The road graving that is in progress on the Munday street seems rather a slow process; however, since the contract for said graving calls for a completed job in March the fact of why the work progresses so slowly is revealed. When we realize that this work is being done largely to give some one employment we understand the reason for extending the work.

In spite of these facts; however, Knox City will have better streets when the graving is done. When this gravel settles and the roads are graded, all will prove to be much better than they have been.

Monday was Trades Day in Knox City. This fact brought many people and much stock to town. Stock has advanced around 40 percent since the fall of 32 however there was considerable buying and selling Monday.

The day was purely a business one as no bronc riding and stunt doing was exhibited at the stock pen. It was a day of buying selling, trading and visiting. Considering the quietness with which the much business was carried on, every one prospered and there were no hard feelings.

MONUMENT TO MOSES

The Ten Commandments are, of course, the outstanding monument to Moses' wisdom and influence. Read them over. How direct; how simple; how free from superfluous or trivial injunctions. They drive straight at the heart of human and divine relationships, and are the corner-stone upon which the nations have erected their legal and ethical codes. But they are not the only survival of Moses' leadership. The long, carefully molded Mosaic Law is hardly less remarkable. It embraces both a civil and criminal code and foreshadowed by centuries not only our modern jurisprudence but much of our modern health regulation and medical practice.

On the civil side there is protection of property and reputation. There are exemption laws providing that the outer garment of a poor man, given by him inemfwypmfwyyyyyy turned to him at night; providing that the land that has been mortgaged and forfeited shall be restored to the family at the end of a period of years; laws punishing libel and protecting the good name of man and woman. There are laws providing that a poor man's wages are not to be retained to his injury. On the other hand, judges are warned not to favor a poor man but to render equal justice. Taxes were light and levied in proportion to a man's property, but there was one tax concerning which it was provided that the rich should not be permitted to pay more nor the poor allowed to pay less. It was a small tax, but it represented manhood and self-respect.

Some of the regulations went far beyond ordinary legal limits and prescribed the conduct of a gentleman:

Thou shalt not curse the deaf, nor put a stumblingblock before the blind, but shalt fear thy God: I am the Lord.

Thou shalt not go up and down as a talebearer.

Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thine heart.

Thou shalt rise up before the hoary head, and honour the face of the old man, and fear God: I am the Lord.

And if a stranger sojourn with thee in your land, ye shall not vex him.

Put the stranger that dwelleth with you shall be unto you as one born among you, and thou shalt love him as thyself.

The criminal code was severe and swift, but inflexibly just. Life was protected and murder punished with death. Even accidental homicides did not go without penalty to him by whose carelessness it occurred, but he was not condemned to death.

The sanitary code was extended, minute and enforced with strict penalties. Can you imagine the feat of bringing a horde of escaped slaves across a wilderness without losing them by dysentery, typhoid fever or hook worm? It was made possible by a simple but powerfully effective system of sewage disposal. The isolation of communicable diseases and the strict disinfection under priestly supervision prevented the spread of plagues.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Rev. Chas. E. Dunn

Baptism and Temptation of Jesus Lesson for Jan. 14th. Matt. 3:1-4:11 Golden Text: Hebrews 2:17

The baptism and temptation were critical periods of decision for the Master. Occurring at the very threshold of His public ministry, they are formative events of the highest significance.

The baptism reminds us of the river Jordan, whose impetuous current is a symbol of the speed with which the career of Jesus approached its climax at Calvary. But more important that the Jordan is the figure of the baptizer, the rugged, fiery John who has been called the last of the prophets of Israel. Note the becoming modesty of John as his strange cousin from Galilee presented himself.

And now turn to the central figure. Remember the gentle insistence of Jesus, "Suffer it to be so now. Recall the striking vision that came to Him immediately after the baptism. The vision of God's spirit descending dove-like, with the heavens opened, and the divine voice assuring the Master that He was indeed the Son of the Most High.

Why was Jesus baptized? Is the baptism a melodramatic announcement of His Messiahship? No. Is it an indication that the Master felt the need of cleansing from sin? A gain, no. The true explanation is twofold. The baptism first makes clear our Lord's genuine humanity, His desire to identify Himself with His restless, unhappy fellow whom He so longed to serve. Secondly, it is the token of Jesus' complete union with His Father.

Immediately following the baptism, came the wrestling in the wilderness with three specific temptations. First of all, the Master was tempted to selfish satisfy His dire hunger. Next He was enticed to be a clever sensationalist, to throw Himself from the temple height with the certainty that He would land unharmed. Finally, He was bribed to substitute a material empire of worldly gain for a spiritual kingdom of the inner life. Here are three typical temptations. All of us are inclined to be selfish, to seek the lure of the spotlight, and to stress external, physical prosperity.

1934 TIPS FOR DRIVERS

As 1933 ends, early reports indicate that there was an increase in motor vehicle fatalities and injuries over 1932 in spite of the fact that fewer cars were operated during the year. The last quarter was especially bad.

Predictions are that fatalities will approach 30,000 and injuries, 1,500,000. This is a record that certainly should not be repeated.

A set of New Year's resolutions for the motorist, prepared by the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters is a good starting point for a safe 1934.

1. Drive at speeds suited to traffic conditions: slowly, in the city, moderately, on the open highway.
2. Use better judgement in passing. Wait until there is 500 feet of clear distance ahead before attempting to maneuver.
3. Slow down at intersections.
4. Obey traffic signals.
5. Watch out for pedestrians.

These are the five most neglected rules of the road. Obidience to them would have saved a majority of the lives and limbs lost during 1933. Remember them in 1934.

Mr. M. R. Jones (Uncle Mitt) is completely helpless now having been so for 15 weeks from paralysis.

ORGANIZE FARM DEBT COMMITTEE

The County Farm Debt Adjustment Committee recently appointed by Governor Miram A. Ferguson, for Knox County, held an organization meeting in Benjamin, Monday January 8th 1934.

The following officers were elected: Chairman, Hugh Cook Truscott; Vice Chairman Jim Hughes of Vera; Secretary, J. L. Galloway Benjamin and B. B. Cochran of Knox City, and August Schumacher, of Munday, complete the personnel of the committee. The function of the committees already appointed in several counties of the state is set forth in the Governors letter of appointment, part of which is as follows:

It is our thought that such committees will serve as a material assistance to both debtor and creditor in an effort to arrive at a friendly, sensible and fair solution of the debt problems, and that such effort will tend to conciliate many problems of the type that have heretofore resulted in unnecessary foreclosures. It is likewise hoped and expected that these voluntary committees will serve in the future as a basis of developing harmony between contending interests in various localities of the State.

The local committee, in order to avoid any misunderstanding as to its duties, wishes to make public the following statement concerning its work:

Any debtor or creditor seeking a readjustment in the debt relationship, one with the other, may ask this committee to investigate and make recommendations to either or both parties for the purpose of effecting a satisfactory solution of any existing difficulties."

"I am determined to have a hotbed so that I may have fresh vegetables the year around and also raise my own plants," stated Mrs. Luellie Marlow, Benjamin Home Demonstration Club. "I dug the pit for this hotbed myself and even tore down a part of an old house to get enough lumber to build the frame which is 18 inches high in the back and 12 inches in the front, the frame will be lined with a heavy paper and dirt will be banked around it.

The pit was dug 2 to 3 feet deep and will be filled to about 6 inches of the top with fresh manure that has been piled 2 or 3 times so that it will be heating quite evenly when put in the ditch. The top six inches of the bed will be good rich dirt.

Mrs. Marlow plans also to build a cold frame to be used in hardening the plants before setting them into the garden. The cold frame is made exactly the same as the hotbed except no manure is used. By the use of this frame the plants can better withstand any adverse conditions they may meet in the open.

"I hope all of you will come back and help me eat the produce I plan to raise," said Mrs. Marlow to the group of 17 women who were present when this bed was being made.

"As a 4-H pantry demonstrator I know I must have a hotbed to raise a sufficient number of plants and have a year round garden," said Mrs. Clyde Warren, Hefner Home Demonstration Club.

"The size of my hotbed was determined by a large window glass that we had on hand and wanted to use as a cover for the bed. This glass is 4 by 8 feet. The frame for the bed is made of new lumber." "We want this bed to be permanent as we just as well use good material," stated Mrs. Warren who believes that the $3.00 or less that is invested in the lumber will make it possible to raise all the plants they need and then have fresh green vegetables during the winter months.

In sowing the seed in the hotbed it is best to sow them in rows because a better stand is usually obtained. Rows are spaced 2 or 3 inches apart and seed planted 4 to 5 to the inch and covered with one-fourth inch of soil after which the entire bed is lightly sprinkled with warm water. Before any planting is done, however, an even temperature as nearly uniform as possible should be obtained. For plants such as cabbage, lettuce and onions a day temperature of 59 to 70 degrees is best, whereas for later vegetables, as tomatoes or pepper the day temperature should be 60 to 75 degrees.

WORK AN IMPERATIVE NECESSITY

Some must work or all must perish. Life depends upon the products of labor.

ENGLISH III ALLEGORIES

For the past week the students in Junior English have been worrying over the fact that they must write an allegory, and in spite of their misgivings as to the outcome, their efforts have not entirely failed as proved by the following allegory.

LOCAL BOYS DEFEATED AT TOURNAMENT

The Knox City Basket Ball Boys went to Sunset last Friday at 5:30 to attend the tournament at the Sunset Gymnasium. Their first game was with Sunset, whom they defeated to the tune of 15-11 Friday night in spite of the fact that they did not play their best. Their next game, played Saturday at 3:00 was with Rochester, and again they won a victory by 29 to 16. But alas, their game ended quite differently Saturday evening at 8:00 when they met defeat at the hands of their old rivals, the Munday Moguls. But never mind boys, there's always another time.

Even the fruits of the vine and tree must be gathered, notwithstanding they may be consumed uncooked. The grains from which bread is made must have labor bestowed upon them in order to furnish man his principal food.

Everything that lives must do something, must exert itself, must work, whether it be man or beast, reptile or insect, tree or flower. It must put forth effort less it dies. Even the lazy hog must turn up the soil with his nose if he shall have what is beneath it. He must bite off and chew his corn. Of course he doesn't know what he is doing it for; he finds that out later. The bee must toil for the sector if he shall have any honey.

LOADING THE ARK

The day before the final examinations, everybody planned the course that he had to take in his studies. He decided that he would take a short route and finish his course in one night since he had not prepared or done anything in the weeks of school.

WE WONDER WHY

Jo Nelle Robbins goes around with that ugly boy friend of hers, Sam Warren.

Wyhell Edwards doesn't get a new boy friend; Jack Williams is too old for her.

Mary Loue Hoge just "a needle in the haystack" for Jeff Graham.

Trust Stovall is not playing around with the girls any more.

H. C. Armstrong cannot get a break with the girls.

Mary Loue Graham goes around with that Jerry Keithly.

James Ray Swift winks with both eyes.

Lorene Silman has had many sweeties lately. Her latest is Travis Parker.

The upper classmen treat the fish so roughly.

The third grade class have so many mothers at the P. T. A. meetings.

The "Kennel" reports a new member on its staff. From now on our "We Wonder Why" column is to be written by no other than Ray Ameen.

Two many are like a unique old fellow this writer once knew, who said that he "went around all day looking for work and praying to God that he would not find it."

The first object to put in his Ark of Good Learning was a Beast of Mathematics. This beast was very hard to catch and when finally caught was very hard to hold. Everybody struggled many hours before he got the Beast of Mathematics in the Ark. He then set out to find the Bird of Biology. Many times he thought that he had caught this bird but each time it would fly away in some unknown direction. Everybody finally caught the Bird of Biology but he was not sure that it would remain in the Ark.

Fine Either Way

Deputy Surveying Fisherman: See that sign five dollar fine for fishing?

Witty Fisherman: I am not fishing, I am just teaching my worms how to swim.

Deputy: Let's see your worms.

Fisherman: Here they are.

Deputy: That's five dollars more for letting your worms swim without baiting suits.

Even the beast of prey must work to catch helpless victims, for they will not purposely come within his reach. It is the same with the eagle and the hawk. The tree and the flower must draw their sustenance from the earth, or soon they begin to wither, and decay is soon followed by death.

The next thing he set forth to find was an Insect of Spanish which was the most difficult to find because this was not an insect seen in everyday life. Everybody searched for many hours but found only a very small insect of Spanish. However, he was content with the insect. His next great task was to find the English Horse. He found many Horses of English but none that could carry him on the right Road of Knowledge. Near these horses was some kind of creature called Literature. Everybody remembered hearing about this strange creature one time so he thought it would be a good idea to put him in the Ark also.

Man is not dignified by his work, but he should do it with such skill such joy that he dignifies it. He who fails to find pleasure in work will never do it as it should be done, nor will he be happy while he is at it. He who hates his work is a slave to it.

Everybody soon decided that he had all the birds and beasts in the Ark and was ready to shut the door, but checking over the list, he found that the Fish of History was missing. He at once began to hunt this fish but soon found himself in the Mire of Ignorance. He traveled over many swamps and ravines before he ever saw a Fish of History. When he caught this fish it was not so hard to hold as he thought it would be. The Fish of History was the last of all to be put in the Ark. The Ark of Good Learning was rather loaded since it was not unusually large one. Everybody shut the door and soon went to sleep drifting up the Stream of Hope.

He who is bound to his work by the chains of necessity must suffer the stripes inflicted by pride and envy.

The next morning when he reached his destiny called School he started to unload his Ark. The first thing he tried to put out was the Beast of Mathematics. Everybody thought that he had never seen a thing so hard to move as this beast. He was nearly ready to give up when the Beast of Mathematics began slowly to creep out. The Bird of Biology was next to be removed. When he was released, he flew in all directions but nearly failed to remember the door by which it entered the Ark. Everybody began to search for the Insect of Spanish but was so completely dumfounded by its disappearance that he just sat and stared at the walls of the Ark. He soon gave up and left the insect of Spanish in the Ark. The English Horse was usually hard to get out as the Beast of Mathematics but with much effort it was puled far enough out to pass through the door. But the Fish of History came swimming out with long, easy strokes which satisfied everybody greatly.

There is no work so menial that men can not exalt it. There is no task that is necessary that can not be accomplished.

Line's Busy

Tom (from next door): May I use your phone?

Mr. Smith: Certainly, is yours out of order?

Tom: Well, not exactly, but sis is using it to hold up a window, mother's cutting biscuits with the mouth-bleed and baby's teething with the cord.

Every work that is necessary is possible, and its possibility grows with its necessity.

Wireless

First Class: How can you take a wireless.

Tenderfoot: Dunno.

First Class: Here is a bundle of wires, I take one away and that makes the set a wireless.

See Hee

The Nat: You're going to drive me out of my mind.

The Nark: That ain't no drive my dear, that's a putt.

"We must live in our work," we most know what it means. To give our whole souls to it whether it's jeans or velvets, or satins, in which we must toil. Whether the shop, or the mill, or the soil. Whether the green country lane, or the mart. We do the work best when we give it our heart."

Sharp

A merchant engaged in his office one morning, discovered he left his pocket knife at home. He asked all the different clerks, but none of them happened to have one. Finally, the errand boy hustled in and the merchant called him, asking if he was able to produce the desired article. Jimmy handed over his pocket knife. "Here is it, Jimmy, that you alone out of all my entire staff have a pocket knife with you?" smiled the proprietor, giving Jimmy a good pat on the back.

"Dunno, Mr.," replied the youth. "Unless it's because my wages are so low that I can't afford more'n one of 'em."

ALL NECESSARY WORK GREAT

The greatness of a work is commensurate with its digging a little dirt to drain a cesspool is as great in proportion as cutting and fastening to connect two oceans.

The highest position to be held by any one is the position of great unselfishness. He who constructs sewers to make sanitary a city may be more useful than a landscape gardener. While beauty itself is necessary, healthful physical conditions are still more necessary. Cultivation of love for the beautiful and the esthetic is necessary, but maintenance of life is more necessary.

Men and women die in debt and example. He who says, "The world owes me a living," has a wrong idea. He owes the world all he can give it, and will likely die still owing most of it.

The robes of righteousness are not made of soft downy rays of sin.

The "sleeveless robe" is not made by those who toil not, for is the "garment of grace" fabricated by hands unconquered with labor.

It is the common principle that he who commands must toil. It is he who produces the works of righteousness that doth not to be despised. The example for the whole world is set by those who toil.

It is not enough to be a good man if one does not do good. It is not enough to be a good man if one does not do good. It is not enough to be a good man if one does not do good.
