There are just two more weeks before the Baptist Revival begins. What preparation have you made and what will you make? Just two more Sundays, where will you be there two Sundays? Where should you be? Is it not your Christian duty to be in your place at Sunday School and church these two Sundays, and help in every way to make the Revival a great victory for Jesus?

Dr. John J. Milford of Huntsville, Alabama will be with us again this year. To those of you who met and heard him last year, he needs no introduction.

We will have some new song books next Sunday. Services will be conducted as usual.

Our Sunday School will begin next Sunday promptly at 8:30 o'clock and will last for 45 minutes. Then we go direct into the preaching services which will last for 45 minutes. We will be through with all of the services by 10 o'clock. We want every member of our church, to come, and we welcome all visitors. Our Sunday School lesson for next Sunday is the 3rd chapter of the Acts of the Apostles.

Our third Quarterly Conference will be held at 4 o'clock, Sunday afternoon. Let us try to make as good a report as possible. We will only have the young people's service Sunday night, but all are urged to attend the meeting at the Christian Church.

The Missionary Baptist Church in the Grace community begins a revival meeting on Saturday, July 22 with Reverend Jenson doing the preaching. Services will be held each morning and evening.

Brother Jenson is a Norwegian from Wisconsin. He held a meeting last year at Smith Chapel. He is an interesting preacher and presents his messages in a unique way. Quite a number of Knox City people heard him in his revival at Smith Chapel last year and will be glad to attend services in the Grace Community. The church has Grace heartily invites the public to all services during this meeting.

Those Tight Boots

By Albert T. Reid

What Home Brew Does

Somebody sent the editor of the Pickettown Gazette some home brew. The same day he received for publication a wedding announcement and a notice of an auction sale. Here were the results as printed in the paper: William Smith and Miss Lucy Anderson were disposed of at public auction at my farm a mile east of a beautiful cluster of roses on her breast and two white calves before a background of farm implements too numerous to mention in the presence of about a dozen guests including two milk cows, six mules, and one bob sled. Reverend Jackson tied the nuptial knot with 200 feet of hay rope and the bridal couple left on an extended trip with terms to suit the purchasers. They will be at home to their friends with one good buggy and a few kitchen utensils after ten months from date of sale to responsible parties and some fifty chickens.

County Pioneer Passes

Robert Pannell

One of the pioneer citizens of Knox City died at his home in Mineral Wells on Sunday, July 16. Services were conducted in Mineral Wells but burial was made in the O'Brien cemetery on July 17th.

Mr. Pannell, known in Knox City as Bob with the exception of the past few months, has lived for the past 40 odd years in Knox county. He is survived by his wife and seven children. He also leaves a host of friends who mourn his passing.

SOAP SALESMAN FALLS FROM SECOND STORY WINDOW

Mr. Gerald, Ivory Soap salesman, was severely injured Wednesday when he fell from a second story window of the Seymour Hotel.

Having placed his car in a garage for repairs near the hotel, Mr. Gerald went to his room. He later was called by a mechanic from the garage who requested that he "throw down his keys". He did so but in making the throw he became over-balanced and fell out the window, landing prostrate on the sidewalk.

Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Ward a little daughter Lura Benn visited in Wac class week.

Mr. and Mrs. Barney Arnold visited in Haskell and Weinert Sunday.

Christian Revival Progressing Nicely

The Revival meeting now in progress at the First Christian church is having good crowds at both the morning and evening services. Brother Smith, a young but enthusiastic preacher, is delivering some interesting messages. Following are the sermons that he will deliver at the morning services next week: Monday, "How to be like God; (the Devil; or Man)". Tuesday, "The Church Redemptive". Wednesday, "The Doctor of the Ills of the World". Thursday, "America's Ido' God". Friday, "Prohibition and Temperance".

Vacation Bible School

Miss Smith, sister of the Evangelist, is conducting a Daily Vacation Bible school for the children of the town. The enrollment is around 50 and Miss Smith is enjoying the cooperation of the women from the other churches. Most every church is represented not only by the children but also by the women.

This type of work is greatly needed in Knox City as well as over the entire nation.

KNOX BOYS IN COLEMAN GOLF TOURNAMENT

This is the third annual invitation tournament for Coleman.

The Preacher's Challenge

Since the Commissioner's court has ordered an election on our local option law of Knox County for the 26th day of August, and since said election is to be taken on a petition presented by some of the people of Knox County, I therefore challenge any person or persons favoring the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment or the sale of 3.2 per cent beer to a debate on any or all of the following questions:

- Resolved: Will there be less drinking if 3.2 per cent beer is sold and the Eighteenth Amendment is repealed than at the present time?
- Resolved: That the sale of 3.2 per cent beer in Knox County will be a moral and spiritual blessing to the children and young people of Knox County, and will help the schools and churches of said county, in a material, moral and spiritual way.
- Resolved: That the sale of 3.2 per cent beer will help the needy people of Knox County and also help our present business concerns.

I will debate the negative side of any or all of these questions with any person in Knox County or will debate or arrange for a debate of the negative side of these questions with any person representing those favoring the affirmative. These questions are questions that should be discussed in all fairness. Any person wishing to accept this challenge will please communicate with me and we will arrange the time and place for the debate.

More Building and Repairing

Tom Orsborn Gets New Home

The outstanding thing in Knox City that leads the public to think and feel that we are turning that long looked for turner and facing a changed and greatly welcomed condition in the big increase in building improvements that are being made here. For the past six weeks there has been a continuous story relating the improvements that are being made on homes here as well as number of new homes that have been built.

O. B. King Building New Brick

This week our improvement story goes off with a bang with the O. B. King brick. Mr. King, newly elected superintendent of the Knox City school is building a six room brick veneer. It is located just east of the H. M. Jones home. Mr. King is assembling the materials this week and ere the Herald has gone to press, work will be in progress on the house. This brick veneer house will be finished with all the interesting modern interior conveniences. Aside from the fact that King will reap all the pleasure of owning and living in a new brick home, Knox City gains a feather in the building of such a house.

Tom Orsborn House

Mr. Tom Orsborn, who lives ten miles west of the city in the Needmore community on the Davis farm, is getting a new home this week. J. I. Davis of Red Oak Texas owns the place and is having the house built. The foundation will be 28 by 32.

Other Improvements

Mrs. Sam Anderson, who lives in the south east section of the city, is building a new kitchen and back porch this week. In addition to this building, Mrs. Anderson is having some of the rooms repapered. William Cameron Company is furnishing the materials.

Mr. T. Link of O'Brien is making some improvements on his home. The outstanding are improvements on the porch and exterior painting of the house.

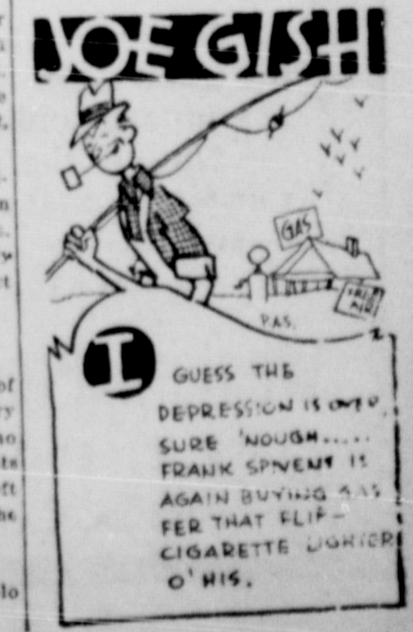

W. H. Benedict, who is building two new houses, has completed the small rent cottage and Tuesday the foundation of his home was ran. Work is progressing nicely there.

Lloyd Waldrip, who rented the Mrs. Della Short house, has improved the appearance of this place. While Lloyd has not been authorized to make any improvements he has in the repairing of the fences and pruning the plum thicket. This place looks well.

It is noticeable that during the absence of the Sharp family (while they were away on their vacation) Brother Butterfield repaired the front porch of the parsonage. This was much needed and he did a good job.

Fox Brothers are making some interesting improvements this week. They are increasing their floor and shelving space by setting back the partition of the storage department. While they are considerably torn up this week they hope to have everything in top shape next week. This is the Frizzell building.

The four girls in Knox City are hard on the job now repairing their machinery and making ready in every way for gaining time.

Depending on the Farmer

In all of these numerous economic plans we can see but little hope for the small town merchant or business man except as he benefits through increased buying power on the part of the farmers. His future is bound up with theirs.

The much heralded wage and salary increase will have little effect in small towns. It is designed primarily for the benefit of the cities, where our manufacturing industries are located.

The tendency of the times is a toward gigantic industrial concerns, where a few executives control the destinies of thousands of employees, employ the services of expensive attorneys to free them from income tax payment, and draw enormous sums for their own services at the expenses of stockholders in their enterprises.

This concentration of industry and power and wealth is gradually stripping the smaller cities and towns of their just proportion of the trade of the country, and is reducing the circulating medium in such territories at an alarming rate. It is the main reason why so many country districts are impoverished.

Knowing these facts as they do, it is strange that so many of our townspeople and farmers are so willing to take their money to the cities to spend when they could just as easily and economically buy from home dealers and keep that money passing from hand to hand among our own people, thereby aiding each other and making all more happy and contented.

Take the average farmer. He would not like to see a commission man buy up the products of his neighbors and leave his own to rot or spoil, or his cattle or hogs to roam at large in the field. He would consider himself very shabby treated.

Yet when the farmer makes his money in this community, and goes to some distant city to spend it, he is treating his friends, the home dealers, in the same manner.

There should be a get-together movement on the part of the local business interests and the farmers of the community, and a system of friendly co-operation should be worked out that will be satisfactory and beneficial to both sides.

It can be done if our local business firms will take the initiative.

Mr. merchant remember when you need printing that we will be glad to figure with you.

Mrs. J. C. Campbell spent Sunday and Monday with relatives of Mr. Campbell in Sagerton.

CROWD HAS FISH FRY

Lee Smith and Holt Moseley went to Leuders fishing the first of the week and returned home with a 39 pound cat. Tuesday evening the cat was carried to Benjamin and fried and the feast enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Lee Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Holt Moseley, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Smita, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Briles, and Mr. and Mrs. Sweeney of this city with Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell and Mr. and Mrs. Aycock of Rochester, and Mrs. Hill and children of Cross Plains.

After everyone could eat no more, there was still fish left and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Keck with Mr. and Mrs. Trimmer and Mrs. Erwin Trimmer arrived in time with their picnic supper to finish the 39 pound cat.

Whether Lee and Holt caught, bought or stole that fish made little difference with us who were privileged to eat thereof. It was good wherever or however they got it.

Earnest Teaff and George Thomas went to Leuders last Friday and returned home with a 36 pound fish. We also wonder how that happened.

FORTY TWO CLUB MEETS WITH MISS WILLIE JONES

Miss Willie Jones was hostess to the "42" club last Friday afternoon, and entertained in a gracious manner. Guests arrived at four o'clock and enjoyed games of 42 for more than an hour after which a delicious salad course was served. Out of town guests who were present were Miss Ailene Jones, Seagraves, Texas; Mrs. H. C. Ferguson and Mrs. Lee Mc Lain of Amarillo, Texas; Mrs. Sidney Turner, Fort Worth; Mrs. J. H. Cuiwell, Abilene; Mrs. McLarry and Grady Taylor of Forney; and Mrs. E. R. Carpenter of Haskell.

Capitol News Letter

By W. D. McFarlane, Congressman, 13th District

Washington—Few of the many historic places in and near Washington attract such nation-wide interest as Arlington National Cemetery. In the Virginia hills across the Potomac from the city, the tomb of the unknown Soldier, in Arlington also makes it a shrine for visitors from other nations.

In Arlington are the graves of thousands of the Nation's dead, men of all ranks and heroes of the Civil War and of earlier and later conflicts. At various places in the cemetery are memorials to outstanding heroes. One of these is the monument to the Unknown Dead of the Civil War, placed over the common grave of two thousand one hundred and eleven unidentified soldiers whose bodies were gathered from the fields of Bull Run and the route to the Rappahannock.

The Memorial Amphitheater, a memorial to all soldiered dead, is of white marble. With a seating capacity of 5,000 the amphitheater is the site for memorial services each year. To the east of the amphitheater is the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier where rests the body of an unidentified American soldier disinterred from one of the military cemeteries in France and brought back to this country in 1921. Decorations awarded by foreign nations and memorial tributes from various organizations in this country are on display in a room of the amphitheater.

To the visitor from the South, Arlington holds a peculiar attraction as the former home of Robert E. Lee, Arlington House, on a slope overlooking the Potomac and Washington, was formerly built in 1802 by George Washington Parke Curtis, stepson of George Washington, and father of Mary Custis, who became the wife of Robert E. Lee. Upon the death of Custis in 1857, the property passed to his daughter and Col. Lee, to whom she had been married in the drawing room of the mansion in 1831.

At the outbreak of the Civil War, Colonel Lee resigned his commission in the army and with his family went to Richmond to take command of the Virginia troops and later, to become Commander-in-Chief of the Confederate Army. Federal troops took possession of Arlington, converted the mansion into headquarters, and the grounds into a camp later a hospital was established in the mansion and the grounds were converted into a cemetery. The first grave is said to have been prepared for a Confederate prisoner who died in the hospital. In 1861 the property was sold for delinquent taxes and the government purchased it later the heirs of the family secured an adjustment, receiving $150,000 for the property.

The mansion, furnished as of this period, is open to the public. A number of General Lee's private rolls are on display there.

Miss Margaret Reeder and Miss Claydene Hoge visited in Seymour Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Coats and Mr. and Mrs. Jess Hitchcock returned home Friday from a two weeks vacation.

PLANS, PLANS, PLANS THINKING AMERICANS HAVE NOT BEEN IDLE DURING THE DEPRESSION

From the Pathfinder

History shows that it is during a period like that from 1925 to 1933 that real human progress is made. When business is booming and everybody is busy, nobody has either the time or the incentive to do any amount of deep thinking on any subject. Investors are always especially active during hard times, and it is also true that new and big ideas in all lines are developed during such periods of incubation.

Human nature is just like plant nature, and we have to have dormant periods during which we can store up energy and inspiration against the time when it will be needed. If we throw away our time and neglect to apply the lessons of experience during such lull periods, then when a nother wave of progress comes, we are not prepared to ride it but are pretty sure to be swamped by it.

An immense number of "plans" have been suggested during the depression for the purpose of aiding this or that class of industry, and even for enabling the universe to lift itself by its bootstraps. The Pathfinder has been a regular central office for such "plans." The "plans" which have been submitted to us would literally run into the thousands. They are in many forms—including postal cards, one page letters, 50 page letters, 100 page pamphlets and even 1000 page bound books, costing several dollars.

People must certainly have faith in their "plans" else they would not go to so much trouble and expense to tell about them. In many cases our readers have written that the "plan" they have submitted is the result of years of investigating and thinking on the subject. Many of them that if only the Pathfinder would back their "plans" it could very easily be adopted, and the world would then go merrily on its way.

The fact is that world has not been making time for lack of a plan it has been waiting largely because there were so many different and conflicting "plans" that it was impossible to get enough people to agree on any one plan and put it in force. The last presidential election operated to crystallize popular sentiment and put an administration in power with a mandate to change the sign from "stop" to "go"—and now we are again on our way.

The "plan" which the government at Washington is putting into effect does not represent the ideas of any one person, one group, or even one political faction or party. It is a composite plan, made up of the ideas of anybody and everybody who has done any sober thinking during these times which try men's souls.

Not even President Roosevelt had any thought of imposing his own personal views on the country; he left himself open minded, and it is safe to say that every suggestion which has been submitted to him has received earnest consideration. Hence, while no American citizen may be able to say that the "new deal" plan which is now being applied to HIS plan, every citizen may feel that this plan does represent the boiled down result of an immense amount of constructive thought.

From now on, the people will have to give their attention to carrying out this plan and making it go. As the President points out, its success will depend on the co-operation of the people.

Of importance to all business is National Industry Recovery Administration Johnson's warning against efforts to increase prices without justification. There will be no price wild catting. Effort will be given to raising the general price level gradually, through elimination of unfair competition, low wage scale and poor working conditions. A son also gave first what fair wages were 45 cents per hour, for the lowest week, for the lowest

Things look different in COLD BLACK TYPE

"I hear," said the friend, "that you have just made $50,000 in the insurance business."

"Right—except for one or two slight particulars. It was real estate—not insurance. It was $75,000, not $50,000. And I didn't make it I lost it!"

Has it ever appeared to you that something you've told an acquaintance come back after many days, so distorted that you hardly recognize it. The spoken word so changes and colors much that we say, that by the time it passes many lips only the skeleton of truth remains.

But how different it is with the printed word! That's why you can trust the advertisements. Had you thought of it that way? Because the manufacturer and merchant are compelled to be accurate in type, you know that quality of soap, ginger ale, clothing, butter or furniture you buy is as standardized as the calendar. It's all the manufacturer and retailer claim for it. IT HAS TO BE.

Read the advertisements. Read them carefully critically. Read them for profit! Read them knowing that the truth pays . . . you and the advertiser!

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Rev. Chas. E. Dunn

Isaiah Denounces Sin
Lesson for July 23rd. Isaiah 5:1-39
Golden Text: Proverbs 14:24

Our lesson text is a flaming passage from Isaiah in which the prophet hurls thunderbolts of defiance at Judah for her manifold sins. There are six counts in his indictment.

First he denounces the greed for land. Wealth was becoming the possession of the few through the seizure of small properties by powerful land owners. Cruel evictions, by which the peasants lost both homes and citizenship, were common.

A similar situation exists today. There has been an immense concentration of business wealth into the hands of two hundred corporations managed by a relatively small group. The rank and file are deprived of their rightful share of this enormous capital. Millions are jobless, and at least one-third of our population is inadequately housed.

The prophet then grapples with the perennial liquor problem pronouncing woe upon all who stain their souls by indulgence in riotous debauchery. There is a timely warning here for America in this hour when she is abandoning the experiment of prohibition. Can we, with our flare of excitement, exercise moderation in the handling of intoxicants?

The third woe is directed against hardened rascals who mock and chuckle wit apparent impunity. We see them, following Moffatt's vivid translation drawing "guilt on themselves by stout ungodliness, as with a rope, harnessing themselves to sin, and sneering at God with a blustering challenge. "Pray let us see what he will do!" Our modern world can boast of many such!

The fourth woe is cast at those who deny the clear distinction of the moral law, who "call evil good, and good evil." In our own confused era, how many there are who so blur the differences between right and wrong that black seems white, and white black!

What a timely, practical lesson! America, in her emergency needs, primarily, old-fashioned integrity of character. Isaiah's clarion call to righteousness sounds a note we do well to hear.

W. W. Hyde and family, Frank Herring and family and Frank Allred all enjoyed a big picnic supper at the Benjamin lake one evening last week.

THE SECOND MILE

What did Henry Ford mean, one spring morning, when he tipped a kitchen chair back against the white washed wall of his tractor plant and talked about his career?

"Have you ever noticed that the man who starts out in life with a determination to make money, never makes very much?" he asked. It was rather a startling question; and with out waiting for my comment he went on to answer it: "He may gather together a competence, of course a few tens of thousands or even hundreds of thousands, but he'll never amass a really great fortune. But let a man start out in life to build something better than it has ever built before let him have that determination and give his whole self to it and the money will roll in so fast that it will bury him if he doesn't look out."

"When we were building our original model do you suppose that it was money we were thinking about? Of course, we expected that it would be profitable, if it succeeded, but that wasn't in the front of our minds. We wanted to make a car so cheap that every family in the United States could afford to have one. So we worked morning, noon and night, until our muscles ached and our nerves were so ragged that it seemed as if we couldn't stand it to hear any one mention the word automobile again. One night, when we were almost at the breaking point I said to the boys, 'well there's one consolation,' I said. 'Nobody can take this business away from us unless he's willing to work harder than we.' We worked. And so far, he concluded with a whimsical smile, 'nobody has been willing to do that.'"

What did Theodore N. Vail mean when he said that only once in his life did he set out with the deliberate intention of making money—that all the rest of his fortune had come from work which so gripped him that he forgot about the money? The one occasion to which he referred was his trip to South America where he found a mine that did prove profitable, and doubtless still is. He made that trip because he had lost all his money in an effort to establish a big central heating plant in Boston—to give people better warmth, as he had already helped to give them better communication. The heating plant failed, and he paid its debts with the South American mine. But the bulk of his fortune came from the achievement for which he will always be remembered—the establishment of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. To that great enterprise he gave everything he had—"threw his life into it," as we say—lost his life in it, as Jesus said. And it gave him back larger and richer life, and a fortune and immortality.

"Whoever shall compel thee to go a mile," said Jesus, go with him twain.

Progress always involves risk. You can't steal second base and keep one foot on first.

AMBITION

Serge had it When I hear farmers talking as if they were all headed for the poorhouse I think of my neighbor, Serge Katorsky. Serge came over from Russia just before the war, because he had five children and wanted to give them chance. He had about three hundred dollars to start with.

He bought a couple of hundred acres of cheap mountain land about five miles from my farm and started to work. He repaired the tumble down old house, and in these twenty years has so improved it that it is the most comfortable farm house I have ever seen. There are eleven children now, seven of them through high school, two through college three of the girls finishing up in the State Normal School. And what marks those Katorsky kids do get in school—Serge started with some scrub cows but has bred up his dairy herd until it's one of the best in the district. They grow or raise practically all they eat, and they certainly thrive well.

Serge Katorsky had the two essentials for successful living, industry and ambition. With those a man can get almost anywhere.

COLOR

I have a car. If you take your automobile with you on your tour of the world, be sure the color is one that won't offend the people of any particular nation. In Finland they don't permit cars of anything else to be painted red. Red is the color of Communism, and the Finns are scary about their communistic neighbors next door in Russia.

One American got into trouble in Java with a light cream-colored car. White and cream are mourning colors in the Dutch East Indies, and are permitted only on hearses. A yellow car is an offense in China, for the same reason.

You don't want to take a green car to either England or India. In England there is a popular superstition that green is an unlucky color. Books and plays have been written about girls who wore green stockings, with the result they never could get a man to marry them! And in India green is reserved for the use of pious Mohammedans who have made the pilgrimage to Mecca and are so entitled to wear the green turban.

Better play safe—if you're really going—and take a plain black or dark blue car with you on your world

FIRST

My friend Joe Kane has written a book to tell who was the first to do or make many things in common use. It's an interesting book, called "Famous First Facts," but I ran across a couple of firsts the other day that Joe hasn't got in his book.

The first white bread was made by an English miller, Hugh Paddington, because a nobleman in his town wanted bread to match his white table linen! That was news to me when Frank Romer told me.

And the first paved streets in America is in downtown New York. It is named, appropriately, Stone Street. A Dutch brewer's wife in 1648 got tired of having her husband's dray mired in the mud, so she had her servants lay cobblestones the whole length of the street.

BUNK

We heard a lot, last year, about a great scheme to convert surplus grain into alcohol. The idea was to save the farmer by requiring every gallon of gasoline to be mixed with a certain portion of grain alcohol.

The fuel research committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce comes along now and punctures that balloon. The gasoline alcohol mixture, it finds, while it enables the motor to accelerate faster, makes starting harder, absorbs moisture from the air, corrodes engine and fuel pipe lines and costs much more than straight gasoline. Besides alcohol of higher quality can be produced from petroleum more cheaply than the poorer quality obtainable from grains.

Some day motors doubtless will be run by alcohol, but they will be built for alcohol use alone and used only where and when the gasoline supply has given out.

STEAM

Driving through a Northern industrial city with an engineer friend I saw a curious piece of construction under way. It looked just as if a huge steam engine were being built out of doors.

"That's just what it is," my friend told me. That's the newest idea in large steam plants for generating electric power. What sense is there in putting up an expensive building just to house a steam engine? It's cheaper to protect the equipment with asbestos, against cold weather, and put just enough of a roof over it to keep the snow off. Then, when you have to enlarge the plant, you don't have to tear out a heavy brick wall and build an expensive extension. Besides, nobody ever yet found a way to keep a boiler-room clean enough to guard against dust explosions without hiring a lot of extra help."

That sounded reasonable. It also interested me when the engineer told me that the new type of mercury boilers like the one I saw, could generate steam so cheaply that they can produce electrical energy at far less cost than the cheapest water power.

Lynwood and D. C. Hughes spent several days last week with their grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Abarnath, on the farm.
