Likes Crowell's Hospitality and Tells About It

Last week the Foard County News received a copy of the Kiowa County Star-Review, Hobart, Okla., from Mrs. Ollie Satter-Crowell, a member of a pioneer Crowell family, who has lived in Hobart for many years. She was formerly Miss Ollie Raney.

In making a trip across West Texas, Clara Neal, who edits the "Short Grass Grazings" column in that paper had car trouble in the west part of Foard County late in the afternoon and in the issue of the paper of August 22 her entire column was devoted to extolling the kindness of a truck driver who pushed her car into Crowell and the excellent treatment accorded her and her companions after arriving in Crowell to spend the night.

Here is her story: Texans, including my favorite brother-in-law who only recently left Oklahoma to join their ranks, make no secret of the, to them very obvious fact that the Lone Star state is head and shoulders—well, at least that far—above any other spot on earth. And, while not willing to go the whole way with them, I'm beginning to wonder if maybe they've got something—more than an over-enthusiastic chamber of commerce slant, that is.

Just back from a trip across the West Texas country, I'm not only willing but anxious to admit at least one thing—that that's the place to learn about western hospitality.

Perhaps what happened to us in the little town of Crowell might have happened in any other town in the United States but I doubt it. At any rate, it helps to know there still are people like the ones we found there. And I think the story is worth telling.

You might say it started when we (my sister, seven-year-old nephew and I) decided to drive the last part of our trip home from Lubbock at night to avoid the heat. It seemed like a good idea at the time—and until the car decided it had had enough for one day and elected to go out of business on the loneliest stretch of road on the map, and just at dusk. I thought afterward that it might have helped some if it had been pitch dark—at least we couldn't have seen just how desolate a spot we'd picked. All we would have known for sure was that we were 17 miles out of the town we had just passed and 20 miles from the next one.

There may be some good points about spending the night with the prairie dogs and the coyotes but, at the time, we couldn't think what they were.

Maybe it was partly because we were already hungry and thirsty. We hadn't seen any traffic for miles—and besides it wasn't very likely that anyone would stop after dark, and it was almost that.

What happened from there on is still hard to believe. First of all there was the truck looming into sight. It hesitated as though it were going to stop, then as the driver apparently changed his mind, went on past and was down the road a good little ways when he changed his mind again and ground to a stop. That truck driver more than likely has never thought of himself in such glowing terms but he looked exactly like an angel, nothing less, to us, at the moment.

He couldn't have been too happy about his role as rescuer of two women and a little boy—he'd spent the day in a garage himself and had just gotten rolling. But having taken us on as a responsibility, he didn't hesitate—not even when he discovered there wasn't much he could do about a broken fan belt, a broken radiator and a broken water pump and the only recourse was to push us 20 miles around curves and over hills into the next town, which was Crowell. And for the record, it would be said that this amazing creature insisted we didn't owe him anything and we had to practically force him to take pay.

The citizens of Crowell took over from that point and we apparently became a town project without the formality of a council meeting and city ordinance.

The filling station operator who put on a new fan belt was so interested in helping us find out what else was wrong with the car and helping us find overnight accommodations that he forgot to collect for the belt until we happened to remember it. All of the garages were closed but a bystander offered to hunt us up a mechanic yet that night, an offer which we declined, thinking the mechanic might not be quite so enthusiastic.

The station operator's wife took her car and gave us a push to the hotel, assuring us that if we didn't find a room there, she'd see to it that we found one somewhere else. And she would have, too.

That hotel, incidentally, is worth a story in itself, including the owner who was just a little offended when we asked for a key.

Evangelistic Campaign Opens at Christian Church

A series of evangelistic meetings will begin at the First Christian Church in Crowell on Sunday morning, September 8, and will continue through the following Sunday, September 15. Grant L. Slagle, pastor of the church, and an evangelist, will conduct the services.

In speaking of the meeting, Bro. Slagle states that the sermons will be "a comprehensive study of the whole word of God, comprising different plans of redemption as portrayed in the various ages as God dealt with man. Since former ages were but shadows of the present church age, to be thoroughly informed in the whole gospel plan of salvation, one must be instructed in the meanings of these shadows; for, the beauty of God's love, mercy and truth can be only understood through that which Paul calls 'the schoolmaster to bring us to Christ.'"

"The glories of the true believer, with all the promise understood to eternal life, can best be understood when one is acquainted with the whole counsel of God. We invite you to attend regularly that you may hear all the subjects to be discussed, as they will be closely related."

The sermon subjects for the week are as follows: Sept. 8 at 11 a. m.—"The Church in Danger;" 7:45 p. m.—"God Spoke Through the Prophets;" Monday—"The Fullness of Time;" Tuesday—"The Death of Christ;" Wednesday—"The Resurrection of Christ;" Thursday—"His Glorious Body;" Friday—"Key of the Kingdom;" Saturday—"The Gentiles Accepted;" Sunday, September 15 at 11 a. m.—Subject to be announced—7:45 p. m.—"Through the Gates Into the City."

The services are scheduled to begin at 8 o'clock each evening.

Veterans' Officer to Be Stationed at Childress

The appointment of Louis E. Griffin as Veterans administration Training Officer to be stationed at Childress, was announced today by Robert W. Sisson, VA regional manager at Lubbock.

Griffin will supervise veterans taking on-the-job training in Childress, Collingsworth, Cottle, Hall, Foard, Hardeman, Motley and the eastern half of Donley Counties.

An announcement will be made later as to where Griffin may be contacted in Childress.

Griffin will perform his duties as Training Officer under the direction of Eldon F. Fuller, Chief, Vocational Rehabilitation and Education Division of the VA regional office. "We are anxious to give all veterans taking on-the-job training the best supervision possible in order that they may make satisfactory progress in reaching their objectives," Fuller said.

Griffin is a veteran of World War II, having served 30 months in the Army Air Corps. He is a native West Texan, with Shamrock his home town. Childress Boosters to Be in Crowell Wednesday Sept. 18

Boosters from Childress will arrive in Crowell on Wednesday, Sept. 18, at 1:55 and will put on a 30-minute program on the west side of the square, according to information received by the News. The boosters will visit Quannah, Chillicothe, Vernon, Crowell, Paducah, Matador and Turkey on the trip.

explaining "we haven't had a key at this hotel for 11 years and we've never had any trouble."

We weren't too optimistic over prospects for the next morning. Knowing a little about the scarcity of mechanics, we were up bright and early, planning to call the garage as soon as it opened which we had found out the night before would be 7:30. At a minute or so before 7:30, we looked out the window to see a wrecker driving up. Before we could get down stairs, the young man who had offered to get the mechanic the night before was halfway up the stairs—coming after the car keys. The mechanic, who lived up to the standards set by the rest of the town, had the car repaired and delivered back to the hotel in less than an hour—and at a very reasonable charge.

Like I said, it might have all happened that way somewhere else, if we'd have been somewhere else, but I doubt it—even in Oklahoma.

The first bale of cotton for Foard County of the 1946 crop was brought to Crowell by J. C. Joy of the Good Creek community Monday of last week, Aug. 26, and lacked 30¢ of bringing a one hundred dollar bill, including the seed and premium.

The cotton was ginned free by T. V. Rascoe at the Farmers Gin and Mr. Rascoe paid thirty-one and three-quarters cents per pound for the lint and $60.00 per ton for the seed. The lint brought $135.20 and the seed $24.00. Premium made up among the business men of Crowell by Mr. Rascoe amounted to $40.50, which made the bale of cotton bring Mr. Joy $199.70.

New City Marshal Appointed by Council

R. R. Jones, former employee of the Cicero Smith Lumber Co., has been appointed city marshal and will assume his duties next Saturday. Since the resignation of J. L. Gobin, W. B. Tysinger has been acting as city marshal.

The State Highway Department has demanded that Crowell keep both highways open to traffic and it is very essential that motorists cooperate wholeheartedly with the city marshal in the matter of double-parking and other traffic law regulations. If motorists would be more particular about parking their cars to the curb on the business streets there would be room for a larger number of cars to park in the regular manner.

Basic Entrance Requirements for Nursing Unchanged

It isn't easy to become a skilled nurse.
But despite the current shortage of student nurse enrollments, there will be no relaxation in requirements for entrance in the state's 37 accredited schools of nursing, according to Miss Lucy Harris of Fort Worth, president of the Texas League of Nursing Education.
"We have instituted many changes that give our students the same advantages and recreational facilities as college and university students, but we feel it would be unfair to the girl, the profession, and the patients to whom they eventually administer to lower our entrance requirements," Miss Harris asserted.
Spearheading a drive to secure 2,000 student nurse enrollments in September, the Texas League of Nursing Education has outlined a number of basic entrance requirements.
Applicants must be at least 17 years old, of high moral character, possess at least a high school education. Arrangements now have been completed between nursing schools and major universities so that credits in many instances are interchangeable. For example, a nursing school graduate is credited with 330 semester hours toward a Bachelor of Science degree at most of the larger universities. Also, students who have had the two-year pre-nursing course at universities prior to admission to a school of nursing may, upon completion of the three-year nursing course, be awarded the Bachelor of Science degree in Nursing from which ever school they previously attended.
Nursing schools are noted for their well-equipped lecture rooms, laboratories, and libraries, and increased dormitory facilities in recent years have greatly enhanced the college atmosphere. An attractive feature to students has been the low cost of securing such a varied higher education for a vocation that is regarded as one of the most skilled and one of the highest paid open to women.

The year following the end of the war has been one of the worst in nursing school history from the standpoint of enrollments, but league officials are hopeful that an early end of "postwar indecision" will bring students back to school in greater numbers this fall.

HISTORY

The Bill of Rights—September 23: Following the drafting of the Constitution of the United States and its acceptance, a storm of criticism arose because it was felt that it did not provide sufficient protection to the rights of individuals and of states.

The entire nation generally approved the action of the late Congress in freezing the Social Security tax at one per cent for another year. The feeling generally is that there should be no rush to increase this tax.

Notwithstanding there is much work to be done in every community in this country and that in many instances no one can be found to do the work, millions of dollars are being paid out each month in every community in the form of unemployment compensation to able bodied men who are dodging work.

What We Think (By Frank Dixon)

There is in the town in which I live an old man who might be called thirty-two's handyman. He has equipped himself with a team of horses, a hayrack, a mowing machine, a plow, harrow and cultivator.

In the spring he is busy from morning until night plowing gardens. He is a good workman, accommodating, thorough, and efficient.

After the season for plowing gardens is over he helps those with larger tracts with their cultivating. Later in the season he mows weeds in the small pastures and the vacant lots of the town and during the harvest season he helps the farmers in the community with their haying, their oats and wheat harvest and corn shucking.

I visited with him a little while the other day as he was on his way to one of the nearby farms. I asked him where he was going to work. He replied that one of the farmers had called him up to take the place of a young man who walked out on the job because he had thought he was going to get to pitch bundles but when he arrived on the job he was needed more urgently for some other phase of the harvest work.

GARDEN ASSET

A plant of the mint family which is not very widely grown in gardens, and which is not listed in many catalogues, is Stachys lanata, sometimes catalogued as Betonica, and commonly called by the following names: Betony, Lamb's Ears, Kitten's Ears. It is an asset to any garden. It is a herbaceous perennial, winter hardy without protection, which will succeed in good soil, in a sunny border.

Prother Jonathan is a designation often used as a friendly, humorous reference to the American people.

30 YEARS AGO IN THE NEWS

The following news items were taken in whole or in part from the issue of The Foard County News of Sept. 8, 1916, Martin & Kimsey, publishers:

The Crowell schools opened Monday with all teachers present and on Tuesday the enrollment was 360 pupils.

An interesting and pathetic story in this issue of the paper was one telling of the first meeting of a father and son, a barber supply salesman named Boedecker and J. C. (Dummy) Locke, deaf mute who was the shoe shine and general helper at the Wallace & Ball barber shop. Young Boedecker had never known his father, but since reaching manhood had made every effort possible to find his whereabouts. After finishing his business with the shop, he asked Mr. Locke if he wasn't working pretty hard. In the language of mutes, Locke told the drummer that he was deaf and dumb. Boedecker, having learned to converse in the language of mutes, quickly replied, "My parents are both mutes. My name is Boedecker. I am your daddy." spoke the fingers of the mute as he sprang forward and clasped the young man in his firm embrace.

Last Thursday while the big press was grinding out the issue of that week a gentle rain began to fall, and by the time the clouds had broken away almost an inch of rain had fallen upon the dry earth.

Dangers of Home

Home is thought of as about the safest place that one can be in. Yet the records of accidents show that a great number occur in the homes, and a good many of them are fatal. Some of those who are very careful about crossing crowded streets or in driving a car, may do some little thing in the home that lands them in the hospital.

It is a very difficult thing to exercise perfect care. So people need not feel they are to blame if such things do happen. If they can keep their minds on the thing they are doing and take necessary precautions, their chances of avoiding accident are improved.

A lady was hurt one day by stepping on a board in the backyard, the end of which rested on a stick of wood. The board slipped on the stick, the lady was thrown, her legs became twisted, and one of them was broken. So accidents occur in the most unexpected ways, and where one would think they could not happen.

The people who live rushing lives, who never seem to catch up with their work, are perhaps most likely to suffer in these mishaps. Persons if they did not try to do so many things, but just limited some of the less important duties, they could go about the home in a calmer frame of mind, and be more likely to take necessary precautions.

More care is necessary as people grow old. The young folks seem able to take more falls, and their supple bones are likely to stand it even if they do fall. They are more alert, and so do not fall so often. When the older folks have a fall, it sometimes goes with them. A moment's lack of care may land them in a hospital for weeks. The human body is a frail thing as it goes on in life, and we have to guard it carefully.

Up From Humble Life

In reading the obituary notices of men who have achieved more than ordinary success, it is remarked that many of them came from humble beginnings. They had to make their way in the world by their own efforts. Of course, they got a great deal of help from American schools, but after they left school they had to make their way up by their own determination and persistence.

It is a great advantage for a young person to be born in a family that can give him a good education. Many who have had these advantages have not had any great amount of ambition, and so have not accomplished anything very wonderful.

It cannot be considered an advantage for a person to be born in a family suffering from poverty. Yet these circumstances have proved a spur and an incentive to many men and women, accustoming them to hard work and constant effort, and these qualities led them on to success.

Popular Honesty

Some people have claimed that the American people are growing more dishonest. It has been said, as one instance, that tests made with school children show that many of them, if given more change than they are entitled to when they make a purchase, will retain the excess, even though they realize it does not belong to them.

However honest or dishonest the people may be, it is up to agencies that influence youth to emphasize the idea of honesty. Business is built on a foundation of honest dealing, and if many people are crooked it will cost more to do business with them, and the people will have to pay. Parents should teach their children to be ashamed to take or keep money to which they are not entitled.

It used to be said that a fool and his money were soon parted. This thing of being parted with one's money is no longer confined to fools. The sharply increasing prices promise to get most of the money away from even the most conservative.

The Federal Reserve Board and Bureau of Agricultural Economics estimates that two out of every five American families last year averaged less than $40 each in savings and other liquid investments.

William Holmes McGuffey, compiler of the famous McGuffey readers, received for his work of compilation but $1,000 for his ten years work. A royalty of one cent a copy on the readers would have made him a rich man as the books made their publisher.

Roger W. Babson, the economist predicts that in the event of a third world war some of our large coastal cities will be completely destroyed by bombs.

According to J. Edgar Hoover, director of F. B. I., the army of criminals in the United States is ten times greater than the number of students in all the colleges of the country.

The water at Daytona Beach, Florida, is warmer in the winter than in the summer. The reason is that in the summer the wind blows the top warm water out to the ocean and it is replaced by colder water while in the winter the wind blowing in from the ocean brings in the warm top water.

The American people are told to take an increased interest in their government. Many of them do so when they can get any money out of it.

"Over the garden wall," according to the old song, was no doubt a fascinating place, but perhaps that was written before some people had made that space a place to dump refuse.

Some of the men who step on the gas so very hard, have later found themselves unable to step into the hospital.

AGRICULTURE in County

(Joe E. Burkett, County Agent)

STOMACH WORM TREATMENT

During this month and next is a good time to repeat the treatment for stomach worms in your calf crop for this year. Phenothiazine is the most efficient treatment in most cases, says Dr. E. A. Grist, veterinarian with the Texas A. & M. College Extension Service. You may give it to calves either as a drench or in capsules, but the drench is easier to give. The dose is ten to twelve grams of powder for each 100 pounds of the animal's weight. However, don't give more than 60 grams to any animal, regardless of its weight. To weak, anemic calves, give only half a dose, and repeat the treatment in seven to ten days. Don't starve the calves before or after treatment. This treatment, repeated now, will enable your calves to go through the winter free of stomach worms. Remember the name of the drench—phenothiazine—and if you want more information on drenching, see your county agricultural agent. He'll be able to give you a copy of Extension Circular No. 222, which gives recommendations on stomach worm treatment.

GRAIN SMUT TREATMENT

Planting time for winter grain crops will soon be here. Get your seed now and treat it chemically against losses from smut, seed rots and seedling blights.

Stinking smut is the most serious wheat disease. The smut spores on the seed germinate at the same time the wheat does and at heading time the smut forms masses of spores in the grain heads where wheat kernels should be. You can often detect the smut through the foul odor it gives off. The disease does not destroy the chaff, so it may sometimes be hard to notice. Oats and barley are often affected by loose smut, which is easily noticed by the black barren stalks in the field. To control these winter grain smuts, except loose wheat smut, treat each bushel of seed with one-half ounce of New Improved Ceresan. Copper carbonate was used a great deal in the past, but it often causes trouble by caking in the grain drill. Loose smut of wheat, which you can detect by looking for the empty black stalks it causes, can only be controlled by a hot water treatment which is hard to handle properly. Best method is to get your seed from growers who do not have loose smut in their fields. Remember that grain smuts cause losses by reducing grain yields and by dockage on the market. Treating the seed you plant is good insurance against these losses.

PLANT MORE WINTER LEGUMES

Here's a reminder from the Texas A. & M. College Extension Service for more farmers to become "legume minded." That is, plant more winter legumes to increase soil fertility.

Extension Agronomist E. A. Miller points out that legumes such as vetch, winter peas, and sweet clover in your cropping system will make soils more fertile and farming more profitable. Profitable farming is based on soils which are naturally rich in available plant food or which have been made productive by building up the soil fertility. Legumes increase soil fertility by furnishing nitrogen from the air by the action of millions of tiny bacteria in the roots. For this reason, says Mr. Miller, legumes may be rightfully called "nitrogen factories."

Legumes, when turned under and allowed to decay, also supply badly needed humus, which is often referred to as the "life of the soil," says the agronomist. This humus improves the physical condition of the soil, supplies more plant food and makes the earth hold moisture much better. Experiments and many demonstrations have shown that it indeed pays to grow and turn under legumes. In the eastern half of Texas, legumes have increased cotton yields from 50 to 100 pounds of lint per acre, and has improved other crop yields in the same manner. Since winter legume planting time is near make your arrangements now for seed supplies, fertilizer and seed inoculation.

The Speechmakers

The political campaign is soon to become more active, and many Americans will make speeches to their fellow citizens. The people should listen carefully to such addresses, and try to decide which speakers and which party and which candidates have the strongest arguments.

Home Town Thoughts

There is a debt which we owe to our home town, for the advantages it gives us, and it calls on us to help the progress of the town in every way we can.

The people who have a warm feeling of loyalty and affection for their home town, make themselves very popular by the various services they render.

The people who always praise the advantages and achievements of their home town, help create enthusiasm for town progress, and they make it easier to accomplish new benefits and improvements.

It is a great gift to be able to make a good speech. Many people become embarrassed if asked to say something to a public audience. They may be able to talk freely in private life, but if they get up on their feet and attempt to advance arguments to an audience, their thoughts become confused, and they fail to convince their hearers. Those who have learned this art become leaders, and the people are swayed by their utterances.

Thanks for Your Patronage

THANKS FOR CO-OPERATION

We want to thank those who have co-operated with us on the parking laws and to ask those who have been in the habit of double-parking, or parking too close to corners and fire plugs, to please refrain from doing so, as the State Highway Department has demanded that both highways be kept open. Those who insist on breaking the law are subject to fine.

JESUS AND SINCERITY OF SPEECH

LESSON TEXT—Ezekiel 20:16; Proverbs 20:23-28; Matt. 26:69-75.
MEMORY SELECTION—Wherefore putting away lying, speak every man truth with his neighbor—Ephesians 4:25.

God is truth, and therefore any kind of lie is evidence of godlessness. Satan is the father of lies (John 8:44) and the father of all liars.

I. The Prohibition of Lying (Exod. 20:16.)
This "thou shalt not" of God has to do primarily with perjury; that is, the telling of an untruth in court.

This is one of the worst forms of lying, because it may result in the one against whom it is practiced losing his liberty, his life or his property, or the destruction of his good reputation.

It is obvious, however, that the commandment covers all forms of lying, whether in business, in social contacts, in the home, or in the church. We might do well to consider what the Bible has to say about whisperers, talebearers, backbiters and others (see Lev. 16:10; II Cor. 12:20).

II The Purpose of Lying (Prov. 26:23-26.)
Sometimes as one hears the continuous stream of lies which flow from the lips of some men, one is apt to feel that it is just a bad habit of careless talking which has become a part of the life.

There is, however, a real purpose behind the lies of men, and that is to deceive in order to get gain or advantage, or to cover up hatred.

How much of all this there is in the world today—yes, and in the church. Those who profess to be the followers of Christ use the devices of the devil in their relations with fellow members of the church. Christian workers who wish to appear greater than they are, or to look greater than others, use deceit and lying. With what results?

III. The Punishment of Lying (Prov. 26:26-28; Matt. 26:75).

One lie leads to, in fact calls for, another, and soon the liar has dug a pit so big that he stumbles and falls into it. He is like one who starts a great stone rolling, and he is rolled back on him and crushed. Yes, in due time he is shown up before the entire congregation (v. 26).

Then, too, the lie does harm to others. No matter what its nature—a half truth, or a truth used to deceive, or an outright falsehood—it bears awful fruit in the life of the one toward whom it is directed, or whose name is involved (v. 28). Once started, it is often impossible to stop. One cannot ever catch up with a lie.

But there is also a horrible and bitter fruitage of lies in the life and the heart of the liar. Lies do "come home to roost," and they make the heart and life of anyone who has a vestige of decency and honor left, miserably unhappy. Consider Peter (Matt. 26:75). It is of the utmost importance that we stress before children and young people the awful results of lying, as well as its sinfulness. Lying and deceit are so commonly accepted in our day that many regard it as all right—if you don't get caught. But the fact is, you always do get caught by God—yes, and by your own lie.

IV. The Practice of Lying (Matt. 26:69-74).

Sadly enough, the constant lying of the world seems to have infected the minds and hearts of Christians. Instead of being cleansed from this worldly defilement they carry its awful tendencies into the church.

The great lie within the Church, and one of Satan's prize exhibits, is the falsehood of modern religious liberalism (so-called), which is essentially a denial of real New Testament Christianity. Jesus said (v. 42) that if God is our Father we will accept him as the Christ. The one who speaks sweet words about the example, the manhood, the leadership of the Master, and who denies him his place as God, is clearly in mind here as the follower of the father of lies.

Someone has suggested that the great spiritual problem of our day is not the conflict between the Church and the world; nor is it to determine how the Church can best serve in the world, but rather what to do about the world which has gotten into the Church. How did worldliness get into the Church? The members brought it there after they had gone out and warmed themselves at the world's fire, and fellowshiped with the world in ungodly living.

The denials made by Peter seem almost unbelievable in the life of one who had been in immediate fellowship with the Lord and who had seen his glory. We have here a revelation of the fact that "the heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked; who can know it?" (Jer. 17:9).

J. A. STOVALL, Secretary.

I observed that at first he roughly blocked out the letters and the design, and later, with infinite care, cut away the hard granite, bringing out as he did so, the beautiful lines of the design and the letters. I thought, as I watched him work, how like the shaping of a human life and career is the production of a monument.
First there is an aim or goal in life, then as we proceed there is a constant chipping away of the rough edges making each detail
more perfect and more beautiful
until the desired end is achieved.
Some stop with merely the design, some take the preliminary steps and never seem to finish the task. Others, like my friend the stone cutter, never cease until they have produced a life and a character that is satisfying and beautiful in its completeness.

SAFETY SLOGANS
Here are some suggestions to follow when your car skids:
Don't put your foot on the brake.
Don't throw out your clutch.
It is better to stall your engine
than to allow your car to waltz
all over the road.
Take your foot off the gas.

GLAD TO BE BACK
An ex-G. I. observed the way
"the other half" lives in his travels around the world. Ex-Sergeant Wm. T. Garvey saw what any G.
I. could have seen who passed through the cities of the Orient en route to "the bush"—India's beggars; cows ambling nonchalantly
along sidewalks; Mohammedans
turning to Mecca; the painted marks of religion and caste; the roadside vendors of insect-ridden cheese and fruit, shoe laces and worthless trinkets; the haggling
over prices of wares; the smells;
scarcity of food of any sort; the ragged thousands sleeping the clock around on the floor in any public building or railway station;
clothing beaten to shreds on flat rocks in lieu of washing; thousands of staggering skeletons waiting for something to eat.
It is no mystery to him why living standards are so low in these countries. Methods employed in gaining a livelihood in such countries are still so primitive that men can barely produce enough to keep alive, whereas in America,
capital has built up great industries which make the United States
a land of luxuries. Few, indeed, are the locations outside America
where people take for granted automobiles, radios, refrigerators, bathtubs, washing machines, vacuum cleaners, sewing machines,
telephones, electricity, gas, fresh running water and modern sewage disposal.
India can't duplicate what we have in America overnight, "because capitalism requires saving.
To enjoy the comforts of the capitalist life," the soldier explains,
"we must forego some of the satis-
factions of the present. By pooling our savings with others we can purchase production equipment beyond our means as individuals, and produce consumer goods cheaply and in quantity. In India capitalism is just in the beginning.
"I like our American system. I like my radio and electric refrigerator, an extra suit of clothes, and meat on the table. I was never impressed by the street-corner propagandist who was always trying to prove that the 'capitalists'
were oppressors grinding a heel
on the neck of downtrodden common people. There was a time when I used to think they didn't know what they were talking about. Now I know! Of course, there are abuses of the capitalistic system, but I've seen how
"the other half" lives. I'm back home and glad of it. I like it here.—Industrial News Review.

Home Town Thoughts
Some folks can see chances to make money in a great many places
except in their own home town, where their chances may be as good as they are anywhere.
The old settlers who founded
our towns were wonderful people and it will help maintain their record if people now are prompt settlers of their bills.
It would cost a lot of money to send a salesman around to the homes to tell them about the things a concern has to sell, but the information can be distributed to the people through an advertisement inserted in The Foard County News for a very small sum.

Weekly Sermon

By the Rev. Will H. Houghton, D. D., President of Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

For the Heart Hungry
"I will delight myself in thy commandments, which I have loved" (Ps. 119:47).

The Bible is written not according to the human plan. It is written that an ordinary person may believe and find life. We remember how it was said of Jesus that
"the common people heard him gladly."

God paints sunsets not merely for the benefit of art critics, but that the average man also may enjoy them. God keys the voice of the bird not only to the ear or the demands of the musician; the average man also finds his pulses quicken by the bird's song. God plants flowers not only for botanists to pull apart, but also for the poor and the rich, the foolish and the wise to enjoy.

An impression is abroad in our day that the Scriptures are for the critics, and that only men that have scholarship are entitled to read and enjoy them—if they can. But the butcher and baker and candlestick maker may not expect to know anything about them!

No doubt there is a place for reverent microscopic examination of the Sacred Writings. Fortunately the shades of language in the original tongue. But let him remember that it is not the purpose of God to gratify the mental demands of the few, but to satisfy the heart hunger of the many.

"Blessed is the man that walketh
not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful. But his delight is in the law of the Lord; and in his law doth he meditate day and night." (Ps. 1:1, 2).

VETERANS' QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Q. How can a veteran get assistance with his unemployment problems?
A. The veteran may consult a veteran's employment representative in a local office or in the state central office of the employment service, a local service organization, a school or a community veterans center.
Q. If a veteran is unable to find work, where can he obtain specific information concerning unemployment allowances?
A. Inquire at the public employment office or the office of the unemployment compensation agency in the state or territory
in which the veteran resides.
Q. Are there any penalties in case the veteran accepts readjustment allowances to which he is not entitled?
A. Any veteran who knowingly accepts an allowance to which he is not entitled shall be ineligible to receive further readjustment allowances. Also, the law provides for fine and imprisonment for anyone who fraudulently obtains payment or makes a false statement in order to cause allowances to be issued under the act.
Q. Does a veteran who is partially unemployed have a right to readjustment allowances?
A. Yes, a veteran who works less than his normal number of hours and who receives less than $23 per week should inquire at the nearest public employment office of the state unemployment compensation agency as to his eligibility for partial readjustment allowances.
Q. Can a veteran have a loan guaranteed or insured to buy or construct more than a single-family home?
A. Yes, but one veteran cannot get a guaranteed or insured loan to buy or build more than a four-family home. If more than one veteran is buying, then the basic-four family home is allowed for the group and this may be increased by one additional family unit for each veteran participating; thus two veterans can buy or build a six-family home, three veterans a seven family home,
etc.

ALKA-SELTZER BRIGHTENS MY DAY
OCCASIONALLY, I wake up in the morning with a headache.
It sometimes wears off along the middle of the forenoon, but I don't want to wait that long, so I drink a glass of sparkling ALKA-SELTZER.
In just a little while I am feeling a lot better.
Sometimes the week's ironing tires
me and makes me sore and stiff.
Then it's ALKA-SELTZER to the rescue—a tablet or two and a little rest makes me feel more like finishing the job.
And when I don't wisely but too well ALKA-SELTZER relieves the Acid Indigestion that so often follows.
Yes, Alka-Seltzer brightens my

of my discomforts, that I always keep it handy.

Miss Rettig Becomes Bride of John M. Minnich on August 21

In the presence of members of the immediate families and a few close friends, Miss Mary Ella Rettig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rettig, became the bride of John M. Minnich, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Minnich of Keyser, West Virginia, in a ceremony performed by Monsignor Thomas Brady at nine o'clock on Wednesday morning, August 21, in the Sacred Heart Church in Springfield, Missouri. The altar and communion rail were decorated with an arrangement of white gladioli.

The bride, who was given in marriage by J. E. Egan, family friend, wore a wedding dress of white satin. The close-fitting, buttoned-down-the-back bodice was distinguished by a square yoke of illusion, caught by a wide lace band. The long sleeves tapered to a point over the hands. A graduated plume of the satin fell over a very full skirt of net over satin which fell into a long train. Her full-length veil of bridal illusion was caught by a coronet tiara of pearls. Her only jewelry was a moonstone necklace which had been presented to her mother by her father, and her bouquet was a cascade arrangement of white gladioli with a shower of white satin streamers and tied with white satin ribbons.

Miss Mary Minnich attended the bride as maid of honor and was her only attendant. She was attired in a dress of blue net over satin with embroidered bodice and a matching half hat of asters. Her bouquet was of yellow gladioli and blue asters arranged in a colonial nosegay.

David Egan served as best man to the groom and J. T. Williams

Survivors of World War II Veterans to Benefit from S. S.

Many survivors of World War II veterans who have died since leaving the service will benefit from one of the provisions of the Social Security Act Amendments of 1946, Gordon James, manager of the Wichita Falls Social Security Administration field office said this week.

James explained that the new section of the act provides for the payment of monthly benefits to qualified survivors of veterans who die within 3 years of their discharge and whose dependents are not qualified to receive compensation or pensions from the Veterans Administration. National Service Life Insurance is not considered as compensation or a pension.

In the case of such veterans who died before the enactment of the new amendment, the measure provides for monthly benefits retroactive to the date of the veteran's death if the survivors file their benefit claims with the nearest office of the Social Security Administration before midnight February 10, 1947. Of course, monthly benefits other than retroactive are payable on claims filed at any time by qualified persons.

In cases where survivors of veterans who qualify under the new amendment already have filed claim for monthly benefits earned by the veteran under the old-age and survivors insurance program of the Social Security Administration, it is possible that the provisions of the new measure will provide greater benefits than those available to the veteran. These survivors are included in the immediate potential beneficiaries, James said, and should apply to the field office of the Social Security Administration.

The same applies, James added, to survivors who have filed claim for lump-sum benefits under the old-age and survivors insurance program on a qualified veteran's account. The new amendment may make them eligible for monthly benefit payment, or it may increase the amount of the lump-sum benefit. In the latter case, they will receive the difference between the lump sum they received and the larger amount they are eligible for under the amendment, if they apply at the office of the Social Security Administration.

"As in the case of all other persons qualified for social security benefits families of deceased veterans to whom this new section of the law has immediate application should come to our office to file their benefit claims as soon as possible," James said.

V. A. to Furnish Disabled Veterans Prescriptions Free

The Veterans administration has signed a contract with the Texas State Pharmaceutical association to provide "home town" prescription service to veterans with service-connected disabilities, the VA announced this week.

Under the contract, authorized druggists will submit their bills to the state association which in turn will be reimbursed by the Veterans administration, Dr. Oza J. La Barge, Chief Medical Officer, West Texas VA regional office, Lubbock, Texas, said.

Dr. La Barge said the VA has been furnished, by the state association, with a list of local pharmacists authorized to fill prescriptions for veterans. Designated physicians are, in turn, being sent a list of the authorized pharmacists. The service is available only to veterans with service-connected disabilities, he emphasized.

The program is designed to reduce the reported delays which arose when all prescriptions from fee-basis physicians had to be mailed to the nearest VA office and then sent to the veterans by mail, Dr. La Barge said.

Under the new project, eligible veterans simply take the prescription to their neighborhood drug store and the Veterans administration pays the bill.

Some agitation has been started to change the calendar in use today. Our present calendar was devised by Pope Gregory XIII in 1582 and has been almost universally adopted. Attracting the widest interest is the so-called "World Calendar" sponsored by the League of Nations in 1931 and endorsed then by fourteen nations. It consists of four equal quarters of 13 weeks each. Each quarter is divided into three 26th days of each year, and 26 working days plus Sundays, months, each month consisting of fall at the end of December as the 366th in leap years, would "extra" days to be observed as "World Holidays." This would make the calendar perpetual with every year starting on Sunday and ending on Saturday, also each quarter would be the same length. Such a calendar, its sponsors argue, would simplify comparative statistics, make it easier to figure budgets, payrolls, operating schedules, etc. All holidays and anniversaries would follow the same day each year.

Insects Chief Problem in Making Dog Comfortable on Hot Days

Summer "dog days" would not nearly be as uncomfortable for our canine pets were they given adequate protection against insect parasites, states the Gaines Dog Research Center, New York City.

The flea-ridden dog, scratching, biting and squirming, is a pathetic sight. In addition to causing the dog extreme annoyance, the flea carries dog tapeworm and also appears to be connected in some way with canine summer eczema. The tick is another culprit preying on dogs that has come to the fore in the past several years. An insidious individual of tenacious habits, he makes a practice of hiding in underbrush and grass along paths and trails, waiting to attach himself to the first passing animal.

According to the Center, DDT powder of 5 per cent strength, used as a dust, has been found extremely effective against fleas. The powder should be scattered through the hair next to the skin, especially in the region of the abdomen, inner thighs and tail areas. The treatment should be repeated at two-week intervals during the summer months.

Washing the animal in water containing derris or cube powder is another excellent method of control. Two ounces of the powder and an ounce of neutral soap—preferably in flaked form—are mixed with a gallon of water. This is applied to the dog either by dipping or sponging, or may be used as a fine rinse following an ordinary soap-and-water bath. Control measures for the tick are not much more difficult, but do require persistence. The simplest method of removal, when only a few ticks are present, is to pick them off with tweezers. Dogs should be examined frequently for re-infestation, with special attention given to the ears, the neck and the spaces between the toes. A dusting powder containing 10 per cent DDT is usually very effective. Care should be taken that the powder penetrates the hair and reaches the dog's skin. This treatment should provide protection for as long as two weeks. The use of DDT in liquid or spray form may not be safe. Where 10 per cent DDT powder is not obtainable, a twice-weekly use of a derris dip is suggested. For this dip, dissolve one ounce of mild soap in a gallon of warm water, then stir three to four ounces of fine derris or cube powder (5% rotenone) into the solution. Pour the liquid over the dog and work into the coat with the fingers; keep repouring until the hair and skin are completely saturated.

Long-haired dogs require more care than other breeds in the control of ticks. Clipping the coat is helpful but by no means necessary. A daily brushing with a stiff bristled brush is advisable, followed by use of a steel-toothed comb. The comb should be repeatedly dipped in pine oil or a light turpentine solution.

In combatting fleas, ticks and other parasites, periodic attention should also be given to the dog's sleeping quarters and accessories, states the Gaines Dog Research Center. Wooden or wicker dog beds should be carefully wiped with a cloth dampened with pine oil or a commercially prepared dip, and blankets and cushions sprayed with fly spray and put outdoors to air. Outdoor kennels are best treated by spraying with creosote oil.

Bath-time is an excellent time for giving the dog protection against insect parasites.

Beery and O'Brien Score Together in "Bad Bascomb"

Common Colds Are Dangerous Unless Treated Properly

Austin.—With the approach of fall and the attendant seasonal changes of weather, common colds become much more prevalent and widespread in the state.

Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, has issued a warning against the careless treatment of any respiratory illness since they can and frequently do result in the dreaded complication, pneumonia. He emphasized the fact that pneumonia usually strikes with little or no warning, following a simple cold, an attack of influenza or some other respiratory infection.

"A cold or any other infection of the breathing passage, especially if accompanied by fever, demands the immediate attention of a doctor," the State Health Officer said. "To try to fight such a disease without bed rest and by means of self-medication may endanger life unnecessarily."

According to Dr. Cox, prevention is better than cure and in order to avoid colds, influenza and pneumonia he advised building up normal physical resistance by sufficient ventilation, adequate nourishing food, outdoor exercise and sufficient sleep and rest. "However," he added, "if, in spite of such care, a respiratory illness develops, the family doctor should be called immediately."

The fact that pneumonia is definitely a communicable disease is often overlooked, Dr. Cox stated, but this should be borne in mind so that the danger of passing the disease from one person to another can be eliminated.

CHURCH OF THE BRETHERN

A church "get-together" held annually since the days of William Penn is the record of the Church of the Brethren. This year's scheduled meet was the 160th annual conference which has been recorded. In the early days permanent records were not kept. Traditionally known as "peace seekers," members of the Church of the Brethren came to America from Germany at the invitation of William Penn. Between 1719 and 1829 all members of the church, which had been organized at Schwarzenau in 1708,
