost consciousness. I hit him four or five times."

In the statement given District Attorney Stockdale, Westerman admitted that he maimed the body of his employer after beating him into insensibility, using a small pocket knife taken from the body of his victim.

Westerman said he went to the back of the garage and threw the wrench down and then laid his registration and social security cards on a sack of maize "so they'd know who I was and could get in touch with my folks."

The accused youth said he then went to a well east of the barn, laid his purse and New Testament on the well curbing and jumped in the well. "I tried to drown myself but my hands would hold on to the pipe and I climbed out," he explained.

He then went to an adjoining field where Dub Bailey was running a tractor and jumped on the side and told Bailey he had killed Tankersley, the statement continued.

Bailey asked him what he was going to do, and he told him he was going to go under the tractor, the youth declared to the district attorney.

"I told him if he didn't believe I had killed him to go see for himself. I jumped down in front of the tractor and he stopped and told me not to do that because it might get him in trouble," Westerman continued. Westerman said Bailey jumped off the tractor and Westerman got on it and started it moving. He went "a good piece through the field, jumped off and threw myself in front of the right front wheel," the statement read.

"The wheel ran over me and knocked me out," he said. "I didn't know anything until I woke up in the Knox City hospital."

He tried to commit suicide because he knew one of Tankersley's family would or might kill him and he wanted to do it himself, he declared to the District Attorney.

Westerman was arrested by Deputy Sheriff J. F. Isbell, Haskell county deputy sheriff, who was called to the Knox City hospital. He was transferred to a Haskell hospital and then taken to jail.
