WHERE WILL IT STOP?

For every gallon of gasoline your car consumes you now pay state and Federal taxes that average more than 40% of the retail price, less tax. Yet Congress is being asked to increase the Federal tax on gasoline from 3c to 4½c. In addition to this, various states seek to increase their gas taxes.

Proponents of the increase argue that it is needed to prevent a deficit from developing in the Federal Highway Trust Fund, set up in 1956, to finance the network of interstate highways now under construction. The fact is there would be no deficit whatsoever in the Highway Trust Fund if Federal automotive taxes already being collected from vehicle owners were not being used to subsidize other governmental functions. In fiscal 1958, 42c out of every dollar in Federal automotive taxes went into the general fund of the Treasury instead of the Highway Trust Fund. These diverted automotive taxes would be more than sufficient to make up any anticipated deficits in the highway program.

The combined national average of state and Federal taxes on a gallon of gasoline now amounts to 80% of the refinery price, 54% of the tank wagon price, and 41% of the retail price, less tax. Any further increase is unjustifiable.

MENTAL MALADY

An Oregon Congressman recently sent an extensive questionnaire to his constituents asking for their views on current and pending federal legislative matters. Among other things he listed, for pro or con answers, all manner of federal spending projects.

One of the voters returned the questionnaire with a "yes" vote in favor of each and every spending proposal. But he added a comment: "If so much money wasn't given to federal aid, taxes could easily be lowered. Let's all urge more saving and less spending."

Here is a perfect example of a mental malady that seems to affect millions of citizens. They just don't seem to connect ever-growing government with ever-growing costs and taxes. They seem to think that the government can do the impossible and give us much for nothing. So long as that blindness is prevalent, the pressure on the government to spend, and spend, and spend, and tax, and tax, and tax, will be virtually irresistible.

HALT INFLATION BEFORE IT HALTS US

"If the gravest threat to our national economy lies in the never-ending erosion of the dollar, as almost all authorities agree, we should certainly take no step that would aggravate the situation if we can avoid it," writes Editor Godfrey M. Lebar of Chain Store Age. He adds: ". . . any new legislation which would inevitably raise prices by forcing a nationwide hike in wages would seem to be just about the most senseless step we could take if we really want to halt inflation before inflation halts us."

Then Mr. Lebar moves to the specific—that is, to the proposal that the federal minimum wage be increased by 25% (from $1.00 to $1.25 an hour), and that coverage be extended to large groups of workers, largely in retail and other service categories, who have been exempt ever since the law was first passed in the depression era.

As Mr. Lebar observes: "We do not have to guess as to what this untimely proposal, if enacted, would do to the purchasing power of the dollar . . ." Factual precedent tells us that. The last increase in the minimum wage from 75c to $1.00, occurred on March 1, 1956. Directly thereafter the cost of living started up and the value of the dollar started down. The wage hike was not solely responsible—but, as almost any economist will testify, it was one of the principal factors.

Inflation follows when wages are arbitrarily pushed up without regard to worker productivity. That always has happened and always will.

The Air Defense Command of the U. S. Air Force has commended the nation's railroads and their employes for assistance rendered. In the words of Lt. General Atkinson, its commander: "By co-operating in the Ground Observer Corps program to the extent it did, the American railroad industry gave more to the air defense system than any other single unit of the nation's industrial resources."

"A power over a man's subsistence amounts to a power over his will." Alexander Hamilton, "The Federalist".

An economist forecasts that Americans will spend almost $2 billion this year on sporting goods.

—SAY YOU SAW IT IN THE TIMES—

CONSTITUTION CURBS LAWMAKERS

In an earlier column it was pointed out that our rights and freedoms as American citizens result from our state and national constitutions, our laws and our courts. To illustrate further, here are some of the restraints placed upon Congress and other agencies of government by our national constitution:

1. Neither Congress nor anybody else can suspend the writ of habeas corpus (unless the public safety demands it during rebellion or invasion). All officers or others must obey a court and bring in anyone in their custody to see whether he is held lawfully.

2. Congress cannot pass "bills of attainder," special acts to punish someone. Congress cannot bypass the courts.

3. Congress cannot pass an ex post facto law — a law which makes an act a crime which was not one when done, or which punishes the offender more than called for when done.

4. Congress cannot tax exports from any state nor by regulation favor one state's port over another's, nor make one state's vessels clear or pay duties to another state in order to enter.

Besides these denials from within, the constitution curbs Congress and the executive and judiciary in the amendments, especially the first ten.

Among other things, Congress cannot make a law respecting the establishment of religion or prohibiting its free exercise, or abridging the freedom of speech, of the press or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

The constitution also curbs the courts (for example, they cannot deny a person a fair hearing duly represented by counsel). It curbs the executive (he cannot, for example, take private property for public use without just compensation).

The constitution, which divides the work of the three branches of government, winds up by telling where the rest of the power rests — just in case anybody gets any fancy ideas of dictatorship.

There are things no state can do, for instance, "make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privilege or immunity of citizens of the United States."
 If there are any powers not given to the United States government or reserved to the states, they belong to the people. The constitution does not seem to limit the people.

News From The U. S. Congress

By Congressman Frank Ikard

The recent announcement that the Armed Services had selected the candidates for the honor of being the first humans to travel in outer space pointed up the fact that we can expect to have a manned vehicle moving many miles away from the earth within the next two years. This announcement has also provoked many inquiries as to what good space travel will really do and what this experiment is all about. The whole program of probing outer space is being carried on first for our defense in that we want to make sure that space is not used to endanger our security; secondly, for scientific observation and experiment to broaden our knowledge of the earth, universe, and the solar system, and probably, recently, the most important reason is the compelling urge that has driven man from the beginning of time to explore and discover and to go where no one else has traveled before. To date, our space experiments have produced major discoveries. Among them are the finding of the two great radiation belts around the earth, the determination that the shape of the earth is somewhat different from what we had understood it to be, the mapping of a cloud cover which makes possible more accurate weather forecasting, and the finding of the means for worldwide television communication.

The debate in the Senate on labor reform legislation has brought into clear focus the need for effective legislation to control abuses and racketeering in the labor movement. The McClellan Committee, in its original report, made five recommendations. One of these, which would require public disclosure of welfare and pension plans, was enacted by the Congress last year. Legislation that would correct the other abuses has yet to be enacted by the Congress. The racketeering exposed by the McClellan Committee is scandalous and demands immediate action.

A recent report by our Central Intelligence Agency indicates a growth in the Russian economy of 9% a year for the years between 1950 and 1957 while the economy in this country expanded at an average of 3.6% a year. It is estimated that in some fields of industrial output the Russians are expected to equal us by 1965. Mr. Grady Halbert of Crowell was a Washington visitor this week.

Weekly Health LETTER

Issued by Henry A. Holle, M. D., State Health Officer

They used to call them "Food handlers Schools." Today the title more nearly describes its purpose: "A Short Course in Food Preparation and Services."

The courses are presented by Public Health Education Division instructors in any city in Texas on request of local authorities.

Managers, supervisors and all other employees of eating establishments are the primary objectives of the course. However the same principles apply to all public and private foodhandlers—whether housewife or canner.

The course is presented in four sessions of two hours each. Depending on local working conditions, the daily sessions may be scheduled for morning, afternoon or evening.

Discussions deal with the causative agents of communicable diseases: virus, bacteria, protozoa and worms; the source of these organisms (sick people, people who are carriers, and sick animals); the mode of transmission from the source to susceptible persons; and the ports of entry. Discussions bring out that there are at least 75 different communicable diseases existing in the United States today, of which 30 or so can be transmitted through insanitary food production, processing, distribution, preparation and service.

Emphasis is placed on the fact that if people are properly vaccinated, and thereafter practice sanitation, personal hygiene, and food refrigeration, the majority of these diseases could be greatly reduced or stamped out.

The Division of Public Health Education provides State Department of Health publications used in the course. If local authorities wish to provide additional publications they may do so.

Promotional activities include person to person contact, radio and television announcements, newspaper articles, talks before public health committees of the local restaurant association if any, and other community groups.

There is no denying the value of these sanitation courses to the health of restaurant goers and everyone who buys any food prepared by a human being. Local areas may contact the Division of Public Health Education of the State Department of Health for further information.

BOYCE HOUSE

Why do fiction-writers continue to write: "Helen has seen 20 summers"?

Would she not also have seen 20 winters, 20 springs and 20 falls — autumns, that is? Wouldn't it be simpler just to say, "Helen was 20 years old"? Besides, I happen to know that she is 37, if she's a day.

An Oklahoma lady said that the biggest thrill of a trip to Europe was, because of a freak reception, hearing over the radio a news story from Oklahoma.

DREAMS

What kind of do you have? Do they come true? Some wonderful ones have. Yes, Westinghouse world-famous manufacturer responded to woman's persistent age old dream and desire for an easy way to wash. Of our many advancements none have eliminated as many back aches or as much sweat for the house wife as the automatic washing machine. Westinghouse Laundromat washing machines take the cake. They really do! You see, they are so simple to use and so safe to use. No human hands touch the inside of these tubs to clean them because they are self-cleaning hence sanitary and safely ready for the next washer each time. They are manufactured that way, a commercial machine to give you peace of mind and joy to wash where ever there is a Laundromat in a public place. The old "batting" stick or its modern semblance, a "girator" is no part of a Westinghouse Laundromat washer. The Laundromats do not agitate; they rub like a wash board. This amazing machine washes oil field greasers, ditch digging cover-alls, cowboy branding khakis, grimy farm over-alls, school boy levis, or dainty tucked blouses, baby dresses, sheerest nylons with ease and safety. Zippers do not bend, buttons do not break off, fuzz and lint is not deposited on dark garments or left in the tub. Pocket change, 80c, will wash 25 or 30 pounds of clothes and be through in 30 minutes and if you dry it is all over, clothes folded in an hour and fifteen minutes, no more than $1.30 out of your pocket. What's more you went shopping, to the P. O. or the Bank, did an errand while they washed and dried. Sounds so like a dream to great grandma but it has all come true at the Westinghouse Laundromat and it will be a pleasure to share this factual dream with you anytime at

What Little League Means To Munday

The objective of Little League Baseball is to provide baseball for boys under good leadership and in the wholesome atmosphere of community participation. Meticulous adherence to this aim is responsible for the growth and popularity of the program in thousands of other communities.

The boys who participate, the adults who contribute their services and the parents who share the contagious enthusiasm, all get something out of the program.

The real benefits lie in intangibles which become increasingly evident as the program develops in the community.

No program of the scope and proportion of Little League could long survive without common understanding, unity of purpose, proper leadership and planning for the future. Little League is a proud and vigorous group of peoples bonded by a common denominator of boys and baseball. Those who observe Little League like what they see. They find grass-root Americanism becoming a dynamic force in the community and this applies to adults as well as boys. So far as the boys is concerned, the application of principles of Americanism is apparent from the first call for candidates for the team. Youngsters from all walks of life, without regard to race or religion, report for practice with the common goal of making the team. The social or economic position of parents has no bearing in this competition.

As teams are formed, in accordance with the prescribed selection system, the manager has but one thought, and that is "can a boy pitch, field, run or bat?" Depending on the size of the league's bounded area, the pool of candidates will include about 100 boys. As the selection of this group progresses, we find teams composed of youngsters from every section of the city regardless of color, or religion. These boys' interest in their teammates parallels that of the manager as batting, fielding or pitching ability is the only yardstick.

Only when Little League is formed according to these prescribed regulations, will it help to eliminate boyish gangs, prejudices and cliques. Un-American traits, such as thinking that a fellow who attends another church is "different" are greatly eliminated. Ideas that a youngster who comes from a different race is not a person with whom to associate will be corrected.

Little League makes no pretense of being a "cure-all" for juvenile delinquency. We do find that in communities where the program is established, the boys behave and help make their towns better places in which to live.

All Little League teams must be uniformed. The players take pride in wearing this uniform; they know that should they engage in malicious mischief, they would lose this privilege.

Little League has become a byword in the American home. It connotes ethical behavior, wholesome regard for the family, the home and the community. It is from this solid core of leadership and service that stems the incentive for the more than 5,000 leagues throughout the world.

Service to Little League is tantamount to service to Munday. There are no financial rewards to persons who give time and money to the movement. Volunteers do see, however, the results in the shape of youngsters developing into good citizens. They see communities welded together through common understanding and unity of purpose. This is the reward which comes to Little League workers. These are the dividends they receive. These dividends are worth it.

Russian Farm Films To Be Shown At Haskell May 8

Two years ago a number of Russian agriculturists toured American farms, observing the American way of farming and taking pictures of their trip. At the same time, some American farmers traveled into Russia and other countries.

One of these farmers was Darrell McNutt of Hobart, Okla.

"Mr. McNutt took many pictures of his tour and obtained some startling films inside Russia that every full-blooded American will want to see," said H. W. Smith, president of the Haskell County Farm Bureau.

These pictures will be shown by Mr. McNutt, who will explain them as they are shown, on May 8 at the Haskell high school auditorium. The showing, set for 7:30 p. m., is sponsored by the Farm Bureau.

"Do you know what Communism really is? Well, this film will show you the advantages of being an American and make each of us appreciate our American way of life," Smith said. There will be no charge, and the public is cordially invited.

TEXAS TOPS IN NATIONAL BEEF PICTURE In Spite of Drouth, Texas Shows 17% 10-Year Cattle Increase

In the two short years since the infamous seven-year drouth ended, Texas cattlemen have prevailed over staggering odds. For not only have they replenished and replaced their drouth-depleted herds; they have managed to increase Texas cattle production to 17 percent above the pre-drouth level of 1949.

The bounce-back for Texas cattle has been simultaneous with a general surge in beef production throughout the South. In Texas, however, the story has been as much one of progress in methods of production as in increase which will likely keep Texas out front.

The progress in Texas lies mainly in the large-scale dry-lot finishing enterprises now flourishing in areas where comparatively few existed before. Local production of feed grains for finishing has also been a prime factor.

In the Panhandle and other parts of West Texas, the discovery that milo would produce so much feed per acre, and that cattle eating this grain would make such efficient gains have brought about much large-scale feeding, and more cattle today are being fed locally in drylot than are going to slaughter right off grass or moving to other parts of the country for finishing.

Cattle for commercial feeding are procured from local ranches and also from East Texas which has shown a marked increase in numbers of cattle produced in recent years. In contrast with the farm feedlot with its average 50-100 head on feed, the Texas-size commercial feedlots often handle

Gear Your Speed To Your Brakes

By Martha Johnson
Dodge Safety Consultant

Whether you are driving in city traffic, on country roads, or cruising along one of the safest superhighways, be careful to drive at a speed which allows you to control your car completely at all times.

"Many drivers put far too much reliance on their brakes to keep them out of trouble, no matter how fast they drive," Colonel Hugh H. Waggoner, superintendent of the Missouri Highway Patrol told me recently.

"Remember, the faster you drive, the slower you stop. So when you drive at speed—allow yourself plenty of room in which to maneuver and stop," Waggoner said.

Granting an average reaction time on the part of the driver, here is what you must expect—before you stop:

At 30 miles per hour, it'll take 78 feet to come to a complete stop. At 40 MPH it will take you 125 feet.

At 50 MPH it'll be 188 feet
At 60 MPH—272 feet
At 70 MPH—381 feet.

I know that I'm not the best judge of distances, and suspect that you may misjudge once in a while too. So, always give yourself more room than you think you need. That extra distance may mean safety.

from 4,000 to 5,000 head. On a ration of milo, cottonseed meal, cottonseed hulls for roughage and milo bundle feed, steers often show gains of from 2 1/2 to 3 pounds daily.

Of course, pasture and hay are the backbone of beef cattle production in the South, and improved range and forage conditions have helped bring about the impressive performance gains of Southern cattle. Quality of cattle in Texas and the South have improved to an astounding degree as have numbers of cattle increased.

The future of agriculture in Texas and the South lies to a great extent in the production of meat animals, and it is significant that Texas continues to stay out front in progress and production of the nation's livestock.

Rains In Spring Prove Beneficial To All Wildlife

General rains throughout Texas during the past two weeks have brought on many favorable conditions for the benefit of wildlife, according to the assistant secretary of the Game and Fish Commission.

"These early rains will provide fine grass and cover for both birds and animals," he said. "This will be particularly good for the quail production, provided we don't get floods during the nesting season."

There was an exceptionally good carry-over quail crop in many of the areas of Texas during the past season, according to biologists. In areas, however, where additional stock is required there will be an ample number of birds from the State game farm at Tyler.

"Now is the time for landowners to place their order for these birds," he said. "If they will contact their game warden, the wardens can inspect their property and they can order the birds for future shipment."

The quail are sold to landowners at 50 cents each for restocking purposes. This is approximately half the cost of production.

They are not released in unsuitable areas, however. There must be sufficient cover and food possibilities to care for the birds.

In some places sportsmen's clubs have bought the quail for release on land where hunting privileges will be available in season.

Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Irland and daughter of Manhattan, Kans., came in last Sunday for a few days visit with her sisters, Mrs. H. H. Cowan and Miss Merle Dingus, and brother, Henry Clay Dingus, and other relatives. Mrs. Irland and daughter remained for a longer visit.

162 Pay Fines For Forgetting Fishing License

AUSTIN — Game wardens booked 162 persons during the month of March for fishing without a license. It was the first time in several months that any other violation exceeded trespassing. There were 22 arrested for fence climbing, however.

The wardens also arrested 10 persons for illegal use of electric devices — telephoning — to catch fish.

The monthly report of the director of law enforcement shows violators paid fines of $9,886.33 and costs of $617, making a total of $10,503.33 for the month.

Such charges as shooting doves, quail, duck, deer and turkey out of season also were shown on the report. There were 36 arrests for hunting at night in kp wn deer range.

"At the beginning of the fishing season we always find many persons who try to get by without buying a fishing license," the director said. "We can expect that where some 8 million persons are involved. The shooting of game birds and animals, however, after the season has closed is deliberate. Some of the courts are giving maximum fines on this type of violation."

Gonzales Warm Springs Foundation Facing Deficit

GONZALES — Directors of the Southwest's oldest rehabilitation hospital for the physically disabled will meet May 2 and 3 to decide the basis for continuing operation in the face of a large deficit.

This hospital, the Texas Rehabilitation Center of the Gonzales Warm Springs Foundation, has treated more than 5,000 handicapped persons since its first building was opened in 1941 and depends on private contributions for a major part of its operating money.

The Center's directors are chosen from every part of the state in recognition of the fact that patients have come from 217 of Texas' 254 Counties.

This year's annual Directors Meeting will start with general sessions and committee meetings in the Driskill Hotel in Austin, May 2, and continue Sunday, May 3, at the Warm Springs Foundation located between Luling and Gonzales, off Highway 183.

More than three-fourths of the Center's patients have seriously disabling conditions such as those resulting from strokes, spinal cord injuries, cerebral palsy and muscular dystrophy. Patients undergoing rehabilitation treatment for the effects of polio seldom number more than one-fourth of the hospital population.

A non-profit, charitable hospital, patients are accepted regardless of their ability to pay, their race, color or creed. Admittance is granted if the treatment program will be of value to the patient and if the patient has a doctor's referral. Custodial cases are not accepted.

The Texas Rehabilitation Center is one of only ten hospitals in the nation with a comprehensive rehabilitation program for the physically disabled and the only center in the Southwest with a substantial charity program.

Behold the Ant...

• Science tells us that the strongest thing in the world for its size is the common red ant. This marvel of nature can lift 10 times its own weight.

As strong as the red ant may be, it has been proven that the most powerful thing for its size is the little want ad in your local newspaper.

The want ad, which costs only a few cents a day, does a hundred-fold job. This mighty mite of the printed page finds jobs for folks, sells used lawnmowers, rents houses, sells farms, loans money, finds missing persons, locates lost dogs, rents appliances, thanks folks, locates homes for surplus puppies, and performs a hundred and one useful services for the community.

Map Plans For National Farm Safety Week

The 16th annual National Farm Safety Week will be observed July 19-25, the National Safety Council has announced.

The week, proclaimed by President Eisenhower, is sponsored jointly by the Council and the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Theme of this year's Farm Safety Week is "Safety Makes Sense."

The purpose of the special observance as described by Maynard Coe, director of the farm division of the National Safety Council, is to emphasize accident prevention among farm families.

Coe says, "Facts surrounding farm accidents must be brought to the attention of every rural resident."

Educate Public

He continued, "Safety is largely a matter of education. And Farm Safety Week is a golden opportunity to stress a few important lessons — lessons which can be put to practice the year 'round."

"Safety is an every day job, we must remember," Coe pointed out, "and not something we can think about for a week — then forget."

National Farm Safety Week was first observed in 1944 when the National Conference for Farm Safety decided an extra effort should be made to stamp out accidents on America's farms.

The group decided a special observance should be set aside to stress accident prevention. Thus Farm Safety Week was born — and it has been observed annually ever since.

Accidents Declining

Just how successful the effort to cut down farm accidents has been can be seen in the steady decline of deaths and injuries.

In 1950 the death rate per 100,000 farm persons was 62. Last year the number had fallen to around 57.

The number of accidental injuries on the farm in the last nine years has decreased by some 300,000.

"But there's still a long way to go," Coe said.

"It has always been difficult to reach the farmer with a safety message," Coe said, "and once again this year we are urging everyone interested in the welfare of America's rural residents to take part in Farm Safety Week."

Special Emphasis

Many farm organizations are shaping up special programs in observance of the week. It is planned that the special week will be launched officially on a nationwide radio broadcast of NBC's "National Farm and Home Hour."

Many rural clergymen will stress farm safety in church services July 19.

Coe said, "The only way to help farm accidents is to think safety, talk safety and — most important — practice safety."

Spring Brings Tornadoes, Too

AUSTIN — "For most Texans, no time of the year is quite as pleasant as Spring. It is of small wonder, when you consider the beauty of Bluebonnets, Dogwood and hundreds of other typical Texas flora.

"But, along with these signs of Spring," J. O. Musick, general manager of the Texas Safety Association, says, "we can be quickly distracted by other signs of Spring — particularly Tornadoes.

"Because this is the time of year when these violent and spectacular storms of nature are most likely to visit us."

Musick pointed out that there isn't really much a person can do to insure himself of complete safety when a tornado is around, unless he happens to be near a cave or underground excavation.

But the safety expert did list a few precautions a person might take that will lessen the danger or serious injury when a storm is in the area, they are:

1. If in open country, move at right angles to the tornado's path. Tornadoes usually move ahead at about 25 to 40 miles per hour. If there is no time to escape, lie flat in the nearest depression, such as a ditch or ravine.

2. The southwest corner of the lowest floor, or basement, offers the greatest safety at home. People living in brick or stone houses should seek other shelter, preferably in a storm cellar or the basement of a frame house. If time permits, electricity and fuel lines should be shut off.

3. If at school or in an office building of steel reinforced construction, stay inside, away from windows, near an inside wall on a lower floor.

4. Businesses and industrial plants should make advance preparation in case a tornado strikes. Employees should know where they can go for the greatest protection.

5. Keep calm! It will not help to get excited. People have been killed by running out into streets and by turning back into the path of a tornado.

Knox Prairie Philosopher Finds Scientists Are Now In A Race To Go In All Directions At Same Time

Editor's note: The Knox Prairie Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Miller Creek is taking a non-progressive attitude toward science this week, but we doubt it'll have any effect on science.

Dear editor:
Sooner or later I knew it would happen.

According to an article I read last night in a newspaper I picked up after it fell out of my neighbor's mail box after I tilted it a little, the United States and Russia are now in a race to see which one can penetrate the earth's surface first.

As I understand it, the earth's surface or crust is about eight-tens miles thick on the average, and what's underneath nobody knows for sure. However, there are spots in the ocean where the crust is only two or three miles thick, and since man can drill a hole four miles deep, scientists are now figuring on lowering their drilling instruments down to the bottom of the ocean floor near Puerto Rico and from there trying to penetrate the crust.

At the same time, Russia is in the same race, although nobody knows where she's trying. Consequently, the way it looks to me from my vantage point out here on my Johnson grass farm, the world is now in a race to see how far out and how far down it can go at the same time.

This is known as going in all directions at the same time. I know the feeling, it's sort of like spinning your tractor wheels trying to go forward while slipping sideways down a hill. It's like gunning your motor while standing still in a traffic jam.

And you can't criticize the scientists. Everybody's doing it. It's the same thing as working fifty hours to buy a power lawnmower to save an hour's pushing with the old style model once a week. Although you can still turn a row in and graze it off with no lawnmower at all.

As far as I'm concerned, it's perfectly all right for man to explore space in the morning and the inner core of the earth in the afternoon, with his nights free to figure up the tax bill for both ventures, but there's still plenty to interest me right here in eye-range of my front porch. For example, there's a newspaper out there on the ground now with a headline saying the cost of living index has gone up another notch. Mine hasn't. Ain't no notches left on mine.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Mrs. Oscar Cypert and Melvin and Mrs. Ed Jetton, Jerry and Sheryl were visitors in Wichita Falls last Monday.

Methods Of Mesquite Control Are Suggested By Committee Of S. C. D.

Control of brush is one of the major problems on grazing land throughout much of Texas and the Southwest. Mesquite is the principal species of brush in the Wichita-Brazos Soil Conservation District. Brush control is done to eliminate competition of brush with grass for moisture, soil nutrients, and sunlight. Brush control also enables easier working of livestock and livestock gains are higher from treated areas than from untreated areas. Native grassland treated to control moderate to dense stands of mesquite has produced 22 per cent greater gain per acre and 34 pounds more gain per steer than untreated pastures. The annual increased returns from the control of mesquite have amounted to a little over $1.00 per acre over a 9 year period of study.

Methods of controlling mesquite are: chemicals by aerial spray, diesel or kerosene applied to base of tree, root plowing, dozing, and chaining on tree type mesquite. Mesquite is an aggressive and persistent weed on large areas of grazing land and its control is closely similar to that of noxious weeds on cropland. In the initial invading stage, costly elimination measures such as grubbing or oiling may be used to advantage along with good range management practice to control this shrub. But once extensive areas become infested with old seed bearing plants repeated use of low cost control measures, such as aerial spray or chaining followed in 4 or 5 years with aerial spray offer the greatest benefit for the money invested. Some of these low cost measures may not give high initial kill, but repeated use at intervals of 5 to 10 years will largely control reinfestation from sprout growth and from large numbers of seed in the soil.

The greatest value of the more costly measures of brush control such as grubbing, oiling, and root plowing is on land that has high potential productivity and needs to be seeded to a mixture of native and introduced grasses. The rancher or livestock farmer needs to plan to do follow-up work of some kind on brush control, even on root plowed or tree dozed pastures. These more costly methods of brush control will normally give good control for more than 10 to 15 years.

Brush control can return maximum benefits only when combined with other sound range management practices such as Proper Use of Grassland and Deferred Grazing. By the same token management practices alone cannot

Civil Defense Unit Has Meet

The Civil Defense unit of Munday held its regular meeting at 8:30 p. m. Monday at the fire hall.

Gene Brown was elected secretary of the local unit, and the remaining officers will be elected at the next meeting, which will be at 8:30 p. m. Monday, May 4, at the fire hall. Everyone interested in Civil Defense work is urged to be present.

Thirty one members were present for the first meeting.

The new tornado warning system was worked on and tried out as to its efficiency. The fire siren was blown for 30 seconds in continuous blast, then stopped for a minute, then given another 30-second blast.

We urge everyone interested to attend the meeting at 8:30 Monday night, May 4. — Gene Brown, secretary.

Munday Students Participate In Scholarship Test

Seventeen students at the Munday High School took the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test, Joe Canafax, Principal, announced today. The test was administered at the high school at 9:00 a. m. Tuesday, April 28.

The test is the first step in competition for Merit Scholarships provided by some 90 corporations, foundations, professional societies and individuals, as well as by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation itself. Some $15 million in Merit Scholarships has been awarded in the first four years of the program.

The number of scholarships awarded in any year depends upon the extent of sponsor participation. The basic continuing program is for one million dollars a year (for ten annual programs).

The National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test is a three hour measure of educational development and college aptitude. Emphasis is on broad intellectual skills, and on understanding and ability to use what has been learned, rather than on sheer knowledge of facts.

Some 10,000 Semifinalists, the highest scorers in each state, will be named early next fall. Each Semifinalist will take a second examination. Those who repeat their high performance on the second examination will become Finalists. Further evaluation of their grades, citizenship, and extra-curricular achievements will follow, and the winners will be announced in the Spring of 1960.

The test results will be reported to all participating schools

Former Pastor Here

Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Michael of Wellington were guests in the home of Mrs. P. B. Baker last Sunday night and visited with friends around town on Monday before returning home. Rev. Michael, former pastor here, preached at the evening service at the First Methodist Church.

May 3 is Rural Life Sunday. It is the day set aside by rural churches — the fifth Sunday after Easter — to emphasize the spiritual values of rural living. In Texas and other states, 4-H club members will take an active part in the observance.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT
