Knox Co. Hospital Adopts New Identification Program

Knox County Hospital has announced the adoption of a new program of identification for all of its patients. The practice of applying a lightweight identification band to the wrist of each patient gives maximum protection against mistaken identity and conforms with procedures recommended by the American Hospital Association and the American Academy of Pediatrics. "The addition of this safeguard is part of our hospital's policy of bringing the latest and best hospital methods and procedures to our patients and to the community," Lyndol Cypert, Hospital Administrator said.

The new wrist bands, known as Ident-A-Bands, are made of soft, transparent plastic into which is inserted a card with complete information about the patient, including his or her name, hospital case number and attending physician. The Ident-A-Band is sealed around the patient's wrist as soon as he is admitted to the hospital and it remains there until his release. Just a glance at the wrist confirms the patient's identity even when he is sleeping or under sedation.

Hospital statistics show that patients are now staying in the hospital for shorter periods of time and receiving the services of personnel from many different departments. A permanent form of identification which remains on the patient even when he is transferred from one part of the hospital to another assures the patient proper treatment and medication throughout his stay.

Particularly reassuring to mothers of newborn is the hospital's system of correlating the mother with her own infant immediately upon the birth of the child. Identical bands with matching numbers sealed inside are applied to both mother and baby in the delivery room and are worn until their release from the hospital.

"We are using the Ident-A-Band system because it provides positive yet comfortable identification for every patient in our hospital at all times," said Lyndol Cypert. "Although these bands will not replace the personal attention we give our patients, they will add to our assurance that we are providing the best possible care to those for whom we are responsible."

Panel Formed To Promote Hunting Interests For Co.

At a July meeting of the Knox County Technical Action Panel a program was started to determine the interest in outdoor recreation in the County.

Knox County is rich in game birds such as dove, quail, ducks and geese. Each fall out-of-county hunters are looking for places to hunt. Most of them are willing to pay a hunting fee. In addition to the hunting fees the average hunter will spend fifty to sixty dollars on food, lodging and gasoline on each hunting trip.

The Wichita Brazos Soil and Water Conservation District and the Knox County Technical Action Panel feel there is a real opportunity here to boost the economical development of the County. By locating hunting areas and publicizing our resources more hunters will be willing to come to Knox County to hunt.

In the next few weeks the Knox City and Munday Chambers of Commerce will be sending cards to all producers in the County to determine areas where hunting will be allowed on a fee basis. Producers are asked to cooperate with this program by filling out the cards and mailing them back to the Chamber offices.

The Knox County Technical Action Panel is a panel of United States Department of Agriculture representatives formulated to promote Rural Area Development in the County. The panel is composed of Joe Boone, Farmers Home Administration; Arche Lieb, Soil Conservation Service; Herman Collier, Knox County Agent; Jesse Gilpin, Agriculture Station.

Four Times To Contact Your Social Security

There are four times when it is especially important for area residents to contact the Vernon Social Security office, according to Edwin Draughon, manager.

First, if a worker in your family dies, some member in the family should contact the office promptly to determine if survivor's insurance benefits are payable.

Second, if you become disabled, be sure to contact the office. As a result of the 1965 Social Security Amendments a person may be eligible to receive monthly disability benefits if his disability is expected to last a continuous period of at least 12 months. A person no longer needs to be permanently disabled to qualify.

Third, when you reach the age of 62 you should at least stop by or telephone the office to discuss your situation, particularly if you are no longer working or working for low earnings. Remember you do not have to be completely retired to get social security benefits.

Fourth, when you are within 3 months of age 65 you should contact the office if you have not already filed an application. It is especially important to contact the office then so that you can be enrolled in the medicare program. You do not have to be eligible for monthly payments to be eligible for the medical insurance protection. Filing an application during the 3-month period before you reach 65 will insure this protection effective with your 65th birthday.

For the convenience of our customers, office hours are listed here: Monday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.; Tuesday, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Wednesday, 9 a.m. until 12 noon; Thursday, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.; and Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Deadlines for ad copy will be 2 p.m. Tuesday and 3:30 p.m. for locals or classifieds.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Herring, owners and publishers, will compose all copy for the Herald in the Munday plant, and the offset printing will be done in Quanah each Wednesday afternoon. The Herald will be mailed out of the local office each Thursday morning.

Mrs. Jimmy Strickland of Rochester waited on the bride as Matron of Honor. She wore a linen and lace sheath of yellow and white. Her veil of illusion was held by a yellow peau de soie band. She carried a giant white chrysanthemum.

Parents of the bride were hosts at a reception in the church Fellowship Hall following the wedding. The table was covered in yellow, overlaid with white lace, with appointments of crystal and silver. A beautiful and delicious tiered wedding cake, baked and decorated by the mother of the groom, carried out the bride's chosen colors.

Guard Against Heart Attack

Over 250 outdoor billboards have been placed throughout Texas this month warning Texas to "Guard against heart attack—control high blood pressure." Sponsored by the Texas Medical Association and the Texas Heart Association, in cooperation with 36 outdoor advertising companies, the messages are part of the medical association's continuing public service outdoor advertising campaign against disease. Space for the posters has been donated by the outdoor advertising companies.

Heart disorders were selected as one of the diseases to be included in TMA's educational program because heart and blood vessel ailments are the leading cause of death in the United States. Each year more than 500,000 people die of heart attack in this country.

No one can be certain of preventing heart disease or a heart attack but it is possible to control or lessen some of the factors that often are associated with a tendency toward heart troubles.

High blood pressure, for example, sharply increases the chances of heart attack if it goes undetected and untreated. Through regular checkups and proper medical treatment, this disease can be brought under control in most cases.

Other suggested ways to guard your heart are to (1) reduce saturated fat and cholesterol in the diet; (2) count your calories—avoid excess weight; (3) don't smoke; (4) exercise regularly; and (5) have regular medical checkups.

BY D. L. KENNEY, JR., as Told to Del Deterling (From The Progressive Farmer, February, 1967)

It was such a beautiful day. Warm, sunny.

A quiet, peaceful day, as only Sunday in June can be. And a very special day at that, because it was my wife's and my thirtieth wedding anniversary.

But our happiness on this special occasion was overshadowed by thoughts of an even happier event coming up. Next Friday would be Barbara's birthday. She was going to be five years old.

As we pulled out of the gate, Barbara shouted above the noise of the tractor engine, "Daddy, are you going to get me a bicycle for my birthday—just like Chippy's?"

"Yes, darling, I'll buy you a bicycle this week," I shouted back. "You'll have it in time for your birthday."

We were spending the weekend on our farm—my wife, my daughter and I—just as we did practically every weekend the weather permitted. Chippy, Barbara's six-year-old friend, was also staying with us.

Usually we would be in church at this time. Barbara never missed Sunday School. Except today... Chippy was there, and they were having so much fun, and the time seemed so short... well, today, for the first time in a long while, she didn't go.

I didn't go either. I'd been sick the previous week and hadn't gotten as much done as I hoped. We'd just had several heavy rains, and grass and weeds were really growing. I wanted to keep the place looking nice.

It wouldn't take me long—not with that brand new tractor and rotary shredder. I had gotten an early start and by ten o'clock I was nearly finished. Just needed a couple of passes along the road leading to the house and I'd be done.

I mowed one side of the road, then pulled up to the house to remind my wife to have lunch ready early, as we had to deliver some cattle right after noon.

As I got ready to pull out again, Chippy ran up and cried, "Let me ride. I want to ride."

What are you going to do? He was almost in tears, "All right," I agreed. "Climb on Barbara, set the soda pop down and let's go. We'll be right back."

My daughter was standing off to the side drinking a soda pop. Chippy called over her, "Come on Barbara, let's ride the tractor."

Barbara didn't really want to ride. She hadn't finished her drink and didn't know what to do with it. The boy kept nagging her, so I said "Come on Barbara, set the soda pop down and let's go. We'll be right back."

I lifted her up. She made Chippy get off the left fender and over on the right. "This is my fender, Daddy, isn't it?" She was an old hand when it came to riding the tractor.

I guess I'm typical of lots of weekend farmers. We live in Dallas. I own an office equipment company that I built up from nothing—starting out forty years ago with $44.

I was even president of the National Office Machine Dealers Association some 10 years ago. I really do love my work.

But we always looked forward to the weekends—to spending all Saturday and Sunday together in the country, looking after our registered Angus cattle, plowing and mowing, working hard, and getting close to the soil. Boy, that's the life.

I threw the shredder in gear and the blades bit into the soft, pithy weeds. The ditch is fairly wide and not too steep. It was a smooth ride.

I looked proudly at my daughter. She looked very pretty in that brandnew dress, one of our country neighbors had given her for her birthday.

"Aren't we having fun, Chippy?" Barbara called out. "Isn't it great to ride on the tractor?" And then it happened.

I didn't see the hole the rain had washed out until just before the front wheel was about to hit it. I'm not sure what happened next. Either I stamped on the brakes or the front wheel hit the hole. Barbara lost her hold on the fender and flipped forward head over heels. I just knew that giant wheel would crush her.

It didn't. The wheel just missed her. It ran over her feet; but with those big new treads on the tire, it didn't crush her.

"Thank God," I breathed. "I missed her."

I must have been in shock already. In my relief that the wheel hadn't caught her, I never once thought about the shredder only feet back that would hit her a split second later.

Somehow I got the tractor stopped, and just sat there—the world spinning about me.

I don't know how much time elapsed, but I remember Chippy, still on the other fender, screaming, "It killed her! It killed her!"

What do you tell a mother as you carry the lifeless body of her daughter into the house? How do you drown out the screams of the most precious possession you ever had echoing in your ears night after night?

I've had a lot of time to reflect on what has happened. I've gained new respect for tractors—and other farm machinery as well. Maybe what I have learned will be of value to other farmers—weekend or full-time—who never give much thought to accidents. I never did, and I've run a tractor for 14 years.

Review those rules of safe tractor operations. And above all, keep the kids off the tractor. (Tractors aren't toys. Sure they're easy to drive and fun to ride, and youngsters are just naturally attracted to them.)

Those fenders serve a useful purpose, but they are not designed for kids (or adults) to sit on, regardless of how convenient and attractive they look. I've started a personal campaign to get every tractor manufacturer to post a warning on each fender: "Danger! Do not permit children to ride on fenders." Two manufacturers have consented to place such a warning on their equipment.

Do you know that Barbara was the third child in a 60-mile radius of our ranch that was killed in a tractor accident within a 90-day period? We've had letters from parents all over the country who have lost a child through tractor accidents.

But there is no one who can stop this senseless tragedy from recurring except the tractor operators themselves.

It won't be too long until a whole year will have passed since it happened. Most memories gradually fade away, but this kind never leaves you. Every time you stumble over an old toy, run across a photo in the family album, or hear the laugh of a happy child, the pain returns.

The weather will be warming up soon, spring rains will fall, weeds will be growing. Tractors, shredders, and mowers will be humming again.

People, without thinking, will be eager to ride a child, grandchild, friend or relative on a tractor.

They always look so cute—the little things on that big tractor. It thrills the child and it thrills the parents and grandparents.

But in one brief, terrifying second, a thrill can be turned into a kill. Just ask me. I know.

SMV EMBLEM WARNS DRIVERS

Many farmers are now using the new Slow Moving Vehicle emblem on the rear of farm vehicles to warn motorists of their presence. The emblem, a 14-inch high triangle, glows orange by day, red by night and is visible in most cases for at least 500 feet. The Texas Safety Association and the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council warn drivers to slow down when they see the emblem. It indicates the equipment ahead is traveling at less than 25 miles per hour.

I am your Flag

I am your Flag.

I was born on June 14th, 1777.

I am more than just cloth shaped into a design.

I am the refuge of the World's oppressed people.

I am the silent sentinel of Freedom.

I am the emblem of the greatest sovereign nation on earth.

I am the inspiration for which American Patriots gave their lives and fortunes.

I have led your sons into battle from Valley Forge to Viet Nam.

I walk in silence with each of your Honored Dead, to their final resting place beneath the silent White Crosses, row upon row.

I have flown through Peace and War, Strife and Prosperity, and amidst it all I have been respected.

My Red Stripes—symbolize the blood spilled in defense of this glorious nation.

My White Stripes—signify the burning tears shed by Americans who lost their sons.

My Blue Field—is indicative of God's heaven under which I fly.

My Stars—clustered together, unify 50 States as one, for God and Country.

"Old Glory" is my nickname, and proudly I wave on high.

Honor me, respect me, defend me with your lives and your fortunes.

Never let my enemies tear me down from my lofty position, lest I never return.

Keep alight the fires of patriotism, strive earnestly for the spirit of democracy.

Worship Eternal God and keep His commandments, and I shall remain the bulwark of peace and freedom for all mankind.

I am your Flag.

Austin - - - - - Texas will participate in a special nine-day experimental teal hunting season again this year, September 22-30, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.
This will be the third statewide season conducted in order to evaluate the effects of an increased harvest on teal that normally pass through Texas prior to the opening of the waterfowl hunting season.
The hunting season will be open this year, to hunters holding a "teal hunting permit," one week later than the 1966
hunt.
The daily bag limit will be 4 teal with a possession limit of 8.
The number of permits will be unlimited and will be issued through August 18 upon application to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, John H.
Reagan Building, Austin, Texas.
Each applicant should submit his name, complete address, and county of residence. Applications cannot be accepted after August 18.
Each hunter participating in this special season will be required to have the regular Texas hunting license and Federal duck stamp, in addition to the "teal hunting permit."
The Department pointed out that the primary purposes of the experimental season are to determine if teal can stand the additional hunting pressure, to study the effects of the shoot on other ducks and to collect information concerning the hunter's ability to identify various waterfowl.
Identification of the teal will be absolutely necessary because the season on other waterfowl will be closed. Possession of other species will be considered a violation of the law.

Am I eligible for any National

Q - I plan to take a corres-

A - Correspondence courses

IN THE PUBLIC INTEREST

Some interesting facts regarding the public interest in national labor law reform came to light when Local 1264, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, recently went on strike at WALA-TV, Mobile, Alabama.
The union leaders urged the station's advertisers, both local and national, to withdraw their advertising. H. Ray McGuire, manager of the station, estimates that between $150,000 and $250,000 worth of advertising was lost by this pressure during the strike which lasted more than a year.
Local retailers, who handled some of the products for which national advertising went off the air, continued to advertise throughout the strike, and apparently benefited. Even local institutions particularly sensitive to local public opinion, such as banks, and savings and loan associations, continued their advertising over the station.
These local industries and institutions defied the boycott, and even the smallest and most vulnerable local businesses survived its terrors. This outpouring of public support may be another indication that the public is ready for national labor law reform. A recent public opinion survey by Opinion Research Corporation showed that the public has never shown a greater interest and concern across the board for labor matters than it does today. The time for labor law reform is now!

Keep Record To Assure Claim On Dependent

Taxpayers' failure to keep good records on the support provided to dependents who do not live in the household with the taxpayer continues to be a leading factor causing tax audits. District Director Ellis Campbell, Jr. points out that when you support a dependent that lives with someone else, you should keep careful records on the amount of support you provide if you plan to claim the dependent on your income tax return. Only one taxpayer can claim the $600 exemption on his tax return, even though several persons together may have contributed more than half the support.

On the other hand, if someone else provides support for one of your dependents but you plan on claiming the dependency, you must keep a record of the amount of support you provided in rent, clothing, food, medical expenses, educational expenses, and other normal support expenses.

One-Half Million Veterans Getting GI Bill Training

More than one-half million veterans entered training during the first year of the educational program under the 1966 GI Bill, Jack Coker, Manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Waco reported today.

He predicted an even more successful program in fiscal year 1968, with well over 600,000 veterans expected to enter colleges and universities throughout the country.

The peak enrollment month during fiscal year 1967, saw 323,000 students on campuses, but that figure is certain to be exceeded during the coming year, Coker said.

The average GI Bill student during FY 1967 was 28 years old, and 45 percent of the students had one or more dependents. Seventy-six percent of the veterans entered courses at the college level, compared to about 30 percent during the World War II GI Bill program and 50 percent when the Korean GI Bill was in effect.

Approximately 15 percent embarked on graduate studies. Statistics show that 93 percent of the veteran-students had completed four years of high school.

For 35 percent of the students it was their first year of college, Coker said.

Cases requiring careful records on the support of dependents are: 1) children receiving support from both of their divorced parents; 2) support of Mother and Father by several children; and 3) support of a grandchild or other relative living with someone else.
IRS Document No. 5013 gives detailed information on claiming dependents and the records required to support the claim. This document may be obtained from your local Internal Revenue Service office, or by writing Internal Revenue Service, P. O. Box 1738, Dallas, Texas 75221. ....

It's a woman's WHIRL
BY MAGGI

The younger working women interviewed in a recent survey believe that today's young men expect women to work. In fact, the girls agreed, if you have an interesting, unique or important job, it is much easier to get a date! Nor do the men of today want their wives to stop working as soon as they are married. The second income during the expensive home-accumulating years means that both partners can continue to indulge their accustomed tastes in clothing, accessories, foods and fun, without either having to feel any sacrifice.
Women's attitudes toward work are changing, too. They know they expect more than their mothers did... and it was their working mothers who did most to stimulate their expectations, but they also expect to help procure the things they want (and their mothers are the first to encourage this attitude!). ....

Farm and Ranch News

By Herman Collier

Knox County wheat farmers who are eligible for Federal Crop Insurance Corporation's program, have been given a limited amount of time to make application for 1968 and succeeding crop years.

The federally operated program's field representatives were pulled out of a number of counties earlier in the year when the drought risk became extreme in order to protect farmers already participating in the program.

In an announcement from Ben A. Jordan, state director of the FCIC, there was also good news for the irrigated wheat farmers in Carson, Dallam, Hansford, Moore, and Sherman Counties and for dryland wheat farmers in Fannin County. These farmers have recently been made eligible for the crop insurance for the coming year.

In addition, Jordan said that more land in Grayson and Collin Counties has been classified for wheat insurance for 1968 following a survey of the two counties.

Farmers interested in details about the program should contact their nearest FCIC field office of the state office in the USDA Building, College Station, Texas 77840.

Drought injury can occur naturally or it may be induced by man. The most common symptom of drought injury is the leaf margins dying, with the dead area extending into the leaf and causing desiccation of leaf tissue between veins near the midrib.

Natural drought injury takes place if an inadequate supply of soil moisture is available to the plant. A deficiency of water affects the marginal leaf tissue, and prolongation of this state results in the death of feeder roots. Recovery to normal condition is slow.

Man-made drought injury occurs when roots have been damaged mechanically or salt is accumulated in the soil. These high salt concentrations in the soil solution reduces water absorption by the root hairs. Root pruning will also account for drought symptoms. The construction of driveways, patios, and other masonry or asphalt structures near or around trees will interfere with gas exchange around the root and result in poor pruning.

17th ANNUAL BEEF CATTLE SHORT COURSE

The 1967 Beef Cattle Short Course will be held at Texas A&M University, Memorial Student Center August 14-15. This course will feature cost and returns from commercial breeding and feeding operations. Processing breeding herd records electronically and least cost ration formulation for feedlots by electronic methods will be discussed by two industry representatives. Recent research results on popped sorghum grain for finishing steers, levels of roughage in finishing rations, oyster shell in high concentrate mixtures, digestibility of dry and moist sorghum grain and use of gypsum as a feed regulator in supplemental feeding are topics to be presented.

Other topics include the effect of cow size on economic production, relationship of growth and size in cattle, feed consumption and productivity of cows of different sizes and hybrid vigor breeding plans.

These and other presentations will make a very educational program for feedlot operators and cow-calf operators. A $5.00 registration fee will be charged.

CANTALOUPE AND WATERMELONS ARE BEING HARVESTED

The Knox County Cantaloupe and watermelon producers have been busy harvesting these crops recently. Hard rains July 19-20 did considerably damage particularly to many cantaloupes that were about ready to harvest. The excess rain kept water standing in some fields too long.

Grain sorghum prospects are real good in the county at the present time. The majority of the early crop is maturing and looks good in different parts of the county. Late grain sorghum also looks very promising at this time, but of course will be dependent upon weather condition later on unless it can be irrigated.

Mr. O. E. Moore of Goree has a 50 acre block of grain sorghum maturing well. This field was irrigated when needed and looks promising for near 6,000 pounds per acre yield. Harold Jones, also of Goree has early grain sorghum with a potential 6,000 pounds per acre yield.

COTTON INSECT PROBLEM BUILDING UP

Cotton Boll Weevil and Boll Worm appear to be increasing over the county. To date the infestation is not great in all fields.

Producers are urged to keep watching their particular fields and apply insecticides only if needed. Keep in mind insecticides used this late in the year should contain bollworm controlling ingredients.

Check bulletin 1-508-1967, "Guide for Controlling Cotton Insects."

Army Wants Young Men To Train As Divers

The Army is looking for young men to train as divers and is now offering a guaranteed training course to young men who enlist now, provided they meet certain qualifications. It has been announced by the U. S. Army Recruiting Main Station for this area, with headquarters in Dallas.

The eight-week divers training course will be held at the U. S. Naval Station in San Diego, Calif. Included will be diving physics, underwater mechanics and underwater work with all conventional diving equipment.

Detailed information about this new enlistment option, one of hundreds offered by the U. S. Army, is available from MSG Drue McBride, local Army Recruiter located at 1809- Wilbarger - Vernon, telephone L12-6762 - Collect.

Men enlisting as diver trainees will first be sent to Fort Ord, Calif. for eight weeks of Basic Combat Training. They must then pass tests in recompression chamber pressure, oxygen tolerance and an indoctrination dive before being admitted to divers training.

To qualify for enlistment as a diver trainee, an applicant must be psychologically adapted for diving duty and must hold a valid American Red Cross

Life Saving Certificate or a certificate signed by a YMCA, high school or Red Cross official stating that the required swimming test has been passed.

Since certain qualifications for diver training cannot be determined until after an applicant has enlisted in the U. S. Army, he will be required to sign an agreement that upon failure to meet these qualifications he will waive his enlistment option of diver training and be offered three alternate choices for other training for which he is qualified.

STATE Capital NEWS

By VEKN SANFORD

AUSTIN, Tex. — Newspaper readers throughout Texas soon will be seeing long columns of type about important issues as Secretary of State John Hill begins to advertise the six proposed constitutional amendments to be voted on November 11.

Fourteen additional amendments will be on the 1968 ballot.

Eight of the 20 amendments are of interest mainly to special groups (eg: legislators or state employees). Eight others would provide local governments with new powers or duties. Only four of the group directly affect most Texans.

Amendments to be voted on this year will appear on the ballot in this order:

• No. 1, House Joint Resolution 3, to permit counties to put all tax money in a single general fund rather than dividing income in specified amounts among separate funds for earmarked purposes as is now required.

• No. 2, HJR 37, allowing cities and other governmental units within hospital districts to levy taxes for participation in mental health and mental retardation community centers.

• No. 3, HJR 17, reviving the veterans land program and authorizing a total of $400,000,000 in bonds to finance continued purchase of farm and ranch land by veterans, including those who have served in Southeast Asia during present hostilities.

• No. 4, HJR 6, authorizing counties to pay medical, doctor and hospital bills of county law enforcement officers injured in line of duty.

• No. 5, HJR 12, authorizing a $75,000,000 state revenue bond issue for the development of state parks and recreational areas. Bonds are expected to be financed by a small admission fee.

• No. 6, HJR 27, permitting state officers and employees to hold non-elective positions under the state or U.S. governments where there is no conflict of interest and where the state might benefit.

That's all for '67. Top interest in these amendments doubtless will center on the park bond proposal and the veterans land amendment.

Hospital mental health and mental retardation groups will emphasize the importance of Amendment #2 to the new community center approach of treating mental patients close to home.

Calling the 1967 election for Veterans Day and a Saturday, undoubtedly, was to assure a large voter turnout for the land vites purchases of land not needed and which will not be put to productive use.

Gov. John Connally is the principal backer of the parks bond issue. Last December he unveiled a 10-year plan for acquiring and developing 150,960 acres of recreational lands and historical sites. This would more than triple present state park acreage and open a variety of new facilities for outdoor recreation.

Only opposition to the amendment to date has been based on the $1 a car park-entry fee, initially proposed by Connally to finance the vast program; and scattered complaints that facilities included in the governor's master plan do not adequately serve some areas of the state.

He is expected to spearhead an intensive fall campaign—supported by parks, recreational and outdoor groups—to put over the bond issue.

The veterans land amendment would add another $200,000,000 to state bonds previously authorized and through which 35,300 veterans have purchased farm and ranch properties at low interest rates spread over a 40-year pay period.

This amendment would raise the amount which could be borrowed under the program from $7,500 to $10,000. The program was initiated in 1949. Additional bonds were approved by voters in 1951 and 1956. Amendments to enlarge the bond authorization were rejected at elections in 1963 and 1965. Opposition came mainly from Dallas and Houston.

Proponents emphasize that, while thousands of veterans have benefited from the program, it has cost the state no money and actually has turned a profit of $2,500,000 a year while providing an expanded land market.

Opposition has adopted the argument that it is not the function of the state government to engage in the loan business and that veterans have had plenty of time to participate. Some also contend that "cheap money" infund vites purchases of land not needed and which will not be put to productive use.

Amendment #2 specifies that the legislature, in providing for creation of hospital districts, does not have to require that the districts assume full responsibility for community mental health and retardation centers and services. It would permit cities and counties to levy taxes and issue bonds for such services. Subdivisions within existing districts would be authorized to do so unless statutes creating the districts expressly prohibit.

An attorney general's opinion held that the constitution does not allow political subdivisions within the boundary of a hospital district to levy taxes for medical and hospital service. Under that ruling, cities and counties located in such districts were restricted from participating in establishment of community health centers. Therefore, only hospital districts could establish such centers, a key part of the mental health program.

Amendments #3, #4 and #5 are self explanatory and apparently non-controversial.

Amendment #6 is aimed primarily at permitting educators, who are paid from state funds, to serve on federal advisory boards.

New System For Railroad Freight Control

A new system of railroad freight car load control, which could help reduce substantially the nation's $150 million damaged-freight losses, has been developed by the Corporate Traffic department of the General Foods Corporation.

The new system—called air load control—replaces the mechanical restraining devices commonly used for freight control with an expandable pneumatic bulkhead.

This pneumatic bulkhead—four, fabric-reinforced, inflatable rubber bladders suspended between outer steel panels that span the width of a loaded rail car—expands under air pressure to secure the freight with a moderate force that controls and cushions the in-transit shifting responsible for most freight damage.

The General Foods air load control system, which took more than a year-and-a-half to develop, is one of several innovations from the company in recent years. A long-time pioneer in transportation and distribution methods, General Foods introduced palletized shipping and the now standard 48 by 40 inch wood pallet to the food industry in the early 1960's, and worked closely on the design of the first palletized rail car.

Robert A. Stringer, general manager of the company's Corporate Traffic department and Distribution—Sales Services division, said the air load control system was a major step to improve rail freight transport, reduce its costs, and facilitate food product handling.

State FFA President And Sweetheart For 1967 - 68

Danny Burns of Pittsburg was elected president of the 50,000-member Texas Association of Future Farmers of America during their 39th Annual State FFA Convention in Dallas concluded July 21.

The new State FFA Sweetheart is Roxann Thurman, 17 year old daughter of Harold C. Thurman of Dumas.

Danny will forego his plans to major in agricultural education at Sam Houston State College for one year while he devotes full time to representing the Future Farmers organization before civic groups, industry meetings, livestock shows, banquets and FFA functions.

In addition to those previously announced, other awards made at the convention went to Public Speaking Contest winner, Inman White, Jr., of Palestine; Talent Contest Winners "The Country Gentlemen", a western music group from the Sulphur Springs FFA Chapter; Outstanding State Vice President for 1966-67, Bobby Easter of La Pryor; and elected delegate to the National FFA Convention in Kansas City next October was outgoing vice president Lou Gary Thomas of Burkeville.

More than 5,000 FFA members, their advisors and friends attended the 39th Annual State Convention in Dallas' Memorial Auditorium.

From the medical standpoint, physicians say that diving makes demands on the body which are unlike those met above the surface.

Navigating under water is heavy exertion and those with respiratory problems or heart and blood vessel disease should not attempt it. Says Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association. Diving is ruled out for those with perforated ear drums. Ear plugs are for surface swimming only and should not be used for diving because of water pressure. The depth changes also require that sinuses and ears be in good shape to equalize the pressure.

Asking your doctor to evaluate your fitness for diving is a precaution that will pay dividends. Along with good health, the potential diver should be a better than average swimmer. A moderately skilled swimmer can dive with SCUBA equipment, but in an emergency the swimming skills born of long practice and good physical conditioning may mean the difference between survival and death.

Never dive alone, the AMA advises. Use a buddy system and be certain that your buddy is competent and trustworthy. Learn to use artificial respiration and see that your buddy knows it. Plan your dives. Know where you're going, how deep and how long you can stay under. Work out a system of underwater communication signals for emergencies. Never dive when you are overly tired, have a cold or are just not feeling well.

Use quick release buckles on weight belts or SCUBA harness. You may need to cut loose and surface quickly. Don't indulge in horseplay and take needless risks. Watch out for boats while in the water. The power boat skipper may not know you're there. Watch your depth. Pressures mount rapidly as you descend. Don't hold your breath while ascending. Air will expand inside your lungs and should be allowed to bubble out as you are coming up.

Infants one year old and under are the fourth most frequent traffic fatalities while riding as passengers in motor vehicles, according to records at the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Car Serves as Living Room

For millions of Americans the family car becomes an extension of the home living room during vacation travel. This has led the home safety division of the Greater New York Safety Council to issue a bulletin on family vacation motoring with emphasis on the comfort and safety of youngsters.

Prepared by Mrs. Marjorie B. May, director of home safety, the bulletin advises that one adult assume the specific responsibility of reading to the children, tending to their care and otherwise keeping them from annoying the driver. It suggests such games as identifying birds or out-of-state license plates or keeping count of cows or red barns on opposite sides of the road.

GUIDELINE

The line between failure and success is so fine that we scarcely know when we pass it; so fine that we are often on the line and do not know it. How many a man has thrown up his hands at a time when a little more effort, a little more patience, would have achieved success. As the tide goes clear out, so it comes clear in. Sometimes, prospects may seem darkest when really they are on the turn. A little more persistence, a little more effort, and what seemed hopeless failure may turn to glorious success. There is no failure except in no longer trying. There is no defeat except from within, no really insurmountable barrier save our own inherent weakness of purpose.

Swimming Pool Perils

In the swimming pool at an amusement park, a small boy—gripping the edge—slowly pulled himself toward the deep end.

Nearby sat a lifeguard. But the lifeguard was showing less interest in small boys than in big girls. Finally one beauty so captured his attention that he left his post to take her for a stroll. By the time he returned, the boy had drowned.

Was the management legally liable for the boy's death? A court said yes, because the tragedy probably could have been averted if the lifeguard had been doing his duty.

Not only amusement parks but also hotels and motels are, with growing frequency, providing swimming pools for their patrons. These pools, privately owned but open to the public, are subject to certain basic rules of negligence law.

First of all, the management must take all precautions reasonably called for by the peculiar hazards of the sport. That includes not only safe facilities but also adequate policing of behavior.

Thus, a hotel was held liable when a woman swimmer was hit in the face by a large, heavy ball. Four youths had been hurling the ball around the pool at full speed—a game which, said the court, could and should have been halted by those in charge.

However, policing cannot be expected to make accidents altogether impossible. In another case, a boy was injured when a companion suddenly shoved him off the diving board.

But this time the court put no legal responsibility on the management, since even the strictest supervision would not have prevented such an impulsive and unpredictable prank.

Furthermore, the victim himself may be guilty of negligence if he fails to exercise common caution. For instance, a court held it was negligent for a poor swimmer to enter the deep end of the pool when he was already suffering from cramps.

What if the cause of the mishap remains a mystery? As a rule that relieves the management of responsibility.

In one case, a girl wading in a hotel pool suffered a bad cut when she stepped on a fragment of clear glass. No one knew how long the glass had been there. No one knew how it had gotten there in the first place.

Under these circumstances, the court denied the girl's claim for damages. The court felt that blaming the hotel for such an unexplained accident would be sheer guesswork.
