by Cynthia White

Have you ever noticed that as men get older they wear their pants higher up on their bodies? My granddad was so old, just before he died he had to unzip his pants just to see out.

wag

I wonder why the man who wasn't good enough to marry your daughter is now the father of the brightest grandkids in the world.

wag

Gramps is so old that his friends in heaven thought he hadn't made it.

I can now empathize with people I used to consider old. Now when I bend over to tie my shoes I look around for something else to do while I'm down there.

A man was driving down the highway at rapid speeds last week. He was going 80 in a 70 mile per hour zone. As you might expect, a state trooper started following him but when the driver saw the trooper in his rearview mirror he pressed the accelerator even harder. He drove at speeds of 90, then 100, and finally 110 before the trooper could stop him.

"O.K., sir, why were you driving so fast," quizzed the trooper.

He replied, "Well, officer, last year my wife ran off with a state trooper and I thought you were bringing her back."

Keep one eye on yesterday, The other one on tomorrow, And you'll be cockeyed today.

You can't cross the river of worries without first crossing the seas of reality.

Be careless in your dress if you must, but keep a tidy soul.

The hits we made yesterday won't win today's game.

Truscott Grandmas end regular Sunday dinners

by Cynthia White

A ten year tradition that pulls many rural Truscott area citizens together has come to a close. The Truscott Grandma's will no longer serve their regularly scheduled Grandma's Sunday Dinners and the sparsely populated community will no longer benefit from not only the good food, "but we will really miss the visiting," according to one Truscott Grandma, Clara Brown.

It was during harvest time approximately ten years ago when several ladies decided to pull together to offer a harvest meal. From those early beginnings the Truscott Grandma's got their start and proudly served up meals to around one hundred people on a monthly basis. The monies collected from the meals went to their favorite charity - the Truscott Community Center.

The Truscott Community Center continues to provide a meeting place for a variety of community get togethers. Senior citizen meals are served there and provided by the Knox County Aging Service, the building is used as a polling place, and when a member of the community passes away it provides a setting for the family to be served prior to and after the services for the deceased. The residents of this tiny hamlet and area farming and ranching residents are appreciative of what the Grandma's have helped accomplish with the community center.

"The Grandma's Sunday Dinners have been a wonderful money maker for the community. We just took our skills and used them the best way we could," says Brown. But time has taken its toll on the Grandma's of Truscott. Some have moved to other, larger communities, soe have gone on to a greater reward and others need a retirement free from the duties of the regular dinners and the chores associated with presenting and serving the scrumptious victuals.

The last regularly scheduled dinner was served on Sunday, March 8 amidst blowing and bone chilling winds, snow and ice.

The Grandma's had prepared what they could the day before, on Saturday, during soggy and unpleasant weather conditions. The day ended with the Grandma's being fully prepared to serve the next days feast. However, they did not expect to find a snow covered world on Sunday morning with icy roads connecting the way to Truscott from the other nearby rural communities. "The Grandma's were certain that the icy road conditions, cold winds and the forbidding sky would be the ruination of the dinner, but with food prepared there was nothing to do but go ahead and serve dinner to the handful brave enough to come out," said Brown. She continued, "But the old saying about 'only fools predict Texas weather' proved true again." At 11:00 o'clock the ladies were sighing over all the barbecue and ham and desserts and salads that would go to waste. Their spirits were rapidly turned around when the sun peeped through the clouds and by 12:00 noon the ice was gone and fans of the traditional dinners were beginning to dribble in.

Even though the wind was blowing hard enough to tear down that barbed wire fence between Amarillo and the North Pole and roll it up like a tumbleweed, people kept pulling into the small country center and the Grandma's were bustling around the kitchen tending to the rolls in the oven, heating up pans of barbecue and refilling serving bowls. At final count some ninety hungry souls had been served and the Grandma's could end their monthly tradition on a winning note.

"We're not quitting completely - we may serve a special meal from time to time, but we Grandma's that are left in the community need a rest," says Brown. And a well deserved rest it will be!

WTU seeks approval from PUCT for fuel surcharge and fuel factor change

West Texas Utilities Company (WTU) has filed a request with the Public Utility Commission of Texas (PUCT) to recover approximately $6.8 million in uncollected fuel costs and interest from retail customers. WTU also has requested approval to increase the fuel factors used to recover fuel costs incurred to provide electricity service in the future by approximately $7.4 million a year.

WTU proposes to recover the $6.8 million in under collections through a surcharge over the six-month period from June through November of this year. If approved by the PUCT, the increase in the factors used to calculate the fuel charge portion of the bill would also begin with the June billing cycle.

Investor-owned electric utilities in Texas, like WTU are required by the PUCT to use fuel factors based on cost estimates to collect the cost of fuel used to generate electricity at their power plants. When the actual costs of fuel significantly exceed the fuel charges that customers are paying in the monthly bills, PUCT rules require that the utility request permission to surcharge the additional amount. When the fuel costs are anticipated to change from their current levels for an extended period of time, the electric utility may request permission to adjust the monthly fuel factors used to determine the fuel charge portion of customers' bills.

Unforeseen and significant increases in the cost of natural gas occurred over the last year and a half throughout the country. The average cost of natural gas on the spot market for WTU during 1997 was 55 percent higher than the cost included in customers' bills. Approximately 60 percent of the electricity generated by WTU is produced using natural gas as a boiler fuel.

To moderate the significant increase in the market price of natural gas, WTU has taken several steps over the last several years to reduce its fuel costs. These steps have included: Renegotiation of existing fuel contracts; Initiated litigation that resulted in a refund of $7 million in coal transportation costs, thereby reducing the amount of the surcharge. This litigation also resulted in savings in future coal transportation costs totaling $9 million a year, which reduced the amount of the fuel factor increase request by that amount; Aggressive pursuit of market opportunities reduce the costs of natural gas through purchases on the spot market.

The proposed $6.8 million surcharge is being requested to recover uncollected fuel costs for the period from February 1997 until January 1998. WTU proposes to spread the surcharge over six-month period from June through November of this year for all customers, except for seasonal commercial groups. WTU currently is collecting a surcharge, which the PUCT approved in May 1997 to be collected from most customers during the period June 1997 through May 1998.

The proposed surcharge will increase the average monthly bill for residential customers who use, 1,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity by approximately $1.73 over the amount of the surcharge currently in effect, for six months (June - November 1998) and then will be eliminated. The effect of the surcharge will vary depending on the rate schedule under which customer takes service.

The proposed fuel factor will increase beginning in June 1998 the average monthly bill by approximately $1.49 for residential customers who use 1,000 kilowatt-hours of electricity a month.

WTU will publish notices of the filing in selected newspapers with general circulation throughout the company's service area. WTU also will provide individual notice to the governing bodies of all incorporated municipalities retaining original jurisdiction.

Although the mechanism of action is unclear, experiments indicate that Arthur Itis, relieves pain by first selectively attracting, and then destroying the messenger chemical which carries pain sensations to the brain, thus eliminating pain in the affected area. Arthur Itis, is available immediately without a prescription in an odorless, greaseless, non-staining cream or new roll-on lotion form. Arthur Itis, is guaranteed to work or your money back.

My dog - retriever of balls, dead birds and hurt feelings

by Cynthia White

It has been a long time since I had my very own dog. Oh, we've had other dogs but they were big outside dogs that we acquired when we lived out in the country and they were always my husband's pets. I wasn't all that fond of them.

But this dog is different. This is MY dog. He was given to me by a young couple that I am very fond of - I suppose that makes him more special, too.

When we first acquired this little fuzz ball my husband pretended that he wouldn't get too attached to him because he is a poodle. Not a REAL dog, mind you, but a poodle. Even my daughter said, "Mom, why do you want a little twit of a dog? Why don't you get a REAL dog?" But I wanted this dog in particular - we had hit it off from day one. Now this poodle, not a REAL dog, runs the house. He sits with my husband in his recliner and, even though she won't admit it, I think my daughter likes him, too. As for me, he is my shadow when I am home, I am never alone.

We are learning how to walk on a leash, how to beg for a tasty morsel and how to fetch a ball - you know, all that regular "dog" stuff. But what my dog is especially good at is retrieving dead birds he finds in the yard and retrieving my own hurt feelings.

Just last week I was having a miserable day. One of those days that doesn't come around too often, thank goodness, but where you feel as if the world has turned it's back on you and even the little things go wrong.

The day started off calmly enough but I knew things were going to get worse because something was going wrong in my mouth - I had a horrific toothache. When I can't talk or sip my favorite soda without being in excruciating pain, I know it's going to be a rough day.

Then it happened. A group of people who I thought were my friends and supporters turned their backs on me in a very hurtful way. I was incensed by their actions and remained on the verge of tears all day long. My family and I had supported these people not only financially, but emotionally and physically for a quite a while. But when it was their turn to support us they were fickle, self-centered and short visioned. I felt that they had used my friendship only when it suited their needs and that I meant nothing to them, unless, of course they needed me or mine to help them in some way. I was hurt worse than I had been hurt in years. I thought only teen-agers would exhibit those kind of actions. But guess what? Grown people do, too.

When I walked through the gate in our back yard that afternoon there was a black fur ball, jumping and greeting me like a four year old kid greeting Santa on Christmas Day. I was the best thing that had happened to him all day. As I picked the little guy up and opened the back door I knew that I had a friend for life and all I had to do was supply him with food, water and attention.

When I sat down on the sofa he awaited anxiously for me to signal to him that it was all right if he sat in my lap. His large, dark eyes were looking at me with longing shining out. When I patted my knees he bounded up on the sofa and cuddled up on my lap so tightly that a crow bar couldn't pry us apart. He looked up, panted, and tried as best he could to say, "I love you, no matter what."

Later that evening my dog proved he was also a helper with household chores. My little grandbaby had spilled her entire plate of supper but my dog made quick work of the messiest part - the "vacuumed" up every possible morsel - what a dog!

Dogs can't spread rumors or talk behind your backs, they don't judge people for how they look, and they don't know the least thing about how to "use" people to further their cause or personal desires. Dogs are the epitome of faithfulness and will always support those who support them. I guess that's more than we can say about the human race.

Truscott-Gilliland News

by Mrs. Clara Brown

Lots of work got done at the Cemetery Cleanup Saturday, February 28. Workers enjoyed a bean and cornbread dinner at the center after a hard morning's work. Anyone who wants trees on their family plot trimmed back from headstones may contact the cemetery caretaker, Derrell Hord, about a private agreement for that work. The cemetery budget largely goes for mowing and weed eating, but families can arrange privately to have more detailed work done on their plots.

March 22 a covered dish lunch and community meeting is planned for about 12:15 at the Truscott Center. Business will include homecoming, appointing committees, the roof, reviewing association rules and the responsibility of the association and board in relation to building use by other groups such as 4-H, senior citizen meals, and extension club meetings. The association owns and maintains the building but offers use free of charge to community groups, within association guidelines and management.

Inventory, a directory to storage, and the disposal of unneeded or broken equipment will also be on the agenda. Ila May's moving has left the community center without its memory bank of what is where and how things have been done so this meeting and some future projects will try to remedy those problems. (Maybe we should fine her for leaving. We sure are growing more and more aware of all we dumped on her through the years.)

Ila Mae and Paul Bullion were back at Truscott this week. They are still moving. They have sold their house to Jerry Bob and Eugenie Daniel and plan to finish their move to Lubbock soon.

Ila Mae and Paul were in Lubbock recently. Murry Bullion flew in to Lubbock and stayed to visit Ila Mae and Paul.

Geraldine Tomonek says their granddaughter, Sarah Tomonek of Boyd was named flag bearer for the flag of China at the Visa International Gymnastic Competition this past Thursday through Sunday, March 5 - 8.

The Ruth and Steve Mescall family will spend spring break at Disney World in Florida and also visit Steve's parents there. Spring Break starts March 9, but the Mescall kids all wanted to sacrifice a few school days last week to get an early start.

Gail Whitley was in Truscott Saturday and Sunday packing up her house and also helping her folks pack. Gail and Lee have also sold their house to Jerry Bob and Eugenie Daniel. Lee is working in construction in the Lubbock area and Gail is working in alterations at a Lubbock wedding dress shop.

Joyce Eck of McLean spent last weekend, February 28 - March 1, visiting her daughter and son-in-law, Maria and Duane Carroll.

Colton and Eugenie Daniel will spend this week of spring break helping work cattle and preparing for the 4-H Horse Clinic at Crowell Friday and Saturday. Colton plans to also spend some time learning to run a bulldozer this week.

Several Knox County politicians attended Grandma's Dinner. Kay Gray of Vernon was passing out cards for Rick Hardecastle of Vernon. Bill Baker and Ben Gleaves held a short conference after dinner about the Republican primary election in Truscott.

March 22 is the date for a Truscott covered dish dinner and community association meeting at the center at 12:15 pm. We will try to get Norma Lee to bring her video at the March 8 dinner so we can see ourselves.

Attending the state meeting in Houston February 25 - 28 were four members of the Colonial Dames of the Seventeenth Century from the chapter in Lubbock including Ila Mae Bullion, state chairman of Colonial Heritage and Research; Mary McClurg, state historian; Dan Ella Dickson, state corresponding secretary; and Mary Savage, chapter Heraldry chairman.

June Looney reports that her granddaughter, Farrah Looney, an ACU student, has been accepted to work for the National Park Service in the summer. She will be stationed at Jackson Hole, Wyoming. June thinks Farrah's grandmother will probably need to go up and make sure Farrah is getting along O.K. in Wyoming.

Truscott winners in the Crowell livestock show were Becky Daniel whose heifer brought home both a first in its class and the reserve champion senior heifer titles. Colton Daniel also brought home a first in its class for his heifer.

Funeral Services were held at Benjamin Saturday afternoon for Lu Ella Tolson who was well known in the Truscott community.

Monday and Tuesday, Truscott students competed in UIL contests at Paducah, representing Crowell.

Becky Joe, daughter of Ken and Tracy Smith, won first in spelling. Terry Smith placed 3rd in spelling, 4th in picture memory, and 6th in number sense. Becky Joe also entered number sense, placing 5th, and Randy Smith placed 5th in creative writing.

Becky Daniel competed in oral reading and placed 6th in spelling. Colton Daniel entered calculator, number sense, and mathematics. Their parents are Jerry Bob and Eugenie Daniel.

The Daniels enjoyed attending the Fort Worth Stock Show recently. They watched a Pitchfork Ranch gelding win reserve champion in competition, then became the highest selling horse in the auction that followed the show.

The Gilliland Baptist Church's March 1 dinner honored Adam and Zachary, sons of Sherry and Ronnie Simmons, on their birthday and was a farewell dinner for Val and John Kinnibrugh who are moving to Abilene soon.

Randy Alexander of Abilene is visiting his mother, Patty Alexander this week.

Gladys Meek and Erna Lee Horne of Seymour attended the Baptist dinner.

Scotty Burgess visited her daughter, Jan Richardson, in Lubbock last week and attended a cousin's funeral. While in Lubbock she was visited by another daughter, Sharon Hughes of Roby, and also visited her sister, Clara Gregory at Petersburg.

Artesian wells are so-called from Artesium, the Latin for Artois, in France where they were first drilled.

Aquifer offers free testing for bacteria

About 95% of this country's rural residents use ground water to supply their drinking water and homestead needs. Wells should be designed to provide clean water. If improperly constructed or maintained, however, they can allow bacteria, pesticides, fertilizer or oil products to contaminate ground water. These contaminants can put family and animal health at risk.

The Seymour Aquifer Project office will be sponsoring free water tests for bacteria during the week of May 18 - 22, 1998. Project employees will come to your home to take the sample to reduce the chance of cross contamination of the water sample.

If you are interested in having your house well tested for bacterial contamination please call the Seymour Aquifer Project office at (817) 864 - 3334 or 864 - 3583.

Aquifer continues offering free soil test in Knox County

There is still time left to get your soil tested free in Haskell and Knox Counties. The Seymour Aquifer Project office is sponsoring a free soil program for area producers.

The soil sample should be taken from a uniform area of the field and represent from 10 to 40 acres. Take 10 to 15 samples from the field and mix in a clean plastic bucket, take out about one pint for a composite sample. Be sure to fill out an information sheet to send in along with the sample. The information sheet asks about the type of crop to be grown and the yield goal of the crop.

The free soil testing program is sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the Natural Resources Conservation Service. For sample bags and information sheets come by the project office at 900 South Ave. E in Haskell or call (940) 864 - 3334 or 864 - 3583.

SPOKING . . .

Do you have this problem?

Uneven water application is evident when you view an electric pivot pattern from the air.

The uneven water application you see is called spoking. It is created by the "start-stop" movement of an electric drive pivot as it applies water. Uneven water application produces uneven yields, and the problem becomes more critical with chemigation.

More and more irrigators are discovering the solution to their spoking problems. They have installed T-L hydrostatic drive irrigation systems that don't start and stop like electric systems. The T-L CONTINUOUS MOVEMENT produces even yields and reduces the wear and tear caused by the start-stop action of an electric pivot.

Owl pellets '98 studied by 4-H youth

No! This is not a strange political campaign. Nor is it some type of new athletic competition. "Owl Pellets" is one segment of the Project WILD curriculum enrichment guide.

Project WILD is sponsored by many fish and wildlife agencies within the U.S.A., Canada, Czech Republic, India, Iceland and Sweden. In Texas, Project WILD is handled through the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department (TP&WD).

On Friday, February 13, Dana Wright, Wildlife Technician for TP&WD in Paducah, visited with youth at Paint Creek and O'Brien schools. Mrs. Wright conducted the "Owl Pellets" segment of the 386 page Project WILD notebook. The main objective of "Owl Pellets" is to help students construct a simple food chain. This is done by studying pellets that barn owls regurgitate.

Barn Owls swallow their prey whole. Fluids in their stomachs digest everything except fur/feathers and bones. The fur/feathers and bones will form a pellet. This pellet is spit out onto the ground.

With the help of a few charts that Mrs. Wright shared with the youth, pellets were dissected and the prey animal identified. Some of the due to their nesting and perching habits, pellets from barn owls are easier to locate and collect.

Roping School - June 21-25

The 1998 Texas 4-H Calf Roping School will be held on June 21-25. This school will take place at the Tarleton State University Equine Arena in Stephenville. Participation is open to all Texas 4-H members with preference given to youth who are 14 years of age or older.

The cost of the school is $250 for the week. This will include group insurance, meals, lodging, stall rent for one horse (stall fee for additional horses will be $25 per horse) and will cover the cost of practice calves. Students will be housed in the Tarleton State University dormitories.

Parents are encouraged to attend as chaperons. There will be a $100 fee for adult chaperons to help cover meals and lodging. Any adults wishing to bring a horse must also pay a $25 stall fee.

Deadline for registering is May 1, 1998. Participants will be accepted on a first-come, first-served basis. The school will be limited to 45 participants.

Please contact Paul Weiser in the Knox County Extension office for more information or for a copy of the rules and application forms.

youth began laying out the bones and are planning to glue the skeletons together.

Owls are not the only birds that cast pellets. Over 300 species of birds, including hawks, eagles and small birds like robins and tree sparrows cast pellets. However, the Park Rangers at Copper Breaks State Park, a wildlife field day is being organized for youth. The date has not been set. It will be sometime in early May. This field day will be geared toward fifth grade students.

Last year, the field trip consisted of three segments. Dana Wright conducted one segment on native wildlife. The second section was conducted by Eric Altana, Fisheries Biologist with TP&WD, Canyon, Texas. This segment was on identifying fish species. The field day concluded with a hike along one of the nature trails. On this hike, "Ranger Bob", TP&WD Park Ranger, Copper Breaks State Park, assisted the youth in identifying plants and discussed the uses each plant served for animals or humans.

Any teacher or school interested in participating in this field day should contact Paul Weiser in the Knox County Extension office in Benjamin at (940) 454 - 2651. Extension programs serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, disability or national origin.

"On A Wizer Note"

by Paul Weiser
Knox County Extension Agent

A few weeks ago a question about food irradiation was brought up in a conversation. This is the process of using approved radiation sources to eliminate pathogens and reduce spoilage microorganisms while maintaining wholesomeness and fresh quality in foods.

Good farming and manufacturing practices discourage harmful bacteria from entering the food supply. However, this does not come with a guarantee. Irradiation used in conjunction with good farming and manufacturing practices can greatly enhance the safety of food and even extend its freshness.

Irradiation disrupts the genetic material of living cells, inactivating parasites and destroying pathogens and insects in food. This includes Escherichia coli 0157:H7, Salmonella, Campylobacter, and Trichinella spiralis associated with raw meat and poultry. By killing spoilage microorganisms, irradiation extends the freshness of perishable foods. Irradiation has also been found to delay the ripening process in produce and will prevent sprouting in vegetables. A study conducted in 1992 found that irradiated ground beef stayed fresh nine days longer than non-irradiated beef.

Consumers who are at high risk to food-borne illnesses (including children, the elderly and those with compromised immune systems) would especially benefit from irradiated foods. However, the question is whether radioactivity will be induced in the food. This issue is of no concern for the currently approved radiation sources - gamma rays, electrons and X-rays. The energy in these radiation sources is too low to induce radioactivity.

These radiation sources will produce a small number of harmless radiolytic products in foods that are similar to those formed by cooking. Review by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has verified the safety of these products.

Irradiated foods must demonstrate nutritional adequacy in order to be approved by the FDA. Macronutrients (protein, carbohydrates and fats) are not significantly affected by radiation doses up to 10 kGy and trace elements and minerals are not affected at all. Minimal vitamin loss may occur, depending on the dose, temperature, presence of oxygen and type of food irradiated. Many food processes, like cooking, alter nutrient content of food much more than irradiation.

Food that has been irradiated have no major chemical, physical or sensory changes. Color and odor of raw meat may be slightly affected. Cooking appears to lessen or eliminate the radiation-induced odor and color changes can be minimized by irradiating meat in an oxygen-free environment in the frozen state.

Successful sale of irradiated food products in four U.S. stores show that consumers will accept irradiated food. Irradiated foods marketed in numerous other countries were judged superior by consumers.

This information was taken from February/March 1998 issue of the "Texas Food Processor" newsletter. For more information about the contents of this article, please give Paul Weiser a call in the Knox County Extension office at 454-2651.

Claudell and Mary Bratcher attended memorial services for Lou Ella Tolson at the First Christian Church in Benjamin, Saturday afternoon.

CAPITOL COMMENT
U.S. SENATOR
KAY BAILEY HUTCHISON

TESTING QUESTION

The American dream is as much about the future as it is about the past. Universal education is a pillar of the American success story. All of us are aware that without a first-class education system, that dream can rapidly become a nightmare.

Our national debate over how best to realize the dream has focused recently on the issue of academic standard setting — establishing educational goals and tracking the progress of students toward achieving them. There are two schools of thought surrounding this question:

- 1) That the federal government, through the Department of Education, should develop and administer national tests.
- 2) That states and individual school districts should be responsible for this tracking.

The administration favors the first method. My philosophy falls squarely on the second. I believe that parents, teachers and local school officials are better qualified to pass judgment on how children are learning than a bureaucrat sitting in an office in the Department of Education in Washington, D.C.

In addition, the administration has proposed a testing program based on the "whole math" approach. This controversial teaching method, which encourages students to rely on calculators and discourages basic math skills, has resulted in declines in math performance.

For example, median scores on the Comprehensive Test of Basic Skills, taken by more than 37,000 Department of Defense students one year after the Defense Department introduced whole math dropped nine points for third graders, 12 points for fourth graders, 11 points for fifth graders, 10 points for sixth graders, 10 points for seventh graders and four points for eighth graders.

This debate recently came to a head in the Senate. I voted for legislation that prevents the administration from allowing the federal government to develop and administer national tests. This bill, which passed 88-12, carries deliberate instructions and prohibitions: 1) Any future national test must be developed by an independent board comprised of individuals from states and local communities; 2) These tests must be administered on a purely voluntary basis, and may not be imposed on any state, school or student; 3) Nor may testing be tied to any federal funding.

With this legislation we are reminding the administration that the private sector already is doing a good job, without Uncle Sam's "help." Two examples of this are the advanced placement tests and the Scholastic Aptitude Tests (SAT), a series of privately administered exams taken by most high school students. The SATs function, in effect, as a national standard measurement. They are not, however, mandated, paid for nor administered under the auspices of the federal government.

So the debate is not over standard-setting. Everyone favors the establishment of ways to measure competence in the basics. Testing at an earlier age, along the lines of the SATs, may well enhance efforts to provide all children with a superior education. We want all children to learn at the highest possible levels.

It is proven that when parents take an interest in schools and participate in their children's education, achievement scores are higher. Federal intervention has never been as successful. 10.03.97

Texas Peanut Producers Board to hold biennial election

The Texas Peanut Producers Board will hold its biennial election on April 30, 1998. The election is for directors to fill three positions whose terms have expired, plus three new positions. Any person living within the following counties who is engaged in the business of producing, or causing to be produced, peanuts for commercial purposes, is eligible to vote in his district, including owners of farms and their tenants and share croppers, if such person is subject to paying the assessment collected on peanuts within the following counties:

District III: Counties in this district include: Jones, Haskell, Knox, Foard, Hardeman, Wilbarger, Baylor, Throckmorton, Shackelford, Stephens, Young, Archer, Wichita, ay, Jack, Palo Pinto, Erath, Bosque, Somerville, Hood, Parker, Wise, Montague, Cooke, Denton, Tarrant, Johnson, Hill, McLennan, Limestone, Freestone, Navaro, Ellis, Dallas, Collin, Grayson, Fannin, Hunt, Rockwall, Kaufman, Henderson, Anderson, Leon, Houston, Trinity, Angelina, Cherokee, Smith, Van Zandt, Rains, Wood, Hopkins, Delta, Lamar, Red River, Franklin, Titus, Morris, Camp, Upshaw, Gregg, Rusk, Nacogdoches, San Augustine, Sabine, Shelby, Panola, Harrison, Marion, Cass and Bowie.

Any person qualifying to vote in the election may place his name in nomination for directorship on the Texas Peanut Producers Board from that district by application to the above organization, signed by the applicant and at least ten other persons eligible to vote in the election. The Texas Peanut Producers Board must receive such application by March 30, 1998.

Texas peanut producers subject to paying the assessment may also vote on a proposition to limit the refundable peanut assessment rate not to exceed $4 per net ton for quota and $3 per net ton for additional, farmers stock peanuts. Such assessments to be collected at the point of first processing or sale on a "refund only" basis. Such funds are to be used for funding programs of research, education, promotion and market development. All Texas counties are within the proposed referendum area.

Munday FCE Club celebrates love during February

The Munday Chapter of the Texas Association for Family and Community Education met in the Chamber Assembly room for its regular February meeting with president, Leona Partridge presiding.

The opening exercises were conducted by the chairperson with the thought: "Put sugar in what you say, and salt in what you hear."

Roll call was led by Debbie Rueffer and each member responded to recall February's Valentine cupid and that first impressive romantic kiss. Much laughter and memories were recalled by exchanging courting traditions of old.

The minutes were read by the secretary and approved by the members.

The FCE Council reported that Tri-County FCE shall be in Seymour, Texas on March 25, 1998. All Knox County Chapter members are to take a salad. Each is also to share a unique "show and tell" article.

Jane Rowan, Knox County Extension Agent, presented an information program on "Scherinschnitte", the German fine paper cut-work technique. Members were participants in hands-on to be creative artists. Paper embossing was also demonstrated by Ms. Rowan.

The members are encouraged to bring Look Alike Dangerous Chemicals to the March meeting. The meeting will be held on Wednesday, March 18 at 1:30 p.m. in the Chamber Assembly room with hostesses: Beverly Crowover and Margaret Hill. All interested persons are invited. Extension programs serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, disability or national origin.
