Another Record on Firestone Tires

When Russell Boardman, shown at the controls, and John Polando, accomplished one of the greatest feats in aviation history by piloting their big Bellanca plane straight from New York to Constantinople for a new world distance mark of 5,000 miles, their ship was equipped with Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires.

TWO EVIL CRIMES

Every once in a while a crime happens that convinces the average citizen that capital punishment is the just penalty to be inflicted upon certain criminals. The brutal attack and subsequent killing of the two young couples near Ann Arbor, Michigan, is a case in point. Likewise, is the recent killing of two young women near Birmingham, Ala., by a man who stopped their automobile, and when they tried to take his pistol, shot them down without compunction.

In Michigan the guilty parties were promptly apprehended and sent to prison for life, which was speedy justice. In Alabama, unfortunately, the police officials have been unable to ascertain the guilty man.

PRICE REGULATING

The demand made by the Federal Farm Board that farmers of the South plow up every third row of cotton seems to have been received with contempt by the Southern cotton growers.

Such a program would seem absurd unless restrictions were placed on cotton acreage for next year, for unless acreage is restricted the same thing would be necessary next year in order to realize a fair price for the fleecy staple.

Experts in economics tell us that there is no overproduction in any farm commodity. The trouble lies in that the people have not the money with which to buy, and it's a certainty that they will not have any money with which to buy unless something is done to stimulate the price of farm commodities.

If the governors of all the Southern cotton-growing states would come together and agree on a program of future reduction, and then go home and put forth the same efforts and resort to the extreme measures that the governors of Oklahoma and Texas have recently taken to alleviate the ills of the oil interests the cotton problem might be more readily solved.

The big difficulty in getting action that this and that plan has interest of so many people is the fear of political consequences. Politicians are constantly holding their ears to the ground for the reaction of the public mind, and hence haven't the courage to do anything that would have a material effect on the market price of farm products.

Hon. Geo. B. Terrell, for twelve years Commissioner of Agriculture in Texas, has many misgivings as to the advisability of regulating the acreage by legislation. He contends that no farmer wants to be regulated to the extent that he be told how many acres of his own land may be planted to any commodity. That's just the ideal that has driven the farmers into bankruptcy, or is driving them in that direction. They have long boasted of their independence, and political orators have craved over this phase of agricultural life, which in reality is but a myth.

Railroads long ago were forced to submit to regulation. Rate-making bodies were set up to insure that they receive a fair return on their investment, which was nothing but right inasmuch as they were being regulated as to rates. Today the railroads are asking for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates and a hearing has recently been conducted at Washington to determine whether or not they are entitled to this increase.

The farmer, who scoffs at the idea of acreage regulation, or at least who has been so indifferent concerning such a scheme that he has not made it plain to his representatives in the law-making bodies that he favors such a scheme, cannot be aided for the simple reason that there are no restrictions placed upon acreage, and, we believe, before he can ever get any relief he must submit to regulatory measures.

THE FARMERS HOPE

Something may eventually be done for agriculture because business men realize that there can be no prosperity with the farmer in economic distress. This is illustrated by an address of Senator Davis, Republican of Pennsylvania:

"The economic woe of our farmers has ceased to be a problem solely affecting the welfare of our agricultural regions, and now looms as a serious factor retarding the revival of brick industrial and business conditions upon which our so-called periods of national prosperity are based.

"Substantial prosperity depends largely on the uncurtailed buying power of the general public, and it must be remembered that the people of the agricultural regions constitute almost 50 per cent of our national population. Hence, it is obvious that if the people of the farming regions have empty purses due to overproduction and price slashing in the marketing of their products, a tremendous curtailment in the buying power of our national population results.

"Much of the farmers' woe can be laid to overproduction, whose influence has also disturbed nearly every other unit of our national industrial and business structure. Overproduction is one of the ugly ducklings which the backwash of the World War inflicted upon the world at large. During the war, the United States virtually had a monopoly on farm and factory products, and their ready sales to other day: "Bill, even for a fisherman, you are a liar."

There are a lot of people in the world who are afraid to express any stray idea that they might have through fear of losing business.

Washington tells us that the unemployment problem will be met this winter and that nobody will be allowed to starve. Paste this in your hat.
This is no time for peddlers and mail order catalogs; give Munday merchants an even break and maybe they can keep their help employed.
Now that the Farm Board has advised the cotton growers to plow up the third row of their crop, we wonder what they will tell the wheat growers.

Whenever the government tries to help the farmers you hear a lot of talk about interfering with economics, and the law of supply and demand, but when shipping lines, railroads and bond-holders need help the talk about economics dies down and the air is filled with the yelling of the leaders telling how the government can help them.

My Trip to A. & M.

By Mrs. I. T. Wright Benjamin, Texas.

At last the great day so eagerly anticipated had arrived, the day to start to College Station for the A. and M. Short Course.

Many 4H Club women from all over the state had won the trip offered by their clubs, Home demonstration council or Chamber of Commerce, for winning first place in some line of Home Demonstration work.

Only three club members went from Knox county, Mrs. G. P. Lanford, president of the Munday Demonstration Club, sent by her club; Mrs. L. P. Jones, Munday, winner first place in dress contest, sent by county council, and myself, sent by the chamber of commerce for winning first place in living-room contest.

Miss Grace Nelson and W. E. Jones, farm and home demonstration agents, were also in attendance at the Short Course.

Sunday morning, July 26, the club women and girls from Haskell, Knox and Baylor counties left over the Wichita Valley for the Short Course. The three groups made up an agreeable party of acquaintances made at the Tri-County Encampment held in this county in June.

We arrived in Fort Worth at 12 m. leaving there at 1:10 p. m. on a special train, into which all the West, North and East Texas club women, boys, girls and men were poured, arriving at College Station at 10:30 p. m.

A long line of cars were there to take everyone and his baggage to the main building or the Flag Pole. These were the two places of waiting until your county agent or home demonstration agent could get your Hall and room designation ticket.

We were soon piloted to rooms in Leggett Hall, where we slept (every one did) with windows and doors wide open. I might say right here that we found the weather no warmer than here, in fact, the nights were lovely and cool.

From two to four in each room, and from one to six in the shower was the rule—well, if you were too fastidious or too finicky to be a good sport and take things as you found them—it "was just too bad."

It must be remembered that these were boys' dormitories just vacated between terms. The beds were single iron cots with hard mattresses and cotton pillows. Nice roomy dressers, large heavy tables, chairs and closets made up the furnishing for each room. Camping facilities free to those wishing to camp were to be found just off the campus.

A word about the origin of the Short Course: The first annual meeting was held in January, 1911, of two weeks' duration, only 16 persons, all men, attended and they were housed in tents. An interesting account of the evolution of the movement is given in the July issue of the Texas Agric. Countryman, published at A. & M.

Our first adventure Monday morning was going to breakfast. On the way at a little booth we bought meal coupon books good for 15 meals for $5.00. Can you imagine looking over about three acres of people loitering about waiting for the doors of the mess hall to be opened, 6:45 was the hour but they were nearly always a little late, and this was a good visiting time in the cool outdoors. A good time to look for friends and chat. How thrilling to have meals for a week in the largest dining-room in the world, a seating capacity of 2900 but approximately 2100 were served at once all during the Short Course.

A trip thru the kitchen revealed wonders. 270 employees in all serve in this building, 130 of them are student boys who pay a part of their expenses this way. You should visit the kitchen if for no other reason than to get an idea of swift work. They work so fast and furiously as though their very lives depended on getting thru the next minute. An hour and a half is all the time required to serve a meal, clear tables, wash dishes and reset tables. I wish it were possible to describe the very interesting details of bread making, dishwashing etc, but would make this article too long. Some idea may be gained of the mass of food prepared when you know it takes 360 dozen eggs to make scrambled eggs for breakfast, 300 loaves of bread, 700 lbs. of meat, 1000 pounds potatoes, 200 pounds sugar, and so the guide will tell you who guides you through, describing everything. Meat is kept here in cold storage to sell.

Wednesday—Much precious time was taken up almost grudgingly I fear, with business meetings of the Home Dem. Assn. Three meetings were called before the business of electing state officers was finished. Mrs. Bn Anthony of Mincola was elected president; a vice-president, secretary-treasurer, and auditor and a vice-president for each district was elected. These officers serve two years.

Thursday—A visit to the Key Demonstration cottage was one of the chief joys of the Short Course. The idea for this model home to help farmers and ranchmen of Texas in home planning originated with Mrs. O. B. Martin of College Station as a part of her club work for 1930-31.

A visit to the Textile Building—Weaving of every kind of cloth is done on the looms here.

The Vogue of Cotton was a program given at the assembly Hall Friday morning by Miss Katherine Cleveland, of the Cotton Textile Institute of New York City. A review of about three dozen costumes on living models, including tailored, sport, beach, riding, evening and wedding dress, passed down all the aisles, stopping for any who wished a closer inspection. All the costumes were made of cotton, some of new Fall modes.

A visit to the Museum—A long time is needed to see every thing here. Many glass cases of mounted animals, birds and the skeletons for class study. Especially interesting are the bones and tusks or horns of mastodons, of which many were found in the Brazos river valley. Our party was especially interested in the contribution of R. S. Brannin, Benjamin High school boy, an immense tusk found in the Wichita breaks in 1930. He made a special trip to the college to donate his find to the museum. Besodg cevon

There was much more crowded into this week and many good programs that couldn't even be mentioned here, one can only skim over what he likes best in such a short time and hope to go again.

Just a few words about the College—The fine old trees, the green grass and flowers make a lovely setting for the splendid buildings of brick and stone, many of them ivy covered, representing the expenditure of millions of dollars so well spent. Guion is one of the most beautiful Halls on campus, but chief interest centers in the Main or Administration Building, with its magnificent Rotunda in the center, surrounded by immense twin columns where you look up and up thru all the stories to a skylight in the dome. The college library is in this building.

The College was founded in 1876 and has grown in all these years in every aspect until it is one of the foremost institutions of its kind in America today. Every student entering is required to take a certain amount of military training. With an enrollment of 3800 it is the largest institution of its kind in the world. During the World War a larger percentage of the students of A. and M. were in the armed service of the Nation than of any other educational institution in the United States. By no means the least thing to the credit of the school is that it is democratic. Accomplishment being the royal road to a man's recognition.

A tea given on the lawn of Dr. Walton's home Friday afternoon was our last fling, then supper, packing our bags and off on a special train for home. The 22nd Annual Short Course is history, a happy memory.

Learn what a difference six cylinders make

Step out of any other low-priced car into a Chevrolet, and learn the difference six cylinders make. "Idle" the engine—and the whole car remains steady. Open the throttle—the power flows evenly. Accelerate—throttle down—go fifteen or fifty—and this smoothness stays with you whatever you do. It's actually built into the motor—and objectionable vibration never even starts!

Yet smoothness is only one of many six-cylinder advantages. There's greater quietness, because noisy vibration is gone. There's greater comfort, because built-in smoothness doesn't tire you out. There's greater flexibility, because the power-impulses of a six overlap. And a six is much easier to handle!

If you raise the hood of a Chevrolet and watch the engine running so smoothly, you'll realize that six cylinders also mean greater dependability.

And remember when you do—that no other car is so economical to operate as the Chevrolet Six.

Twenty beautiful models, at prices ranging from $475 to $875

THE HAT SHOP

We urge you to come in and see our line whether you are ready to buy or not. We shall expect you.

We are equipped to care for your printing needs, regardless of whether large or small, and our prices are reasonable and consistent with the quality of workmanship and materials.

While we can usually get out work on short notice, we urge that you anticipate your printing requirements now for the fall business and let us have your order, and it will be ready when you need it.

The money you spend for printing here stays in Munday and every dime of it stays in circulation in this community. If we can serve you equally as well as others we should have your business, and our constant aim is to please our patrons.
