Leonard Phipps, Com. Prect. 1; Jerry Parker, Com. Prect. 2; Philip Homer, Com. Prect. 3; Johnny Birkenfeld, Com. Prect. 4; and Judge David N. Perdue, presiding.

Judge Perdue moved to recess this workshop session subject to his call. Second was made by Jerry Parker. All voted in favor.

March 10, 1995

The Knox County Commissioners Court was called back from recess of the March 6, 1995 workshop on Friday, March 10, 1995 at 9:30 a.m. All members of the Court were present with Judge David N. Perdue presiding.

The Court reviewed the new completed proposals. After discussion of the various plans Judge Perdue suggested further information could be obtained from the Texas Association of Counties by making a request under 262.030, Chapter 262 of the Local Government Code. Since the Texas Association of Counties is our present carrier and has been for at least eight years, we could request of them to seek a program at the lowest possible rate with a good level of benefits for all employees.

Jerry Parker moved that Judge Perdue notify the Texas Association of Counties of our request as described. Johnny Birkenfeld seconded the motion. All voted in favor.

Philip Homer moved to adjourn the special called workshop session. Leonard Phipps seconded the motion. All voted in favor.

The Knox County Commissioners Court met in regular session on March 13, 1995, in the District Courtroom in the Knox County Courthouse with the following members present, to wit:

Minutes of the February 13, 1995, meetings were presented to the Court. Leonard Phipps made a motion to approve the minutes. Philip Homer seconded the motion. All voted in favor.

Johnny Birkenfeld reported that no funds were available through RC & D at this time. RC & D did send a list of other grants that were available to the counties. Judge Perdue will check to see if the county is eligible for any of the grants.

Judge Perdue talked to the Court about the status of the Texas Department of Transportation Grant. The update on the status was for information only and no action needed.

The Court discussed the matter of appointing an Investment Officer. Leonard Phipps made a motion that Judie Whitten and Judge Perdue be appointed to the position. Johnny Birkenfeld seconded the motion. All voted in favor.

The appointment of a Records Management Officer was discussed by the Court. Leonard Phipps made a motion to appoint Danny Speck to the position. Jerry Parker seconded the motion. All voted in favor.

Judge Perdue talked about the status for some of the bills that could affect the counties. These bills have been filed to be presented to the legislature this session. No action needed.

Pathways

by Randy White, Pastor First Baptist Church

Almost two thousand years ago this week the world was changed. A Jewish carpenter's Son with the common name Jesus had become the leader of a new religious movement. Though he had performed the most convincing of miracles and taught the most convicting lessons of life, and though he had gathered around Him a large following of loyal disciples, His life ended this Passover week on a cruel executioners cross.

The problem was that Jesus was simply too much of a challenge. He challenged the religion of the day which said that if only you will act good and live according to certain regulations, you will be right with God. He challenged the religious leaders who had made faith a complicated matter and had become an elite group of religious bureaucrats--a group of mechanical and unimaginative leaders insisting on proper form and petty rules rather than a pure heart and a clean life. He challenged individual's personal lives when He taught them "YOU must be born again."

Too many people simply couldn't handle the challenges they were confronted with when they faced Jesus. He upset their life and their social and religious systems. Rather than face the challenge from the Son of God, they had Him killed on a cross.

They thought they could do away with Him. They couldn't. Death couldn't hold Him. Satan and his demons could not win the battle. Three days after His death, He was alive again, this time forever.

He still challenges today. He challenges religion and society--and He challenges individuals. "YOU must be born again."

How do you respond to the challenges of Jesus? ***

Financial Focus

Global investing vs. international investing

You've probably seen the TV commercials showing express-mail delivery to ranchers in the Australian outback, or urban-clad businessmen discussing computers in the mountains of Tibet.

The world is getting smaller. Advances in technology and communications, combined with the growing economies of more and more nations, are enabling an increasing number of companies to do business throughout the world.

Investors are benefiting from this trend: Today, they can choose from an ever-growing array of international and global investments. With this type of investing, it's vital to fully understand what you're buying. One of the first things to know about "global" or "international" investing is that even though these terms are used interchangeably, they actually have different meanings.

Global investments are companies domiciled or doing business in foreign countries and the United States. A global mutual fund will buy shares of companies anywhere in the world. International investments, on the other hand, are companies that are domiciled strictly in foreign countries.

In most cases, where a company is headquartered makes the difference. For example, Procter & Gamble, which is headquartered in the United States and distributes its products worldwide, is considered a global investment. However, if you buy the common stock of a Japanese company headquartered in Tokyo, you are an international investor, because the company is domiciled in a foreign country.

This may appear to be nothing more than semantics, but international and global investments can offer different levels of risk and reward.

You may be a global investor if you invest in a company that has sales in a foreign country or a mutual fund that buys shares of such companies. Numerous American corporations—many of them large and well-known—derive substantial income from foreign sales. U.S. companies regularly expand into other countries not only through sales but also by capital investments such as factories. Companies such as Gillette, McDonald's and Coca-Cola earn significant revenue outside the United States.

Investors willing to assume a little more risk can invest internationally by purchasing mutual funds that invest in foreign-headquartered companies. This offers the opportunities of foreign investing combined with the protection of diversification.

International investing also can be done by buying individual shares of foreign companies. The simplest way to do this is to purchase American Depository Receipts (ADRs), which are negotiable securities traded just like common stock on U.S. securities exchanges. They are issued by U.S. depository banks that handle all administration, pay dividends in U.S. dollars after deducting applicable taxes, and provide all statements and reports. More than 900 ADRs are available to U.S. investors. Many of the ADRs that trade on the New York Stock Exchange are well-known companies.

However, individual international stocks—even through ADRs—carry more risk than U.S.-based companies. Currency fluctuations can have a significant impact as evidenced by stocks that were subject to the sudden and drastic devaluation of the Mexican peso earlier this year. Consult a financial professional for assistance with global and international investments, especially ADRs.

More and more investors are taking advantage of today's worldwide markets. If you want to be a part of this trend, be sure to understand the differences between international and global investing—and the risks and rewards of each—before you invest.

Last week, my column had to deal with one side of the child abuse problem: the perspective of the parent. However, as we continue through child abuse prevention month, we need to also look at it from another perspective: the child's.

Whether you are four years old, or forty, child abuse usually does not end after you leave home. In fact, parents can continue to verbally abuse their children until the day one of them dies.

If you are a child of abuse, no matter how old you are, you need to realize that your parent(s) were probably programmed to react to you the way they did. More than likely, they too were abused.

I realize that this does not make the pain go away. Nevertheless, abused children need to realize that it is not your fault. It was the fault of many generations of mistakes.

If you still carry the pain of being abused, or if you are making the same mistakes as your parents with your own children, please seek help. There is no reason for something as tragic as child abuse to continue.

Don Whetsell - Pastor
First Methodist Church, Munday - Goree

I had one of those "nightmare" preacher experiences yesterday, the kind that every preacher lives in fear of but knows must happen to him or her sooner or later. It was Palm Sunday as most of you know, and our church, like so many others, has a tradition of recreating on a smaller scale the events that took place as Jesus approached the city of Jerusalem for the final time. The scriptures tell us that as Jesus approached the city riding on a donkey's foal, the people cut down palm branches and covered the road with them and waved them while chanting: "Hosanna! Blessed be the one who comes in the name of the Lord!"

We had planned for the children to line the center aisle waving palm branches and then for the choir to process up through them singing "Hosanna!", leading the whole congregation in a joyous outpouring of praise. There was only one problem. No palm branches.

We couldn't find them anywhere. It was 5 minutes till service and here we were on Palm Sunday with no palm branches. So, I did what any pastor would do when faced with the same difficulty. I went into a room by myself and prayed for 5 minutes straight. And while I was praying, a funny thing happened. It occurred to me that the Sunday we call Palm Sunday really doesn't have much to do with palms.

Just like Easter doesn't have much to do with Easter eggs or Christmas with Christmas trees, so Palm Sunday, just like the other "Holy"-days, is really about Jesus. It's about his life and his impending death. It's about his life after death. And, most of all, it's about the life and light he brings to us in this world of death and darkness.

We had our regular service, without the palms. Afterwards, no one (that I know of) clamored for my head on a platter. Some people even said that they thought this one of the best Palm Sunday services that they had experienced, mainly because of the focus that we took since we didn't have palms to rely on. Something about God being more strongly present in the absence of something else that is expected to be there. As for me, I'm going to personally see to it that we have palm leaves from now on, but I'll never forget the Sunday when God stepped in and filled the hole that people left behind. Maybe that's what Easter is about.

Human conditions are like certain groups of trees that look lovely from a distance; but when you get inside, the beauty disappears; you don't know what happened to it and just stand among the trees. That's why we so often envy another man's situation.

Saving your skin

Your skin is the largest organ of your body, and it deserves more than a little respect. Here are some valuable pointers in keeping your skin vital and healthy:

Skin care

Healthy skin, both young and old, re-moisturizes itself continuously. But dry skin doesn't retain moisture very well, and this inability to retain moisture worsens with age, cold weather, low humidity, and exposure to chemicals.

The answer? Daily application of a long-lasting skin moisturizer that can penetrate the upper layers of the skin.

Try wearing rubber gloves when your hands are in soapy water.

FCE clubs hold annual district meet

Rolling Plains Family and Community Education (FCE) met for their annual District meeting in Childress on Wednesday, April 5. Delegates from twenty-five counties in the Rolling Plains area met in the First United Methodist Church.

Attending from Knox County were: Eileen Rolo, Knox City; Lula Baty, Gilliland; Sheri Baty, Truscott; and Jane Rowan, County Extension Agent for Family and Consumer Sciences.

The program included Martha Crawford, Texas Association for Family and Community Education (TAFCE) President, who brought a message from the TAFCE Board. Also featured were workshops on Wellness for Women and Wildflowers.

Approximately 200 members of the FCE clubs in the Rolling Plains District attended. The purpose of organized FCE clubs is to improve family living, develop leadership skills and to improve human rights. Texas Association for Family and Community Education is a part of the National Association for Family and Community Education, County Women's Council, and the Associated Country Women of the World. They are the largest organization of women in the world.

TAFCE clubs are sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, a part of the Texas A&M University System.

Kevin Kuehler serving aboard USS Underwood

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Kevin D. Kuehler, son of Gerard and Dayle Kuehler of Munday, recently deployed to the Caribbean Island of Grenada aboard the guided missile frigate USS Underwood homeported in Mayport, Florida.

Kuehler and fellow shipmates visited Grenada to participate in the island's 21st anniversary independence day celebration.

During the visit, Sailors from USS Underwood marched side-by-side with Grenada's military members in a parade through the streets of St. George, the island's capital.

Kuehler's ship was in the Caribbean as part of its training program. USS Underwood is designed to combat aircraft, ships and submarines. It can serve as part of an aircraft carrier battle group or independently. Mobile and flexible, Kuehler's ship can move 600 miles a day and is equipped with guns, missiles and torpedoes.

Kuehler's involvement in the deployment is an example of how U. S. Naval forces can serve as part of international coalitions or provide humanitarian assistance, and respond quickly to demonstrate U. S. power and resolve from the sea.

The effects of smoking

A smoker's skin ages and wrinkles prematurely. It is ravaged both from the inside and the outside, because cigarette smoke displaces oxygen in the surrounding air and in the blood that feeds the skin. Skin cells that can't "breathe" eventually die.

If you're like most people, you want to look your best. Practice these skin-savers now and you, too, can join the ranks of those people who never look their age.

New Studies Connect PROWL® Herbicide To Earlier Cotton

DNA herbicide choice has an impact on fruit set.

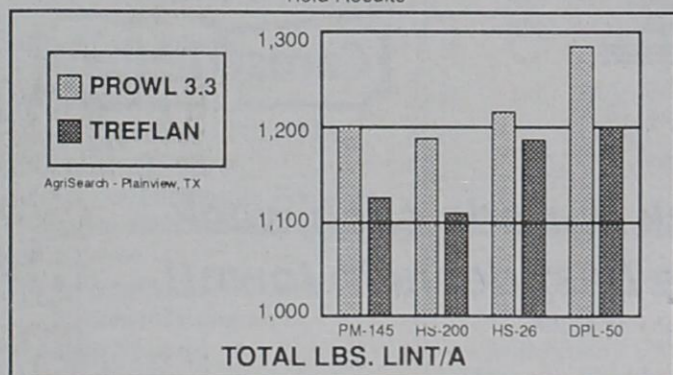

Recent studies in Texas show that the use of a PPI (pre-plant incorporated) herbicide that gives maximum early-season weed control with few adverse effects on cotton roots (root pruning) allows the crop to get off to a faster, more vigorous start. AgriSearch, an independent research and consulting firm near Plainview, Texas, compared the effects of PROWL® herbicide with Treflan¹ on the growth and development of four cotton varieties: HS-26, HS-200, Paymaster 145 and DPL-50.

Late-season mapping by AgriSearch revealed that cotton treated with PROWL had a higher percentage of open bolls (that is, fewer immature bolls at the first and second fruiting positions) when compared with plots treated with Treflan. This observation indicates the value of "earliness" in cotton management, in terms of crop maturity.

"In fact, it was evident that plants in the plots treated with Treflan matured more slowly than those in the plots treated with PROWL," reported AgriSearch. The accompanying graph shows the differences observed, as an average across the four varieties grown:

COTTON VARIETY STUDY

PPI Herbicide Evaluation
Yield Results

EARLY CONTROL = HIGHER YIELDS

Use of PROWL resulted in higher lint yields for all four cotton varieties studied, as compared with Treflan. Yields in plots treated with PROWL herbicide increased 51.5 lbs. of lint per acre over Treflan in the HS-26 variety and 68.5 lbs. per acre over Treflan in the DPL-

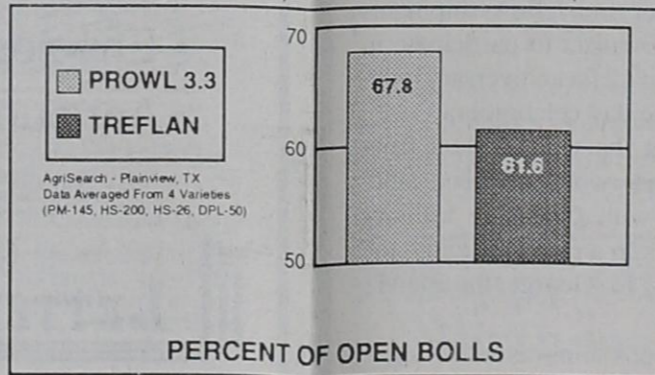

50 variety. In the plots treated with PROWL, the average yield increase for the four cotton varieties was 58 lbs. of lint per acre.

Lint percentages also were higher in three of the four varieties treated with PROWL. According to AgriSearch, "the tendency of turnout to be slightly higher in the plots treated with PROWL indicates there were fewer unopened bolls at harvest than in the Treflan plots. Cotton was more mature at harvest in the plots treated with PROWL."

The Texas results are supported by University of Arkansas trials. Over an eight-year span, at four different experiment stations, Arkansas researchers compared PROWL herbicide and Treflan on cotton.

Weed control effectiveness was virtually the same for both herbicides in the Arkansas trials, on both grasses and broadleaf weeds. PROWL controlled 95% of grasses, and 87% of broadleaf weeds in early-season cotton. Treflan controlled 94% of grasses and 86% of broadleaves. Likewise, crop stand (plants per foot of row) was virtually the same for both products.

However, cotton treated with PROWL produced higher yields at three of the four locations. Overall, cotton treated with PROWL yielded about 53 lbs. per acre over plots treated with Treflan, on the average.

USING THE RIGHT TOOLS

Weed control should be viewed as one element in the total context of crop management. A producer's priority is to grow the crop, not the weeds. But an overall management strategy that keeps cotton healthy and growing strengthens the plant's ability to compete.

Cotton is least competitive with weeds early in the season. This also is when herbicide options are most limited. For several years, soil-applied DNA (Dinitroaniline) products have been the first line of defense against early weeds. The two major DNA herbicides - PROWL and Treflan - have similar modes of action, and are equally effective in controlling early grass and broadleaf weeds. Both must be applied in the soil, in the weed root zone. There, when weed seeds come in contact with the herbicide, the products move into the plant and curtail growth by disrupting cell division.

However, as the Texas trials by AgriSearch show, PROWL herbicide exhibits less damage to the cotton plant itself, through the phenomenon called "root pruning."

A struggling cotton seedling needs all the help it can get, and anything that interrupts the plant's ability to take in nutrients and water (as well as soil-applied systemic insecticides) hampers early-season growth. As shown by studies in Texas, Arkansas and elsewhere, the results can be later crop maturity and less total yield. What happens on the front end of a cotton crop has a direct bearing on what goes to the gin on the harvest end.

Anything that hampers a cotton plant's vigorous growth during that critical early-season stage may show up in the form of delayed maturity and reduced yields. A producer needs an overall management strategy that gives cotton a running start on the season.

That means choosing the right tools for the right job - and at the right time. Because time is a critical element when you're trying to make a perennial plant behave like an annual crop.

Could It Happen In YOUR Home?

Accidental Poisoning is one of the most common accidents in the home, and usually involves a youngster.

Do you know what to do when you suspect an accidental poisoning?

- If the victim is conscious, ask what was swallowed.
- Call an ambulance immediately.
- Look around for empty pill bottles, paint cans, cleaning solution jars.

IT IS VERY IMPORTANT TO TELL EMERGENCY PERSONNEL WHAT THE SUSPECTED POISON IS!

- Place the victim on his or her stomach, with head to the side, and knee drawn up.
- If the victim is not breathing, begin artificial respiration. Place your mouth over the victim's nose (to avoid possible contact with the poison) and breathe in.

DURING NATIONAL POISON PREVENTION WEEK, remember that preventing accidental poisoning is the best prevention. Check your home for low cabinets where inquisitive toddlers might find poisonous substances, such as cleaning solutions. Read labels, and keep all poisons out of the reach of children.

The worker Protection Standard (WPS) is causing many questions. Do you know when or if a worker/handler can enter a field before the restricted entry interval (REI) has expired? If someone may, what precautions are required?

The best was to answer these questions, or any others about the Worker Protection Standard is to get a copy of the "How to Comply" manual. This book is full of answers.

There are two exceptions to the REI: (1) Early entry with no contact and (2) early entry with contact for short term, emergency or specially excepted tasks. One may also have an early entry to perform handling tasks -- such as crop advisor. In order to do this, the person or persons, must be trained and equipped as pesticide handlers and receive all other applicable WPS handler protection.

No-Contact Early Entry - "If workers will have no contact with anything that has been treated with the pesticide to which the restricted-entry interval applies, you may permit them to enter pesticide-treated areas when the application is finished."

Before early-entry, be sure that all WPS ventilation criteria are met and that inhalation exposure levels are carefully watched. Once these requirements are met workers may enter the field early if they will not touch or be touched by any pesticide residues. This includes on plants (including weeds), on or in the soil, in water (irrigation water, drainage ditches, puddles, etc.) or in the air (if pesticide remains suspended after application -- fumigation, smoke, mist, fog or aerosol application).

Here are some examples where contact would not be expected after sprays, dusts and vapors have settled out of the air:

*The worker is wearing footwear and walking in a pathway where plants or treated surfaces cannot brush against the worker and cannot drop or drip pesticides onto the worker.

*The worker is in an open-cab vehicle where plants cannot brush against the worker and cannot drop or drip pesticide onto the worker.

*After a pesticide application that is incorporated or injected into the soil, the worker is doing tasks that do not involve touching or disrupting the soil surface.

*The worker is in an enclosed cab on a truck, tractor or other vehicle. If the worker must leave this cab for some reason this changes to restrictions under early-entry with contact.

Early-entry contact workers have special requirements that non-contact workers do not have. One requirement is the protection required by the pesticide labeling for early-entry tasks. Other requirements include: training and instructions, decontamination site, and personal protective equipment.

There are also protections to be followed for early-entry workers that are the same for other workers. These are: central location information, emergency assistance, restrictions during applications, and application notices.

WPS is here and it is very real. If there are questions about WPS, do not hesitate in asking. The WPS "How to Comply" manual is a very good resource to have. This manual can answer many of the questions producers have.

For more information, or if there are any questions or concerns please contact Paul Weiser in the Knox County Extension office at (817) 454-2651.

"We found out that electric cooperatives are the best kept secret in the country... or the city, for that matter."

"Building your own home is a big step—and naturally, my husband and I were a little worried about moving out of town. Our builder told us that in this area, we would be members of an electric cooperative that offers rates, service and reliability second to none.

Anytime you build your own home, it's a challenge. We were amazed at how responsive the cooperative representative was in helping us design an energy-efficient home, complete with a heat pump.

I never thought I'd hear myself say it, but getting our power from the electric cooperative has been one of the most positive things about our move. I'd recommend the cooperative to anyone."
