

BUFORD B. BRANTON

Buford Baxter Branton was born May 4, 1888, at San Saba, Texas, and died at Fort Hancock, Texas August 31, 1939. His childhood was spent in Eastland County and in 1905 he with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Branton who pioneered Knox Prairie moved here. He was married to Ethel Haynes, February 7, 1909. To this union was born five children: Mrs. Cleveland Hutchinson, Milton, J. B., Winfred, and Winston, all of whom are living. He also leaves several brothers and sisters: Walter Branton of Rising Star, Robert Branton of Stockton, Calif., G. A. and E. F. Branton of Knox City, Mrs. Leone Thomasson of Knox City, Mrs. Bill Stoker of Truscott, and four grandchildren. He was converted and joined the First Baptist church of Knox City during a revival, conducted by Rev. Powell in 1917. He was a loyal husband, a devoted father and a friend to all. Among his last remarks to his wife were, "I am at peace with my Lord and ready to meet him."

BACK TO SCHOOL

The time of the year approaches when Civic Organizations, Service Clubs, Parent-Teacher Associations, School Boards and others of the community will begin their annual "Back to School Campaigns." This truly is a worthy movement and will enlist the support of every thinking Texan. Success in the campaign will lessen the unemployment problem among the youth of the neighborhood, but will tax the facilities of education. But the lack of facilities is not the fault of the boys and girls. To the boys and girls of this county and state, there is no such thing as a youth problem. And to their parents and to their elders they should be regarded as a blessing rather than as a problem.

There are still hundreds of rural counties in all sections of the United States where the schools have neither the buildings, the equipment, nor the trained teachers to give the children an education that will fit them for the demands of the day. Usually where the birth rate is highest, the taxable values are poor, and the local governments must strain every resource to provide for the education of the children under their care.

There's still another burden the schools should aid in bearing, and that is to teach the students how to use their hands as well as the R's.

New demands of the country call for experienced workmen and youth who actually know how to handle their hands; how to sweep, hoe, hammer, use a typewriter, wash tub, obrom, canning machine, etc., as well as a football, tennis racket and a baseball bat. The latter playthings have their purpose and their place, but after all, it should be borne in mind that this is a world of practical works and the laborer that is worthy of his hire must first learn how. Without jobs in which to gain experience, the schools must save the day for the boys and girls.

County Judge E. L. Covey of Benjamin was here yesterday on business and called at our office. He informed us that the State Highway Department began work on the Munday-Knox City Highway Monday. It will probably be one year before the road is paved and ready for traffic.

Joe Blackburn of Stamford has accepted a position with the Knox City Motor Company as mechanic. He will move his family here as soon as a house can be secured.

Texas cotton producers were cheered by news coming from Austin to the effect that committeemen are getting busy with plans to administer the Moffett law for stimulating new cotton uses. Pursuant to a call by Governor O'Daniel, the committee recently met in Austin. On the committee are such celebrities as Homer P. Rainey, president of the University of Texas, T. C. Walton of Texas A & M, and Clifford Jones of Texas Tech at Lubbock.

The Moffett bill bears the name of Senator George Moffett, himself a cotton farmer who knows the problems of the industry. The plan is welcomed as far superior to one tried several years ago when the cotton industry engaged in a plow-up campaign. The bill offers a reward of $10,000 for the discovery of a new use for cotton that will absorb a large quantity of the Texas crop. The committee is charged with the formulation of plans under which various and numerous proposals will be studied, and claims for the reward will be evaluated and judged.

"Pass the biscuit pappy" has been superceded by a new slogan coined by a husky Texas athlete who regularly and respectfully requests: "Make another pot of biscuit, Mommy."

Buck Taylor, brilliant writer of an inconoclastic turn is now engaged in writing a book that gives the "inside story" regarding the historic stand of the Immortal 56 in their opposition to SJR 12. Advance leaflets containing excerpts point to it as a classic of its kind, bulging with human interest, and it arouses the suggestion that it will be an important campaign document in defense of the 56 of the House and their equally "immortal" Senate minority.

There's another "56 Club" in Texas too. 56 employees of the Liquor Board have been advised of their dismissal.

Mexico is attracting a larger than usual tourist trade, despite the fact that two world's fairs are in progress in the United States. Texas is benefiting by the travel everywhere, which increases the need for observance of all traffic regulations.

EDITOR VISITS WICHITA

The editor and John Wilson attended the football game in Wichita Falls Monday night between the East and West Texas High School teams. The East Texas boys won by a score of 24 to 13. The West team was outweighed more than seven pounds to the man, but during the first half played the best game. However, the man power from the East was too much for the boys from the West.

While there the editor called on Congressman Ed Gossett and found him busy preparing an address to be delivered that night to the Labor Council, which held a large parade and demonstration. Gossett says he likes his work in Congress fine and would not care to have opposition next year, and most likely will not. Ed has made a good Congressman the first year and is popular with the Texas delegation. He says he does not know at this time whether or not the President will call them back in extra session because of the war in Europe. He has stood with the President in the majority of his measures and no doubt will go along with him when the war situation comes up. He expects to visit this section in the near future if he is not called to Washington. We found the people of Wichita Falls almost solid for him for re-election.

Heavy Karr and O. W. Caussey were transacting business in Abilene yesterday.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS WORSE IN SUMMER

Austin, September 6.—Infantile paralysis, like typhoid fever and intestinal disturbances of infants, is largely a summer disease. Although it may occur during any month of the year, over half of the total number occur during July, August, September and October. To date, 109 cases of poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) have been reported to the Texas State Department of Health in 1939.

Direct contact between persons is regarded as being the chief factor in the spread of infantile paralysis. Because of the seasonal prevalence of the disease, flies and other insects have been suspected of conveying the virus or germ. Insect transmission has not, however, been scientifically proven. Although animals are subject to paralysis, they are seemingly not susceptible to the human type of this paralytic disease. Carriers are difficult to determine; this fact makes advisable the reduction to a minimum of human contacts during an outbreak.

Early symptoms of infantile paralysis comprise headache, fever, vomiting, intestinal disorder, drowsiness and irritability, followed by neck or back stiffness. Prompt medical care, early recognition and reporting of cases to health authorities make possible the use of valuable preventive and control measures.

After the acute stage of the disease has passed and walking is permitted the patient, under no circumstances must the affected part be fatigued. It is thus observed that the secret of successful rehabilitation lies in continuance of professional guidance and large doses of patience.

Attorney Daniel of Oklahoma City was here Tuesday and called at the Herald office. He was a member of the Oklahoma State Legislature for a number of years and was Speaker of the House of Representatives two years ago.

T. J. Smith of Crowell was here Sunday greeting friends. He was formerly in the jewelry business here but moved to Crowell about three months ago.

Mrs. M. A. Reeder and daughter Mrs. Vaughn, of Fort Worth, have returned home after a visit with relatives here. Mrs. Blanche Pope accompanied them home for a visit.

Ed Bateman was here Tuesday from his King county ranch and said they were dry in that section, but cattle was doing fine.

217 BALES GINNED UP TO WEDNESDAY NIGHT

All three gins in Knox City are busy this week ginning cotton and some of them are running late into the night. The farmers just began picking Monday and by the middle of next week all will be gathering the fleecy staple. 217 bales had been ginned up to Wednesday night and several bales are on the yard as we go to press.

It is not known at this time just what the yield will be for this section. Several estimate that it will run from five to eight thousand bales.

Cotton this morning was averaging 8.75 and seed was bringing $20 per ton.

MRS. HARWELL ACCEPTS POSITION AT HASKELL

After having served the Knox County Hospital three years as superintendent and business manager, Mrs. Verna Harwell has resigned her position and will accept a like place in the Haskell Hospital which has just been completed and will open soon.

Haskell is Mrs. Harwell's "ole home town" and we predict for her and the new hospital a bright future. She has been a valuable and very competent member of the staff here and her place will be hard to fill. She expects to leave September 21st. The new superintendent has not been selected.

LARGE CROWD PRESENT AT GROCERY OPENING

Saturday M. D. Hammer and Earle Mauldin, managers of the new grocery store in the old Benedict building, were more than pleased with the number registered during the opening day. There were 205 registered and more than 500 people were present from all sections of this trade territory. They were there from Knox City, Rochester, Needmore, O'Brien and Cliff, and Mr. Hammer says they are more than pleased with the opening and urges his friends to call around and pay them a visit when in Knox City.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

Calling all citizens—for Fire Prevention Week, which is to be observed this year from October 8 to 14.

Fire Prevention Week marks a definite, intensive effort to save your life and your property from the ravages of fire. It is an intensely personal thing, which comes straight home to all of us.

Insurance organizations, fire departments, public officials, newspapers, the radio, civic clubs and organizations—all will work cooperatively together to make the week a success. They are working for you, and their hope is to enlist your support and interest. They will offer you every opportunity to learn about fire—its causes, the magnitude of its destruction, the means of controlling, fighting and preventing it. There is nothing dull about these lessons—to the contrary, they are intensely dramatic and interesting.

And they are much more than that. When you learn how to inspect your home for hazards, and apply what you learn, it may be the means of saving that home from ruin. Vastly more important, it may be the means of saving the lives of your family from one of the most horrible of deaths. Nothing pays greater dividends than fire prevention.

So do your part when Fire Prevention Week comes. Observe it with an open, inquiring mind. And when the Week is over, remember what you have learned, and keep on using your knowledge. One of the things this country needs most is a nationally observed "Fire Prevention Year."

PUBLIC SCHOOLS OPENED MONDAY

With a program in the auditorium the 1939-40 school session got under way Monday, September 4. The enrollment seemed to be holding true in high school, but the grades have not yet enrolled all who will attend. The high school enrollment was 114 and the grades 160 the first day, a total enrollment of 274.

With the continued support of the patrons and the help of an excellent faculty, the school year 1939-40 promises to be one of the best years in the history of the Knox City schools.

WEST TEXAS FAIR TO FEATURE HORSE SHOW

Abilene, Sept. 6.—To feature the All-Palomino Horse Show, first ever to be held in the United States, a nightly revue before the grandstand to headline Anson Weeks and his famous radio and screen band, and seven feature acts, completed plans for the annual West Texas Fair, to be held in Abilene, October 2 to 7, were announced today.

The Texas Palomino Association will present the All-Palomino horse show, with entries already indicated from throughout Texas and several adjoining states. Howard B. Cox, San Angelo, and Dr. M. T. Ramsey, San Angelo, committee chairman, said today more than 200 Palomino entries were expected.

Anson Weeks' band and supporting feature acts, to be staged before a new grandstand, now nearing completion, will be presented by the fair association each night, Monday through Saturday.

Individual headliner in the nightly "Parade of Stars" will be Chaz Chase, cigar eating comedian just ending a run at the Golden Gate Exposition in San Francisco.

The Dorothy Byton girls, ensemble specialists, Regini the juggler, the dancing Ahern sisters, Patsy Marr, tan soloist, Natalie and Howard, character dancers doing Anache and adagio routines, and the Clemis quartette of thrilling knife throwers who close the show, provide variety on the revue program.

Five afternoons of rodeo will be offered for daytime throngs attending the fair, Jack Simmons, president, said today.

The city of Abilene, leasing the fair grounds to the fair association, is spending $15,000 this fall to improve and renovate the grounds, with the new grandstand as the major item on the expansion program.

Farm, ranch and home exhibits have been enlarged, and total 579 classifications.

George W. "Stud" Barnes of the Texas Extension Service will be chief judge in the annual Hereford show, fair officials announced today.

Premium lists, to be larger than ever this year, will approximate $3,500.

The rodeo, offering stock from the noted Double Heart Ranch, Sweetwater, will attract top hands from throughout the Southwest for the bronc riding, bulldogging, wild cow milking and other featured events.

MRS. WARREN'S CLASS GIVES TEACHERS PICNIC

Mrs. E. Q. Warren's Sunday School class entertained the teachers of the Knox City schools with a picnic Wednesday evening at the City Park.

The members of the class, with the teachers, enjoyed the evening playing games and visiting together. Refreshments consisting of punch, sandwiches and ice cold watermelon were served.

CONGRESSIONAL INITIATIVE

When, on the evening of August 5, the weary legislators rang down the curtain on the Seventy-sixth Congress of the United States, after what an Associated Press dispatch described as "a final furious clash between a New Dealer and Administration critics within the Democratic party," history had been made. And it is remarkable history. For the Seventy-sixth Congress broke a presidential grip over the legislative branch of the government that held firm, showing only a few moments of weakness, for more than six years.

In the views of most commentators, business at large should be gratified with what Congress did—and with what it did not do. New and bigger spending plans were badly beaten. "Experimental" legislative proposals died unhonored and unsung in committee, and the few which reached the floor of either House were buried under an avalanche of "Nays." A definite start was made toward preventing future government competition in the field of private enterprise, and also toward limiting existing competition, particularly in the matter of electric power. By and large, Congress showed definitely that it wanted business recovery and that it was willing to do anything within reason to achieve it, and was eager to put the quietus on anything which seemed to endanger it.

Typical comment comes from Columnist Hugh Johnson, when he observed that the "belated revolt in Congress against unlicensed spending and Congressional insistence on Constitutional function to say how, when, where and in what manner public money shall be spent" should not be regarded as a peevish reprisal against the President, but as "a general recognition that for the past six years we have been in a process of silent revolution toward personalized government." And, he added, some of Congress' acts "are the most hopeful signs of a real return to prosperity and employment that we have seen in many years. Timid, idle capital should begin coming out of hiding and going to work to put men to work."

Congress' economy-mindedness was the most significant development of the session from the point of view of industry. And it developed with a rush in the closing weeks. Administration sponsored appropriation measures, including the much-publicized "self-liquidating loans" bill, were mangled beyond repair in committee. Appropriations actually authorized were, of course, extremely large—but they were much lower than administration officials wanted and thought necessary.

It is obvious that Congress' "rebellion will have a considerable influence on political events of the future. It has heartened the Republicans, and given them new hopes of a great victory in 1940—though unprejudiced commentators seem to generally feel that the G.O.P. had better hurry and find a personable candidate and begin building him up if it is to have an even chance of electing the next President. And it has caused immense rejoicing in the ranks of the conservative Democrats, who want to dominate the next Democratic convention, and put a middle-of-the-road candidate in the field. It is a patent fact that while Mr. Roosevelt may not have lost his control of the party nominating machine, it is definitely slipping. One more successful Congressional rebellion against the White House might make his influence comparatively negligible.

Time will prove or disprove that. But here's something you can bet on—next year's political wars, both within the major parties and between them, will be among the bitterest in our often-bitter political history.

"ARLINGTON OF TEXAS" HOLDS 2000 GRAVES

More than 1900 Confederate veterans, together with some of Texas' greatest heroes, are buried in the "Arlington of Texas," the State Cemetery in Austin, the State Board of Control reported recently.

Established in 1854 by the Legislature, the cemetery covers eight city blocks and is located on a gently sloping hill in East Austin.

On top of the hill stands a monument over the grave of Stephen F. Austin, Father of Texas. An imposing statue of Austin, with his arms outstretched, stands over the grave.

Also buried in the cemetery is General Albert Sidney Johnston, commander of the Confederate forces at Shiloh, and early Texas patriot. Over his grave lies the recumbent marble statue done by Elizabeth Ney, famous Texas sculptor.

Many former governors including John Ireland, E. J. Davis, and Peter H. Bell, are buried in the cemetery which also is a burial ground for notables who have died in recent years such as Supreme Court Justice William Pierson and State Superintendent S. M. N. Marrs.

HIGH COURT SLAPS JUDGE

Judge Fountain Kirby of Groesbeck last week stood restrained by the Texas Supreme Court from enforcing his own orders in connection with the operations of two truck lines.

Judge Kirby had enjoined all peace officers of the state from interfering with operations of the Humbolt Young and Julius Tips Truck Lines. On application of the attorney general, the Supreme Court granted leave to file a mandamus against Kirby, at the same time restraining him from enforcing his injunctions.

The state's application for mandamus asserted that "persons bent on violating the laws seem able to procure injunctions from from interfering with such purposes, so that the whole judiciary is brought into disrepute."

How the bawo was invented and how it received its name was narrated to this chronicler by Bob Burns a few days ago. It was while he was in Fort Worth to appear before two huge crowds for one night at Casa Manana.

We members of the Van Buren Silver Cornet Band were practicing in Haymon's plumbing shop," he drawled, "when I picked up a piece of gas pipe and stuck a roll of music in it and actually blew a few notes."

Later, he changed the instrument so that it was made of two pieces of gas pipe and a whiskey funnel—"and it makes just the kind of music you could expect two pieces of gas pipe and a whiskey funnel to make," he added.

When a fellow did a lot of talking about himself, folks used to say he "blew his bawo" so Bob just took the word, changed it a little and called the instrument a Russian bawo. Soon afterward, a minstrel show came to town and he joined it. After a few weeks it folded—"only about two folds were necessary, anyhow," Bob amplified, but by that time he definitely was an actor.

Burns has a great friendship for Irvin S. Cobb, the Kentucky short story writer.

"When we were making 'The Arkansas Traveler,' it was a wonder any scenes were ever made," Bob said, "because Irvin and I sat around swapping stories. While I'd be telling one, he'd be twiddling his fingers impatiently on his knee for me to finish so he could tell one, and I'd do the same while he was talking."

Afterward, Cobb wrote to Burns:

"I've been using your stories and they get lots of laughs; it must be the way I tell 'em."

Cobb added, "I always give you credit at the end but I speak your name in such a low and reverent tone that I doubt if anybody hears it."

The Kentuckian invited the big, raw-boned Arkansas lawyer to visit the Cobb home, explaining: "My wife has a morbid desire to meet you."

Incidentally, back in 1905, when Burns was riding around over the country on freights, he landed in Fort Worth and went south and helped build the railroad into Menard. So the other night, N. H. Pierce, editor of the Menard News (prize winning paper at the recent West Texas Press Association convention) went back stage at Casa Manana and interviewed Burns.

The fact that the Humble Oil and Refining Company has taken the lead in attempting to reduce the income of Texas by $100,000,000 a year (which would throw many people out of work and injure all lines of business) likely will be heard about next summer in the political campaigns, particularly in the races of officials who were reportedly backed by the Humble last year. Land Commissioner Bascom Giles, for example,

More about that day in the tropics of Mexico: As our cars rolled into the little town of Fortin, native girls came forward with sections of banana stalks hollowed out as containers for beautiful gardenias and orchids, which grow wild in that region. One could buy a whole "box" for fifty centavos (a dime, American money).

The small, new hotel was a jewel in a perfect setting. Its cool corridors surrounded a patio with grass of an unbelievably deep green—a green that looked as though someone had been using buckets of paint to touch it up. Bright flowers were blooming. The air was bland. Back of the hotel was its beautiful private swimming pool and, in the distance, was the haze of mountains. A peon slept in the shade of a tropical tree.

As we awaited the call to a leisurely dinner, Mrs. Adolf Dominguez (wife of the Dallas Mexican consul) seated herself at the piano and her marvelous voice rendered songs of her native land in soft Spanish. Simple and plaintive, the melodies were; and, in those surroundings, the singing gave the touch of perfection to the end of our journey. Because it was the end, for here we turned back toward Mexico City and Texas.

Eddie Cantor, on a recent visit in Fort Worth, wisecracked: "I'm not a Democrat or a Republican; in fact, I'm somewhat Socialistically inclined. I believe what's mine is mine, and what's yours I'd like to get half."

Alluding to the rivalry between the two cities, the comedian said, "I told Amon Carter I thought I'd run over to Dallas last night and he said he would fix it up and in about half an hour there was a knock on my hotel door and two men came in, put me in a strait jacket and kept me there all night."

On the subject of "jutterbugs," Cantor declared, "I'd rather the boys and girls would be hailing band leaders than hailing bund leaders."

Brann Garner runs the picture show in Ranger. He's more colorful than any of the actors he shows on the screen. Broad around the equator, somewhat resonant of voice and given to sweeping gestures, Garner is nicknamed "Little Caesar" because of the role that the very assertive Edward G. Robinson made famous.

Garner's given name was bestowed in honor of the famous "Iconoclast" who ran a magazine in Waco 40 years ago. Garner has been something of a writer, too, as he formerly edited the newspaper at Woodson in Throckmorton county, then 25 miles from a railroad, yet he "scooped" all the papers in the United States. Remember back in 1927 when there were no wars and depressions and all we had to talk about was what Henry's new model car was going to look like? Well, Garner wrote an advance description. It began: "The new Ford will come in two styles, open and closed. It will have four wheels, one on each corner", and so on. The article was reprinted by nearly every paper in the country.

Garner has a keen sense of humor and enjoys getting a good joke on a friend. He used to carry on a "fued" with a Ranger cafe proprietor. One day, after ordering half a fried chicken, he mildly asked, "Jimmy, could I see your chickens?" "Certainly," the restaurant owner said and escorted the customer to the ice box.

"Oh, they're dressed," Garner said in a tone of disappointment.

"Why?" queried the other, suspiciously.

"Well," Garner replied, "I ordered half a chicken and got two wings, two necks and two legs. I just wanted to see a live chicken walking around with four wings, four necks and four legs. By the way, how much do I owe you?"

"Not a darn thing; get out and don't ever come back."

Garner was back that night for dinner.

If you visit Ranger, don't miss Brann Garner. In fact, I doubt if you could, anyway.

Do you love the glorious past of Texas and would you like to have a part in preserving the stories of pioneers, warriors and statesmen? Another pamphlet just received is from Buck Taylor of Austin, giving the text of SJR 12 (the sales tax amendment) and a section by section analysis. The booklet sells for two bits and is part of a book Taylor plans to bring out entitled "Did You Say 'They Tried to Steal Texas?'" . . . And here's a letter from Pierce Brooks, president of the Texas Safety Council, enclosing an honorary membership for this columnist.

The people of Texas still run Texas. The oil shutdown forced the price of oil back up, which means millions of dollars more for workers, business men and the public generally in our state. Senior Report

The Seniors are about to the routine of regular classes. In English they have finished the study of Chaucer and the "Canterbury Tales," and are now studying Shakespeare and Milton. In Civics they have been studying the Constitution and powers of the Federal Government.

On Friday afternoon of last week the Seniors enjoyed their first social of the year, which was in the form of a picnic and skating party. Picnic lunch was eaten at Cartwright's pasture, and the class went to the Goree skating rink. When they left everyone agreed that they had all the skating they wanted for quite a while.

On Tuesday of this week the class met and chose their class rings. Everyone was pleased with the choice.

Sophomore Report

The Sophomores had a class meeting last week and decided to embark upon an adventurous picnic Friday afternoon. The president appointed the committees to make plans for it, and everyone anticipates a wonderful time.

Miss Gray Attends Teachers Conference

Miss Shirley Gray spent a part of last week in Dallas attending the Home - Making Teachers Conference which was held in the Baker Hotel. Eleven hundred high school Home - Making teachers of Texas attended the conference. Adult education, food production and consumption, high school Home - Making departments, home beautification, and Home Economics in the community were among the topics discussed. A style show was given by the Neiman-Marcus Department Store of Dallas.

The next conference of this area will be held at Lubbock on November 4th of this year. Miss Gray reported a very educational trip, and Sunset is glad to have her teaching again. Miss Pauline McCarty of Munday taught in Miss Gray's place while she was absent.

Propaganda in War

Europe is at last entangled in war. This is old news and sad news. But nevertheless Europe is not experiencing the type of war that everyone anticipated. Until now very little has been unusual, unless it is the fighting in Poland, and that has not been as bloody as was expected. What is queer about this conflict until now is the lack of smashing victories by either side. There is also a lack of aerial bombardment on the key cities of the belligerent nations.

There must be an invisible cause for this predominant reticence of the opposing factions. Perhaps that cause is uglier, more hideous and ominous than anyone thinks. There is every possibility that new kind of warfare is in its infancy. That is propaganda warfare, not entirely new, but with plenty of room for improvement.

On the night of September 3rd a huge British air armada many bombs or gas bombs, it was merely paper — and on this paper was enough propaganda to undermine the entire German reich.

As to the toll of dead, maimed and dying as a result of this air raid, we did not get a report. But it is probable that the load of paper shall be many times as effective as would a load of high - explosive bombs. This is not the first war in which propaganda has been used. But it is evident that widespread propaganda is going to play an important part in this war, and it is altogether possible that it will play a decisive part.

H. H. Stewart of Crowell was here Tuesday on business.

The Methodist church has been having a Sunday School attendance contest between the adults and the young people. The young people, being the losers, entertained the winners with a lovely picnic supper at the Moorhouse Park Thursday evening. After supper, games were played by the young people and the adults had a social hour.

Mrs. W. F. Snody returned Saturday from a visit in Las Cruces, N. M., with the Lyndol Snody family. She was accompanied by her son, Burl, who with his wife and baby returned Monday to Las Cruces where they will reside in the future, at least for some time. We trust they will do well in their new environment, but hope they will some day see their way clear to again live here, where they are leaving a host of friends.

The altitude seemed to be too high and Mrs. House was advised by the doctors to return home earlier on that account. Mr. and Mrs. Wade House went out and brought her home. We are glad to report she is feeling some better.

NOT WITH IMPUNITY

Some time ago the Macon, Georgia, Telegraph said: "It would be a genuine contribution to the straight - thinking of the American people if it could be realized, once and for all, that no government can violate economic laws with impunity, and the misuse of the taxing power as an excuse for regimentation and dictation is one of those blunders which amount to a crime."

This statement was occasioned by the situation in the Macon business district. Georgia has a stiff anti-chain tax law. And one immediate result of the tax was to depress rental values, and to empty store properties. In Macon, at the time the Telegraph wrote, 46 to 50 store buildings, representing a value of about $200,000, were empty. One-half of them had formerly been occupied by chains. And locations which had formerly brought as much as $60 a month could not find tenants even when offered at $25.

This, as the newspaper also said, has taken place throughout Georgia. And it has taken place in other states where punitive, class taxation and legislation have gone into effect. Business can "take it" just so long. Then it must succumb to the flows of the destructionists. One result is a ruinous decline in rental values. Another is a sharp decrease in employment. Another is a reduction in general purchasing power. Another is the loss of normal taxes to all units of government. Another is an artificial increase in the cost of living.

This isn't just a "chain store problem." The chains are simply a current illustration of what punitive treatment of business means to the people. It is a general problem, affecting all business and all people. No truer words were ever written than the Telegraph's observation that "No government can violate economic laws with impunity."

FARMERS URGED TO EARN SOIL BUILDING ALLOWANCE

Knox County farmers are urged to earn the soil building allowances as provided as a part of their 1938 payments. The soil building work is one of the most permanent features of the present farm program, and farmers should certainly take advantage of it, explained County Agent W. W. Rice.

In 1936 Knox County failed to earn $16,524; in 1937 they failed to earn $4,906, and in 1938 they failed to earn $26,800; or during the past three years Knox County farmers lost $47,830 in permanent soil conservation work.

The most widely used soil building practices in Knox county are terracing, contouring and the plowing under of green crops as manure crops.

Under the present farm program fifty cents is allowed for each acre of soil conserving land, which money must be earned by some soil building work, such as building terraces or plowing under green manure crops. For example on the average 160 acre farm there are about 42 soil conserving acres, or the so called government land. Then at 50 cents for each acre the 42 acres will permit $21.00 of soil building work to be earned on the farm.

One acre of Sudan or Cane plowed under green will earn $1.50. Then it will require 14 acres plowed under green to earn the entire $21.00 or full soil building allowance.

Terracing is paid for at the rate of $1.50 for each 200 linear feet of standard terraces built before Dec. 31, 1939.

The applications for payments that have earned their full soil building allowances will be held in the county office, so that these farmers will be given sufficient time to earn this payment. The State AAA Office will not accept the applications for payment early unless the full soil building money has been earned.

District Attorney Lewis Williams of Benjamin was here a short time Wednesday. He informed us that they were holding district court this week in Baylor county, and that the docket was light.

Rev. E. B. Bowen, District Superintendent of the Stamford District, will visit with the Methodist church next Sunday morning.

Rev. W. E. Hamilton, Executive Secretary of the North West Texas Conference, will preach at the Methodist church next Sunday.

METHODIST CHURCH

A story is told that when one day the Duke of Wellington and one of his soldiers met at the communion table and the soldier saluted, the Duke said, "No salute, sir; all men are equal here."

In a church in the city of Washington one Sunday morning came a Senator of the United States and a ragged newsboy in response to the invitation of the minister for church membership. The minister, taking a hand of each, said to the congregation, "At this altar all men meet on the same level."

There is no other organization known to man which invites all alike into its membership. "The rich and the poor meet together, the Lord is the maker of them all." So many things which separate men in other areas and organizations, like color, language, race and tradition, are not barriers to church membership. The glory of the church is its inclusiveness. To it no human is common or unclean. It is the nucleus of our common brotherhood. It is the denominator of humanity.

Go to church tomorrow, for there you will learn what all men need to know and never to forget, that humanity is humanity and that "the glory of our blood and state are shadows, not substantial things."

The Methodist church welcomes you and your children to its worship services next Sunday morning. Our Sunday School has a place for you and the worship is adapted to your needs. A man must have the spiritual development for a full life. Where else but in the church can man secure this? Come Sunday morning!
—Allen A. Peacock Pastor
