Excited Strikers. HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 16 .- A fire was started in one of the hearths yesterday and the sign of steam nearly precipitated a conflict between the troops and men. As soon as steam rose a large body of strikers, who were near, made a hasty movement toward the gate and the provost patrol hurriedly got between them and the main entrance. Bayonets were brought to a charge and the men halted. It was probably curiosity rather than any purpose to enter the works which made the men come forwarded, but the abrupt manner in which they were turned back caused some feeling and was taken by as an indication that troops are ready to fight. the a fact which may have heretofore been disbelieved on account of the sympathy for the men expressed by the militia. OUR ST. LOUIS LETTER.

The County Police Question — Great Buildings for Special Professions— New Street Transportation Pacifities. JULY 16, 1882.

The county of St. Louis is rich and productive, but it hasn't the police protection the farmers want. The police system of the city is a very efficient one and, knowing that, the people of the county are moving to have their villages guarried by a detachment of the force here. The State law catablishinging the metropolitan police force in St. Louis provides for the distribution of patrolmen in the county, and it will not be long before they get the twenty coppers they have asked the twenty coppers they have asked for out there.

Some odd and original ideas have been carried into effect in putting up new buildings in St. Louis lately. There is no other city in the country probably, that has a large building de-voted entirely to the use of physicians and in no way connected with a medical college. There is one of that kind here, on the corner of Jeffer on avenue and Locust street. It was erected for the sole purpose of giving the doctors the kind of offices they need and there s nobody else in it except the fanitor. There is another building here which is given up to the studies of artists. It is on the corner of Beaumont street, and Locust. Both buildings were put up by men who were doubtful, at first, of the success of their projects, but cach has proved the owner a man of foresight by becoming a profitable investment from the first.

Fred M. Crunden, the manager of the Public Library, showed himself a man of advanced ideas when, in av-ranging the plans of the new building on Locust street, he provided for a large room to be used exclusively by women studying or reading. In Europe that is done, but there is no library on this side of the water where it is considered necessary to pay this attention to the woman students. All women who have to go much to libraries say that they cannot work at ease while they are stared at by the men who come in, and many of them complain that they are often annoyed by people who walk up behind them and look over their shoulder. There are two big camp-meetings that every year attract large numbers of people from St. Louis. One is the campmeeting at Piasa Bluffs, and the other is Camp Marvin. The bluffs are a score of miles away, and are reached by boats. Hundreds of men from here take their families up there, and leave them in the cottages while the campmeeting lasts, running up from the city every day or so to see them. The Marvin camp-ground is only a short distance away from the city, and is reached by vehicles. There are no houses on the grounds, and those who go out there live in tents till the meeting is over. The grounds, with their lines of tents, and their religious services under pine-topped sheds are a unique sight, and the road between here and the busy city is covered every day with buggies and carriages full of people going out to look on. Camp Mar-vin is to be opened about the last of this month, and the meeting at Pinsa Bluffs will begin as soon as the Marvin meeting ends. One million passengers have to ride on a street-car before the company takes in $50,000, perhaps more, for some of the people ride on passes, and some of them are children and pay only have fare. Yet, some of the lines here have not only received that much money in grants be given any home in our the past year, but have increased their midst and that the objectionable ones receipts by that much, since they gave tricity to propel the cars. It is no wonder that when the reports of the City register show such results from the change to electricity that all the lines are grasping at the trolley. So many have given up the cable and horses that the electrical magazines say St. Louis is ahead of every city in the United States on its fast transit mileage. Only four of the twenty-five lines in the city are now using horses. Two of these have already Lought their material for putting up the overhead wires, and by the time the crowds begin to pour into the city to see the fall festivities only two slow lines will be left. These are short, and the vistors will be more interested in them as a curiosity than inconvenienced.

ADVANTAGES AND RESOURCES. In almost every neighborhood of the older states and the thickly settled portion of our own state there are many of its citizens who are contemplating a removal or a change of residence for many reasons. Some to restore lost health, some to make their beginning in the others seeking safe and profitable investments of serplus capital. There are many others who have comfortable homes and are well contented, but who but cannot do so with their present surroundings, and must seek cheaper lands and better opportunities in other and newer localities. To such we would say you are just the people we want. MARMAGE IN JAPAN.

Pretty Ceremony Which Differs Widly From Unre. A Japanese wedding in high life is .

pretty ceremony. Though no vows are spoken, nor has the church or religion any part in it, the rite is, nevertheless, solemn and impressive.

There are ten bridesmaids gayly attired in costumes of the "Japs." at a time enter from opposite directions, and salaam each to the other until the entire party has passed in, each kneeling opposite her companion. The parents of the bride and groom now enter, those of the groom at the left and those of the bride at the right. and are seated near the bridesmaids on either side.

The bride, attired in a snowy, filmy dress and closely veiled, now appears leaning on the arm of her affianced, while the bridesmaids salaam. The go-between assists the bride to a seat by her parents and the groom to one near his. Tea is then served by the go-between, three cups being given the parents of the bride and groom and to the happy couple. Each of the bridesmaids receives one cup.

The go-between joins the hands of the bride and groom, and the latter leads his bride to the front and whispers in her ear a promise of faithfulsess. The bride whispers in return and they exchange seats to show the anion of the two families. A simple repast is now served, and the bridge party disperses, the bride and groom leaving first, then their parents, and lastly the brides-maids, salaaming as they go.

The go-between is generally a friend of the groom. In courtship she settles the question and assists in the marriage ceremony.

It is a pretty scene, but the absence of the kiss, the ring and the invocation of the blessing of God marred it for those who are accustomed to the Christian rites.

HE MEANT NO INSULT. He Was Only Afflicted as Were the Other

Two.

A young man who suffers from the embarrassing affliction of stammering entered one of the modest beaneries of Park Row, in New York, the other evening to get a lunch. He chose the place, not so much because of its attractions, nor because it was handy, but rather because he dislikes to go into a more public place with his faultiness of speech. As luck would have it, however, there were no vacant tables, and he was obliged to sit down to one already occupied by another young man.

"Puh - puh - puh - pork and b-b-bbeans," he murmured to the waiter who came up. That functionary looked a little sur-

HOW DID THEY MAKE LOVE? Kissing Used to Be Unknown in the Miserable World.

We believe that kissing is an English custom. We read in ancient history of a knight who visited the Field of the Cloth of Gold, and who, on being invited to a local castle, was addressed by the kynde ladve of the establishment, who remarked:

"Forasmuch as in England ve have such a custome as that a man may kysse a woman, therefore I will that ye shall kysse me, and ye shall also kysse these my maidens.

"Which thing." adds the old histo-rian, "ye knyghte straightway did, and rejoiced greatly thereat."

What people did before kissing was discovered we really cannot tell you, nor have we any notion of how the engaged bouples of the middle ages amused themselves when kissing was hardly known. We have no doubt, however, that Jack and Jill of the thirteenth century

Franklin's Loan.

Franklin wrote the following letter

"I send you a bill herewith for 10 When you shall return to your country, you cannot fail of getting into some kind of business that will in time enable you to pay all your debts. In this case when you meet with another honest man in similar distress, you must pay me by lending this sum to him, enjoining him to discharge the debt by a like operation when he shall be able, and shall meet with another opportunity. I hope it will then go through my hands before it meets with a knave to stop its progress. This is a trick of mine for doing a deal of good with a little money."

Teaching Patriotism Educating patriotism in children may occasionally lead to unstable. tory occurrences. At Belgrade, in Servia, 200 such juvenile patriots met to play at soldiers. They began throwing little stones at each other, slowly supero quality. Besides the native comes. We have a county of the best when victory hesitated in declaring grasses that grow on the prairies, sustaining large numbers of cattle, horses abundance of mesquite, elm and hack-sticks and pocket-knives and assaulted each other. Some women and men trying to make peace were driven away with stones. A few officers of police looked on and enjoyed the lively and practical way of inculcating patriotic s 1timents. When the little warriors were finally separated nine boys were seriously hurt, a few of them dying of their wounds and a large number were for weeks put hors de combat.

The most acceptable proposition that can be made to persons troubled with chronic consti-pation, is to open that important canal—the bowels. That proposition can be carried out by the parties interested if they resort to Host-titer's Stemach Bitters, the most effective, most genial alterative extant. It is the mis-take of many otherwise sensible people, that they resort to drastic, or in other words, vio-lent purgatives. Without exaggeration, this is highly injurious, since such medicaments weaken the bowels besides convulsing both them and the stemach with pain. Relief sought from the Bitters comes freely enough, but they never produce pain, excessive action, or subsequent weakness of the bowers. Liver and kidney trouble, malaria, dyspepsia, lack of stamina and a tendency to rheumstism, are remedled by this pleasant substitute for

BRIDE AND GROOM.

Cupid's wings are fluttering Upon the summer breeze, His arrows flying thickly Beneath the budding trees.

Young hearts are fondly beating, To love's immoytal tune, And brides and bridal roses Will blossom out in June.

We've snowy orange flowers

To crown the bonny bride-In sheeny silks and satins We take an honest pride. Our solft and clinging draperies, With levely, groceful fold, Are just the combination

One hungers to behold. The misty breath of morning Blown o'er the verdant vale. Is lost beside the beauty Of our floating bridal veil.

Our gloves-unique and pretty, We hold at your command; In white and dainty colors-

They would grace an angel's hand. The bridegroom-heaven bless him! We have suits fit for a king-If he wants to come down handsome,

We can show him just the thing. Our clothing was selected By the finest of experts; And we take the azure ribbon

On our Mother Hubbard shirts. Neckties of snowy whiteness And a the ad things beside; We give e
