Munday student and teacher attend Energy Symposium

Forty outstanding high school students and teachers from West Texas Utilities Company service area attended the 35th Annual Texas Energy Science Symposium at the University of Texas in Austin. The conference got underway Tuesday, June 6 and ended Friday, June 9.

Sponsored by WTU from Munday High School were Mr. Doug Donoho and Zane Donoho.

The Symposium is jointly sponsored by the Texas Atomic Energy Research Foundation and the University of Texas. West Texas Utilities Company is one of the Foundation's sponsoring companies and paid for all expenses for the forty students and teachers that attended from their service area.

The Foundation was founded for the primary purpose of conducting the world's first and largest privately financed research effort in the field of energy. The goal of the Foundation and WTU is not research alone, but also to broaden knowledge of energy science in Texas schools and to heighten awareness of the privileges that scientific discovery presents.

There are over 1,000 accredited senior high schools in the state of Texas, and West Texas can be proud of their schools for being chosen to send teachers and students to the Symposium.

Knox County Sheriff Mike Carlson issues Warning to all Parents!

A form of Tattoo called BLUE STAR is being sold to school children. It is a small piece of paper containing a blue star. They are the size of a pencil eraser and each is soaked with LSD. The drug is absorbed through the skin by handling the paper.

There are also brightly colored paper tabs resembling postage stamps that have the pictures of the following: Superman, Mickey Mouse, clowns, butterflies, Bart Simpson. Each one is wrapped in aluminum foil. This is a new way of selling acid, by appealing to young children.

If your child gets any of the above, DO NOT HANDLE

THEM. These are known to react quickly and some are laced with strychnine. Symptoms: Hallucinations, severe vomiting, uncontrolled laughter, mood changes and change in body temperature.

Please feel free to reproduce this article and distribute it within your community and work place. Please copy and post a work, give to a friend, send a copy to local schools. This is very serious - young lives have already been taken! This problem is growing faster than we can warn parents and professionals.

If your household is one of the millions which has been receiving U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) commodities on a monthly, bi-monthly, or quarterly basis, you can expect to get fewer commodities over the next 12 months than you have received in past years.

The reduction in this program--called The Emergency Food Assistance Program (TEFAP)--will be due to fewer surplus commodities as well as non-surplus commodities. During 1994, there was surplus cornmeal and butter in USDA storage which was available for TEFAP; however, there is no longer surplus cornmeal in storage. In 1994, Congress appropriated $80 million for USDA to purchase additional (non-surplus) food for TEFAP, but in 1995, Congress appropriated only $25 million for additional TEFAP food.

However, it is important to note that TEFAP was never intended to serve as a household's sole--or even primary--food source. TEFAP was designed as an outlet for surplus commodities in order to reduce the huge surplus inventories of food being stored in warehouses at taxpayers' expense. As such, it effectively achieved that goal. It is among the smallest of USDA's numerous food assistance programs, accounting for less than one-half of one percent of the $39 billion spent on the programs.

From 1989 to 1993, at a time when funding for TEFAP decreased by $40 million, total USDA funding for all of its food assistance programs actually increased by $13 billion. The Agriculture Department feels it can better use its food dollar by targeting its funding on the programs that are designed to be the mainstay of Federal food assistance--the Food Stamp Program, WIC (the Supplement Food Assistance Program for Women, Infants, and Children), and the Child Nutrition Programs (nutrition program for schools and child care facilities).

The history of TEFAP explains why funding is being decreased. During the 1950s and 1960s, needy households that required food assistance were given U.S. Department of Agriculture commodities. In the 1970s, however, the Food Stamp Program--which gave recipients more flexibility in meeting their nutritional needs--replaced the distribution of USDA commodities to needy households. Since that time the Food Stamp Program has remained the government's primary food assistance program for needy households.

However, beginning July 1, 1995, an excess of Section 110 commodities is unlikely because food banks, who are eligible for these commodities but have never before applied for them, are now filing applications.

Federal regulations specify the distribution priorities for Section 110 commodities as follows:

Priority 1: to soup kitchens and like organizations that prepare meals for homeless persons and to food banks for distribution to such organizations.

Priority 2: to food banks for distribution to institutions that exclusively serve the needy. When such institutions distribute commodities to individuals for home consumption, the individual's eligibility must be determined by using a needs-based test and,

Priority 3: to food banks for distribution to institutions serving predominately needy persons but do not employ a needs-based test.

EXCEPTION: USDA has identified circumstances under which TDHS may offer Priority 2 Section 110 Commodities to Food Pantries, which include TEFAP Contractors. Distribution is allowed for a particular area of the state, if food banks: (1) serve the area but do not participate in distributing soup kitchen commodities or lack sufficient capacity to handle the full volume of commodities OR (2) do not serve that particular area.

In perhaps the most sweeping alternative, the General Accounting Office (GAO) proposed pooling the $133 million currently used to purchase commodities for three of the Department of Agriculture's programs: The Emergency Food Assistance Program (TEFAP), the Commodity Supplemental Food Program (CSFP), and the Soup Kitchen/Food Bank Program. This arrangement--similar to that proposed in the House legislation--would allow for more equal distribution of funds among the states, and offer states administrative savings and more flexibility to target their resources, said the GAO. "For example," said the report, "if states believed that homeless people needed more food assistance than other low-income individuals, more of their allocation could be targeted toward this population."

But the agency cautioned that the merger could result in current recipients losing some of their existing benefits. But as of this date no permanent decision has been made.

Economic injury disaster loans available from SBA

Businesses in Cottle, Foard, Hardeman, King, and Knox Counties have until June 26, 1995 to file applications for low-interest disaster loans from the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA). The SBA's Economic Injury Disaster Loans are available for businesses dependent on farmers and ranchers sustaining crop losses from high winds, hail and rain which occurred August 17, 1994. Farmers and ranchers are not eligible for these SBA loans. Applications and further information can be obtained by calling the SBA toll-free at 10-800-366-6303 or TDD 817-267-4688 for the hearing impaired.

These loans are intended to assist businesses in offsetting working capital losses which they suffered as a result of the high winds, hail and rain reducing the crop income of the area farmers and ranchers. Small businesses claiming to have been physically injured by the weather are not eligible.

Save time at Social Security --make an appointment

With today's hectic lifestyles, it seems everyone is in a hurry. Whether visiting a doctor or conducting personal matters, people don't want to sit and wait.

"We understand that you don't have a lot of time to take care of your Social Security business," reports Patty Brandt, Resident Representative in the Vernon office. "That's why we ask you to call and make an appointment so you will be waited on within 10 minutes of your scheduled time."

Mrs. Brandt said to make an appointment, call Social Security's toll-free number, 1-800-772-1213. An SSA representative will ask you a few questions. Depending on the reason for your call, the representative may be able to take care of your business immediately and save you a trip. For example, you can change your address or sign up for direct deposit by telephone.

"If you still need an appointment, the representative will ask for your name, Social Security number, address, telephone number and other basic information we need to prepare for your appointment," Mrs. Brandt said.

You can choose an appointment by telephone or in person at the Social Security office or a contact station. The SSA representative will help you select a convenient date and time.

"If you make an appointment to file a claim for benefits at least seven days in advance, we will send you a confirmation letter," Mrs. Brandt stated. "The letter will include the time of your appointment and list the documents you will need to bring with you, such as a birth certificate or marriage license."

"If you selected a telephone appointment, you can mail the necessary documents to us when you return your application. We'll return the documents as soon as we finish reviewing them."

Couple exchange vows on June 3

Nicole Rowland of San Angelo and Jonathan Jary Ament of Denver, Colorado, were married June 3, 1995, at the First Christian Church in San Angelo. Chris Wilson, pastor of Ridgley Christian Church in Fort Worth, officiated. The parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Rowland of San Angelo and the late Dean Partridge. The grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Partridge and great-grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Partridge of Munday. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Don Ament of Iliff, Colorado. The evening ceremony was held in the candlelight setting decorated with tall bouquets of white daisies, white gladiolas and deep pink star gazer lilies atop the Grecian pillars. The focal point held the couple's unity candles. Brass candelabras adorned with ivy were in the background.

The bride wore an off-the-shoulder Galina gown of white raw silk over an off white liner. White lace and pearls covered the bodice. The maid of honor and bridesmaids wore identical two piece rolled collared off-the-shoulder magenta jacketed dresses with straight long-line ankle length skirts. ## The Christian Life

Jeff Christian - Minister Munday Church of Christ

Last week, President Clinton vetoed his first bill. It is the one opportunity the President of the United States has to show that he can overrule the wishes of congressional legislation. Of course, if the Congress and Senate can pull together enough votes, they too can overrule the President. Therefore, this analogy will not hold on every term, but hopefully the point will still carry across.

Sometimes in our lives (or should we say, "Most of the Time?"), we decide that we know what is best for us. We make decisions which we feel will benefit us and our families. Whether it deals with where we live or how we live, we seem to believe that most of us are in control of our lives. This is where the veto comes in to play.

Sometimes God has plans that do not match our plans. We might think that we have learned over the years, sometimes a veto is thrown our way, letting us know that in the long run, God knows what is best. This is not to say that the President of the United States knows what is best all the time. This is where the analogy fails. In fact, this has nothing to do with the President at all to be quite honest. Rather, it is merely an observation to say one simple truth: God is in charge.

"On A Wizer Note"

By Paul Weiser, Knox County Extension Agent - Agriculture

With summer coming on strong many homeowners are working hard at manicuring that perfect lawn. The recent wet weather, along with some warm days is an ideal way for fungal diseases to grow and begin their destruction of a lawn.

There are three categories of turfgrass diseases: those that attack roots and stolons, those that attack roots and leaves, and those that attack only foliage.

Diseases that attack roots and stolons include: Take-All Patch, and Spring Dead Spot. Root and foliage diseases are Helminthosporium and Pythium Blight. And finally, foliar diseases include: Brown Patch, Gray Leaf Spot, Dollars Spot, Head Smut, Fairy Rings, Slime and Mold and St. Augustine Decline.

Take-All Patch and Spring Dead Spot are very similar. They both attack roots and stolons of turfgrass. Because these diseases destroy the root system the turf will die. In Take-All Patch the disease can spread and wipe out an entire lawn. This disease is most often noticed under drought conditions and during growth spurts from fertilizing. This is because the root system has been damaged and cannot take up the amount of water and nutrients required by the plant.

Spring Dead Spot is most often noticed during spring green-up. As the season progresses, weeds and stolons from healthy plants will move into the diseased area and soon the spot will not be noticeable.

Both of these diseases can be found in Bermuda grass. Take-All Patch has also been found in St. Augustine and Zoysia Grass.

The most common lawn diseases in the Rolling Plains are the foliar diseases. These diseases generally do not kill a lawn but rather just affect it's overall appearance.

Brown patch will form in circular patterns on the lawn. Sometimes these patches will grow together and form an odd shaped diseased area. The infected turf will recover during the summer when the fungus is not active.

Gray leaf spot is very common in St. Augustine that is over managed by excessive water and fertilizer. The opposite is Dollar Spot which is noticed in nitrogen deficient lawns. In closely mown lawns the infected area is about the size of a silver dollar. On higher cut lawns, spots are larger and not as circular.

It is very common to look into a field or lawn of Bermuda Grass and see some seed heads that are a gray to black color. This is called head smut. This disease will do no harm and can be reduced by proper mowing, watering and fertilization practices.

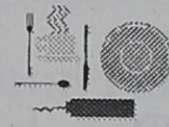

Slime molds are also very common. They grow on dead organic matter and will not affect growing tissue. If on turfgrass, brush off with a rake or broom or wash off using pressured water.

St. Augustine Decline is one of the most misdiagnosed diseases in turfgrass. This disease will turn the leaves yellow with a mottled appearance on the leaf blade. Nutrient deficiencies will also turn turfgrass yellow. Many times the nutrient deficiency will have a striped look and not mottled.

Most of these diseases - all but SAD - are fungal diseases. They can be treated with fungicides. However, treatments made as a precautionary measure are much more significant and do a better job than treatments made once the disease has begun its destruction.

Once a disease is noticed, the best measure is to administer some type of treatment -- whether cultural or chemical -- and then take precautionary steps next year. However, identifying the disease is very critical to both prevention and treatments.

If there are any questions, or if more information is needed on any lawn disease please contact Paul Weiser in the Knox County Extension office in Benjamin at (817) 454-2651.

Financial Focus

by Gary Decker

Support IRA expansion

Most Americans worry about how they will afford to retire, yet few actually do much about it. That was the conclusion of a recent poll commissioned by the International Association of Financial Planners.

More than 1,100 wage-earners over age 18 with annual incomes between $35,000 and $45,000 were surveyed. Although 71 percent of the respondents expected their incomes to rise in the future, 59 percent were still concerned about running out of money during retirement. One reason for their concern is that 83 percent of the people surveyed plan to retire before age 65. People retiring earlier and living longer means more dollars are needed for their retirement years.

The statistics are even more alarming for women. Women outlive men by an average of seven years, yet another study found that greater than 25 percent of women have never consulted a financial professional regarding retirement.

Perhaps one reason for Americans' lack of savings is the unavailability of IRA deductions. Before 1986, any wage-earner could contribute up to $2,000 to an IRA each year and deduct the contribution from taxes. The Tax Reform Act of 1986, however, restricted the full deduction for those covered by other retirement plans to couples earning $40,000 or less and to individuals earning $25,000 or less.

The effect of this limitation was immediate and dramatic. In 1986, the last year of universal deductibility, IRAs accounted for about $38 billion in savings. The following year, contributions dropped to about $14 billion.

In the meantime, people are living longer, employers are finding it more difficult to provide retirement plans, and Social Security is dwindling. Now more than ever, it's vital for Americans to take responsibility for their own retirement -- yet the incentive to do so has been greatly reduced for many.

Fortunately, some of our legislators are beginning to understand this problem. In fact, Congress is considering several proposals regarding IRAs and expanded savings incentives:

*The Republicans' Contract with America proposes the establishment of American Dream Savings Accounts, which are similar to IRAs but provide alternative benefits such as penalty-free withdrawals for first-time home purchases. No up-front deduction is allowed, but tax-free withdrawals could be made after five years.

*President Clinton has proposed expanding IRA deductibility above the current limits.

*Senators William Roth and John Breaux have introduced legislation to restore the universal availability of a fully deductible IRA.

Restoring the full IRA deductibility will not only bring tax relief today, it will be good for Americans -- as well as the economy as a whole -- tomorrow. If you think the IRA should be expanded to meet the needs of all Americans, let your congressmen know today.

CCCS names top ten solutions for debt

Living paycheck to paycheck has become a way of life for many families, meaning many are not saving to repay debt. Consumer Credit Counseling Service has compiled a list of ten steps to help consumers develop spending and savings plans and regain control of their financial future.

Saving money is the key to being prepared for future financial obligations, according to Marianne Gray, Executive director,

Consumer Credit Counseling Service of Greater Fort Worth. "Many people we counsel are getting by just living from paycheck to paycheck," she said. "Consumers should have a repayment plan to handle current debt as well as a savings plan for future expenses including college education for children, retirement, emergency expenses and possible medical expenses."

Consumers should start by asking a few questions: How would I handle a large, unexpected expense? How long could I stay afloat if I lost my job or had my hours cut back? Will I be able to retire comfortably or educate my kids? How much do I have in savings or investments.

If you don't like your answers, consider the following as a means of controlling your financial future:

*Carefully track your current expenses and trim where possible. List your monthly expenses. Try cutting back on things such as entertainment, dining out and non-essential clothing.

*Set financial goals. Prepare for future investments including college educations, retirement plans, mortgages and related expenses.

*Prepare a written spending plan. Most consumers find it easy to create a budget but hard to stick to it. Writing a detailed plan and keeping it readily available will help keep it in mind more frequently.

*Plan for periodic or unexpected expenses. When creating a budget, keep in mind expenses that could occur such as a job lay-off, medical emergencies, and maintenance on cars or major appliances.

*Begin a savings plan. Make it a priority to contribute to a savings account or investments. Take advantage of employer-sponsored plans. Even the smallest deposit can add up to a sizable amount if done consistently.

*Develop an effective bill paying system. Keep track of how your money will be distributed, budgeting for fixed and variable expenses. And when you use credit to pay for an item, write down the amount and subtract it from your funds to ensure you can pay the amount at the end of the month.

*Monitor debt load and reduce where possible. Keep strict records on your debt repayment system and pay more than the minimum amount due when possible.

*Obtain credit reports and correct or explain if necessary. Several credit reporting agencies offer free credit reports. Study and understand your report. Call and explain if there is a problem or an inaccuracy on the report.

*Maintain control of your personal finances. Handle your finances with a serious effort. Dedicate time each week to develop and improve your financial situation.

*Use helpful resources for problem solving. Consumer Credit Counseling Service can offer the necessary resources to help individuals and families develop a workable budget and spending plan. A nonprofit organization, CCCS provides professional counseling and financial guidance to consumers through one-on-one budget counseling sessions, educational workshops and debt repayments plans.

Headquartered in Fort Worth, CCCS also has branch offices in Abilene, Grapevine, Killeen, Lubbock, Midland, Odessa, San Angelo, Temple, Waco and throughout the greater Fort Worth area. CCCS also has satellite offices in Azle, Big Spring, Cleburne, Lampasas, Mansfield, Stephenville, Weatherford, Fort Stockton, Plainview, Granbury, Brownwood, Hillsboro, Mexia, Sweetwater, Sonora, Burleson, Gatesville, Lamesa, Levelland and in Hobbs, New Mexico.

To schedule an appointment for counseling, consumers can call toll-free throughout Texas, 1-800-374-2227.

CAPITOL COMMENT

U.S. SENATOR
KAY BAILEY HUTCHISON

Justice Delayed Has Been Justice Denied

How long should the victims of crime have to wait for justice? In February of this year, Samuel Hawkins was executed at the Texas State Penitentiary at Huntsville for the rape and murder of a Abbe Hamilton, of Borger, a woman who was six months pregnant at the time she was attacked.

Had her child survived, it would have been nearly 20 years old at the time of Hawkins' death. His execution followed 19 years of litigation over two separate capital convictions, one for the murder of Hamilton and a second for the rape and murder of a 12-year-old girl. The victims' families in these cases were forced to relive their horror on the innumerable occasions when Hawkins' death sentence was postponed by seemingly endless litigation.

While there was never any doubt of Hawkins' guilt, he nevertheless managed to delay justice by manipulating the post-conviction review process, using (and many would argue abusing) federal habeas corpus procedures. But on June 7, the U.S. Senate passed an anti-terrorism bill which would end the unjust lapses of time between capital crimes and capital punishment.

The writ of habeas corpus, which dates back to the English Magna Carta of 1215, serves as a way for U.S. federal judges to determine whether a defendant has been wrongly imprisoned. Prisoners can apply for a writ of habeas corpus on the ground that their conviction was unconstitutional. Those subject to state courts — where the vast majority of murders are prosecuted — may seek the writ only after they have exhausted all appeals under state law. Defendants have been able to apply for a nearly unlimited number of writs in consecutive order, delaying the execution of their sentences indefinitely.

The bill which the Senate approved last week would limit most death row inmates to one appeal filed within one year under time limits that would conclude most cases within two years of sentencing. A second appeal would be allowed only under narrow circumstances, including new, "clear and convincing" evidence that could not have been discovered during the first trial.

In Texas, for the 92 cases in which the death sentence was carried out, the average time between the jury's assessment of the sentence and its imposition has been more than eight years. But as of last March, there were 156 inmates on Texas' death row who had been there significantly longer than that.

I supported the anti-terrorism bill, and in particular, its change of habeas corpus rules. This is a timely reform. It will apply to prosecutions brought against anyone indicted in the Oklahoma City bombing. Under the old rules, a generation might pass before justice is served.

Americans want their judicial system to be fair and even-handed. But they also have a right to expect it to provide justice swiftly and surely. As Judge Learned Hand wrote in 1923, "Our dangers do not lie in too little tenderness to the accused. Our procedure has been always haunted by the ghost of the innocent man convicted. It is an unreal dream. What we need to fear is the ... formalism and watery sentiment that obstructs, delays and defeats the prosecution of crime."

Concealed handgun law to go into effect September 1

Texans interested in obtaining a license to carry a concealed handgun will be able to start the required firearms training program as soon as the law goes into effect on September 1, DPS Director James R. Wilson said.

"We have an internal task force up and running to do what needs to be done to make this new law work," Wilson said. "We anticipate that we will start training firearms instructors this summer and our goal is to have these instructors licensed and able to start training interested citizens after September 1."

Wilson said the Department is currently developing forms, procedures, and rules in order to begin accepting applications for concealed handgun licenses on September 1.

"Texans need to remember that the current weapons laws remain in effect until January 1, 1996," Wilson said.

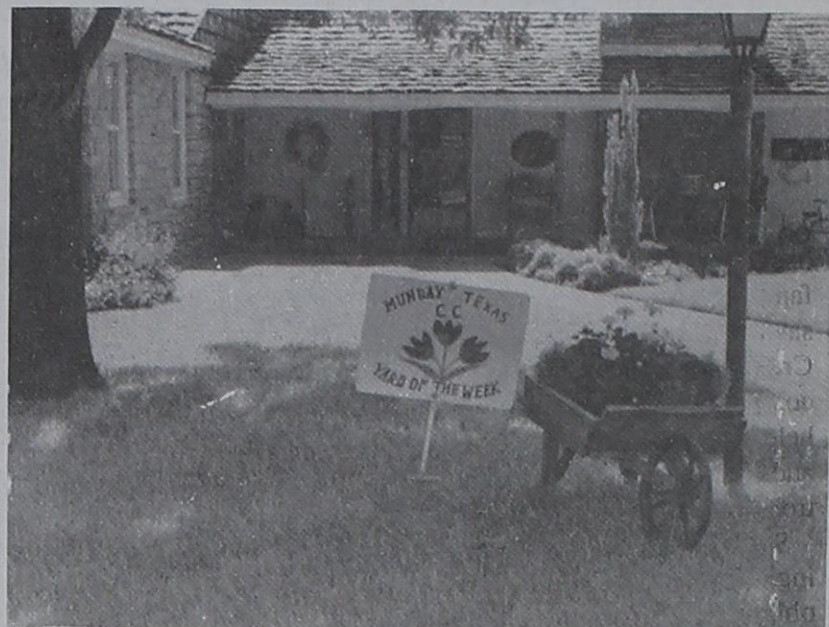

"In the meantime, we ask the public's patience as we get this program set up," Wilson said. "We will make an announcement to the public when our training classes have been set, with instructions on how to enroll. But the Department is not currently accepting fees or application requests for instructors or licenses."

The Director cautioned that no firearms instructors or training facilities have been approved by the Department at this time. "When instructors and training facilities have been approved, this information will be released to the public."

We will be issuing periodic updates to keep the public informed of policies and procedures as they are developed."

When application request cards for licenses are available, which is expected to be mid-August, they will be distributed to all areas of the state, Wilson said. Applicants who meet the basic qualifications will be able to submit these request forms to the DPS at that time.

"A complete application packet will be furnished to those who request it," Wilson said. "That application, with required forms and fees, may be submitted to the Department after September 1. The validity of the information provided in the application will be verified by a background investigation conducted by the Department."

The Director also stressed that under the new concealed handgun law, a private or public employer has the right to prohibit those with concealed handgun licenses from carrying a concealed weapon on the premises of the business. ***

Haskell and Throckmorton. Various individuals have indicated that Taylor county is receiving more commodities than the six counties served by the ASBDC. This is true. The reason being, Abilene has a Food Pantry. Unfortunately, the ASBDC is not equipped to maintain a Food Pantry. The ASBDC has neither the resources nor the funds to handle or distribute Food Pantry Items.

Due to the above explanation and also the insufficient amount of foods available at this time, the scheduled distribution will be postponed until the week of July 10 thru July 14, 1995. Check your local newspaper for additional information concerning times and dates.

Nutrition and Cancer-Prevention

The fact that absence of certain essential nutrients creates a predisposition to illness has been known for a long time. However, less understood has been the components of diet which are important in preventing chronic disease such as cancer.

The National Cancer Institute (NCI) is studying if certain "designer" foods high in ingredients naturally high in cancer preventing substances can actually affect the relationship between cancer and diet. Diets high in fat appear to be connected to cancers of breast, pancreas and colon/rectum.

Heavy alcohol consumption has been linked to higher incidence of cancers of the upper digestive tract and liver. These studies have also shown that fiber, vitamins A, C, and E, as well as many other substances also seem to have cancer-preventing properties.

Over the past decade more than 40 foods -- mainly vegetables, grains, and fruits containing biologically-active phytochemicals-- have been identified as having cancer preventive properties. Phytochemicals can interfere with and potentially block the biochemical pathways that lead to malignancy in animals. Phytochemicals can affect metabolic pathways associated with development of cancer by affecting the initiation and tumor-promotion phases.

The six foods at the top of this pyramid are at the center of the National Cancer Institute's Experimental Foods Program. On the top level of this triangle are garlic, cabbage, licorice, soybeans, ginger, carrots, celery and parsnips. On the middle levels of the triangle are onions, tea, tumeric, citrus such as orange, lemon, grapefruit, whole wheat, flax, brown rice, tomatoes, eggplant, peppers and cruciferous vegetables (broccoli, cauliflower, and brussels sprouts). On the base level of the triangle are oats, mints, oregano, cucumber, rosemary, sage, potato, thyme, chives, cantaloupe, basil tarragon, barley and berries.

Dietary supplements such as garlic pills do not offer the same benefits as the food counterparts.

So what can you do as a consumer to utilize the results of this research? Start following the U.S. Department of Agriculture Food Guide Pyramid and the American Cancer Association recommendations to increase servings to at least "5 A Day" of vegetables and fruits. Then you will be sure to eat many of the top 40 foods, which have been shown to display those cancer-prevention properties.

In the next few years, consumers will see more and more designer foods that contain even more of these phytochemicals. "Hot Water...Not"

Using hot tap water to prepare baby formula or for any kind of cooking is a no-no. It's often not safe because lead from some household plumbing can get into the hot water. Be safe, always start with cold water and heat it on the stove or in the microwave.
