WHEN TIMES WERE HARD

George McKee, Anderson, South Carolina says times are not hard. Here's the way George puts it:

"Don't talk to me about hard times. I was born eight miles from a schoolhouse, nine miles from a church, 865 miles from New York, 200 yards from a wash hole, 15 feet from a corn crib and 8,767 miles from Hong Kong."

"Our nearest neighbors lived two miles away and they couldn't read or write. I never saw a suit of underwear till I was 17 years old. The only book we had in the house during my early childhood was a Bible and a catalog somebody had sent us."

"There were twelve members in our family, but you see we had three rooms to live in, including dining room which was also the kitchen. Everybody worked at our home. We thought that everybody else in the world had gravy and bread for breakfast, liver and cracklin' hownake for dinner, butter milk and corn pone for supper, 'cause that's what we had—and we liked it."

"Some of us wore brogan shoes occasionally in the winter time. We had nice white shirts for summer time use. We slept on straw ticks and pillows were not thought of or required. I didn't know that money would rattle till I was nearly grown. Father got hold of two half dollars at the same time and let me hear them rattle. Taxes were not higher but harder to pay than now. We owned two kerosene lamps, neither of which had a chimney. Our house wasn't ceiled, but two of our rooms had latta in them. We had a glass window in our company room. Our nicest piece of furniture was a home made rocking chair. Our beds were of the slat or tight-rope variety. The 'trundle bed' took care of all the young-uns under five years of age, and stayed full all of the time."

"We went to school two or three months in the year, but not in a bus. We attended church once a month, but not in a car—we used a two-mule wagon. We dressed up on Sundays but not in silks and satins. We neither wrote letters nor received any. We made our own lye hominy, distilled our own lye from our own ash hopper. We drank sassafras tea and never had a yearning for coffee."

"We sipped our own molasses, we ate our own meat; we had heard of cheese but never ate any; we considered rice a delicacy for only the preacher to eat; we knew of some store clothes, but never hoped to wear any; we got a stick of candy and three raisins for Christmas and were happy; we loved pa and ma and were never hungry, enjoyed going naked, didn't want much, expected nothing. And that's why our so-called hard times are not hard on me."

NEW ELECTION LAW IN FORCE

Beginning with September 1 from now on the State of Texas will be governed by a new election law. The object of the new law is to secure election returns from all elections at a much earlier date. The following are some of the provisions of the act which is known as Senate Bill 395.

1. Precinct election officers are required to telephone unofficial returns to the County Clerk—county chairman in case of primaries—when they complete the count. Official returns under seal are required to be made within twenty-four hours. Previously no unofficial returns were provided for, and in case of primaries four days were allowed for making official returns, which could not be lawfully tabulated and announced until the eighth day.

2. The county clerk is required to tabulate unofficial returns from the precincts up to midnight on election day, and to announce the status of the count at intervals. In primary elections this duty is laid upon the county chairman. Heretofore there have been no provisions for tabulating unofficial returns.

3. Where unofficial returns have been tabulated from all precincts in the county, the county clerk is required to transmit the totals for each candidate to the secretary of state by telegraph, or by the most expeditious means available.

4. The secretary of state is required to tabulate unofficial returns as received and announce the status of the count once each day. This applies both to primaries and public elections.

5. Provision is made to mandamus precinct judges to compel returns when not made within the time limit. This is the duty of the county attorney to bring action on relation of the county chairman.

Penalty
Any officer, election officer or judge, clerk or supervisor of any primary election who shall violate any provision of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than fifty ($50) dollars, nor more than one thousand ($1,000) dollars, or shall be confined in the county jail for a period not to exceed one year, or shall be punished by both such fine and imprisonment.

JOHN R. KEEN, ADVERTISING MANAGER OF THE AUSTIN (TEX) AMERICAN, SAYS:

That the world today offers greater opportunity for brains than ever before in the history of this. The four years of unprecedented deflation through which we have passed and from which we are emerging has awakened us to the realization that for the past ten years merchandising has carried the merchant along without brains or effort.

From now on the merchant must advertise if he is to conduct a successful business. Advertising is one of the largest contributing factors in successful merchandising. The newspaper is acknowledged to be the best medium for the message of the retailer. It is bought and read by his prospective customers. It reaches them more quickly and often than other mediums, and thus provides a means of quick changes in prices, plans and policies.

But what is the function of the newspaper as an advertising medium? IT IS TO CARRY YOUR MESSAGE TO THE CUSTOMER. Don't blame the paper if you failed to get results, provided the paper reached the people and was read by them. Do you blame the post office if you write a letter to New York ordering two hundred suits of clothes? Not if the letter reached the house to which it was addressed. Your failure to get the clothes may be due to your poor credit, the house may be out of those clothes or other causes may be to blame for the failure to get results. No more is the failure of your advertising in getting results, if the message reached the people for whom it was intended. It may be the fault of your service in the store, your prices may be out of line, your quality may be poor or you may not have push enough in your copy. There may be a dozen reasons why that ad did not pull. But the newspaper advertising is not futile just because your ads don't get results.

Wake up! The only man who can make a success of your store is yourself. Get on your toes! Find the trouble; right the wrongs, use your head and the future will be the best you have ever known.

These are times that try men's souls. The strong man will win. BRAINS WILL SUCCEED. LET'S GO!

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks pink, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Can't blame your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in pimples. Your head aches and you feel drowsy and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, acting when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Beware a substitute, for at drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

NEAR SENSATION IS PREDICTED IN NEAR FUTURE BY AUNT

Aunt Della, here visiting her niece, Mrs. Joe Peaberry, is a philosopher with a shrewd, practical twist. Joe reports. It seems Thursday the old lady was talking to Mrs. Peaberry and said: "Now, I don't want any foolishness when I die. I want to be buried in my black silk, but you just take out the back and you can make a new dress with it." "Why, Aunty?" exclaimed Mrs. Peaberry. "You don't want me to do anything like that. Why, when you go walking up those golden stairs, you don't want everybody to see you turning to stone at you!" "They won't be staring at me," chuckled the philosopher. "I buried your Uncle Ed with out any pants."

Among the Sick
Henry Walker, since winning a cow in a raffle, had the worst luck possible. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, just as Henry crosses the street in front of his house, the cow would moo and Henry nearly fall a leg in frantic bounds across the street thinking it was the horn of J. Peaberry's new Defencible Six. Then Thursday he steeled his nerves as he started across and when the moo came refused to budge. Only that time it wasn't the cow.

YOUR HEALTH AND MINE

By Doc Gillingbery

Dear Doc: Please give a brief discussion of dandruff and oblige a fellow sufferer—Egg Knob.

Dear Egg Knob: The word "dandruff" is taken from two Greek words, "danda," meaning friend or friendly, and "ruffa," meaning barber. That is to say, in the vernacular, "the barber's friend." Advice to sufferers, therefore, comes in giving a solemn warning to stay away from barber shops. Dandruff is sometimes treated by dipping the subject in kerosene, but this practice can not be recommended to doctors having but small practices and few patients to spare.

Dear Doc Gillingbery: What would your advice be to a young physician, just out of medical college, starved to set up shop?—Enthusiast.

Dear Enthusiast: Set up a plumbing shop.

Dear Doc Gillingbery: My mother-in-law, who has been visiting us for the last six weeks, imagines she has stomach or something and wants me to bring home a bottle of medicine. What would you advise I buy?—Harried.

Dear Harried: I am not allowed to publish names of poisons.

Literary Information

Ike Fitchey, plumber and poet, when asked if he burned with fire when he wrote his poems, replied he only wrote, the editors did the burning.

LOCAL MOTORIST HAS NEAR CALL

Joe Peaberry, developing into quite a motorist since he acquired his Defencible Six, is being treated at home with rest, quiet and lots of fresh eggs this week. It seems Joe was spinning along the countryside last Saturday afternoon, when he found his girl blocked by a junk wagon. The wagon jumped along, the road was narrow and Joe became impatient. He honked. The driver paid no attention. Joe clapped his hand on the horn and banked a full three corners.

The junk wagon driver turned his head grimly.

"All right, hon," he said. "I'll call for that tomorrow."

Generally however, Joe is fast developing into the philosophical type of driver. Wednesday he was brought word that his wife, out driving the machine, had plowed through a bridge railing and into the river. "That's all right," said Joe. "That engine was getting pretty hot anyway."

RIFTED LUTE HEARD

"I admit I am foolish sometimes," said Doc Gillingbery Tuesday evening as he wound up a brisk set to with his wife over some point of disagreement.

"After all, remember we had monkeys for ancestors." "I am not complaining about that," snorted the other half. "What I am complaining of is your ancestors had monkeys for descendants!"

AUNT BELLUM'S QUESTION BOX

Dear Aunty Bellum: I am a young man, just 32, and I have studied a barber course by correspondence and now feel capable of shaving the most particular, etc.

Yet you see I have not had a chance to try my skill, etc. for none of my friends will hold of the idea or even come near if I have a razor in my hand. I am bitterly disappointed. How can I express it?—Broken-Hearted Jim.

Dear Broken-Hearted Jim: Oh, I understand. You'd like to scrape an acquaintance.

Dear Aunty: What is the population of Ireland?—Inquisitive Elmer. Dear Inquisitive Elmer: Irish.

Dear Aunty B: In going to a formal dinner, which fork should a gentleman take first?—Apprehensive Taxpayer.

Dear Apprehensive Taxpayer: If you're a gentleman, you won't ask any forks at all.

Dear Aunty: What do you think of raising rabbits on corn stalks?—Pete.

Dear Pete: I think it's all right. I'd hate to say what the rabbits would think, though.

Reading those who have told me that I am not a real doctor, I'm understanding.

Henry is having an awful time raising his cow. He wants to name her Emma after an aunt, but is afraid Emma will visit them and will get mad. Then he wants to name her Jessie after another aunt, but is afraid that one will visit, and the cow will get mad.

Beginning with September 1 from now on the State of Texas will be governed by a new election law. The object of the new law is to secure election returns from all elections at a much earlier date. The following are some of the provisions of the act which is known as Senate Bill 395.

Cotton Plan

up chiefly of cotton landowners and professional farm "leaders." At its beginning every conceivable division of the cotton industry, except that of landlords and tenants, was asked to stand up to be counted. The "hired farmers" were made to stand up under three different classifications. But there was no effort to ascertain how many cotton tenants were present. To be sure, the vast majority of cotton farmers in the States of Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, and Arkansas, which the meeting represented, are tenants. But, of course, tenants ought not to be given a voice in such a matter. The object of the meeting was to retire land from cultivation, and tenants do not control any land. It was properly a landowner's meeting, and consequently the plan, drawn so definitely in the interest of landowners, was endorsed unanimously by those present. Indeed, the details of the plan, as explained to the meeting, were received with enthusiasm. In view of this, it may be taken for granted that nothing can prevent the putting of this plan into effect. We might just as well face the fact that the problem of unemployed cotton tenants is one that Texas and the South will have to deal with in the immediate future.

Moreover, if the objective outlined by Administrator C. A. Cobb at the Dallas meeting is attained, the problem will not be merely a temporary one. Mr. Cobb told the meeting that there is no reason why all the American cotton that the world will buy at a profitable price could not be produced on 25,000,000 acres. He pointed to cotton-growing records made by 4-H Club boys and girls as proof that it is no trick at all to produce a bale of cotton to an acre, to say nothing of enough to make a normal crop of 14,000,000 bales on 25,000,000 acres. While the plan provides that the average in 1935 shall not be less than 777 per cent of the five-year average, this is subject to change. If cotton landowners find that the 25,000,000 acre limit is profitable in 1934, there is every reason to expect that they will favor continuing it, especially if they can continue to receive such an attractive rental for the uncultivated land from the Government as will be paid in 1934. The outlook, therefore, is not merely that we must find some way of taking care of 200,000 unemployed cotton tenants and their families during the coming year, but that we must find some way of absorbing them in other economic activities permanently. But the problem is facing us, and apparently there is no escaping it.

What all this means to Texas in the immediate future is plain. We are going to have some 80,000 on permanent relief during the next year. There is going to be plenty of use for the $20,000,000 bond issue that was authorized at the recent election for relief. And it is one of the ironies of the situation that not one dollar of taxes may be levied on cotton lands to provide for that bond issue. And let no one conclude, as some seem to imagine, that the displaced tenants will be "mostly negroes." Even if this were true, it would be difficult to see how it would simplify the problem. But that is not true in Texas, in any event, because less than 22 per cent of the farm tenants of Texas are negroes, more than 78 per cent being white. In many counties in Texas (and in other states too, for that matter) a forerunner of what may be expected is being had as a result of the limited work for cotton pickers, due to the plow-up. But tenants are sharing in the plow-up money this year, because they have an equity in the cotton plowed up on tenant farms. The eliminated tenant will have no equity in anything next year, and conditions will be correspondingly worse. What can be done about it does not appear. Both the Agricultural Adjustment Administration and the owners of cotton lands seem determined to put this plan into effect, regardless of consequences to the community as a whole, and we do not know any way to stop them. However, we can at least insure that the true character of the plan and the probable consequence shall be understood. If there is such understanding, we may be able to prepare to deal with the situation.—The Texas Weekly.

"Proud and glad to do our part"

WITH President Roosevelt's acceptance of the NRA Automobile Code, Chevrolet, the world's largest builder of motor cars, officially begins operations in accordance with the administration's recovery program.

Although the official code was signed only a few days ago, it will be of interest to Chevrolet's many friends to learn that the Chevrolet Motor Company started to carry out the spirit of today's recovery program over three years ago!

At that time, we put into operation a "share-the-work" plan, whereby our workmen cooperated in spreading the work to give more men jobs. By means of this plan, as well as by regulating hours of work per week to meet retail demand, and by building up parts stocks in lean seasons, it was possible to carry 33,000 men on our payroll through the depression. For eleven months of each year since 1929, we have kept our employment within 10 per cent of this average. We are justly proud of that record. We are also proud to say that Chevrolet workmen did not, at any time during the depression, become a burden on public welfare departments.

On August 1st of this year, Chevrolet announced a blanket wage increase as well as the adoption of a 7½-hour, 5-day week and the employment of 12,000 additional men. This wage increase was the second in the last 4 months, Chevrolet having been among the first to put a blanket wage increase into effect.

We feel that the President's recovery program deserves the whole-hearted support of every citizen and manufacturer in America. It is a bold, swift, courageous plan to start the ball rolling toward economic recovery. Its sincerity is unquestioned. Its objectives are admirable. And the direct, forceful steps the President and his associates are taking to make it a success, should stir the pride and admiration of every American.

We are proud and glad to do our part. And we are deeply grateful to the American people for the patronage that has enabled us to anticipate the present recovery program and to play our part today. After all, the immense number of men employed by Chevrolet is a direct result of the continued preference America has shown for Chevrolet.

WHEN TIMES WERE HARD

George McKee, Anderson, South Caroline says times are not hard. Here's the way George puts it:

"Don't talk to me about hard times, I was born eight miles from a school-house, nine miles from a church, 855 miles from New York, 200 yards from a wash hole, 15 feet from a corn crib and 8,707 miles from Hong Kong."

"Our nearest neighbors lived two miles away and they couldn't read or write. I never saw a suit of underwear till I was 17 years old. The only book we had in the house during my early childhood was a Bible and a catalog somebody had sent us. There were twelve members in our family, but, you see we had three rooms to live in, including dining room which was also the kitchen. Everybody worked at our house. We thought that everybody else in the world had gravy and bread for breakfast, liver and cracklin' hocks for dinner, butter milk and corn pone for supper, 'cause that's what we had—and we liked it."

"Some of us wore bronco shoes occasionally in the winter. We had nice white shirts for summer time use. We slept on straw ticks and pillows were not thought of or required. I didn't know that money would rattle till I was nearly grown. Father got hold of two half dollars at the same time and let me hear them rattle. Taxes were not higher but harder to pay than now. We owned two kerosene lamps, neither of which had a chimney. Our house wasn't celled, but two of our rooms had lofts in them. We had a glass window in our company room. Our nicest piece of furniture was a home made rocking chair. Our beds were of the flat or tight-rope variety. The 'trundle bed' took care of all the young-uns under five years of age, and stayed full all of the time."

"We went to school two or three months in the year, but not in a bus. We attended church once a month, but not in a car—we used a two-mule wagon. We dressed up on Sundays but not in silks and satins. We neither wrote letters nor received any. We made our own lye hominy, distilled our own lye from our own ash hopper. We drank sassafras tea and never had a yearning for coffee."

"We sipped our own molasses, we ate our own meat; we had heard of cheese but never ate any; we considered rice a delicacy for only the preacher to eat; we knew of some store clothes, but never hoped to wear any; we got a stick of candy and three raisins for Christmas and were happy; we loved pa and ma and were never hungry, enjoyed going naked, didn't want much, expected nothing. And that's why our so-called hard times are not hard on me."

5. Provision is made to mandamus precinct judges to compel returns when not made within the time limit. This is the duty of the county attorney to bring action on relation of the county chairman.

Penalty
Any officer, election officer or judge, clerk or supervisor of any primary election who shall violate any provision of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than fifty ($50) dollars, nor more than one thousand ($1,000) dollars, or shall be confined in the county jail for a period not to exceed one year, or shall be punished by both such fines and imprisonment.

JOHN R. KEEN, ADVERTISING MANAGER OF THE AUSTIN (TEX) AMERICAN, SAYS:

That the world today offers greater opportunity for brains than ever before in the history of this country. The four years of unprecedented deflation through which we have passed and from which we are emerging has awakened us to the realization that for the past ten years merchandising has carried the merchant along without brains or effort.

From now on the merchant must advertise if he is to conduct a successful business. Advertising is one of the largest contributing factors in successful merchandising. The newspaper is acknowledged to be the best medium for the message of the retailer. It is bought and read by his prospective customers. It reaches them more quickly and often than other mediums, and thus provides a means of quick changes in prices, plans and policies.

But what is the function of the newspaper as an advertising medium? IT IS TO CARRY YOUR MESSAGE TO THE CUSTOMER. Don't blame the paper if you failed to get results, provided the paper reached the people and was read by them. Do you blame the post office if you write a letter to New York ordering two hundred suits of clothes? Not if the letter reached the house to which it was addressed. Your failure to get the clothes may be due to your poor credit, the house may be out of those clothes or other causes may be to blame for the failure to get results. No more is the newspaper to blame for the failure of your advertising in getting results, if the message reached the people for whom it was intended. It may be the fault of your service in the store, your prices may be out of line, your quality may be poor or you may not have patch enough in your copy. There may be a dozen reasons why that ad did not pull. But the newspaper advertising is not futile just because your ads don't get results.

Wake up! The only man who can make a success of your store is yourself. Get on your toes! Find the trouble; right the wrongs, use your head and the future will be the best you have ever known.

These are times that try men's souls. The strong man will win. BRAINS WILL SUCCEED. LET'S GO!

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sick and the world looks pink, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Can't you see your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. This often breaks out in blotches. Your head aches and feet feel drowsy and hot. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for Beer Pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Beware a substitute. 25c at drug stores. CHAS. C. M. Co.

NEAR SENSATION IS PREDICTED IN NEAR FUTURE BY AUNTY

Aunty Della, here visiting her niece, Mrs. Joe Peaberry, is a philosopher with a shrewd, practical twist. Joe reports. It seems Thursday the old lady, talking to Mrs. Peaberry and said: "Now, I don't want any foolishness when I die. I want to be buried in my black silk, but you just take out the back and you can make a new dress with it."

"Why, Aunty!" exclaimed Mrs. Peaberry. "You don't want me to do anything like that. Why, when you go walking up those golden stairs, you don't want everybody turning to stare at you!"

"They won't be staring at me," chuckled the philosopher. "I buried your Uncle Ed with 'em out any pants."

Henry Walcott, once winning a cow in a raffle, had the worst luck possible. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, just as Henry crossed the street in front of his house, the cow would moo and Henry nearly lost a leg in frantic bounds across the street thinking it was the horn of Joe Peaberry's new Defencibles. Six. Then Thursday he stole his nerves as he started across, and when the moon came refused to budge. Only that time it wasn't the cow.

Keep It.
Joe Peaberry, developing into quite a motorist since he acquired his Defencibles Six, is being treated at home with rest, quiet and lots of fresh eggs this week. It seems Joe was spinning along the countryside last Saturday afternoon, when he found his pit blocked by a junk wagon. The wagon jammed along, the road was narrow and Joe became impatient. He hopped. The driver paid no attention. Joe clapped his hand on the horn and hunked a full three minutes.

The junk wagon driver turned his head grimly.
"All right, boss," he said. "I'll call for that tomorrow."

Generally, however, Joe is fast developing into the philosophical type of driver. Wednesday he was brought word that his wife, out driving the machine, had plunged through a bridge railing and into the river. "That's all right," said Joe. "That engine was getting pretty hot anyway."

Dear Doc: Please give a brief discussion of dandruff and oblige a fellow sufferer—Egg Knob.
Dear Egg Knob: The word "dandruff" is taken from two Greek words, "danda," meaning friend or friendly, and "ruffa," meaning barber. That is to say, in the vernacular, "the barber's friend." Advice to sufferers, therefore, comes in giving a solemn warning to stay away from barber shops. Dandruff is sometimes treated by dipping the subject in kerosene, but this practice can not be recommended to doctors having but small practices and few patients to spare.

Dear Doc Gillinghsby: What would your advice be to a young physician, just out of medical college, striving to set up shop?—Enthusiast.

Dear Enthusiast: Set up a plumbing shop.

Dear Doc Gillinghsby: My mother-in-law, who has been visiting us for the last six weeks, imagines she has sickness or something and wants me to bring home a bottle of medicine. What would you advise? I beg?—Harriet.

Dear Harriet: I am not allowed to publish names of poison.

up chiefly of cotton landowners and professional farm "leaders." At its beginning every conceivable division of the cotton industry, except that of landlords and tenants, was asked to stand up to be counted. The "dirt farmers" were made to stand up under three different classifications. But there was no effort to ascertain how many cotton tenants were present. To be sure, the vast majority of cotton farmers in the States of Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, and Arkansas, which the meeting represented, are tenants. But, of course, tenants ought not to be given a voice in such a matter. The object of the meeting was to retire land from cultivation, and tenants do not control any land. It was properly a landowner's meeting, and consequently the plan, drawn so definitely in the interest of landowners, was endorsed unanimously by those present. Indeed, the details of the plan, as explained to the meeting, were received with enthusiasm. In view of this, it may be taken for granted that nothing can prevent the putting of this plan into effect. We might just as well face the fact that the problem of unemployed cotton tenants is one that Texas and the South will have to deal with in the immediate future.

Moreover, if the objective outlined by Administrator C. A. Cobb at the Dallas meeting is attained, the problem will not be merely a temporary one. Mr. Cobb told the meeting that there is no reason why all the American cotton that the world will buy at a profitable price could not be produced on 25,000,000 acres. He pointed to cotton-growing records made by 4-H Club boys and girls as proof that it is no trick at all to produce a bale of cotton to an acre, to say nothing of enough to make a normal crop of 14,000,000 bales on 25,000,000 acres. While the plan provides that the average in 1935 shall not be less than 777 per cent of the five-year average, this is subject to change. If cotton landowners find that the 25,000,000 acre limit is profitable in 1934, there is every reason to expect that they will favor continuing it, especially if they can continue to receive such an attractive rental for the uncultivated land from the Government as will be paid in 1934. The outlook, therefore, is not merely that we must find some way of taking care of 200,000 unemployed cotton tenants and their families during the coming year, but that we must find some way of absorbing them in other economic activities permanently. But the problem is facing us, and apparently there is no escaping it.

What all this means to Texas in the immediate future is plain. We are going to have some 80,000 on permanent relief during the next year. There is going to be plenty of use for the $20,000,000 bond issue that was authorized at the recent election for relief. And it is one of the ironies of the situation that not one dollar of taxes may be levied on cotton lands to provide for that bond issue. And let no one conclude, as some seem to imagine, that the displaced tenants will be "mostly negroes." Even if this were true, it would be difficult to see how it would simplify the problem. But that is not true in Texas, in any event, because less than 22 per cent of the farm tenants of Texas are negroes, more than 78 per cent being white. In many counties in Texas (and in other states too, for that matter) a foretaste of what may be expected is being had as a result of the limited work for cotton pickers, due to the plow-up. But tenants are sharing in the plow-up money this year, because they have an equity in the cotton plowed up on tenant farms. The eliminated tenant will have no equity in anything next year, and conditions will be correspondingly worse. What can be done about it does not appear. Both the Agricultural Adjustment Administration and the owners of cotton lands seem determined to put this plan into effect, regardless of consequences to the community as a whole, and we do not know any way to stop them. However, we can at least insure that the true character of the plan and the probable consequence shall be understood, if there is such understanding, we may be able to prepare to deal with the situation.—The Texas Weekly.

"Proud and glad to do our part"

WITH President Roosevelt's acceptance of the NRA Automobile Code, Chevrolet, the world's largest builder of motor cars, officially begins operations in accordance with the administration's recovery program.

Although the official code was signed only a few days ago, it will be of interest to Chevrolet's many friends to learn that the Chevrolet Motor Company started to carry out the spirit of today's recovery program over three years ago!

At that time, we put into operation a "share-the-work" plan, whereby our workmen cooperated in spreading the work to give more men jobs. By means of this plan, as well as by regulating hours of work per week to meet retail demand, and by building up parts stocks in lean seasons, it was possible to carry 33,000 men on our payroll through the depression. For eleven months of each year since 1929, we have kept our employment within 10 per cent of this average. We are justly proud of that record. We are also proud to say that Chevrolet workmen did not, at any time during the depression, become a burden on public welfare departments.

On August 1st of this year, Chevrolet announced a blanket wage increase as well as the adoption of a 7½-hour, 5-day week and the employment of 12,000 additional men. This wage increase was the second in the last 4 months, Chevrolet having been among the first to put a blanket wage increase into effect.

We feel that the President's recovery program deserves the whole-hearted support of every citizen and manufacturer in America. It is a bold, swift, courageous plan to start the ball rolling toward economic recovery. Its sincerity is unquestioned. Its objectives are admirable. And the direct, forceful steps the President and his associates are taking to make it a success, should stir the pride and admiration of every American.

We are proud and glad to do our part. And we are deeply grateful to the American people for the patronage that has enabled us to anticipate the present recovery program and to play our part today. After all, the immense number of men employed by Chevrolet is a direct result of the continued preference America has shown for Chevrolet.

The Sunset school closed the first month of the new term Friday, and from all accounts it is running very smoothly. The scholastic enrollment for the district is 463, which is the largest enrollment the school has ever had. In carrying out the plans of the present administration at Austin, the Sunset school is taking care of the high school students from the Lone Star, CHH and Dennis Chapel districts in Haskell county. In order to do this the district purchased a new International Bus from Fred Broach.

Supt. Harber and Mr. Henry made a business trip to Austin last week. They report a very successful trip and from all appearances at the present time Sunset will enjoy a very prosperous year. School will be dismissed Sept. 22, for a few weeks to allow the children to participate in cotton picking. The average daily attendance for the past month was 70.4%.
