Birthday Party.

Little Miss Eulajim Haulan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Haulan, celebrated her third birthday, entertaining quite a number of her little friends with a party last Monday afternoon.

At 4 o'clock the guests arrived, and had quite a lot of enjoyment as they had as they looked at the many nice and useful gifts which were received.

Games of different kinds were played, after which Mrs. Haulan entertained with music on the Pathé.

Ice cream cones were served, after which they departed, each expressing a most enjoyable afternoon and wishing Eulajim many merry birthdays.

Those present were: Florence Elizabeth Wilson, Juanita and Beatrice Hammack, Mary Leone Hoge, Patsy Ward, Yvonne Jamison, Corinne Shaw, Clarendia Sanders, Jack Boyd and John Elbert Smith; Mesdames Sanders, Hopson and Lanier.

Public School Notes

Rev. McCarroll was the speaker at the opening exercises held Monday morning in the auditorium and attended by the entire school. His theme was that of using aright the opportunities open to students for preparation for life. His talk was practical and seemed to be very much enjoyed by the students.

A good start has been made along the line of athletic and some good practice is being done by a large number of students. The school is hoping to turn out some good teams in football, basket ball and volley ball during the fall season. Attention will be turned to other sports later in the year. The football squad is just now holding the center of the stage since they are planning to meet Crowell in a practice game on Saturday of this week. This is not an official game, but it should nevertheless hold a great deal of interest for the supporters of the team and it will be sure to prove very valuable to the players by way of getting them into shape for the other games of the season. Girls' basket ball is just getting under way, but it is expected to become a prominent factor in school athletics in the near future. Volley ball will probably occupy a definite place on the schedule of interschool activities after Christmas. Meanwhile a policy of getting as many children as possible to participate in some form of wholesome outdoor sport is being worked out.

Definite plans for securing affiliation in nine units of high school work have been worked out by the high school faculty and work toward that end will be begun at once. It is hoped that the school will be successful in getting most of the affiliation desired, since this will put us on an exceedingly high plane and will enable us to rank well among the schools found in small towns throughout the state. Affiliation is becoming rather common and it is not now at all unusual to find a school with no greater high school enrollment than we have which has some 17 or 18 units of recognized work to its credit. Knox City High School now has 9 1/2 units affiliation, but hopes by the end of the year to make the accredited units somewhere near twice that number.

Many of the classes of the high school have been organized in the last few days and they are beginning to turn their attention to the preparation of their programs which are to occupy the chapel hour on Thursdays for the next few weeks. The first of these programs will be presented by the seniors next Thursday.

The total enrollment of the school this year has already run above 350. This is indeed good for a town the size of Knox City. It speaks especially well for the town when one considers that the cotton season is just now in full blast and that many pupils are of necessity out on account of the scarcity of pickers. The enrollment in the high school grades alone has run above the 100 mark. This should be considered an encouraging feature since the efficiency of a school can perhaps be measured better by the advanced students it carries on its rolls than it can in any other way. When the number of advanced students is large in proportion to the total enrollment and when it is growing constantly larger, it is a sure sign of an efficient and a progressive school.

Measured by this standard our town boasts of a school that is very much alive and exceedingly efficient, for three years ago the total enrollment in the high school grades did not exceed fifty five. Two years ago the last four grades ran to an enrollment of about eighty. Last year the enrollment ran to ninety-four and this year it has already run up to 104.

The comparative size of the senior classes may also be taken as a concrete evidence as to the way in which the school holding the pupils and carrying them on through the school course. The class of 1920 consisted of five girls. The class of 1921 was composed of seven girls. The seniors of 1922 numbered seven girls and two boys, while the class of 1923 is starting its last year of work with thirteen boys and eight girls on its roll. This is, we understand, by far the biggest graduating class that the school has ever turned out.

The names of this year's class follow: Edith Dick, Stella Ferguson, Lucile Hardbeger, Agnes Hyde, Rachel Morgan, Lillian Park, Mabelle Stubbs, Della Whitten, Horace Benedict, George Bolin, Truman Brantner, Ernest Butler, Lee Carpenter, Elbert Dick, Audley Hallmark, Jesse Hitchcock, Irmon Messer, Clyde Park, Uirie Lea, Ober Stevens, Ansel Waldrip.

Presbyterian Meeting.

Rev. E. A. Lindsey of Fort Worth Department of Home Missions for the Presbyterian Church, accompanied by Rev. Roscoe Hooker of Haskell, was in town Wednesday, conferring with Presbyterians about holding a meeting. The meeting will probably be held during the latter part of November and a Presbyterian Church organized at that time.

PURE PLANTING SEED

A. D. Mebane Solves Above Problem

MEBANE is to Cotton Seed what Sterling is to Silverware, a guarantee of quality. However, of late years the Cotton Seed Buyer has been swindled in the purchase of Planting Seed from some unscrupulous dealers, who have represented they had pure Mebane Seed, when the Seed they were selling was in many cases not Mebane Seed at all, and if Mebane, so many years from the Original Seed that the qualities which make Mebane THE BEST had run out.

Mr. A. D. Mebane, knowing full well the wishes of the farmer, and realizing that it was not only a reflection on the quality of his Seed—which has stood the test for over twenty years—but also having the interests of his fellow farmers at heart, in seeing that they should get his PEDIGREED PLANTING COTTON SEED, when they so desired, conceived of a plan by which he could supply the great demand and protect the Buyer.

Mr. Mebane has had his trademark registered. IT IS THE NAME MEBANE IN GREEN LETTERS WITHIN A BRIGHT RED CIRCLE, which will be upon every sack, and upon the back of the sack, OVER HIS SIGNATURE, will be the trademark with his words of caution, that only "THE ORIGINAL AND GENUINE MEBANE PEDIGREED PLANTING SEED BEARS THIS TRADEMARK."

In order that Mr. Mebane can devote his entire time to the culture of his Seed upon a large scale, it was necessary that a sales agency be organized for the proper distribution of his Seed; hence the A. D. MEBANE SALES AGENCY, which agency will distribute only Pedigreed Mebane Planting Seed, in Trademarked Sacks.

If you want the BEST BY TEST—for when better planting seeds are grown, A. D. Mebane will grow them—write us for prices, which we shall be pleased to quote and also send descriptive literature.

A. D. MEBANE SALES AGENCY, Lockhart, Texas.

DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM IN FULL

San Antonio, Texas—The platform as adopted by the State Democratic convention follows:

1. The Democracy of Texas in convention assembled, renews the pledge of party fealty to those grand principles for the protection and advancement of organized society, formulated by Thomas Jefferson and exemplified by the long list of illustrious party leaders in the Nation and State whose patriotic and capable public service has marked the progress of the Government of the United States.

We heartily indorse the administration of Governor Pat M. Neff for its wise, economic and constructive policy and we especially commend the earnest efforts that have been made by him to suppress lawlessness in every form and his fearlessness in upholding the majesty and dignity of the law. We commend his determination that the violation of the law should be followed by punishment for the same. And we especially commend him for his fearlessness in enforcing the law in those districts of the State where lawlessness was rampant and the officers of the country were unable to suppress it. Accepting his past administration as a prophecy of what his future shall be, we unhesitatingly commend him to the voters of Texas for the high honors for which he has been selected. While appreciating and recognizing the necessity of assisting the educational interests of the State and particularly the demands of the public schools, he, at the same time, realized that the tax payers of the State were staggering under burdens too heavy to be increased.

2. We reaffirm the traditions and principles in favor of a strict construction on the Federal Constitution and the preservation of the rights of the States and the liberties of the people, the political equalities of our citizens, freedom of conscience, the separation of church and State and the freedom of the press as among the fundamental doctrines embodied in the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States, and at all times adhered to by the democracy of the Union.

3. We commend to the people of Texas a comparison of the many great and progressive achievements of the Democratic party in the eight years from 1912 to 1920, with the vacillating and inefficient policies and the lack of accomplishment of the present Republican national administration. Coming into power on a wave of reaction from war conditions, with many pledges of promises to the people, the Republican party today stands discredited before the country with ranks demoralized and with pledges unredeemed and promises unfulfilled. The Democracy of Texas was a part of the organized political force which wrought so well for the national welfare under the patriotic and far-seeing national Democratic administration, and it now points the way to a return of constructive statesmanship, industrial peace and agricultural prosperity so greatly enjoyed while it was in power.

4. We give our grateful tribute and enthusiastic indorsement to the administration of that great Democrat and world figure, Woodrow Wilson, and we hail him as the leader of the progressive Democracy of America and of the liberal thoughts of the whole world. The achievements of his administration for the welfare of the American people, and of mankind, will stand for all time as an imperishable monument of his genius for government, his devotion to the public weal and his unspassed service to Christian civilization.

5. The Democracy of Texas reaffirms our allegiance to the eighteenth amendment of the Federal Constitution and favors its strict and continued enforcement. We urge our representatives in Washington to initiate the needed legislation to cure its defects and provide the necessary supervision to have the law fully enforced throughout the United States, and on the high seas, on all vessels licensed by the United States, and every other vessel entering our ports. And we urge our Legislature at its next session to enact the necessary legislation to bring about a closer and more effective cooperation between the Federal and State authorities for the enforcement of the Volstead act, and we demand that the Legislature of Texas shall pass such laws as will make more speedy and more effective the absolute prohibition of the sale, manufacture and transportation of intoxicating beverages of any character whatever in this State.

6. The Democratic party of Texas again announces its allegiance to its ancient doctrine of a tariff for revenue only and we denounce the tariff bill recently passed by the Senate of the United States known as the Fordney-McCumber bill as an act "to increase the high cost of living and to prevent the restoration of international trade," and we declare that its beneficial effects are already felt in the increase in the prices of food and clothing and all the necessities of life.

7. We denounce our continued adherence to the doctrine of the autonomy of the States and their unrendered sovereignty, and to the principle that every power not specifically delegated to the Federal Government is reserved to the States.

8. We declare our opposition to every encroachment upon either the legislative, executive or judicial powers of the State, and to this end we declare the rights of the State to regulate and control all purely intrastate commerce and urged our United States Senators and Congressmen to exert their best efforts to have repealed the Esch-Cummins transportation act and to have restored to the State Railroad Commissions their rate making power.

9. Recognizing that our present system of the distribution and sale of farm products appears to penalize both the producers and consumers, through the speculative control of prices, wasteful methods of handling, and unnecessary overhead expenses, we commend to our Senators and representatives a careful study of the problems of co-operative marketing and recommend the enactment of legislation that will aid both the farmer and the stockman in the realization of the highest prices which their products may bring. And we further declare that these two great industries, which give employment to more labor and have invested more capital than any other American enterprise, are of supreme importance to the welfare and prosperity of all of our people and that there should be secured to them adequate and dependable credits on longer and more favorable terms than our present commercial banking system affords. And it is our opinion that the importance of this issue demands the highest type of constructive statesmanship for its solution.

10. We heartily indorse the Shepard-Towner act and call upon the Thirty-Eighth Legislature to pass such legislation as may be necessary to secure to the women of Texas the benefits of this law.

11. We again affirm the ancient and accepted doctrine that the Democratic party is a white man's party and unreservedly recommend the continued observance of that principle.

12. We congratulate the people of this State for the splendid progress made in recent years in the building of public roads. We recognize the improvement of the facilities for the exchange and distribution of products of commerce and industry, as of paramount importance to the people of this State, and at the same time we realize the inability of the State by itself to secure a system of State highways of uniform type existing under constitutional limitations which place all initiative in road construction and financing in the several counties of the State, and denies to the State itself the authority to construct and operate its highways. Accepting the recent act of Congress, which declares that in the near future Federal co-operation in roadbuilding will be extended to those States only that provide that the State, through a properly authorized and equipped agency, shall finance from the funds under the direct and exclusive control of the State the construction, maintenance and operation of a State system of public highways; there is an imperative demand that we accept the provisions of the Federal act as our only hope of assistance and we therefore recommend and urge upon the Thirty-Eighth Legislature the necessity for favorable action on all legislation, whether constitutional or statutory, that may be deemed requisite to enable the State to take over the construction, maintenance, control and operation of a system of public highways without prejudice to the constitutional rights of the counties and of the State.

13. Be it further resolved that the next Legislature be requested and instructed by this convention to pass suitable laws, providing for the payment of such taxes, limiting the amount of tonnage to be carried by vehicles using such highways, and providing such penalties as will forever protect these highways from the destructive use of those who seek to commercialize them.

14. Be it further resolved that the Legislature be requested to pass suitable laws looking to the protection and maintenance of such highways when built.

15. We recognize the necessity for the unification and centralization of the agricultural work of the State of Texas under one head, and for the purpose of relieving the people of such burden of taxation as may have been caused by the duplication and multiplication of the several agencies of the State in the matter of agricultural work, we recommend that the Legislature consolidate the administration and control of such work with the Department of Agriculture in this State.

16. We believe that the administration of court procedure in this State can be made more efficient and less costly to the people at large, and to the end that justice may be had, and business more quickly disposed of, we approve the efforts of the Texas State Bar Association in bringing about this much desired result, and we recommend that the next legislature provide for the keeping open at all times possible of the various courts for the transaction of business.

17. The Democracy of Texas recognizes that a conservation and utilization of all natural resources of the State in the interest of the people of the State, and pledges itself to secure such legislation as may be necessary to secure the same; the great losses occasioned by the periodic droughts in certain sections of the State and the inundation of lands in other sections, constitute an important factor in our economic life and materially affects the public welfare.

18. We recommend to the Legislature such action as will place the agencies and facilities of the State government in accord with a movement to promote and develop water conservation and to prevent the loss against excessive floods, and to the end that such may be done we recommend such surveys by the Engineering Department as may be needed to demonstrate practical plans for the conservation of flood waters and the reclamation of arid lands.

19. The forests of the State of Texas having been largely exhausted, with no effort to reclaim them with merchantable timber, we recognize that in time a great loss must follow by reason of the fact that there will not be sufficient material for the home building of the people in our State, we therefore recommend that the State of Texas join efforts with the Federal Government for the reforestation of lands not profitable for agriculture where under such conditions it may be found practical, and that the State bear a just and active part in such constructive plans of the National Government.

20. We favor the amendment of a law by which any officer of a county who is unwilling to enforce the law and where it can be shown that he for any cause wilfully refuses to enforce the law and discharge the duties of this office may be removed from office from such office and placed in the hands of the Governor during the pendency of such judicial inquiry.

21. This convention indorses the national defense act of June 4, 1920, as a sound foundation for the military policy of the nation, and requests that appropriations for the National Guard, organized reserve and the Citizens' Military Training Camps, to carry out the purpose of said act.

22. The Democracy of Texas declares its sincere belief that the men who entered into the defense of this nation, leaving their homes and business pursuits during the days of the war, are entitled to just compensation for the losses sustained by them in so doing; and we further declare that those men who suffered physical or mental infirmities by reason of their service are entitled to the best of care and attention which the Government can afford to give.

23. The Democratic party of Texas in the matter of taxation stands for equal and exact justice to all. It has consistently stood for the minimum of tax burdens essential to the efficient administration of the public service, and is our belief that the taxation of the State of Texas should undertake through the means of a distinctly State agency the equalization of tax renditions among all the counties of the State.

24. We believe that the universal dissemination of knowledge is the only sure guaranty of the rights and liberties of the people and we pledge the Democratic party to make adequate provisions for assuring to the children of the State equal opportunity to secure the benefits of instruction through the public schools. We recognize the insufficiency of the financial support heretofore given to the common school districts of the country, together with the irregular terms of instruction as conditions of affairs demanding immediate remedy. We urge such changes in our law, both constitutional and statutory, as will make ample provision for the maintenance of every public school in the State for an equal number of months in each year with like facilities for instruction, and which will provide that degree of flexibility in adaptation to future scholastic requirements as will result in giving to Texas a real State system of public schools.

25. We urge upon the next Legislature liberal appropriations to supplement the available school fund reasonably consistent with the public revenues. And we further believe that the judicious policy for the support and development of the State institutions of higher learning and of vocational training is through a tax levy, supplemented whenever necessary by suitable appropriations. Such tax levy to be subject to legislative determination in order to provide for flexibility of adjustment in increasing institutional requirements and subject to legislative direction for distribution among the institutions.

26. The increasing problem of municipal government in providing for controlling and regulating public service utilities essential to the welfare of the people demand grave consideration and we recommend that the Legislature authorize the establishment of a State agency to co-operate with such municipalities in the solution of the public utility problems which are constantly arising.

27. We favor a convention for a new Constitution for the State of Texas.

28. We favor the giving of all men and women who are in the Army, navy and marines from the State of Texas, the same voting rights that other citizens of the State may have.

29. Feeling that adequate and essential facilities should be provided without discrimination for every section of Texas. Therefore, we urge upon the Thirty-Eighth Legislature to establish a branch agricultural college in West Texas as under the direction of the board of directors of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas and co-ordinated with the present institution at College Station.

30. We favor the enactment of a law by which any officer of a county who is unwilling to enforce the law and where it can be shown that he for any cause wilfully refuses to enforce the law and discharge the duties of this office may be removed from office from such office and placed in the hands of the Governor during the pendency of such judicial inquiry.

31. This convention indorses the national defense act of June 4, 1920, as a sound foundation for the military policy of the nation, and requests that appropriations for the National Guard, organized reserve and the Citizens' Military Training Camps, to carry out the purpose of said act.

Whole System Benefited by Tanlac

Thousands of frail, nervous and convalescents everywhere testified to the remarkable power of Tanlac in bringing back their health, strength and working efficiency. It seems to quickly invigorate the constitution, and is a powerful foe of weakness. Mrs. George G. Owen, of Salem, Oregon, says: "My nerves were upset and the little I ate wasn't enough to keep up my strength, so I lost weight and became so weak it seemed I had no energy at all. Tanlac restored my health completely, and I gained twelve pounds weight." There is not a single portion of the body that is not benefited by the beneficial action of Tanlac. It enables the stomach to turn food into healthy blood, bone and muscle, purifies the system and helps you back to normal weight. Get a bottle today at your good druggist.—Advertisement.

POULTRY

FOWLS NEED OYSTER SHELLS

Illure to Provide Laying Hens With Proper Materials Is Sure to Cause Disaster.

"Laying hens require oyster shells and limestone grit at all times as well as mash containing animal feed," said Prof. J. G. Halpin in an address at the poultry school at the Ohio experiment station.

This statement was based on an array of valuable data gleaned from years of experimental work at the Wisconsin experiment station. The data showed conclusively that failure to provide shells and grit for the laying hens is disastrous to profitable egg production, though, contrary to popular belief, this failure does not appear to cause soft-shelled eggs.

In order to get pullets in the habit of eating oyster shells and grit at an early age, it is the practice of the experiment station to keep these essentials before the birds during the brooder stage. When pullets are out on range a quantity of the shells and grit are put on the ground near the colony.

BETTER PROGENY BY CULLING

Wise Plan to Discard All Fowls in Flock Except Most Vigorous and Prolific Layers.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture. Culling the poultry flock to get rid of all those birds except the vigorous and prolific layers results in noticeable improvement in the progeny. By recent investigations at the States experiment farm, Beltsville, Md., the late moulters selected a flock of 100 Rhode Island Reds in the fall of 1920 laid seven more eggs per bird during their second year than the original flock of pullets. They were used as breeders the following spring, and the first Red pullets to commence laying in the fall of 1921

Single Comb Rhode Island Cockerel, were found to be the offspring of these late-moulting hens. Their pullets in a period of seven months have already averaged about two dozen eggs per bird more than the original flock.

But it is not alone in number of eggs that the late-moulter's progeny is superior, but also in the value of the chicks as the distribution was more uniform. A much larger proportion of the brood hatched during the winter months in the last seven months than in the last seven months of the original flock, but the product was, figuring at about $1.04 per bird in the same period. It is expected that the profit margin will increase about five months.

OFFERED TO IDOL

Maidens and Children Unhappy Victims of Baal.

Archeologists Have Unearthed, in Ruins of Carthage, Temple Where Infamous Rites Were Practiced.

Unearthed among the ruins of Carthage, in northern Africa, according to official notification received by the French government from Count Byron Prorok, famous archeologist, is the great temple of Baal, where pagan priests practiced their indescribable human sacrifices centuries ago.

Count Prorok has sent word to his government that a set of sacrificial urns believed to contain the bones of maidens and children sacrificed to Baal have been unearthed and identified.

Identification of the temple of Baal beyond any question of doubt is possible through the discoveries already made. Baal, or Baal-Hammon, is the monstrous deity mentioned hundreds of times in the Bible and in other ancient writings. Students of the Bible and children who attend Sunday school remember passages in the Old Testament telling how the Israelites were warned against this idolatrous worship and its infamous practices.

The chief characteristic of the Baal-Hammon worship was the sacrifice of human beings in cruel and varied forms. Each temple of Baal contained a huge and monstrous idol, usually of bronze, but sometimes of stone, and it was to this idol that the victims were sacrificed. Occasionally young children were offered up, but usually it was some beautiful maiden who was chosen to become the "bride of Baal."

Sometimes the victims were consumed by fire. Frequently they were subjected to longer and even more atrocious tortures. When the victim was to perish by fire, three different methods were used. In every case, however, the maiden was first placed "in the arms of Baal," or, rather, on a sort of platform on the knees of the seated idol between the arms.

By one method fire was made to spout from the mouth of the overhanging head. By another the platform itself was heated red-hot. By a third the platform was tipped backward by a mechanical contrivance and the victim was hurled into a seething fiery furnace in the interior of the idol.

More cruel even than the death by fire was the placing of the "bride" on luxurious cushions laid in the lap of Baal. When the priests departed, sealing the great stone doors after them, lions or other savage beasts were turned loose to roam the temple floor. The terror-stricken maiden could then remain on the cushions slowly to starve to death or might choose the quicker method of casting herself to the beasts below.

Thumb Made Him Wealthy.

Not long ago a famous physician in Saxony, Doctor Metzger, celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday. He had retired from active practice for some years, having become immensely wealthy through the thumb of his right hand. This thumb stands out at a right angle from his hand, and, it is said, cannot be bent back automatically. He soon found it of great service in massage, and when he became a specialist in intestinal disorders he was called as assistant to the greatest surgeons of Europe, bringing relief to many illustrious patients.

The queen of Rumania sent for this doctor with the curious thumb when she suffered from facial neuralgia, while the king of Sweden once drove a beautiful span of horses over the border of his kingdom to consult the doctor, and, on returning, left the horses as a token of gratitude to his preserver.

Bernard Shaw's Manners.

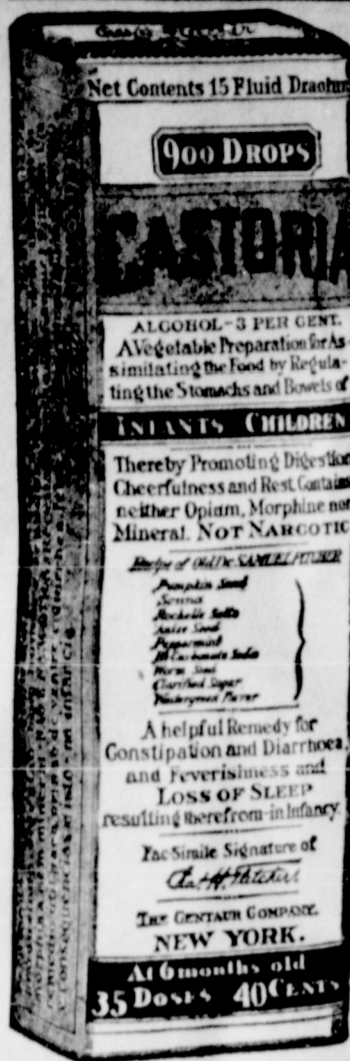

"Hoist by his own petard" was the fate the other day of Bernard Shaw. To a woman of London's best society who had invited him to lunch he answered with this telegram: "Never in my life! What have I done that you want me to change my cherished habits?" The woman replied with a veritable "tit for tat" in the following dispatch:

"I do not know what your cherished habits are, but I am sure that they are not worth more than your manners."

To this G. B. S. ventured no rejoinder.

Apple Peets in Pictures.

"King Apple's Enemies" is a motion picture lately released by the Department of Agriculture. It shows the mobilization of insects and fungi against the apple kingdom, and shows the spraying and dusting "guns" moving into action, and the repulse of the foe. The film is one of 150 feet and is being used throughout the country by agricultural extension and workers.—Scientific American.

CASTORIA

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

In the recent run-off primary election, only one candidate who was considered as a pro-klan candidate, who was seeking an office that required the vote of the state at large to decide as to who would be the nominee, was successful. And yet we see the statement and hear the assertion that the Ku Klux Klan won in this contest. Anyone who knows the conditions as they exist, it seems to us, should not fail to see that this was not a K. K. victory, but a victory for the enforcement of the Virdstead act, as those who favored its enforcement won, regardless of their stand on Ku Kluxism. In fact, in candidacies where both opponents were in favor of its enforcement, the anti-Ku Kluxers won, which would make it seem that it was more a victory for the anti-klan element. We have never favored mob violence and do not believe that the klans needed, but between a man with a clean private and public record who is endorsed by the Klan and a man whose record is a dishonor to his family and his state, who is endorsed by the lawless and immoral element, we choose the former, as our State has done in the selection of a man to represent her in the U. S. Senate.

We received last week a sample copy of "Industrial Dixie," published at Dallas. E. G. Senter is the editor of the sheet, which is enough said. As to the "Industrial" feature of the publication, we failed to see any. It was a red hot political sheet with all of its energy directed against the Democratic party. It stated that "the message" was in the nation in Texas politics. If such is the case, what is the name? It certainly isn't the Democratic party.

people who nominate them. On the contrary, if the minority rules, it is because the majority fail to take sufficient interest in State affairs to go to the polls and cast a vote—and it is better in our opinion for this class not to take a hand in State affairs, for if they take such little interest in them they are almost sure to vote wrong when they do go to the polls.

FINANCIAL PEACE IS IN POTASH PACT

FRANCE-GERMAN AGREEMENT IS FORWARD STEP IN ECONOMIC RELATIONS.

TAKES PLACE OF THREATS

Following Stinnes Reconstruction Plan, Emphasizes Trend to Rapprochement.

Paris.—A forward step in the strengthening of Franco-German economic relations is marked by the report that French potash interests in Alsace have formed an agreement with their German rivals in order to curb competition, particularly in the Eastern markets.

This, following closely on the Stinnes agreement for the reconstruction of the devastated regions, served to emphasize the new tendency to work for rapprochement with Germany instead of attempting to get results by a series of futile threats.

Powerful French metallurgical interests, according to well-founded rumors, are now attempting to arrange an agreement with the German coal and coke barons which, if successful, will create a Franco-German steel and iron-producing combination that will certainly be the most powerful in Europe, and, if extensively pushed, might be a formidable rival of America in Continental European markets, to say nothing of England.

Although local metallurgical magnates are reticent regarding their plans, it is known that Louis Louchur, former Minister of the Devastated Regions, has spent considerable time recently in the Nancy and Briey mine regions, and, inasmuch as he framed the Weisbaden agreements with Dr. Walter Rathenau, the late German Foreign Minister, it is deemed likely that he has a finger in the international pie.

Furthermore, President Millerand, who before the war was general counsel for the Comite des Forges, the central organization representing the metallurgical interests, is an outspoken advocate of helping Germany to her feet. During his premiership, Millerand emphasized that it was good business for the creditor Nation to help its debtor toward solvability.

Although the President's power is limited by the Constitution, his influence through personal persuasion among bankers and manufacturers is tremendous. It is quite possible therefore, that President Millerand is quietly, but doggedly, taking advantage of the adjournment of the Parliament to direct France's policy toward Germany on the basis of a rapprochement instead of threats.

DALLAS COMES SECOND IN CATTLE RECORD

Houston Leading City in August in Eradication of Tuberculosis Reports Show.

Fort Worth, Texas.—Houston was the leading city in Texas in the eradication of tuberculosis among dairy cattle during the month of August, according to the monthly report of Dr. Leon G. Cloud, State Veterinarian. The report shows that in Houston five herds were tested during August and that two reactors were found.

Second in effort for tubercular-free dairy herds was Dallas, with the same number of herds tested and even reactors found among 1,191 head of cattle in the herds. Testing throughout the State, however, was slack during the month of August, only about 3,400 head of cattle being tested and thirty-five reactors being found.

Abilene, San Angelo, Sherman, Temple, Waco and Wichita Falls were on the "no reactor" list, while Beaumont stood at the foot with sixteen reactor among 396 head of cattle tested. El Paso's record was 364 head tested and ten reactors found.

The White Dress

Old-Fashioned Snowy Gown Has Returned to Favor.

ONE OF THE NEWEST MODES

Note of Color, Formerly in Sash, Now Spreads Over Garment in Form of Embroideries.

The old-fashioned white dress has come back with variations, observes a fashion correspondent in the New York Tribune. In outline it is simple, simpler than it ever was. It may be only a straight chemise frock but the note of color which in the old days appeared in a sash now spreads itself over a large part of the dress in the form of embroideries. While the embroidery is profuse the designs are very simple and usually in brilliant colors.

Red is a favorite color for the enlivening note on white dresses. Sometimes the embroideries are in frosted silver threads, making the garment like a fairy robe.

Then there are white dresses of the greatest simplicity in the slip-over-the-head style, having nothing to distinguish them but a girde consisting of ropes of beads, frequently jade. Such dresses may be cut in scallops at the bottom, the scallops, of course, being bound by hand. These gowns are most effective when worn with broad drooping brimmed hats with brilliant flowers such as zinnias.

Mauve crepe marocain makes a charming dress. A beautiful note of contrast is given by red flowers fall-

SHADES FOR SPORTS CLOTHES

Chine and Jaspce, Two New Colors Offered in Paris—Craze for Knitted Suits.

Paris is showing an interest in sports clothes hitherto unknown. This is a season in which this type of dress takes the front line in fashion's ranks. French women who have never indulged in out-of-door sports to any extent now consider it very chic to play golf and tennis, and those who do not play consider it chic to wear the same type of clothes. The Paris dressmaker is awake to this fact and includes among her newest models many interesting novelties in sports-wear garments.

A veritable craze has sprung up for knitted two-piece suits and two-piece dresses in the new colors known as chine and jaspce. The former is a multicolored yarn either in wool or silk, and the latter is one color mixed with white, imitating as it were Jasper. To be really chic one must wear either jaspce or chine knitted suits, sweaters, dresses or blouses.

And in addition to these there is every imaginable type of accessory for sports wear—the hat, the girde and the bag. Many of these are being developed in leather with embroideries of straw and applications of hammered metal. There is a vogue for basket-woven handbags and purses done in bright sports colors. The leather hat, particularly in suede and morocco, is being brought out in smart new effects.

Effects More Trim.

Though Paris sends gowns with pointed panels, fluttering ribbon ends hanging below the hem, and sashes that trail upon the floor fashionable women are turning from these frocks to those more trim in outline. Though the uneven hem is still noted, the tatters are rapidly vanishing.

Model of Mauve Crepe Marocain With Ruby Trimming.

ing down one side of the skirt. The hat, of white horsehair braid, is trimmed in two shades of violet and red, thus completing a most effective costume.

It is fitting that shawls should be worn with these quaint frocks so reminiscent of the fashions of bygone days, and so we have the evening wrap, which is a shawl deeply fringed and worn across the shoulders in Spanish style.

Ukrainian Embroidery.

Ukrainian embroidery in the most gorgeous colors is seen on some of the newest stockings. Sometimes it is introduced in the form of clocks at either side, but it is newer to have the design in front over the instep.

USE PUFFED AND CRINKLED SILKS

Matlazette Is Name Given to One of the New Fabrics for the Fall Season.

The new novelty silks for fall that typify the season's mode are puffed and crinkled and might be styled as variations of the choky introductions of Paris that have been such a pronounced success. One of the most adaptable of the new silks for the coming season makes its appearance under the name of matlazette, and its irregular weave promises a very interesting medium for the fall silhouette.

The face of matlazette is finished in a dull satia effect which is very rich and the back of this fabric is crepe. Finished in such a manner that it is practically reversible.

Matlazette, as the name implies, gives one the same impression as the irregular surface of trouble water, and its fine texture makes it a tempting material for developing the long graceful drapes of the fall mode.

Another silk that is called pebble back satin is a decided crepe of pronounced character that is also reversible. This material might be called one of the conservative crinkled silks and it has a decided appeal.

Although novelties continue to be introduced, it is said that the demand for plain cantons and satin cantons is tremendous and promises no let-up for the coming season. One of their most charming flat finished crepes is called crepe princess, and it achieves a great deal of tone in its semi-lustrous surface. The body and weight of this crepe are particularly desirable and are used extensively for those gowns of more dignified men.

One New York manufacturer in keeping with the latest demands, has a most interesting collection of men's shirting silks prepared especially for the women's trade. The tiny jacquard patterns in this assortment are quite unusual and every known variation of striped effects gives a wide range for the use and combination of summer colors.

These Days Are All Alike.

On the Pacific Island of Nauru the sun rises at 6 and sets at 6 the year around; there is no daylight-saving there. The only change of seasons is when the "westerlies" come in the rainy season. These tropical rains descend with great violence. In the year following the three years' drought, there was a rainfall of 150 inches, 10 inches falling in one night.

Hydraulic Mining Used.

Hydraulic mining is being used in Finland to gather peat, water being pumped into the bogs to form a liquid mass that can be handled with turbine pumps.

Whatever had happened, Hammond had evidently not been easily captured. His countenance was somewhat battered, and the one captor who had a collar was bleeding copiously from a cut cheek. The three turned as Gramont's car drove up, and Hammond gave an ejaculation of relief.

"Here he is now—"

"Shut up!" snapped one of his armed captors in an ugly tone. "Hurry up, Chacherre—get a rope and tie this gink!"

Gramont leaped from the car and strode forward.

"What's been going on here?" he demanded, sharply. "Hammond—"

"I found a dead man over in them bushes," he said, cutting Hammond, "and these guys jumped me before I seen 'em. They claim I done it—"

"A dead man!" repeated Gramont, and looked at the three. "What do you mean?"

"Give him the spiel, Chacherre," growled one of them. Ben Chacherre stepped forward, his bold eyes fastened on those of Gramont with a look of defiance.

"The sheriff was here some time looking for a stolen boat," he said, "and went off toward the Ledanois. We were following, in order to help him search, when we came upon this man standing in the bushes, over the body of the sheriff. A knife was in his hand, and the sheriff had been stabbed to death. He drew a pistol and shot one of us—"

Gramont was staggered for a moment. "Wait!" he exclaimed. "Hammond, how much of this is true?"

"What I'm tellin' you, cap'n," answered Hammond, doggedly. "I found a man layin' there and was looking at me when these guys jumped me. I shot that fellow in the arm, all right, then they grabbed my gun and got me down. That's all."

The sheriff—murdered!

Into the mind of Gramont leaped that brief conversation which he had overheard between Ben Chacherre and the sheriff; the strange, unnatural silence which had concluded that broken-off conversation. He stared from Hammond to the others, speechless for the moment, yet with hot words rising impetuously in him.

Now he noticed that Chacherre and his two companions were watching him very intently, and were slightly circling out. He sensed an acquaintance among all these men. He saw that the wounded man had finished his bandaging, and was now holding his unbandaged hand in his pocket, bulging menacingly.

Danger flashed upon Gramont— danger upon him vividly and with a clearness. He realized that it was possible in this isolated spot where murder had so recently consummated! He checked himself, what he had been saying forth, at this instant, and the thought in his mind.

"Up!" said the chauffeur, "up!" Chacherre in a low, hoarse voice, but with a look of defiance. "This fellow ain't he? Well, to Houma, that's the body?" demanded Chacherre.

Chacherre gestured, and the chance to bring him yellow kept us busy, to frame up an alibi.

sheriff was here, then and the Ledanois land?" he go alone, or were to follow him," as a matter of fact. This was a matter to know—

"We were here when he was shot. This man of yours with a tion was dying from their eyes. Gramont glanced again at his chauffeur. "I'll not abandon you, Hammond," he said, severely, coldly. "I'll stop in at Houma and see that you have a lawyer. I think, gentlemen, we had better attend to bringing in the body of the sheriff, eh?"

The wounded man dodged into the barn and returned with a strip of rope. Chacherre took this and firmly bound Hammond's arms, then forced him to sit down and bound his ankles.

"You watch him," he ordered the wounded member of the trio. "We'll get the sheriff."

Allowing Chacherre and his companion to take the lead, Gramont went with them to the place where the murdered officer lay. As he went, the conviction grew more sure within him that, when he lay there by the rivulet, he had actually heard the last words uttered by the sheriff; that Chacherre had committed the murder in that moment—a noiseless, deadly stab! That Hammond could or would have done it he knew was absurd.

They found the murdered man lying among the bushes. He had been stabbed under the fifth rib—the knife had gone direct to the heart. Chacherre announced that he had Hammond's knife as evidence and Gramont merely nodded his head.

Lifting the body between them, they bore it back to the barn.

"No one saw the actual murder, then?"

"No need for it," said Chacherre, brazenly. "When we found him that way! Eh?"

"I suppose not," answered Gramont, his eyes fastened thoughtfully on Hammond. The latter caught the look, let his jaw fall in astonishment, then flushed and compressed his lips—and waited. Gramont glanced at Chacherre, and launched a chance shaft. "You're Ben Chacherre, aren't you? Do you work for Mr. Fell?"

The chance shot scored. "Yes," said Chacherre, his eyes narrowing. "What are you doing here, then?"

For an instant Chacherre was off guard. He did not know how much—or little—Gramont knew; but he did know that Gramont was aware of what had taken the loot of the Midnight Masquer from the luggage compartment of the car. This knowledge, very naturally, threw him back on the defense of which he was most sure.

"I came on an errand for my master," he said, and with those words gave the game into Gramont's hands.

There was a moment of silence. Gramont stood apparently in musing thought, conscious that every eye was fastened upon him, and that one false move would now spell disaster. He gave no sign of the tremendous shock that Chacherre's words had just given him; when he spoke, it was quietly and coolly:

"Your master is evidently associated with Memphis Izzy Gumberts, who owns this place here. Is that right?"

Both Hammond and Chacherre's two friends started at this.

"I don't know anything about that," returned Chacherre, with a shrug which did not entirely conceal his uneasiness. "I know that we've got a murderer here, and that we'll have to dispose of him. Do you object?"

"Of course not," said Gramont, calmly. "Step aside and give me a moment in private with Hammond. Then by all means take him in to Houma. I'd suggest that you tie him up, or make use of handcuffs if the sheriff brought any along. Then you'd better take in the body of the sheriff also. Hammond, a word with you!"

This totally unexpected acquiescence on the part of Gramont seemed to stun Chacherre into inaction. He half moved, as though uncertain whether to obey or not.

He turned in at the Ledanois gate, knowing himself to be beyond sight or hearing of the Gumberts place. He drove the car away from the house, and into the thick of the densest bush-growth that he could find, where it was well concealed from sight. Then, on foot, he made his way along the bank of the bayou until he had come to the rivulet where oil showed.

Here he paused, concealing himself and gaining a place where he could get a view of the Gumberts land. He saw Chacherre and Hammond there beside the body of the sheriff; the other two men were swinging open the barn door. They disappeared inside, and a moment later Gramont heard the whirr of an engine starting. A car backed into the yard and halted.

The three men lifted the body of the sheriff into the tonneau. Chacherre took the wheel, Hammond being bundled in beside him. The other two men climbed in beside the body, rifles in hand. Chacherre started the car toward the road.

"All fine!" thought Gramont with a thrill of exultation. "They've cleared out and left the place to me—and I want a look at that place."

Suddenly, as he stood there, he remembered the slight "plump" that he had heard during that interminable silence which had followed the conversation between the sheriff and Ben Chacherre. It was a sound as though something had fallen near him in the soggy ground.

The remembrance startled him strangely. He visualized an excited murderer standing beside his victim, knife in hand; he visualized the abhorrence which must have seized the man for a moment—the abhorrence which must have caused him to do something in that moment which in a cooler time he would not have done.

Gramont turned toward the little marshy spot where he had lain listening. He bent down, searching the wet ground, heedless that the water soaked into his boots. And, after a minute, a low exclamation of satisfaction broke from him as he found what he sought.

No Danger.

There was an old coffee mill in the attic which the Cokeleigh twins greatly desired to possess. Harry sought his mother and begged her to give it to them.

"I don't believe I can, Harry," said she, regretfully. "I should like to, but I'm afraid I can't."

"But, why, mother," urged Harry. "You don't use it."

"No, we don't use it."

"Then why won't you give it to us?"

"Well, dear," said the mother gently, "I'm afraid you and Clarence will 'No, we don't use it.'"

"Oh, no, we shan't!" cried Harry eagerly. "You needn't be a bit afraid of that, mother. I won't let Clarence touch it!"—Philadelphia Ledger.

SEASONABLE FOODS

A nice dish for luncheon which will be both nourishing and good to look at is

Stuffed Peppers.—Parboil four green peppers, removing the seeds and white fiber; after five minutes drain and plunge them into cold water. Stuff with the following: One-half cupful of freshly-cut cheese, cut fine; one tablespoonful of grated onion, two cupfuls of hulled rice, one teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of paprika, dash of red pepper and one-fourth of a cupful of milk and one-half cupful of coarsely chopped peanuts. Mix well before stuffing the peppers. Place in a pan, pour around one cupful of hot water and bake in a moderate oven for 45 minutes, or until the peppers are soft.

Lunch Cake.—Take one-third of a cupful of softened butter, one and one-third cupfuls of light brown sugar, two eggs, one-half cupful of milk, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of grated nutmeg, one-half cupful of raisins and one and three-fourths cupfuls of flour. Put all the ingredients into a bowl and beat for three minutes. Bake 40 minutes in a moderate oven.

Summer Squash.—Cook small ones cut in quarters or larger ones in slices. When tender drain and serve with rich white sauce, adding one-half cupful of minced cheese.

It's fun to dare in the face of despair, when the last lone chance seems gone. And to see hope rise in the angry skies like a promise of rosy dawn; For victory's sweet when it crowns defeat, and you learn this much is true: It's fun to fight when you know you're right, and your heart is in it, too.

SOME WAYS WITH PEAS

Peas are one of our most nourishing vegetables; belonging to the proteins they take the place of meat in the diet.

One may have a green boiled dressing by adding a cupful of peas sifted through a sieve.

The dressing is not only improved in color and flavor, but its food value is increased.

Green Pea Soup.—Take one pint of green peas, a quart of stock, six small onions, a small bunch of mint, a bunch of parsley, a large handful of spinach, two tablespoonfuls of butter and a teaspoonful of salt. Wash the spinach, parsley, and mint, add the peas and salt to the stock with the other vegetables and cook until soft. Put all through a sieve and reheat. Season with butter and salt and serve hot.

Pea Souffle.—Cook a pint of peas until soft, put them through a sieve, add two tablespoonfuls of butter, a pint of milk and the yolks of three eggs. Season with salt and pepper and fold in the stiffly beaten whites. Pour into a buttered dish and bake twenty minutes.

Salmon and Pea Salad.—Flake a can of salmon, removing the skin and bones. Take an equal amount of cooked peas and mix well with the salmon. Serve on lettuce with a boiled dressing with a sour pickle chopped in bits.

Combination Salad.—Take one cupful of peanuts cut in bits, two cupfuls of peas, one-half cupful of oil, a minced, a bit of onion and a mayonnaise dressing to serve on lettuce. Seasonings of salt and cayenne may be added to taste.

Peas and Peppers.—Take the tops from six peppers, remove the seeds and soak in a strong brine over night. Moisten with liquor from a can of peas, fill the shells with one-half cupful of minced meat, one cupful of peas, one-half cupful of bread crumbs, a little onion juice, salt and pepper to taste. Bake until the peppers are tender.

Green Gage Sherbet.—Take a quart of green gage plums, stew and put them through a sieve, add the juice of two lemons, one and one-half cupfuls of sugar and two tablespoonfuls of softened gelatin. Cook the sugar with half a cupful of water until a thick syrup is formed; add the other ingredients, chill and freeze.

SAYS CALOMEL SALIVATES AND LOOSENS TEETH

The Very Next Dose of This Treacherous Drug May Start Trouble.

You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into your bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tonic straightens you right up and you feel great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate.—Advertisement.
