AL HINDS

This scribe would like to dedicate today's column in honor and memory of the late Edgar A. Guest, noted newspaper poet, who passed away in his sleep August 5.

Some people we know "turn-up" their noses and scoff at Guest's poems . . . and even some of our good newspaper friends have taken cracks at Guest's work.

I think Edgar A. Guest showed "bigness" when he said of his poems that they were not "great". Most of us will have to agree, however, that his poems extolled the everyday things in life.

At the height of his popularity, Guest was among the most widely read men of his time. His name was most frequently associated with the first line of his most famous poems . . . "It takes a heap o' livin' in a house t' make a home."

His poems have appeared for many years in many papers throughout the country . . . including the Fort Worth Star-Telegram and I always turned to the editorial page of that paper to read Guest's work.

Often called the "poet of the plain people" he preferred to be known as a newspaperman. At his peak, his syndicated daily poems appeared in nearly 300 American Newspapers. He also produced 17 volumes of poetry and for a number of years appeared on a national radio program.

Guest was born in Birmingham, England, but migrated to Detroit with his family when a boy. While exchange editor on the Detroit Free-Press he began to write poetry, often slipping it into the newspaper as an exchange item, when his secret was discovered, he was assigned to write poetry once a week. He later wrote a daily column, "Breakfast Chit-Chat."

Guest was associated with the motion picture industry for several months in 1955 as a writer and later had his own Television Show in New York.

Guest's poems dealt mostly with the little things . . . the everyday things in life and his last published poem was entitled "The Little Mind."

Guest's first commercially published book was "A Heap O' Livin'", published in 1916. The book ran through more than 30 editions and about 500,000 copies.

Yes, Edgar A. Guest has passed from this life . . . but his work lives on and will continue to bring comfort, cheer . . . and a heap o' livin' in the hearts, minds and souls to the millions of readers throughout the land.

When I see or hear an airplane winging its way through the sky . . . I realize again and again that the work of the famous Wright brothers lives on. When I pick up the telephone I know the work of Alexander Graham Bell lives on . . . when I turn on the electric light I realize that the work of Thomas A. Edison lives on . . . and so it is with Edgar A. Guest. He has departed from this old earth, but the works of the poet of the plain people will continue to live on!

I believe Mr. Guest's poems will grow of more value and greater and mean more with the passing of time . . . especially to the many persons who know in their hearts how true those famous first lines of one of his greatest poems . . . "It takes a heap o' livin' in a house t' make a home."

do not argue with those who say his poems do not rank at the top . . . but I do know that the 300 American newspapers that carried his work through their columns can not all be wrong . . . neither can the thousands of readers who looked daily to his "little poems" to give them a lift down the pathway of life!

THE KNOX COUNTY HERALD

VOLUME 54 KNOX CITY, KNOX COUNTY, TEXAS, THURSDAY, AUGUST 20, 1959 NUMBER 38

A.C.P. ACCOMPLISHMENT FOR 1959 ARE ANNOUNCED

J. T. Gilpin, A. S. C. Office Manager in Knox County, reports that through his office the government has shared the cost of carrying out approved conservation practices as follows in 1959:

1. Establishment of additional acreages of vegetative cover in crop rotation to retard erosion and to improve soil structure, permeability or water holding capacity. Five farms participated in this practice establishing 135.9 acres.
 2. Improvement of an established vegetative cover for soil or water shed protection by seeding adapted grasses on pasture land. Six farms improved their established covers amounting to 421.0 acres.
 3. Improvement of vegetative cover on range land by deferred grazing of pasture. 1,380.2 acres on two farms were deferred.
 4. Controlling competitive shrubs on pasture or range land by spraying, grubbing, or root plowing. Eighteen farms controlled 2,74.7 acres.
 5. Constructing dams, pits or ponds for livestock water. There were ten tanks on ten farms amounting to 48,101 cu. yds.
 6. Establishment of permanent sod waterways to dispose of excess water without causing erosion. One farm participated establishing 1.4 acres.
 7. Constructing terraces to detain or control the flow of water and check soil erosion. Four farms constructed 50,729 feet of terraces.
 8. Reorganizing farm irrigation systems to conserve water and prevent erosion. 27,931 feet of pipe was used on 15 farms.
 9. Levelling land for more efficient use of irrigation water and to prevent erosion. Two farms levelled 36.0 acres.
 10. Establishing winter legumes in the fall for winter protection from erosion. Two farms established 107. acres.
 11. Establishing summer legumes for protection from erosion. Three farms participated establishing 80.0 acres.
 12. Deep Plowing sandy cropland to protect soil from blowing. Ninety-two farms have carried out this most popular practice to the extent of 4,253.5 acres.
 13. Application of Cotton Burs to cropland for the control of wind erosion. Cotton Burs were distributed over 70.0 acres on three farms.
 14. Subsoiling cropland to improve penetration and prevent erosion. Twenty farms subsoiled 1,361.4 acres.
- The government paid 50% of the cost for ten of these practices.

and 70% of cost on four practices, therefore, each farmer has considerable investment in all practices carried out on his farm. This shows that most land owners are very much interested in keeping the soil production not only for themselves but to give future generations a high standard of living.

Funds for A. C. P. practices are exhausted at the present time, however, "we hope to have additional funds in the near future," Gilpin said.

FHA Will Operate With Less Help

Farmers Home Administration will operate its program in Texas this year with 117 fewer employees than it had a year ago at this time according to a statement this week from Walter T. McKay, the agency's State Director. Since the break of the drought, the agency, statewide, had reduced its force by more than 27 percent and has discontinued seven of its field offices on a full-time basis.

Insofar as the employees who lost their jobs, McKay said that in particularly every case the training and experience they gained during their employment with Farmers Home Administration enabled them to step into jobs with banks, PCA's and other private and cooperative credit institutions—many of them at salaries better than they had with the Government.

In connection with the services available to farm families, there will be no change according to McKay. He said that during the past three years more than 12,000 farmers and ranchers paid their loans in full to Farmers Home Administration, and for the most part had reached or regained a position where private and cooperative sources can handle their credit needs.

Farmers Home Administration will continue to make loans to eligible applicants for farm and home operating expenses; for the purchase of livestock and equipment needed to put their farm programs on a sound basis and to finance farm real estate purchases and improvements.

Over 2 1/3 Million Acres Contracted Under The Great Plains Program

Over two-and-one-third million acres of farm and ranch lands in the Plains areas of Texas have been contracted for cost-share assistance under the Great Plains Conservation Program, reports Lynn Pittard, extension assistant soil and water conservation specialist.

As of June 30, 1959, approximately $5,500,000 had been obligated to the landowners for assistance by the program. In the 78 counties now participating, Pittard says more than 1300 contracts have been signed. The contracts are for three to ten years duration.

This voluntary program applies in the Great Plains area and provides cost-share assistance for many soil and water conservation practices such as, brush control, range reseeding, constructing wells and ponds for livestock water and several others. Operators may receive up to 80 percent assistance, depending on the practice.

Pittard pointed out that the program has several advantages. It is flexible and can be modified to meet the particular individuals' needs. There is no limitation on assistance except on irrigation. Crop allotments are not affected during contract and the program may be used in combination with other government cost-share plans.

At present, range work such as, reseeding, range chiseling or pitting, controlling brush or shrubs, and initial establishment of a permanent vegetative cover accounts for well over half of the fund distribution.

Other practices that come under the program are: planting trees and shrubs, establishing permanent waterways, constructing terraces and diversion ditches, waterspreading terraces, reorganizing irrigation systems, and land leveling for irrigation.

For a more thorough explanation of the program, Pittard advises obtaining L-40, "The Great Plains Conservation Program—What is it?" from the local county agent or the Agricultural Information Office, College Station.

Streams In Desert Places
Ozelle Stephens

In deep study of our Lord's earthly life we find he spent much time in silent thought. He taught that whatsoever tends to purity in thought, and word and deed will cleanse the Temple of the flesh when love rules supreme in Holy thought, righteousness rules in word and deed. Spirit life is love—pure unselfish love. Christ who lives within the heart gives Victory. The battles with fear, and self, emotions, and desires, are put away. In holy thought man loses himself to find himself in service for his fellowman.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights by Vern Sanford TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN, Texas — None of the money-raising bills that failed to pass the Legislature during the past seven months were put away to gather dust.

They'll be on parade again if a fourth special session is held to raise money to increase public school teachers' salaries.

Gov. Price Daniel has said he will call the session if the public demanded it. Texas State Teachers Association has its campaign rolling to create this demand.

TSTA's goal is a program that would cost $63,000,000 over a two-year period. Of this, $56,000,000 would go for a $405 increase in annual base pay for teachers.

This would bring teachers' base pay up to $3,610 a year. Hale-Aikin Committee recommended a minimum of $3,800 a year plus a number of other school improvements that would have totaled some $200,000,000 for a two-year period. But TSTA decided that getting that big a tax bill would be too tough. For the time being, the 70,000-member teacher lobby will settle for a package one-third this size with emphasis on the item it wants most—pay raises.

Time most discussed for the new special session is the politically crucial month of January. This will give the teachers, scattered in summer, time to get organized. It also is the month for poll tax paying, with Jan. 31 as the deadline. (Governor Daniel said, "January or February would be the time.")

Next year, the first time, January will be the month for candidates for office to make their announcements. New law makes February 1 the deadline for filing for state primaries.

There's talk that Governor Daniel will announce for a third term if teacher raises are turned down. On this the governor says, "I'm not closing any doors."

Privately, many legislators are glum at the prospect of being boxed in by another round of tax-and-spend pressures, particularly right before their campaigns begin. They expect to get a lot of static anyway, from the tax measure they've already voted.

But few will oppose teachers openly. As one said, "If you're against teacher raises, they'll say you're against good schools and little kids and motherhood—it's suicide."

WATCH FOR NEW LAWS—Scores of new laws passed during the regular Legislative session ending in May go into effect this month.

From here on, anyone convicted of four moving traffic violations within 12 months will be classed a "habitual violator", subject to drivers license suspension for any period up to a year. Same rule applies to anyone convicted of seven or more violations committed within a 24-hour period.

New, tightened laws are in effect on the waterways, too. Now against the law are: operating a boat or skiing while under the influence of liquor, skiing at night and "reckless or negligent" boating and skiing.

Now required by law are: a life preserver for every passenger on a boat and a lighting system. Boat regulation fees will not be required until next April.

Another new law makes taking a ride in someone else's car without his permission a felony offense. Previously, it was hard to get more than a misdemeanor conviction for car stealing.

Ranchers and farmers will be required to fence land along state and U. S. highways to prevent cattle from roaming on the road. Law does not apply to farm-to-market roads.

Retail merchants no longer may advertise goods at "wholesale" prices. Only firms that sell only to retailers may claim wholesale selling.

Other new laws won't be noticed until later. For example, the new "stick with the party" law requires that a poll tax holder have his receipt stamped "Republican" or "Democrat" the first time he participates in a primary or convention. From then on, in effect, he's stuck with the party stamped on his tax receipt—until he gets a new poll tax.

A new program to inspect for cattle disease at live stock auctions was authorized, but is expected to be very small scale for the first two years, at least. It was given only a fraction of the money supporters said was necessary.

WATER BONDS SOLD—First $10,000,000 in bonds to raise money for local water projects has been sold by the State Water Development Board.

HOPE FOR HIGHWAY FUNDS—Texas highway builders are holding their breath over a threatened halt of the huge federal road building program.

Continuation of the interstate road building, now going full steam in Texas, hinges on Congress finding a way to get more money for the highway trust fund. Federal government pays 90 per cent of the cost of these projects.

State Highway Engineer D. C. Greer said the Highway Department is "proceeding on confidence that something will be done by Congress to avert such an economic blow."

Most Texas officials, including Governor Daniel, are opposed to getting the money through a hike in the federal gasoline tax, as recommended by the President.

Uncle Ben from Benjamin says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

My old lady come home yesterday with a pound of coffee, a box of aspirin tablets, a pair of hose and a folding chair for the lawn. She got 'em all at the grocery store. I can see what that feller in Baltimore was talking about when he closed down his drug store after 41 years. He said he was closing down because he didn't know how to sell nothing but medicine and drug store items and he's be dad-burned if he was going to learn the department store business at his age. Poor feller. He sold nothing but drugs and medicine. No frying pans, no garden seed, no goldfish, no shoes, no furniture, not even fertilizer and lawn mowers.

I admire this feller's fortitude, Mister Editor, but he shows plain that he ain't been able to lean with the times. Why, they even got cigar stores now that don't sell cigars, just cheese sandwiches, comic books, and a lending library. If I was opening up a drug store and wanted to be successful, I'd put me in a good line of groceries on one side, some ladies ready-to-wear up at the front, a few hardware items on the other side, do a mail order business fere furniture and men's suits, run a used car lot out the back door, and save a little spot in the rear of the building fer medicine and drugs. I'd make it real good that way, might even make enough to pay my taxes. Fer insurance against the slack season, I'd rig up a loudspeaker over the street and play them mournful songs I hear on television, the ones that sound like a razorback hog scratching his back against a hickory tree. Then I'd put me a sign out front: "If you can't find it in the dictionary, try us."

Speaking of used car lots, it always stuck me that we got mighty dumb automobile dealers in this country. Look at any of 'em and you'll see they got all their profits tied up in used cars. Ever other business has talked the Government into buying up the surplus so's to keep the price high and the product scarce. If the auto folks had been smart, they'd have got the folks in Washington to buy up the surplus used cars and put 'em in warehouses and caves around the country. That would keep the price up. Like eggs and butter.

Well, Mister Editor, anytime you want me to tell you how to run your newspaper, just let me know.

Yours truly,
Uncle Ben

Corner on Cotton

BY BOB COLLINS

What about cotton acreage allotments next year? . . . about all that we can say for certain is that there'll be some changes . . . the House of Representatives has passed a bill that would cause the farmer to plant his allotment or release it (or that part he doesn't plant) to someone else or lost part of it . . . the Senate has also passed a bill about allotments . . . this one would allow a farmer to lease his allotment to someone who wished more acreage . . . there will be some kind of law along these lines, but we don't dare predict what kind.

Another bill recently passed by the Senate is the "Industrial Use" bill which would create departments for agricultural research and industrial administration within the USDA and would have power to carry on research toward new uses . . . still has to be acted on by the House.

Why Exports Down??

In 1958 there was a drop of $652 million in U. S. farm product exports . . . of this figure cotton accounted for about 60% . . . why? . . . the USDA says two items contributed: greater competition and weaker demand . . . foreign demand for U. S. cotton lessened when it became apparent that more cotton was being grown in foreign countries . . . while the price of both U. S. and foreign growths was down, the increased spread between the two gave a price advantage to the foreign growths . . . also the textile depression meant much less demand . . . the decline of exports in U. S. cotton was about 37%.

CCC Takes Stock

The CCC took over ownership of cotton as the new cotton year started on August 1 . . . this brought the CCC owned stocks up to 7,017,100 bales . . . last year the CCC took over 2,506,000 bales at the end of the season to bring CCC owned cotton up to a total of 2,979,589.

Greatest Yet!

Cotton is used by more people for more different reasons than any other fiber . . . oh yes, it grows over a larger area than any other fiber, too . . . and it probably has been grown longer than any other vegetable fiber . . . we know it was grown and used 5,000 years ago.

JUST TALK

By JAMES HILL

In last week's Paducah Post, Kenneth Tooley devoted his column to an error they made in the paper concerning a couple celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Blain of that city, were celebrants, but Ken said they ran the story as Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Hanks, instead of Blain. To top that, Ken said they misspelled Blain and ran the story with the name "Bain."

We feel certain he has had his hands full trying to get out of this predicament.

As he stated in his column, there is no hook-up whatever between "Blain" and "Hanks," but to prove all of us make mistakes, this is a classic example.

Maybe last week was an "off" week for all of us, for the Herald made a few "bad" ones also.

We ran a headline about Miss Linda Sue Leatherton getting married, which should have been spelled Miss Linda Sue Leaverton . . . Another headline stating a reunion of the Tankersley-Gipson families, should have read the Gipson-Lankford reunion. Where, how, and why we had it Tankersley-Gipson, we will never know.

Anyway, the mistake was made and we are certainly sorry for the errors. The stories were accurate (?), but the headings were all wet.

It's that time of year again when the kiddos are getting ready to start back to school. We can't speak for ALL the youngsters, but we happen to know quite a few of them that are really anxious for the opening of the '59-'60 term—the boys on the football team!

We were out at the field Tuesday afternoon and shot a few pictures of the boys practicing. This year's crop will be a bumper one from the looks of things.

Speaking of bumper crops seems to go along pretty well with the way crops in Knox County are shaping up. There are a number of farmers needing more rain, but the majority of the crops hereabouts are really looking good.

Gerald Averitt, an "old timer" —told us recently that he had never seen the prospects look as bright as they do now.

All in all, it will probably be and children visited his mother, Mrs. Zena Waldron and family over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Dillard left last week to spend their vacation in California.

Judge and Mrs. L. A. Parker visited Mr. and Mrs. Connie Gray and family in Morton last week end.

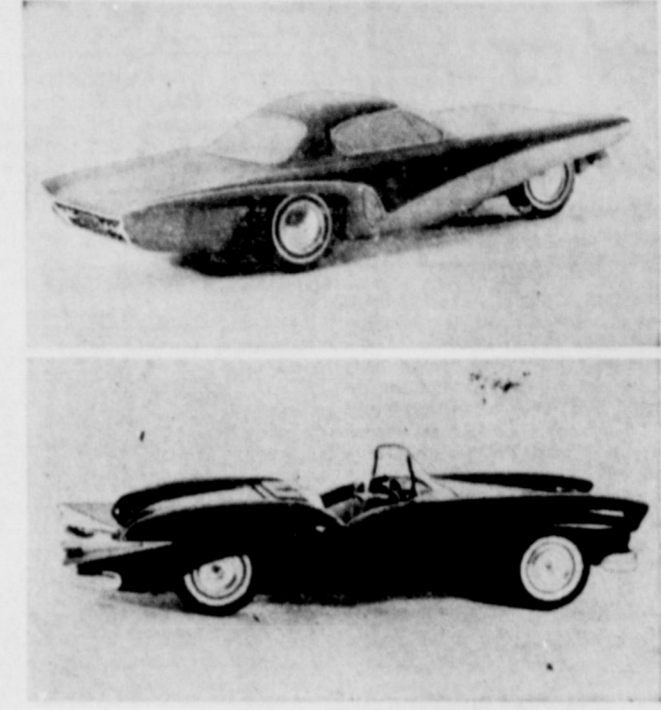

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ben Qualls and children of Abilene are visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Chilcoat and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Ray Galden of Lubbock spent the week end with their parents Mr. and Mrs. A. Galden and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Nollen.

Mrs. Joel Morrow honored her son, Frank with a party on his 4th birthday Thursday, August 13th at 3 p. m.

Ice cream and cake was served to the following guests: Deanne Dodd, Vicki Terry; Jackie Young, Jr., Marty Griffith, Billy and Jimmie Pierce.

MUNDAY GETS FIRST BALE

Munday received its first bale of cotton for the year Tuesday. It was produced by Johnny Michels, who repeated with the second Wednesday.

The bale weighed 530 pounds and the staple measured one and one-half inch.

the best year the farmers have experienced for some time.

About Summer Colds — No one that we know personally has one, but we have heard of so many recently, and are just dreading the time the wife comes down with one.

Not that she is exactly cranky, or mean, with a summer cold, (winter, either, as a matter of fact), but the thing is she just doesn't like anybody, anything, or any place, when she comes down with the sniffles.

If the wife gets a cold and Al gets down in his back again, we will just have to "go fishing" until they are back to their normal selves again.

A. Lee Ward, and his wife, Marquitta, and family were recent visitors at the Herald.

Lee was born and raised in K.C. and graduated from the high school here.

Lee is superintendent of the Postex Cotton Mills at Post.
