bought. But in China the "storing pulm" is conspicuous. Remember this and you can understand much about the wars in this "squeezing-greaser" land. China is getting worse and worse. Property-rights are gone. Life is unsafe. Business is paralyzed. Freedom of the press and speech has vanished. Loyalty and obedience are not. Liberty is dead. Bandits abound. But Nanking makes-believe all is "as fine as pie" and issues piouss are doubtless sincere ones who would put things right but the make-believes predominates and block every move for good. But don't judge harshly. Most officials are sons of the laboring class and of the newly-rich. They are young and inexperienced. They pay great attention to trivial things and neglect great things. If in our Washington it's said, "He that is without GIN among you let him first cast a stone," can we condemn heathen China? We hope that some day China strip-pings will tire of "playing house" and will get down to horse sense. I am getting sick from the New Year. Gambling is everywhere. Superstition is rife. Money is wanted that might relieve famine suffering. Every temple crowded, people offering money and prayers to all the gods. They pray most for wealth. They want wealth, and they worship the god-of-wealth with all their hearts. Every home has one made of wood, mud, or of paper but he is "Dai-zen" all the same. When business gets poor in China they say the god-of-wealth has gone to America. The paper Dai-zen is interesting. The god's throne is a big ingot of gold set with jewels. Mountains of gold are at the god's left and Silver Hill is at his right. In front of him is a great bowl of jewels. On Silver Hill is the money tree a shake of which will shower you untold wealth. Over Dai-zen's head is "Foh"—blessedness. All around are his servants ready to carry wealth to those whom the god favors. This god is very amenable to flattery and he who flatters best gets most. But he too is make-believe.

May the true God-of-Wealth prosper you and friends in all good.

Yours longingly for a sincere and prosperous China.
 (Rev.) H. G. C. HALLOCK.

France Has Monopoly on Roquefort Cheese

The pilgrim father of all cheese in America today is Roquefort, which can trace its "blue blood" as far as the first century, when Pliny remarked about its excellent flavor.

Attempts have been made in the United States to duplicate the famous French product, but such experiments have been fruitless, as the ideal curing conditions of Aveyron, France, cannot be reproduced anywhere in the world. The wholesale price of the imported Roquefort is low, and the flavor so appetizing that American hostesses are purchasing it in greater quantities than ever before.

Epicures bow their heads in respect to the shepherd whose misfortune was responsible for its origin. He left his bunch of barley bread and native cheese made of sheep's milk in a cave near the town of Roquefort, in southwestern France to keep it cool until noontime. A sudden storm arose which forced him to forget about his flock. Two weeks later he passed that way again, and thought about his abandoned food. He found the bread worthless, and the cheese mouse of a curious culture mold. His curiosity and hunger being great, he nibbled a bit, and found the cheese had a flavor surpassing any food he had ever eaten. —Chicago Evening Post.

Three Idioms of Latin Tongue Long Employed

Ecclesiastical Latin differs from classical Latin in various ways, these changes being due principally to the origin and derivation of ecclesiastical Latin. Originally the Romans spoke the old tongue of Latin known as the præca latinæ. In the third century B. C., Ennius and a few other writers trained in the schools of the Greeks made certain changes and, encouraged by the cultured classes, thus developed the classical Latin. The necessary contact between the two classes produced still a third. When the church developed a Latin it was necessary to employ a language which would appeal to the masses as well as to the literary class; hence some of the factors of each idiom were used. St. Augustine says: "I often employ words which are not Latin, and I do so that you may understand me. Better that I should incur the blame of the grammarians than not to be understood by the people." —Washington Star.

English in Switzerland

A traveler recently returned from a six months' holiday in Switzerland gave two quaint examples of English as she is written in out-of-the-way mountain chalets. One notice, taken from a hotel frequented by rock-climbers, runs as follows: "It is defended to circulate in the corridors in boots of ascension before seven hours of the morning." The other is a warning to travelers not to appear at dinner in evening dress. It says: "Strange gentlemen are requested not to dress for dinner, as their costume flatters the souls of the maid folk, and no work is resulted," which implies that Swiss girls are more susceptible than is generally imagined.

Not Expected

Bobby, on his fourth birthday, was sitting by the window with his mother watching for the postman. Bobby turned to his mother, and said: "Why, mother, the postman won't come today because this is my birthday."

"But what of that?" asked mother.

"Well, you said he wouldn't come one day when it was Washington's birthday," replied Bobby.

One has almost as wonderful a sense of direction as birds. Should there be a leak in an underground water pipe in a park or garden, a neighboring tree is almost sure to find it out, and, extending its roots in that direction, project a shoot through the break in the pipe. Even more extraordinary is the performance of the rattan, a climbing palm common in tropical countries. When it has climbed a tree, it goes over the top and comes down again to the ground. Then, growing at the rate of a foot every 24 hours, it sets out straight for the next tree, which may be over 50 yards away.

YOUNG FOLKS.

Listen boys and girls, here's something you will be interested in: Today my information clerk came to my private office and gently informed me that a good-looking young lady wished to see me, without stuttering, I said, "Show her in." She did, and to my pleasant surprise she was one of my former students all dressed up and as happy and prosperous looking as could be. I said to her, "How are you getting along with your position?" She replied, just fine, I am doing both the book-keeping and shorthand work, I am answering much of the correspondence myself and my boss thinks I'm a wonder at it. I then inquired if they had raised her salary, and she said, yes, several times. I am now drawing a better salary than I ever anticipated I would. I just think your school is wonderful and your training is so thorough and practical. I'm surely a Byrnie booster. It about three hours a young man that I had recommended to a responsible position, about four weeks ago, walked in to thank me for the way I assisted him in landing a good position. He said, they told him they would try him for two weeks and if he made good they would pay him off, but in a few more days pay-day rolled around and instead of getting fired they gave him a ten dollar raise. Thorough business training paid this young man and it will pay any young man or woman who will study, work and try to make good. We placed five hundred and twenty graduates in positions the past year. We could tell you the happy experience of many a boy or girl who has recently graduated in one of the Byrnie Colleges. Those two referred to above are no exceptions. Young friends if you are ambitious to make good and be somebody worth while, fill in your name and address and mail for one of our interesting and instructive free catalogues. Prices f. o. b. factory, Flint, Michigan. Compare the delivered price as well as the list price in considering automobile values. Chevrolet's prices include only reasonable charges for delivery and financing. Easy G. M. A. C. Terms.

There is one sure way to get greater value in a low-priced car today—choose a Six!

This greater value is instantly obvious when you drive a Chevrolet Six. You notice first of all its greater smoothness. There is no tremor in the steering wheel—no rattle in the floor boards—no drumming in the body.

In addition to the finer performance of its six-cylinder motor, the new Chevrolet gives you truly remarkable economy.

Its six-cylinder smoothness saves the entire car from the strain and wear of vibration. This, of course, lowers the cost of maintenance and assures a longer-lasting automobile.

From the standpoint of operating expense, Chevrolet is equally economical. No automobile uses less gasoline and oil. No car shows a lower expense for tires. And no car costs less for service.

Finally, the modern engineering also assures a high re-sale value—for its entire design is just as advanced as its six-cylinder engine.

Chevrolet gives you fully-enclosed, weather-proof, 4-wheel brakes. It gives you a modern fuel system—with the gasoline tank mounted in the rear outside the body. It gives you four long semi-elliptic springs, mounted lengthwise in the direction of car travel. It gives you beautiful Fisher bodies built of combination hardwood-and-steel. It gives you a full ball bearing steering mechanism, an adjustable driver's seat, a Fisher VV non-glare windshield, and tilting beam headlights, operated by a foot-controlled button.

Before you decide on any car in the low-price field, see and drive the Chevrolet Six. The more thoroughly you investigate, the more certain you are to conclude that it's wise to choose a Six—for value, for performance and for economical transportation!

Janice and Her Dream House

By BARBARA W. BAILE

ALLAN and Janice Gray had been married six months. Allan, successful attorney, calm, big, entirely masculine—and Janice, vivacious, small, delightfully feminine, were even more in love than during their ecstatic engagement days.

The one "fly in the ointment" as far as Janice was concerned, was "Graylawn," the old Gray family estate. Here Allan had lived since babyhood; even after the death of his parents—continuing to maintain the establishment. Here were the same too ornate, old-fashioned furnishings; even some of the now aged servants. And here to "Graylawn," immediately after their marriage, Allan brought his wife; and to Janice, accustomed to simplicity always, the massive old house, with its formality and stiffness, had seemed gray and depressing indeed!

Allan's home life at "Graylawn" had been anything but gay, until—on a business trip to the South, through a family with whom they were mutually acquainted, he had met Janice Moore, who seemed to him as radiant and intensely lovable as her own southern sunshine. His calm, broad nature, and her joyous personality seemed a compelling force between them; and after a friendship that was sure to ripen when based on such congeniality as they found in each other, Allan's business had compelled him to return North. Finding himself in a restless mood away from Janice, he had returned and wooed and won.

Janice would not hurt Allan by expressing her dislike of his old homestead, but her "dream house" had been so different. In Nashville, down in her own beloved Tennessee, Janice had capably filled a responsible business position, which had intensely interested her. At times, in moments of relaxation, there were day dreams of the time when she, of course, would be putting business aside and cooking daintily, joyously in a spotless white kitchen; happily arranging jolly bits of furniture; hanging ruffled curtains in her own "dream house." Breakfast in a darling little kitchen—with gaily spiced breakfast dishes—and happiness!

This, Janice's birthday, and Janice had given extra attention to the ordering for their first celebration. In a dress of soft white, beautiful because of its simplicity, Janice met Allan in the vest hall, and slipping her fingers under the lapels of his coat, wished him the happiest of birthdays.

"Dinner ready to be served, dear?" Putting his arm about her, Allan at once led the way through the hall.

Why the last time she had worn the white dress he had picked her up in his arms when she met him and swore he was going to carry her in to the dinner, but not! Was it so soon men lose interest? That no—Allan was so thoughtful, so lovable—why he was tired, of course! Surely—Janice elided herself—she had been attended with business long enough to know that many times one went home utterly weary, wanting just relaxation. Yes, he was tired—and brightly she tried to interest him during the dinner.

Allan pulled back her chair and together they walked to the library. Allan to smoke and Janice to strike a light for him and then—to the piano. But tonight Allan did not come to the great chair beside the piano where he so often listened to her music. A bit pensively—he went to him. Always before he had come to her!

"Janice, little girl"—and he drew both her hands between his own—"I'm a failure—an utter failure! I have suffered serious losses in stock; that we must immediately change our mode of living!" He looked so distressed, so fatigued that suddenly she felt he was just a tired, small boy and it thrilled her to realize that he needed her!

"Allan, you mean we must give up this home?"

"Allan, yes!"

"Allan! And I can cook your breakfast—and handle my own beautiful things—and prepare your dinner—and sit close to you at the table without thinking the butler is watching?"

Allan was not a small boy now. He rose to his feet, drawing Janice almost heavily to him.

"And Allan—could we afford a tiny house out of town—where I can make a million dollars—well—"

But Allan had her in his arms and she was breathless.

"Janice, sweet, you mean that?"

"For answer her arms would round his waist—and when he closed her eyes, her lips, Janice knew that "dreams come true."

Club Life

Four little girls formed a club, which had met for the first time. Blanche's mother asked her what kind of a club it was. "Well," she said, "first I played a selection on the piano, then we discussed subjects and predicated. For the social part, we played an old game called Consequences. Then, before we adjourned, we ate orange ice."

FARM POULTRY

Paying Poultry Flock Is Grown

Spring-Hatched Pullets Carefully Developed Are Best.

Developing the spring-hatched pullets from the time the chicks leave the incubator until the pullets are placed in the laying house is the pathway to profits in the poultry industry.

"The object of this development is to have pullets of stamina, bone and vigor and fully up to the standard weight of the breed," says S. R. Dearstine, poultryman at State college. "At first the proper mash is used until finally the laying mash containing 20 per cent of protein is given. The young pullets must have an abundance of succulent green feed, especially as the grass on the range gets old and tough. When placing birds in the laying house, do this about two weeks before they start laying so that they may become accustomed to their surroundings."

Nesting material should be changed often, runs cleaned of lice, perch poles scraped and freed of nites, and the birds examined for internal parasites. A minimum of four feet of floor space to each bird is needed in the house, and at least two feet of perch pole for each three birds. Dampness in the house and damp litter is to be avoided if the birds are not to have roop and colds. Fresh, clear water is necessary and the mash hoppers are to be kept filled at all times. Oyster shell and grit should be kept before the birds, and grain fed twice each day with the heaviest amount at evening.

Mr. Dearstine says that the poultryman will do well to spend the few minutes each day in general observation of his flock. This will help him to find any lack of thriftiness or any indication of disease. Birds roughly handled, irregularly fed and watered, infested with parasites or neglected in other ways will not prove profitable.

Adequate Ventilation Essential for Poultry

Adequate ventilation is important for a profitable poultry flock. Sufficient fresh air must be admitted to replace the moisture-laden air thrown off by the birds. It must be admitted so as to avoid drafts. The open front principle is used extensively in many sections. It has been determined that the openings in the front wall should equal approximately one-tenth of the floor area. To protect the flock during severe storms frames covered with a light weight of muslin may be used in the front openings.

Chicks Crowd

One cause of large losses among chicks that are brooded artificially results from crowding. If for any reason the chicks become chilled they are apt to crowd together in order to keep warm. This crowding usually results in the death of several chicks at the bottom of the pile. Even if they do not die they will be stunted. Always make sure they will not be so crowded that they will not get up, making them practically worthless.

POULTRY NOTES

Watch the chicks early so that the pullets are mature for winter egg production.

Don't forget the importance of fresh, juicy greens for both the baby chicks and old hens.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Sunday school at 10 a. m.
Worship at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m.
There will be three special features in the morning worship. Several parents of the congregation will dedicate their babies to be Lord in baptism. This will be a very impressive ceremony, not only for the parents, but all who witness it. There may be those who have never seen babies dedicated to the Lord in baptism, if so, they are cordially invited. Those who are not familiar with the service will not want to miss it.

At 11 o'clock there will be an Easter sermon preached on the subject, "Easter Memories."

The Lord's Supper will be administered after the sermon. All Christians who are in good standing in some evangelical church are invited to the Lord's Table, since by our Lord's appointment this sacrament sets forth the communion of saints.

The general public is invited to any and all our services. The members are urged to be present. Absent members are always missed, especially on Sundays when the Lord's Supper is administered. So let each one do his best to have a full attendance.

C. A. TUCKER.
