"Out of thin air" HIGHEST HORSEPOWER in Buick history

No, we didn't have to build a new engine to do it.

NOTE FROM YOUR BUICK DEALER:

Presented here is the story of a great new engine development, as told by the men who did the job. We reprint the story here in its entirety—as we couldn't beat it if we tried.

We took Buick's valve-in-head Fireball Engine-which makes the most of high compression. We drew on 12 patient years of Buick carburetion research.

And we came up with more might, more miles, from gas-right out of thin air, in more ways than one.

When you talk about "miles per gallon" you think of fuel. That's what you buy.

But air's free - and for every gallon of gasoline, a busy engine can gulp more than 8,000 gallons of air.

The problem is to deliver air in the right proportions, throughout the full range of speeds at which you drive.

A carburetor-big enough to supply the air needed at full throttle-can be wasteful in stop-and-go driving.

A carburetor sized for thrift in city traffic literally smothers your engine when you really give it the gun.

So Buick engineers came up with the Airpower carburetor-a four-barrel automatic - and here's how it works.

Loafing along, two barrels are working, two stay closed. And you get a lowspeed thrift and smoothness that's out of this world.

As you pick up speed, the "stand-bys" smoothly come into play - feeding not just more gas, but more air too-which means that you keep on getting maximum power from each drop of fuel.

You have 170 effortless horsepower when you need it-a tremendous reserve ready to go into instant action at the nudge of your toe.

You have the satisfaction of knowing that you get this pow ha frugal use of gas. At 40 you use less gas than! formerly used at 30.

That's the story of Airpower carb tion in factory facts and figures.

But statistics can't tell you the bre taking joy of heading for new horn in a great-powered new ROADMAS
