Truscott-Gilliland News

By Mrs. Clara Brown

Harry Traweck of Crowell passed away last week. He had been out to his farm on Antelope Flat and apparently had a heart attack on the way back home, on that winding dirt road from the flat to Foard City. Harry lost a leg and an eye in World War II, but it hardly slowed him down in his farming and ranching activities. He survived recent serious medical problems and made it home to Crowell and his land. He was still tending to things to the end, the way he surely wanted.

Last Tuesday afternoon, February 28, Mary Jean Davis Williams of Wichita Falls was buried at Gilliland. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Doyal E. Davis of Wichita Falls. She was born in Wichita Falls November 16, 1954. She graduated from Rider High School in 1973, and married Mark Williams on June 15, 1973.

Survivors include her husband; her parents; two sons, Matthew and Dwight, both of Wichita Falls; and three sisters, Pam Long of Wichita Falls, Judy Thompson of Vernon, and Sandra Wortham of Holliday.

Kay Hayes of Abilene was here over the weekend visiting her mother, Jodie Miller.

The children of Scottie Burgess gave her a birthday party at the center Sunday afternoon. A big crowd of friends and family were there to help her celebrate. Scottie has lived at both Gilliland and Truscott so she drew many well wishers. Her party featured quarter tables centered with candles tied with large metallic gold bows and refreshment tables featuring a silver coffee service and an arrangement of beautiful pink roses on the punch and cake table.

Sherry and Kerry Miller of Merkel spent a few days last week visiting their mother and grandmother, Frances Cook.

Lois Chilcoat of Olney celebrated her 81st birthday Sunday by being taken out to dinner at Seymour by her daughter Jo and Lloyd Heard.

June Looney had no company and went no where, but spent a busy weekend working on local arrangements for the 50th anniversary of the Crowell High School class of 1945. They will celebrate their anniversary year the last weekend of April, during Cynthia Ann Parker days. Bobby Cooper

Creating Schools for the 21st Century...

By Richard Kouri, President
Texas State Teachers Association

THE PROFESSION SPEAKS OUT

Who should govern our schools?

(Part 6 in a series)

There is a growing recognition that something is wrong with the way school governance is organized. Recommendations that school boards focus on policy making and not on micromanagement recently appeared in reports issued by the Twentieth Century Fund/Danforth Foundation and by the Institute for Educational Leadership.

The National Center for Leadership in School Reform proposes electing school board members as a slate whose "platform" is presented to the voters in advance of the election. Luvern Cunningham, Ohio State University, makes an even more radical recommendation that local school boards be replaced with "children's boards". Several states have passed legislation that specifically moves the authority to manage schools from the board to administration.

Almost five years ago, the Texas legislature sent a strong message to local school boards that they should move toward both decentralization and collaboration in their decision-making processes by passing a law calling for site-based decision making.

The law, twice amended since enacted, required district and campus committees to be formed but allowed the local board to determine what authority these committees would have in curriculum, budget, staffing patterns, goal setting, and school organization.

Five years have provided local boards ample time to demonstrate good faith in designing their own plans for moving toward district decentralization and collaboration. An analysis of plans filed by local school districts with the Texas Education Agency shows that while some additional authority has accrued to campus administrators, almost no authority has been assigned to school committees composed of parents, teachers and building administrators.

There are two reasons. One is the natural resistance of any institution to change. The other is the influence of state administrator and school board associations who, fearful that their power base would be eroded, have advised local boards to resist.

Among the ways resistance is demonstrated is in local policy which in most school districts limits who can place items on committee agendas, controls the naming of the chairpersons, controls the number of meetings, and makes even the smallest committee decision advisory.

After five years, teachers want, and schools and students need, more from site-based decision making. Teachers, along with parents and community members, are investing long hours on these committees. In five years they have learned how to work in teams and how to analyze data and make good decisions. But they are frustrated that their work is often met with bureaucratic resistance.

There is no reason to believe that, after five years, local school boards will take additional steps toward decentralization and collaboration without a reason similar to the reason that began the process five years ago. Simply put, it is time to review the legislation and expand the authority of the committees.

In addition, "customer satisfaction audits" should be added to the accountability system. These audits would measure whether or not a district is responsive to the needs of parents, students, teachers, and building administrators, at least in the view of those groups. Measuring the opinions of these groups would become part of the accountability system and the results would, in turn, become part of a district's audit. Customer audits which reflect a perception of unresponsiveness would automatically trigger a review of the district's site-based decision making plans with appropriate changes.

Local school boards cannot exempt themselves from the search for better ways to work on behalf of children. School boards must change in two basic ways. They must reach out to other government entities that serve children and work collaboratively with them. And they must share decision making about how best to serve children with teachers, parents, and the community. Time is running out. If school boards fail to do this and do it soon, they will become irrelevant.

Part 7 will look at accountability in the schools.

Beta Chi Chapter meeting held in Haskell, March 6

The Beta Chi Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society International met Sunday afternoon, March 5, at the First Baptist Church in Haskell.

President Vida White called the meeting to order. Kathy Bowen introduced the motivational speaker, Joe Lowe of Munday, who spoke on "What Ever It Takes". Mr. Lowe inspired the group to reach out to the young people that they come in contact with. He related the magnitude that his third grade teacher, Mrs. Cowan of Munday, had on his life not only in education but encouraging him to do his best. He challenged the group of educators to "be someone's Ina Cowan".

President White introduced Alma Grace Richardson of Wichita Falls who is the Area XVI Coordinator. Mrs. Richardson brought greetings from Dr. Dolores Akins, Alpha State President. She reminded the group that the theme for the year is "Journeys for Enlightenment".

Recording secretary Betsy McManamon read the minutes of the last meeting and Margaret Chafin gave a treasurer's report. Names were presented for chapter honorary membership.

The members sang the "Delta Kappa Gamma" song led by Mary Martin. The meeting was adjourned and everyone was served delicious refreshments by hostesses from Haskell, Weinert, and Paint Creek.

The Christian Life

Jeff Christian - Minister Munday Church of Christ

As we grow older, we begin to realize some things. As children, we depended on our parents for everything. As we stumbled into our teenage years, we desperately searched for independence, knowing that we could conquer the world. But as we hastily sprint into the real world, a man named "Humility" comes for a visit.

I remember in high school, most teachers were constantly encouraging the students, congratulating them for their efforts. In college, the professors applauded work well done (although sometimes we did just enough to get by). But as I have rudely discovered in graduate school, even your best work is sent back to be revised.

In our Christian lives, sometimes we want to do just enough to get by. Many people want to know just enough to get them into heaven. "Maybe if I can slide under the pearly gates at just the right moment, I will make it." Unfortunately, this misses the point.

As Christians, we are called to do more than "get by". We are called to push ourselves over and over. And ironically, we are also called to humble ourselves in the sight of the Lord, and He will lift us up. At times, life does not deal us very good hands. At times, we are humbled. But following those times, we are lifted up. We are made stronger.

A healed fractured bone is often times stronger than it was before it was broken.

KNOX KOUNTY KONNECTIONS

By Jane Rowan, County Extension Agent

Teeth are meant to last a lifetime

In 1960, only about 35 percent of people over age 65 retained any of their own teeth. By 1990, that figure had doubled to 60 percent. Thirty years ago, before daily brushing, flossing, regular check-ups, and fluoridated water and toothpaste were used in combination, the average 65-year-old had only about seven of 32 natural teeth; today's 65-year-old has about 18.

Fluoride -- The single most important advance in 20th century dentistry is the use of fluoride in water, toothpaste, and topical medications. Fluoride strengthens teeth and retards decay. It was first added to selected public water supplies in 1945 and to toothpaste in the mid-1950s. When ingested in youth while teeth are forming, fluoride becomes incorporated in the tooth structure, making teeth strong.

Today 94 percent of toothpastes and about 50 percent of the water supply are fluoridated. Water supplied to Goree, Munday, Knox City, and Benjamin by the North Central Texas Municipal Water Authority does have fluoride added. You should know that if you drink bottled or well water, it is not likely to contain enough fluoride to prevent tooth decay.

Spring cleaning is just around the corner

Get a leg up on your spring cleaning! These professional "tricks of the trade" will save you time and trouble next time you tackle major housecleaning projects:

*Load up a cloth utility belt or carpenter's apron - the kind with lots of sturdy pockets - with your cleaning supplies. Wear it as you clean house and you'll have everything you need right at hand.

*Vacuum carpets and rugs first before you dust. After vacuuming, dust is suspended in the air. If you wait for it to settle, your furniture won't have to be dusted twice.

*Leave rubber squeegee in the tub/shower area and wipe down the walls after every shower. This will prevent soap scum build-up and save hours of scrubbing.

*Don't waste time beating pillows to fluff or get the dust out. Just throw them in the dryer on the air-fluff cycle.

*Remove wrinkles from washable curtains without taking them down. Just mist them with a plant sprayer and let dry.

*Isopropyl alcohol is great for cleaning the porcelain surfaces of appliances - it removes fingerprints and smudges, dries quickly and leaves a great shine with no streaks.

*Clean the refrigerator's water and ice dispenser with white vinegar and a soft cloth, then rinse. It removes water spots and works better than scrubbing.

*To clean and deodorize the microwave, stir two tablespoons of lemon juice or baking soda in a bowl of water. Boil on HIGH for five minutes, then remove the bowl and wipe down the interior.

"On A Wizer Note"

By Paul Weiser,
Knox County Extension Agent - Agriculture

The spring stock show season is coming to a close. Several Knox County youth are participating at the San Angelo Stock Show and some will travel to Lubbock later this month for a jackpot pig show. This will mark the end of one season and the beginning of another.

Some families are busy locating show steers for next year. Show lambs will be purchased later this summer and hogs in early fall. Most families, however, are just grateful that the season has ended.

On February 22 a total of twenty-five hogs left Knox County heading for Brenham for the Houston Livestock Show Swine sift. Of these 25, only three made the final cut and earned the right to travel to Houston. These pigs belonged to Ryan Baker-Knox City FFA, Roni Morrow-Knox County 4-H and Keith Myers - Munday FFA. In the steer division only one Knox County animal, Lori Clem's light weight Chianina steer, placed.

Host families sought in Munday area

How would you like to learn all about a foreign country's culture, traditions and lifestyle without ever leaving your own home? Linda Edwards of the Lubbock area, Local Coordinator for the AIFS Foundation's Academic Year in America (AYA) high school exchange program, is presently interviewing families in this part of Texas to host an international student during the 1995/96 school year.

Linda has the applications of several boys and girls, aged 15-18, from Germany, Brazil, Hungary, Poland, Russia, Spain, or any one of 30 countries across the world. All have studied English, have their own spending money and full medical insurance.

Families who host AYA students have the unique opportunity to share their traditions and values with a foreign student, and in exchange learn the language and customs of another country. Interested families are invited to choose the boy or girl who would best fit their lifestyles and interests, and hosting can be for 5 or 10 months. In addition, Host Families are awarded up to $800 in scholarship funds to be used on certain travel/study abroad programs.

Whether you have young children, teenage children or no children, you may qualify as a Host Family if you can provide a bed, a place to study, two meals a day and, most importantly, an open heart. Interested families can find out more about hosting a student by contacting Linda Edwards at (806) 793-6789, or Regional Director Katherine McDonald at 1-800-322-4678 ext. 5423.

Compound your earnings with dividend reinvestment

Albert Einstein once observed that the most powerful force is not atomic energy but the compounding of money. Compounding occurs when investors put the interest and dividends earned on investments back into their investments. This technique allows investments to grow more quickly than if investors were to take their earnings in cash.

Compounding is familiar to many mutual fund shareholders, who often take advantage of a mutual fund service called automatic reinvestment. With this service, the mutual fund uses a fund's dividends and capital gains to purchase more fund shares for the investor's account. In essence, investors begin earning dividends and capital gains on top of dividends and capital gains.

However, many people who own common stocks are unaware that they, too, can put the power of compounding to work through automatic reinvestment. Typically, these investors simply pocket their quarterly dividend checks. What they may not know is that many publicly owned companies offer plans that allow shareholders to reinvest their dividends into additional shares of stock.

These plans are usually easy to join, requiring only the shareholder's approval. Investors typically must own at least one share of a company's stock to participate in dividend reinvestment, and some companies may charge a small fee for this service.

To illustrate how dividend reinvestment works, suppose you are due a $100 dividend on stock that you own. Rather than sending you a check, the company will use your dividend to purchase additional shares. To compute how many shares your dividend can buy, the company uses the average trading price of your stock on the dividend pay date. In this example, assume the average price is 10.1250. With dividend reinvestment, your dividend would be used to add 9.8765 shares to your account ($100 divided by 10.1250). This is all handled automatically by the company.

It's not uncommon for individuals who reinvest dividends for years to accumulate more shares through reinvestment than they originally purchased. Not only is dividend reinvestment a great way to compound your investment, it's also a means of dollar-cost averaging. Put simply, dollar-cost averaging is regularly investing the same amount of money in a stock or mutual fund. In this way, investors continuously build their investment while averaging out the ups and downs in the price of a stock or mutual fund.

If dividend reinvestment interests you, first select a stock that you would like to own for a long time. Make sure the company has a favorable history of dividend payments, and find out if it offers dividend reinvestment. After you've made your purchase, call the company and ask for its dividend reinvestment package. Usually a simple application will start you on your way.

Remember, however, that even though you don't receive your dividends in cash, you still owe income tax on them. Be sure to keep accurate records of dividends reinvested. This will become part of your cost basis and is not taxed if you eventually sell your shares.

Reinvesting your mutual fund and stock earnings: You don't have to be Einstein to see how this basic technique can help compound the value of your financial future.

Munday's sales tax rebate shows slight increase for March

Texas employment has risen by over 331,000 jobs in the last year, to stand at 7.9 million jobs, for another new all-time high," State Comptroller John Sharp said.
"This added employment translates into increased consumer confidence, which has resulted in an 11.8 percent increase in sales tax rebates, as compared to March 1994," Sharp added.
Munday's sales tax rebate was $5,068.43 for the month compared to $5,026.06 for a .86% increase. Knox City received $6,160.86, a 2.70% increase over their check for last year. Munday still is .38% below the first quarter of 1994 and Knox City is 3.93% less than last year-to-date.
Benjamin and Goree did not receive checks this month.

William Gulick, Pioneer Knox who came here before Benjamin was a town, tells experiences

The following story was submitted to The Munday Courier last week by Harold Jones, grandson of William Gulick.
(The Story of William Gulick) by Ross Bates

About 71 or 72 miles southwest of Wichita Falls and about a mile east of Goree on state highway no. 30 there is a concrete bridge across a narrow stream. The highway department has erected a sign at this bridge to inform the traveler that the stream is called Lake Creek. Lake Creek marks the eastern and southern boundary of an unusually fertile prairie. This prairie is thickly settled and supports the towns of Goree, Munday, and Knox City. The Brazos River marks it north and western boundary. In 1932 the part of it lying in Knox County produced 45,000 bales of cotton.

Six miles north of Goree, and two miles west of Lake Creek, and the same distance south of the Brazos River, in a well built and comfortable farm home surrounded by unusually large mesquite trees, lives the man, who, in company with Ham Coltharp, first established a permanent home upon the Knox Prairie. His name is William Gulick. Mr. Gulick's farm contains 640 acres of land that is almost as level as a floor. It is clear of debt and is nearly all in cultivation. In 1932 it produced over 200 bales of cotton besides generous crops of feed.

Mr. Gulick himself is a fine looking man with a large, well formed head that he holds erect above his broad shoulders. He has been during his long life a man of unusual physical and mental powers. Mr. Gulick has had a part in changing the great West from a wilderness to its present state. His life and experience deserve to be recorded as a part of the history of the West and of the nation.

Born in Indiana

"I was born in Elkhart County, Indiana in 1847," said Mr. Gulick. "My mother moved from Indiana to Polk County, Iowa, near Des Moines, in 1853. My mother died when I was 2 years old. My father had married the second time when we moved to Iowa. We moved to Pottawatomie County in western Iowa near the Nebraska line in 1861. We settled near Council Bluffs. Des Moines did not have any railroad when I lived there and houses were very scattering west of Des Moines. The country around Council Bluffs was very thinly settled. In 1862 I drove a wagon from Council Bluffs to Denver. I was hired at $25 per month and the distance was 600 miles to Denver. I drove three yoke of oxen and was three months on the trip. The country we traveled over was open prairie with no lumber except cottonwoods along the streams. There were no settlements and no houses other than stage stations about 16 miles apart.

Buffalo and Indians

"We crossed the Platte River at Camey, and followed the south side of the river to Denver. From Camey for about 400 miles we were never out of sight of buffalo and there were a good many Indians. The Indians were civil and peaceable. These Indians wrapped their dead buffalo hides and fastened them to cottonwood trees, and to poles stretched between two post and did not bury them like white people do. I saw eight corpses fastened to posts and two tied to trees. There were many antelopes, lobo wolves and coyotes.

"In 1863 my father, my half-brother and I went to Colorado and took my father's teams. We stopped in Gilpin County and worked furnishing wood for engines in the gold mines at Central City, about 40 miles west of Denver. Denver, when I first saw it in 1862 had only one street and did not have as large population as Goree has now. It is situated on the Platte River. We remained in Colorado until the fall of 1865 and went back to Polk County, near Des Moines.

"When we left Denver in 1865 to return to Iowa the Indians were on the warpath and we went with a train of about 60 wagons and 100 armed men. We were held in a corral one time for half a day by hostile Indians at Alkali station in Nebraska. One of our party was wounded by the Indians. We shot two Indians off their horses, killing one of them. In 1867 I went back to near Council Bluffs and stayed there until July, 1868. I then went out about 10 miles west where Omaha, Nebraska is now, and took a train to Cheyenne, Wyoming. I went south from Cheyenne, to Boulder City on a wagon and then went on foot to Gilpin County, about 40 miles. I worked in this county until the winter of 1878.

To Texas Frontier

"In January, 1878, I asked an acquaintance where to go in Texas to where the frontier was and he said to go to Graham. I took a wagon and five head of horses, and with a man by the name of Ed Schaeffer to accompany me, started for Texas. I came from Denver to Pueblo and followed a stage line from there in camp Supply. There were 300 soldiers at camp Supply. They were guarding the Indians and riding the line on them, and keeping them from crossing the Red River on the south. Camp Supply is just a few miles from the northeast corner of the Texas Panhandle in what is now Oklahoma. The Indians were as warlike as they dared to be.

Could It Happen In YOUR Home?

Accidental Poisoning is one of the most common accidents in the home, and usually involves a youngster.

Do you know what to do when you suspect an accidental poisoning?

- If the victim is conscious, ask what was swallowed.
- Call an ambulance immediately.
- Look around for empty pill bottles, paint cans, cleaning solution jars.

IT IS VERY IMPORTANT TO TELL EMERGENCY PERSONNEL WHAT THE SUSPECTED POISON IS!

- Place the victim on his or her stomach, with head to the side, and kneel drawn up.
- If the victim is not breathing, begin artificial respiration. Place your mouth over the victim's nose (to avoid possible contact with the poison) and breathe in.

DURING NATIONAL POISON PREVENTION WEEK, remember that preventing accidental poisoning is the best prevention. Check your home for low cabinets where inquisitive toddlers might find poisonous substances, such as cleaning solutions. Read labels, and keep all poisons out of the reach of children.

Pathways

by Randy White, Pastor
First Baptist Church

"You are the light of the world." Those are the Lord's words to Christians. That is an awesome responsibility! It teaches us that we are to live lifestyles that guide others.

A light is used for guidance more than anything else. We turn on a light so we may see our way through a room. We shine a light ahead to see the path. We shine a light from a lighthouse in order to guide ships away from danger.

Christians should live lives that guide other. Is there someone you are guiding? Is there someone who needs your guidance? Surely there is. It may be a child or a spouse or a parent or a friend. It may be the teenager who lives down the street. It may be the elderly person you check in on from time to time. Look for someone whom you can guide!

The person who guides others never leaves this world the same.

One way to really make a difference in this world is to live a lifestyle of guiding others. When we want to guide others, and we then determine to live the kind of life that will be a guide for others, we change our world.

"Lord, place someone in my path whom I can guide. Then give me the wisdom to the style of living which will best guide them to you. As you are my teacher, I will be theirs! Amen."
