It's a whole new idea about cars!

If Your House Burns Down —

If your home should burn, it is still going to cost you a lot more than you think it will to rebuild it or buy a new house.

Don't keep thinking about what your house cost you in the first place, maybe years ago. Building costs and home values have risen greatly in recent years. Think: how much would it cost me to duplicate it tomorrow

If you are like the average home owner, you are still probably way under-insured and should talk to us mighty soon (maybe this minute) about increasing the amount of your fire insurance coverage.

Old South Ward School Building Still Familiar Landmark of Early Haskell

A Haskell landmark which will doubtless be a point of interest for many ex-students here for the School Homecoming next week will be the old South Ward school building.

The two-story brick structure, built almost half century ago, has been unused for a number of years. In its day, it was considered one of the most "modern" school buildings in this section.
Many present Haskell residents received their first schooling in the old South Ward. Many of them can vividly recall the very strong partisan rivalry which existed between the "south" and "north" ward schools for many years, and which was exemplified in the intense competition between the two schools in athletic events.

These events consisted principally of baseball, basketball and track and field events—and the school spirit and competition was something comparable to that between the Longhorns and Texas Aggies on a lesser scale.

The South Ward building was erected in 1906, according to best available information, located on a slight rise just south of Spring Creek and only a stone's throw from site of the one-room frame building near Rice Springs which was Haskell's first school.

The original building was a four-room, two-story structure.
Bricks used in the building were manufactured on the site, from native sand and clay.

Several years after the original building was completed, an addition was built on the south side of the structure, using the same material in construction.

After enlargement to six rooms, capacity of the school was taxed to the limit for several decades, and accommodated pupils in the elementary grades from a large section of Haskell.

Because many students came from the east part of town, necessitating crossing the small Spring Creek, a long and narrow wooden bridge spanned the small stream at a point near what is now the southeast corner of Rice Springs Park.

Proximity of the small stream along with mequite thickets and wooded areas nearby, added to the worries of teachers in the South Ward. Particularly in the spring months when the weeks before school was "out" dragged out slowly, some of the more daring pupils found temptation of the outdoors too strong to resist. The thickets and fishing spots along the small creek were ideal for playing "hooky" as long as the boys could elude the school's strict principal, who soon learned the favorite spots where he could find one or more truants.

Many ex-students who attended the South Ward around 1912 recall one principal in particular who made a "lasting" impression on some of his more mischievous charges. Every so often, he would arrive at the school building with an old-fashioned empty sugar barrel in the back of his buggy.

Some of his "favorite" students would be assigned the task of removing the wire hoops and pulling staples out of the barrel staves. Then these staves would be stacked neatly in the cloak-rooms for use when needed. They were never used for firewood, but nevertheless generated a lot of heat sometimes!

Although Haskell boasted a small independent electric light company at the time South Ward was built, the structure was not originally wired for electricity.
This advancement came some 30-odd years later, when lighting facilities were installed in the building in 1938 or 1939.

During recent years the building has stood vacant, and windows have proven attractive targets for miscreants and virtually every window pane has been broken.

All of the bottom windows have been covered with boards or sheet iron, and an effort has been made to keep the building locked. However, one or more of the doors has been forced open, and rubbish and broken desks and other articles now litter the floors of the old building.

Despite its time-worn appearance on close inspection, the South Ward from a short distance away is still the familiar old school to many who were pupils there three and four decades ago.

Ivy Baker Priest, U. S. Treasurer, To Be Speaker at TFWC Covention

Mrs. L. E. Dudley, Abilene, president of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs, has authorized Mrs. A. T. Carleton, Houston, program chairman, to announce the program for the 37th Annual Convention, which will take place in Mineral Wells November 8-11.

The featured speakers at this year's convention are the Honorable Ivy Baker Priest, Treasurer of the United States, who will address the closing session with a speech, "You Are the Light of the World," and Colonel Franklin M. Kreml, Director of Northwestern University Traffic Institute, and a national figure in the promotion of safety, who will speak on "Safety—Everyone's Responsibility."

Mrs. Dudley will open the convention on Monday evening at 8:00 p. m. with a Fine Arts program. Features include the Denton Civic Boy Choir, directed by Mr. George Braag. The group, whose ages range from 8 to 14, has performed in 25 states since it was organized in 1946, and it thoroughly demonstrates its remarkable possibilities inherent in children who have mastered the art of choral singing.

"When the Fire Dies," an original play by 19-year-old Ramona Maher of Fort Worth, will be presented by students from the Drama Department of Texas Christian University, under the direction of Walter R. Volbach, professor of drama. The scene of the play is an Arizona Indian Reservation.

Convention activity on Tuesday will begin with the Mental Health Breakfast. At the breakfast, Dr. Robert Gordon, Consultant for the Hogg Foundation for Mental Hygiene, University of Texas, will outline specific programs for Mental Health. Mrs. Van Hook Stubbs, General Federation Chairman of Mental Health will review the objectives of the Division.

"Free-To-Be-Responsible" will be the keynote of the President's address to the first session of the Convention, Tuesday morning, Nov. 9th, at 11 o'clock. Routine business, reports and convention business will precede the President's address. The Presidents of the eight districts of the Federation, will form a panel at the luncheon session. Their subject will be, "Our Responsibility Begins at Home." Mrs. R. I. C. Prout, first vice president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, will speak at this session in an address entitled, "The Growing Edge."

The American Home, Americanism and Community Affairs will be stressed at Tuesday afternoon's session, and the Texas Pioneer Banquet will be held Tuesday evening.

Colonel Kreml will deliver his address Wednesday morning. At Wednesday's luncheon, the responsibility of the conservation of natural resources will be discussed.

State vice-presidents, and district first vice-presidents will preside at the tables for the Birthday Feast Wednesday evening.

Standing committees will lead off the Thursday morning session. Climax of the 1954 annual convention will be the Honorable Ivy Baker Priest's address, "You Are the Light of the World," at the Public Affairs Luncheon on Thursday.

1862 Cotton Bale Still Preserved

The oldest bale of cotton reportedly in existence now is preserved in a class case on the floor of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange.

It was produced in 1862 by John Peden of Oktibbeha county, Mississippi, who stockpiled his crop on his veranda for years, selling only enough cotton each year to take care of his immediate needs.

The bale was picked and ginned by slave labor.
