Hon. Ruben Loftin Speaks To Good Crowd Saturday

Ruben Loftin of Henrietta, candidate for state senator from the 23rd district, spoke to a large and attentive audience on the street here Saturday afternoon. In his talk Mr. Loftin declared in favor of court reform measures, stating that he favored a change in the jury system in both civil and criminal cases which would permit nine members of the jury to render a verdict except in criminal cases where the death penalty was assessed. He is opposed to the Moody plan of selling off the penitentiary lands and centralizing the penitentiary system near Austin and charged that the plan was being sponsored by land syndicates seeking to get control of the fertile lands belonging to the State, which would in all likelihood ultimately be found rich in oil. Mr. Loftin also defended his prohibition record, which he stated had been challenged by one of his opponents, and stated that in 1911 he made speeches over Young county in the interest of the prohibition movement.

Smyser of Fellows, California; Mrs. Olive Tribble and son, Homer; Mr. and Mrs. C. Land, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wolfe of Memphis, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Floyd and children, Mildred, June Marie and A. ## Chemist's Analysis Shows Impurities In Wells In City

From reports received on specimens of water sent to the State Department of Health at Austin, there are a number of wells in the city that show to be contaminated, and again all citizens are warned not to use water from wells that have not been chlorinated at regular intervals. The State Board of Health recommends that wells be chlorinated every four or five days to be absolutely safe. The application of this precaution may prevent illness.

J. P. Kennedy For County Treasurer

As the campaign draws to a close I desire to say a final word to the voters of Knox County. Whatever the results of the election may be, I wish to say that my association with citizens of the county have been very pleasant, and every courtesy has been extended to me in all parts of the county, for which I shall ever be grateful.

When a person presents himself to the voters for their support for public office, there are several questions that naturally arise in the minds of the voters. Is he qualified? Is he honest and trustworthy? As to the qualifications I can say that I am in every respect well qualified to hold the position to which I aspire. I have had many years experience in clerical work, and for a number of years served as a deputy in the office of the county clerk of McLennan county at Waco.

Due to failing health some seventeen years ago I entered the rural mail service and served in that capacity until I was retired by having reached the age limit. And by way of answering the question as to trustworthiness beg to say that I have a letter from the American Surety Company, with whom I was bonded for seventeen years in the mail service, soliciting my bond for county treasurer in case I am elected to this post, and there is no better security than a surety bond on a reliable company like this, which has the sanction of the United States Government.

In some quarters it has been charged that I drew a pension from the Government as a retired mail carrier. In answer to this charge I beg to state that in 1920 the Federal Government began to deduct a portion of the salaries of all classified employees with which to create a fund to pay retired employees, and having contributed to the creation of this fund through deductions from my salary during all these years, it can by no means be called a "pension," but rather the payment in small installments of money that I have earned in years gone by, and which has been withheld by the government to be paid in small installments upon retirement from the mail service, and in no sense of the word could such a fund be termed a "pension." This explanation is made in order that the citizens may know the real facts and may cast their ballots with all the facts before them.

If honored with this responsible position I promise the citizens of Knox County an efficient and faithful administration, and will feel grateful to those who give me their support, and shall hold no malice toward those who do not.

Miss Ida Wyche, daughter of Mr. and E. C. Wyche, is in Alpine visiting relatives.

Myers and Sam Warren, all of Munday. Representatives from various sections of the state were present at the meeting, however, a full attendance was not here due to the fact that some delay occurred in getting transportation to delegates in all sections of the state, and in order that a full attendance might come together a hurried meeting was called to meet at Dallas on Thursday, and the delegates who were in attendance at the meeting here together with a number of local members left on Wednesday morning for Dallas.

PUBLIC VIEWPOINT

The United States has more land per capita than any other nation situated wholly within the north temperate zone. It has long produced enough of those staple farm commodities commonly grown in the north temperate zone to supply the home demand and have a large surplus for export. In all probability it will continue to grow more corn, cotton, wheat, oats, rye, flax, tobacco and other staple crops than its people can use. It will probably be an exporter of wheat, cotton and other farm products two hundred years from now.

The price this surplus will bring in a foreign market controls and must continue to control, the price that the whole crop will bring. Germany and England and the other nations that are near neighbors to Germany and England have been in the past and are at present our principle customers for this surplus of farm products. The price then that wheat or any other surplus crop will bring to the Texas farmer is determined by the price that it will bring in Germany and England. It follows then that lowers the price for which Texas wheat, cotton or any other staple crop can be sold in Germany and England at once lowers the price for which it can be sold in Texas.

Within the past fifteen months Germany has placed a tariff of 97 cents per bushel upon American wheat. Its neighbors, with the exception of England, have placed tariffs upon American wheat that vary from 55 cents to 74 cents per bushel. A bushel of Texas wheat cannot enter Germany until it has paid a tax of 97 cents. In this fact is to be found the true explanation for the low price of American farm products. They are low because the foreign customers of the American farmer are buying their supplies somewhere else or else are using substitutes or doing without.

The same thing has happened that happened in 1914. In 1914 Germany and England went to war and were unable to buy Texas wheat or Texas cotton, and Texas farmers were forced to sell wheat and cotton very low. In 1930 Germany and England are again unable to buy Texas wheat and Texas cotton, and Texas wheat and Texas cotton are selling as low as they sold in 1914.

It is obvious that if staple farm products continue to be as low as they are at present there is going to be hard times in Texas and so it might be profitable for Texas to begin to think about what can be done to supply our foreign customers and get them to again buy our staple farm products.

If Texas cares to do anything along this line, may I suggest that a good premise to begin to think from, that trade is reciprocal and that if we hope to continue to sell our farm products to England and Germany, it will probably be necessary to buy some manufactured goods from Germany and England. To buy manufactured goods from Germany and England the tariff wall that the United States has enacted principally for the benefit of Connecticut, Pennsylvania and their neighboring states must be lowered, and to lower this wall it is necessary that a Democratic Congress and a Democratic President be elected.

THINKING OUT LOUD

BY J. A. K.

Did you ever see a fellow who didn't think he had about the hardest job in the whole category?

In fact, the presiding elder of this column was just wondering why he couldn't take a week or two off and go fishing, like most folks do in the good old summertime.

But that doesn't mean that we don't like our job. In fact we wouldn't trade our job for any that we know of, but we would enjoy getting away from it for about a week or ten days each summer, and somehow we've never been able to do it.

If we have the time we haven't the money, and if we have the money we haven't the time. This is a funny business. If business is good we may have a little money and no time, and if it is poor we have a little time and no money.

About the only consolation that we can get out of it all is in in-

Kilgore's Korner

HELLO FOLKS! I am paying the newspapers of Knox County some good money for some of their space.

From time to time, as this campaign progresses, I will give you from this corner, divers and sundry deductions and ruminations for your amusement and edification. I have some old-fashioned notions about "work" that I desire to discuss this week; suppose for instance, I hire myself out to a farmer, for a month's work—say at $30.00 per week, well, I start in on Monday morning and do more or less work, mostly less, the first week, however I am around the place every day. All right, the second week I start in Monday morning and work, as before, more or less until say, Thursday at noon, and I knock off for that week. On Monday morning I start in as usual, threatening to do another week's work. I do "fairly well," notice I am saying "fairly well." Along about Friday noon I knock off for the week, and do not return to the work in hand until Tuesday morning. Well, the month comes to an end as it always does, and I go around to the farmer to get my pay.

Do you think that farmer would pay me the sum of $30.00? Well I never did get full pay for that character of work. Now suppose I hire myself out to the good people of Knox County to run the affairs of their County Judge's office (I suppose you are aware of the fact that I am trying to do that very thing), and did the same character of work that I did for the farmer, what would you think of the services rendered?

Of course I would make it "convenient" to be at the Courthouse in Benjamin on the first day of each month to get my $150.00 per month certain fees in the County and Probate Court, this may be old-fashioned stuff. Take it for what it is worth, there is no charge for it.

Fellow citizens of Knox County, if you elect me, I will be at the office six days in the week, to give you my best service; true I will be on hand each first to get my salary and also on all intervening days, ready to serve you. Next week I shall give you an account of some laughable episodes of a former campaign.

Respectfully,
N. S. KILGORE.

THEY'RE GETTING DESPERATE

In their desperation to injure or destroy the strength of the Hon. Clint Small of Wellington the various gubernatorial candidates are grasping at everything that might have the slightest possibility of contributing to that end. Earl B. Mayfield issued a statement from his headquarters advising the people of Texas that he is a native of East Texas, has lived in Central Texas, but that he was the candidate of no section in particular. The inference left, being that the Hon. Clint Small was a sectional candidate, and as such, could or hope to win if he should go into the run-off.

And from the headquarters of the Hon. Thomas B. Love at Dallas, comes the charge that Clint Small is not only a sectional candidate, but that he is being backed by the liquor interests. Of course Mr. Love knows that this is not true, for if it were true the good citizens of his home town—Wellington—would not have felt the need to raise $3,000 by public subscription to contribute to his campaign fund. If this were true the good citizens of Shamrock, his former home, would not have gone down in their pockets and placed $3,000 into the campaign fund to help elect him governor of Texas. That's just another bit of slander and political smoke screen that will not stand investigation.

Even the Dallas Morning News, which has always boasted of being a State newspaper, comes forward with an editorial charging that sectionalism will render it next to impossible for Mr. Small to succeed, yet it goes on and pays to him a high tribute as a citizen and public official, and states that even though he is defeated in the present election the people of Texas may expect to hear more of him in the years to come.

Since this vast area known as West Texas was created from the Indians its citizens have never resented the candidacy of any man merely because he hailed from East, South or North Texas, but now, that a West Texas man is a real contender for the high office of Governor, the question of sectionalism is being brought up. In the present campaign there are three candidates from Dallas county, two from Tarrant county, two from Harris county, and two from Travis county. Of the eleven candidates all except one reside east of a line running due north.

Life Story of R. S. Sterling One of Triumph Over Difficulties

Practical Understanding of People's Problems Fits Him For Governorship

Ross Sterling was born on a farm near Anthony, in Chambers county, in 1875, one of 12 children of parents impoverished by the Civil war. His father was a captain in the Confederate army and an uncle on his mother's side fought with Santa Houston at San Jacinto.

Early in his youth he left the farm to engage in freighting, peddling and merchandising across the bay between Anahuac and Galveston in a schooner. At the age of 19 he engaged in the general merchandise store in his home community.

From there he ventured into the oil field regions of Austin and San Antonio, establishing local connections, and later expanding his business to include country stores. In 1908 he was married to Miss Hannah Abbie Gage. Two of their four have been born to them.

Mr. Sterling launched into the oil business in 1910, purchasing two producing wells. Adding to these properties, he organized the Houston Oil Company.

In 1925 he retired as head of the Houston Oil and Refining company and parted with his holdings in it, to devote his time to other affairs, civic and public.

He has been a member of the Houston Port commission since its inception in about 1912, and chairman of the commission since 1921, during which period the port of Houston has been developed from a dream into one of the major ports of the country, and the city's size has been doubled.

For a number of years Ross Sterling has served as chairman of the board of trustees of Hermann Hospital estate, which has built and is administering a $1,500,000 charity institution. He is a director and for several years was president of the Y. M. C. A. of Houston.

In memory of Ross Shaw, Jr., who died in 1928, Mr. Sterling gave the Y. M. C. A. of South Texas a beautiful wooded camp on Galveston Bay. Recently he purchased 100 acres of the old Saint Houston plantation, adjoining this camp, for donation to the State of Texas as a park.

Governor Dan Moody appointed Mr. Sterling chairman of the state highway commission early in 1927. He and his colleagues, Commissioners Cane Johnson of Taylor and W. B. Ely of Adams, reorganized the department, sponsored an increase in the gasoline tax, and for the past two and a half years have worked on an intensive program of highway construction and maintenance.

Having achieved success in all his private and public endeavors, Mr. Sterling became a candidate for governor through an expressed desire to be of further service to his state; declaring that state progress and growth demands a business-like administration of the state's affairs, and that the man best fitted to give such an administration is one who has had the experience of financial responsibility for himself and his family, and believes the people should be given an opportunity to decide at the polls whether they want a state bond issue, to be retired wholly with proceeds of a motor fuel tax. He proposes the refunding to counties of money already spent on state highways as a means of fitting the heavy burden of county road taxes, and developing a system of lateral roads.

His platform pledges construction and progress, the elimination of back taxes and equitable tax levies, to raise and that the small farm, ranch and home owner be assured and insured wealth may bear its just share of the burden of enforcement of the dry laws and all other laws.

He would give earnest attention, if elected, to problems of labor, elementary institutions, agriculture, conservation of natural resources, judicial reform, regulation of public utilities, and departmental efficiency.

Finally, he pledges his utmost efforts to end factional strife in Texas Democracy, and to restore harmony.

BEST LITTER TO USE IN BROODER

Shavings, Cut Straw and Cut Hay Meet With Favor.

One of the commonest questions asked of the poultry department of the New Jersey agricultural experiment station during the spring is: "What is the best litter to use in the brooder house?" For the benefit of all poultrymen who are troubled with this problem the station issues the following statement:

There is no best litter, but there are certain requirements that litter must meet in order to be satisfactory for use in brooding chicks. These requirements are that it should be: Light in weight, thus allowing the droppings and dirt to work to the floor so the chicks are not likely to pick up contaminated material; absorbent, and therefore capable of keeping the brooder house floor dry; cheap, so one can afford to replace it every five days after the first four weeks; and clean, which means freedom from mud, manure, and dust.

Shavings, cut straw, and cut hay meet these requirements. They are not the only materials that one can use, but they are among the best. Straw or hay used for litter should always be cut. If the straw or hay is not cut it becomes matted, and covered with droppings, and is therefore of no value for litter.

Facility with diarrhea, coccidiosis, and intestinal worms are spread to a large extent by the use of dirty litter, the experiment station warns. One rule in brooding chicks that should be followed, if all others are forgotten, is: "Clean the brooder house every five days." This means removing the litter, sweeping the floor of the brooder house, and putting in clean litter.

New Ford Truck With Closed Cab

NEW Ford Model AA trucks and Model A light delivery cars were announced this week by the Ford Motor Company and are on display in the show rooms of Ford Dealers.

Changes in the trucks are principally in the front end, which has been completely redesigned, and in the cab. The radiator is higher with more cooling surface, fenders are wide and flowing, and a black coat trim adds a note of distinction.

The new Model AA trucks with the four-speed transmission have a 100-horsepower motor and may be equipped with open cab, the standard cab, or with a closed cab. The closed cab, shown here, is all steel, it is low in appearance yet with ample head room. The open cab is of light rubber top material and is easily removed. Both cabs are equipped with windshields of Triplex shatterproof glass and vacuum type windshield wipers.

Model AA trucks may be had with a platform body, which can be equipped with stakes or a panel body. The chassis has many improvements, including the four-speed transmission, larger front brakes, stronger springs, power take-off opening and optional dual rear wheels.

The Model A line of new commercial cars comprises a light delivery truck with platform body, a six-lane delivery truck, a small panel truck and a station wagon. These cars have the smaller wheel and longer tires of the new Ford passenger cars.

HAL KEMP

States Supplying Song Themes Now Have Co- veted Representation

New York City.—The traditional northern idea of the south as a section of the country where even the social life of the dancing generation is, and always has been, slow and staid, has been shaken by Hal Kemp, who has arrived from North Carolina to become one of New York's most popular orchestra conductors.

"The New Yorker's idea that the girls and boys of the South get up late and go to bed early, is a myth," declares Kemp. "Why, the first thing I noticed on coming East, was the difference in the popular dancing hours. We southerners never think of starting a dance until eleven o'clock, and don't begin to go home until two in the morning.

"In New York, the popular dance hours are between eight and twelve o'clock. At twelve, the energetic hustling, bustling New Yorker is ready to be tucked into bed. Any eastern debutante or poor little working girl who ever spent a social season in the South would never again speak of the slow easy going temperament of Southern boys.

"Then too, the music of the North is different from that of the South. The South has gone collegiate, and hot variety numbers form most of the program, while the North clamors for variety. 'Just Can't Be Bothered With Me' is typical of the favored music of the South. It's a novelty fox-trot with a corking lyric."

Hal Kemp is the sole representative of the South directing an orchestra in the East. North Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama, all the "Mammy Song" states, so adequately represented by song, have strangely enough, never before had a conductor on Broadway.

Kemp's orchestra is composed of Southern lads who have played together in their native state since school-days. They are all college graduates who seem to have possessed correctly that they could make more money in Hal's prize jazz orchestra than they could by entering the professional and business fields of their grand daddies.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ryan returned first of the week from Iowa where they have been visiting relatives. Jimmy states that it is hot in Texas, but its much hotter up in Iowa, and they were very glad to get back home where the nights are cool.

EGGS PRESERVED IN WATER GLASS

Take Advantage of Opportunity to Store for Winter.

When eggs are at their lowest price during the spring and early summer, many people take advantage of the opportunity and store a few dozen for home use during the winter when prices are unusually high.

The water-glass method for preserving eggs is one of the most reliable, according to O. C. Ufford, extension poultry specialist, Colorado Agricultural College. One quart of water glass is mixed with nine quarts of water for preserving ten to fifteen dozen eggs.

Only clean, fresh eggs free from cracks should be preserved in water glass. Eggs with soiled shells should never be washed and used for storage. Infertile eggs are preferable whenever they can be secured. Here are the directions:

1. Use a five-gallon earthen jar, well sealed.
2. Boil water and allow it to cool.
3. Mix water glass and boiled water in proportions of one to nine, as given above.
4. Place eggs in jar and keep covered with at least two inches of water glass solution. If one does not have enough eggs to fill the jar at one time, additional eggs may be added at any time and more solution poured over them.
5. Cover jar when full and place in a cool location.

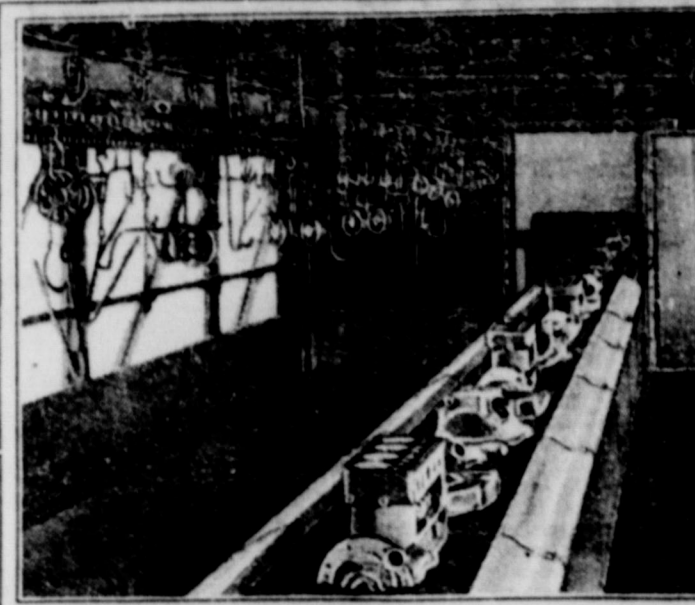

The quality of the eggs removed from the preservative will depend upon their condition and quality when put down. They will serve the purpose of strictly fresh eggs for all household uses, but for boiling, the shell should be pricked with a needle as the preservative seals all pores on the egg shell, which prevents the escape of gases when boiling. The eggs should be washed before using to remove the white deposit that forms on them. One should never use an old solution for a new batch of eggs.

Light Colored Fowls Best for Marketing

In the dressed poultry trade today, the preference is for light-colored birds, whether chickens, fowls or turkeys. Well-fattened birds, properly bled and plucked, bring the best prices. Defects in bleeding and picking may cause a price reduction of several cents a pound. Fowls weighing four and one-half pounds or more being a premium over lighter birds. Broilers must weigh at least a pound at the beginning of the season and a pound and a half or more later and be well finished to satisfy the trade.

Fancy heavy capons weighing nine pounds or more top the market. Capons weighing five pounds or less frequently sell for less than ordinary roasting chickens. Smaller geese are wanted than formerly and young birds weighing nine to eleven pounds are most in demand. Ducks should weigh four and one-half pounds or more and white ducks are preferred.

Miles of Conveyors in Ford Plant

This picture shows two types of conveyors in use in the Rouge Plant of the Ford Motor Company.

AN ENDLESS chain conveyor, three and a half to four miles long, and to be the longest in the world, has just been completed at the Rouge Plant of the Ford Motor Company at Dearborn, Michigan. On it parts of Ford cars in the process of manufacture are transported from one building to another and completed parts are carried direct to railroad cars for shipment to branch assembly plants.

The conveyor, which carries its cargo on suspended hooks, has a daily capacity for 300,000 parts weighing over 2,000,000 pounds. It supports freight cars and trucks which have been used for the transfer of many parts from one point to another in the Ford plant.

This longest conveyor of them all is a development of the Ford policy that nothing should be done by manual labor that could better be done by machine.

In the early days of his manufacturing career, Mr. Ford devised the assembly line—a moving track on which cars in the process of assembly went to the workmen instead of the workmen carrying parts to the car. The assembly line, perfected in many ways, is now used by automobile manufacturers generally.

The value of the conveyor in reducing physical labor, in saving time, in preserving systems and in cutting costs soon became apparent and its use was extended to other purposes about the plant. Now there are literally miles of conveyors of various types in the Ford plant. Some of them carry parts from one building to another and are carefully synchronized so that the parts arrive at precisely the right moment and in the exact spot where they are needed. Others transport red hot ingots of steel weighing nearly a ton each. Still others move outgoing shipments.

If it were not for the conveyors, according to officials of the Ford Company, mass production would not be possible on its present scale.

A very large crowd attended the dance given at the Rhineland Club on the 4th of July.

The Rhineland baseball team defeated the Goree team the 4th on the home diamond. They returned the game at Goree on Sunday; however the Goree boys were the winners this time. The Rhineland team will play Knox City on the Rhineland grounds Sunday the 10th.

Miss Mary Ruddy of Wichita Falls was a visitor here on the 4th.

Mr. Henry Kuehler and John Homer, also visitors here on the 4th, have returned to their homes at Groom, Texas.

Mr. Albert Loran of Abilene, Texas, was a visitor here Sunday. Lawrence Friski and Clement Albus were visitors to Wichita Falls Sunday.

Messrs. Louis Kuehler, Lawrence Wilde and Jerome Decker witnessed the baseball game at Wichita Falls Sunday. Albert Franklin had the misfortune to break his arm on Monday of this week.

UNDER THE STERLING PLAN TAXES WILL BE REDUCED IN KNOX COUNTY

The taxpayers of the Munday country, including the farmers, home-owners and business men are now assessed an average tax of approximately 40c on the $100.00 valuation to pay for the construction of State Highways, a tax that should be borne by the state.

Under The Sterling Tax Reduction Plan the State will assume this obligation and pay for it out of the gasoline tax.

The Sterling Tax Reduction Plan will place the burden of paying for the state roads your county has built on the traffic, where it belongs.

The Sterling Plan will provide the state with adequate funds to build a connected system of hard surfaced, all-weather highways and for paying the gaps over the state without county aid and without increasing the gasoline tax one penny.
