Approximately 2600 square feet are contained in the new brick club house, with one-half of this amount going into the spacious community room. There will be kitchen facilities, ladies' lounge, men's and women's locker rooms, a pro-shop, and showers to accommodate swimmers.

Contractors for the project include Tommy Richardson, club house; Costello, watering system; and Dolphin Pools of Dallas, swimming pool.

Plans are indefinite at the present for the Knox City Invitational Tournament due to the improvements being made.

JOHN AVERITT ... In Vietnam

Letters From John Averitt Describe War

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Averitt are very fortunate parents in that their son, John, has a good sense of humor, a "knack" for writing, and sketches and draws like a professional. On the other hand, they would not be considered fortunate in that John is in DaNang, Vietnam, serving as a police security guard with the U. S. Navy. However, since he is in the war zone, it is helpful to the parents to hear regularly and his letters are both interesting and informative. He also draws and mails original cartoons.

From recent letters, these excerpts were chosen:

"Well, I'm still here. I was on duty at the ferry and in the tower when the VC hit. They hit covered storage about 1 a.m. It sounded like a thousand firecrackers going off, then the rockets started coming in about 1.15. When they stopped I thought that was the end of it, but then the Bridge ramp went up and in about ten seconds an LST took 3 direct hits, killing some men. I figured that's as close as they would get and then a rocket hit in the ammo dump just across the highway from the ferry and it seemed like the rockets started walking straight for the tower. One hit in the village, then one about 5 ft. off the end of the pier, another hit an LCU moored at the pier and our 3rd Class was out there. The boat gave him enough pro-

"Melanie Meddles"

By Melanie Whitley

Every once in a while, things you say tell more about yourself than you had intended. For instance, Sandra Canale who came to O'Brien from Alaska was admiring the wheat fields.

"The wheat is beautiful," she said, "How long will it be before it's ready to pick."

This week I must meddle about a couple of things I've heard some complaints on.

(a) Seems like a lot of Knox City people would prefer the siren not to blow when the storm clouds brew UNLESS a tornado has been sighted. Besides being unnerving, the siren petrifies the children and it has screamed "wolf" so often it may be ignored if a tornado ever comes. Anybody with half a lick of sense is already glued to their windows watching the clouds, anyway.

(b) Most women would like to work away from home part of the time, but not six days a week.

When faced with the choice, most either quit their jobs or work with a grumble. Since most employers are men, they don't realize that when their employees get home, the washing, ironing, cooking, cleaning, nose-wiping and baby comforting is still there to be done. Sooner or later the double load gets to be more than the extra money is worth.

I know the women are willing if the bosses would hire two women instead of one, each to work three days a week. Customers would be certain to have a lot more smiling service.

Publisher's Note: Voice of experience - I've been married 20 years and have two children, now teenagers (20 years with the SAME WOMAN). Once I was a hired hand, now I am boss. I used to work 8 hours a day and now 18. Unless you know both sides by experience I do not think you qualify to grumble, and certainly not give advice, and don't think for one minute there is a businessman anywhere that hasn't tried almost everything to keep help. Problem: no one really wants to work.

One point I'd like to make since I have entered into the conversation. We Americans need to give SOME of these people something to work for and NOT TO LIVE ON!

NOW ABOUT SIRENS
What working man or woman can work 10 to 18 hours a day and stay up and watch clouds. I do appreciate the fellows who have the pleasant job of working all night when no one else will - watching out for our lives and property while we day workers sleep, and these men who work all night, you know they do appreciate the door knockers, the barking dogs and crying children. I also know this by experience because I have worked night shift for seven years. Bless these night workers.

tection so no shrapnel got him but the concussion knocked him over and banged up his leg. We got two more by the gate and then it was over. I went to the gate to see if anybody was hurt and our 3rd Class was the only one. They were just little rockets but we all gained about 10 years.

According to reports there's supposed to be between 18,000 and 27,000 VC (NVA) in and around DaNang.

In part, about the people of South Vietnam who live in the villages near the gate and pier of my duty station -- there is not much to be liked in them, man, woman or child -- 2 yrs, or 82. Children over here start smoking at about 2 years old. The other day we caught a small 6 yr. old child who had snatched $215.00 from a G. I. An 8 yr. old boy was brought to our gate for medical aid who had drunk 4 glasses of rotten Viet whiskey. He didn't look like he would live until we could get an ambulance to take him to the hospital.

We finally got a medical kit for our shack at the ferry. The men, women and children come here to be patched up from hurts. I guess I might as well be a Medical Corpsman for all the Vietnamese we patch up. They come here with their heads cut open, feet and arms broken, etc. We got a little medical kit to carry around on our belts for our personal use but we used that up on the people. We try to clean the wounds, stop the bleeding a little, and call an ambulance. It seems they don't get just a scratched knee hurt; they go all the way.

In case you have read where someone said how beautiful the Vietnamese women are then all I can say is he falls under one of three categories: (1) he is either an incurable alcoholic, (2) stark, raving mad, or (3) another Vietnamese.

John has been at DaNang almost six months. His grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Joe Averitt and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Clonts, all of Knox City.

He is a 1965 graduate of Knox City High School.

Headline House

A house constructed of newspapers—approximately 100,000 copies—is a tourist attraction at Pigeon Cove, Mass.

The "log" wall structure consists of 215 thicknesses of newspaper, showing readable headlines. The furniture also was built from newspaper rolls of different sizes.

The headlines make mention of World War I, Hoover's presidential campaign and Charles Lindbergh's Paris flight, and include newspapers from various state capitals and many from foreign countries. The newspapers can be unwound and the print inside will be preserved, since neither glue nor varnish was used while making the paper rolls.

"Love that electric air conditioning, of course! WE REMODELED TO TOTAL ELECTRIC OPERATION FOR $1,300! The insulation, electric baseboard units — the works! — and with an incentive allowance we paid only about $1,000. If we ever build a home, it'll be total electric—with electric ceiling coils." — Bob Stamford, Texas.
Bob Harrison retired from the San Francisco 49ers and took up teaching. Barbara Harrison took up teaching at Oliver Street Elementary School, and Scott (age 2) took to whooping it up on his rocking horse. All three live in a wonderful living. Barbara says, "I just couldn't do without my electric home laundry and that wonderful summer air-conditioning. When we turn it on, we never want to go outside in the heat!" — Enjoy clean and comfy — thanks to total electric living!

there was considerable complaint from importers in South Korea and U. S. cotton pickers come up to cotton shipments included in the difference from different U. S.

HAIL AND WIND CAUSE EXTENSIVE CROP DAMAGE

High wind and hail caused extensive crop damage in Knox County Friday night May 31.

Damage to the county wheat crop ran from light to heavy wind lodging to areas of high percent loss where hail was heavy. The hail damage was severe from about 5 miles east of Benjamin to the Rhineland and Goree areas. Considerable damage was also noted in some fields in the Vera area.

Young cotton, cantaloupes, watermelons, Irish potatoes and grain sorghum were also severely damaged in the hail path. Many acres of cotton will be replanted and perhaps part of the cantaloupes or watermelons.

Two weeks of dry weather is needed to allow harvesting of the majority of the wheat and to give producers time to replant other crops where needed.

COTTON INSECTS WILL GET REPORTED

Cotton insect reporting areas for Texas have been announced for 1968. Cooperators in each cotton growing county will work with local county agents in collecting information on insect infestations. The county reports will be combined into an area report and released by the area Extension entomologists. Local county agents can supply detailed information on the insect reporting program.

HERBICIDE APPROVED FOR USE IN GUAR

Clearance has been received by Elanco Products Company for the use of Treflan on guar land as a preplanting soil-incorporated treatment, according to Dr. Clifford D. Hobbs, Elanco's Southern Plant Science Representative.

Unless a herbicide for guar is approved by the Pure Food and Drug Administration, it cannot be used in food products. If farmers use any type of herbicide on guar, they should be sure the herbicide has an approved label.

The recommended rate will be based on soil type with the sandier soils requiring 0.5 lb. per acre (1 pint) and tighter soils 3/4 lb. (1-1 1/2 pints.)

FOR APHID CONTROL ON PECANS

Pecan growers in Texas will find the best time to control aphids by using disulfoton (Disyston) is now while there is adequate moisture to allow uptake of the systemic, John G. Thomas, Extension entomologist with Texas A&M University, says.

Disulfoton has proven effective in controlling the black pecan aphid and the yellow or honeydew aphid. The black pecan aphid can cause foliage damage which can affect yields for several years; honeydew aphids secrete an annoying substance which can support sooty mold growth that interferes with photosynthesis.

Aphid damage occurs most often in mid or late summer and the control needs to be applied early enough to prevent this summer buildup, according to the specialist.

Texas producers can apply disulfoton either in the granular form or as a liquid. It is recommended that the control be applied in six-foot bands under main drip areas of trees. If grass is present in groves then the systemic should be worked into the soil about six to eight inches to allow trees to absorb the material before grass takes it up.

Application should be timed to coincide with rains so that it may be readily transmitted to the pecan trees. If possible irrigation should closely follow application of disulfoton.

About 60 to 90 days of control can be expected, and only one application is allowed per season - this application must be made at least 80 days prior to harvest, Thomas continues.

Disulfoton has been cleared for use by commercial growers or professional applicators only, and its use by homeowners on individual trees is not encouraged.

For more information regarding formulations and rates, Thomas suggests that pecan producers visit their county agricultural agent.

COMMUNITY IMPROVEMENT HIT NEW HIGH

Crawford Community, McLennan County, has been named the state's most progressive community in the 1967-68 statewide Texas Community Improvement Program. Other state winners as listed by Reagan Brown, Extension sociologist and program coordinator, were Golden in Wood County; Latexo, Houston County and Gober Community in Fannin County.

Each of the four state winning communities will receive cash awards and silver trays, Brown said. In addition, 99 other communities located in every section of the state will receive cash awards while each of the 312 communities which participated in the program will receive certificates, added Brown.

The program is sponsored by the electric utility companies operating in Texas and is conducted by Texas A&M University's Agricultural Extension Service.

Brown, in commenting on the state winner, said people in the Crawford Community developed several very outstanding programs. Small grains and turkeys were featured in their agricultural programs. Their youth programs have been responsible for the development of 4 American Farmer degree members, also, 25 Lone Star Farmer degrees in the FFA chapter. Outstanding 4-H members also live in the community.

Three new churches have been built and a community water system put into operation, he said. A community wide beautification program has certainly made living in the area more enjoyable and pleasant, the sociologist noted.

Brown said more than 50,000 families, residing in the 312 participating communities, worked hard during the contest year to give the programs motto, "Working to Make Texas Even Better," more meaning. Projects in beautification, improving crops and livestock, health conditions and services and social participation were general. Community centers have been built, water systems installed, and churches constructed. But, Brown pointed out, that perhaps more important has been the neighborliness and good citizenship attitudes developed and the added emphasis given to spiritual values in the communities.

The state judging committee was composed of Jack T. Sloan, resource development specialist, Bonnie Lay, housing and home furnishing specialist and R. J. Hodges, agronomist, all members of the headquarters staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Communities of 500 or less population in Texas are eligible to enter this program. For further information check with your Extension Agents.

Two United States cotton sales teams, one going to the Far East and the second to the United Kingdom and Western Europe, have returned and their report on the possibility of increased buying of American grown cotton was optimistic, according to Charles Bragg, executive vice president of the RPOC.

Western European countries would greatly increase imports if they could be assured adequate supplies of good quality U. S. cotton at competitive prices, Robert Pugh, Portland, Ark., reported to Sec. of Agri-

The continuous efforts of Texas Cotton producer organizations to get adequate research on utilization of "discount" cottons produced additional results last week when the U. S. Department of Agriculture announced a research grant of $160,795 to the Textile Research Center at Texas Technological College in Lubbock.

The study is to discover mechanical processes and blending techniques to increase utilization of cottons discounted in the market because of short staple and micronaire either below or above the most desirable 3.5 to 4.9 range.

Chief investigator for the project will be Harry Arthur, Assistant Director of the research center.

"We are highly pleased to see this study get underway and to know that it is to be done at Texas Tech where such capable people and adequate facilities are available," said Charles Bragg, RPOC Executive Vice President.

"We are making tremendous strides toward varieties and cultural practices that will diminish the significance of our short staple, low micronaire problems," he stated, "but our growing season and climate are such that in any given year we can expect to produce a considerable amount of 'discount' cotton.

"The purpose of this study is to develop information on use of these cottons in blends with other cotton or in some other way that will improve their marketability and minimize the discounts they suffer in the marketplace."

The first formal move toward getting USDA to step up its investigation of the problem was taken in Dec., 1966 when representatives of Plains Cotton Growers, Texas Tech, the Cotton Research Committee of Texas, and the Southern Regional Research and Development Laboratory met in Lubbock at PGC's request.

"We think there is a very real possibility that markets for this type cotton can be increased and that prices can be improved," Bragg concluded, "and if these things can be achieved substantial and continuing benefits will accrue to Texas cotton industry."

Members of this team reported that there was strong demand for American cotton of good grade and staple. However, culture Orville Freeman upon return of his team from the United Kingdom, West Germany, the Netherlands, Italy, and France. Pugh is president of the Cotton Council International.

Pugh told Sec. Freeman that Europeans feel that unless the U. S. can produce at least 14 to 15 million bales annually it cannot expect to sell larger quantities to them.

MRS. CHARLES RAY PREWIT

Miss Karen Janice Sutton Weds Charles Ray Prewit

Miss Karen Janice Sutton became the bride of Charles Ray Prewit Tuesday evening at eight o'clock in The First Methodist Church in Knox City with the bride's uncle, Dr. George W. Coats, Associate Professor of Religion at McMurry in Abilene, officiating.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Norma Coats Eslinger of Knox City and Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Prewit of Hamlin.

The double-ring ceremony was performed before the Holy Communion table with an open Bible flanked by white candles. White tapers in candelabra and baskets filled with white gladioli and greenery completed the setting.

Mrs. George W. Coats of Abilene was organist and accompanied the soloists, Mrs. Dan Bruner of Hamlin who sang "The Wedding Prayer" and Doyle Graham of Knox City who sang "One Hand, One Heart."

Given in marriage by her maternal grandfather, George W. Coats Sr. of Knox City, the bride wore a gown of white bridal satin with empire waist and sabrina neckline. The long bell sleeves featured a hand-embroidered lace overlay. The lace-trimmed chapel train was circular, and seed pearls and roses held her illusion veil. She carried white roses centered with a white orchid atop a Bible.

Miss Sherry Sutton attended her sister as maid of honor, and Miss Jacki Perry of Throckmorton, also a sister of the bride, served as bridesmaid. The attendants' gowns were of emerald green and royal blue brocade satin with an empire waist and sleeveless. Their headdresses were royal blue roses with matching veils. Miss Sutton carried two long-stemmed white roses which the bride had presented to her mother and grandmother during the processional. Miss Perry also carried two long-stemmed white roses which the bride presented to the bridegroom's mother and grandmother during the recessional. Candelighters were Miss Kay Reeves and Miss Becky Howell, both of Knox City.

Serving as best man was the bridegroom's brother, Ken Prewit of Sweetwater. Stanley Smith of Hamlin was groomsmen.

Ushers were Danny Mayberry of Hamlin, Jerry Hahn of Old Glory, and Michael Driver of Benjamin.

Mrs. Prewit is a 1965 graduate of Knox City School, where she was chosen senior class favorite. She has attended McMurry College. She was a member of Gamma Sigma Sorority, and attended West Texas State University in Canyon.

The groom is a 1965 graduate of Hamlin High School and a graduate of Cisco Junior College. He attended West Texas State University and was a member of Block and Bridle Fraternity. A reception in Fellowship Hall of the church was hosted by the bride's mother and grandmother, Mrs. G. W. Coats Sr.

Engagement Is Announced

Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Fisher of Knox City announce the engagement of their daughter, Linda Kay of Lubbock to Billy Dwayne Ardis, also of Lubbock, formerly of Denver, Colorado. The couple will be married July 4 in South Crest Baptist Church in Lubbock.

Both Miss Fisher and Ardis are presently employed in Lubbock.

Tax Man Sam Sez:

Every year at this time thousands of young men and women get a job during their summer vacation and then return to school in the fall. Those students getting a job for the first time will need a Social Security Number to give to their employer so he can withhold their income tax and their social security tax. Most of them will get back the income tax next January, but Social Security checks and Medicare are quite a few years away.

If you work on a summer job, talk to your employer about your W-2 form. Make sure that he knows where to mail it to you so you can file a tax return and claim a refund if you have one coming. Ordinarily you will receive a refund of all income taxes withheld, unless you make more than $900 during the year.
