French M. Robertson, Former Haskell County Official
 Mentioned As Possible Candidate for Governor in 1952

Possibility that French M. Robertson, former County Attorney of Haskell County and member of a pioneer Haskell family, might be a strong contender in the race for Governor of Texas next year was advanced in an article by Bob Havins, Oil Editor of the Abilene Reporter-News in the Sunday June 24 edition of that newspaper. Havins wrote:

While the 1952 gubernatorial race is several months ahead, there is a strong possibility that Abilene and West Texas may have a candidate in the race.

He is French M. Robertson, independent oil operator, member of the Texas Prison Board, and Southwestern regional director for Civilian Defense.

There is one big "if" in the prediction.

That is the intentions of Governor Allan Shivers.

Robertson will not run against Shivers.

Speculation in Texas political circles has been that Shivers will enter the senatorial race against Tom Connally, veteran Marlin lawmaker whose term expires next year.

As yet Shivers has not indicated what he will do.

And Robertson is sitting back, watching and waiting.

A recent rumor in Austin had Robertson's hat in the ring for lieutenant governor.

The civilian defense director spiked that rumor Saturday, telling The Reporter-News that "I am not considering making the race for lieutenant governor."

(Ben Ramsey, incumbent lieutenant governor, has been rumored as a candidate for governor himself.)

While his friends over the state believe Robertson will make himself available as a candidate for governor should the demand from the people be great enough, Robertson said Saturday that he is not thinking about any public service at this time except civil defense.

He said he will continue to devote his full time, effort and energy to the attaining of a complete civil defense program for the Southwest.

For several years a leader in association work among the oil people of Texas, Robertson would probably get the oil vote solid. In fact, many of his oilmen friends over the state have been urging him to enter the race.

Since West Texas seldom furnishes the state with a governor, Robertson would surely carry the relatively thinly-populated western part of the state. He is a native of Stonewall County, the son of a third generation Texan. He has lived all his life in West Texas.

The question mark would come in South and East Texas, but the Abilenean has had lots of encouragement from that part of the state.

First indication that Robertson might be a candidate for governor came several months ago when Senator Kyle Vick of Waco in Central Texas introduced Robertson at a dinner in Austin as the "only man I know whom I would endorse without reservation for the office of governor of Texas."

At the same dinner, given for Senator Pat Bullock of Colorado City, Senator Keith Kelly of Ft. Worth stated that if Robertson runs, "He's my man."

Several other bubbles have come to the top of the political pot since that time which have indicated the Abilenean might have strong backing in several other quarters over the state.

Robertson, if he ran for governor, would not be a newcomer to Texas politics. He served as county attorney of Haskell County two terms starting in 1929.

He is now serving his second term as a member of the Prison Board, having been appointed by Governor Beauford Jester and re-appointed by Shivers.

His first term on the board was to fill the unexpired term of Albert Lee of Houston, who resigned in 1947. Robertson has served with the board that has made long strides toward bringing the prison system out of the doldrums in which it floundered in the mid-1940s.

Robertson has been the guiding light behind the Prison Rodeo, an annual affair that raises money for the prisoner's welfare and rehabilitation fund.

The prospective candidate has long been active in civil affairs in West Texas, serving in various chambers of commerce and other posts.

He is a veteran of World War II, and was released to inactive duty in 1946 with the rank of lieutenant colonel. He was awarded the Legion of Merit for outstanding work in organizing and supervising training for air service groups of Chinese air force personnel.

Robertson has been active in Democratic circles for many years. He was chairman of the 17th Congressional District delegation to the Texas Democratic Convention in 1946, 1948, and 1950 and served as a member of the Texas State Executive Committee in 1947 and 1948. He was a delegate to the National Democratic Convention in 1948.

Mr. and Mrs. Robertson and their two daughters live at 881 Highland, Abilene.

Mrs. Thelma Sigler of Dallas came Friday to visit with her mother, Mrs. J. R. Whiteside, and her brother, Ted Whiteside and family in Rochester for a few days.

Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Robinson of Rochester are enjoying a vacation in Colorado.

John Paul Knouse of Abilene is visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Greer in Rochester this week.

Mrs. Joe Hudson entertained at her home in Rochester Thursday afternoon of last week honoring Mrs. Paul Melton. The guests had been asked to dress in "tacky" costumes, and Mrs. Malone Steele was voted the "tackiest dressed" lady present.

After playing Bingo, the group engaged in a guessing game. Mrs. Joe Clark's handbag was emptied of its contents and they were immediately replaced in the bag. Each lady tried to remember how many articles they had seen. Mrs. Joe Edd Parsons guessed the nearest to the number.

Mrs. Hudson served date nut cake and iced punch to: Mrs. Paul Melton, Wiley Bean, Palo Speck, Robert Speck, Malone Steele, Pete Huntsman, Dwayne

Burleson, Curtis Love, Joe Clark, Earl Alvis, Joe Edd Parsons, and the hostess.

Efforts at Taming Wildlife Deplored By Game Official

Texans run a risk in trying to make pets out of wild animals and birds, according to the executive secretary of the Game, Fish & Oyster Commission.

He made the point in commenting on the current vacation "invasion" season which parallels the appearance of fawn deer and other wildlife young.

"The fawn, which are beginning to appear now, oftentimes are believed to be lost by well meaning persons," he said.

"Usually, in such cases, the parent deer have been frightened away temporarily but will return. They find their young either by sight or scent.

"One of the primary dangers of persons trying to provide a home for 'lost' wild game is that the shock from fright of being handled many times kills the young things. They are very sensitive to human encroachment.

"If the 'lost' animals survive, they usually prove to be a nuisance. This is particularly true of deer. Actually, there is a genuine hazard involved in trying to tame a wild deer, especially the bucks. They have been known to follow people around like a dog and then suddenly, in the fall mating season, become violent and attack humans either with their horns or front feet."

The executive secretary said trying to raise wild birds by setting their eggs under a domestic fowl usually proves wasted effort since they seldom hatch and if they do, the little birds perish. He emphasized that persons insisting on making pets of wildlife must have a permit under a state law.

Make Housekeeping Fireproof, Advice To Homemakers

Fireproof housekeeping can be every homemaker's job in keeping the country safe. Mrs. Bernice Clator, home management specialist for the Texas Extension Service, says this will aid defense efforts.

For fireproofing housekeeping five steps are suggested by the National Board of Fire Underwriters to reduce common fire hazards in the home: first, clean out all rubbish from closets, attic, basement and other places. Then put waste paper in covered metal containers; get rid of gasoline, benzene or other highly inflammable liquids; keep electric wiring, extension cords and appliances in good repair.

Have an emergency kit including a flashlight, extra batteries, portable radio, first aid kit, several days' supply of canned food and drinking water.

Have some home fire fighting equipment handy—a five gallon hand pump, a hose and several buckets of water, sand and a shovel.

Attractive Farm Home; Larger Than It Looks

Here is a house with good looks and space for a lot of living at the very lowest cost. The rooms are not large, yet they have plenty of usable wall space.

The kitchen is arranged for an abundance of cross ventilation and light. It has a large amount of wall and base cabinets which are within easy reach.

On the screened porch is additional storage space for supplies and clothing. The porch also provides space for any future development of a workroom if it is needed.

The hall eliminates unnecessary travel through other parts of the house. The ideal location of the bathroom makes it needless for anyone coming in from the field to clutter up any rooms in the house before going to the bathroom to clean up.

The plan allows you to have a separate dining room, or dining-room combination; whichever you prefer.

In case three bedrooms are needed, it would be very easy to provide doors between the living and dining rooms and let the dining room serve as a third bedroom temporarily.

The fireplace, a Southern tradition, has not been overlooked in this house. It is shown in the plan; however, it may be left out without materially affecting the construction or appearance of the house.

The living room, although not large, provides ample living space for the average family, and yet keeps the cost low.

The house is designed for ordinary light frame construction and is so arranged that it will not require any unusual mill work or framing.

The front porch is sufficiently large to provide plenty of space for comfortable summer living.

You can obtain blueprints for this Haskell Free Press-Farm & Ranch House Plan No. 4805 and a handy list of materials by which you can figure your construction cost accurately. Send $1 to Building Editor, Farm &

Ranch, Dept. L-98, Nashville, 10, Tenn. Order by number—plan No. 4805. Blueprints are adequate for any farm carpenter or for any farmer handy with tools.

Emphasis will be placed on the development of leadership qualities and tactical employment of the latest weapons and equipment. The cadets will participate in actual operations of a military unit under simulated battle conditions.

The camp is being conducted for nearly 1000 advanced military students from 20 colleges, universities and military academies in 10 different states and the territories of Puerto Rico. Foy L. McKennon On Patrol Ship In Korean Waters

Foy L. McKennon of Pacoima, Calif., who was born and reared in the Haskell vicinity, is now in Korean waters serving on a U. S. naval vessel, friends here have learned.

Young McKennon, who volunteered in the Navy during World War II and served on the USS Pennsylvania in numerous engagements with the enemy in the Pacific theater, was placed in the Navy reserve at the end of the war.

He was recalled to active duty on April 24 this year, and on May 14 sailed for Yokohama, Japan. There he was assigned to the USS Gallup PF-47, a patrol vessel on duty in Korean waters. In a recent letter to relatives, the young sailor told that there were only 193 men serving on the patrol ship, and that things were quite different to what they were on the USS Pennsylvania, which had a complement of 2200 men. He added that "eats" were good, and that he was with a splendid crew and they were all in good spirits.

McKennon's wife is making her home in Pacoima while he is on foreign duty. His mother, Mrs. Fred Schlee, also lives in Pacoima.

Fresh Vegetables Can Be Spring Tonic, Agent Says

Fresh vegetables can be the "spring tonic" for lagging appetites. Miss Thelma Wirges, home demonstration agent, says they will give your appetite a lift.

Texas Food Standard recommends three different types of fresh vegetables every day. The green and yellow group includes beans, peas, asparagus, carrots, greens and yellow squash; another group includes beets, okra, corn, white squash, onions, celery, radishes, and half mature beans and peas; and the third group is either sweet or Irish potatoes.

Prepare them well to make the "tonic" more effective. Miss Wirges suggests fresh greens wilted with a hot French dressing and served with green onions. This could be garden lettuce or others like spinach, tender mustard or turnip greens. Cook a mixture of greens as turnip, mustard, spinach and beet tops and season with bacon drippings or salt pork.

Leave some of the green stems on radishes or tops of fresh onions. Eat fresh string beans when they are young enough to have seeds no larger than a pin head. Try English peas cooked with tender young asparagus in cream sauce.

Arrange fresh vegetables on a relish tray using radish roses, celery curls, carrot strips, fresh green onions, sliced tomatoes and green pepper rings. Garnish with garden lettuce.

Forage Crops Seen As Supplement To Pasture Lands

Plant supplemental forage crops to insure against a shortage of grazing on permanent pastures during summer drought; and to provide forage for winter storage, advises A. W. Crain, pasture specialist for the Texas Extension Service.

Sudan grass and cowpeas make a good grass-legume combination for supplemental summer grazing. Crain recommends planting a 50-50 mixture of sudan grass seed and cowpeas. Use corn or cotton plate in the planter and plant about 20 pounds of the mixture to the acre in two to three foot rows.

Crain points out that Chinese red cowpeas cost less than half as much as other varieties. If Chinese red are not available, any other variety may be used. Sweet sudan grass is recommended over the common variety.

Farmers who now have sudan or other supplemental forage growing can benefit by topdressing with nitrogen fertilizer, if moisture is available. Crain suggests using 150 pounds of ammonium sulphate, 100 pounds of ammonium nitrate or 50 pounds of anhydrous ammonia.

Haskell Soldiers In Advance Unit of Fourth Division Recently Arriving In Germany

Two Haskell men serving in the army are the only residents of Haskell County to be among the very first soldiers to arrive in Europe to augment General Dwight D. Eisenhower's Atlantic Pact troops. Lightning Scary, But Simple Rules Keep Down Risks

In view of the recent severe electrical storms which have occurred in Haskell County and surrounding areas, the following facts may be of interest to residents of this section.

Lightning is not the most important accident killer by far—about 300 deaths a year—but because of its ripping power, its noise and its blinding flash it has held a fearsome aspect for man through the ages.

To understand it better, the National Safety Council offers these facts:

Lightning is chiefly a rural problem as far as individual protection is concerned. Nine-tenths of the fatalities and injuries occur in rural areas or in outlying districts where buildings are isolated and relatively small.

High places are the most dangerous. If you must remain outside a shelter, find a gully, a cave or the base of a cliff. Second best is a grove of trees, if care is taken not to stand under the tallest one. Avoid hilltops, isolator trees and lone buildings.

An ordinary house in a settled district is relatively safe, since there usually are higher structures nearby and the network of plumbing and wiring in a house provides some protection. It is a good idea, however, to stay away from large metal objects in a house, especially if they are connected to the outside by wires.

But don't think that lightning never strikes the same place twice. Wherever lightning strikes, there is a possibility that it may strike again because certain conditions at that spot may offer a special attraction.
