NO. 13

This is a brand new year! The scantily-clad little tyke, 1977, made his appearance Saturday morning, just a wink after midnight. It was a hurry-up transition. because Old Man 1976 just had time to disappear before the youngster came upon ston, commissioner of Prethe scene.

The child didn't disturb us none with his antics. We didn't even complain about the boisterous people who welcomed 1977 into being. The noisemakers, the hilarity, the joyous shouts, the elinking of champagne New and Used glasses (if any) didn't bother us one whit.

You see, the old sandman had taken charge long before the old year ended. and he wasn't about to give his charge to a little scamp with diapers and wearing a banner about his frontage.

So, by the time we regained consciousness, the new year had advanced by several hours-and we weren't any the worse off. We felt better than a lot of peoplel Our last act of the old year was to watch the Bluebonnet. Bowl game in which Texas Tech again came out the loser. The game was so interesting, however, that we remained awake for the entire four quarters. This is something we've rarely done in a night-time TV performance. Our eyes become heavy, and we turn things over to the stout-hearted at about halftime. Before the first day of the new year ended, we had taken on a mite of blackeye peas, just so if luck turns sour at some period in the future, we can't blame it on our failure to perform that

Speaking of chores, it was a chilly chore for those of the Lions Club who had been relegated the task of making our flags fly on all proper occasions during the first three months of the year. Saturday morning we had a low reading of nine degrees, plus a whopping chill factor. when time came to put the flags in place about our

But when named by the club president for this job, one or more of the group replied with: "They'll be flying

We spent a greater part of the first day of the new year with eyes glued to the TV set. The programs commanded our attention pretty good, what with the Rose Bowl parade and four football bowl games on tap during the day. Then on Sunday by nightfall, we had witnessed our sixth bowl game. These included the Bluebonnet Bowl on Friday night, the Sugar Bowl, Cotton Bowl, Rose Bowl and Orange Bowl, then the Sun Bowl on Sunday. It was consoling that two of our Texas teams, Houston and Texas A&M, chalked up victories in these.

So, you're well into the new year, too. What are you going to do about it?

By the time you read this, if you do, you will be well into the sixth day of the new year. There will be only 359 days remaining-and the price of coffee may continue to rise!

Cotton Office Closes

The Munday Classing Office closed on December 30, 1976; according to Sidney Ferrell, in charge. Samples from the small amount of cotton remaining to be ginned will be sent to our Abilene office for classification.

The Munday office classed 68,040 samples during the two months it operated. In addition, approximately 3500 samples were classed in Abilene before this office opened. A few hundred more are expected, which will bring the season total close to 72,000 bales harvested in the Munday territory. Grade 42 was the predominant quality for the season, averaging 41 percent. Grade 41 averaged 23 percent, and grade 51 averaged 13 percent. Grade 52 accounted for 11 percent of the season's classing, and grade 32 was 7 percent. Cotton reduced in grade because of bark or grass averaged 13 percent.

The predominant fiber length was staple 32, averaging 57 percent. Staple 30 was next with 22 percent. and staple 32 accounted for 18 percent of the season's total.

Micronaire readings in the 3.5 to 4.9 range accounted for 76 percent of the cotton tested while cotton miking 5.0 to 5.2 accounted for 18 percent. Cotton miking 5.3 or higher was 4 percent for the season and that miking below 3.5 was 2 percent.

TEXAS DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE John C. White, Commissioner

The Change Is Here . . . One More Time.

With the new year comes a new system in seed standards for Texas, and when you buy certified seed they will apply to you.

Certified seed carries two labels. One label will be the official certification; this will assure that the seed is the variety stated on the label

The other label will list analysis of the seed. These will include such factors as purity, inert matter, other crop seed, weed seed, noxious weed seed, and germination percentage.

That's the label you'll need to study carefully to determine if the seed will meet your requirements.

It will be up to you as an individual producer to study the label to make sure you are getting the seed best suited for you

The Texas state seed law has as its purpose to assure agricultural producers of getting the best seed possible. Reasons for the change include encouraging competition for producing higher quality seed; allowing production of certified seed having quality characteristics for different markets; encouraging international seed trade; and establishing uniformity with the federal seed act.

Producers having questions about the change should contact Texas Department of Agriculture officials. The TDA is charged with the responsibility of administering the

One of the most asked questions concerns how the variety identification is insured by certified seed. The registered class of seed must be produced from foundation or breeder class of seed. The certified class of seed must be produced from foundation, registered, or breeder class of seed. Seed production fields and processing plants are inspected by the TDA to insure that genetic identity is Another question relates to certified seed having a high germination percentage. The germination percentage may vary. It is required that the analysis label give the germination percentage, and you must then determine if this meets your requirements.

Your seed dealer can also answer other questions relating to the new standards now in effect throughout the

ONE MORE REMINDER comes from the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service about those crop and livestock questionnaires.

About 75,000 Texas agricultural producers have or will be receiving a crop or livestock questionnaire. If you do receive such a form, you are requested to fill it out as accurately as possible and return it promptly. These will be the basis for determining the financial balance sheet for Texas agriculture, our state's most basic and important industry.

The reports will be confidential and will not be released on an individual basis to anyone.

All figures will be used as they relate to county, state, and national totals for agriculture production figures.

Farm Workers Wage Reports Are Due By January 31, '77

Farmers and crew leaders who hire farm workers have until January 31 to send 1976 wage reports and social security contributions to the Internal Revenue Service. according to Carl R. Beisner, Social Security claims representative in Vernon.

"A farm worker paid $150 or more in cash wages by an employer in 1976 is covered by social security," Beisner said. "A worker who did farm work for an employer on 20 or more days during the year-figured on a time hasis rather than a piecerate basis--is also covered even if he is paid less than $150 during the year."

Marcy Dawn Graves arrived at Hendrick Memorial Hospital in Abilene at 7:52 p. m. on December 21, 1976. She weighed 7 pounds 41/2 ounces. Her parents are Bennie and Pam Graves of Abilene. Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Gene Haynie. Paternal grandparents are Rev. and Mrs. H. B. Graves Jr.

Employers send in annual wage reports for farm employees on a form available at Internal Revenue Service offices. The form is mailed to farmers and crew leaders who have IRS employer identification numbers.

A farm crew leader is generally considered to be the employer of his crew members if he supplies the workers to the farmer, pays hem, and is not an employee of the farmer by written agreement.

"If none of these requirements is met," Beisner said, "either the farmer or the crew leader may be the employer. The person with final control over the crew members who do the work is the employer."

The social security contribution is 5.85 percent of the employee's covered wages plus a matching amount paid by the employer. The maximum earnings amount that counts for social security-and on which contributions are paid--is $15,300 for 1976.

"An employer must keep a record of farm employees' wages if it's expected they'll be covered by social security," Beisner said. "The record must show the workers' names, their correct social security numbers, cash wages paid to them, and social security deductions from their pay." Some farm employers have deposited their employees' social security contributions in banks and other approved depositories in 1976, according to Beisner. "Those employers have until February 10 to file the annual wage report with the Internal Revenue Service," he said.

Social security contributions help build retirement, disability, survivors, and Medicare protection for over 2 million farm workers.

Visiting Mrs. Mable Jacobs and Jeanette during the holidays were her children Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Jacobs and children of Grapevine; Mr. and Mrs. Cloyce Mitchell and children of Wichita Falls. Remember when nobody wanted to be a farmer? Well, times are changing. If college enrollments mean anything as far as trends are concerned then look out! The farmers are coming! In its most recent report (1976), the National Association of Colleges and Teachers of Agriculture (NACTA) says enrollment in agricultural colleges has increased by about 160 percent since 1963. This kind of increase is almost exclusively in the field of agriculture (many other fields are seeing decreases) and today's total is expected to double by 1984. Number one area of interest for the new enrollees is agricultural economics. Second is agronomy, followed closely by animal science and agricultural education. This sudden educational awareness is another example of recognition of agriculture as one of the most dynamic present and future industries in our counry...and in the world.

Cong. Burleson Proposes National Health Care Act

WASHINGTON, D. C.-Representative Omar Burleson (D-Tex.) introduced legislation today that seeks to improve the nation's health care system without imposing excessive new taxes or creating a burdensome and expensive Federal bureaucracy.

In proposing the National Health Care Act of 1977, the veteran Texas legislator, who serves on the House Ways and Means Health Subcommittee, told Congress that the goal of better health care for all Americans can be attained now "if we enlist all our resources, private and public, in a meaningful and workable partnership to frame solutions that are both realistic and effective." Burleson said he believes this legislation offers us "the most effective, efficient and economical way to improve health care and extend its availability to all Americans. My bill would build on the present health delivery and insurance system with improved Federal standards and guidelines. It would not only improve protection for all Americans, but it would also help control the cost of health care. This bill would achieve these goals without destroying the present health care system which has served our nation well. It would not create a burdensome and expensive Federal bureaucracy and it would not impose unconscionably higher taxes on our already overtaxed citizenty. It is time to improve our present health delivery and insurance system, not destroy it."

He said the National Health Care Act addresses the most complex problems-rising medical costs, last of ambulatory health facilities, inadequate cost and quality controls, diffused leadership patterns, fear of catastrophic illness, and uneven benefit levels. Burleson noted that it does so "by the most efficient, least expensive methods, while blending the expertise and strengths of the major elements of the private sector with the unique capacities of Federal and State governments."

The National Health Care Act has important advantages over any Governmentadministered and financed program, Burleson explained. "For one thing, it would cost far less in Federal taxes and divert far fewer tax dollars from other highpriority social needs."

Burleson also noted that the Health Security Act, which was proposed in the last session of Congress, would require an increase in new Federal tax dollars of $130 billion by 1980, according to a cost study done for HEW in September, 1976. "The nation cannot afford such a new expenditure. The legislation I am introducing today would not create these excessive new taxes.'

Burleson concluded that this is no time to enact a program of nationalized compulsory health insurance that would greatly increase Federal health care costs and place an excessive new strain on the Federal budget. He said his program would achieve the objective of better health care without these adverse effects of higher taxes and an expanded Federal Government.
