Sunrise Service Will End Meeting Held During Week

The union pre-Easter revival that opened last Sunday evening will come to a close with a sunrise Easter service at the Presbyterian Church Sunday morning at 6:30 o'clock. Services this week have been held at the Methodist, Christian, Baptist and Presbyterian churches with five members of the local pastors' association doing the preaching. Pastors participating in this excellent revival are Reverends Geo. E. Turrentine, Grant L. Slagle, O. L. Savage, R. R. Rives and C. V. Allen. The services they have conducted have been in churches other than their own. Rev. Turrentine, Methodist pastor, will preach at the Baptist Church on Friday evening. #### Foard County Dress Contest to Be Held in Crowell May 13

A dress contest for the home demonstration club women and 4-H Club girls of Foard County will be held in Crowell on Saturday, May 13, as a result of action taken at a meeting of the County Council here Saturday. #### Water-Holding Ability of Contoured Rows is Well Demonstrated Contoured rows have held so much water on the field of Earl Logan of the Good Creek community that it has been difficult to keep his stock tank full of water. Mr. Logan's tank immediately below his field and the water from it drains into this tank.

Three years ago he contoured the field placing them on a level. Up until that time, Mr. Logan stated that almost any kind of a rain was sufficient to fill his tank, but since then it takes an exceptionally heavy rain to make it full.

Observation of the large amount of water that is kept on the field has thoroughly convinced Mr. Logan that the crooked rows are really worthwhile, even though they are not so convenient as straight ones.

Free Game Monday to End Spring Football Training at C. H. S.

The spring football training season for Crowell High School will come to an end Monday afternoon when a regulation football game will be played between a team of Seniors and a team composed of those who will be eligible for the team next fall. Rivalry between the two groups has reached a high pitch, and while the Seniors are doped to win, the underclassmen are not letting the dope worry them and will be satisfied with nothing less than a victory. Both squads claimed Melvin Joy, Fred Spears and Orville Orr, who will not be eligible next year, although they will be back in school. As a result these boys will not play Monday. The game is free and will start at 4 o'clock.

Captain Grady Graves has announced that the starting line-ups will likely be as follows:

Seniors—George Carter, LE; Crockett Fox, LT; Francis Todd, LG; Dan Callaway, C; Neff Middlebrook, RG; Hubert Smith, RT; Glenn Rasberry, RE; Lewis Gibson, LH; Billy Jake Middlebrook, RH; Loraine Carter, F; Mitchell Allee, QB and captain. #### Calf With Appearance of Bulldog Born to Jersey Cow Last Week

Another Foard County freak resulted late Thursday night or early Friday morning of last week when a calf, having almost the exact appearance of a bulldog, was born to a Jersey cow on the farm of J. L. Glover, about 7 miles east of Crowell. When found by Mr. Glover Friday morning the unusual calf was dead. Every part of the animal resembled a white bulldog, except the hoofs, which were those of an ordinary calf. Last fall a bulldog caused much excitement among Mr. Glover's herd of cows when it locked its jaws on the nose of one of the cows. It was necessary to knock the dog loose with a heavy board, according to Mr. Glover. The mother of the unusual calf was not hit, but was in the herd excited by the incident. This is the only explanation that Mr. Glover can give as the cause of the freak, although scientists claim that such results are not caused by maternal impressions.

The fifth annual conference of the 13th District of the Texas Congress of Parents and Teachers came to a close Wednesday afternoon following a two-day session in Crowell. With over six hundred visitors from out of the county; present during the two days, the attendance far exceeded the expectations of district officials.

All details connected with the conference were conducted in such a manner as to make it one of the most successful from every standpoint in the history of the 13th District and the people of Crowell and the surrounding community can take pride in the fact that it was host to such an important gathering as this and that it took care of this annual meeting in such a manner as to attract hundreds of compliments from the visitors that were here from the fourteen counties of the district and other points of the state.

Seymour in 1934 Seymour was selected for the 1934 conference city at the final session. 3 RULES big help to BOWELS

What a joy to have the bowels move like clockwork, every day! It's easy, if you mind these simple rules of a famous old doctor: 1. Drink a big tumblerful of water before breakfast, and several times a day. 2. Get plenty of outdoor exercise without unduly fatiguing yourself. 3. Try for a bowel movement at exactly the same hour every day.

Everyone's bowels need help at times, but the thing to use is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You'll get a thorough cleaning-out, and it won't leave your insides weak and watery. This family doctor's prescription is just fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin, and other helpful ingredients that couldn't hurt a child. But how it wakes up those lazy bowels! How good you feel with your system rid of all that poisonous waste matter.

THE AKRON DISASTER

The loss of the huge dirigible "Akron" with seventy-three lives is the most serious disaster since men first began to navigate the air.

Tragedies like this are a part of the price humanity pays for progress. Doubtless there will be a great outcry against further experiments in aerial navigation as a result of the "Akron's" crash.

SAN JACINTO DAY SHOULD BE OBSERVED

Schools, patriotic organizations, and clubs of all kinds should have patriotic programs on San Jacinto Day, April 21st, commemorating the 75th anniversary of the Battle of San Jacinto, one of the most noted events in the history of the country.

The Texas Centennial Committee is prepared to furnish data for San Jacinto Day addresses to those who write to it for such material.

At Austin plans are being arranged for presentation to the State of a flag used on the battlefield at San Jacinto, which was for a long time preserved in tatters in the museum of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas and which has been restored by Legislative appropriation.

TEXAS ALMANAC

Many new features are contained in the Texas Almanac and State Industrial Guide for 1933, which has just been issued by The Dallas News.

A large folded sheet between the leaves of the volume carries political and railroad map on one side and highway map on the other.

If one wishes to know where the principal lakes of Texas are found, how to fly the Texas flag, the depth of the deepest oil well, the amount of oil and gas in Texas reserves, where the McDonald Observatory is to be built, how much is collected from the gasoline tax or the amount of the pay roll of Texas railroads, he will find it in the Texas Almanac.

While many new articles have been included, the chapters of information that have become standard in the Texas Almanac are retained, completely revised and enlarged.

Writes of "THE MASTER EXECUTIVE"

Supplying a week-to-week inspiration for the heavy burdened who will find every human trial paralleled in the experiences of "The Man Nobody Knows."

RENDER UNTO CAESAR

"Teacher, we know that you speak the truth," said the jealous Pharisees and Herodians, "and that you don't care anything about the authority or office which a man holds. You treat them all alike, and speak your mind bluntly because you get your thoughts direct from God."

Bruce Barton as an artist.

"Somebody lend me a coin," he exclaimed. An eager listener dug into his pocket and produced it. Jesus held it up where all could see.

"Whose picture is that?" he demanded. "Whose name?" They began to be uneasy. The shrewdest suspected that the path was leading toward the precipice, yet there was no escape. They must answer, "Caesar's," they replied.

"Very good," said he ironically. "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's."

Another repulse for the best legal talent in the city... another good laugh for the crowd... another story to tell in the taverns, in the Temple court, in the market-place... wherever the common folks crowded together... Says the narrative describing the defeated questioners "they marveled greatly at him"... and in another place... "and no man after that durst ask him any question." Every objection had been turned back upon the objectors; every trap had sprung upon the fingers of those who set it. No argument was left for them except the final one which is always a confession of failure. They had the brute force on their side. They could not stand against his thinking but they could, and did, nail him on the cross.

Not in time, however. Not until his work was finished. Not until he had trained and equipped a force which would carry on with double power because of the very fact of his death... Every year in our country there are thousands of conventions—political, charitable, business. Most of them are a waste. They are conducted on the false assumption that over-selling and exaggeration are potent forces—that the energies of men respond most powerfully to promise of easy victory and soft rewards. The great leaders of the world have known better.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Apr. 12 (Auto-caster)—President Roosevelt, after more than a month in office, is still riding the top wave of popularity and authority. He is growing in the esteem of many who undervalued him before he took office, and certainly is proving himself the best politician who has occupied the White House in many years.

There is no politics, however, in the plan for refinancing farm mortgages which the President proposes and which Congress doubtless will adopt. Under this plan the Farm Loan Board will take over farm mortgages, extending the time for their payment and establishing the interest rate at 4 1/2 percent.

Under the blanket authority granted him by congress to reduce the Governmental expenditures, Mr. Roosevelt's director of the budget, Lewis E. Douglas, has worked out a system which will cut an estimated nine hundred million a year off the Federal expenses. It will still cost some four thousand millions a year to operate the Federal machine, and just how this money is to be raised is not yet completely clear. There will have to be some new revenue legislation, but that is still in the future.

Besides cutting about $400,000,000 a year off veteran relief, Mr. Douglas's economy program calls for a fifteen percent reduction in all Federal salaries. This will affect pretty close to a million people on Uncle Sam's payroll, for it includes the Army and Navy as well as civil employees.

Protection for Investors

There is every reason to expect that the Administration's plan for Federal control of all new issues of stocks and bonds and perhaps also over the sales of old issues, will be adopted substantially as the President has requested it. This is calculated to do away with many of the frauds which were perpetrated upon a gullible public during the recent boom. It is also a part of the program for the protection of the investor for the Government to exercise a high degree of control over all exchanges in which securities and commodities are traded... The Senate Finance Commission investigation of the banking system has been extended to include the banking institutions, and the house of J. P. Morgan & Co. is to be one of the first called upon to tell how private investment banking houses work.

The general banking policy the Administration is beginning to take shape. It looks as if it will work out into a single banking system under which every bank would be required to be a member of the Federal Reserve system, and perhaps to have a Federal charter. It would be easy and legal to State banks to become members of the system by imposing a prohibition on their checks, for example, refusing to let them participate in any plan for the insurance of the ante of deposits.

For the Unemployed

The President's plan for an army of unemployed at the national forests has been approved by Congress, and there is little doubt that he will get before this is printed, the he seeks to lend five million dollars for direct unemployment relief. Every possible effort will be made to get the men back to work as soon as possible and intensive study is being given to numerous "self-liquidating" projects of public work, which will be financed by Government bonds to be repaid out of earnings. The new bridge across the Golden Gate at San Francisco, the Grand Island bridge, the Niagara River bridge, the Niagara Falls bridge, and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, but they will be repaid and will eventually earn enough to repay the loans.

The same policy may be applied to power projects and other enterprises which are sure to earn enough to pay back the loans.

Where the money is coming from to lend, enough of it to make a policy of stimulating business and putting men back to work in the situation, is another question. It is talk about a huge bond issue, from its present twenty-one million dollars to thirty million.

Not in the Budget

Such an issue would not necessarily interfere with "balanced budget," since the interest on such a bond issue would be relatively small, and one which is impending in our mental system is in its own nature, in which money raised will be kept separate from the raised by taxation. Current interest on loans are expected to be paid out of taxes; there is suggestion now of paying the principal of any of the existing or the projected new ones.

In this matter of public work, the expectation is that contractors and suppliers of materials will be required to adopt the thirty-hour week, for labor, six hours a day, for a week. And on its own initiative, the Senate has under consideration which would compel all primary industry engaged in interstate commerce to adopt the thirty-hour week under penalty of having its work barred from trade across state lines.

That Roosevelt himself is the personal life of the President in the White House is the innumerable anecdotes like the simplicity and homelike the Executive Mansion's apartments. They keep practically house for their friends and acquaintances, just as they did home in Hyde Park. And the of Washington is that they exhibiting any of the signs of a tired head, which have sometimes afflicted Presidential families.

One lady who was invited offhand way by Mrs. Roosevelt to dinner said at the White House. "I never expected to dine with you here." "You've got nothing on a tired President Roosevelt."

"I have never found a medicine that 'peps' you up like Kruschen Salts and better still, leaves you 'pepped up'. I take it two or three times a week—not to reduce but merely to feel good and clean. My husband took it to reduce, he lost 16 pounds in 4 weeks." Mrs. E. A. Ferris, Washington, D. C. (December 29, 1932).

To lose fat and at the same time gain in physical attractiveness and feel spirited and youthful take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning.

A jar that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle at any drugstore in the world but be sure and get Kruschen Salts the SAFE way to reduce wide hips, prominent front and double chin and again feel the joy of living—money back if dissatisfied after the first jar. W-1

The Golden Text is from I Timothy 2: "There is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus."

Included with other passages to be read from the Bible will be the following from Hebrews 8: "For this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith the Lord; I will put my laws into their mind, and write them in their hearts; and I will be to them a God, and they shall be to me a people."

The Lesson-Sermon will include citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy; among these will be the following (p. 497): "We acknowledge Jesus' atonement as the evidence of divine, efficacious Love, unfolding man's unity with God through Christ Jesus the Way-show-er; and we acknowledge that man is saved through Christ, through Truth, Life and Love as demonstrated by the Galilean Prophet in healing the sick and overcoming sin and death."

SERMONETTE

ASHAMED OF WHAT?

By Arthur B. Rhinow

A recent picture of the breadline shows one of the unfortunate men lowering his head so that his hat covered his face. Evidently he did not want anybody to recognize him in that plight. It may be he was a stranger who had left his home town with high hopes of making good in the metropolis, only to find that the city has not only tall buildings, but also well nigh insuperable difficulties. How would his pals at home feel if they saw his face in the breadline?

Perhaps he was a man of fine breeding and good education, whose early environment had never predicted the disaster of being without a place to eat and sleep. How would his loved ones at home feeling they saw his face in the breadline?

And maybe he was a man who had neglected his opportunities, wasted his gifts and spent his money foolishly. Nothing hurts us more than to know that we might be in happy circumstances if we had not made a fool of ourselves.

At any rate, he was sensitive, while others smiled carelessly or brazenly. He did not want to be seen in the breadline.

And as I studied the picture, I said to myself that I did not want to see him there, either. Nor any of the others, though some of them looked hardened. The breadline reflects on all of us. Those men may be to blame for being down and out, but so are we. The breadline is a sore, festering and breeding hatred. With old mother earth yielding plenty, why must thousands go hungry? If we truly loved our neighbors as ourselves, we would find a way to eliminate the disgrace. Love stimulated ingenuity.

As we go further into the new year, let us resolve to foster the spirit that will make the brotherhood of a man a reality. And remember, there can be no brotherhood without a Fatherhood.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Charles E. Dunn

Jesus Transfigured.

Lesson for April 16th. Mark 9: 2-29.

Golden Text: John 1:14.

The Transfiguration is a good lesson for Easter Sunday, for the glory of the Master's radiant face on the mountain top is akin to the glory of his risen body.

It is one of the most impressive scenes in the career of Jesus, a spectacle of high religious significance. We are at once reminded of the Baptism, for the same heavenly voice, testifying to the divine Sonship of the Nazarene, speaks again. We also find here a vivid suggestion of two supreme forces that anticipated the advent of Jesus; for Moses, the representative of the law, and Elijah, a typical prophet, both appear in the wondrous vision.

But the matchless worth of this ethereal, mystical glorification is to be found in the light it throws upon the grandeur of the Person of Jesus. Just what happened we do not precisely know. Like the birth and resurrection narratives, the story of the transfiguration is saturated with the ecstasy of poetry. Therefore it cannot be analyzed or dissected as though it were a routine bit of fact. What we can be sure of is that

Rev. Chas. E. Dunn

Jesus was mysteriously exalted in the eyes of his disciples, with a divine illumination that strengthened their appreciation of His deity. To a lesser degree this experience came to Moses, whose face shone after his communion with Goh at Sinai; to Stephen, whose countenance, at his trial, seemed that of an angel; and to Webster, who is said, after the delivery of his famous Bunker Hill oration, to have worn a grand expression that awed those near him.

Note that the disciples, at the close of his transforming experience, "saw no one any more, save Jesus only." May this be the experience of every follower of the Lord!

Then after the vision came the clear call to serve a needy world. From the mountain top of inspiration the disciples descended to the plain, there to meet an epileptic boy whom they vainly tried to cure. They had not sufficient spiritual vitality. There was a lack of personal trust in God. But when the Master came He at once remedied this deficiency, and restored the lad's shattered health.

SYNOPSIS

On a bleak November day Joyce, poor stenographer, was in a taxi-cab in Chicago. Next she remembered was two years ago when she woke one morning in a luxurious house in California, with a wedding ring on her hand, and a pleasant young man addressing her as Frills, telling her to be careful after her fall from the horse of the day before. Her name was Niel Packard, rich banker. Confused and troubled, she tried to find out more about her name and from letters in her desk that she had been a heartless, cold young woman and had been involved in a serious affair with a man named Maitland. Later, she came to see her, he was surprised when she tried to see him, but he finally left her.

"I don't care who comes, 'I'm going out," she decided recklessly, "a glorious day like this it would be a crime to stick indoors. If this is a pleasant change from Philadelphia in November! It's all so delicious!"

She went down to the dining room early, careless of whether or not she had been Frills' custom to do so early.

After serving breakfast, Roxie asked, "Will you be home for Mrs. Packard?" she asked, "I would like to know if you'll be guests, and how many to it, and what you'd like to do."

"Yes, I'll be here for dinner, but alone. And tell Marcia to have a thing at all, it doesn't matter to me, just so I don't have to decide."

She went out immediately into the garden and made her way around to the direction of the garage, sniffing delightedly at the exotic fragrance of the orange blossoms.

She was amused to notice a head sticking back behind the yellow check curtains as she passed the kitchen. "I just know they're wondering if I can have happened to Frills," she thought smiling. "Well, they'll keep on wondering. I hope at least they won't find the change so sudden. Now, let's see—Oh, Frills somebody! I wonder if that's Sam, Neil mentioned?"

She looks young and somehow like an ordinary servant," she thought as she approached. "I wish I could look up. Shall I say 'good-morn' to attract his attention? I don't call him Sam till I'm sure he is."

Her impression that he was not an ordinary servant was confirmed when the young man suddenly turned around, seeing her, broke off in a whistling and exclaimed, "Good-morn, Mrs. Packard! Gee! I'm so glad to see you. How are you?"

"All right?" she asked, though deferential, she had nothing servile in it, spoke in an easy manner, as if of varying social levels had not disturbed her.

"Oh, yes, I'm all right," replied she feeling relieved that this was to be easier than she had expected. "I did get kind of a bad cold on the head, though it's better now. . . . Is Fire Queen in the stable?" (She had one thing to tell Maitland for—he had told her the name of the horse.)

There was just the hint of a grin on the young man's face as he answered, "Mr. Packard gave orders for me to take her to MacBready's ranch yesterday."

"Joyce frowned, not as Samably thought, in anger at this, but in baffled annoyance at the fact that she dared make it.

"Mr. Packard had me bring Rover from MacBready's for you, you want to ride, she's one little mare, lively as a kitten, but the mean streak of Fire Queen, want me to saddle her up?"

She smiled with a plausible excuse not riding, this would have been excellent chance for Joyce to remark angrily, no, if I can't ride today, but I'd like to go."

"I'll bring her out," and Sam opened into the stable where he heard her speaking in low chuckling with a soothing note in his voice. He had looked a little surprised at the quiet way she had the news of losing Fire Queen out leading a daintily, but not a white, with a white blaze on her forehead. She muzzled Sam's shoulder with her nose, while he explained to her that she always been a pet of his and she's used to be touched over, aren't you, he stroked her fondly, pushing her when she playfully nipped at him. "Here, get out, girl, go home one your own size, she's a beauty? Look at her lines, she's a beauty!"

"She's a beauty," agreed Joyce, she seemed to have seen before. "Sorry you didn't feel like seeing any of the gang, honey. I can't stand it any longer. Thank God, Neil is away for some time. I can't get with this very mildness. "Sure she does," agreed Sam. "But say, get on her, and she's got all the life you want and don't you forget it. Say, that mare's got one of the fastest trots of any horse around here, and the smoothest canter you ever saw."

Joyce stepped back a little. In spite of Rosita's good character, she seemed disconcertingly big, and Joyce had a foolish fear of being stepped on suddenly. She lingered while Sam led Rosita inside again.

There was a varnished wooden station wagon standing on the gravel drive while inside the garage she could see a long low car, very sporty-looking, with brilliant canary-yellow body and disk wheels. The upholstery was a bright lavender leather, and there was a great deal of shiny nickel about it. "I wouldn't be found dead in a thing like that," thought Joyce.

Sam, returning at the moment, caught sight of her expression. He looked puzzled and asked, "What's the matter, Mrs. Packard? Anything wrong with the car?" "Nothing—except that it's all wrong," retorted Joyce, continuing to smile. She felt recklessly inclined to go on and tell him what she really thought about it.

"Well, I'd get tired of those jazzy colors myself after a bit," said Sam frankly, "but it's a darn good car. Shall I back her out for you?"

"No, thanks, I'm not going out today." She still lingered, however, as if she were not quite sure of her decision.

Suddenly she remembered something she had wanted, and forgetting everything else, she asked eagerly, "Do you know where I could get a dog?"

This time the astonishment on Sam's tanned face was so unmistakable that Joyce realized that she had at last really surprised him.

"But gee, Mrs. Packard, I thought you didn't like dogs," he exclaimed.

"Well, I've changed my mind," returned Joyce, embarrassment making her speak so shortly that Sam seemed to take her answer as a rebuke.

"Well, I don't know exactly what I do want," said Joyce uncomfortably, wishing she had given the matter more thought before getting into it this way.

"Why don't you go to Allen Kennels and pick out something you like?" suggested Sam after a moment.

"Oh, I don't want to be bothered," she replied, hoping this would sound enough like the capricious Frills to pass. "Can't you get me one somewhere around here, so I can have it today?"

"Well, I know a dog I think I could get you," exclaimed Sam suddenly, "it's the cutest little white and black Boston bull you ever saw, about two years old and smart as a whip. Belongs to people named March. They're going to China and don't want to take the pup. Like to have me see if I can get him for you?"

"Oh, yes, I do," said Joyce. "Do you want . . . had you better have some money? I can write you a check."

"I don't think they'll take any money. They'll be glad to find a good home for the dog."

"Get him as soon as you can, will you?" asked Joyce smiling at Sam gratefully. "I'm crazy to see him. Now that I've decided to have a dog, I want it right away."

"Sure, I'll go right away, Mrs. Packard. I was just going to drive down to get the day's orders."

Joyce wished she might ride with him while he did his errands but realizing the inadvisability of such an outing she turned away reluctantly and went back to the house where she found that the morning mail had arrived. She sorted the ones addressed to "Mrs. Neil Packard" and carried them down to the far end of the garden to a secluded corner hidden from the house.

The first one was a short note, carelessly scrawled in a handwriting she seemed to have seen before. "Sorry you didn't feel like seeing any of the gang, honey. I can't stand it any longer. Thank God, Neil is away for some time. I can't get over your look this morning, Frills. Call me up tomorrow, dearie. C."

"That's the same 'S' who wrote about the house party," thought Joyce, "and it must be the Mrs. Emery who telephoned yesterday."

The next letter on heavy masculine stationery began: "Star Baby! Joyce grinned to herself at this poetic opening. "How lovely!" she muttered sarcastically, and read on with interest.

"I'm sitting in my room at the window that faces where you are, and think of you so hard that I can't settle to anything else. I'm bitterly disappointed that I can't be with you now, this minute. I had been living for it all day, and now I'm lonely as the devil. You've got to be better tomorrow. I thought I'd seen you in all different moods, but you had me guessing today. I never felt so puzzled about you before. You seemed to have slipped away from me entirely. I can't get it yet. It makes me restless now and I'm tempted to try to get to you tonight in spite of everything. I'll be worried until I find you looking more like yourself. "Why are you keeping me off like this? I'm pretty rotten at writing, you know, beloved, but when I'm with you again I'm going to tell you all over again—and demonstrate it—how I adore every inch of you. Won't you call me up right away? I want to know how you slept and how you feel now. All my love to you Frills, from her adoring Mait."

"Too much fervor!" murmured Joyce critically. She felt only a detached sort of disgust, as if she were reading a vulgar love letter addressed to another. She shook the letter impatiently. "All your fine passion is wasted on me, Mr. Maitland!" she said aloud.

"Well, let's see what else I have here?" After Mait's passionate composition everything else will seem tame."

The next letter made her sit up with a jerk. There was no address, and Joyce hastily turned the envelope over and examined the post mark curiously. "New York, N. Y.," she finally made out.

In an angular, precise handwriting, in pale ink the astonishing letter read:

"My dear Florence: Although you seem to lack interest in hearing about the baby, I feel it no less than my duty to keep you informed of her health. She is a most engaging little mite, showing, even at her tender age, a decided personality and charm. "Although truth compels me to admit that you are probably not the most suitable person to bring up a child, still I cannot understand how you can possibly feel that the sort of pleasures which fill your life are more important, more satisfying, than the care and bringing up of this dear little baby. I will send you a few lines each month. Please extend my faithful greeting to Neil, Sophie."

Spellbound, Joyce read this letter, which flowed along without a single paragraph to break its smooth stilted sentences. The significance of its contents came as such an unexpected blow that she felt weak and shaken. "A baby! It can't be true! . . . I never heard of that. . . . Could Frills have had a baby in that time? Let me see, yes, it could have happened. . . . the baby could be now be as much as five or six months old! . . . Oh dear, to think of me having a baby. . . ."

She sat and read the letter again and again trying to realize the incredible fact that she, Joyce Ashton, was a mother.

Joyce glanced up and saw a man coming down the path toward her. She took a deep breath to restore her courage and looked him over with surprising calm as she hastily put the letters aside.

Tips on Taxes

Austin—It is known that the costs of the State government for the next two years will be substantially lower than for the past two years. The single uncertainty is what may be done with reference to appropriations for support of the public schools. Other major appropriation bills have been finally passed by both houses of the Legislature. They represent reductions varying from 25 to 40 per cent. The aggregate reductions will probably be from 30 to 33 per cent.

However, the possibility of upsetting the results of the start toward economy—and it is only a start, notwithstanding the impressive savings made—is by no means remote. There are two very pressing influences that may supply the necessary support to bring about the enactment of laws that will open new sources of revenue, which would eventually neutralize the progress already made. These are the insistent demands of public schools for liberal appropriations and the desire to balance the State budget and wipe out the existing deficit during the next year, or two at most.

Thus far, no general new taxes have been levied. The sales tax, which was the most important means suggested for raising new revenues, has been killed again. This time, its death is supposed to be final, but it is known that plans are being made to revive the idea, dress it up in a fresh Spring outfit, bring it out as the angel of public school education and the Santa Claus for sadly depleted county and city treasuries, through an ingenious proposal to split the proceeds between the schools, counties and cities. Basically, this is the familiar "aid" method of increasing taxes, which has been a prolific cause of the increase in the cost of government in this country for the past ten years.

Those who oppose new taxes will need to be alert during the closing days of the session of the Legislature. It is also well to bear in mind that up to the present time the fundamental causes of high taxes have not been removed. Nothing has yet been done that will provide effective barriers against a return of extravagance, once the present emergency is passed. Changes have been proposed, which if finally adopted, will give some degree of permanence to measures of economy. The fate of these really constructive changes is still uncertain and there seems to be possibility that some of them will fail.

The amendment in the Senate proposing to reduce the State ad valorem tax for general revenue purposes from 35 to 15 cents has been engrossed in the Senate but apparently by JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

YOUR PHYSICIAN

"Doctor, what's the matter with me?"

"Can you cure it?"

These two questions make the "horns" of the dilemma in every case treated or applying for treatment. Both questions are of the highest importance for the doctor and patient.

A doctor may know exactly what the trouble is—he may be the best of diagnosticians—yet he may be sadly deficient in his knowledge of the best remedies for the disease; so broad and deep is the science of medicine!

I believe there are hundreds—thousands of patients treated and cured—when the diagnosis was absolutely a mistake. How? Well, the skillful doctor treated the important SYMPTOMS.

The best doctor strives to be equal to the answer to both of the questions at the head of this letter; happy the physician that can, truthfully answer both.

Suppose the doctor cannot accurately diagnose the case—yet believes he has done so; I'd trust that doctor anywhere. Why? Just because he knows what remedy to apply for the symptoms.

I would be perfectly willing for a doctor to treat me who knows well the action of the medicine he uses; he knows the cause that will bring about the effect. A good physiologist is a good doctor; the man who knows healthy life is quick to recognize any departure from it. Physiology is the science of life.

I am not so devilish particular about a technical diagnosis; I do not care how many red cells a man has, just so I know he is anemic. Now laugh if you want to!

lacks the required two-thirds support to submit it as a constitutional amendment.

The amendment placing an arbitrary limit on total expenditures of the State government has been finally passed by the Senate by the necessary two-thirds vote. It is yet to go through the House. The judiciary reorganization amendment, making drastic changes in the set-up of the courts and promising important economies, which passed the House some time ago, awaits an uncertain fate in the Senate.

Amendments proposing reorganization of costly county government are yet to be acted on. This is also true of a bill which proposes county unit system of public school administration. These latter two subjects are vital, because local taxes are much more burdensome than State taxes.

The Senate has passed unanimously a bill limiting the amount of compensation which would be allowed county and precinct officials. The reductions will radically affect official incomes in counties of populations above 25,000. The top compensation allowed any county official in Texas would be $5,000, and this would be possible only in counties above 150,000 population. The following maximums have been set. Counties under 10,000, $3,000; between 10,000 and 25,000, $3,250; between 25,000 and 37,500, $3,500; between 37,500 and 75,000, $4,250; between 75,000 and 150,000, $4,750; above 150,000, $5,000. The rates do not apply to all fee officers alike. The maximums are for more important county officers. Lower figures are fixed for justices of the peace, constables, etc.
