Businessman Grows His Own Orchids!

A. V. Kemletz, of Kemletz and Carl Department Store was the proud possessor of a wild orchid Monday.

About two years ago, Tommy Frizzell, a geologist for Creole Oil Co., in Venezuela sent Kemletz a wild orchid plant and he has kept the plant alive since that time.

In its native state, the orchid is a parasite plant that clings to the bark of trees in the jungle, and re-ceives its food from the wet humid climate.

Kemletz transplanted the orchid to a piece of tree limb and has cared for the plant in the back of his store. Monday the plant had bloomed and Kemletz had an orchid! Late Wednesday the plant had two more buds.
