Knox City Plant Center Making Good Progress

Progress is being made in the search for better range and pasture plants at the Plant Materials Center at Knox City. The Plant Materials Center is operated by the Soil Conservation Service five miles northwest of town, on the Tom Campbell farm.

The Plant Center was started in 1965 to provide a place where collections of grasses, legumes, etc., could be assembled and evaluated. Collections made by Soil Conservation Service personnel have been sent in from all over the state. Most of the plants are native to Texas, but others have been received from as far away as Georgia and Virginia. Other state, federal agencies and Plant materials centers have made valuable contributions to the plantings.

Much of the seed from these sources originated in foreign countries.

All of the new plants are first planted in a 20 foot row and compared to others of the same kind. They are evaluated from many standpoints and records are kept of the performance of each collection. Each species is appraised for potential value in filling a conservation need in the ranges, pastures and wildlife areas of Texas.

Over 600 different collections were planted in 1965. An additional 200 new collections were added this spring. Approximately 125 different species are represented in these plantings.

Eight promising plants were selected for small seed increase plantings at the Plant Center this spring. Seed was harvested from the 20 foot row last year and planted this spring in fields ranging in size from about one tenth of an acre to one quarter of an acre. The seed from these small fields will be used to plant a larger acreage or another companion planting at the Plant Center next year.

In addition, seven new seed production fields were planted this spring. This makes a total of 29 production fields ranging

Items Being Added To KC Museum

New interest is being shown in the Museum that has been modestly started and housed in the Court House lobby. Mr. Kenneth Roberts of Benjamin is the new chairman, and he will see what can be done towards a permanent place to display the items that have so far been collected.

A number of articles have been added recently, among them is a 'side-saddle' given by Mrs. E. R. Carpenter. It belonged to her mother, the late Mrs. Sallie Favor, and was a birthday present on her 11th birthday from her father, the late Mr. Mart Jones.

A saddle tree which was once a very fine saddle made in Denver, Colo., and owned by Mr. Trav House, who was an early day cowboy and rode the range from Texas to Colorado, and in between, has also been added to the Museum. It proudly sits on a wooden 'horse' surrounded by cattle brands of every ranch in the area.

A human skull is another item just added to the collection.

The grave containing the skull was found in the fall of 1923 by some men from Benjamin. It was in a grave located three miles east of Benjamin and one fourth mile north of Highway 82 on the old A. B. Sams ranch.

The grave yielded the perfect skeleton of a man with a perfect set of teeth, also an ivory arm band and a mass of rusted material thought to be metal arrowheads.

Also in the grave was the skeleton of a horse which had bits (bridle) in its mouth. A tomahawk which closely resembled the cutting edge of a grubbing hoe was also found.

The skull, bridle bits and two copper buckets, were once owned by the late Clyde Burnett and were displayed in the First National Bank of Benjamin. B. B. Campbell Sr., has one of the buckets and the skull has been donated by the Knox City Clinic.

MRS BENTON RETURNS

Mrs. B. B. Benton returned home this week end after an extended visit with her daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wetzel, in Lamesa.

in size from one quarter to one acre. Twenty two different species are represented in these fields. The seed from these fields will be used in field evaluation plantings on the farms and ranches of Soil and Water Conservation District co-operators in Texas. The final decision to keep, or discard, a particular grass will depend on its performance in these plantings away from the Plant Center. If it proves to have real promise the seed will be released through the Soil and Water Conservation Districts to the commercial growers.

Over three tons of grass seed was shipped to the Texas Soil and Water Conservation Districts this past winter and spring. This seed was produced at the Soil Conservation Service Plant Materials Centers formerly located at Sour and San Antonio.

The Center is now in its second year. Arnold Davis is manager, assisted by Ullric Lea, Howard Carleton of the Memphis office will join the staff July 1.

WHERE DID YOU GET THAT SILVERWARE?

Next time you take up knife and fork, give a thought to the monk of 1480 who wrote, "It is wrong to grab your food with both hands; meat should be taken with three fingers."

And fingers it was, until a gold fork for eating mulberries was given to Charles VII of France in the 15th century. Before then, few people had even heard of forks! Diners picked up food with the sharp point of their knives, and at first forks were only used to steady the dish while the diner carved the meat.

When he traveled to Italy in 1611, an Englishman, Coryat, saw people there using forks to eat meat. Upon his return home, he introduced the practice in his own country. At first, forks were scorned as effeminate, and men went on eating with their fingers.

While no one knows for sure when knives were introduced, historians believe that primitive man may have used a crude knife of shell or flint to saw off bits of meat.

The first spoons appeared on ancient Egyptian tables 4,000 years ago. The teaspoon was introduced in 1650, for exactly that purpose. The first ones were only about one-third the size of those we use today. Often they had perforated bowls. After stirring tea, these "strainer bowls" were used to lift stray leaves from the cup.

Today's homemaker prefers the gleam of silver—even to start off the day, when she has guests in for a special breakfast. Silver, such as Reed & Barton's new sterling flatware pattern, "Spanish Baroque," with each handle richly and deeply carved in a design of enfolding acanthus leaves, plays an important part in the table's decoration.

But a modern hostess who owns silverware of which she's proud, wouldn't think of emulating the lady of not too many years ago who, when she invited guests to dine, also requested that they bring their own eating utensils!
