

BY AL HINDS

From our good friend Charlie Keck comes this little story. Back in the days when horses and mules were used to do farm work, there was a certain farmer who sent his son to an agriculture college. Upon graduating, the son returned to the old homestead. One day a neighbor saw the young college graduate plowing in the same old fashioned way and inquired of the young man why he had not improved his method of farming. . . . to which the college graduate replied: "I have improved my farming methods . . . you see before going to college I would say 'get-up' Kate and June to the mules . . . but now I holler at them, Yea Team . . . Yea Team."

Under the sponsorship of the senior class, the Chuck Wagon Gang of Fort Worth will appear here in person at the Knox City High School Auditorium Saturday night, April 25. If you have not already done so, why not purchase tickets now . . . enjoy an evening of fine entertainment . . . and in turn help the seniors.

It is said that Noah's Ark was built of gopher wood. That must have been the kind of wood we were using the other day. Every time we would drive a nail into it, the blasted board would split and we would have to (go-for) another piece of wood.

While having dinner at a local cafe recently, Zeb Smith, the new Santa Fe agent, and this columnist were conversing to the waitresses about who was boss in our homes. Zeb spoke up and said: "I beat my wife up every morning, so you can see who is boss at my house" . . . then with a lengthy pause he continued: "Yea, I beat my wife up every morning and have the coffee ready for her when she gets up."

A few days ago this scribe was catching the flu bug, so we went around to one of Knox City's druggists. He advised us to go see a doctor. The thing we liked most is the fact that he did not try to sell us any "cure all medicine," but in turn gave us some good friendly advice. This just proves your local druggist is one of your best friends.

In writing about druggists reminds this columnist of the following little story. While we were publishing the Paducah newspaper and writing a column called "Paducah Prattle," a druggist friend, Zack Isbell informed us one day that he had not been sleeping too well, and went to a doctor for a check-up. Zack said the doctor told him to go home, eat a bowl of cereal, then read Al's column . . . thus when he went to bed he would not have anything on his mind or stomach . . . and should get a good night's sleep.

Today's youths ambition: Junior has ambitious views, he wants to fill his father's shoes; but Mary wants to do much better, she wants to fill her mother's sweater.

Our today's food for thought: Consider the turtle . . . he doesn't make any progress until he sticks his neck out.

SCD Suggests Methods For Mesquite Control

Control of brush is one of the major problems on grazing land throughout much of Texas and the Southwest. Mesquite is the principal species of brush in the Wichita Brazos Soil Conservation District. Brush control is to eliminate competition of brush with grass for moisture, soil nutrients, and sunlight. Brush control also enables easier working of livestock and livestock gains are higher from treated areas than from untreated areas. Native grassland treated to control moderate to dense stands of mesquite has produced 22 per cent more gain per acre and 34 pounds greater gain per steer than untreated pastures. The annual increased returns from the control of mesquite have amounted to a little over $1.00 per acre over a year period of study.

Methods of controlling mesquite are: chemicals by aerial spray, diesel or kerosene applied to base of tree, root plowing, dozing, and chaining on tree type mesquite. Mesquite is an aggressive and persistent weed on large areas of grazing land and its control is closely similar to that of noxious weeds on cropland. In the initial invading stages costly elimination measures such as grubbing or oiling may be used to advantage along with good range management practice to control this shrub. But once extensive areas become infested with old seed bearing plants rekill, but repeated use at interpeated use of low cost control measures, such as aerial spray or chaining followed in 4 or 5 years with aerial spray offer the greatest benefit for the money invested. Some of these low cost measures may not give high initial valuations of 5 to 10 years will largely control reinfestation from sprout growth and from large numbers of seed in the soil.

The greatest value of the more costly measures of brush control such as grubbing, oiling, and root plowing is on land that has high potential productivity and needs to be seeded to a mixture of native and introduced grasses. The rancher or livestock farmer needs to plan to do follow-up work of some kind on brush control, even on root plowed or tree dozed pastures.

Warning Is Issued On Dumping And Burning Trash

A warning is being issued this week by the City of Knox City concerning the dumping of trash, rubbish and cans in the pit in the northwest part of town.

"This procedure is creating a health hazard," City Secretary Wesley Garrison said, and residents are reminded that the city prohibits the dumping of trash, other than tree trimmings in the pit.

Signs will be erected at the pit, giving fair warning, and anyone caught dumping trash at the specified place mentioned above will be subject to fine, Garrison pointed out.

Another matter in which the City is asking cooperation of residents is the burning of papers, boxes, etc. in their trash barrels.

Complaints have been made to city officials that winds are scattering papers over town, and thus residents are asked to burn trash when placed in the barrels.

Uncle Ben from Benjamin says:

I see by the papers where this columnist, after making a tour of the country, says taxpayers think they're paying too much taxes. After a life time of study in the tax situation and dodging all of 'em I could, I can tell this feller all about taxes and save him another tour of the country.

Taxes always dips a little in an election year, but the dip is a optical illusion, like that thin coat of gravel they throw on a country road the week afore the precinct elections. They dip but still at the same time continue the same steady climb.

Fer insant, in 1960 taxes will be reduced in ever speech from precinct to President, but I ain't never saw a office holder yet that couldn't figger out a crisis three months after the election that changed the whole picture he give the voters in the campaign.

If there ever was anything useless in this world, it's a tour around the country to survey the tax situation amongst the constituents. When I hear some feller talking about reducing taxes, I git as deaf as the old man leading in family praper while he was kneeling on the cat's tail. How is taxes going to git reduced with three out of ever four in the country either working fer the Government, gitting a Government subsidy, or got at least three different kinds of Government loans?

Well, Mister Editor, the fellers at the country store Saturday night was giving me a hard time about my spelling in these little pieces. I ain't never mentioned it afore now, but the reason my spelling might be a little off is because they didn't print the dictionary right. They ought to have one section with words listed like they is spelled and another like they is pronounced. This last section would be a heap of help to a feller like me. Words like newmonia ought to be listed in the "n" section so's a feller could find 'em. I told the boys at the store I was like the backward mountain boy that went to Harvard. When somebody ask his Ma what he was studying there, she said he wasn't studying nothing, that they was studying him. If they want to read my little pieces, they'll have to do the studying.

The way the English language is changing these days, it don't pay a feller to learn any set rules. Fer insant, I saw the other day where this woman was "ambulanced and hospitalized on Friday and funeralized on Sunday." We're gitting language down to the bare essentials and the spelling don't matter.

Yours truly,
Uncle Ben

In this Kingswood, every window is Safety Plate Glass.

Nicest wagon that ever joined your family!

Chevy's station wagons should really be called family wagons. You can choose from five models, including the four-door nine-passenger Kingswood, with its rear-facing rear seat.

Here's a brisk and breezy wagon that'll take on any chore you name, from a trip to the beach to a journey home from the lumberyard. There's room, you see, for a whole half-ton of cargo—a space ten feet long, with the rear seat and tailgate down.

These wagons are easy to load, too—you just roll the rear window into the tailgate and flip it down flat. No liftgate to wrestle with.

Chevrolet's so easy to handle it's a natural for the lady of the house. Big, safer brakes, too. Chevy's even got bigger tires—they come as standard equipment on every one of our wagons. But why not fall in love with a Chevy firsthand—at your Chevrolet dealer's!

The car that's wanted for all its worth!

Streams In Desert Places

Ozelle Stephens

Jesus was full of grace and truth... His truth endureth forever... It will make you free. Truth is as great and powerful as the raging of a mighty tempest. Its power worketh in quietness. It does not have to be screamed to work. Whispered truth penetrates any hardness of evil. Creating a mighty majestic atmosphere that works wonders in the hearts and lives of men. The scripture admonishes us to seek truth, to believe truth—to think truth continually. When you do you become working truth, for you become what your thinking is—speaking truth in love.

JUST TALK

By JAMES HILL

For quite a few years we have tried to think of a suitable name ever got to write one, and it seems as though the only logical one that would fill the bill for us would have to be called "JUST TALK." We feel certain there are a number of newsmen with columns of this name but the only one we have ever heard about is the column by A. M. Jackson in the Slaton Slatonite. Mr. Jackson retired in 1953 due to health conditions, and that ended his column. On our arrival to Knox City, he again started writing the column in the Slatonite and it appears there each week.

Anyway, we have always admired the ex-publisher of the Slatonite, and liked his column so well, that we wanted one by the same name. Even though he is writing it again, we still want to name ours "JUST TALK."

Mr. Jackson started us out in the newspaper business way back when, and he and the Slatonite still bear scars of that experience and encounter. He and his wife, Greta have been very good friends to us through the years and encouraged us to get a paper of our own. If the people of Knox City wish we had moved elsewhere, or never got in the publishing business, the Jacksons will have to share part of the blame.

Had a run-in with Eddie Carr Monday and as luck would have it, we had said in a previous issue of the Herald that Eddie had been in Dallas over the week end. Eddie said this wasn't true. He said he hadn't been to the city for a long long time and that he had been here in Knox City working like mad!

Marshal Carr was the first Knox Citian we got acquainted with on our arrival—it was not a business call by the way—and we certainly hope we never meet the big guy on any sort of unfriendly grounds.

We can't say how the mix-up occurred Marshal, but we hope this will straighten it out.

It is always aggravating and even amusing, sometimes, the mistakes that newspapers will make. The average layman just can't seem to understand how so many "errors" get by. Well, sometimes drop by your paper and see how many things go on to get your little paper out, and then you will wonder how anyone gets out a paper with so FEW mistakes.

In time we hope to know everyones name in the county and to spell them correctly in the paper.

There is one name we will remember and that is John G. Robin. We misspelled his name at least four or five times and each time we spelled it a different way. When we ran the picture of the ground-breaking ceremonies for the swimming pool we spelled his name Robbins. Mr. Robin didn't tack our hides to the wall though—he was very nice about it—but insisted his name was spelled with one "b" and no "s"—unless the rest of the staff hasn't learned to spell his name correctly—it should be spelled right from now on.

As the man on Central Avenue says — "There's three sides to every question — the right side, the wrong side, and the woman's side of it."

The rains came at an opportune time for planting and as evidenced from driving around the country, every farmer is making good use of the drought-breaking rains. Some of them had planted before the first rain, but most of them had waited for moisture. It is certainly nice to see smiles on the faces of the farmers again.

In our April 9 issue of the Herald, the rain story was our lead story. Editor Charlie Didway of Post compiled a list of the papers on his exchange that made the rains the number one story. From what we can gather and remember from the exchanges there, every one of them led off with the rain story—some of them put it in one-inch type all across the front page.

Which all goes to show that the weather and God's nature are always the most important news we can have.

These more costly methods of brush control will normally give good control for more than 10 to 15 years.

Brush control can return maximum benefits only when combined with other sound range management practices such as Proper Use of Grassland and Deferred Grazing. By the same token management practices alone cannot show maximum returns when the land is seriously infested with undesirable brush.

Soil Conservation Service personnel assisting the Wichita-Brazos Soil Conservation District at Knox City and Haskell will be glad to work with ranchers and livestock farmers on their brush control programs.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Office and the Great Plains Conservation Program offer assistance on brush-control practices. Application for assistance under these two programs should be made before work is started.

Some that plan to control brush this year are—Helen Smith McClure, W. T. Townsend, Jack Idol, Sydney Alexander, Jack Neathery, Lola Cartwright, and several others.
